His wife, the former Sabra Pennington, preceded her husband in death.

Other immediate survivors are 12 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

Mr. Lewis, a farmer during his adult life, was a member of the Church of God. He resided almost all his life in Rowan County.

Rowan Magistrate Forrest May who represents the Fiscal Court in negotiations said today that 512 Rowan County families had signed up for the water. He estimated that 800, or more, families will be served.

May was optimistic that the system could be installed within the year. He set out, however, that all the money will be a federal loan, and hope had been abandoned for an outright grant from Washington.

May said the petition for the loan was in the neighborhood of $520,000.

Members of the Rowan County Rural Water District are Sherman Arnett, Quentin Caudill and Wathan Armstrong.

Letters . . . to the editor

The Editor:
I noticed the account of the death of John O. Quesenberry who was mentioned as a farmer. Doing my work at home in the shop as he taught me what little I know about welding, tempering and horse shoeing, I have miss him in the 45 years since I last saw him. He was an expert blacksmith, a wagon maker who could turn his own hubs and drive the boxings and seasoned spokes in the half green yellow locust hubs. He hoped to make a wagon each year in his spare time. I have a cutting stock plow he made me which is generally used in the new ground with one mule so the stumps can be surrounded as we lay off the corn, then break up the middle. I have used this plow with two mules in new ground and plowing the road ditches as we worked the six days free labor on the country roads.

Mr. Quesenberry was a Spanish-American War veteran. First Kings 7:13, 14 reminds me of him for he did have an excellent spirit of understanding and wisdom in his work. As I knew him in my youth, he would have been a father to me if I would have let him be so. Vernon V. Vaneant clude modern math, will be repeated at night.

There will also be training films, furnished by the National Educational Television Library, on various subjects, including literacy, said Bale.

Press said programming for the general public the first year will be flexible, adding the kind of programs we offer will depend on what the people want.

The academic program for schools will consist of 19 courses—two for high schools and 17 at the elementary level according to Don C. Bale, assistant superintendent for instruction, State Department of Education.

The high school courses—American history and one in the humanities—each will receive about 30 minutes of TV instruction and the remaining part of the class period will be left to the classroom teacher, Bale said, explaining "ETV is not supposed to replace the classroom teacher; it is to be only an aid in teaching."

Bale said TV instruction at the elementary level will range from 15 to 20 minutes in each course, which will include science, modern math and foreign language. He said, "We have scheduled those courses for TV instruction in which teachers generally have said they need help the most."

Bale said 134 of the state's 199 school districts have reported they will receive a TV instruction the first year. He blamed the lack of money for necessary school installations as the principal reason all districts won't get on the network this year.

The cost of equipping a school for TV reception, according to engineers, is about $20 per classroom. This consists primarily of a receiving tower ranging from 30 feet to 70 feet, depending upon elevation, and receiving sets and movable stands. A 23-inch receiver and stand can be purchased through the State Department of Education for $135, the lowest bid the Department obtained.

Teachers Attending Workshop

Twenty-seven Eastern Kentucky elementary school teachers are attending a five-day workshop at Morehead State University learning to use long-distance telephone lines and teletype machines to teach arithmetic in their classrooms. For all or part of the past year, students in the first six grades of 10 schools in the Morehead area have been "stretching their minds" through the new computer-assisted arithmetic instruction program, originating at Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif.

A proposal, submitted by the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation, calling not only for continuation of the program but also its expansion, has been made to federal educational officials in Washington.

Approval of the proposal will enable terminals to be placed in additional Eastern Kentucky schools and involving approximately 2,100 additional students in a 20-county area.

Plans call for the installation of from one to five teletypes in each of the schools to provide the students with daily exercises in arithmetic fundamentals from California across the continent by long-distance telephone through the computer-assisted arithmetic instruction system of the University of Breckinridge School.

The teachers attending the workshop are being trained in the operation and care of the equipment and are being familiarized with the new technique and its effect on the teacher, student, parents and community.

Under the direction of Dr. Leonard Burkett, a professor of education at Morehead, and educational coordinator of the computer project, the counties participating are:

Gracken, Robertson, Mason, Fleming, Lewis, Montgomery, Bath, Rowan, Carter, Greenup, Menifee, Elliott, Boyd, Morgan, Lawrence, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin, Floyd and Wayne.

Assisting with the workshop are Louis Smith, project director with the Central Midwestern Regional Educational Laboratory, St. Louis; Paul Pholand, research associate at Washington University, St. Louis; and Max Jermain, research associate in the Institute for Mathematical Studies in the Social Sciences, Stanford University. The workshop will close July 26.

Long Distance Rates Will Drop On Sunday

The nationwide $20 million long distance telephone rate reduction ordered by the Federal Communications Commission, the second in less than a year, will go into effect August 1, O. W. Campbell, President of General Telephone of Kentucky, announced.

The reduction will affect only those calls placed to points more than 500 miles in distance. Both station-to-station and person-to-person charges will be lowered from five cents to ten cents for the first three minutes between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The rates for each additional minute over three during this same time period will also be lowered, Campbell said. These reductions will range from five cents to ten cents per minute depending on the distance involved.

Typical examples for the initial three minute rates for General Telephone's Ashland customers are: Ashland to Los Angeles $1.70 [presently $1.75]; Ashland to Miami $1.30 [presently $1.40]; Ashland to Boston $1.20 [presently $1.30]; Ashland to Houston $1.40 [presently $1.50]; Ashland to New Orleans $1.30 [presently $1.40]; Ashland to Seattle $1.70 [presently $1.75]; and Ashland to Denver $1.40 [presently $1.45].

The August 1 changes complete the net $120 million long distance rate reductions introduced on Nov. 1, 1967. At that time person-to-person and station-to-station daytime and nighttime charges were reduced in range from 15 to 25 cents per call and hours were extended when lower rates would be in effect.

Morehead Is Offering Communications Course

Thirty-five sophomores and juniors from Kentucky high schools are expected to attend an 11-day Communications Institute at Morehead State University, beginning August 6.

The purpose of the institute, which is sponsored by the University in cooperation with the Kentucky Broadcasters Association, is to provide participants with the realistic aspects of broadcasting and to help develop the talents of those interested in broadcasting as a career.

Instruction will be offered in three areas—radio, television and news. Classes will be conducted from 8 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. with instruction covering such subjects as production, directing, announcing, and news casting for both radio and television.

Jack Wilson, assistant professor of speech at Morehead, is the coordinator for the institute.

In charge of the forensic division will be Mrs. G.C. Webb, an assistant professor of speech, and directing the drama activities will be Marvin J. Phillips, an associate professor of dramatic arts. James Uzler, instructor of radio and TV, is in charge of the radio and television instruction. All are members of the University faculty.

Eight guest lecturers from the staffs of KBA member stations also are scheduled to participate. They are:

Al Temple, Bowling Green, executive secretary of the KBA; Al Bryson, news director, WKLO, Louisville; David Carter, Carter Advertising Agency, Ashland; and Walter Windsor, WKYT-TV, Lexington.

Also, Ray Holbrook, president of the KBA, WHR, Danville; J.T. Whitlock, WLB, Lebanon; J.B. Brawley, Campbellsville; and Drew Von Bergen, United Press International, Louisville.

This is the first institute of its type to be conducted under sponsorship of the KBA, which has made available $300 in scholarships for qualified students wishing to attend.

Each participant is being sponsored by member stations in the KBA, which also has made available $300 in scholarships for qualified students wishing to attend. Two participants also are being sponsored by the Upward Bound program at the University.

The $85 registration fee charged will cover the student's housing, meals and materials cost for the period of the institute.

If you're lucky enough to have a backyard swimming pool, be wise enough to treat it with respect. Here are some common-sense safety rules from the New York Safety Council which will guarantee that the pool will be fun instead of a heartache.

Never leave small children unattended in or near the pool.

Fence the pool, preferably with material that cannot be scaled. Lock the fence door whenever the pool is not in use.

Never allow roughhousing in or near the pool, running along the edge of it, or horseplay in or near it.

Every child and adult, babysitter and servant, if you have one, should be taught to swim and float well. As many people in a family as possible should learn basic first aid and life saving, especially those in whose care children are entrusted.

Portable electrical appliances such as radios, fans, and lamps should not be allowed within 10 feet of the pool. Pools should be equipped with steps or ladders with a life ring.

To protect others, if you and your family plan to be away for an extended period, the pool should be emptied or a safety cover should be placed securely over the entire surface.

IRISH WOMEN BACK BIRTH CONTROL . . . More than half of all Irish women over 16 years of age think that Irish families have too many children, according to a recent Gallup poll. It comes as no surprise, then, that half of them believe that birth control should be more widely practiced in Ireland.

The Irish woman definitely prefers larger families than her American or British sister. She wants four to five children, while only 17 percent of British women want four children. Thirty percent of Irish women consider six or more children the ideal family size. Only two percent of British women agree.

POVERTY IMPAIRS BODILY GROWTH . . . In 10 years, each new generation of middle-class Americans has become taller than the preceding one. But this trend has just about run its course.

That's what researchers at the Telos Research Institute for the Study of Human Development have found. But some Americans will continue to increase in height -- provided they stop being poor.

For the researchers have found that the children of immigrants and "those who are less well off financially and nutritionally" have yet to achieve the growth of their middle class counterparts.

And for whatever it's worth: Youngsters now reach puberty two and a half years earlier than their counterparts did a century ago.

D'Alessandro's home course has been the Latourrette Golf Club at Staten Island. He is married to the former Mary Hubbard of Ashland.

Building Has Air Support

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A storage warehouse here — 320 feet long and 34 feet high — is reported entirely by air.

Said to be the world's longest air-supported structure, the building, appropriately called WairHouse, is designed to store surplus commodities, including canned foods, rice and other perishables and fertilizers for shipment to underdeveloped countries.

The building, with its vast vinyl coated nylon "skin" woven by J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc., was constructed in just two weeks. It has withstood the buffeting of 60 miles per hour winds.

The WairHouse provides a 1,233,884 cubic feet of storage space in a clear span. The structure and all accessory equipment weigh only 20,330 pounds. Included is an electric generator which automatically takes over in event of a power failure.

A network of steel cables is integrated into the structural system. This patented cable system relieves the air structure fabric of all but a fraction of the structural loads and allows the construction of almost limitless spans without need for specially designed and high cost materials.

More Production Of Food Mandatory

Kentucky is traditionally the land of meat, cattle, lush pastures and fast horses. It's a life sight.

And, in future years, the state may have a lot more meat cattle and pot pasturage — for important reasons connected with the world population explosion.

Dr. W.P. Garrigus, chairman of the University of Kentucky animal sciences department, says:

"Kentucky's future agricultural system seems destined for livestock production, forage and grain crops. This is not to discount the importance of many other farm enterprises now in Kentucky, not the work of other departments here in the University and Agricultural Experiment Station, but, Kentucky seems suited by its type of land for an expanded animal agriculture. Much of the land is hilly and rolling, too much so for the traditional row crops. This land is excellent for pasture and forage and, in some cases, grain production. By climate, the state also is well suited for livestock enterprises."

The world's population by 2,000 probably will be double what it is now, he thinks. Presently it is about 3.5 billion persons. Thus, by the end of this century, it may be about 7 billion.

"A good deal of the food for these extra mouths will come from animal production, grains and, indirectly, forages. That's why we here at Kentucky are trying to plan for the future. Kentucky's situation in land, climate and knowhow indicates animal production will be the largest of our farm enterprises."

Dr. Garrigus' prediction is borne out by a former governor's Commission on Agriculture. This group, which studied potentials for the Blue Grass state, indicated Kentucky's best bet in farming may be animal production.

This offers a challenge to the animal sciences department that must be met to safeguard the nutrition of future generations. The old animal science department handled beef, sheep and swine production, and did work with light horses. As of July 1, 1966, the animal science, and poultry science departments were combined into a new animal sciences department.

The new department (descended from one of the oldest departments of the University) now has organized a research program into three areas of work. They are animal nutrition, genetics and physiology, and animal foods (such as dairy products, eggs, and meats).

"We had to make a choice. We found we could not be, at this state university, all things to all men. As one of our administrators said, we would have to make choices. We have chosen animal nutrition research program. The animal foods and genetics-physiology areas are both being strengthened, as resources permit.

Dr. Garrigus points out that the genetic-physiology area and the animal food area are not relegated to secondary roles, or shunted off into corners. "After all, these are closely related to nutrition. To get top performance you need not only good nutrition, but you must also have knowledge of genetics and physiology, and after you have an efficient producing animal, you need to know how to improve its products such as meat, eggs, milk, butter, and cheese."

To keep and improve the strength the department has in research and teaching, much effort has been expended on building a strong staff. Dr. Garrigus pointed out.

the narrator for the annual affair, Mrs. Joyce Savon, president of the Younger Women's Club and hostess for the hair show.

Backfat Probe Can Be Useful

Using the backfat probe on swine will help the producer select animals for the herd that have a minimum of backfat, says Dr. M.D. Whiteaker, U.K. Cooperative Extension Service swine specialist.

Low backfat measurements indicate a meaty type hog, the kind wanted by the consumer, he points out.

But backfat probes require some practice and careful application. Here are some tips:

(1) Before doing probing, study crop sections of loins at a meat market, to get fat and muscle tissue distribution at the probing points.

(2) Hold the pig with a snare, and probe (a) behind the shoulder, straight above the shoulder and back about an inch; (b) middle of the back where the last rib joins the vertebrae; and (c) loin, straight above the flank area. Probe only animals 200 pounds weight.

Use a sharp knife and a steel ruler. Make an incision through the skin from the mid-line of the pig's back. Make an incision through the skin from the mid-line of the pig's back. Make an incision through the skin from the mid-line of the pig's back.

Dr. Garrigus points out that the genetic-physiology area and the animal food area are not relegated to secondary roles, or shunted off into corners. "After all, these are closely related to nutrition. To get top performance you need not only good nutrition, but you must also have knowledge of genetics and physiology, and after you have an efficient producing animal, you need to know how to improve its products such as meat, eggs, milk, butter, and cheese."

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of my loved ones who have passed on:
THE LEGEND OF THE RAINBOW
By Helen Steiner Rice c-1

The legend of the rainbow
Has a lesson for us all
As it trembled in the heavens
Questioning whether it should fall
For the glistering rainbow argued
To the gentle of the sky,
"I am beautiful and lovely
As I sparkle here on high
And here I will be with you
But the gentle of the sky,
"Do not hesitate to go
For you will be more beautiful
If you fall to earth to bloom
For you will sink into the soil
And be lost a while from sight,
But when you reappear on earth,
You'll be looked on with delight.
For you will be the rainbow
That quenched the thirsty ground
And helped the lovely flowers
To blossom all around,
And in your resurrection
You'll appear in quickly in clothes
With the beauty of the lily
And the fragrance of the rose;
Then, when you wilt and wither,
You'll become part of the earth
And make the soil more fertile
And give new flowers birth.
For the gentle of the sky,
Or Eternally Neglected,
For Everything God Ever Made
Is Always Resurrected.
So trust God's
all-wise wisdom
There is Nothing
The Father never,
For in His
Heavenly Kingdom
There is Nothing
Lost Forever. c-1

47 Enroll At Morehead Workshop

Forty seven students and 5 high school teachers, representing 14 Eastern Kentucky school districts, are participating in a five-week workshop at Morehead State University designed to prepare them for the establishment of drama groups in their own communities. c-1

The workshop, part of a year-long Communicative Arts Demonstration Training Project, will end August 16. The initial participating districts include Ashland Independent, Bath County, Carter County, Fairview Independent, Fincastle County, Holy Family of Ashland, Martin County, Pike County, Russell City Schools, Greenup Independent and the University of Kentucky School on the Morehead campus. c-1

Upward Bound students from Boyd and Elliott Counties also are involved. Four plays and one radio drama are scheduled to be produced by the group, ranging from Brandon Thomas' farce, "Charlie's Aunt," to Eugene Ionesco's absurd drama, "The Bald Soprano." Productions also are scheduled to be staged at Ashland and Fincastle during the final week of the workshop. c-1

Director and field coordinator of the project is Bill Tillett, a native of Lincoln County who received a master's degree from Indiana University. c-1

A graduate of Campbellsville College, Tillett, in addition to directing the workshop, will follow-up work in the local school districts during the 1968-69 school year. c-1

The project, according to Tillett, is the only one of its kind in the United States. It is designed to give teachers study and work side by side in the planning and production of plays. c-1

Its program is planned to provide participants with a wide range of drama activity, including set and costume design as well as various methods of directing. c-1

Harlan Hamm, director of drama and speech at Breckinridge School, is the liaison between the University and the project director. c-1

Financed by a $50,000 federal grant, the project is under the direction of the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation, formerly headed by Eastern Kentucky school superintendents as a cooperative regional approach to bring about creative educational progress. c-1

Twenty counties, including 35 school districts, currently are participating in the establishment of local program. c-1

Local residents are cordially invited to attend the first production, "Charlie's Aunt." The play will be presented August 1, 2, and 3 at 8:00 p.m. in Burton Auditorium, MSU. Admission is free. c-1

Juvenile Home Being Improved

Gov. Louie B. Nunn has announced sweeping improvement plans for Kentucky Village, the State's correctional institution for children near Lexington.

The changes announced grew out of Gov. Nunn's surprise visit to Kentucky Village June 7, at which time he described the condition of the institution as "deplorable... ineffective and unsuitable."

"Kentucky Village will no longer be a co-educational girls will be placed in other state-owned facilities."

"An agreement is being drafted to allow the Fayette County Board of Education to operate and supervise academic courses."

Gov. Nunn, who met with Fayette County Schools Superintendent, Dr. Guy Potts and school board chairman Frank Dean, said a plan is also under study to allow certain children at Kentucky Village to attend regular schools.

"Plans are near completion for a comprehensive vocational training and rehabilitation program."

Approximately one-half million dollars will be generated in new services, including pre-vocational training in job skills, extended vocational training in Area Vocational Schools and apprentice work programs.

Gov. Nunn said the KV residents enrolled in this program would receive counseling throughout each step and for a time after release.

"Residents of KV who are mentally retarded will be moved to another state-operated facility for individual care and attention."

"Rev. Robert McClure, superintendent of Kentucky Village the past five years, has been transferred to the central office of the Department of Child Welfare in Frankfort."

"Robert Good has been named superintendent to replace McClure at Kentucky Village. Good has served 1 1/2 years as head of the Lake Cumberland Boys' Camp at Monticello, one of six facilities now operated by the state for treatment and rehabilitation of delinquents."

"Mr. Good has achieved outstanding success at the Cumberland Camp," Gov. Nunn said.

"Under his supervision and with the

Care Needed In Handling Potatoes

If you are a grower of Irish potatoes, take care in digging and handling.

Mechanical injuries to the potatoes cause high losses when rox organisms enter the wounds. Throwing potatoes into baskets or boxes, or injuring with the digging equipment are frequent causes of losses.

Potatoes should not be allowed to lay in the sun for extended periods while digging. Sun scald will result.

Longer storage life can be obtained by letting potatoes cure in the shade for several hours before sorting and storing. This helps "set" the skins of the potatoes.

Potatoes should not be exposed to light after digging. This causes greening, and lowers the quality of the potato. Good air circulation is needed for best results. Prevent stacking potatoes. Potatoes dug in early summer may heat up in storage if stacked five or six feet deep.

Storage temperature of 55 to 60 degrees F. and a relative humidity [air moisture content] of 80% is most desirable for potatoes. Such storage conditions provide a minimum of shrinkage. A cellar or cave can most nearly meet these needs.

Sprouting may become a serious problem under such storage conditions. Sproutinhibiting chemicals are available to reduce sprouting.

State Fair To Have Graham Film

Billy Graham's spectacular motion picture, "Man In The Fifth Dimension," will be an added feature to this year's long list of free events at the Kentucky State Fair, August 15-24.

"Filmed on many locations around the world, this motion picture was seen by over a million people at the 1964-65 New York World's Fair. This powerful film includes scenes from outer space, the California redwoods, Jerusalem, Sea of Galilee, Mount of Ascension, the famed ruins in Greece and many other stirring scenes, all in blazing Technicolor."

Rice Dessert For A Sunny Day

Orange Special Rice Pudding is a dish to save for a sunny day, one to put together when the weather is just too nice for spending much time in the kitchen. It boasts a wealth of unusual flavor that completely conceals its ease and speed of making and carries a nutritious bonus for everyone in the family as well, so that the rest of the menu can be light and easy if desired.

Butter-rich pudding mix furnishes the basic flavor; and the tang of orange, a surprising addition, complements it beautifully. Milk and rice, and the orange used for garnish, supply the good nutrition.

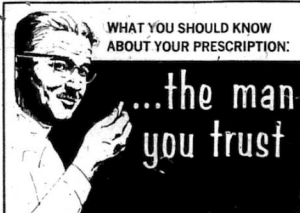

Any kind of rice may be used so long as it is cooked before adding. Using rice left over from a previous meal will, of course, shorten "fixing" time for the pudding even more.

For a complete oven-cooking sunny day menu start off with canned jellied tomato aspic topped off with a dab of sour cream and chives, served to lettuce for both appetizer and salad. Follow with main course of oven-broiled chicken or fish fillets and hot peas and whole-kernel corn mixed, buttered and sprinkled with thyme. Finish the meal with Orange Special Rice Pudding and iced coffee or tea for the grownups, milk for the small fry.

Orange Special Rice Pudding

1 package (3 oz.) butter-rich pudding and pie filling mix 2 cups cooked rice
2 cups milk 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 tablespoons grated orange rind 2 oranges, sliced

Combine pudding mix, milk and orange rind. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Add rice. Remove from heat; spoon into dessert dishes. Chill. At serving time top with whipped cream and sliced oranges. Makes 6 servings.

Lime Needs Can Vary By Farm

Amount of agricultural limestone needed on Kentucky farm fields will vary. Degree of soil acidity and crop being grown are two important factors, says George D. Corder, U.K. Cooperative Extension Service soils specialist.

"Soil acidity levels vary from what the scientist call 'near neutral,' a pH (acid level index) of 6.7 or above, down to a strongly acid soil of pH 5.3 or below. Near neutral soils usually do not require limestone for almost any crop, but strongly acid soils will need from two to five tons an acre depending on the crop grown.

If tobacco is to be grown on strongly acid soils, two to three tons per acre of limestone are needed. For corn, clover, or grass on strongly acid soil, three to four tons an acre; for alfalfa on strongly acid soil, four to five tons an acre. Amounts of lime needed are cut down as the degree of soil acidity [pH level] drops to moderately or slightly acid.

Soil tests are the only way a farmer can know the degree of soil acidity in a field.

"Community Development in Kentucky Appalachia."

Former governor Breathitt will speak at the 12:30 luncheon on "Potential for Rural Growth in Appalachia of Kentucky."

Law Amended On Farm Labor

The hazardous-occupation clause of the recently enacted Federal wage and hour regulations has been amended as regards hiring of 14- and 15-year olds for farm work.

S.O. Allen, U.K. Cooperative Extension Service economist, says the original order virtually prohibited such youngsters from working on farm tractors (or other farm machinery) on farms other than those owned by their parents, if they were less than 16 years old.

But the amendment now permits hiring of such minors under certain conditions provided the youngsters have completed formal training in safe use of this equipment, Mr. Allen says. Additionally, employers of such persons must provide constant safety supervision in such employment.

Plans are for the youngsters to finish the required safety courses with satisfactory grades, receive a "graduation" certificate, and present this to the employer. The employer must keep this certificate on file while working the youngster.

Area extension offices in the various counties may have more information on the local training programs, Mr. Allen says.

Your... Social Security

By Thomas B. Thompson • Ashland District Mgr. For Social Security Information: 1816 Carter Avenue • Ashland, Ky.; Phone 325-7666.

In its first 2 years of operation, Medicare has paid $9.5 billion toward the hospital and doctor bills of the Nation's elderly people.

Taking note of the anniversary of the comprehensive program of health insurance for the aged, which began July 1, 1966, President Johnson stated that the program has meant "new hope and renewed health that light up thousands of lives in every community in this land."

"Medicare has paid the expenses incurred in 10.6 million hospital stays and 43 million medical bills," he said, "and more than 1 million elderly persons have received posthospital care in nursing homes and in their own homes."

Payment under the hospital insurance program has totaled $6.3 billion for the 2 year period and a total of $2.1 billion was paid out under the supplementary medical insurance.

According to Robert M. Ball, Commissioner of Social Security, 19.7 million older people are covered under Medicare. And everyone in that age group—over 65—is now covered under the basic hospital insurance part of Medicare, and 18.6 million, or 95 percent, have enrolled in the voluntary medical insurance part that helps pay doctor bills and a wide variety of other medical expenses in and out of the hospital.

"Because of Medicare," he said, "many thousands of older people, who might have deferred or gone without care—and possibly died—have been able to afford treatment. Millions have the security of knowing that serious illness is no longer the financial threat that it was in the past."

With ability to pay, also, older people who would otherwise have been charity or ward patients are able to receive care as private patients and in institutions which meet Medicare's quality standards.

The application of these quality standards, he pointed out, has contributed to an upgrading of health care that has benefited patients of all ages. And because institutions participating in Medicare must be in conformity with Title VI of the Civil Rights Act, members of minority groups in many communities now have access to quality care for the first time.

By paying for care outside the hospital, Commissioner Ball noted, Medicare has made it possible for physicians to choose the level of care most appropriate to the older patient's condition and has pointed the way to new patterns of health care.

Since January 1, 1967, for example, there have been 640,000 admissions of older people to health care facilities for posthospital care, and 485,000 home health care plans have been set up for older people to receive visits from visiting nurses, physical therapists, and other health care specialists. Bills have been paid for 14 million visits of older people to the hospital for outpatient diagnostic services.

"The successful operation of the Medicare program over the past two years would not have been possible," Ball said, "without the cooperation and hard work of thousands of people, both inside and outside the Federal Government."

Involved with the Government in the operation of the Medicare program, he said, are 125 private insurance organizations—Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans and private insurance companies—which have entered into contracts with the Federal Government; 6,900 participating hospitals; 4,700 participating extended care facilities; 2,100 home health agencies; 12,600 certified independent laboratories; and agencies of 30 different States.

"Medicare enters its third year on a sound administrative basis," Commissioner Ball said. "With experience and the close cooperation of all involved, problems that arose with the launching of the massive program have been eased, and the entire administrative process is under continuous study to assure that it operates at maximum efficiency."

The real measure of how well the program is operating, he noted, would require a house-to-house canvass of the Nation's 19.7 million elderly people and a percentage of visits to their children to whom they looked to the past when the costs of illness outlasted their resources.

But over the past 2 years, hundreds of those who have benefited from Medicare have themselves told of their experiences so that others would learn of the value of the protection.

"It would have been impossible for me to pay my medical bills without Medicare, so if I had not had Medicare it would have been a disaster," said Mr. Frank W. Irvin of Scope Towers, Ashland, who spent 12 days in an Ashland hospital with an attack of bronchitis. Commenting on Medicare's payment of $310.60 of the $407 total expenses incurred during his illness, Mr. Irvin said, "I am highly pleased with Medicare, and just couldn't ask for anything better. Most important, there is no red tape for the patient."

Another area resident who spent 11 days in an Ashland hospital... Mrs. Della Smith of Graydon, Kentucky, summed it up this way upon learning that Medicare would take care of approximately $700 of her $900 medical bills: "I don't know how we would have made it without Medicare."

For any questions you may have concerning Medicare or any phase of social security, you may contact the social security office at 1816 Carter Avenue, Ashland, Kentucky 41101. The telephone number is 325-7666. The office is open Monday through Friday from 8:45 a.m. until 5 p.m. For those who cannot come in during regular hours without experiencing hardship or inconvenience, the office is open on Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon.

"High Button Shoes" At Jenny Wiley

The Model-T era comes alive in the Kentucky mountains with "High Button Shoes," a musical comedy, at Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre.

Recapturing the flavor of the silent-movie days, "High Button Shoes" is the story of youngsters duped by a pair of cunning rascals. The book by novelist and screenwriter, Stephen Longstreet, is the story of a small town in the trusting souls of New Brunswick, New Jersey, are hawkeyed into buying stock in the local marshlands by a fast-talking pair of pitchmen who are just one step ahead of the law.

Decamping with the money the pair is chased to Atlantic City where shivering bathing beauties chill their toes in the sea and seedy Keystone cops jump into the air at the slightest surprise.

The score of "High Button Shoes" is by Jules Styne who has written the music for such Broadway hits as "Coppy," "Funny Girl," "The Bell Are Ringing," and "Hallelujah Baby." Such songs as "I Still Get Jealous," "Nobody Ever Did for Dear Old Dad," and the "Bird Watcher's Song," accompanied by soft-show choreography, add sparkle and nostalgia to this period piece musical.

Gary Heisberg as Harrison Floy, Mitch Douglas as Jan Lipuma as Papa and Mama Longstreet are featured as the confidence man and the heads of the household he fleeces. David Brockway plays Mr. Tommie Floy, sidekick. Eleven Bittman and Tim Steffa play the dewey-eyed lovers and Robert Long and Rhonda Neidert as Uncle Willie and Nancy are the two dance-wild members of the family. Mitch and Bradley Kalos play Steve Longstreet and Junior Simpkins.

The lively and hilarious Chase Ballet and other dance numbers contributing to the period flavor of the musical are staged by Rhonda Neidert of the University of Iowa and Elaine Eckstein of the Cincinnati City Ballet. Sam Bittman directs the musical. Paul Cox is conductor, and John Kasarda and Kristin Obert are designing sets and costumes for the New Brunswick and Atlantic City settings of 1913.

The comedy plays July 25-27 and August 1-3 at 8:30 p.m. in the Amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Park in Prestonsburg, two hours from Lexington on the scenic Mountain Parkway.

DEAR MISTER EDITOR: Clem Webster told the fellers at the country store Saturday night they have come out with a deodorant called Anonimus. I don't make you smell no better, Clem said, but after you put it on people can't figger who was perspiring when you was in the house. I saw by the papers where they have started a Gamblers Anonymous for them addicts that was hooked on cross-word puzzles and TV guessing games and such things.

Ed Doolittle was of the opinion the reason the idea they were strengthening in unity, but he was of the opinion a heap more is done by a feller by himself than in a bunch. He recollected when Lindburg flew over the state and the news was reported in Washington, one Congressman didn't look surprised. "When a committee does it, let me know," he said.

"Ed was disagreed with Zeke of this point, said the idea of people with the same problem getting together and helping one another was a good one. Fer instanter, said Ed, he would like to give his old lady in a New Anonimus. The feller Edison didn't make the first talking machine, said Ed, the Lord did. Edison just made one you could cut off.

Ed said if it wasn't that his old lady had about 30 pounds on him, he might have had to join the Wife Beaters Anonimus a long time ago. Ed claimed us fellers gitting together at the store ever Saturday night was a anonymous club. He said his old lady told him we had ought to call the store Oxygen because we couldn't breathe unless we was in it, all-along-time we was a Talker Anonimus Club because all we git to do at home is listen.

Josh Clodhopper, that ain't never took a drink in his life said that Alcoholic Anonimus had done a good job. He only hoped, he said, we could git a Federalholics Anonimus, that people had got to depending on Government so bad they couldn't git along without it. He was in favor of a Spenders Anonimus in Congress and a Landout Anonimus for the wile bodied bums in this country.

Personal, Mister Editor, I don't understand all I know about these anonymous clubs, but from what I have said in the papers the last few years, they was doing a heap of good. It might be a good idea to start Anonimus Anonimus, so ever time you got a problem and your friends with you may they don't even know you and you got to try and work it out by yourself.

Tuberculosis Not Eradicated

Well, not completely forgotten—but relegated to the dim past by many people, tuberculosis along with mustache cups, samplers, and free lunch with a nickel was of beer.

It would be nice if this comfy attitude toward tuberculosis were founded on fact. Unfortunately, it's wide of reality. New statistics on TB incidence and deaths bring a poignant reminder that the disease frequently written off as "obsolete" still attacks more than 45,000 people a year in the United States.

Yet these new reports, compiled by the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association on the basis of official surveys, have their brighter side. Compared to the picture as it existed a few years ago, TB has been diminishing at a fair rate. According to widespread medical opinion, this largely reflects the efficacy of drugs, the most effective tool for treatment and prevention of tuberculosis.

In 1966, the latest year for which breakdowns are available, four nonwhites came down with TB for every white person in proportion to population. This unpleasant fact serves to dramatize the already well-known connection between poverty, depressed living conditions, and disease. It also points to a long area for concentrated effort in future attempts to reduce the incidence of tuberculosis.

Public health officials and the voluntary anti-TB movement (including your Christmas Seal organization) are taking more seriously than ever the lesson that a really successful assault on TB must include measures for general improvement of living conditions in the urban centers. That's where the highest disease risk lies, and the weakest armor against it.

Retarded May Also Enjoy The Outdoors

When summer arrives, children across the country head outside for picnics, camping, swimming and all the myriad activities that normally fill vacation time during childhood. There are some children who never realized such pastimes existed.

They are the retarded and for over 200 of them this summer marks the first time they have ever been able to attend a camp where they, too, can enjoy the activities of a child's summer.

The camp is Camp Title I, operated by Frankfort State Hospital and School at the hospital farm in Frankfort, and funded by under Title I, a federal educational grant for deprived children. In two-week sessions at this day-camp, the children, who are from FSHS and the Frankfort community, are exposed to arts and crafts, music, hiking, camping, cook-outs, swimming, rhythm exercises, story telling, active sports, green grass, blue skies and coveys.

Volunteers and a staff of eight from various departments of state government guide the children as they explore these worlds for the first time. The purpose of the program is to broaden the children's social environment as well as aid them in developing motor skills and coordination.

Finger painting and mat weaving show the child color, texture and form. Music and rhythm exercises teach them to coordinate their movements with others and the ballgames and contests aim to instill a competitive spirit. The hiking, fishing and camping expose them to the world outside the hospital.

The camp directors have high hopes for the continuation and expansion of the successful program. Hopefully, next year will see an overnight, instead of day camp and the involvement of more Frankfort children.

Built-In Jobs

LITCHFIELD PARK, Ariz. (UPI) — Most people in this "new town" near Phoenix won't have to leave town to get to work.

The designers hope to provide jobs for at least half the residents in the new town itself, to reduce commuting and give people more time to spend on their own individual interests. Litchfield Park is planned as a balanced community for 75,000 to 100,000 people; it will offer all the facilities and services called for in a town of that size, in an environment designed to be as attractive and convenient as possible in an urban area.

THE PICTURE IS PROGRESS—Jars of finger paints in rainbow colors mean fun to any child but to a special few, the retarded, they also mean learning and excitement, color awareness and muscle coordination. These children, residents of Frankfort State Hospital and School, are taking part in Camp Title I, a day camp for retarded children from FSHS and the Frankfort community. Staff members David True, Suellyn Campbell and Lynell Jonakin are working to involve the children in the bright, gooey world of fingerpaints.

TIPS ON PROBLEM EATERS

As a homemaker you're faced with the challenge of convincing problem eaters in your family to change some of their attitudes about food. Sometimes you feel like you're at your wit's end. Nothing seems to work? Well, here are some tips that may help.

Does your teenage daughter skip breakfast? Is her excuse that she's just not hungry? Or that she's watching her weight? That she doesn't have time? Some girls, of course, say that "food in the morning makes me sick."

You might start to change the situation by insisting that she try a single food at breakfast, such as a piece of fruit, a scoop of cottage cheese, or a glass of milk or cup of cocoa. Then gradually within two or three weeks add other foods.

It may mean your daughter will have to get up earlier, but once begun she'll probably agree it's a good idea to not be so rushed every morning.

Make Breakfast Attractive

Other ideas that may make breakfast more attractive include: 1) keep easy-to-fox foods on hand such as ready-to-eat cereal and milk; 2) try a breakfast with a sandwich and glass of milk, or a hard-cooked egg; 3) point out that a person is less likely to overeat at lunch if an adequate breakfast has been eaten. Weight control is easier when a morning meal is enjoyed; and 4) urge your "breakfast skipper" to eat breakfast for two or three weeks and then honestly judge for themselves if they don't feel better at school or work.

Need help in encouraging your family to eat vegetables? Try serving vegetables raw as well as cooked. Children especially may like such finger foods as carrot sticks, celery or cucumber sticks, green pepper strips, cauliflowerets. You may also perk up your child's appetite for vegetables if he helps prepare vegetable dishes. Watch newspaper food pages for new and appetizing ways to cook vegetables.

Fats In The Diet

Finally, do you have a man in your house who is worried about fat in his diet? Well, some fat is necessary in our meals. It's a concentrated source of energy. Fat supplies essential fatty acids, and is a carrier of vitamins A, D, E, and K. Fats help the body use protein and carbohydrates more efficiently and since fats taste good and digest more slowly they help make our meals more satisfying.

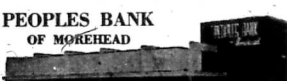

As far as fats and heart disease are concerned no one really knows whether lowering the cholesterol in your blood will prevent a heart attack or not. But it is true that you can lower blood cholesterol by manipulating your total diet. My advice is that unless your physician has suggested otherwise, men who are apparently healthy ought to eat a well balanced diet chosen from a wide variety of foods. In other words, follow the four food group plan including moderate amounts of fats.

A New Look At Tuberculosis

Tuberculosis, one of the earliest of man's diseases, still claims 10,000 lives each year in the United States alone. 30,000 new active cases are diagnosed in this country annually.

Although better sanitary practices, improved living conditions, and the development of new drugs have sharply lowered the death rate, the problem of tuberculosis is by no means solved.

In 90 percent of all patients, tuberculosis reaches an advanced stage before it is discovered. By this time, other members of a household or close associates often are infected too. The disease spreads slowly to treatment, with many months required to bring it under control. And the bacteria causing it may be more resistant to drugs used against it.

Mobile units which offer free X-rays to the public are often successful in helping to diagnose tuberculosis early. Tuberculin tests can help discover those who need further examination for tuberculosis.

Small doses of the drug isoniazid are being recommended as a preventive treatment in high TB risk groups. Among candidates for this treatment are people in close contact with active TB patients, those with recently developed positive tuberculin tests (especially small children), and those with certain special health problems.

Preventive treatment requires special attention. This preventive dose is not adequate for treatment of active disease and may encourage the bacteria to become resistant. Patients must take the drug regularly. If active TB is being treated, higher doses of a combination of drugs must be given.

It is estimated that preventive treatment can reduce TB development by 50 to 75 percent in young people developing positive tuberculin tests. And it has been found that one month's cost of this preventive program can save eight and one-half months of hospitalization expense for TB patient.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases spends more than a million dollars a year to support research by scientists in laboratories within its own laboratories in Bethesda, Md.

A vaccine present tuberculosis is available which is not far from being ideal. Scientists are attempting to prepare a vaccine from the cell walls of the bacteria which would provide immunity without being infectious.

By studying the tuberculosis bacilli, investigating the cause of resistance, searching for better drugs, and attempting to develop a vaccine, scientists hope to make major progress against this old disease.

ST LOUIS (UPI) — The

growing pool of illiterate Negro writers is important for the perceptions of history as well as for its future, according to the Forest Park Community College.

The college says that is the approach it is taking in its six-week summer workshop on major Negro writers from 1930 to the 1960s. The writers whose works are studied include Richard Wright, James Baldwin, Ralph Ellison and Malcolm X.

Guard Against Infant Tumors

CHICAGO (UPI) — A research team has found that infants have a 50-50 chance of suffering an infant tumor fall before their first birthday.

A study led by Dr. Harvey J. Gold of the Northwestern University School of Medicine said that 47.5 per cent of the 536 babies at a hospital fell from high place such as an adult bed, crib or infant dressing table during their first year of life.

Dr. Kravitz, reporting on the study financed by the National Safety Council, said infant falls might be even more frequent than that. He noted "if a baby falls while a baby sitter or maid is in charge the accident may never be reported."

"Injuries from a fall can be serious basis for an infant's death," the pediatrician emphasized, since babies are inclined to fall from high places when their young brains are growing and skulls are very thin.

The research team included two Chicago area pediatricians and a National Safety Council official. The study involved children admitted to a Chicago hospital and patients of pediatricians in suburban areas of the city.

The team found that 32 per cent of the infant falls were from furniture designed specifically for infants.

Most involved cribs. The study recommends that furniture manufacturers develop cribs that can be raised and the mattress lowered.

The researchers also recommended that mothers "child-proof" their homes by putting safety mats on the floor and by not putting the crib in the baby's room.

Mothers are advised to strap the baby in the crib or take him along when they cannot hold him in place.

Dr. Kravitz advised, "never leave a baby alone unless you are sure he cannot hurt himself."

Buss Costly To Driver

CHICAGO (UPI) — An arresting officer testified that a driver who was arrested for driving a bus as he drove alongside last night, he was arrested.

A judge ruled this constituted failure on the part of the motorist to exercise due care and attention to driving on a city street and fined the 19-year-old driver $25. Family Safety, a publication of the National Safety Council, published the story.

Rowan Water District Gets Federal Loan

The Rowan County Rural Water District was assured today that it would soon be in business.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins said in Washington that he had been notified that a loan of $520,000 to Rowan County Water, Inc. had been approved by the Federal Government.

The federal government has canceled outright grants for such water projects. However, the long-term loan will bear favorable interest rates, the congressman reported.

The water will be obtained at a master meter on Licking River at facilities located by the Morehead Municipal Plant Board.

The Rowan district will purchase the water for 38¢ per thousand gallons. The price to consumers has not been set. Water will be furnished to residents on the South Fork of Triplet from meters to Morehead; east of Morehead on U.S. 60 to and beyond Hayes Crossing, 32 miles from Morehead north toward Flemingsburg; the Sharkey-Tar Flat areas; and Clearfield.

M'head Little Leaguers Loss To Richmond

Morehead's Little League All Stars might have missed a chance for the state championship Thursday because of one, high fastball.

Bobby Wells, rated among the tops, allowed the Richmond Little League All Stars only two hits in the district elimination contests. However, the district title by easily defeating Lexington's catcher Mike Park.

The Morehead team, also held to two hits, had several chances but could not come through with the clutch blow. Richmond, after the 1-0 victory over Morehead, captured the Lexington district title by easily defeating Lexington Gardeners 8-0 in the final.

The Morehead Little Leaguers had advanced to the district elimination by winning the area title.

Ranger's Column

by Ronald Heyner

U.S. Forest Service, Morehead, Ky.

During the month of July my wife and I had the opportunity to take a vacation trip through the western part of the United States. We traveled by pickup camper and used public camp grounds located within the national forests and parks most of the trip. We found vacationing by camper is most enjoyable, convenient and economical.

Being a conservation philanthropist familiar with the national forest camp-ground system and the Golden Eagle passport to federal recreation areas, we purchased a Golden Eagle passport and made use of the federal recreation areas mostly on national forests. I would like to tell you how you can become a conservation philanthropist for just $7.

Thousands of American families did just that this summer. They contributed $7, every penny earmarked to provide more local, state and federal outdoor recreation lands and waters. The selfsame $7 made them Golden Eagle families, holders of annual Golden Eagle passports which are valid for admission to the thousands of national forest, park, refuge, and other designated federal recreation areas. The Federal Government calls the program for marketing the $7, "Operation Golden Eagle."

The money you pay for the entrance permits goes into the federal government's land and water conservation fund. This fund receives revenues from sale of Golden Passports and from other sources totaling more than $100 million annually. The larger share of this provides grants which the states, counties, and cities use to buy and develop badly needed park, forest, and other recreation areas.

The rest purchases authorized federal recreation land and water areas and helps provide for recreation and wildlife at federal reservoir and other water projects. You buy your Golden Passport by mail or at most areas where it is valid for admission. The passport also may be purchased at many state, federal and private agency offices across the country.

Several transfers have definitely strengthened the squad according to Coach Ousley and Assistant Coach Scotty Reddick.

Sadler and Jose Aponte, University Breckinridge School, Morehead; and Rick Stump, Ashland. The workshop program is planned to provide the 70 high school teachers and students attending with the full range of drama activity, including set and costume design as well as various methods of directing.

Rowan County Market Is Above The Average

Rowan County stood out as a better-than-average market during the past year, according to a national survey of business, just released.

Its relative strength is reflected in the level of earnings in the area and in the amount of consumer spending done in local retail stores.

The figures bearing this out are contained in the new, copyrighted "Survey of Buying Power," issued by Sales Management, which analyzes communities in every section of the country with respect to business activity and growth potential.

It shows that incomes were high in Rowan County in the year. Local residents had net earnings, after payment of their personal taxes, of $25,658,000, as against the previous year's $22,147,000.

Just what this amounted to, as far as the individual family was concerned, was found by dividing the dollar total by the number of households. The average per household was $6,729. In 1966 it was $6,152.

With that much money available for discretionary spending, consumers could be expected to be in the market place in force. And they were, making it a big year for retailers in general.

It would have been even bigger but for the economic and political uncertainties with regard to Vietnam, inflation and taxes, which led people to be more cautious in their spending than they would have been otherwise.

Even so, records were broken in a number of retail lines as consumer spending in the year reached $17,473,000, bettering the previous year's $16,380,000.

The rise, 6.7 percent, was above average. Elsewhere in the United States, it was 3.3 percent and, in the State of Kentucky, 3.4 percent.

Because American consumers did not spend up to the hilt last year, saving more than usual, they now have a reservoir of funds ready and waiting to be used when they feel the time is right. How long this wait and see attitude will continue will depend upon the war, the economy and the elections, a University of Michigan survey of consumer sentiment indicates.

For the near future, the predictions are that both discretionary purchasing and the rate of saving will remain relatively high.

Support For Burley Increased

Government price support loan rates for 110 grades of this year's burley tobacco crop were announced this week by the Agriculture Department.

The rates reflect an average of 63.5 cents a pound, about 3 percent above 1967. The grade rates range from 30 to 77 cents per pound.

No price supports will be available on any tobacco graded U (not sound) or No-C (no-grade), the department said.

Burley tobacco is grown mainly in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, North Carolina, Ohio and Indiana.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department also announced that producers of flue-cured tobacco will be able to get government loans on this year's crop while it is still on their farms.

The interim program is designed to provide cash to growers for harvesting and curing expenses and to facilitate orderly marketing, the department said.

Until now growers were required to deliver their tobacco to auction markets and wait until it was sold before receiving payments.

Under the new program a farmer will be eligible for a price support loan after his local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office determines that the crop is of average quality and that he has complied with allotment provisions.

A grower who obtains a loan on a portion of his tobacco, then harvests more of it later, may obtain another loan on the remainder, the department said.

The interim loans will be available on either tied or untied tobacco in North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia but only on untied tobacco in Georgia, Florida and Alabama, where tobacco is traditionally marketed untied.

After the tobacco is sold at auction the amount of the loan, plus interest, will be deducted.

If the amount of money received for the tobacco is not equal to the amount of the loan the grower will be required to pay the difference, the department said.

Add 'Twist' To Your Barbecue

Here's a great new twist from the Pennsylvania Dutch country for your next barbecue — not pretzels. (That's the way the pretzel bakers themselves eat pretzels.) The trick is to tie the pretzels on a pan or piece of foil where they'll stay over hot — and eat them with a variety of simple dips (the pretzel bakers just dip them in mustard straight from the jar).

For the barbecue itself — how about juicy hamburgers, minnows to be picked up in the fingers and dunked and eaten — will fresh roasted ears of corn and crispy cold radishes and tomatoes? Thick slices of tomato are delicious and juicy with the hamburgers.

Dips are Simple For hot dog and pretzels, use catsup, chili sauce or mustard as a dip — and use the same for spreading on the hamburgers. Or make sock-it-to-me hot sauce in advance and use it for any and all purposes at the barbecue — it has a full, delicious dip.

SOCK-IT-TO-ME SAUCE Mash 1 cup of cooked red kidney beans and beat up to them: 1 teaspoon onion (frozen or dried), 1 teaspoon salt, a dash garlic method, 3 drops tobacco, 1 teaspoon chili powder and enough hot cream to make a smooth dip.

Take a body room and un-square it with paint. Make one wall the focal point with the application of a bright or warm paint color. This brightly painted surface—in contrast with a darker cooler hue on the other three walls—will attract the eye, and give the illusion that the wall is closer to the observer than it actually is.

Linseed oil finish is the popular choice of many homeowners. This finish may be applied to unfinished wood, and tends to darken the color. Though not highly water resistant, a linseed oil finish will withstand hot dishes. It is also less apt to show scratches than a varnish finish. This type of finish is more time consuming to apply, but it leaves the wood with a beautiful, mellow lustre.

To make a narrow window seem wider, use a brightly colored, textured window shade. Then, cover a pair of tall, lined screens to place on either side of the window with extra yardage of the same shade cloth. For further linear definition, outline shades, screens, and window moldings with contrasting braid.

To assure the best cooling from any air conditioning unit, it must be installed correctly. Window-mounted units require a good tight seal between the cabinet and the window frame to keep out hot air and increase cooling efficiency. Since free circulation of air is essential, filters should be cleaned periodically to take out air-borne pollen, dust, and particles along their cells. Avoid blocking free flow of air with furniture, lest the furniture is cooled at the expense of the atmosphere of the room.
