FIRST DAY OF SUMMER REMINDS US AUTUMN IS ON ITS WAY

Now Scorpio, the celestial scorpion, distinguished constellation of the summer heavens, holds forth bravely in the southeastern sky...

The ancients noted the fact that Scorpio and Orion were never in the sky at the same time and built various legends around it...

This had been regarded as a symbol of the antagonism in nature between winter and summer, cold and heat...

The stars are so spaced in this constellation as to suggest, roughly, the outline of a scorpion, with curved tail and outstretched pincers...

The constellation of Scorpio is most quickly found by its bright red star, Antares. This star is supposed to represent the heart of the scorpion...

Antares is of particular interest to astronomers because it is the biggest star known. It is larger than Betelgeuse, the giant red star of the constellation of Orion...

Such stars are so large that our sun and earth could be placed in the courtyard of the star...

"Mercy To A Shattered World"

(By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE)

The American Red Cross is asking today for $20,000,000 to aid the war-stricken families of Europe. Never before since man collected his family in domiciles has devastation wrecked so many homes as are now torn, plundered, and devastated in Europe, Poland, Finland, Czechoslovakia, Norway, Holland, Belgium, France, Denmark, what a long procession of crushed and broken nations.

The only agency on earth to extend a helping hand to these ravaged people is the American Red Cross. If we of the United States are to maintain our leadership in what is called civilization, we must show through all the turmoil and terror the kindly, unselfish heart and reveal the generous hand that has given us leadership in other ways and walks of life.

This new campaign of the American Red Cross is the most civilized thing that has come to America in many a day.

WILD LIFE OF KENTUCKY by Roger Barbour MOREHEAD STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

LIZARDS, locally known as "sneakers" are among our most interesting reptiles. They range in size from a few inches to seven or more feet. The largest living lizard is the monitor, which lives in South China and the Malaysian region.

At least six species of lizards occur in Kentucky. Of those six, two are found only in the western portion of the state. Those two are the Race-runner, or Six-lined lizard and the so-called "Glass snake".

Part of the training of soldiers assigned to mechanized cavalry consists of a course in motorcycle riding. The Army is now recruiting for this fighting force.

ported as being able to run so fast over a short distance as to be invisible to the human eye. It is a ground-loving form and feeds on insects and other invertebrate animals. The "Glass Snake" of Western Kentucky is our only legless lizard. It may reach a length of thirty inches of which about twenty are tail. When captured, it readily snaps off its tail and while the captor tries to abridge the wriggling tail, its owner crawls into some crevice in the earth and escapes. Later, it grows a new tail and so goes on as the first, but a new tail, nevertheless.

The four lizards that occur in Eastern Kentucky are the Coal Skink, the Blue-tailed Skink, the Ground lizard and the fence lizard. The Coal Skink is a rather rare animal and has been reported only from Harlan, Bell, and Knox counties. It is glistening brown and black in color, and very distinctive. The Blue-tailed Skink is very common and is characterized by its blue tail and fine yellow lines running the length of the body. Old males have a red head and an olive body and tail. This lizard is commonly believed to be poisonous, but in reality it is perfectly harmless.

The fence lizard is by far the commonest lizard in Eastern Kentucky. It is brown or gray with wavy cross bands. The adult and the immature forms are considered poisonous by numerous individuals. They feed on various types of insects and other invertebrates and are definitely beneficial.

In connection, let me say that all lizards are beneficial, feeding as they do on harmful insects, and should be protected rather than thoughtlessly killed.

Part-Time Workers Must Have Number

Will Save Time And Much Trouble For Prospective Summer Workers

Workers who find temporary employment in commerce or industry during the vacation period should show their social security account numbers to their employers at the time of beginning service in such lines of business. This is the recommendation of James A. Chaney, manager of the Social Security Board field office in Ashland, Kentucky.

The supervisors and workers who die before reaching age sixty-five are, in many cases, entitled to monthly checks under the Social Security Act. These checks are paid to widows of workers who were insured under the Social Security Act if the widow is sixty-five or over, or if she has a child under eighteen, regularly attending school. Survivors' benefits workers who have been employed on jobs covered by the Social Security Act may learn about their eligibility for benefits by communicating with James A. Chaney, manager of the social security office, 1118 Second National Bank Building, in Ashland, Kentucky.

"Glamour Kids" To Provide State Fair With Big Show

September 9-14 Set As Dates For Cattle Show At Louisville

Houses in bright, shiny new barns, the glamour boys and girls of the Kentucky State Fair, those happy but coy creatures known as Beef and Dairy Cattle, will put on one of the Fair's biggest shows. Dates for the engagement are September 9th to 14th. Place is the Fairgrounds in Louisville.

Having a major part in the revitalized fair program, this department boasts of one of the largest entry lists in its entire history. Included in the competition this year will be many of the Nation's leading money winners in the Jersey and Hereford shows as well as top ranking animals of all other breeds of Beef and Dairy cattle.

Entirely new at the 1940 fair, will be the offering of extra awards to two Kentucky classes, one for Hereford and one for Guernseys. These will be in addition to other Kentucky classes which have been a part of the program heretofore.

The eleven new barns which will house these fine show herds are the latest and most modern in design and were planned after exhaustive research. They have the O. K. of leading exhibitors. Some of the barns will have a shower rack, a shower for the groomers and an office. Electric lights and attachments for fans will be among the many features of these new buildings.

Discussing the new plans for the Beef and Dairy Cattle Department, Robert B. Jewell, Manager of the State Fair, said, "Fairs and Expositions are the show windows of the livestock industry, they are the milestones that mark the progress of a nation, and the only way we can gauge our progress is by comparison at our Fairs and Expositions."

Another added feature of this department this year will be two more Kentucky classes for the Future Farmers of America, one for Guernseys and the other for Jerseys. These are just a few of the items on the list of improvements and additions that will be made at the new 1940 Ken-

MODERNIZING McGUIFFE

(By Dr. E. D. Judd)
Morehead State Teachers College
THE JOLLY OLD PEDAGOGUE
"Twas a jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
Tall, and slender, and sallow, and dry;
His form was bent, and his gait was slow,
And his long, thin hair was white as snow,
But a wonderful twinkle shone in his eye,
And he sang every night as he went to bed.
"Let us be happy down here below,
The living should live, though the dead be dead."
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago,
He taught the scholars the rule of three
Reading and writing, and history too;
He took the little ones on his knee,
For a kind old heart in his breast had he,
And the wants of the littlest child he knew.
"Learn while you're young," he often said,
"There is much to enjoy down here below;
Life for the living and rest for the dead!"
Said the jolly old pedagogue, long ago.

Send Us Teachers to Match Our Mountains

It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that the influence of the teacher on American life and ideals has been greater than that of any of the other learned professions. By the nature of our work, we are looked upon as public servants, builders of character, moulders of human destiny, in short the backbone of our democratic society. It is in the classroom that traits of patriotism, respect for the flag, concepts on health, morals, religion, government and science, take shape. The schoolroom is the laboratory, the work-shop, whether it be in the isolated one-room rural school, or the ornate graduate building of the university. This is the place where society gets all its formal education. And it is the pedagogue who sits behind the desk, who decides the destiny of any nation. The child, we hope, who sits at his feet, is to become a vessel of honor. History is replete with stories of how a great teacher has directed the energies of his students so that their powers have been spared the fate of becoming dissipated and fruitless. Briefly let us look at the life of one of the greatest of all characters, Thomas Jefferson. When Thomas Jefferson went to William and Mary he met a teacher there, a Dr. Small, who did not attempt to set him straight, or to explain every thing to him, or correct all of his vagaries, or demand that he memorize rules. After school hours the two used to roam the fields talking the problems of the day, or, about what was said in the class room. On Saturdays and Sundays they would take long excursions into the woods and there Jefferson got a chance to steel his intellect against the flinty mind of Dr. Small. That was real education. We are so busy nowadays in college, teaching our subjects that we seldom find time to have a heart to heart talk with our students about their real problems. It was during those precious moments spent in the field and in the woods that Jefferson began to see life in the wholes. He caught up some of Dr. Small's love of learning and literature, and the desire to think things out for himself. Jefferson never got over the influence of this great teacher. It showed up later in his life as Governor, as President and Educator. It is important that each person has at least one great teacher in his educational experience. It is better to have this influence in one's grade experiences, the better to have it in college than not to have it at all. Any person is greatly blessed if he has had one great teacher; three blessed if he has had two.

KENTUCKY BRIEFS

FRANKFORT — State Auditor, David M. Logan announced Tuesday he had declined to become a candidate for the unexpired term of his brother, the late United States Senator, M. M. Logan. This decision lost what was considered to be the prospect of no formidable opposition to Senator A. B. Chandler, for the Democratic nomination. Chandler is holding the seat by appointment of Governor Keen Johnson.

LOUISVILLE — The possibility of establishing a naval reserve aviation center in Louisville will be investigated by the Navy Department, Mayor Joseph D. Scholtz, has been informed by letter. The Navy is seeking technical information, he said.

ASHLAND — James T. Norris, associate editor of the Ashland Daily Independent, last week was named by Governor Keen Johnson on a merit system committee to conduct examinations under federal regulations to employees of state agents dealing with the National Social Security Administration.

Defense Program To Delay Work On John's Creek Dam

PRESTONBURG — County officials here have been told on "good authority" that actual construction work on the John's Creek dam may not be started until next year as the government this year turns its attention mainly to a gigantic defense program.

Legion Home To Be Ready By July 26.
RUSSELL — The new home of the Howard Thomas post, American Legion, will be completed in about a month more, Dr. E. W. Potter informed members of the Legion at their meeting last Monday night. Dr. Potter is chairman of the building committee.

The new Legion home is located below Raeland and one of its main features is a large assembly room and stage, suitable for dances and various kinds of meetings.

Fleming Farmers Diversifying Crops

One-Time Crop Dominance Becoming Thing Of The Past

Diversification of crops is making steady progress among the farmers on the Farm Security program in Fleming County, according to John L. Zachary, FSA County Supervisor, Flemingsburg, Kentucky.

"A study of the farm plans of FSA borrowers shows that much hedges is being made on getting away from the old one-crop domination. Tremendous strides have been made in crop diversification, which means that a good start also has been made in the adoption of farm improvement and soil conserving practices, because the two go hand in hand," Mr. Zachary stated.

"The FSA, since the beginning of its program in the county has insisted on production of food for the family and feed for the livestock, and farmers who have come to us for loans are realizing that production of their own food and feed is an important factor in the successful operation of any farm."

"In addition to these substance crops, we have encouraged the production of two or more cash crops, and can now report that every farmer on the program in the county will this year have more than one source of cash income from his farm."

Mr. Zachary said that some of the crops which have been planted this year in addition to tobacco are wheat, grass and clover seeds soybeans, korean and truck patches. These crops as well as their baby beaves, milk, brood mares, and hogs.

Croft Will Conduct Testing Procedures

Major Lysie W. Croft, Inf-Re-serve, U. S. Army, director of student personnel at the University of Kentucky, and a member of the faculty of that institution, will go to Ft. Benjamin Harrison, July 1, to conduct testing and classification procedures in connection with the C.M.T.C. camp there.

This is the first time that this procedure has been undertaken in peace times, and it is being done now for the purpose of developing this phase of mobilization plans. The work will be done under the auspices of the War Department and the Fifth Corps Area, as a try-out procedure and will be the only one of its kind undertaken at this time. Accompanying Major Croft will be Major Anthony Thompson, Lexington, 1st Lieut. J. H. Cavins, Lexington, University of Kentucky graduates; 2nd. Lieut. J. E. Hernandez, member of the University faculty; and Lieut. Richard Elsier, Louisville, and an enlisted staff.
