FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Gov. Paul E. Patton will be the featured speaker for Morehead State University's Founders Day Convocation and Awards Ceremony at 2 p.m. on Friday, April 3, in Button Auditorium.

"We are pleased that Gov. Patton will join us as we culminate our year-long celebration of the University's 75th anniversary as a public institution of higher learning," said MSU President Ronald G. Eaglin. "It is most appropriate that our 'higher education' governor address us on this day which is set aside to reflect on our rich heritage and bright future."

"In order to accommodate his schedule, we have moved the convocation, which usually is held in the morning, to the afternoon," Dr. Eaglin added.

Additionally, the Founders Day Award for University Service will be presented at the convocation, which will open with an academic procession.

MSU's observance of Founders Day will begin at 8 a.m. with a special breakfast for retired faculty and staff at which Dr. Eaglin will recognize new retirees.

"By popular request, this year we are opening the retiree breakfast to anyone wishing to attend and tickets will be available along with those for other meal functions," said Susette Redwine, University Center programming/special events coordinator.

Following the breakfast, several special events are planned including the unveiling of two historical markers, burial of a time capsule to be opened in 2022 and the dedication of the Memorial Plaza which surrounds the Little Bell Tower.

At noon, new MSU Fellows and other benefactors of the University will be honored at a luncheon where Leonard Hardin, chair of the Council on Postsecondary Education, will speak.

Capping the day will be the Alumni Awards Dinner at 6:30 p.m., where new members will be inducted into MSU's Alumni Hall of Fame.

All meal functions will be held in the Crager Room, Adron Doran University and tickets will go on sale Monday, March 23. Breakfast tickets are $5 per person, luncheon tickets are $6 per person, while dinner tickets are $15 each.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Jazz Ensemble I was selected as the outstanding band in competition at the University of Louisville Jazz Festival held last month.

As the outstanding band, the ensemble had the honor of playing at the Festival's evening concert. The group was directed by jazz great Stanley Turrentine.

"The Ensemble performed well and it was just a wonderful day for us," said Gordon L. Towell, assistant professor of jazz studies and the ensemble's conductor. "The ensemble was featured on the 10 o'clock news on the Fox Network."

Two MSU students received scholarships because of their individual achievements at the Festival. Vanessa Dawn Keeton of Morehead, and Patrick Duff of Lexington, both senior jazz music majors, will attend the Jamey Aebersold Summer Jazz Workshops in Louisville. There were only three scholarships awarded, according to Towell.

"This is one of the premier summer jazz workshops. It has some of the biggest name jazz players and teachers involved," Towell said.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.--- "Impact! The Threat of Comets and Asteroids" will be the topic of a free public talk by internationally-renown radio astronomer Dr. Gerrit L. Verschuur at 8 p.m. Monday, March 23, in Duncan Recital Hall on Morehead State University's campus.

Dr. Verschuur's campus appearance is part of the University's "First Light" celebration of its radio telescope and has been made possible through the Harlow Shapley Visiting Lectureships in Astronomy, sponsored by the American Astronomical Society.

Observing "First Light" celebrations is a tradition with new telescopes and are held once they become fully operational, according to Dr. Benjamin Malphrus, MSU associate professor of science and director of the project. "It has taken us four years to get to this exciting stage and we want the public to share in our excitement," Dr. Malphrus said. "We also are pleased to be able to incorporate this celebration as part of MSU's 75th anniversary as a public institution of higher learning."

MSU's radio telescope, funded in part by the National Science Foundation, is the only such instrument in the state and there are fewer than 100 in the world.

An adjunct physics professor at the University of Memphis, Dr. Verschuur is the author of several popular science books, including "The Invisible Universe," "Cosmic Catastrophes," "Hidden Attractions" and "Impact! The Threat of Comets and Asteroids." He also is co-author of the textbook "Cosmic Evolution" and served as editor for the graduate textbook "Galactic and Extra Galactic Radio Astronomy."

The radio astronomer's primary research areas include the properties of interstellar neutral hydrogen and magnetic fields. Also an inventor/entrepreneur with his name on seven patent applications, Dr. Verschuur has taught at universities in Manchester, England, in South Africa, Puerto Rico, California and Colorado, where he ran a major planetarium.

He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Rhodes University in South Africa and his Ph.D. degree from the University of Manchester, England, where he worked with the world-famous Jodrell Bank Radio Astronomy Observatory. Emigrating to the United States in 1967, he worked at the National Radio Astronomy Observatory's radio telescopes in Green Bank, W.Va.

Several special activities, all open to the public, are planned to commemorate "First Light," including on Friday, March 27, an open house and dedication of MSU's Astrophysical Laboratory and the radio telescope. Open house will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Astrophysical Laboratory, located at the west end of campus on Fifth Street, and the radio telescope on the hill behind the laboratory.

A dedication ceremony will be conducted at 3 p.m. in 213 Lappin Hall with several speakers who were involved with the telescope's design and fabrication. Also there will be a slide presentation and Dr. Malphrus will present an overview of the instrument and the project's history.

Among the speakers will be a representative of Kruth-Microwave Electronics Corporation, Washington, D.C., and Dan Puckett of Puckett Engineering, Mt. Sterling.

MOREHEAD, Ky.---By participating in a recycling program, Morehead State University's faculty, staff and students are seeing a decline in waste that goes to the landfill each year.

April D. Haight, recycling and energy conservation coordinator, is so pleased with the results that she is looking for ways to increase the program's efforts.

"We hope to expand what can be recycled by students and where they can go to recycle," Haight said. "The residence halls only have recycling bins between Mays and Butler Halls and there are some bins in the married housing units at the present time."

Haight believes the expansion would increase the amount of recycled goods and keep lowering the landfill's total each year. "Only a few things may be recycled now and we want students to have the option of recycling glass, cans, plastics, paper items and cardboard along with everything else," she said.

Recycling and energy conservation officials estimate that MSU now recycles more than 375,000 pounds each year. This is a tremendous increase from the 42,802 pounds recycled in 1992 when the program began, Haight said.

According to data collected by the recycling program, the amount of waste going to the landfill has been reduced by 12 percent since 1994. In 1997, 512 trips were made to the landfill to discard waste.

Most people are not aware that the University has that much waste, Haight said. "If the trucks were lined up bumper-to-bumper, they would form three rows from the Laughlin Health Building to the President's home," she said.

The recycling program is making changes and expects to have a new look in the coming months. In addition to placing more recycling stations around campus, Haight wants the program to become more financially independent, establish a new base of operations and combine efforts with the city and county for a shared recycling depository.

MSU students also are assisting in ways other than recycling items. Student workers collect and dump recycled items and one student, Erica Ellerbusch, Mt. Vernon, Ill., junior, has designed a new logo.

Recycling statistics in pounds for 1997 included: aluminum cans, 2,539; appliances, 9,710; cardboard, 93,290; compost, 54,800; glass, 906; office paper, 181,797; reused office supplies, 11,927; scrap metals, 17,963; plastics, 412; tires/waste oil, 4,106, and toner cartridges, 1,242.

"It's fantastic how the amount of waste going to the University landfill is being reduced," Haight said, "And we hope to continue seeing improvements during the next couple of years."

Additional information on the recycling program is available from Haight at (606) 783-5268 or check out the website at "www.morehead-st.edu/units/plant".

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Mathematics professor and author Dr. Frank Morgan will speak during Morehead State University's Department of Mathematical Sciences Math Awareness Week set for Monday through Thursday, March 23-26, on the campus.

Dr. Morgan, a visiting professor of mathematics at Princeton University, will present "The Soap Bubble Geometry Contest" on Thursday, March 26, at 3 p.m. in 419 Reed Hall. The program, which does not require a background in math, will include demonstrations, explanations and prizes.

A prominent author in his field, Dr. Morgan has three texts that recently published new editions: "Geometric Measure Theory: A Beginner's Guide 1995," "Calculus Lite 1997" and "Riemannian Geometry: A Beginners Guide 1998." In his exploration, he works in minimal surfaces and studies behavior and structure of minimizers in various dimensions and settings.

After graduating from MIT in 1974, Dr. Morgan continued his education at Princeton where he was a National Science Foundation Fellow. At Princeton, he completed an M.A. degree in 1976 and a Ph.D. degree a year later. He currently is professor of mathematics at Williams College where he served as department chair for six years.

The display will feature more than 900 students' works, encompassing 17 categories. Included will be painting, drawing, mixed media, printmaking, fiber arts, sculpture, ceramics, jewelry, photography, computer arts and cultural diversity. FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---"Women's Voices in Politics and Policy" is the theme for the eighth annual Wilma E. Grote Symposium for the Advancement of Women slated for Thursday-Saturday, March 26-28, at Morehead State University.

The symposium will open with a reception at the Morehead Holiday Inn on Thursday, March 26, beginning at 7 p.m.

Speakers from across the country will make presentations on a variety of topics on Friday and Saturday in the Adron Doran University Center. Among the papers to be presented are "Women Against Themselves: A Political Suicide," by Dr. Juliana Taiwo Makinde, professor of feminist studies at the University of Minnesota; "In Their Own Voices: What Alaskan Women Say About Campaigning, Discrimination, and Why They Run for Political Office," by Dr. Barbara Mishler, professor of communication at Matanuska-Susitna, College of Alaska; "My Hopeless Campaign: Insights into the Wilderness of the 1993 Canadian Federal Election" by Dr. Rita Egan, MSU assistant professor of education, "Worker's Angels" by Dr. Patti Swartz, MSU assistant professor of English, and "African-American Women from the Pages of Black Weekly Newspapers" by Dr. Kenneth Sexton, assistant professor of journalism.

At Friday evening's banquet, novelists and playwrights Norma Cole and Nancy Elliott will present "Just Desserts." The play, based on Eliza Calvert Hall's book "Aunt Jane of Kentucky," portrays the suffragist movements and how, despite difficult circumstances, the women rose to each occasion by standing up for themselves and each other.

Rebecca Jackson, Jefferson County Clerk, will be the speaker for Saturday's luncheon. As an entrepreneur, she started the Consultants for Educational Programs, Inc., an organization that consults with universities and other professional organizations to design and implement educational programs.

Jackson also founded JobCenter, Inc., an employment agency which places disabled workers in competitive jobs in local community businesses. On two occasions, she was selected to represent the U.S. in serving as one of 25 delegates to participate in the International Republican Institute's mission to observe Russia's parliamentary elections. She is currently serving her second term as clerk of Jefferson County.

The symposium creates an interactive atmosphere where individuals from different backgrounds can share their knowledge, research and creativity, according to Marilyn Mote-Yale, MSU associate professor of government and conference coordinator.

The fee for the symposium is $90 which includes materials, a welcome reception, Friday's banquet as well as a continental breakfast and lunch on Saturday.

Students may attend all sessions, except for meal functions, at no charge, but should register in advance. Those students wishing to attend meal functions will be charged $10 per day.

For those wishing to register for only one day of the symposium, the fee is $50 for Friday or $30 on Saturday.

To register for the conference, mail a check payable to Women's Symposium, Morehead State University, 201 Ginger Hall, Morehead, KY 40351-1689. Additional information is available from Mote-Yale at (606) 783-2354.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University's Department of Nursing and Allied Health will celebrate its 25th anniversary on Friday, April 3, from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Reed Hall.

The day will be filled with meetings, a luncheon and presentation of awards, according to Shelby Shires, assistant professor of nursing who is coordinating the event. "We're having a daylong reunion and have invited our alumni back to see the program's new look.

"We want our alums to return to the campus so we can show them how we've changed over the years," Shires added.

Highlights of the day include class reunions, greetings from Dr. Gerald DeMoss, dean of the College of Science and Technology, and a luncheon with Michael L. Grey, associate professor at the School of Technical Careers at Southern Illinois University, as the keynote speaker. Awards will be presented to outstanding alumni in the ADN (associate degree nursing), BSN (baccalaureate of science in nursing) and Radiologic Technology programs.

The event will provide an opportunity for our graduates to celebrate the department's advancements since 1973. The program has gone through several changes, according to Dr. Betty Porter, chair of the department who has been a member of the nursing faculty for most of the 25 years.

"We (the department) have evolved to teaching our specialties in the 25 years I've been here," Dr. Porter said. "When I first arrived, professors would have to teach everything, but now we've become more specialized in our areas of teaching." The department had to adapt as the world changed, she added.

(MORE)

MSU's nursing program, which began as a two-year offering, has grown by leaps and bounds. The associate degree for nursing was accredited in 1982. The department added a four-year degree to the program in 1986 and celebrated its first graduating class in 1988. The radiologic technology program was established in the 1980s, with a four-year degree option added to the program in the 1990s.

In addition to adding courses, the department also began a cooperative venture with the University of Kentucky. In 1996, MSU and UK completed an agreement for nursing practitioners to receive a Master of Science degree in nursing. Another agreement was completed last year, giving nurses with a two-year degree the opportunity to earn a Master of Science degree from UK after completing a baccalaureate degree from MSU.

Another change in the department has been an increase in the male population in nursing. MSU's male nurses now make up 25 percent of the class, as compared with the national average of only 5 percent.

"The major changes were made to correspond with the changes in health care through the years," Dr. Porter said. "The department, nursing program and graduates have done quite well," she said.

The celebration in the department is being held as part of MSU's year long 75th anniversary celebration as a public institution of higher learning and its 1998 Founder's Day activity. Additional information is available from Shires at (606) 783-2815.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MOREHEAD, Ky.---Morehead State University will observe "First Light" of its radio telescope with an open house and dedication of its Astrophysical Laboratory on Friday, March 27.

The radio telescope, funded in part by the National Science Foundation, is the only such instrument in the state. There are fewer than 100 radio telescopes of this type in the world.

"First Light" is traditionally observed when new telescopes become fully operational, according to Dr. Benjamin Malphrus, MSU associate professor of science who is project director. "We are pleased that our special event coincides with the University's celebration of its 75th anniversary as a public institution of higher learning," he said.

Open house at the Astrophysical Laboratory, located near the west end of campus on Fifth Street, and the radio telescope will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tours of the facility will be available.

The celebration will then move to 213 Lappin Hall where a formal dedication ceremony will be conducted at 3 p.m. with several speakers who played roles in the telescope's design and fabrication. Dr. Malphrus will present an overview of the instrument and the project's history. A slide presentation also is planned.

Other speakers include a representative of Kruth-Microwave Electronics Corporation, Washington, D.C., and Dan Puckett of Puckett Engineering, Mt. Sterling.

Earlier in the week, internationally-renown radio astronomer Dr. Gerrit L. Verschuur was on campus to present a public lecture, "Impact! The Threat of Comets and Asteroids" under the auspices of the Harlow Shapley Visiting Lectureships in Astronomy, sponsored by the American Astronomical Society.

Construction of the telescope was an interdisciplinary effort, cutting across several academic programs. Students in the Department of Industrial Education and Technology designed and installed the circuitry. Students and faculty in manufacturing, electronics, information (computer) science, physics and pre-engineering were involved.

The radio telescope is designed to detect radio frequency radiation emitted from “highly energetic objects” in space, such as galaxies. After this radiation is concentrated and focused, it is converted to electrical signals and sent to a computer which displays the data. The computer also can generate a visual picture.

The telescope will function as a research instrument in astronomy and astrophysics, an active laboratory in astronomy, physics, electrical engineering, and computer science, and as a research instrument and lab for science teacher education programs.

Assisting Dr. Malphrus with the project have been Dr. Russell L. Brengelman and Dr. David R. Cutts, professors of physics; Michael S. Combs of Hazard, graduate assistant; Dr. Jack Whidden, chair of the Department of Physical Science, and Dr. Gerald DeMoss, dean of the College of Science and Technology.

Nickell, a native of Salt Lick who earned his A.B. degree from MSU in 1936, has been called "the greatest director in live television." He began working in television at WPTZ-TV in Philadelphia and soon was asked by a CBS producer to move to New York City where he began directing "Studio One" and several other "staff" shows.

In his eight and a half years with "Studio One," he directed many of today's major stars, including Jack Palance, Charlton Heston, Leslie Nielsen, Ralph Bellamy and many others. He also directed "Omnibus" and several variety shows, including "Ford Star Jubilee" and "The Arthur Godfrey Show."

Transferred to California in 1957, Nickell found television was switching to film and he wanted to get into that medium. Leaving CBS to break into television film, he soon was directing such shows as "Naked City," "Bonanza," "77 Sunset Strip" and "The Donna Reed Show." In 1964 he was nominated for an Emmy for his directorial work on the comedy "The Farmer's Daughter."

During his career, he received the Christopher Award, the Robert E. Sherwood Award and the B'nai B'rith Award. He was nominated three times for the Look Award. In the mid-1960s, Nickell returned to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he earned his master's degree in 1942, to teach television production. He remained there until retiring in 1981 as professor emeritus of radio, television and motion pictures.

Dr. Rogers, who earned her A.B. degree from MSU in 1961, has been in higher education since 1969, when she joined the faculty and staff of Palomar College as an instructor and librarian. She began her teaching career in the California public schools and was a librarian for the U.S. Naval War College and the United States International University. She earned her M.L.S. degree from the University of Maryland and her Ed.D. degree from the University of Southern California, Los Angeles. She is also a graduate of several professional management and leadership programs offered by the American Association of Community Colleges and other entities.

She has been Porterville College's chief executive officer since 1994, having previously been provost at the Menifee Valley Campus of Mt. San Jacinto College, director of learning resources at Saddleback College, dean of instructional resources and evening dean at Palomar College. She has served on several community college accreditation teams and is a member of AACC's Commission on Community and Workforce Development.

Dr. Rogers is active in several civic organizations including Rotary International and serves on the boards of directors for the Tulare County Symphony Association and the Supporter Employment Advisory Council. She is the 1992 recipient of the Woman of Distinction Award from Soroptomist International, Sun City, Calif.; the 1991 and 1983 recipient of the Women Helping Women Award from Soroptomist International, Menifee and Vista, Calif., respectively.

Dr. Thomas, a native of Ashland, earned his B.S. degree with distinction from MSU in 1963, where he was a charter member of the Honors Society. He currently is professor of surgery, professor of family practice, chief of the section of vascular surgery and director of the Vascular Fellowship Program at the University of Kansas Medical Center, College of Health Sciences and Hospital in Kansas City.

(MORE)

He received his M.D. degree from the University of Kentucky and did a straight surgical internship there, was assistant resident and later a chief resident in general surgery at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia and a fellow in surgical oncology at the University of Kansas Medical Center. He also has held academic appointments in surgery at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine and is a consultant in surgery for the Veterans Administration Hospital in Kansas City, where he was a transplant surgeon for five years.

A recipient of a National Medical Fellowship, he also held the American Cancer Society's Junior Clinical Fellowship for three years. He earned the bronze star with Combat V for duty during the Vietnam War and was the recipient of the 1983 Jayhawker M.D. Award for Outstanding Clinical Instructor, University of Kansas School of Medicine as well as several other awards for teaching excellence over the years. The co-author of 100 medical research articles, he has received three VA research grants.

Hamilton, who died Dec. 3, 1997, had been MSU's athletic director for 11 years. One of the University's most successful athletics alumni, Hamilton was a standout athlete in baseball, basketball and track during his playing days. A two-time graduate of MSU, he earned his A.B. degree in 1958 and a master's in 1963.

Playing two years in the National Basketball Association, he gave that sport up to concentrate on baseball where he spent 11 years, pitching mostly for the New York Yankees, but also for the Cleveland Indians, San Francisco Giants, Washington Senators, Chicago White Sox and Chicago Cubs. Hamilton was the first athlete to play in both a World Series and an NBA Championship Series. In 1991, he was inducted into the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame.

Hamilton spent 14 seasons as the Eagle Baseball coach and is MSU's all-time winningest coach with 305 career victories. His teams won five divisional championships, two OVC championships and played in two NCAA baseball tournaments. As athletic director, he saw the MSU athletic program grow in facilities and in the classroom. The graduation rate of Eagle athletes improved and MSU won the OVC's Academic Achievement Banner on four occasions. He also added an academic counselor for athletes and began a compliance program. Throughout his 43-year relationship with MSU, Hamilton established a reputation as an intense but honorable competitor and respected athletic administrator.
