Ask WPA to Construct Road on Brushy On Brushy

Citizens Point Out That Present Grain And Drain Almost Impassable

Pointing out that the Big Brushy road from its intersection with the Allelu Highway to the Fleming County line, a distance of about four miles, is practically inaccessible and that it is impossible to even secure a doctor for sick people in that section, residents this week submitted a petition to the district office of the Works Progress Administration at Paintsville asking that a top dressing be put up on the grain and drain.

Bates Elevated To Fourth Place On Veterans Committee

"The service rendered during the last session of Congress by Joe B. Bates, Member of Congress from the Eighth Kentucky District, was signally recognized today when he was advanced from 15th to 4th place on the World War Veterans' Legislation Committee. It is not too much to hope that, in the not too distant future, he may serve as Chairman of this committee which is becoming increasingly active."

Nobody Wants To Play Morehead In Football

Only One Home Game Has Been Scheduled By Eagle Gridders

Ellis Johnson is not worrying about having a good football team at Morehead college this year. Rather the successful Morehead coach, whose grid team, since he came in 1935 has lost but one game, believes that he will have a better club this year than ever before.

Working Of Social Security Is Explained

The fact that a person works for an employer who is covered by the old age insurance part of the Social Security Act does not necessarily mean that worker is entitled to unemployment compensation if he becomes unemployed. This statement was made today by James A. Chaney, manager of the Social Security Board office in Ashland, Ky. "All employers of one more, in commerce or industry, are usually covered by the Social Security Act's old age insurance plan," Mr. Chaney said.

"But in Kentucky only those employers of four or more persons come under our state's unemployment insurance law. Therefore in the smaller establishments workers may be covered under the old age insurance plan but not entitled to job insurance benefits if they become unemployed," Mr. Chaney added.

The state employment office should be consulted by those who believe they may be entitled to job insurance benefits, as these payments are made entirely by the state, Mr. Chaney added.

THE RURAL CHURCH
The church as a Service Agency in the Rural Community will be the subject of Dr. Chris L. Christian of the University of Wisconsin at the session for rural ministers Wednesday. The pastors will also hear Dr. Christensen in an address on "Leadership and Cooperation in Agriculture" at the general session that morning.

To can chicken, prepare as for frying. Place in a pan and put into hot water until the feet begin to brown. Sprinkle with a teaspoon of salt per pound of meat. Pack while hot into hot jars. Partly seal glass jars, process and completely seal, or exhaust in cans, seal and process.

Stocking ponds and reservoirs with minnows is recommended as one of the effective methods of preventing small bodies of water from becoming mosquito breeding places. Destruction of all vegetation except grass from low-water level to a point above the high-water level also aids in decreasing the mosquito menace.

Cozy To Show Bum Picture

There's a dark brown secret in Madge Evans' life! She once advertised beer—real beer—back in the days when there wasn't any Eighteenth Amendment and it was perfectly legal to raise a thirst.

Miss Evans confessed the secret to Al Tolson during rehearsals of the united Artists picture, "Hallelujah, I'm a Bum," in which she plays the leading feminine role opposite the singing star. The picture comes to the Cozy Theatre.

When Madge was a golden haired girl in subway, she frequently posed for advertisements of internationally known products.

Remember the blue eyed elf who perched upon a snowy bar of soap, gazing appealingly at countless millions of newspaper and magazine readers, bill-board gazers and people in subways, trains and streets, and asking "Have You a Little Fairy In Your Home?" That was Madge Evans. And now she admits she also posed for the calendar of the world's largest brewer, Anita Stewart, then sixteen, posed as MADGE MOTHER.

SIMPLE TREATMENT SAVES DRAPERIES
Have you wondered what made your window curtains and other draperies wear out so fast? It's not entirely the action of sunlight, though that is hard on window curtains. Perhaps most of us have never considered the possibility that the draperies have been affected by absorption of gases from the air in the house. Surplus in gases from coal-burning stoves and furnaces, and in illuminating gas, is destructive to all kinds of fabrics. Even when the familiar surplus of coal-gas smell is not present, there may be some sulphur fumes which combine with moisture to make strong acids. These are often very destructive than the normal wear on curtains, rugs, and draperies.

There is a simple way to protect your household textiles from the action at home. This borate treatment does not furnish protection against sunlight, but treated curtains suffer no more than untreated ones. The weather must have the freshest dip after each laundering or wetting.

ment does not affect the appearance of most fabrics. Simply dip the fabrics in a solution of 7 ounces borax and 3 ounces of boracic acid dissolved in 2 quarts of water. In treating water-resistant fabrics enough soap is added to the solution to form a suds. Laundered articles have usually lost their sizing, and soap is not needed.

There are other good fire-resistant and gasproofing formulas, but everyone is familiar with borax and boric acid and every druggist sells them for a small sum, so that it is not difficult to make the solution at home. This borate treatment does not furnish protection against sunlight, but treated curtains suffer no more than untreated ones. The weather must have the freshest dip after each laundering or wetting.

A cream to polish nickel and silver, use a pound of whiting, 5 teaspoons of washing powder, 5 teaspoons of olive or castor oil and a cup of boiling water. Dissolve powder in the water, add the oil and slowly stir in the whiting. Mix well and put into glass jars and seal.

STATEMENT FROM OWNER

In starting this, our fifth year in business, we planned to express our appreciation to the customers who have helped us to succeed. We were not only planning to expand our business, but also to add to the expansion of our business, which has been made possible by the expansion of our business. We have found it necessary to add two additional rooms to our store. We have located this space from floor to ceiling with the best we could find in medium priced merchandise, which we have priced so that the average working man can clothe himself and family as well as furnish his home without a lot of money. Now as the midwinter season is here and we find we are still heavily loaded, we are reducing prices drastically so as to convert our stock to ready cash. You keep the savings.

LIST METHODS TO MAKE CELLAR DRY

Causes of dampness in cellars and basements, according to engineers at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, are: Land that is flat or sloping toward the cellar wall; lack of eaves-troughs; failure to keep eaves-troughs and downspouts in repair and free of leaves or other debris; ground water close to or higher than the cellar bottom; leaky plumbing, especially water pumps in the cellar; and condensation of air moisture.

The first step is to locate the cause of the trouble. If the land slopes toward the house, regarding is the only answer. Of course, defective eaves-troughs and down-spouts can be cleaned out and repaired, usually without much expense.

Ground water is more of a problem and calls for a 4-inch tile drain along the outside at the bottom of the cellar wall. Although high in cost, if not placed at the time of building, tile drains are generally more effective than any expenditure applied inside. When the trend is open for placing the tile, there is a good opportunity to water-proof or plaster the outside surface of defective walls. This is commonly necessary with walls of tile or concrete block.

Condensation or sweating frequently causes dampness which may erroneously be blamed on other factors. During warm weather cellars are generally cool, often times below the dew point of the air in them. This leads to condensation. Ventilation is the best remedy for this.

VENERER FURNITURE MAY BE SUPERIOR

Almost everyone has had the experience of inspecting a new piece of furniture and hearing the owner proudly say "This is solid, no veneer." This belief that furniture, made from solid woods is always superior to that made of veneers is rather common but not true, says Miss Ida Hagman of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. One of the finest pieces of furniture in existence, a desk made for Louis XV of France, is made of veneers. Workmen spent nine years making it.

Both types of construction have their advantages, says Miss Hagman. She lists the following points in favor of solid furniture: The wood can be carved. If any of the surface chips off, the same kind of wood is exposed. And if the piece needs refinishing, it can be sanded papered or planed down. It has no surface layers to loosen and pull off, an accident which may happen to poorly glued veneer panels.

On the other hand, a well-made veneered or "plywood" panel with three to five thin layers of wood glued together, each across the grain of the other, is stronger in some respects than a single board of the same thickness. Usually it will not shrink, crack or warp to any serious extent. The cores of the veneered parts may be made of softer, lighter, and cheaper lumber, so that the finished piece may be sold less than a similar article of one solid wood. The charm of highly figured wood which are not practical to use in thick sizes can be obtained by using face veneers. When very thin veneer is cut from a beautiful figured wood, several consecutive layers will match in pattern so that beautiful symmetrical designs can be developed for such furniture as desk tops, table tops, or bedsteads. Again, curved and irregular surfaces can be produced by gluing veneer together in shaped forms. This would be impossible with solid lumber.

FACTS TO CONSIDER WHEN BUYING SHEETS

Certain facts about such household furniture as sheets help the buyer to get good value for her money. A good sheet, according to clothing specialists at the Kentucky College of Agriculture, is firm in weave, is practically free from creasing, is made of rather than cut from the bolt, and is hemmed with strong thread and short even stitches, 12 to 14 to the inch. There are five main classes of sheets to choose from. In the muslins there are heavy weight, medium weight, and light weight, then there are fine towels and percale.

A muslin sheet that looks substantial but has a low thread count will prove to be woven loosely and will not wear well. Muslin sheets satisfactorily for everyday household use have a finished thread count ranging from 70 to 80 in the warp and from about 61 to 70 in the filling.

Durable sheets are made in many different weights. If a sheet is light in weight it may be because it is made of very fine yarns, as in a percale sheet, although it may be because it is sleazy and poor in quality.

Sizing may make a sheet appear heavy when it is really light weight and low in thread count. "Pure finish" means the minimum amount of sizing needed to keep sheets from breaking in the laundries.

A textile expert uses an instrument to measure "breaking strength" but the customer can go by the label information on this point, if given. Medium-weight sheets should range from 55 to 70 pounds in the warp direction and from 41 to 61 pounds in the filling.

THE shortest definition of salesmanship is a service. Every salesman should remember that one reason why service is important is that it builds in the mind of the buyer a feeling of satisfaction and confidence that makes the one-time buyer into a steady customer.

The most successful sales clerk in any retail store is the one who understands the merchandise he is selling and the customers who buy. The job of selling the right article to the right person is of great importance. Many persons appreciate having a clerk inquire as to the use which is to be made of a certain article and it often good judgment on the clerk's part to express an opinion as to the material under consideration. It is the ability to give personal attention that sets the successful sales clerk apart from his or her associates.

Few persons say "Good Morning" or "Good Afternoon" well. It is possible to put a great deal of feeling into two words and the person who sells should learn that the proper delivery of the salutation is very important. Give it heartily and courteously, yet without over-emphasis of gush.

PEE WEE

GILDA GAY

When a sheet is labeled a "first" or a "standard quality" this means that it is practically free from weaving imperfections, such as uneven yarns, or thick or thin places. Sheets marked "other than first" should be sold at a lower price than a first. For general use, most people prefer sheets 99 or 108 inches in length, for a single bed, 43 inches wide for a twin bed or three-quarter bed, 72 inches for a double bed, 81 or 90 inches wide.

HAY PASTURE, STOCK

Thousands of acres turned from cultivated crops to hay and pasture in the agriculture conservation program. Farmers at the general sessions and at the meeting for stock raisers will hear about producing better hay and grass, feeding distillery slop, alfalfa molasses silage and other crops, the production of hybrid corn, and ways of making more money from dairy and beef cattle, sheep and hogs.

A HONEY STATE

Kentucky is considered a good honey state, and there are several beekeepers who make a comfortable living from bees. L. E. Gopch, Nicholasville, president of the Kentucky Beekeepers' Association, will speak on "How I manage My Bees." Several other speakers will discuss bee management, including James I. Hamilton, noted apiiculturist of the United States department of agriculture.

WOMEN IN WORLD AFFAIRS

The homemakers interest in world problems will be recognized by two outstanding speakers of the Farm and Home Convention. Speaking at the women's sessions at Memorial Hall will be Signora Olivia Rossetti Agresti, one of the keenest of present-day analysts of world affairs. She is famous for her books, lectures, and interpretations of Geneva assemblies. She has various distances: 3 by 2 feet, 4, 5, 6 by 6 feet, 1, 2, 10; 7 by 7 feet, 8, 9, 10 by 10 feet, 10, 11 by 11 feet, 12, 13, 14 by 14 feet, 15, 16 by 16 feet, 17, 18 by 18 feet, 19 by 19 feet, 20.

the convention will be Mrs. Louise Descher, of Kansas, well-known in honors with the signers during peace advocates.

A YOUNG Italian came as a candidate for naturalization before a judge sitting at White Plains, New York. Although he had been in the country barely long enough for the issuance of his first papers, the applicant showed a remarkable knowledge, everything considered, of the laws of this country and of the duties pertaining to citizenship. "See here, Tony," the judge said, "you understand, don't you, that even though you become a citizen there is still politically speaking, a difference between you and a native-born citizen of this country?" "Mister Judge," he replied, "I don't getta you." "Well then, I'll put it another way," said His Honor. "Could you, an Italian born, be the President of the United States?" Tony's face brightened. "If you please, Mister Judge, no! I gotta good job now, working for Mr. Duffy, he contract!" (American News Feature, Inc.)

Economic Highlights

The turn of the year is the economic forerunner's heaven. Within the last fortnight every business publication and economist of consequence has devoted great effort to anticipating the future. Guesses as to details of the business picture naturally vary considerably—but, generally speaking, there is very little disagreement among the experts over the picture as a whole. With hardly a dissenting voice, they forecast boldly that 1939 will be a year of progress.

Two forecasts are of unusual interest. Paul Mallon reports that "Mr. Roosevelt's battalions" of figures are unanimous for probably the first time in New Deal history. Government economists now all expect a mild slackening of industrial activity in the next three months, a sort of readjustment period, they call it, to be followed by a spring rise, a strong summer, and much stronger fall-winter year end." To put it precisely, these economists think, according to Mr. Mallon, that industrial production (which is at 105 on the charts at this writing) will gradually taper off, reaching a low of 97 in March, and that the upturn will set in then, and bring it to the 120 level in the late fall. Similar, and more particularized views, are held by Roger Babson. In a long optimistic article predicting conditions in 1939, he observes, "Total business by the end of 1939 will be as good as—perhaps even better than—at any year end since 1929—Jobs, wages, retail sales, stocks and even farm prices should chalk up good sized gains—There are no 'hedges' tacked on to my forecast as there were in several times past—Today I can see no reason why the tide of recovery should not carry us vigorously forward—perhaps even to new highs since 1929."

Mr. Babson then lists a number of what he regards as strongly favorable factors. These include: A growth of 7,000,000 in our population since 1929; a multitude of new inventions; deferred demand for goods; government spending; low inventories; returning confidence; less "business building"; the pending boom in building.

A survey of a number of other forecasts indicates that the foregoing opinions are typical. Some of the dark spots in the business set up are brightening. It is believed, for instance, that there will be an improvement in railroad and public-utility purchasing, due to expanding demand for power and transportation services. And it is still hoped that Congress will take steps toward eliminating some of the problems that confront these two basic industries.

Best of all, perhaps, is the belief that expansion in manufacturing and mining will create an increased demand for durable goods, and thus spur the long dormant heavy industries. If that happens, a tremendous amount of employment will be created, and all commerce will feel the good effects. So far, recovery has been largely confined to consumer's goods industries, due in a large measure to government relief spending; there can be no real prosperity, as any economist can tell you, until durable goods show a comparable improvement.

Thus, the domestic situation is relatively bright as bad as it can be.

The United States is very close to a complete severance of diplomatic relations with Nazi Germany. Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has announced that he favors cutting off trade with the Reich, and many other influential congressmen agree with him. The relation toward that end will probably be introduced this session. Our State Department has taken the strongest possible stand against Germany's representations—and has gone in lengths that are rarely reached in discussions with a "friendly" power. As in Germany, the controlled press continues its campaign of almost unrestrained abuse directed at this government and the officials in charge.

The belief grows that Germany will take steps this year toward acquiring the rich mineral and agricultural lands of the Soviet Ukraine—which, according to almost all the foreign authorities, would mean war with Russia and her allies. Trustworthy polls in England show the British people's distrust of Hitler growing, along with the sad belief that they will have to fight him one day.

Our relations with Mexico remain unsettled, due to President Cardenas' expropriations of American-owned farming and petroleum properties. And going farther South still, we find Nazi and Fascist influences continuing their steady growth in Pan and South America.

Next European crisis is likely to arise out of Mussolini's demands for certain French possessions. Hitler backs Italy in this—Deladier says the French will fight.

Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE

No one paid much attention to him while he lived. A hundred years after his death his name was still practically unknown. Yet since that time millions of words have been written about him; he has aroused more comment than any other writer who ever sharpened his wits on a goose-quill pen; and thousands of people, every year, make pilgrimage to the place where he was born.

I, for one, was there in 1921. I used to wander cross-country from Stratford to Slattery—treading the fields swept by his eager feet, when as an awkward country boy, he hurried to keep trust with his sweet heart, Anne Hathaway.

Little did William Shakespeare suspect then that his name would ring down the centuries in a paean of glory. And, fortunately, little did he suspect that his idyllic young love was doomed to sorrow and to years of regret.

Shakespeare's bride was not Anne Hathaway, but Anne Hathaway, eight years older than himself. From the very start, their marriage was a miserable farce. Time and again in his plays, he warns men against marrying older women—and, as a matter of fact, he lived with Anne Hathaway very little of the time.

Most of his married life was passed in London, but he probably returned to his family no oftener than once a year.

We, in America, think we are having hard times now; but in Shakespeare's day, one half the population of Stratford was living on public relief. Most of the people were illiterate. Neither Shakespeare father nor mother nor sister nor daughter nor grand-daughter could either read or write.

The man who was destined to become the power and glory of England and literature, had to leave school when he was thirteen and go to work. His father was a glovemaker and a farmer—and Shakespeare and a farmer—shared the sheep, churned the butter, and helped tan leather and soften hides.

said to have been afflicted last year, and nine states reported losses. It has been established that mosquitoes are one of the carriers of sleeping sickness, and this may account for the fact that it is less prevalent in winter. It usually begins to appear in late May or June.

A vaccine has been developed which is said to be effective in producing an immunity which lasts at least six months, and probably longer. Two injections are given a week apart. Vaccination should be done in early spring, before mosquitoes spread the disease.

Kentucky has 232,000 horses and 231,000 mules, according to the census of January, 1938, with a total value of about $52,000,000.

FASHIONS FOR 1939

"I can't go—I haven't a thing to wear!" Husbands often are compelled to hear wives make this complaint many times a year. It will not be fashionable for Kentucky's homemakers to say that after the Farm and Home Convention, because clothing specialists will discuss fashion trends the final day of the convention. Clever women can be smartly dressed at low cost, it will be brought out.

FRUIT, MICE AND AAA

At the two-day sessions of the Kentucky Horticultural Society, fruit growers will be told how to produce better fruit, how to control mice and other pests, the use of tobacco in sprays, and hear about the government program for orchard growers. Strawberry growing is making big strides in Kentucky. Specialists from the U. S. department of agriculture, from Virginia and Indiana, and from the fruit belts of that state will be speak there are.

Here's a HOT number for COLD winter days

Easy on the eye—easy to buy—no General Motors terms!

TAKE it out on a clear, crisp day when the frost pins through the sunshine and there's a tingle in the air! Put it up against a long pull—a brief, brisk dash—a twisting, winding trail! We want to show you how much fun winter could be—if only you had a Buick!

You'll press on the treadle—and find the poised sureness of the figure skater in the way this Buick answers, even on winter's slippery roads.

You'll brace yourself for a rut or bump—only to discover that Buick's springing has already ironed it out. You'll look out over the wide horizon—and know winter's beauties better through windows that let you see!

You'll start when you want to start, stop when you want to stop. You'll have a car that's new, and fit, and sound.

This Buick, you know, is easy to buy—costs less than a year ago, less than you'd expect, less even than some sizes.

And, we might add, it's easier to get deliveries now than it will be later; so we hope we'll be seeing you—soon!
