Better Water System Principal Reason Why Rates Will Be Dropped

It was explained that the principal reason for the placing of Morehead into another classification meaning lower rates for property owners is betterment of the water system by the city. The small losses that have been incurred by fires in the city during the last three years also contributed to a better classification.

It was specifically learned that the reduction might be small on property in certain sections where great fire hazards exist. Practically all of the city of Morehead is on the city street.

To a visitor from Mars this Earth must be a strange and confusing place. The first question a Martian would ask would be: "Why does everybody hate everybody else?"

Not in many years has hatred been as widespread and world-wide. It is manifested everywhere. Group hating other groups. Class hating class, race hating race, nation hating nation. It almost seems as if the world has had no progress toward real civilization since the traditional episode of the Tower of Babel, when men suddenly found themselves speaking in different tongues and fighting one another because no man could understand his neighbor, and everyone feared everybody else.

That is the situation of the social order today. We do not understand each other and we fear that which we do not understand. If the whole world spoke the same language, if there would not help much. Some of the most bitter hatreds between classes and groups all of which members converse in the same tongue, the most serious war now going on is in Spain where both sets of combatants have a common speech. Nor are racial differences and prejudices entirely at the bottom of the prevailing mass hatreds. Again we have the example of Spain.

The explanation of such hatreds as cause wars and keep peoples and groups apart lies deeper than any superficial or external differences. At the bottom of it all are differences of fundamental beliefs and principles. Men hate each other because they have divergent and irreconcilable ideas about morals, ethics, behavior and religion. Classes hate each other because each fears that the other class is trying to deprive it of what it conceives to be its rights or privileges. Nations and races hate each other for similar reasons.

At the root of it all is intolerance and inability or refusal to recognize the right of every man and every social group to have its own ideas and to live in accordance with its own standards without interference from outside. The intolerance each seeks to impose its own ideas upon others is the basis of most of the hatreds in this troubled world.

For A Healthier Nation
Recognition that the health of the people is a major concern of Government, and evidence of the intention of Government to take an active part in seeing to it that medical services and hospitalization are brought within the means and reach of every citizen, will be accelerated, were made clear at the convention of the National Health Conference in Washington.

A ten-year national health program is proposed, at an estimated cost of $850,000,000 a year, of which half would be paid by the Federal Government and half by states and communities. The committee reported that such a program aimed toward control of various diseases and conditions, with facilities and services commensurate with the high standard of American medical practice, would generally available, the coming decade will see a major reduction in needless loss of life and suffering and an increasing prospect of longer years of productive, self-sustaining life for the whole population.

To that objective every American will, we believe, say amen. That it is no idle dream that the standards of health for all the people can be raised by concerted action. Dr. Thomas Panan, surgeon-general of the U. S. Public Health Service, assured the convention. He hailed the plan as a vital step toward the elimination of poverty, the relationship of which to disease is well known. The proved ability to prevent disease and to cure it more than the proved ability of economic sciences to control other causes of poverty.

There are physicians who resent and rebel against any effort of government to take a hand in the war on disease. The belief expressed in the Washington convention was that the public health is too vital a public concern to be left to private initiative. With that most people will agree.

THE WASHINGTON

International relations and affairs are coming more sharply to the front in all Governmental considerations. There is a strong feeling here that the situation in Europe is likely to result in actual war very soon, and probably without much previous notice. Whether Great Britain is really engaged in an involved action against Germany again is an open question. It is also an open question whether the State Department (States might be involved). Our diplomats and army and navy observers who are in Europe watching the situation are sending very confidential reports to Washington for the guidance of the Administration.

There are many evidences that the President is becoming more and more internationally-minded, and that efforts to strengthen the friendly relations between this country and Great Britain and France are steadily being pressed.

It is understood that the negotiations which the State Department has been conducting with England for more than a year, looking toward a reciprocal trade agreement, are practically completed. Rumors are persistent here that England is preparing to offer a settlement of her war debt to America, it is not believed that the President to submit to Con-

the recent transfer from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast of a large fighting unit of modern cruisers, through this is the first time in years that an American force of battle strength has been stationed in the Atlantic.

Our naval strength is almost entirely concentrated in the Pacific and the Government's outlook in that direction is a rather worried one. Japan's refusal to give serious consideration to the Navy Department's protest over the attack upon an American-owned commercial airplane flying its regular route over Chinese territory is an added aggravation in a long series of "incidents" in which Japan has adopted a consistently hostile attitude toward the United States, since it began its "undeclared war" in China.

How many more such incidents it will take to provoke the Administration to positive steps against Japan is, of course, conjectural, but there is a decided trend in the State Department on the Japanese situation.

Mexican Situation
Mexico appears, to Washington observers, to be asking for trouble by refusing even to consider payment for American-owned property confiscated by its government. The speech of President Cardenas, in response to the note of Secretary Hull in which demand was made for prompt, immediate and effective compensation for the most direct slap in the face by the head of our government toward another that has occurred on this continent in a long time.

Delivered in the presence of the American Ambassador, Joseph Daniels, the Cardenas speech charged the United States with trying to impose the will of the strong upon the weak, and with having in mind the United States' intention of gaining by seizing privately-owned gold and making its owners accept paper currency.

Most of the complaints I hear and read about social injustice come from the lower classes. What times are hard, they are the first to feel it, and the quickest to blame somebody else for their own failures. From that gross accumulation of the complaints against "the System" and the demands for the distribution of wealth and income, or change in the economic scheme of things I have found in no code of religion or system of economics anything which requires society to do anything for any member of the human race than to see that he does not starve or freeze to death and that he gets an equal opportunity with all others to make the best of his life of which he is capable. America has always done this.

HELP
The world, as I have observed it, is already to lend a helping hand to people who are entitled to help. Most of the people who need it, however, are the ones who are least likely to get it. We hear a great deal, for example, about distressed farmers who are demanding help from the Government. The realization is gradually growing that no farmer who really deserved to be helped has ever had any trouble in getting assistance when he really needed it.

Who ever knew of a really good farmer, with a good wife, making a failure of his farming or his life? The farmer who has no real need of the great majority of the farmers of government subsidies or bounties. The "farm vote" for which politicians are so anxious to get the vote of the improvident and incompetent farmers, who have no one to blame but themselves for their own troubles, but want society to pay good their losses and cancel their debts. Politicians can fool them for a while with promises, and buy their votes for a few elections with your money and mine, but the promises can never be kept, and there's a bottom to even the taxpayer barrel.

FOOLS
A candidate of a great political party has just been nominated for the United States Senate. He promises that he will see to it that every Californian over 50 years old will get a weekly pension of $30, paid every Thursday. He promises that he will see to it that every California over 50 years old will get a weekly pension of $30, paid every Thursday. He promises that he will see to it that every California over 50 years old will get a weekly pension of $30, paid every Thursday.

SHITTING OF NAVY THIS
There is no doubt that the special international significance in the recent transfer from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast of a large fighting unit of modern cruisers, through this is the first time in years that an American force of battle strength has been stationed in the Atlantic.

Purge
I don't know what's got into people these days, but medicine says though they're all inspired with the ambition to have purges. Every time you look around somebody is holding a red hot purge. First there were the Russians who had one every day, sending all sorts of people to the Siberian purge mines for no reason at all.

THE GREENBACK PARTY
I have seen many crazy financial schemes to make life easy for people who can't manage their own affairs. The Greenback party was still active in my boyhood, proposing to print enough money with which to buy back to it to life everyone out of poverty. The free Silver Crazes, with the same purpose, were active in my boyhood, proposing to print enough money with which to buy back to it to life everyone out of poverty.

PAUPERS
What all of these people want who have not been competent enough or self denying enough to provide for themselves, is to be supported in comparative luxury, at the expense of the provident majority. We used to put paupers in the poorhouse, or pay needy families, but were willing to take them in, enough out of town funds to keep the impoverished and incompetents alive. Now politicians have discovered the personal profit to themselves in organizing the pauper vote and raiding the public treasury by its aid.

We have with very little effort been able to beautify our school grounds and building this year. The flower park has been built which was formerly a stoway for all debris. The parents of the Ramey school met Wednesday, August 31st, and organized a P. T. A. There was a good display of enthusiasm and many parents participated in the activities. As soon as the formalities of electing officers were dispensed with, the group went into discussion about the school building that was to be held two days later. The parents helped to decide whether or not to have ice cream served on the picnic and how much to buy. It was decided to buy five gallons which proved to be the right amount. The regular meeting was held Tuesday.

IT'S Circulation That Counts

When a well informed advertiser of a successful business establishment places advertising, the first question he seeks the answer of is circulation. Not only his advertisement but that the newspaper with the largest circulation is the one that is held in the highest regard by the people that reside in that community. He is aware of the fact that the people know the value of the merits of the newspaper before they enter their subscription. He has, in selecting this method, a sure barometer of the result he may reasonably expect from the advertising money he spends. National advertisers have spent years in studying the best methods of getting most from their advertising dollar - with them it's circulation that counts.

What Causes People To Prefer One Newspaper Over Another?

When there is more than one newspaper in the same community, both selling for the same subscription price, there must be a reason why most people prefer one newspaper over the other. Actually, there are several reasons why the majority of the people prefer the Rowan County News by almost three to one.

In the first place the News is an old established publication that has been rendering a community service to Rowan County for many years. It has been under the same management for the last 15 years.

Each week as you pick up a copy of the News you will see not a part, but all of the happenings of this community portrayed in a reasonable and enjoyable style. It is the policy of this newspaper to never miss a creditable news story. It is likewise our policy to foster anything that will further the advancement of Morehead and Rowan county.

That is the reason it's the News by three to one.

The News Reaches The Largest Circulation Ever Attained In Rowan County

Ever since 1923 the Rowan County News has been the leading paper in Rowan County. Its leadership has never been questioned. Today it proudly announces the largest circulation that has ever been reached by any newspaper in Rowan County.

When an advertiser inserts his advertisement in the Rowan County News he knows that it will go into 3,300 homes, the majority of which are in Rowan County, while most of the balance goes to people in neighboring sections that are in Morehead's shopping radius. An advertisement in this newspaper is like the hub of a wheel with 3,300 spokes.

The News reaches every postoffice, every hamlet and practically every home in Rowan County. An advertisement in this newspaper is certain of reaching every class of people in each part of Rowan County.

It is Rowan County's newspaper and as such it will remain --- An institution for the people of this county.

Each room contributed a song or reading to the program. The parents enjoyed very much the little entertainment. After the children had performed, Mr. Crowhate led the discussion on organizing a Parent Teachers Association. Those present took an active part in the discussion and the group decided to meet again Monday, September 26 at 2 o'clock.

Fair catalogues were given out to the parents and Mr. Crowhate stressed the importance of entering into the Fair spirit and of bringing in good exhibits.

The ninth and tenth grade have appointed a committee for the morning exercise program. The students have complete charge of the program. Those serving on the committee this week are Mary Lewis, Ruby Stamper, and Owen Lewis. The following was written by a ten year old girl, Deloris Brown. At Elliottville I go to school I always keep my teachers rule And if I don't I'll stay at home. And there I'd feel so much alone.

A boy club has been organized in Miss Carter's room to keep the pupils interested in attendance. The 4th grade competes with the fifth grade. If a child is absent one day, they do not get to play ball that week.

A continued story is also read each morning. There is not an absent in this room this year. Little Dixie Cox walked a mile and one half out of the way to cross the creek in order to get to school.

BIG BRUSHY SCHOOL

The Big Brushy School is planning on having a pie supper, September 24, 1938. They are planning a program also. It will be held at the Big Brushy school house at 7:30 p. m.

The visitors who have been to the school this week are Christine Cooper, Loma Kiser, Eula Fryman.

We are glad that two (of our school mates) have come back to school (Henry Fannin and Alice Fannin). They have decided not to move yet, Noah Reeves was out only absent pupil from school this week.

CHRISTY SCHOOL NEWS

We have had improvement added to our school grounds since the opening of school. The school wants to thank Mr. George Ellinger for his team and moving machine and also Mr. Roy Alfrey for operating the machine. The work had added much to the outside appearance.

We are working on a new method of attendance. We are striving for the 100 per cent attendance at least during the month this school term.

The teacher of our school has seen almost every parent in the school district and planning to see everyone before long.

FARMERS SCHOOL NEWS

The enrollment for the high school in the Farmers Consolidated school reached an all time high this semester. Mr. Hittler principal, has recruited thirty-five pupils and is expecting a few more. This increase of enrollment is probably due to the near completion of the new building.

Three rooms started the school year by having 100 per cent attendance in the lower grades. The teachers of these grades are Miss Henretta Mase, Miss Christine Hall and Harold Pfeiffer. All three grade attendances for the month of September are perfect.

School opened in the old building, but its works are almost over. Miss Mase, first and second grade teacher, is already in the new building and the other teachers are ready to move within the next few weeks.

The P. T. A. met Friday afternoon to continue their activities for the school year. This P. T. A. is probably the most active in the county, being as informed, the only organization in the county who carried out their activities during the summer months. They have sponsored three meetings since last June. One of these was a regular meeting with the other two were an apron and food sale and an ice cream supper. At the meeting last Friday plans were made for the school year. This P. T. A. was decided that every member would make at least one entry in the Fair. Another program was instituted to enroll greater interest in the school by the parents. If you plan your well tell you will also plan for the further well. We do sponsor another pie social at the school Thursday night. Come down and visit us Thursday and we guarantee you will enjoy it.

The high school class organization has chosen the following officers: President, Malcolm Jones, Vice-President, Russell Flanery, Secretary, Glen Poff, Treasurer, Lavant Utterback, Promoter, Austin Riddle.

There were not many plans this first meeting. They haven't time to raise money and decorate their rooms. A suggestion was made to buy a radio. This will be discussed further at a later meeting.

The parents will meet with the school later this week in the arrangements which we hope will include purchasing and installing a heating plant.

The first and second grades have their supply cabinet painted and new. The desks and window paper basket have been painted. Two new book shelves are being made. They are now working on Health Unit. Next we set art projects in clay modeling will be started. We have seventeen children enrolled in our room. We intend to come to school every week. A prize will be offered at the end of a two month period if perfect at Health Unit.

Harold Pfeiffer and Christine Hall are busy directing and executing many of the children's ideas for the fair. The fifth and sixth grades have discussed organization of a club but this project has not been completed.

Former plans regarding installation of a furnace in the new building have fallen through. Some of the entering citizens of the community have been discussing a new plan.

MOORE SCHOOL

Virginia Dawson

The second month of school ended with only four absences caused by two seventh grade pupils because of illness.

A picnic was held at noon Friday September 9th in a large grove near the school. Cool-ade and cookies were served. Just as the children were beginning to eat Mrs. Potter, Mrs. Gullet, and Mr. Pittman arrived with baskets of sandwiches and cake. It was a happy surprise for both the children and teachers. September posters were recited, games played, several kodak pictures taken and wild flowers gathered. Mr. and Mrs. Gullet visited the school Friday and were Andy McClurg, Mrs. Della Collins and Mrs. Mary Ramey.

We were glad to have county health doctor and nurse with us Tuesday, September 6th.

We are happy to welcome Peggy Christian back to school. She attended Moore school until two years ago. Since that time, she has lived at Olive Hill and in Indiana.

Thirteen dollars was raised at the pie supper held August 26th. A new pencil sharpener, a volume of Mother Goose Rhymes and some materials for work on the Fair have been purchased with the money.

POND LICK SCHOOL

Ruby Hogue, Teacher

Mrs. Lee Reed, president of the P. T. A. called our third meeting to order at 3:00 p. m. Friday September 9th. SEAS BRANCH SCHOOL

The pupils and teachers are very glad to have Corbet Smith in school again. He has just returned from the hospital and is improving nicely.

Our pie supper brought about $2.00. There was good order and splendid cooperation. This money will be used to transport the pupils to the Fair and buy supplies for the school.

The Seas Branch School visited the Bradley school on Friday after noon, Sept. 9. An interesting ball game followed. Bradley scored 17 runs, Seas Branch scored only 14. This was a hard fought game but it was played in a good spirit. Seas Branch won a game played previously.

Farm News

Last week was discussed the best possible way to prepare a garden for the winter season, that of sowing a cover crop of small grains preferably with a hardy legume sidekick. Sowing, however, that it is not feasible or easily possible to put in a conventional cover crop, there is one other means of greening the cabbage family and which, though they lack in volume of matter to turn under, and fall short in complete hardness to grow through the winter, are better than nothing.

The suggestion so far are for those gardeners who cannot have the manure their soil needs to keep it in first-class condition, and a majority of gardeners fall in that class. There is, however, a lesser group who do not have that difficulty, but who find each year enough stable manure to cover their garden thickly, with the result that their humus problem is no problem at all. These should so continue, but perhaps change their practice slightly, as follows:

When gardens are level or only slightly sloping, so there is no serious run-off, breaking should be done in late fall, after there have been several severe frosts. The land should not be turned completely over, but the furrow slices should be left on edge.

Breaking at this time, the weeds and crabgrass are given all winter long to rot down. This same coat of dry weeds is sometimes a liability, turned under just before gardening is to begin. There is, too, the aesthetic value of putting the debris out of sight.

Breaking after cold weather has driven the insects to winter cover interferes with their plans, turning up the deep-lying ones to freeze, and burying so deeply those that hibernate just at the soil surface that they fail to reach the top again. Likewise, many garden diseases are controlled, in part, by turning under the spore-laden vegetable plants as they rot down; many disease organisms are destroyed.

Again, with the garden surface rough, winter rains and snow are more readily absorbed. This moisture becoming of service next season.

If the stable manure is spread early in the winter, its soluble plant food is leached into the broken soil, and its fibers are softened so that it rots down readily to become humus, instead of perhaps plaguing the gardener by making soil "trouty," spread just before spring-breaking. A fall-broken garden may need plowing again in the spring, though not always. Often merely a deep disking is enough. In fact, a garden broken in the late fall and disked amply in the spring may be earlier by several weeks than a garden whose spring plowing is delayed by unsuitable weather.

That is to say, plow your garden in the fall, if the humus source is stable manure, but spread the manure soon after plowing. If manure is scarce, grow a cover crop of green manure. Preferably let it be rye or wheat or perhaps barley in combination, with the legumes, hairy vetch or crimson clover, where the latter is safely winter hardy, that the time to sow accorder crop is slipping by.

Manhattan Merry Go Round

There are tricks to every trade. And even the lowly beggar with out stretched hand and plaintive plea has a few tricks up his sleeve.

New York, perhaps more than any other city, has its quota of rich beggars. There's the gentleman who is driven in his limousine by his chauffeur to work every afternoon at five and called for at midnight. He is minus a leg, but owns three big apartment houses in the heart of Manhattan. Begging is supposed to have made him a fortune of close to a quarter of a million.

In the new crop of beggars is the nice-looking young chap with carefully brushed hair and neat but well-faded clothes who will stop you on Broadway, just below Times Square, with a tale something like this: "Parson me, sir, but I'm not a bum. I've just had a run of hard luck that might happen to anyone. I've got a chance of a job in Philadelphia and I'm shy $25 to get there. I don't want a penny more of it. If you'll give me your address I'll mail it back to you out of my first week's wages."

All this has been delivered in a well-modulated voice and with an act that is bent on convincing you that but for the grace of God you might be in this unfortunate's shoes. The "unfortunates" are believed to average a half dollar from two out of every four people who will listen to his tale. One out of every ten who listen will give him $25 or less. More give him a half dollar than those who want to see the lat and also because they are too busy to ask for or get change. People are pretty swell after all. But the petty grafter working this minor racket isn't so swell. He makes on the average of $40 to $50 a week, has a little car and a girl friend whom he takes places at night.

Then there's the blind beggar who is evidently a keen student of the working of people's minds. He is perpetually standing on street corners, waiting for some kind soul to take him across. Three times and a few feet from the curb he is taken across the street, the person with the good heart also makes a donation to the blind beggar's daughter and her college education. The beggar is operating on the system that every other person in New York is fondly and feels that the world is against him. Where a person that sort takes him across his street they feel that they're a pretty good person after all, kind to beggars and dogs and all that sort of thing. A feeling of good fellowship pervades them hence the tip.

Beggars are employing slow-motion in their business these days. The two blind boys tooling six and parking bumps on Broadway have their counterparts in cities and villages from coast to coast. For the wise beggar has found out that to get ahead of his competitor around the corner he must use the business methods in his occupation.

But don't get me wrong, partner every beggar in Manhattan isn't wealthy or a petty racketeer. Many are in dire need and some are pretty fine people. Like "Legless Mike" who never fails to drop a dime in the cup of the blind beggar woman on Eighth avenue.

Show people, especially, are exceedingly generous to those who beg. It is said of William Fox that he never visited Atlantic City without giving the legless beggar near the Rita a $50 note. I wonder how he would feel if he found out that that particular mendicant owned a mortgage on a house not far from there?

Those in need, I believe, receive more from show folks in ratio to their earnings than any other profession. Many on the stage will not pass an unturned hat without dropping a coin.

THESE are four interrelated subjects which any person should study before he attempts to engage in any form of merchandising business for himself. These are: marketing, business finance, accounting and business law. The man who plans to start a small manufacturing concern should also be a student of production.

The ability to interpret financial statements is as important to the business executive as to the accountant. The day has passed when even the smallest business can be operated successfully without financial statements and the constant study of the information they contain.

The DOCTOR

As a young physician I learned to appreciate the fact that diabetes was practically an incurable disease, although, by watching one's diet carefully and not eating foods that would be ultimately converted into sugar in the laboratory of the body, it was possible to stand off the Angel of the Darker Brink for many, many years. Children and young persons suffered from this disease presented serious problems and the death rate was unusually high among this class. In elderly people a rigid diet helped materially in keeping them alive, but as a rule they died long before their time. Heavy eaters among those past middle life were prone to this infirmity, Jews and Italians being especially subject to its ravages. Among food handlers, such as chefs, waiters, restaurant keepers and the like, there was always a large percentage to be found in the time of diabetes. There are more female than male diabetics.

Insulin
Due to Dr. Banting of Canada and a second-year medical student named Best, who worked with him, insulin, made from the pancreas of animals sometimes called the sweet breads, — the glands — which secrete it — was discovered, and today the diabetic, once helpless against this scourge, may by using insulin properly, prolong his life indefinitely. By a series of trial diets and examinations, the physician is able to ascertain the maximum amount of sugar tolerated by each patient. By adhering to the quantity of food specified by the doctor and the administration of insulin, hypodermically and usually given by the patient himself, many cases yielded to treatment and the sufferer became sugar free and normal again and stops using this drug. In the more difficult cases, however, insulin must be resorted to continually, but in reality it causes the patient little difficulty or inconvenience.

To carry on the preliminary work in this study, Dr. Banting sold his instruments and furniture, gave up his practice and devoted his time to solving the problem, aided by the medical student who flipped a coin with another student who he would become the doctor's assistant.

Like thousands of doctors, can testify to the efficacy of insulin and have had hundreds of cases now alive as a result of this medicine, who before its use they would have been in their graves.

News Of Interest

We have become so diet minded throughout the world during the years since the World War that everywhere adequate diets for school children are being worked out and developments in the effort to help mothers provide balanced meals for their families. Science has traced so many adult ills to a lack of well chosen foods during childhood that modern mothers are alert to the necessity of maintaining the proper distribution of all the food elements.

We know that certain foods make strong bones, others develop muscles, some create energy for immediate needs and still others are a protection against disease. All these foods must be provided daily to make children grow and keep healthy.

Milk, vegetables, cereals and fruits must be used in abundance. Not much meat is necessary, though; one specialist in children's diets says that the "meat portion should be the size of the palm of the child's hand." Small as this amount may seem, it's essential because of its protein quality.

Eggs and certain kinds of fish are good, too, although the method of serving them must be considered. Both must be cooked slowly because intense heat makes these foods hard to digest.

Milk is vitally necessary. Every growing child needs a quart of milk a day. This need not all be consumed as a beverage but can be used in cream soups and sauces, custards, ice creams, and simple puddings. If the child drinks his quart of milk in addition to the various milk dishes so much the better.
