FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Dr. Marshall Banks' time as a student at Morehead State University during the late '50s and early '60s was considered a milestone. He came to the University as the first ever African American athlete in the Ohio Valley Conference and left with a college degree and recognition as one of the best track and field athletes in OVC history.

Now 35 years later, Dr. Banks will play a major role in this year's Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Unity and Community Celebration which will be held Tuesday, Jan. 21, in Morehead.

The celebration, coordinated by MSU's Office of Minority Student Affairs, will get under way at 4 p.m. at Kentucky Folk Art Center (KFAC) with a reception for African American artist and Paducah native Joan Dance.

Her works are on display at KFAC in an exhibit entitled "The Paintings of Joan Dance," which portrays scenes from everyday life in a way which some say "evokes a level of intimacy that transforms the ordinary into the extraordinary."

Following the reception, the celebration will continue at 6 p.m. outside the Folk Art Center. Participants will join in a candlelight march to the Catholic Church, located at 309 Battson Avenue, where a tribute to Dr. King will take place.

Dr. Banks, director of the Department of Physical Education and Recreation at Howard University, will be the keynote speaker at the tribute. His talk is entitled "The Impact of Jackie Robinson on Black Representation in Intercollegiate Athletics: Order on the Court."

After graduating from MSU, he continued his education at the University of Illinois where he received his master's and doctorate degrees. In 1981, Dr. Banks was inducted into the MSU Alumni Association Hall of Fame and, in 1987, the MSU Athletic Hall of Fame.

Completing the celebration activities will be a reception at St. Albans Episcopal Church, this year's celebration host, immediately following the tribute. The church is located at 145 E. Fifth St.

The celebration is being sponsored by the Morehead/Rowan County Ministerial Association, MSU and KFAC. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2668.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Can you guess the serial number of a dollar bill borrowed from a stranger or move objects seemingly with the power of your mind? Craig Karges can.

The mentalist/illusionist will bring his show of "extraordinary phenomena" to Button Auditorium on the Morehead State University campus on Thursday, Jan. 23. The performance, which begins at 9:15 p.m., is free and open to the public.

As a 15-year-old, Karges inherited an extensive collection of journals and books on magic, mentalism, spiritualism and parapsychology from a deceased uncle. These books led Karges to perform as a magician and mentalist during his high school and college days.

Now Karges explores extraordinary phenomena, the unexplained mysteries between science and the supernatural. This he combines with showmanship to make "remarkable demonstrations of what may be tomorrow's certainties, but remain today's mysteries."

During his show, Karges has been known to reveal the unspoken thoughts of his audience, make predictions that were later verified and even risk his fee check. At the end of a performance, he places his check in an envelope, mixes it with other envelopes containing blank paper and has an audience member pick out one envelope and burn the rest. If Karges is successful at controlling his volunteer's thoughts, the remaining envelope should contain his check.

Karges has performed on several TV shows including "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno," "Larry King Live" and "Music City Tonight." In 1994, he was named the National Association for Campus Activities' Campus Entertainer of the Year.

His campus visit is being sponsored by MSU's Student Government Association and Student Activities Council. Additional information is available by calling (606) 783-2071.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Food consumption is necessary for all living things.

Failure to listen to our body's need for food can lead to serious emotional problems that can have life-threatening consequences, according to Mary Jo Netherton, Morehead State University associate professor of French and state coordinator for Eating Disorders Awareness and Prevention.

Millions of people have eating disorders and the college campus is just one of the places where the problem is most prevalent, Netherton said. "Students are developing their own identity and a number of influences such as family members, peers and even the media affect young people's attitude about their appearance. Sometimes, a casual comment can have long reaching consequences," she added, noting that the effects can be anorexia nervosa (self-starvation) or bulimia (bingeing, self-induced vomiting/purging) as a means of controlling weight.

To provide information on this issue, MSU will host an Eating Disorders Week, Feb. 2-8, on the campus. During the week's activity, a number of free programs will be sponsored by the Epsilon Theta Chapter of Chi Omega social sorority, Help Overcome Problem Eating (HOPE), University Counseling Center and the Question Spot student information group.

Kicking off the week on Monday, Feb. 3, will be "Slim Hopes," a video and discussion on the effects of the media on body image. The activity, led by Netherton, begins at 5 p.m. in East Room B, Adron Doran University Center (ADUC).

On Tuesday, Feb. 4, MSU students will present "Walking Shadows," a play that includes a series of interwoven monologues given by persons with eating disorders who seek the help of a support group. The characters will share their experiences, including factors that led to their developing the problem and potential for recovery.

Enacting roles in the play will be: Shelly Lemons, Jackson junior; Candace Gilbert, Stanton sophomore; Elli Cantrell, West Liberty sophomore; Kelly Sallee, Lexington sophomore; John Stiltner, Baltimore, Ohio, senior; Rachel Rogers, Campton junior; Holly Stagnaro, Cincinnati, Ohio, sophomore; Sandy Verville, Maysville junior; Farrah Fugett, Wheelersburg, Ohio, freshman, and Jackie Stutts, Morehead junior.

The performance will begin at 7 p.m. in the Rowan County Board of Education building, 121 E. Second Street. Healthy snacks will be served after the performance.

A nationally utilized screening program will be given from 4:30 until 6:30 p.m. to participants at the "Eating Disorders Information and Screening Program" set for Wednesday, Feb. 5. Netherton will lead the educational portion of the presentation in East Room A, while Judy Krug, student wellness coordinator, assisted by MSU students in clinical psychology at the master's level will conduct the actual screening in East Room B, ADUC.

Thursday, Feb. 6, it's "Eating Disorders Awareness Day." Members of Chi Omega will distribute green ribbons at an information booth on the second floor of ADUC.

The week will conclude with "Fearless Friday" when the University community will be encouraged to follow healthy eating habits. "We hope everyone will utilize the information they have been given and make healthy choices rather than crash dieting," Netherton said.

Additional information on the disorders week is available from Netherton at (606) 783-2779 or Krug at 783-2125.

NETHERTON TO LEAD DISCUSSIONS

Providing information allowing one to recognize problems and suggested alternatives for healthy eating habits will be the focus when Morehead State University hosts an Eating Disorders Awareness Week, Feb. 2-8. "We encourage our faculty/staff, students, alumni and other friends to nominate deserving candidates who have given superior service to Morehead State University through the years," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin.

Nominations for the 1997 award should be submitted in writing to Founders Day Chairperson, Morehead State University, Palmer Development House, Morehead, KY 40351-1689.

Current full-time employees of MSU are not eligible. Nominees must have demonstrated extensive service to the University as an employee and/or volunteer.

Nominations must be postmarked by Friday, Feb. 21.

The Founders Day Award for University Service was established by MSU's Board of Regents in 1978. Recipients have included W.E. Crutcher, 1978; Linus A. Fair, 1979; U.S. Rep. Carl D. FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Student Wellness Office is now accepting volunteers for its "Question Spot" student information center for the spring semester.

The center, which began operation last semester, was implemented by students to provide the latest information to students on topics which are relevant to college students. Among the topics are alcohol and other drugs, sexually transmitted diseases, contraceptives, HIV/AIDS, eating disorders, dating communication, rape, and stress and related topics.

"Anyone needing current information, resource documents or an answer to a question may contact the office," said Judy Krug, student wellness coordinator. "If we cannot answer the question at that moment, we will get the information to the appropriate individual in a timely manner."

Krug sees the program as being an excellent resource because it is students serving other students.

Volunteers are needed to staff the office from 4 to 6 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays on a regular basis as well as to assist with coordination of special events. As the program continues to expand its services, additional volunteers will be needed on a regular basis, Krug noted.

"Question Spot", located in 119 Allie Young Hall, may be reached by calling (606) 783-5249 or e-mail at "q.spot@morehead-st.edu". The office is operated through MSU's Student Wellness Office and AVOL.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Do you need to start a weight loss program and just can't seem to find the motivation to take action?

Maybe information on what's available and ways to make the most of your efforts is what you need.

Anyone with an interest in improving their health is invited to attend an educational series on weight loss which is set to begin on Tuesday, Jan. 28, at Morehead State University. A variety of aspects on the issue will be discussed at a weekly meeting which will begin at 5 p.m. in seminar room 2 in Fields Hall. There is no charge for attending.

"Our goal is to provide information so that an individual can make a wise decision that will fit their lifestyle," said Judy Krug, coordinator of Student Wellness. "This series is designed for those interested in weight loss for themselves or others."

Kicking off the series will be a review of weight loss programs. Included will be plans that are nationally recognized and those available in the region.

The Feb. 4 session will cover nutritional guides for weight loss, how to develop your personal eating plan and how to establish body composition baselines. Guidelines will include the importance of developing a food log, details on establishing your own eating plan, and determining body composition: height, weight and body fat.

Setting reasonable goals for weight loss and how to proceed when developing an exercise plan will be discussed on Feb. 11. Additional programs in the planning stage include a review of diet drugs, body image and advertising, and the emotions of weight loss.

While each session is a stand-alone program, most individuals will want to participate in the entire series, Krug noted. Each week, a question and answer session also will be included during the hour-long program.

Assisting in organizing the educational series are Dr. Dayna Brown, director of MSU's Wellness Center, and Jane Kelly, the center's coordinator; Brenda Malinauskas, assistant professor of nutrition and a registered dietitian; Mary Jo Netherton, assistant professor of French and leader of HOPE (Help Overcome Problem Eating), an eating disorders support group, and Krug.

Advance registration is not necessary, Krug said. Additional information is available from Krug at 783-5248 or Dr. Brown at 783-2083.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Dr. Richard B. Miles, director of bands at Morehead State University, has co-authored and edited two new books which were published late last year.

In November, "Teaching Music through Performance in Band," was released by GIA Publications of Chicago. It provides theoretical, analytical and practical information for instrumental music teachers which will assist them in moving students from the printed page toward musical awareness and understanding. Since its release, the book, which also contains analyses and backgrounds of 100 best-known band compositions, has been adopted as a required music education textbook at 15 major universities. The publication is available at MSU's bookstore.

"Block Scheduling: Implications for Music Education," released in December, is a result of two years of research concerning the impact of block scheduling on performance art classes. The book, published by Focus on Excellence in Springfield, Ill., includes such topics as enrollment trends, potential scheduling conflicts, successful programs who use block scheduling and suggestions for getting involved in networking to share information.

Dr. Miles, an associate professor of music at MSU, has more than 23 years of teaching experience. In addition to serving as director of bands, he teaches undergraduate and graduate conducting and other courses in music education.

STUDENTS GET PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE AT MSU

Students taking classes in Morehead State University's Department of Art got some practical teaching experience recently when they participated in the Afternoon Art School for area youngsters. The school, geared toward children 5 to 10 years of age, allowed MSU students who were advanced elementary education majors an opportunity to practice what they had learned in the classroom. The program exposed youngsters to various visual objects including Stonehenge, the Statue of Liberty, Pacific Northwest ceremonial masks, mosaics, Ukrainian decorated eggs and paintings by a number of great artists. Melissa Hoskins, left, West Liberty junior, and Hedy Clark, Morehead senior, participated in one hands-on project with Travis Hall, Clay Cyrus and Helen Faye Boram, all of Morehead.
