"ONE OF KENTUCKY'S GREATER WEEKLIES"

VOLUME VII. MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1940 NUMBER 18

Crackerbarrel Comments (By Woody Hinton)

It seldom I ever sit down to "Peck" out a column with an absolute blank mind. However, at this writing my head is as empty as a "Korn" shell. I can't see any humor in anything. I would not even laugh at a funny joke. All these war news that are coming to over the radio depress me. I do not know what it is all about only I do hope they quit murdering people and settle down to business. I predict the United States will be in it ninety days. See if I am wrong. The hour and Edith, have Duncan Fified their names from one end to the other. It has the atmosphere of a swank show on the fifth avenue in New York. The last time I talked to him was planning on moving a steam radiator in the living room as the draper would hang straight. Well, I just can't enjoy visiting them anymore. I used to get flou down on that old divan they had and sit and talk to them for hours, but now you have to sit straight and be all dignified and watch your English. His bedroom is a screen, air mattress and a bed fit for a movie star. He reminds me of a big "Bull-Torn" lying on a lilly-pad. Robert Cooper of the Cafeteria Cooners has the most industrious wife I need to mine that I know of. She has a beautiful garden, mows the lawn, slopes the pigs, and "Bob" told me he was going to get her a cow for their anniversary. If he keeps it is going to spoil her. I have quit griping now. I asked a farmer the other day, "How are things going?" He said, "Not so good. The peach crop is a plum failure, but the plum crop is a peach." I caught it four days later. Cooperation (I w o n d e r w h e r e it is going to be) has never ever brings to my mind an odd example of what Dr. Huff told me one time when he was called to imbibe rather too freely for a couple of weeks. He said, "When I got to the hospital and one of the imaginary green makes out into the yard where the other fellow was stomping the new building. The new building is going to be hotter than a fire-cracker. I would suggest that "Bill" write The Cleveland Star, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, or some of those small dailies and rent them some space behind the press or somewhere. It is a swell building, and you're up there and look thru it. My office is on the second floor.

CAPITOL COMMENTS (By David M. Porter)

There are two schools of thought on the subject of the new independent in Frankfort over the Lytle Donelson's statement last Wednesday.

One school has it that Donelson decided not to run for this, the short term, but planned on building the machine for the long term, two years from now for the full term.

The opponents of this line say that this is not the reason, that the people Chandler refused to give jobs, and who are now with him, will have forgotten about it in two years time, and that in two months time there will be disappointed job applicants who will be down on Donelson.

They claim that the reason he didn't run was because Governor Johnson asked him not to announce, wanting harmony in his administration now.

The kindergarten line is that Donelson had decided to run and that Farley and Chandler came down and talked to him, probably intimating that if Roosevelt ran for a third term they would be a young conservative on the ticket as vice-president. That Chandler had a good chance to get the nomination being popular with the business, and that a primary intimated that with the Presidential race this year it would be a bad time to split the party in Kentucky, and that the Federal Administration would be much more inclined to support Donelson two years from now than at the present time.

We believe that Donelson had decided to run as late as last Friday, and that he changed his decision as the result of conferences held between them and Wednesday. We don't know what happened in those conferences and only time will tell if his decision was a wise one.

Owingsville Slate Furnace Played Part In 1812 War

(LA RUE WARNER)

The old Slate furnace about four miles from Owingsville is now being forgotten vine-covered pyramids at rough stones. It was famous enough in its time, though many a cannon ball fired in the battle of New Orleans in the war of 1812 came from there.

The furnace is about twenty-five feet high and about ten feet square at the base. It is built of enormous stones and has iron refractory in the center. A fire now grows on the tip of the pyramid and the vines almost hide the furnace although it is only a few feet from the road.

The ore for the cannon balls was obtained from a mine about two miles from the furnace. Sufficient heat was obtained by adding salt in large quantities to the fire. There is an old story that the men did not know this and were unable to smelt ore until one day an old man appeared and told them to add salt. With that the men disappeared and was never seen again.

Interest Is Keyed To High Pitch During Final Hours Of Subscription Campaign

Counting the hours that remain for the subscription campaign and making each one of them mean results, the contestants who are seeking to share the largest in the distribution of the costly, worthwhile prizes are doubling and redoubling their efforts to get in the all-important subscriptions.

Realizing that the hardest part is always at the top of the hill, the contestants are showing a determination as never before to get in every vote possible and this section is accorded to the importance of the issue about to be decided. There are rumors of "dark horses" coming to the front and the race for the rich stakes are becoming more interesting with each passing hour.

Roosevelt Will Request Additional Defense Money

European Events May Involve United States In War

Countless seated behind a desk piled high with papers as the result of long conferences on the subject, Mr. Roosevelt informed reporters that the program may cost a great deal of money, but must be undertaken in any event. He said that whether the money was raised by borrowing, increasing the national debt or by taxation on the $45,000,000,000 of national debt or by taxation was a minor detail.

The important thing, he said, was the national defense, and the main thing was to get the money to work making America's defense impregnable against foreign attack.

To Send Special Message

A special message to Congress detailing his recommendations will go to the Capitol tomorrow. He can finish it by then, he said, and if not will be dispatched by Thursday.

There was no official word as to what sum it would ask, but estimates in high quarters ranged from $750,000,000 to roughly $1,000,000,000. Even the latter figure, when added to sums already voted or pending, would raise the national debt to $100,000,000,000.

Being a Winner in the Campaign

Being a winner in the campaign now rapidly nearing the end (Saturday night at eight o'clock) means victory, honor and a big reward. The winners of the prizes we stamp in subscriptions to the community as persons capable of carrying a worthwhile undertaking to a successful conclusion. Not alone for the monetary value of the prizes at stake, but for the satisfaction that follows in victory's wake are the contestants hurrying themselves into the vote "battle" these final hours with every ounce of energy at their command. The desire to win grows greater as the time to crown the victor draws near.

tion, but many believed that at least a portion of that sum would be proposed with additional money for the army, and the air corps.

Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, Stephen T. Early, discussed the question with newspapermen, saying it was safe to assume "the President will leave without any attempt to pass the buck, the question of financing national defense to the Congress."

Congress he added, has two choices: To "put down a national defense law" (Mr. Roosevelt proposed such a tax early in the present session), or to "increase the debt limit" (Present law forbids running the national debt past $45,000,000,000, the budget for the next fiscal year runs the debt very close to that figure).

Mr. Roosevelt conferred first of all today with War, Navy, and Treasury Department chiefs, and later talked the defense problem over with the Chairman of the Senate and House Naval and Military Committees.

WILD LIFE OF KENTUCKY by Roger Barbour

MOREHEAD STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

EVERGREEN PLANTS Belonging to the first of these groups are such trees as the hemlocks, pines, and cedars.

Of these three groups, the pines are certainly more numerous both in number of species and number of individuals.

At least four species of pines occur in Kentucky. If the needles are in bundles of five it is a white pine, if the needles are in bundles of three it is a pitch pine; if the needles are in bundles of two, it is a scrub pine; and if the needles are in bundles of one, it is a hemlock.

In the hemlock, the needles are single and in the cedars, the leaves are scale-like or owl-like. Insofar as the writer is aware, no native spruce are to be found in Kentucky. Let me hasten to add, however, that the hemlock is often called spruce, at least in Eastern Kentucky. Hemlock and spruce can readily be separated, since the sprays of hemlock are flat, while those of spruce are round.

The broad-leaved evergreens are both numerous and varied. Perhaps the best known are Mountain Laurel, Holly and Rhododendron. Holly leaves possess spines along their margins while those of Laurel and Rhododendron do not.

Mountain Laurel and Rhododendron are separated by the fact that Rhododendron has long leaves clustered at the tips of the branches while Laurel has shorter leaves which are scattered along the branches. In Eastern Kentucky Rhododendron is often called Laurel, and the Mountain Laurel is commonly known as Ivy.

It is strongly to be hoped that Kentuckians will take a greater interest in their native evergreen plants, as some of our most interesting and beautiful plants are in this group.

Coney Island, Colorful As Always, Opens Saturday

Coney Island will inaugurate its fifty-fourth season next Saturday. The management plans to make the opening particularly beautiful and to this end, a revised and greatly enhanced "Watercade" on the Lake of Fire, introduced for the first time last season, will be presented as a free attraction every night, starting Sat., and continuing through Sunday, May 26.

There will also be a free performance at four o'clock every afternoon by the Aerial Voices, offering a thrilling comedy aerial act on Lake Como.

The Watercade will be colorful and spectacular, featuring aquatic fireworks, brilliant pagentry built around a procession of "gondolas of all nations," music, and a cast of more than a hundred. There will be thrills especially in the performance of the Aerial Voices, synchronized with the plot of the production.

Coney will again offer three entertaining bandstands a regular part of its entertainment menu. In Moonlite Gardens "name bands" will be featured through the season, with Jack Johnson and His Orchestra as the opening attraction, to be followed on Friday night, May 24, by Gene Krupa and His Orchestra as a special one-night attraction. Under a new policy to be inaugurated this season, bands will be changed every week.

Clarence Meller and His Music featuring the Savoy Sisters, will provide dinner music and, later in the evenings, general entertainment in the Clubhouse.

Provoking dance rhythms on the steamer Island Queen on its cruises to and from Coney will be Herby and His Orchestra as a number of new attractions will greet Coney patrons, foremost among them the Flying Scooter. On the theory that amusement seekers get greatest fun out of these devices in which they have some part in the action, the Scooter cars give them a chance to manipulate wheels, and steering apparatus and other gauges. Another novelty will be the new "Skipper Boat" on Lake Como—laboratory editions of speed boats. A new Penny Arcade on The Mall is a feature.

Corn Distributed By Rowan F. F. A.

Rural Rehabilitation Made Possible Through Supervision

(By Carl Wade) The Morehead Future Farmers are distributing seed corn to members of the local chapter.

The chapter treasure is buying twelve gallons of corn and receiving one bushel from Mr. Pickard at Winchester and one-half bushel from Mr. Earl McBrayer's seed store.

The chapter was successful with a poultry project and now it chooses to help the boys get started with some worthwhile projects. Each boy that receives one gallon of corn is to return one bushel to the club this fall to be used in feeding another project.

In checking over the records of the boys doing productive enterprises work we found that on an average, each boy had earned $40 from his practice program. The labor was figured at 25c per hour. The enterprises in which the work was done were corn, poultry, tobacco, hogs and potatoes. The standard is $50 for next year.

MOREHEAD STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

EVERGREEN PLANTS Belonging to the first of these groups are such trees as the hemlocks, pines, and cedars.

Of these three groups, the pines are certainly more numerous both in number of species and number of individuals.

At least four species of pines occur in Kentucky. If the needles are in bundles of five it is a white pine, if the needles are in bundles of three it is a pitch pine; if the needles are in bundles of two, it is a scrub pine; and if the needles are in bundles of one, it is a hemlock.

In the hemlock, the needles are single and in the cedars, the leaves are scale-like or owl-like. Insofar as the writer is aware, no native spruce are to be found in Kentucky. Let me hasten to add, however, that the hemlock is often called spruce, at least in Eastern Kentucky. Hemlock and spruce can readily be separated, since the sprays of hemlock are flat, while those of spruce are round.

The broad-leaved evergreens are both numerous and varied. Perhaps the best known are Mountain Laurel, Holly and Rhododendron. Holly leaves possess spines along their margins while those of Laurel and Rhododendron do not.

Mountain Laurel and Rhododendron are separated by the fact that Rhododendron has long leaves clustered at the tips of the branches while Laurel has shorter leaves which are scattered along the branches. In Eastern Kentucky Rhododendron is often called Laurel, and the Mountain Laurel is commonly known as Ivy.

It is strongly to be hoped that Kentuckians will take a greater interest in their native evergreen plants, as some of our most interesting and beautiful plants are in this group.

Coney Island, Colorful As Always, Opens Saturday

Coney Island will inaugurate its fifty-fourth season next Saturday. The management plans to make the opening particularly beautiful and to this end, a revised and greatly enhanced "Watercade" on the Lake of Fire, introduced for the first time last season, will be presented as a free attraction every night, starting Sat., and continuing through Sunday, May 26.

There will also be a free performance at four o'clock every afternoon by the Aerial Voices, offering a thrilling comedy aerial act on Lake Como.

The Watercade will be colorful and spectacular, featuring aquatic fireworks, brilliant pagentry built around a procession of "gondolas of all nations," music, and a cast of more than a hundred. There will be thrills especially in the performance of the Aerial Voices, synchronized with the plot of the production.

Coney will again offer three entertaining bandstands a regular part of its entertainment menu. In Moonlite Gardens "name bands" will be featured through the season, with Jack Johnson and His Orchestra as the opening attraction, to be followed on Friday night, May 24, by Gene Krupa and His Orchestra as a special one-night attraction. Under a new policy to be inaugurated this season, bands will be changed every week.

Clarence Meller and His Music featuring the Savoy Sisters, will provide dinner music and, later in the evenings, general entertainment in the Clubhouse.

Provoking dance rhythms on the steamer Island Queen on its cruises to and from Coney will be Herby and His Orchestra as a number of new attractions will greet Coney patrons, foremost among them the Flying Scooter. On the theory that amusement seekers get greatest fun out of these devices in which they have some part in the action, the Scooter cars give them a chance to manipulate wheels, and steering apparatus and other gauges. The Episcopal Diocese of Lexington through the efforts of its Bishop, the Right Reverend H. P. Almon Abbott, D. D., has rented the downstairs portion of the old Citizens Bank, across from the Railway Station, to be used for church services. It is hoped in due time, by degrees, to furnish the interior so that it will serve as a dignified place of worship. Beginning with this Sunday (May 19th), regular services will be held in this building by the Reverend Francis C. Lightbourn, A. B., S.T.B., of Mt. Sterling. On the first Sunday of each month, there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at eight o'clock in the morning (no evening service that Sunday). On every Sunday the service will be held at seven-thirty. Since the Bishop of the Diocese has made it possible to have what virtually amounts to an Episcopal Church in Morehead, it is earnestly hoped that all Episcopals in the town will attend these services with regularity. And all others are of course most welcome.

Rowan Families Profit By F. S. A. States Miss Word

Employers Who Have One Or More Are Covered

Many Rowan County families have profited through the supervised program of home improvement offered Rural Rehabilitation borrowers by the Farm Security Administration, according to Miss Frances Word, County FSA Home Management Supervisor in Morehead.

Larger gardens with a greater variety of vegetables are being planted by most of the families this year. After the good disaster last year, farm families realize more than ever the value of a good garden. They realize the importance of having both an early and a late vegetable garden. In order to have enough vegetables to supply their families with fresh vegetables throughout the growing season and a surplus for canning, many tenants have rented with the understanding that their landlord is to allow truck patches in addition to the garden spot which has previously been the only land set aside for raising vegetables for the tenant family. Some landlords have selected new places for their gardens. In choosing a place for the garden they have been advised to keep these facts in mind, namely:

1. Have it near the house.
2. Have a well-drained soil free from shade by trees.
3. Pick out a deep and rich piece of land.
4. Put the garden on land that will not overflow.
5. Allow one acre of land for each five members of the family.

A new garden spot necessitates a new fence. Hence, these families have already or are now putting a chicken-proof fence around their new garden place. Manure and other fertilizers have been and are being used to great advantage. Last fall most of the FSA landowners and many of the tenants were advised to spread six to ten tons of stable manure to the acre and plow it under. For each ton of manure used, the farmers were advised to put on thirty pounds of twenty percent phosphate. If they did not have the manure to use, it was recommended that thirty to five-hundred lbs. of complete fertilizer, such as 3-8-6, 4-8-8, or 5-10-5 analysis be used. The amount to use was determined by the amount and type of fertilizer used in previous years.
