

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

A voice from the circle of men addressed Laredo and he recognized it as that of Peterson, one of the nesters. "Do you meanourke, over on the O Har T. Laredo?"

"That's who I mean," Laredo said softly.

"Why you—?" Peterson began.

"Cut it, Peterson," Laredo said sharply. "He's mine."

The killer's eyes slid wildly over the line of hostile faces as heeringed alone on the sidewalk.

Then he stroked for his guns, terror written on his face.

Laredo whipped a Colt that had been wedged at his back around his side in a tight swift arc that lanced out its five shots in one roaring peril of orange.

The killer's knees buckled slowly and he pitched forward on his face.

Laredo spat noisily and looked around the crowd, his gun trailing a wisp of acrid smoke up into the night. "Any one else want to buy to buy in on this fight?"

"Ain't nobody but me goin' to buy in on it, a nat, uncompromising wisp of acrid smoke up into the night. "Any one else want to buy to buy in on this fight?"

"Ain't nobody but me goin' to buy in on it, a nat, uncompromising wisp of acrid smoke up into the night. "Any one else want to buy to buy in on this fight?"

"Name's Chinch' somethin'," a man in the crowd said. "Rode for Syria."

The sheriff nodded. "A couple you men take him across to Murphy's. The hardware store was also the undertaking parlor. Two men volunteered. The sheriff turned to Laredo.

"Come on over to the office, I got to talk to you."

Peterson, the nester, and Chuck fell in behind Laredo and the sheriff. They went over to the sheriff's office.

"Inside, they found the lamp lit. Laredo and Dave were seated watching the door.

"Well, I'll be damned!" the sheriff said. He glared at Rosy and started to speak.

"Save it," Rosy drawled, and grinned.

"You better start talkin'," the sheriff said ominously. "I got Crowell in jail and I ain't said why you really want him. Now you tell me."

Briefly and bluntly Rosy told them what he had overheard Crowell say to Winters at the D Bar T. Dave had heard it all on the way to town. Then Dave told them about his capture by Sayres and what he had heard Sayres say about the boss. He finished with the fight with the outlaws and his escape with Dorsey Hammond. Laredo explained his killing of Chinch and the reasons.

"What I can't figure out in the whole thing," Rosy said, presently "is what it's all about. Why do they want the rabs and the mips?"

"I reckon I can tell you," Laredo said.

"You tell 'em, Chuck."

"Godd," Chuck said. "Fienty."

"You mean?" Dave said slowly. And then Laredo told him of his discovery of Winters' working the gold mine and how he had brought Chuck up to make positive.

"You mean?" Dave said slowly, when Laredo had finished, "that Tom Winters was tryin' to get the place out from under his own wife?"

"I reckon that way," Laredo said softly.

"There's just one thing left to do, now," Rosy announced quietly.

"We got to turn Crowell loose and let him lead us to the boss?"

Rosy gave instructions. Laredo was to warn Hammond to act as if he were ignorant of the man behind his daughter's kidnapping when and if Crowell came to try and buy the sheriff's office.

ward the hotel.

He came out of the hotel, a piece of luggage in his hand.

Rosy whistled softly, as they drew back in the shadows. "So that was his hurry! Only ten minutes to catch a train."

Rosy led the way around the rear of the short train. On the other side of the tracks, they kept in shadow again, and waited a few minutes just past the panting engine until they came to the stock pens.

Rosy faded away in the shadow. When the engine bell started to clang, he was again squatting with Dave. Slowly the train lumbered out of the station, pulled abreast of them and passed them.

Then Rosy chuckled and settled back on his heels. Something hit the cinders ahead of them and slid harshly a distance. It was a piece of luggage. Then the dark figure of a man could be seen as he swung down from the car.

They listened and soon heard the footsteps behind them to the rear of the pen. Rosy edged his head around the corner and saw it was Crowell.

Using piles of ties, tool sheds and a horse trough as shelter, Crowell swung wide of the station, walked beyond it a way, then crossed the tracks into the alley which ran behind the buildings of the main street.

In the alley, with the dim light of the town at the upper end, they followed him quietly.

Suddenly Crowell swerved out of the alley, climbed over a small, neat hedge, moved around to the front of a house, mounted the one step of its low porch and knocked on the door. Evidently a voice bid him enter, for he disappeared.

Dave's amazed eyes sought Rosy's in the dark.

"Know it?" Rosy asked.

"Ain't you?" Dave said huskily.

"Here's the dehornin', it's mattered. 'Come on!'"

They vaulted the hedge and stopped on the porch cautiously, testing the door, Rosy found it unlocked.

He grew a gun, as did Dave, and swung against the door. It opened readily, letting them into a low, reedily, half-darkened room.

Frenchburg Eyes Place In Tourney

The Frenchburg Wildcats finished their season Saturday night under the tutelage of Coach David Holand at Royalton. During that time the Wildcats have played 98 games and won 61. In these 98 games the Wildcats won 23 consecutive games before meeting defeat in the State Semi-Final last year and have won 31 games on the Frenchburg floor without a defeat. This year the Wildcats have won 25 games in 28 starts; their losses being to Hazard, Crockett, and Inez. Including in their wins are Jenkins, Pikeville, Inez, and Breckinridge.

After the drawing into the weak bracket of the 60th district, the Wildcats are almost certain to return to the Fifteenth Regional first the third successive year, and are given an even chance to return again to the State tournament, March 16, 17 and 18.

Frenchburg fans are already looking forward to another successful season next year, as Beecraft is the only senior on the first five and only two men are lost from the entire squad.

Rev. Lyons Gives 40 Years Service

ten years he conducted meetings all over the county. Many times he traveled afoot and on horseback to many places. He preaching at tent meetings and camp meetings and witnessed many souls saved.

Rev. Lyons recalls that he has baptised converts from practically every state in the United States.

In 1906 Rev. and Mrs. Lyons moved to Morehead and took the over eight year a small congregation. The Church of God building was then practically complete with the late Judge Allie W. Young making it possible for the congregation to own the lot on which the present church stands.

Rev. Lyons says that the saddest blow he received in his life was when D. H. Holbrook, one of his closest friends, was killed in an accident at Olive Hill several years ago.

The Church of God has had rapid growth in membership and its halls are filled when Rev. Lyons takes the pulpit. His services have been in demand elsewhere and he has left Morehead on many occasions to conduct funeral rites.

Concluding an interview Rev. Lyons said these parting words: "I have left my seventy-second year reaching forth to my goal—Jesus Christ my Saviour."

oldest man in Rowan County but was perhaps the best beloved. He always had a smile and a handshake for everyone and he counted all his close friends.

Funeral rites were conducted at the Christian Church and was in charge of the Rev. A. E. Landolt. The Olive Hill unit of the National guard blew taps and fired a volley across the grave as the remains were let to their last resting place.

The local American Legion assisted in the services.

Surviving are the following sons and daughters: Mott Jamison, of Mansfield, O.; Susie Fitzgerald, and Nora Simpson, Butte, Montana.; Joe Jamison, Jr., Hazletville, O.; Jean and Lill of Ashland, and George Jamison of Morehead. Also surviving is his grandson, Sonny, of Morehead, with whom he spent many of the hours of his last years.

any other player by tallying 10 field goals and 3 free passes for a total of 20 against Murray. Gant was named on the all tournament team and Wiggers missed being chosen by the closest of margins.

The Western game was the second time that the Hilltoppers have knocked Morehead out of a state title with superiority at the free throw line. Seven years ago the Hilltoppers won both the KIAC and the SIAA, their narrowest escape being a 22-20 overtime victory over Morehead. In that game Western made 19 free throws without a miss while the Eagles made five more field goals.

found by neighbors and taken to a hospital in Cincinnati, before he died of a fractured skull. Runyan said he lived in Cincinnati and McFarland lived in Licking Union.

The case of the Commonwealth against Sidley Trail and Raymond Keeney, charged with killing William H. Cannon, Common, Bath county February 19, was called for trial late this afternoon.

The defendants' attorneys, J. W. Buggess and Lin Clay, filed a motion for continuance, but Judge D. B. Caffell overruled the motion, and immediately the court ordered a jury selected. Runyan and McFarland were captured by Lester and Earl Calkley, brothers, of Morehead when the two men attempted to hold up their taxi a short time after the slaying of the truck driver.
