Crackerbarrel Comments

(By Woody Hinton)

You know last week I told you that I was going to tell you something of the I.G.A. Grocery that is owned and operated by one Glenn Fraley. I really had some good things to say about this outfit but Fraley has made me mad. He is beyond all doubt the slickest man I have ever known after your account gets beyond $200.00. When you go in and pay him up he will give you a cookie and a brownie and call you by your first name but the higher your account runs the griper he gets. He has a Bluegrass farm over on the Flemingsburg road and he had to bring a guy by the name of Porter over here to tell him how to operate it. Then he goes out of town and buys a lot of good cattle and puts them on the grass. Well we drive by on Sundays and look them over feeling that we are going to have a good steak next week from one of them fat steers. Instead of that if you don't watch his meatcutter whose name is Blair, he will cut you a piece where the yoke has rubbed for hard tilling how many years from one of the Broomsage cows out of Ellersburg and that is the only thing pleasant about the I.G.A. is the service they give. They will bring you a pack of gum or a dress or a pair of shoes or a jiffy. And Mrs. Fraley always has a smile for you. How she puts up with her husband I do not know.

Anyone wanting any workers for a Carnival please apply to me personally. I want the satisfaction of hiring them on the nose. I worked as I never worked before trying to get a little revenue out of the Carnival Fourth of July week so we could get a little donation for the fair. But fair or no fair I am off Carnivals. Not that I did not have a good time but it was a nerve-racking job. H. Haggan warned me but I thought I was smarter than he was. Congratulations, Warren C. Lappin. I hope the appointment makes you smile and I wish you every success. I hear A. Payne is on again. I wish he would make up his mind. Anyhow my old colleague, congrats to you and if you don't put your heart and soul into your work I hope you spoil your liver. I know what you told me and the night will never be too dark or the road too muddy for me to give you any assistance that is asked by you. Yours for the asking, Good Luck.

Merchants Club Will Meet Tonight At Church

Bill Layne, president announces that the Merchants Club will hold its regular meeting Thursday, July 12, in the basement of the Methodist Church.

Long War Depends On Amount Of Aid We Give Europe Belief

(Dr. J. B. Holtzclaw)

During the long fight against the "cash and carry" neutrality bill last October, some of the isolationist senators in desperation employed the following arguments:

The repeal of the embargo would be an irretrievable step toward our entrance into the European conflict. The United States should avoid war at all costs; that we may be in a position to secure for Europe and the World a just and lasting peace when the conflict is over.

Strange, indeed, was the approach to the problem, coming as it did from the same group who defeated our entrance into the League of Nations following the World War!

Some of these men voted against our entrance into the World Court, and were always ready to bring the "extraordinary" argument whenever any move was made toward American participation in international peacekeeping. To say that they would practice total isolation from world affairs today, in order that we may be one hundred percent isolationist tomorrow seems paradoxical to say the least.

But let us assume, for the sake of argument, that the men were Correction!

In looking over the issue of June 27 it was noticed that in story titled "Valentine Moore, 54, Killed in Gun Fight Here." It was stated that Moore was killed by a shot fired by P. L. Alderman. This shot was fired by Gabriel Alderman rather than P. L. as stated in the story.

"Playground" Announces Ten-Day Bargain Program

The management of "The Playground," Morehead's only summer resort, announces a big ten-day special program. Beginning July 12 and ending July 21 Moreheadians swim or skate for nine cents.

The management calls attention to the fact that "The Playground" is Morehead's park and that their slogan "Swim or Drinking Water" stands for the best in swim recreation.

The management states that other special attractions are on the way and they are pleased at the reception given their new enterprise.

Perfectly Secure in Their Promotions

College Prof. Breaks Arm In Fall Downstairs

C. O. Peratt, instructor in the Department of History at Morehead State Teachers College, suffered a broken wrist resulting from a fall at his home Tuesday night. Mr. Peratt is reported to have missed his footing and fallen down the stairs. His many friends are hoping a speedy recovery for him.

Haldeman Workers Receive Vacation With Pay Statem't

Approximately Seventy Percent Firebrick Co. Men To Get Benefit

Approximately seventy percent of the employees of the Kentucky Firebrick Company will receive a vacation with pay this year. On July 27, D. B. Leadbetter, Vice-President and General Superintendent, announced to the committee representing the employees that he was happy to inform them their vacations for all hourly, daily paid, and tonnage workers would be granted.

On July 2, George P. Wardley, Assistant Vice-President of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, was in Haldeman to review with an employee's committee rules covering the vacations, which follow:

Wage earners who have received earnings from the Company in at least seventy-five of the pay periods within the twelve months preceding vacation and who, prior to July 1, 1940, were continuously in the service of the Company five years or more, continuity of service to be based on United States Steel and Carnegie Pension Fund Rules for service continuity.

Wage earners of five years or more continuous service will receive:

Gold Staging Huge Fire, Water, Sale

Starts July 12; Result Of Caskey Garage Fire

In another part of this issue of the Independent is contained an announcement of a gigantic fire sale by Gold's Department Store. The sale is scheduled to start on Friday, July 12, and will last until the entire stock of slightly damaged goods is gone.

The goods to be sold were slightly damaged by water and smoke, resulting of the burning of the Caskey Garage, and will be sold, Mr. Goldberg states, at a sacrificed price.

Cecil Fraley, local telegraph operator, was named chairman of Joe B. Bates' Rowan County campaign. Fraley was well and popularly known in Rowan County and in Morehead.

Final Rites Held For Lou Hayes

Was Life-Long Member Of Christian Church; From Easton, Ky.

Last rites for Mrs. Lou Hayes, 77, were held Thursday, July 11 at her residence at Easton, six miles east of Morehead.

Miss Hayes succumbed July 9. Born in Rowan County December 11, 1873, she is survived by three brothers, Neal, and D. B. of Upper Tygart, and two sisters, Mrs. of Easton, and Mrs. Be Maggard of Morehead. Four brothers preceded her in death: John, James, William and Robert. Her husband, John Wesley Hayes, Miss Hayes was a life-long member of the Christian Church.

Reverend Harlan Murphy of West Liberty assisted by Reverend B. H. Kazee and Reverend A. E. Landolt was in charge of funeral services. Burial was made in the family cemetery at Easton.

Rural Schools To Open This Monday

The rural schools will open on Monday. The largest enrollment in years is expected this year because parents, teachers and all school officials are realizing more every day that the child is being cheated if he does not get an education because it is free and every child should have it.

The teachers have the spirit that it takes to do the work. They will probably visit every home month preceding vacation and the school work with you. Give them a hearty welcome in your community. Visit the school and take part in the affairs of the school for it is yours.

Rural Teachers Meet Set For Monday At Gym

There will be a meeting of the rural teachers July 12th, at the Public School Gymnasium. This will be mostly a business meeting and a good time to discuss any problem the teacher might have. The meeting will be a half-day meeting, starting at 9:00 o'clock. All teachers must be present.

New Operators License On Sale At Courthouse

The new 1940-41 operators license are now on sale at the Circuit Court Clerk's office.

The price for the new license will remain $1.00 as for the past year.

All drivers of motor vehicles must have the new license by August 1.

Council Sets Fee For Machines; Sets Rule For "Honks"

The Morehead City Council in session Tuesday night passed an ordinance approving issuing a license to operate electric phonographs in business places in the city that were operating them as of July 9. The installation of any phonographs after July 9 must be approved by the city council before the license can be obtained. The Council also set $20.00 as the license fee for installation and operating of a pin ball machine.

The complete ordinances are set out on another page of this issue of the Independent.

Various Estimates Place 10,000 As Number Here For Fourth Of July

Day Here Success Sav Legionnaires And Merchants; Visitors Here From Over Several Different Counties

Various estimates placed the number of visitors in Morehead for the Fourth of July celebration program at between 9000 and 10,000. The day was pronounced by merchants and legionnaires sponsoring the affair as a success in every way.

Beginning with a large parade at 10:00 a. m. the day's program was begun at the College stadium at 11:00 with a speech by President W. H. Vaughan. Presented by Dr. H. L. Nickell, district commander of the American Legion, J. Sidney Caudel, Commonwealth's attorney and a legionnaire, gave the response to President Vaughan.

In the contests which followed Raymond Ison won the "Fat Man's Race" and a prize of two dollars. The "Potato Race" and another prize of two dollars was won by Junior Brown. The fifty yard dash for children between the division of six and eight was won by Junior Brown. The fifty yard dash for children between the division of eight and twelve was won by Junior Dyer with a one dollar prize awarded. The fifty yard dash in the women's division was won by Kathryn Kathryn Wellman and Guy Everman. Prize for this event was two dollars.

The race for girls between the ages of eight and twelve and a one dollar award was won by Dorothy Swim. An American Legionnaires race was won by John Francis who also won in the "Change Finding Contest." Prize

The Board voted to spend $4800 in further equipping the college library with books, magazines and periodicals.

President Vaughan said, and also hired S. M. Cain of Nashville as assistant librarian. Cain has had library experience at libraries in Durham, N. C., Peabody College from which institution he holds the B. S. degree in library science, and in the Hainesville, Florida public library.

The Board further empowered President Vaughan to permanently close the College Theatre.

It was set out that the Theatre had been running at a loss for the past several years. It will be closed August 1, President Vaughan stated.

William Reid Willoughby of Carrollton, Kentucky, was elected to take Professor Earl King Senn's place for the next year. Senn will leave July 31 to work toward a Ph.D. at the University of Kentucky.

Miss Anna Carter, secretary to Morehead's three presidents, was promoted to the position of executive secretary and will work between the business office and the president's office at an increased salary.

Dean Lappin will leave during the first fall semester to conclude work on his doctorate.

It was announced that Chiles Van Antwerp will act as dean and director of the Training School during that time. Van Antwerp will attend Peabody College for the balance of the summer. He has done graduate work there and at the University of Kentucky.

Morehead College will add two teachers in home economics this fall. It was learned one instructor will be placed in the College Men's Club building. A practice house already on the campus.

Morehead's "Finest" Restaurant Opened

"The newest and finest restaurant in Morehead" opened its doors to the public on Wednesday, Frank Laughlin and Claude Clayton, owners, announce. The new restaurant built on the same site as the old "Blue Moon" is modern in every respect. Their announcement slogan will be "The Home of Good Food." The public is cordially invited to inspect the new restaurant, located across the street from the Casy Building.

Owners Laughlin and Clayton are asking the public to supply a market for its new business. The owners will announce the winning name Saturday.

IN PEACE OR WAR.

No matter what strains may be put upon the economic structure, said Robert M. Haines, president of the American Bankers' Association, the banker will rise to the occasion and fulfill his obligations to his customers and to the nation of which he is a part.

American banking has risen to many crucial occasions in the past. In these long-ago days when the West was being won, and industry was slowly coming into being in areas that had been wilderness a few years before, it was banking that supplied essential capital to turn the dreams of the economic pioneers into realities that brought opportunity and a fuller life to all.

Today banking wants peace, as does our whole country. All factors in our national life are united to one thought—that America be made secure. And the nation's banks will be among the most important factors making for success.

A BLESSING.

It is a blessing for this country in its hour of need that its basic industries are still ready to meet emergencies, in spite of some years of vicious attacks on them for political purposes.

Government must be kept as an impartial administrator and not be allowed to dominate industry and the private lives of our citizens.

We have seen too much politics play havoc with England and France—let us keep it from destroying the United States.

What We Owe To The Youth Of Today Described To Men's Club

(By Tom Hogg)

Tonight I am going to try as an experiment the writing of an article and reading it to the club, because when I use notes I have such a decided tendency to digress. Another reason is that I wish to say the things I certainly intend to say in order that my point I have in mind (if any) may be brought out.

In the past it has sometimes been the reason for this reticence on my part, but for the information of the newer members I would like to explain this is due to my kind of heart. For since the other members enjoy talking so very much, I just cannot be cruel enough to take up even a small part of it to come into a store and give my views. It is rather funny but I really have some views. Another reason is that I cannot just get my acute brain to go into a store and leave it. No! No! I do not mean that any of you fellows do that. I had in mind a fellow that used to come into a store and give me some years ago. He came in about every Saturday to do his trading, with a weeks talk batted up to come into a store and give me some years ago. He came in about every Saturday to do his trading, with a weeks talk batted up to come into a store and give me some years ago.

I had thought when starting this article that I would try to write in a spirit of a light, happy vein, perhaps interspersing it with something that might pass for humor. If the critic should happen to be unusually lenient, but there is so much happening in this world of ours that is not humorous when considered from any angle so much of sorrow and suffering, of mental and physical anguish in a world mad with selfishness and greed, that I feel that a more serious handling of the subject would be more appropriate.

Some has said that the least intelligent people talk about politics, the more intelligent about things, and the most intelligent about ideas. I am not claiming to have reached the fewest classes, but I am passing up an opportunity to talk about things with which I come in contact daily, and which I feel so much of sorrow and suffering, of mental and physical anguish in a world mad with selfishness and greed, that I feel that a more serious handling of the subject would be more appropriate.

The duties we owe to the youth of our country and what they should expect from us. Perhaps I might as a physical parent, an interested relative. I believe Bob Bishop will have to accept some responsibility for his little ones.

The problem of directing the youth of our country in the big one for all of us, for upon the success or failure of the directing of the future of the United States and perhaps the world. For, I have the strong hope within me that when the present generation has subsided, for which we surely earnestly hope, that the country that we call home will be a better world than the one that we have inherited.

For to the world leaders to realize a broken and shattered world to some semblance of law and order on an international basis. For to the world leaders to realize a broken and shattered world to some semblance of law and order on an international basis.

changed. Now that is a problem. I believe that youth has a right to ask that we solve it. One of the hardest for a young person to meet is the lack of experience in business or any other skilled work.

In searching for a job the first question asked by some hard-boiled business man is, "What experience have you had?" Of course the answer must be none in many instances. By the way, too, if a man in later life, with plenty of experience, should lose his position with some firm and should seek employment there he has had him how much experience he has had, it is, "How old are you?" Then comes the statement, "You are too old," sometimes wonder how they expect anyone to qualify. There should be a place established in the activities of our nation for the young, and they should be given training. I think a young man has a right to expect to solve it and that quickly. For to keep our country at the top among the nations of the world we must have a contented and useful youth. One that has a justifiable hope for the future. I believe our youth, but teaching the boy and expect us to pass on to them an opportunity to work and serve. A right to earn the necessary recognition, that cannot fail to be recognized as possible economically secure.

The youth of our land has the right to expect that the conditions of conditions under which they may work or be employed in some capacity, wherein merit and ability are the only factors considered; conditions where advancement and recognition is granted, not because display of power, but because of the boy and girl has deep within them a desire to achieve; a willingness to labor and endure, and a native ability that cannot fail to be recognized.

For a country in which ability ceases to be recognized, is headed eventually, toward ruin, should we not be sure of that? I believe that a world in which pretense and shams receive scant consideration, but where all that is true and fine, and that is for the right and good; and all that is great and ennobling which they may possess will surely come into its own.

Sometimes I wonder if that slight spirit of rebellion is not more prevalent than in former years. If the touch of the rein doesn't fret and irk them more than it did when they were so complicated. The young folks like to blow off steam a little bit more loudly than they used to do. It is because they are wiser at a younger age than we used to be. I doubt it. I believe it has just been so long since we were young that we have just forgot how we felt.

Perhaps we were not so outspoken because the discipline of our parents was some stronger than that which we have established. I wonder if we owe youth a return to an idea of moderate discipline, but whether that is true or not the parent and the teacher can go a long way toward directing this spirit in the right direction if they will only actually try not just to be strict but to be fair. We owe it to them and they have a right to expect more than just a casual effort on our part toward helping to adjust them to the conditions that have to be met. They have a right to expect us to shake off that physical, mental and moral lethargy and make a real effort to help them. No parent has a moral light to neglect his child along this line, and no teacher has the right to take the attitude that he is paid for mere intellectual instruction. The parents have entrusted them to the teachers care and it is his responsibility.

ability and his charge as to what he helps make of them. Whether a home or school turns out from their dog rebels, outlaws or the very best of citizens, the parent and the teacher cannot escape their responsibility and must accept a portion of the blame on the credit.

I believe we owe it to the youth of our land to build for their heritage, a nation unified; a nation where men and women are big enough to lay aside personal hopes and aspirations, and work for the common good. And may I say in passing, unless we care to this we are laying the foundation for happenings here like those about which we have heard and read with such horror and repugnance. We owe them the passing on of civilization's standard, unswayed and unshaken, upheld by a kindly and upright nation—a nation that regards the rights of other nations and courageous enough so that its rights are respected, a nation unflinching in its faith. I think the earliest record of a precocious child is found in the Bible, where it records that Job cursed the day he was born. I think that our generation owes it to the youth of our land that we pass on to them a nation wherein we exalt the day he was born. I think that our generation owes it to the youth of our land that we pass on to them a nation wherein we exalt the day he was born. I think that our generation owes it to the youth of our land that we pass on to them a nation wherein we exalt the day he was born.

What I have said tonight is said in behalf of the boys and girls of this country; in behalf of your daughter or your son; in behalf of my daughter or my son. If I could be sure of them, secure these things through any action or action of mine, there would be none too great for me to make—None none.

WILD LIFE OF KENTUCKY Roger Barbour MOREHEAD STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE

"The Manufacture of Food" All animals, with the exception of a very few forms which are very low in the scale of animal life depend either directly or indirectly upon plants for their sustenance. The plants upon which they depend are able to make certain materials from the soil and air which the animals are unable to use, and combine them in a form that is usable by animals. This remarkable process, performed only by green plants, is called photosynthesis, or "putting together by light."

The materials needed for this manufacture of food are simple, being carbon dioxide, a gas which we exhale, for energy, sunlight, and a substance called chlorophyll, which is merely the green coloring matter of plants.

On the other side of the leaves of plants are hundreds of little openings called stomata through which the carbon dioxide, and the oxygen, enter and leave the plant. One of two series of little tubes, one group called the "xylem" and the other "phloem." The xylem carries water and other raw materials up the stem, and the phloem carries manufactured food up and down the stem. But to get back to the story, the water gets to the leaf through the xylem. The chlorophyll is present in the leaf. Now when water and carbon dioxide come together in the presence of chlorophyll, a remarkable change takes place. In order to better explain just what carbon dioxide does together in the change in chemical terms, the chemical symbol for carbon dioxide is CO2, meaning simply that carbon dioxide is made up of one part of carbon and two parts of oxygen. The symbol for water is H2O, meaning that it is composed of two parts hydrogen to one part oxygen. Now, the change that takes place is this: Six parts of carbon dioxide combine in some unknown way with six parts of water to form a simple sugar and give off free oxygen. Expressed as a chemical equation, this process would be represented thus:

6H2O plus 6CO2 CH12O6 plus 6O2 The sugar we eat is represented by the formula CH12O6. If you will please notice this formula is exactly twice CH12O6 minus one H2O. Numerous plants are able to convert the simple sugar CH12O6 into a double sugar, C12H22O11. Starch is simply an unknown number of molecules of simple sugar combined. It is in this form that the sugar manufactured by plants is stored. Sugar, starches, and other similar foods are known as carbohydrates. Our principal foods are carbohydrates, fats, and proteins. Fats are made of the same elements—carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen—as the starches. Certain plants are able to change sugar and starch into fats. Proteins are made of these same three elements plus another nitrogen. This element, a gas, makes about eighty percent of the air, and some of it is to be found in the soil in the form of nitrate. The plant obtains its nitrogen from the nitrate, and by combining the nitrogen with its carbohydrates, it produces its carbohydrates. It is able to manufacture proteins. I feel that we now will all agree that plants are our most universal and most dependable factors for the production of food. They are unique in their ability to combine water and carbon dioxide to form sugar. Man may learn the secret some day. There is a fortunate awaiting the man who discovers the method.

McGuffey Emphasized Good Poetry

Recently the writer attempted to analyze, from a simple statistical point of view, the emphasis which McGuffey attached to poetry. Twelve readers were examined, six from McGuffey together with six modern readers. In a total of 2,157 running pages in the six modern readers there were fifty-five poems. In the McGuffey reader with 1,588 pages of material, there were two hundred and twenty-five poems, aside from some scattered efforts found in the press selections. In the modern reader there were no "jingles" or "rimes" in either the Primer or the First Reader.

McGuffey would have his readers do about one-third of their work in poetry, the modern texts required much less. Fifty-five poems, the number found in the six modern readers, may be selected from the masters, may be all that one needs in going through the grades. However, McGuffey had not only the quantity in his two hundred and twenty-five poems, but he had the quality as well. In one of the modern sets examined, there was a selection entitled "The Purple Cow." By a wild stretch of the imagination it is possible that one may conceive of a purple cow. However, in this age of stark realism, it may be difficult for one to defend the concept of a "purple cow" despite the tremendous popularity of the poem with children. Many of the poems of the modern readers are of doubtful merit. On this particular level we referred to the above. McGuffey used such poems as: (We quote in part) Twinkle, twinkle, little star. How I wonder what you are. Up above the world so high. Like a diamond in the sky!

God made the little birds to sing. And flit from tree to tree: "Thy He who sends them in the spring. To sing for you and me.

How doth the little bee Improve each shining hour. And gather honey all the day From every opening flower.

The greater part of the McGuffey poetry was chosen from the master poets who had proved their right to a place in the literary world. It is doubtful if many of the modern selections of poetry will survive. On the other hand, the corrosive influences of a decadent civilization can do little harm to the elevated qualities of good literature. Keats in his "To a Grasshopper" puts it this way in his opening lines. "The poetry of earth is never dead." Good literature is not like a garment, to be discarded because of wear and tear." The 23rd Psalm, though written centuries ago, has good literature in it. It is a dignity marred with the passing of the ages. To the writer, it represents the most beautiful literature to be found written in any book. So it is, the abiding quality of good, exalted literature, as found in the McGuffey Readers, become increasingly meaningful with the passing years, despite the many revolutionary changes which any civilization may bring about. Know: If you have an favorite poem of McGuffey which you should like to have appear in this column, please write the author.

Thousands Will Visit State Fair

Huge Building Program Under Way

The mat of welcome will be spread for the thousands of visitors at the huge Merchants and Manufacturers Building of the Kentucky State Fair, when it opens its doors for public inspection on the advance opening day of the fair, Sunday, September 8th, and continuing until its close on Saturday, September 14th.

Bright, new and dazzling will be the hundreds of displays arrayed for the approval of Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Patton. And there will be something going on every minute of the day and night the floors are open. Fair Manager R. Jewell promised.

An almost complete Fair in itself, the huge building with its fully fashioned girders and bright, polished steel, will present a kaleidoscope of color matched only by a rainbow. Everything new, modern and up-to-date in the business world will be shown in addition to the many displays of agricultural products and farm equipment.

Also to be shown for public approval in this huge structure of its thousands of square feet of floor space will be one of the most outstanding exhibits of dairy products in this section of the country, an exhibit worth coming many miles to see, according to fair officials.

There will also be an all-day Dahlia Show here on Sunday and Monday amateur gardeners will show their prizes. In addition to the school flower exhibit, which will be staged Wednesday, the winner of the Kentucky Dahlia Show will be decided On Thursday the Federated Homemakers Flower Show will be presented to the huge throng of State Fair visitors that will visit the building.

Boasting the world's greatest Horse Show, this year there will be ninety-nine classes for decision, with the feature event being the World's Grand Championship Five-Gaited Stake. This stake is in four divisions. On Monday night the Stallions will show and on Tuesday night the winner of the Mare Division will be named. Wednesday night the Geldings compete and on Saturday night, the first four winners in these divisions must compete and the following three winners may compete. To win at the Kentucky State Fair Horse Show means more than winning at any other show in America, horsemen declare. To witness any part of this grand long to be remembered.

National Defense Program Is Costly

Widely Urged That The Pay As You Go Plan Be Adopted

There have been noticeable developments in respect to financing the vastly costly national defense program. First, it is widely urged that the pay as you go plan be followed as much as possible, even though heavy tax increases prove necessary.

Second, there is a general demand that all other government expenditures be drastically reduced—and that non-essential bureaus and departments be entirely eliminated.

There never was a time when businesslike planning of the affairs of government was more necessary to the national welfare. No longer can we afford boozing. No longer can we afford the log-rolling practice, whereby congressmen and senators are virtually forced to vote for unnecessary expenditures in return for promises that other congressmen and senators will approve pet expenditures for their districts. No longer can we afford "expedients" which disrupt industry and labor, and pamper the incompetent and lazy while the hard-working and efficient pay the bill.

The American people are ready to make great sacrifices. They

Frank Daugherty Hits Political Appeals To Public Money Jugglers

Urges Kentuckians To Patronize Only Retail Beer Outlets

An appeal to the Kentucky public to patronize only those licensed retail beer outlets that conform strictly to the laws of the state in the conduct of their business was made today by Frank Daugherty, State Director of the Kentucky Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee.

The Committee's "clean up or close up" program has been approved by many citizens, public officials and civic organizations in letters and personal messages.

He continued: "The Committee appreciates such expressions of approval and cooperation. We know that the public and individuals are cooperating with us in our efforts to conduct a successful program and eliminate a small minority of retail outlets that, through illegal practices, are outraging decency and discrediting a $20,000,000 industry. I ask all citizens of Kentucky to patronize only those licensed retail beer establishments that are operating in orderly fashion and conforming strictly to Kentucky laws."

"A retail beer permit is valuable and represents a means of livelihood for retail outlets proprietors. It is their duty to sell beer in furtherance of that livelihood. I ask the public to consider this and assist the retailer in the preservation of that livelihood by not asking him to break the law or to sell beer after legal hours on Sunday."

He reported that since organization of the committee had, through cooperation of County officials, closed an Eastern Kentucky distillery, illegal fast shooting, investigated more than 100 retail beer establishments and issued warning letters to the owners of these establishments steps to remedy conditions "complained of." One outlet was "cleaned up," later reports to the committee revealed.

Workers Can File Claims At Age 65

No Payments Will Be Made As Long As They Are Employed

Workers can file their claims for old-age and survivors insurance at age 65 or any time thereafter, whether or not they plan to retire, James A. Chaney, manager of the Social Security Board's office at Ashland, Kentucky, pointed out today. He explained, however, that insurance payments will not be made to any worker as long as he is employed—that is, the worker will not receive an insurance payment for any month in which he is employed, such as $15 on a job covered by the law.

Mr. Chaney said that workers are sixty-five or older who are planning to file a claim for benefits should consult the Social Security Board office on two separate points. First, the employee may not have worked long enough to be eligible for benefits, but if he continues to work he may qualify later. Any worker who plans to retire should inquire whether he is eligible before quitting his job.

The second point on which Mr. Chaney advised workers of sixty-five or more to consult the Social Security office is concerned with the amount of the worker's benefits. He explained that the amount of each employee's benefit will be determined by the monthly average of wages he has received under the system prior to the time he applies for benefits, whether or not he continues to work. In some instances where the employee continues to work the amount of his benefit would be increased if he waits and files his claim later. In other cases, his claim later. In other cases, a lower wage than formerly, it might be to his advantage to file his claim at once, Mr. Chaney asserted.

Of the total casualties in 1939 to trespassers on railway property, 53 percent were fatal.

The two young Livingtons acquire a lot of so-called "modern" ideas, and try to make over not only their home, but also their parents. After just a little too much punishing, Mr. and Mrs. Livingston show their children that they can also play the "modern" game. The week-end that guests come from New York, they go very modern and completely steal the show. Before the week-end is over, the guests learn that they are just a normal and likeable couple who have taught their son and daughter a much-needed lesson.

The cast is making good progress, and hope to be able to announce the date of the production soon. We want the co-operation of all our friends in making our club a success, and we are working toward that end. We will give complete details soon.

Are We Wiser?

There is plenty of criticism of the European democracies for what some consider their astute, shrewd failure to recognize in time the first-growing military power of the dictator nations, and to prepare to meet it. Informed commentators are now asking if we are any wiser. We have the same chance to prepare that England and France had a few years ago. Will we do it, with maximum efficiency and minimum waste—or will we permit red tape and politics to make our defense program ineffective?

more than forty-eight hours.
Vacations will so far as possible, be granted at times most desired by employees, but the final right of allotment of vacation period is exclusively reserved to management in order to insure the orderly operation of the plants.
Vacations must be completed prior to December 31, 1940.
Vacation pay may be payable in advance of the vacation period, but may not be drawn more than three days prior to the start of vacation, and then only upon forty-eight hours notice.
A temporary shutdown for taking inventory or for any other reason may be designated for vacation.
Notice of vacation is to be given the employees as far in advance as possible (not less than one week), so that they may have time to plan for the vacation.
Vacations may not be waived by employees and extra pay received for work during that period.
Holidays occurring during the employee's vacation will be counted as part of his vacation period.
Vacations shall be arranged in advance and not be permitted to be taken for an unauthorized absence taken in advance of the vacation period.
A vacation may be postponed or re-scheduled for a later date in case of sickness or disability occurring prior to the scheduled date.
No vacation or vacation pay shall be allowed any employee after resignation or discharge for cause.
The announcement of the vacation plan was especially appreciated by six long service employees who retired to the office of the company on June 30. The group, consisting of Messrs. Sparkman, William Ray, Bee Crum, Reese Walsh, Joe Douglas and Tom Francis, were entertained by the company at a dinner party at the home of Mrs. M. J. Haldeman, camp on June 28. Saul Puckett, who will not retire, was also a guest.
A spokesman for the company stated no additional men will be hired because of the vacation grant. In answer to an inquiry regarding the need of additional employees because of certain construction, this newspaper was informed the plant by former employees who were on a waiting list.
This newspaper wishes to thank the management of the Kentucky Firebrick Company, and the officials in Pittsburgh and Chicago for their interest in the local community and their efforts which made possible the granting of a vacation plan. Further, through these columns, wish to congratulate the employees of the company who are so ably cooperating with their employer in making the Haldeman plant one of the outstanding firebrick companies in the Ohio Valley district.

Ever See A Chicken Wearing A Pair Of Pants Or A Hat?

Did you ever see a chicken wearing a pair of pants? Or one that wears a hat? Or one that has down instead of feathers? If you haven't, you're sure missing some of the strangest oddities among poultry, and you should visit the poultry exhibition at the Kentucky State Fair, which will open September 9th through the 14th, and a preview scheduled for Saturday night, September 7th, and an advance opening Sunday, September 8th.
Not a small department by any means, this grouping boasts its largest exhibit list at the Fair, manager Robert B. Jewell said today. There will be exhibits in over 900 classes this year and the poultry show pays better premium according to entry fee, than any similar show in the country.

So much interest has been taken in the show by exhibitors that every state will be represented by one or more exhibits, and nationally known judges will be on hand to make the decisions.
Advances show that will be shown here is the cavy, or guinea pig. For years doctors and scientists have used these little animals for experiments in parasites, and they have probably saved more lives than all the slugs in the world. In the same building will be rabbits, the long eared fellows that furnish so much fur for "felt" headgear. These are just a few of the many outstanding attractions here.
Among the many other features will be the Kentucky classes for United States approved poultry. These will take in troup of white hornspurs, barred rocks, white wyandottes and buff orpingtons, to mention a few. Then, in addition, there will be classes for the ducks, geese and turkeys. More than one hundred special premiums are going to be offered to winners in the poultry classes, Manager Jewell said.
The poultry show is one of the most interesting exhibits at the Kentucky State Fair and to miss it would be to miss a vital part of the huge fall show. It is estimated that nine out of every ten persons who visit the fair include the poultry show in their itinerary of the fair grounds.
Railroads now have 36,900 more serviceable freight cars than there were at the peak of business last October.
Over 33,000 new freight cars were installed in service by the railroads in the first five months of 1940 compared with 7,111 in the same period last year.
Thirty-one percent of the expenditures made by the railroads in 1939 for materials and supplies (including fuel) went for iron and steel products.

311,000 Loans Made In Ky. During 1939

NEW YORK, June 11.—Nineteen percent of Kentucky's commercial banks made more than 111,000 loans totalling over $342,000,000 during 1939, and individuals throughout the state during the year 1939, according to the second semi-annual survey of the American Bankers' Association made public today.

The survey, which was participated in by 79 banks or 19 percent of the 411 commercial banks of the state, showed a definite expansion of bank credit in the field of new loans made during July 31 and December 31 was 3,988 greater or 6 percent greater, and the dollar volume of new loans made during the period was $5,238,214 or 15 percent greater than reported by an equal number of banks for the previous six months.
The lending activity that during 1939 they made 128,011 new loans totalling $145,639,263, renewals of loans totalling $189,254,379, 4,137 mortgage loans totalling $7,452,407.

The survey reveals that business firms in the state are using only about one-half of the "open lines of credit" kept available for them on the books of the banks. Twelve banks in the larger centers of the state reported that they carried 48 percent of their second half of the year 1939 "open lines of credit" consisting of specific amounts of credit offered and kept available for established borrowers for use as needed by them. Of this amount $16,477,862 or 52.2 percent was actually loaned per bank in 1939. The average number of new loans made per bank was 1,820 and the average new loan was $1,128.

The average number of renewals per bank was 2,270 and the average renewal was for $1,055. The average number of mortgage loans per bank was fifty-two and the average mortgage was for $1,801.
The Kentucky survey was part of a national bank lending activity survey made by the American Bankers Association.

For the country as a whole 5,337 or 44 percent of the commercial banks reported that they made 24,998,000 credit extensions totalling $39,810,810,000 during the year. These consisted of the following:
12,680,000 new loans totalling $22,120,900,000.
12,037 renewals of loans totalling $15,791,000,000.
285,000 new mortgage loans totalling $899,810,000.
Total 24,998,000 $39,810,810,000.
The number of new loans increased ten percent and the dollar volume increased twenty percent

Common Goal Set For State Farmers

The head of an agricultural organization recently pointed to the virtues of farm marketing cooperation. This, he said, is necessary to successful, profitable farming. And he said that marketing must be two-fold. It is not enough for farmers to cooperate among themselves—they must also cooperate to the full with other great economic groups, industry and labor.
The principal farm marketing co-op have long worked on this theory. And that has been largely responsible for their undoubted success. No one group can prosper alone apart in this country—only when all groups work together toward the attainment of a common goal, can progress be assured.

U. of K. To Have Testing Station

To Test Airplane Motors As Part of Nation's Armament Program
With the completion of a new testing laboratory building for internal combustion and aircraft motors. Work on the foundation of the building has commenced and the structure is expected to be completed by October 1.
Funds for the construction of the building were furnished by the Viking Foundation which is headed by Axel Wenner-Gren, Swedish armaments millionaire industrialist.
The new U. K. building will be of one-story construction of brick and glass brick in modern design, and will be situated on the western portion of the new campus near the new central heating plant. It will be fifty feet wide by one hundred-fifty feet deep and will be so completely sound-proof that testing will not be heard outside of the structure.
Funds for the construction of the building were furnished by the Viking Foundation which is headed by Axel Wenner-Gren, Swedish armaments millionaire industrialist.

The testing, however, will not be restricted to Mawen Motors, but will consider all types of internal combustion and aviation motors ranging in size from 100 to 2,000 horse-power, University engineering authorities state.
Extensive research work in motor testing and design is already being carried on by the University under the direction of A. J. Meyer, professor of Aeronautical and Mechanical Engineering, and the new testing laboratory will upon its completion, provide a greatly enlarged field for research by the University.

Kentucky Offers Frosh Scholarship in Ag. College

Made Possible Thru Sears-Roebuck Foundation Fund
Twelve Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation scholarships of $166.66 each will be awarded to Freshman boys in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture the coming school year. It is announced by Dean Thomas P. Cooper. This sum is sufficient to pay the fixed university fees and the cost of books for the year and room rent for the second semester.
The scholarships will go to farm boys with good high school records who cannot secure the funds necessary to enter the College of Agriculture, and who must have assistance to defray their expenses during the first year in College. Other factors that will be considered in making the awards include the likelihood of the boy completing his four-year course in agriculture, his personality common sense, energy, initiative, leadership, reliability, character, health, morals and range of interests.
Recipients of the scholarships must carry the prescribed Freshman course in the College of Agriculture, and must maintain a satisfactory scholastic standing.
August 15 has been set as the closing date for the receipt of applications for scholarships.

KENTUCKY FARM NEWS

Located Near Morehead Miniature "Grand Canyon"

Gallatin County farmers are planning to feed quail next winter when normal sources of feed are scarce or the ground covered with snow. Two hundred pounds of seed were sown, and will be let go to seed.

Members of Campbell County Homemakers' Clubs engaged in making rugs are planning to hold a county show August 5-11. Each club will exhibit two rugs of each kind made, including looper clip hooked, crocheted and knitted.

Nine Fulton County farmers harvested, threshed and sold for canning 118 acres of English peas. The yield averaged a ton and a half of shelled peas to the acre. They brought $25 a ton and returned a net profit of $18 an acre.

After a conference of Mrs. Ben Allen Thomas, Shelby County landscape gardening leader, and leaders in local clubs, orders were placed for about 5,000 gladiolus bulbs. Six unusual varieties of daffodils were studied at the Louisville market.

Mrs. S. A. Harrison, who conducted a poultry demonstration in Hancock County, sold her flock at the end of a seven and one-half months laying period. The flock averaged 106 eggs, and the net profit was $103.84.

Farmers Invited To Study Tests Of The Experiment Sta.

Three days of "open house" for farmers to inspect the experimental work of the Agricultural Experiment Station are announced by Director Thomas P. Cooper. On August 7, farmers and all other interested persons will be invited to the main Experiment Station at Lexington. August 9 the annual field day will be held at the Western Kentucky Experiment Station at Princeton, and on August 16 there will be a meeting at the Robinson Experiment Station at Quicksand.

At all meetings, visitors will see experimental work with soils, fruit, livestock, and other farm products. These will include tests with limestone, phosphate, fertilizers, manure, rotations and other young people from nearby towns take full advantage of it. Knob Licks is a curious combination of a well known and little-known place. The people who have been there so many times never think it is unusual so they never tell anyone else about it. Consequently a great many people within twenty miles of the place have never heard of it.

Take a trip out to Knob Licks sometime. You'll say you never knew there was an odd place existed near Morehead. It's worth your time.

There are many long, descending ridges of clay each just wide enough to make a good footpath. The whole valley is a network of such ridges of various heights from ten to seventy feet. The valley in the center is broken midway its length by a ridge that crosses from one hill to the other. It is from this ridge that one can see the knobs in all their beauty. Perhaps you think that clay is colorless. If you do, then you should see the delicate shades of red, brown, blue, and gray.

The knobs are an ideal picnic ground and seldom does a Sunday pass that a group of people are not there. It is a very good place for marshmallow toasts and the methods of building and maintaining fertility. Also will be seen tests of varieties of clovers, alfalfa, soybeans, grasses and small grains. The breeding of hybrid corn and improved tobacco and other crops will be explained.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has a wide reputation for its improvement work in almost every phase of agriculture. Largely as a result of its long and extensive investigations, farmers of Kentucky have used almost a million tons of limestone each year for several years, and are leaders in the use of phosphate. Kentucky also long has been a leader in livestock improvement.

Representing Eleven Counties Says H. C. Haggan In Charge

Morehead State Teachers College will be host to approximately 350 4-H Club boys and girls who will come here to the annual 4-H club camp July 15-19, according to Professor H. C. Haggan.

These 4-H club boys and girls will come from eleven surrounding counties to participate in the interesting and instructive program planned for them.

President W. H. Vaughan will make a welcome address Tuesday, July 16, and on Wednesday, Dr. J. B. Holtzclaw will address them on the subject, "Democracy or Dictatorship."

The boys will be instructed in woodwork by Professor J. T. Mays and will learn to build such things as seed collection boxes, insect boards, and bird houses, while the girls will be taught to frame pictures by the staff of the Art Department. Dr. Pennebaker will give lectures on biology and the physics, music, dramatics, and Art Departments will cooperate in various capacities.

The girls will be under the supervision of Miss Threlpeid, 4-H leader in Home Economics from the University of Kentucky, aided by the Experiment Station of the University demonstration assistants.

Exercises and play periods will be supervised by Mr. Nagel with the assistance of the Physical Education Department.

Vesper services will be conducted each evening by ministers from nearby towns.

400 4-H's To Be Here July 15

Representing Eleven Counties Says H. C. Haggan In Charge

Morehead State Teachers College will be host to approximately 350 4-H Club boys and girls who will come here to the annual 4-H club camp July 15-19, according to Professor H. C. Haggan.

These 4-H club boys and girls will come from eleven surrounding counties to participate in the interesting and instructive program planned for them.

President W. H. Vaughan will make a welcome address Tuesday, July 16, and on Wednesday, Dr. J. B. Holtzclaw will address them on the subject, "Democracy or Dictatorship."

The boys will be instructed in woodwork by Professor J. T. Mays and will learn to build such things as seed collection boxes, insect boards, and bird houses, while the girls will be taught to frame pictures by the staff of the Art Department. Dr. Pennebaker will give lectures on biology and the physics, music, dramatics, and Art Departments will cooperate in various capacities.

The girls will be under the supervision of Miss Threlpeid, 4-H leader in Home Economics from the University of Kentucky, aided by the Experiment Station of the University demonstration assistants.

Exercises and play periods will be supervised by Mr. Nagel with the assistance of the Physical Education Department.

Vesper services will be conducted

$15,000 Fire Salvaged Stock Of GOLDE'S DEPT. STORE Goes On -- PUBLIC SALE FRIDAY - JULY 12th And To Continue Till All Is Sold

Public Statement --

Misfortune can strike anywhere. On the night of June 29th—the night of the big fire our roof was burned. Most of our entire stock was moved out into the streets. The result was that a great part of it was spotted by water. Soiled—mussed—and lost. We were closed for an entire week getting this stock assorted and marked down for clearance. Boxes were broken, soiled and wet but the merchandise is good as ever. You will pay only a fraction of the value of this merchandise and the insurance companies pay the difference.
