FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Six major skull fractures, shattered bones and scars were just a few of the injuries Jon Glass sustained 10 years ago in an almost fatal car accident that also took his eyesight.

Today, Glass, a Morehead State University senior management and marketing major from Grayson, is a tutor at the University's Learning Lab. He helps other students find answers to questions in economics, consumer behavior, English and writing, and business communications. He may be seen on campus with J.D., his 120-pound, black Labrador seeing-eye dog.

"I have always been very competitive and my biggest challenge was dealing with my loss of sight," Glass said of the accident. "I worried what people were going to think of me and how I was going to adapt new learning skills all over again. I used to be a speed reader, and it was hard having to listen while no longer being able to see the words."

When tutoring students, Glass has them read to him and together they break down the problems or sentences, which enhances the one-on-one communication process. "It has its advantages because the students are able to catch their mistakes since listening clarifies the problem," he said. "This allows for closer contact and a better working relationship."

An avid reader of science fiction books, Glass enjoys being around other people. "When I first became blind, I used a cane but it would always hit people and they would get out of my way," said Glass. Not happy with the situation, he applied to a guide dog school and received J.D. "People like dogs; they are a great conversation piece," he said.

After extensive therapy, Glass enrolled at Ashland Community College in 1992 where he received numerous scholastic awards, including the Outstanding Business Student Award and was named to the National Dean's List. Upon graduation in 1994 with an associate degree, he transferred to MSU to pursue his bachelor's degree.

Last month, Glass attended the National Conference on Peer Tutoring in Writing in Lexington with Alvin Madden-Grider, MSU learning specialist, where Glass gave a presentation entitled: "Sightless Service: Tutoring from the Non-Visual Perspective."

Glass has a special ability which allows him to deal well with students, according to Madden-Grider. "Jon is a good writing tutor. He assists lots of students and has the skills to help others with their presentations," Madden-Grider said. "He is especially helpful with the international students who want to improve their vocabulary."

The son of Franklin and Betty Glass, he is still learning and trying to make a change for the better. "My goal in life is to have a job I am comfortable with and have my own home with a backyard," Glass said. "I just want to enjoy making a difference in someone's life."

MSU STUDENT TUTORS OTHERS

After losing his eye sight in an automobile accident, Jon Glass, Morehead State University senior from Grayson, adapted new learning skills. He now tutors students in economics, consumer behavior, English and writing, and business communications at the University's Learning Lab.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Ten Morehead State University students who participate in the University's theatre program successfully passed the state screening auditions at the Kentucky Theatre Association Conference (KTAC), Nov. 8 and 9, at Northern Kentucky University.

The students who passed the state auditions will be admitted to the Southeastern Theatre Conference (SETC) regional auditions which will be held March 11-15 in Birmingham Ala., according to Dr. Travis Lockhart, MSU director of theatre.

More than 1,000 students from the southeastern part of the country are expected to compete in the auditions. "MSU students have been very successful in past years in securing theatre jobs through SETC all over the country and abroad," Dr. Lockhart said.

Each student presented a monologue or a monologue with a song at the KTAC competition. "This year, 91 percent of our students who auditioned, passed," Dr. Lockhart noted. "That is much higher than the overall statewide percentage."

STEPHENS RECOGNIZED

John P. Stephens, left, Raceland-Worthington Independent Schools superintendent, was the recipient of the third annual Kentucky Educational Development Corporation's Superintendents Partnership/Leadership Award given by Morehead State University. Presenting him with a plaque symbolic of the award was MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. The award was given in recognition of his extraordinary support of the partnerships concept in education. An educator for more than three decades, Stephens has been with the district for 20 years, including 16 years as a high school principal. He also has worked in the Fayette County School District, Fort Knox Independent Schools and the Greenup County Schools. The oldest and largest of the state's educational cooperatives, KEDC is comprised of 51 public school districts in partnership with MSU. It provides technology and professional development support for its member districts across the state.

COMMISSIONER PRESENTS FUNDS TO MSU

Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture Billy Ray Smith visited Morehead State University recently where he met with faculty and students in the Department of Agricultural Sciences as well as individuals from the community. After discussing new initiatives in the state Department of Agriculture, Smith presented the University with a $200,000 check to upgrade the University Farm which serves as a teaching laboratory by MSU's agricultural programs. The funds were part of an Agricultural Incentive Initiative appropriation from the general assembly. On hand for the presentation were, from left, Dr. Gerald DeMoss, dean of the College of Science and Technology; Commissioner Smith; Dr. Lane Cowsert, department chair, and Dr. Michael Moore, executive vice president for Academic Affairs. According to the commissioner, the state department has increased its emphasis on the marketing of Kentucky grown commodities, especially the value-added concept.

Dec. 9, 1997

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will hold its 1997 Winter Commencement at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, Dec. 20, in the Academic-Athletic Center. Nearly 500 undergraduate and graduate students are candidates for degrees to be conferred by MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin

The University also will award the honorary Doctor of Humanities degree to Lucille Caudill Little in recognition of her many efforts to create a better life for residents of Central and Eastern Kentucky.

As a teacher, singer, actress, director and philanthropist, Little has given of herself and millions of dollars to improve the educational and cultural quality of life in the region.

A member of a distinguished Rowan County family, she was one of five children born to Daniel Boone Caudill, a prominent Morehead banker, attorney, businessman and circuit judge, and his wife, the former Rosetta Proctor.

At age 10, she began studying during the summers at the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. Later she studied at the University of Kentucky, earned the bachelor's degree from Ohio State University and continued her voice and drama studies at the Juilliard School of Music and Columbia University.

After launching a successful professional career in New York City as a recitalist and vocalist with a radio orchestra, she determined that the New York scene was not for her and returned home. Little then began sharing her talents as a teacher of music and speech at what was then Morehead State Teachers College, where she was instrumental in starting the school's theatre department.

Following her marriage in 1937 to W. Paul Little, a Lexington horseman and land developer, she began working with the local arts community, serving on countless boards and helping to establish new organizations to foster the arts.

Her gifts to the state's educational community are numerous. At MSU specifically, the Caudill College of Humanities and Little Bell Tower bear her family names and hundreds of students have benefited from her generous support of the performing arts.

The student speaker will be Karen M. Telford of Carlisle, a graduating senior in the Caudill College of Humanities. A dean's list student, she will receive her A.B. degree in art with honors.

A non-traditional student, she transferred to MSU from Maysville Community College in the fall of 1995 and specializes in two-dimensional artwork, primarily painting and printmaking. Her work currently is on exhibit at the Loudon House in Lexington, William Kenton Gallery at the Kentucky Horse Park and in Images from the Mountains, a juried traveling show sponsored by Appalshop. She also has a two-person show at Maysville Community College.

Named the 1997 Outstanding Senior in Art by the department, Telford has assisted with the installation of various art exhibits in MSU's Claypool-Young gallery and Maysville Community College's gallery. One of her drawings has been accepted for publication in the spring 1998 edition of Inscape, MSU's student literary and arts magazine. She also received a fellowship from the Department of Art to attend an art symposium on still life painting at the Evansville (Ind.) Museum of Arts and Science.

She also volunteers with a Flemingsburg cable station producing videos and has done volunteer work with the Licking Valley Community Action Adult Day Care program.

A graduate of Villa Madonna Academy in Covington, she is the daughter of Doris Telford of Carlisle and the late George W. Telford. She plans to enroll at MSU again this January as a graduate student in art.

Once the degrees are conferred, the new graduates will be inducted into the MSU Alumni Association by its president, H. Jack Webb of Ashland.

Dr. Don Flatt, professor emeritus of history and the 1997 Distinguished Teacher Award recipient, will be grand marshal, assisted by Dr. Frances Helphinstine, professor of English, as faculty marshal.

Student marshals will be Terry Cox of Shepherdsville, representing Graduate Programs; Robert A. Cooper of Morehead, College of Science and Technology; Anna Littleton of Olive Hill, College of Business; Ella Watkins of Ivel, College of Education and Behavioral Sciences, and Alexa Woell of Morehead, Caudill College of Humanities.

Immediately following commencement, the MSU Alumni Association will sponsor individual college receptions for graduates and their families with the college deans as hosts.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Camden-Carroll Library is reorganizing to become more user friendly, according to Julia Lewis, head librarian in the government documents and graphic arts section.

"The government documents, which are hidden away on the fourth floor, will be moved to the second floor behind the reference desk," Lewis said. "We will eliminate the graphic arts section."

Other changes in the reorganization are:

- *Housing circulating government CD-ROMs in the Learning Resource Center.
- *Adding shelving to the fourth floor to hold the MAIN-GEN 900's and oversize books.
- *Moving ERIC documents on microfiche to periodicals department.
- *Moving other microform collections and map collection to the reference department.

"Plans are that the moves will be completed over the holiday break," Lewis said. "Once the moves are completed, maps will be posted around the library and our staff will be glad to provide assistance," she said. "We believe these changes will make the government documents more accessible and the library's traffic flow much easier."

Additional information about the changes is available by calling Lewis at (606) 783-2160 or Carol Nutter, head librarian for the reference department, at 783-5110.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---If you watch the news on Morehead State University's NewsCenter 12, you will see Tim Creekmore's influence rolling before your eyes. You also will hear what he has been teaching his students.

NewsCenter 12 originates live from the campus and is cablecast locally on the FrontierVision cable system on channel 12. The show is written, produced and taped by MSU students in the Department of Communications.

As mass communications lab supervisor, Creekmore is responsible for teaching students the many aspects of video and audio production. In other words, he is responsible for what one sees and hears on channel 12.

When students first enter Creekmore's class, they sometimes don't know any more about the news than flipping the remote. He teaches his students what goes on behind the camera. They learn not only to tape, but to direct, read and write the news.

Close ups, wide angle, and head shots are all used to give the news the best effect. Those are the things most visual about NewsCenter 12. That's what we see. What we don't see is the split second timing, the skill required by the director to direct cameras, crew and any video tape that is to be shown during the show. Sitting inside the control booth you can watch the students work, make mistakes and learn from them.

"I just sit back and watch, if anyone makes a mistake, I talk to them after the show," Creekmore said. Even though the cast and crew have a run through of the show before air time, mistakes can still happen. Tapes can be defective, audio can go off, and the human errors made by a nervous news anchor or sportscaster always makes the real thing more than a little nerve wracking.

Creekmore

Creekmore has been lab supervisor at the University for two years, in the same department where he learned what he now teaches.

"I was at another school, with 40 people in a class and 20 in a lab. I knew there had to be a better way to learn the things I wanted to know. And I wanted to know everything about video production," Creekmore said.

After a visit to his adviser, Creekmore decided to transfer to MSU. "I chose here because I am from Lexington and I wanted to stay in Kentucky." He believes he made the right choice; his grades went up, he took more pleasure in school and he was finally where he wanted to be.

Creekmore received a bachelor's degree from MSU in 1991 then remained at the University where he completed a master's degree while working in TV productions as a graduate assistant.

After earning the graduate degree, Creekmore moved around, working in Kentucky and West Virginia. When he realized that he didn't want to live there anymore, he decided to return to the place where he had felt most comfortable, MSU. "I read about this job and said, 'I gotta go, I gotta go back there.' I thought this was the best place for me at the time," he said. Creekmore then started teaching what he had learned.

Upon his return to MSU, Creekmore took over supervision of the audio and video labs for the Department of Communications and became the adviser for NewsCenter 12. He immediately began to settle into the routine of teaching.

Creekmore tries to maintain a rapport with the students that reaches beyond the classroom. "I believe that I have to have that kind of relationship for this to work," he said. "MSU has been very beneficial for me. I am trying to offer the students the same thing I got here, only better."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's College of Business has been awarded a $23,182 grant to fund the Kentucky Real Estate Education Foundation Center.

The center, funded by the Kentucky Real Estate Education Foundation, will allow MSU to provide continuing education for real estate professionals in the University's service region.

MSU was awarded the grant because of its efforts in distance learning, according to Wilson Grier, former director of MSU's Small Business Development Center who is director of the new Center. What began with a faculty presentation at a conference on the benefits of distance learning led to meetings with Foundation officials. The grant was later awarded.

The grant calls for a weekly training seminar taught by distance learning to originate from the Combs Building on campus. "There are more than 20,000 licensed real estate professionals in the state, and they must complete six hours of continuing education annually," Grier said. Among the topics for seminars are technology in real estate, real estate services over the internet, Kentucky law as it applies to real estate and radon testing.

In addition to the campus location, the seminar will be available at MSU's extended campus centers in Ashland, Prestonsburg, West Liberty and Jackson.

The grant will provide funding for the project until June 30, 1998.

Additional information is available from Grier at (606) 783-2357 or Dr. Michael Carrell, dean of the college, at (606) 783-2174.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Learning is a life long process whether it is done in a classroom or on an excursion to a foreign land.

Five Morehead State University students were among the 30 who attended the Kentucky Institute for International Studies (KIIS) summer study tour to Austria, Germany, Hungary, Switzerland, France and Italy during the summer. The group was accompanied by Dr. Roma Prindle, MSU assistant professor of music, as well as faculty members from Northern Kentucky University and University of Kentucky.

While overseas, the students took courses in opera history, vocal literature and chamber music and all agree the experience has totally changed their lives, according to Dr. Prindle. Making the trip were, Michael Arthur, Irvine junior, Mindee DeLong, Carroll, Ohio, sophomore; Vanessa Keeton, Wurtland junior; and husband-and-wife-duo Gena True, Crittenden sophomore, and Jeremiah True, Corinth junior.

The group traveled from Cincinnati to New York's Kennedy Airport in New York City and then to Munich, Germany. There they boarded a "kamikazi" bus for Salzburg. During the week, the students attended classes and on weekends took the train to visit such cities as Vienna, Budapest, Paris, Zurich and Venice. Normal overnight accommodations were hotels at the various locations and "couchettes" (sleeping quarters) on the train.

Among the historical sites they visited and things they enjoyed were the Schoenbrunn Palace as well as graves of Beethoven and Brahms in Vienna; Budapest which is recovering from years of Communist rule; Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, Notre Dame Cathedral and a boat ride on the Seine River in Paris; the cathedrals and a great American breakfast in Zurich, and St. Mark's Cathedral and gondola rides in Venice. While in Salzburg, they visited Mozart's birthplace and took the "Sound of Music" tour of the local sites where the movie was filmed.

A special highlight of the trip was where the University students had an opportunity to perform with the choir of the historic Salzburg Cathedral, as well as giving several other concerts throughout the region, Dr. Prindle said.

"I have a greater appreciation for music after this trip," Arthur said. "It's like you know it's real but you don't understand it until you experience it." In addition to the music lessons, he also enjoyed learning about the different cultures, noting that the atmosphere was more "laid back with an if it happens, it happens" attitude. He described Paris as being more like America where everyone is constantly needing to get somewhere.

To add more excitement to the trip, Arthur had a flat tire when the group took a 24K bike ride along the Salzach River to Oberndorff, Germany, to the chapel where "Silent Night" was written.

A music performance major who plays saxophone and clarinet, Arthur believes he will recall the lives of the composers every time he performs their music. "Now that I have seen how they lived, I will be more appreciative."

All the students enjoyed a portion of the five weeks of study, Dr. Prindle said. "They were curious, eager to try new experiences and food, learned to speak a little German and handled themselves like savvy European travelers," she said.

Funds for the overseas study tour were the result of the students' fund raising efforts which were matched by the MSU Foundation, Inc. Each student had to pay $800 toward the trip.

Dr. Prindle will teach in Salzburg again in the summer of 1999. "You don't have to be a music major, but need only to possess a love for music, history and great food to go along," she said.

Additional information is available from Dr. Prindle at (606) 783-2481.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University students studying the environment are invited to apply for the Morris K. Udall Scholarship that covers expenses up to $5,000 per year.

The deadline to submit an application is March 13.

The scholarship was established in 1992 to honor the former congressman and his legacy of public service. The Morris K. Udall Scholarship and Excellence in National Environmental Policy Foundation operates an educational scholarship program which is designed to provide students with careers related to environmental public policy, health care and tribal public policy.

The Udall Foundation is committed to educating a new generation of Americans to preserve and protect their national heritage by recruiting and preparing individuals skilled in effective public policy conflict resolution, according to Dr. Joe Winstead, chair of MSU's Department of Biological and Environmental Sciences.

Scholarships will be awarded in May to students who will be college juniors or seniors during the 1998-99 academic year.

To be eligible, the applicant must be a full-time student enrolled in a bachelor's degree program and planning to pursue a career in environmental public policy. The scholarship also is available to Native American and Alaska Native students interested in a career related to health care and tribal public policy.

In addition, students must be a legal citizen of the U.S. and be nominated by an MSU faculty member. Additional information is available from Dr. Winstead at (606) 783-2944.

MSU'S HOLIDAY DINNER PARTY: A Picture Story

It was a time to indulge the inner child for more than 400 area residents as they viewed the holiday season "Through the Eyes of a Child" at Morehead State University's annual holiday dinner party Friday (Dec. 12). Hosted by MSU President and Mrs. Ronald G. Eaglin, the evening was filled with visual and culinary delights as well as with songs of the season and wishes for a happy holiday. From trees trimmed with gingerbread men cutouts, snowmen and snowflakes to the individually decorated gingerbread houses on the table and candyland trains in the lobby, the scene evoked personal memories of holidays past.

Cutlines:

- 1---Socializing during the social period were Dr. Robert Hatfield, Peggy Osborne and Melanie Hatfield.
- 2---Enjoying the hors d'oeuvres were Dr. Bud Harty, his wife Jane and Sister Mary Margaret.
- 3---Even the entertainment had a youthful aura as a group of youngsters from the Morgan County school system helped to ring in the holidays.
- 4---Led by Shelia Marshall, a chorus from Morehead Elementary School provided songs of the season to enhance the holiday mood of the guests.
- 5---The evening provided all with an opportunity to exchange season's greetings and this group was no exception. Enjoying the moment were, standing from left, Diane DeMoss, Joyce Meade, Dr. Gerald DeMoss and Dr. Ron Dobler. Seated, from left, Dr. Les Meade and his wife Donna.
- 6---Dr. David Victor and his wife Susan, seated, caught up on holiday plans with Mrs. Pat Greenfield, standing.
- 7---Trees adorned with reminders from childhood were placed around the Crager Room to complement the holiday decor.
- 8---Leading the guests in "Jingle Bells" before wishing everybody happy holidays were, from left, Dr. Charles Derrickson, who served as master of ceremonies for the evening; Bonnie Eaglin, MSU's first lady, Amy Fugate of Morgan County, and Dr. Eaglin.

Kids and animals often are the makings of a good story with great visuals and here's one coming up that might interest your audience.

At approximately 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 17, 15 fifth and sixth graders from Morgan County will meet the Boer goats that they will be responsible for raising. The event will take place in Richardson Arena at the MSU Farm, which is located north of Morehead on KY 377.

Morehead State University is playing a role in a new agricultural initiative for Eastern Kentucky farm families--goat farming--as part of its outreach services through the general assembly's Agricultural Incentive Initiative. The University's role in the project will be to assist with research into breed combinations and pasture lands favorable for Eastern Kentucky.

Larry Brown, East Valley Middle School physical education teacher and member of the Advisory Council for the Family Resource Center there, is spearheading what is known as the East Valley Goat Project, an offshoot of the Heifer Project International. HPI originally began as a program to place livestock in Third World Countries and now has added Appalachia and other areas in the United States.

Each student will receive two female goats which have been bred. Three male goats also will be placed in the East Valley area.

All parties involved with the project will be available to talk with media representatives on Wednesday. Should you need additional information afterwards, the telephone numbers are as follows:

Larry Brown, East Valley Goat Project coordinator, 606-522-8157

Steve Muntz, Heifer Project Int'l., regional representative, 606-497-0603

Dr. Don Applegate, MSU associate professor, veterinary technology, 783-2671

MOREHEAD, Ky.---For 30 years, Larry Stephenson has been in the same place watching everyone else come and go. He has changed jobs and titles, has earned two master's degrees, one in education and one in higher education, all in the same place while helping others adjust to being away from home, starting school, and learning to be an adult. They have come and gone but he stayed.

Since 1967, Stephenson has been on the campus of Morehead State University working in different levels of student development. He first enrolled at the University on a basketball scholarship only to quit school to work on the railroad. He returned to MSU and basketball when then coach Bobby Laughlin offered him a manager trainer job. After earning an undergraduate degree, he coached for three years before he returning to MSU as director of Regents Hall, then a hall for upperclass students, where he worked on a master's degree in education and principal certification. He didn't go on to become a principal though, he stayed and became director of housing in July 1968. He advanced from there to his current position as director of student activities.

He coached high school basketball for three years before changing his goal of becoming a coach and a principal to stay at MSU. "I enjoy it," Stephenson said. "I like working with students." That is the reason he offers for staying 30 years.

Changes in Eastern Kentucky brought changes at the University. New roads in the area have made a great impact on the enrollment and MSU has made adjustments to encourage students to come here. "We have better transportation now and students can go to school anywhere they choose," he said. That led to one change in the University policy that allowed freshmen to register and park cars on campus.

Besides students, Stephenson has seen many others pass through here. "The Lettermen, Roy Orbison, and a young man named Bill Cosby, I hear he is doing quite well now," he said. "The Eagles, the Bee Gees, James Taylor, Ray Charles, the list goes on." Stephenson explains that the cost of entertainment has escalated to the point that it is nearly unaffordable.

"During the 1960s you could get a top entertainer for $5,000 to $10,000, now that figure is more than $100,000 for top entertainers," he said. "Country performers are the most popular and usually cost less." But Stephenson notes there is still some good entertainment on campus for students, faculty and staff. Every Wednesday night, the Student Government Association sponsors a free comedy show open to the public and students with a valid I.D. card may enjoy a free movie on Friday nights.

For nearly 20 years, Stephenson has been the adviser to the MSU Student Government Association. His job has always been to meet the needs of the students, whether it is bringing entertainment groups to campus or housing and government issues. He said he has always seen himself as "the student's advocate."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---A Morehead State University science professor whose teaching and administrative career has spanned nearly four decades was recently recognized by the Kentucky Academy of Science (KAS) as its 1997 College Level Outstanding Teacher in Science.

Dr. John C. Philley, MSU professor emeritus of geoscience and former executive vice president for academic affairs, was honored by the Academy for his contributions to science education across the state as well as for his efforts in MSU's classrooms. The award was presented during the KAS annual meeting which was held at MSU.

Describing Dr. Philley as "truly a student's educator and a staunch advocate for science education at all levels," one longtime colleague said:

"At all levels, and at every opportunity, Dr. Philley stepped forward to promote science awareness through his support for professional development for faculty and in so doing demonstrated his commitment to providing MSU students the best possible learning environment at both the undergraduate and graduate levels."

Dr. Philley was instrumental in the establishment of a geology major at MSU and also assisted in developing the University's Environmental Science major which is an interdisciplinary program that cuts across the natural and social sciences.

Currently serving as secretary of the National Association of State Boards of Geology (ASBOG) and chair of the Kentucky Board for the Registration of Professional Geologists, he is active in several professional organizations and held various offices in the KAS.

Dr. Philley also has been involved with the state Science and Math Alliance which helps Eastern Kentucky science and math teachers develop new methods to enrich their instruction techniques. A certified professional geologist, Dr. Philley is the author of numerous articles and guidebooks in his field.

Joining the faculty in 1960, Dr. Philley was chair of the Department of Physical Science from 1974 to 1986 when he was named dean of MSU's former College of Arts and Sciences. He served as the University's chief academic officer from 1990 until retiring last spring. He currently is working for the University part-time on special assignment.

Dr. Philley earned Ph.D. and M.S. degrees in geology from the University of Tennessee and the B.S. degree from Millsaps College in the same field.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---The Morehead State University Rifle teams emerged victorious in a home match against Rose-Hulman Institute from Terre-Haute, Ind., recently.

Before the match began, the MSU teams were surprised to find that earlier rains had flooded the hallway entrance to the range in the basement of Button Auditorium. The MSU coach and team members hustled to clear out the water bringing a small pump into action. By the time the Rose-Hulman shooters arrived, the access was almost dry.

The MSU men's and women's teams both went on to victory in the Rose-Hulman competition. The men's team shot a 4427 smallbore score and the Women's team a 4295 to beat Rose-Hulman's 4152. In the Air phase, the men's team shot a 1496, just barely beating the women's 1492 team, both topping Rose-Hulman's 1399. The high scorers for MSU in smallbore were Kevin Cook, Eubank junior, with 1124 and Jenny Waller, Washington, Pa., freshman, with 1127. In the air match, the high scores were shot by Rebecca Morgan, Minerva, Ohio, freshman, (380) and Martin Wheeldon, Eubank sophomore, (379).

On Dec. 6, the MSU teams hosted two separate air matches. The women's team shot against the Austin Peay State University women's team and beat them 1454 to 1266. Morgan was once again the high shooter for MSU with a 372. The men's team hosted the University of Cincinnati and out shot them 1106 to 999. Aaron Reed, Shelbyville junior, was the top shooter for MSU with a 379.

Additional information on the Rifle teams is available from Walt Rybka, team coach, at (606) 784-9451.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---When Carolyn Taylor suggested to one of her sewing classes that they make gowns for premature, stillborn infants and premature infants who died shortly after birth, the class responded with a genuine compassion for the infants and mothers.

The gowns, called "Angel Gowns," were a concept Taylor, an associate professor of human sciences at Morehead State University, learned about from a feature story about a woman in Winchester who made them for the local hospital. "I read the story and decided to write the woman for a copy of the pattern," Taylor said. "I thought this would be a good project for my HS 141 Introduction to Textiles and Clothing class."

The pattern came in three sizes: small, medium and large. "The students couldn't believe the small size actually fit a baby, the smallest one was only about five inches long," Taylor said.

Some infants born prematurely or stillborn may weigh very little. "It is hard to find clothing to fit infants that small," Taylor said. "For those in need, I believe this was a much appreciated service."

The students took the project seriously as they sewed the little flannel gowns and matching caps, Taylor noted. "Each student worked diligently to do their very best work."

After the 14 gowns were completed, the students presented them to the nursery at St. Claire Medical Center in Morehead.

In addition to class credit, the students received a Service Learning certificate for 10 hours of community service. "I wanted my students to do this project because it a good experience and the students believed they were making a contribution," Taylor said. "After all, human sciences is a service oriented profession."

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Two Morehead State University students will make presentations at the bi-annual meeting of the Phi Alpha Theta National Historical Honors Society in Albuquerque, N.M., Dec. 26-29.

The students, both history majors, are:

*Jennifer Griffin, Elkhorn City senior and the daughter of Darrel Griffin, will present "The Romanization of Palestine as Seen Through King Herod's Caesarea."

*Nathan Kiser, South Shore senior and the son of Joyce Kiser, will present "Remembering Vietnam Through the Oral Histories of Veterans."

They will be accompanied by Dr. Charles MacKay, assistant professor of history and the chapter's adviser, who will chair a session at the conference.

Normally only one representative from each chapter attends the conference but because both papers were so impressive, Dr. MacKay asked national headquarters to allow both students to make presentations.

"These two are excellent students with good writing and research skills," Dr. MacKay said. Griffin won the "Best Undergraduate Paper" in 1996 spring semester and Kiser has presented two papers at regional conferences.

Both students are members of the University's chapter of Phi Alpha Theta history honors society. To be eligible for membership in the organization, a student must have at least a 3.0 overall grade point average and have completed at least 12 hours in history with a 3.0 gpa.

Dr. MacKay is in his third year of teaching at MSU where he specializes in modern European history, especially French Revolution and Napoleon. He earned the Ph.D. degree from Florida State University in 1995.

MOREHEAD, Ky.—Students from Morehead State University answered the challenge and volunteered to serve as tutors for children in early elementary school. The program, America Reads Challenge, encourages federal work study students to help children read better by the end of the third grade.

The University's MSUCorps Program served as facilitator for the event with seven students taking part in tutoring sessions at Rodburn Elementary School. Steve Swim, coordinator of MSUCorps, and Joel Pace, financial aid counselor, provided encouragement to the tutors, some of whom were first time instructors.

Participating in the program were:

*Lisa Eichelberger, a freshman special education major, is the daughter of Kim and Bill Eichelberger of South Charleston, Ohio. She is a member of the Lady Eagles basketball team and Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

*Julie Evans, a graduate student from Morehead, is an education major with an emphasis on grades K-4. She is an alumna of Delta Zeta sorority.

*Amanda Gauze, a senior elementary education and English major, is the daughter of Karen and Darrell Gauze of Louisa. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi international honor society.

*Stephanie D. Howell, a senior elementary education, is the daughter of Diane and Jerry Howell of New Carlisle, Ohio.

*Angela Lilly, a senior elementary education and science major, is the daughter of Wanda and James Conley and wife of Stephen Lilly of Englewood, Ohio. She is a member of Kappa Delta Pi international honor society.

*Chip Schoumacher, a freshman education major, is the son of Markay and Roger Schoumacher of Cincinnati, Ohio (Hamblin Drive 45255).

*Michael D. Short, a Morehead senior special education major with an emphasis on grades 5-8, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Short.

SPECIAL TO THE LICKING VALLEY COURIER

MSU LICKING VALLEY CENTER'S OPEN HOUSE: A Picture Story

WEST LIBERTY, Ky.---Even the sun shone brightly as friends, legislators and members of the community gathered recently to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the establishment of Morehead State University's Licking Valley Extended Campus Center.

The LVECC opened its doors in fall 1987 with funding from MSU, the Kentucky Department of Education, the Kentucky Literacy Commission, the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, Inc., the Kentucky Department of Employment Service (JTPA funds) and the GED Foundation. Dr. Jonell Tobin of West Liberty has been the Center's only director.

The center's college class offerings have grown from five with an enrollment of 67 in 1987 to 35 classes this fall with 351 students. Its services continue to expand with several literacy programs, including an adult learning center to assist adults preparing for the GED which is administered at the center. It also plays an integral part in the Labor Market #19 School-to-Work and the One Stop Career Center programs.

While the anniversary celebration was held mid-week, in the middle of the afternoon, the Center overflowed with greeters and well-wishers who talked of the accomplishments that had been made possible by its presence.

Bringing greetings from the various constituencies were: state Sen. Walter Blevins, state Rep. John Will Stacy, Rodney "Biz" Cain, Workforce Cabinet Secretary; Karen Schmalzbauer, Kentucky Department of Education; Joe Dan Gold, superintendent of Morgan County schools; George Million, warden at Eastern Kentucky Correctional Complex; MSU Board of Regents member Helen C. Pennington of West Liberty and L.M. "Sonny" Jones of Frankfort, BOR chair, and MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. Geraldine Peters Carter, a GED graduate at the center who completed a bachelor's degree at MSU and is currently working on a doctorate at the University of Kentucky, was the guest speaker. Dennis Chaney, chair of the MSU-LVECC Advisory Board, served as master of ceremonies.

MSU STUDENTS EXHIBIT WORKS

Several Morehead State University students enrolled in a painting class in the Department of Art exhibited their works in the Adron Doran University Center this month. The works were the result of a class assignment to complete a self-portrait in the style of a famous artist. Karen Killeri, a Mt. Sterling junior, chose the style of Richard Lindner to imitate. Dixon Ferrell, associate professor of art, taught the Painting Techniques I class.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---“Anything is possible” was the message given to Morehead State University’s winter graduates at commencement ceremonies on Saturday (Dec. 20).

Urging her classmates to accept this “deceptively simple” truth was Karen M. Telford of Carlisle, who was among the nearly 500 undergraduate and graduate candidates upon whom MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin conferred degrees.

Telford, the student speaker, took the opportunity to recognize the great teachers of her life who encouraged her to further her education. Among those singled out were William F. Thomas and Ronald G. Thomas, two MSU alumni who taught her as adjunct professors at Maysville Community College; Robert Franzini and Dr. Ryan Howard, members of the MSU art faculty; her mother Doris Telford and her father, the late George W. Telford.

Telford, a cancer survivor, said that her illness “taught me to learn all you can, but to question all you are taught. Don’t waste knowledge or opportunity; don’t waste resources, be they planetary or personal, and above all don’t waste time,” the dean’s list student, who earned her A.B. degree in art with honors, continued.

In addition to the students receiving degrees, philanthropist Lucille Caudill Little was presented the honorary Doctor of Humanities degree for her efforts to create a better life for residents of Central and Eastern Kentucky. John Rosenberg of Prestonsburg, representing MSU’s Board of Regents, made the presentation.

Little, a Rowan County native, was described as a champion of education and arts as well as a visionary and community leader. In accepting the degree, she told the audience of nearly 4,000 that anything she had achieved in life “I attribute to the wonderful background she received in Morehead and Rowan County.”

Following the conferring of degrees, the University’s newest alumni were inducted into the MSU Alumni Association by Jack Webb of Ashland, the association president. The new graduates join more than 40,000 alumni nationwide and abroad.

MSU HONORS ROWAN COUNTY NATIVE

In addition to the nearly 500 undergraduate and graduate degrees awarded during Winter Commencement on Saturday (Dec. 20), Morehead State University conferred the honorary Doctor of Humanities degree on Lexington philanthropist Lucille Caudill Little, center, in recognition of her many efforts to create a better life for residents of Central and Eastern Kentucky. Presenting her with the doctoral hood were John Rosenberg of Prestonsburg, left representing MSU's Board of Regents, and University President Ronald G. Eaglin. Little, a member of a distinguished Rowan County family, has given of herself and millions of dollars to improve the educational and cultural quality of life of the region.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---WMKY 90.3 FM, public radio from Morehead State University's campus, will sponsor a family bowling getaway at Grayson Lanes from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 11.

"We're inviting our listeners to bring their families to the lanes for an afternoon of bowling for prizes," said Paul Hitchcock, WMKY Music and Production Director. Prizes will include compact discs, WMKY t-shirts, pizzas and other surprises. WMKY will provide live DJ music featuring popular music from the 60s through the 90s.

The cost will be $20 and covers unlimited bowling for four people for two hours, lane and shoe rental as well as pizza. Individual game prices are available also.

Reservations may be made by calling Grayson Lanes at (606) 474-5750.

"This is a great outing for the kids and moms and dads should have fun too," said Gordon Nichols, WMKY interim manager. "It's an opportunity for the family to do something together. This is just one step in WMKY's ongoing effort to reach our listeners in the region," he added.

Grayson Lanes has 20 bowling alleys featuring "glow in the dark bowling" along with video games and concessions.

Additional information is available by calling Hitchcock toll-free at 800-286-WMKY or locally at 783-2334.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Eight students now attending Morehead State University are really enrolled in universities across the country. They are participants in the National Student Exchange (NSE) program which offers students the opportunity to experience life on other campuses.

"The students at MSU have come from all over the country," said Glenda Woods, MSU admissions counselor and NSE program coordinator. "They come here because they want to further develop and enhance their academic program while enjoying the setting of beautiful Eastern Kentucky," Woods said.

Students enrolled in the program attending MSU are: Christie Schubert, University of Nebraska at Kearney; Tajmia McIntosh, East Stroudsburg University of Pennsylvania; Erin Caywood, Utah State University; Joy Starr, University of Wisconsin at Green Bay; Deanne Kaasa, Central Washington University; Jeff Endres, University of South Dakota; David Stiles, Oklahoma State University, and Glynis Sheppard, California State University at Dominguez Hills.

The program allows full time students from one university, the home campus, to attend another university, the host campus, for a semester. "Students also can attend school at the host campus for two semesters if they elect to do so," Woods said.

Students pay tuition at their home campus while housing and meal fees are paid at the host campus. "This allows students to go to out-of-state-schools at the rate they are currently paying," she said.

The benefits from such a program stay with the students their whole life, according to Woods. "The students are enriched socially, culturally and academically," she said. "It is a great way to gain new experiences."

One MSU student, Stephanie Oney, a Morehead junior, is attending Sonoma State University in California through the exchange program. "Next fall when Oney returns to campus, she will hold information sessions for current students. Additionally, McIntosh, Caywood, Starr and Stiles will conduct sessions during the spring semester for prospective students," Woods said.

Anyone interested in the National Student Exchange may call Woods at (606) 783-2000.

CHANGING PLACES

Morehead State University has eight guests this semester thanks to the National Student Exchange (NSE) program. The students from around the country have chosen MSU to expand their learning experience. The program is designed to allow students at a home campus to enroll at a host campus at their current tuition rate. Participating are, front row from left, Christie Schubert, Deanne Kaasa and Joy Starr. Back row from left, David Stiles, Tajmia McIntosh, Glenda Woods, MSU admissions counselor and NSE program coordinator, Jeff Endres and Erin Caywood. Dec. 24, 1997

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Registration for Morehead State University's spring 1998 semester is scheduled for Jan. 14-16, with the first day designated as a business only day.

On Wednesday, Jan. 14, freshmen and transfer students who advance registered may pay tuition/fees in the Crager Room, Adron Doran University Center, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Class schedules will not be processed on that day.

Entry into the payment area on all three days will be based on an alphabetical system by last name, which may be found in the directory of classes.

On Thursday and Friday, Jan. 15-16, students will develop class schedules in their academic departments. Those who have not declared a major will schedule their classes in 233 Allie Young Hall.

Undergraduate students, who have not previously been admitted or were not enrolled this fall, will begin the registration process in the Admissions Office, 301 Howell-McDowell. For graduate students, that stop will be 701 Ginger Hall.

Sophomores and juniors, who advance registered, may pay tuition/fees on Jan. 15, in the Crager Room from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Students who did not register in advance for classes will be admitted to the payment area from 4 to 6 p.m.

On Friday, Jan. 16, advance registered seniors and graduate students may complete the financial portion of the registration process in the Crager Room from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., while those who did not advance register will be admitted from 4 to 6 p.m.

Students at MSU's Ashland Area, Big Sandy and Licking Valley Extended Campus Centers as well as those at the Appalachian Graduate Consortium in Pikeville may register from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, Jan. 15-16. For MSU Jackson classes, registration will be from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Jan. 15 and from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Jan. 16.

The registration period for classes at Maysville, Mt. Sterling and Whitesburg will be on Jan. 15 only, from 4 to 6 p.m. Students enrolling in distance learning classes offered at other regional sites may register at the main campus or at their nearest extended campus center.
