A Great Citizen Passes

Elijah Hogge has passed to his reward. He lived a full life and for two decades it was a service to Morehead and Rowan County. He loved his people and his people held in him the type of man that is a great credit to any community...

It must be a great satisfaction to the surviving members of his family to know that as his remains lie in Lee Cemetery there is, nevertheless, a great man, reminding of his accomplishments there.

Open House At The C. C. C.

Stanbury will be openhouse at the C. C. C. camp at Rouburn. It marks the sixth anniversary of the establishment of these camps in the United States. Last year elaborate preparations were made by this camp for open house with everyone invited to come and view the work that they were doing...

The camp was maintained as a government order for additional appropriations went through Congress. A few weeks ago there recurred rumors that the camp might be done away with, but they proved false and for at least one more year it will be maintained.

Don't let the camp prepare itself for visitors and then only three show up on the day. Don't say to yourself "well, it won't be necessary for me to go." Let's all attend. You will find it one of the most profitable and enjoyable visits that you have ever made.

Cancer Control Month

April will be known as "Cancer Control Month" by presidential proclamation, and numerous organizations, including the American Society for the Control of Cancer, will endeavor by various means to bring to the attention of the people generally the dangers involved in the steady increase in the incidence of cancer and the imperative necessity for early diagnosis and treatment where it occurs.

Following heart disease as a cause of death, cancer comes second. In 1936, 311,250 persons died from cardiac affections and 142,613 from cancer in various forms. More deaths from this malignancy are caused each year. This is attributed by some authorities to an actual increase in the incidence of cancer, by others to the fact that it now is recognized in a larger number of cases than formerly because of improved methods of diagnosis...

"Cancer" appears to be a disorderly growth of cells rather than a virus or germ disease. Cells of this secondary growth do not respond to the controls that keep normal cells in check, and forcing their way among normal cells prove destructive to tissue and later spread to different parts of the body along the blood stream. When diagnosed in time and treated surgically or by the use of radium or X-rays, cancer can be eliminated. It is caused as a rule by some form of irritation, mechanical, chemical, or thermal, and even by over-exposure to sunlight in some instances. Constant irritation of certain moles or a wart or an old burn scar may develop cancer. Pipe-smoking or a jagged tooth may produce cancer of the mouth.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Written Each Week By B. H. KAZEEK Pastor Of The Baptist Church

Sermon: WHAT IT MEANS TO HAVE A RISEN CHRIST, Acts 13: 1-15.

Golden Text: "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become first fruits of them that sleep." 1 Cor. 15:20.

Last Sunday we began the study of the Apostle Paul and his letters. The opening lesson showed us how different is the saved man's view of all things from that of the lost man. Paul is an outstanding example of a "converted" man...

Paul based his experience upon one great fact - a great miracle of God's power, the Resurrection of Christ. From the beginning of Paul's ministry he began to declare this great doctrine. In the passage indicated in our lesson we have a great sermon on this topic, and from his letter to the Corinthians we have a choice utterance which is unmistakable on this subject.

In the light of these two passages the man who does not believe in the resurrection of Christ, and the resurrection of the bodies of those who are His, simply refuse to believe the Bible.

Jesus was to die for man's sin, to be sure, but in that death He was to become the conqueror of death or there was to be no hope for lost men. To die was good, but to stop short of the resurrection the victory over death was to fail. But Christ did not fail. Many times after the death of Jesus He appeared to His disciples, who spoke with Him, handled his wounds, ate with Him, and when He proved to be the same body by eating a portion of fish. Then they saw Him rise in that body and He ascended into the cloud out of sight.

To arise from the dead and to take the place in heaven of the lost man's resurrection death, to the Heavenly Father, was God's plan. A way of doing it, that was possible, was the same way that through death we may become free from death, and through resurrection we may live forever more without the danger of death. This was Paul's great theme, and

The basis of that hope which inspires man to seek the salvation of all men, that they too might enjoy everlasting life. In the light of this great truth, "Is there here for a man who does not believe in Christ? Outside this great conqueror there is no victory over sin. Through His power alone can we hope to arise to life. But the resurrection is not only bodily. A foretaste of that everlasting life which we shall some day live in the glorified bodies of men, is the experience of resurrection in this life. As we come to the passes led by the living Spirit of Jesus, that life which makes us the victor over death already takes hold of us and prepares the victory here. This is what we mean by being born again. It is an eternal seed of life which is the life of Jesus the Victor. And this is not just a "hope" of something that is living, vital, and real. It is the life of the Spirit of God. This is the life of God, and in experience, declare "I know that He has risen from the dead, and that He stands in the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God." Thanks be to His God, we mean "Let the world believe and live, live forever more."

Elliotville School News
The Elliotville P. T. A. will hold their next regular meeting Wednesday, April 5th at 7:30 o'clock p. m.

The officers who have served during the past year are Mr. Everett Kissinger, president, Mrs. Herb Fouch, vice-president, and Mrs. George Lewis, Secretary-treasurer. The president, Mr. Kissinger urges every parent to be present at the business session.

The attendance of the seventh month showed a marked increase over that of the previous month. As yet again, on the fifth school day an increase in attendance and even though the fifth grade fell below their last month's mark they are still well above ninety percent.

The children of Miss Carter's room are glad to have Chalmers Mahry back with them. Chalmers left on out for several weeks with pneumonia. Luell Ward, his seventh grade teacher, has been out for several weeks for the lower grades. She is improving at present and her classmates are looking forward for her return in the near future.

A portable photograph has been arranged for the lower grades, and the children enjoy the music period every day. The teachers have ordered records to use in teaching music to the children. Four of the Elliotville pupils took part on the teachers meeting program at Morehead Saturday.

Everyone around Elliotville is glad to hear the sound of the stone at the gymnasium once more. Work has been resumed on the gymnasium and the pupils, parents and teachers are again hopeful of having the gym by the time the school begins next fall. Rev. B. H. Kazeek spoke to the pupils of the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grades Thursday, March 23rd, on the subject of positive goodness.

This topic was the conclusion of lessons of the YMCA and the YWCA Bible study courses of which had been under the direction of Mrs. Bernice Barker and Miss Mabel Hackney. Everyone enjoyed Mr. Kazeek's talk and it is hoped that he will continue to return for another interesting and inspiring program.

Examinations were taken Friday by those enrolled in the Bible Study Groups. Certified of honor for those making passing marks on the tests. Miss Grace Lewis, first grade teacher, observed in Ashland city school Thursday last week. She reported an interesting trip and complimented the Ashland teachers on their courtesy and willingness to explain their work after the observation.

"Keeping Kiddies Dates" a farce in one act and "Peter Beware" a comedy in three acts will be presented at the Elliotville High School Wednesday April 12th, by the eighth and tenth grades respectively. # Bus Rates Are Reduced Here

Substantial reductions in motor bus fares throughout the Southeast were announced here today by officials of the Southeastern Greyhound Lines. The fare reductions will be in effect South of the Ohio and East of the Mississippi. The new fares, approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, called for a scale, the cost per mile becoming less as the distance traveled increases. The fare starts at a zone rate from 1 to 50 miles at .015c per mile and is decreased according to the mileage traveled. Over 500 miles rates are .0115c per mile. Motor bus officials pointed out that this is also subject to a 10 per cent discount on round trips.

The new fares are the lowest transportation rates in the history of travel by highway, rail or any other means of transportation. The new tariff constructed on a mileage scale is the first time that bus fares have been based upon actual mileage travel. Previously, fares were set up according to types of the amount of service rendered, equipment, highway conditions and competition was also taken into consideration. The new tariffs have been distributed throughout the system and all local agents have been instructed to sell at the reduced fares.

With announcement of the new reduced local fares is a special circle rate of $92.95 to both fairs, taking in the New York World's Fair and the San Francisco Exposition from any city in the United States. This is the lowest transcontinental round-trip ever in existence at any time in American history.

Named Vice President of U. S. Utilities

E. W. BROWN

Announcement of the election of Edward W. Brown as vice president of Kentucky Utilities Company and Old Dominion Power Company has been made at the general offices of the corporation in Lexington.

Since 1935 Mr. Brown has been director of operations for the Kentucky Utilities system. Prior to that time he was chief engineer for eight years. His connection with the organization began when he became chief engineer of the Pickett generating station of the Electric Transmission Company of Virginia (now Old Dominion Power Company) in 1917.

A noted mathematician, Mr. Brown is a graduate in electrical engineering from the University of Illinois, where in student days he was an outstanding athlete. There is nothing professional in Mr. Brown's appearance or manner, but the record shows that in 1910 and 1911 he taught mathematics in Paducah High School.

While living in Paducah Mr. Brown met Miss Lorraine Sutherland, who later became his wife. They have four children—two sons and two daughters. More than a corporal's guard of Paducah's business and professional men can "remember" way back when he tried to get through the mazes and mazes of algebra and geometry.

State Income Tax Assistant Here March 28

Mr. E. Ellis Sutton, field representative of the Kentucky Department of Revenue in Frankfort, was in Morehead on Tuesday, March 28, 1939 to assist taxpayers in the preparation of their 1938 state income tax returns. Mr. Sutton will be located at County Court House on above date.

The Kentucky Income Tax Law provides that all single persons having a net income of over $1,000 or a gross income of over $1,500 and all married persons living with husband or wife and having a gross income of over $3,000 or a net income of over $2,500 are required to file an income tax return with the Kentucky Department of Revenue, or its agent, on or before April 15, 1939. Those single persons claiming a status as head of a family will be governed by the provisions applicable to single persons insofar as they might be required to file returns.

Mr. Sutton said that he has been specially assigned by the Department to render this service and that limited facilities made the Department unable to send a representative to this vicinity at any other time to aid in the preparation of Kentucky 1938 tax returns.

Attend Plain Jane

Friday evening, April 7, at 7 o'clock the Haldeman P. T. A. will present "Plain Jane" at the Haldeman Gym. This is a comedy written by Jay Tobias and packed with laughs from start to finish. What happens when three blue bloods of high society come rivals for the hand of Jane Judkins, the rough, uncut diamond? The Golden West! In order to get her money, really makes an evening of entertainment. There will be chuckles aplenty for Ann Emma, who is a commoner married into an aristocratic family and in control of the purse strings. This part is well portrayed by Mabel Leichter. However, the other members of the cast are equally well selected.

Admission: Reserved seats 35c. General Admission 25c.

Rubber Is 100 Years Old

Important event in the rubber industry is the observance, this year, of the one hundredth anniversary of the discovery of vulcanization by Charles Goodyear. This year also marks the fiftieth anniversary of the manufacture of the first pneumatic tire, and the first year of the existence of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., world's largest rubber manufacturer.

The centennial observance of the discovery of vulcanization is not only important to the rubber industry, but to motorists. The reason for this statement is that Goodyear has now made available a brand new tire that is outstanding in its value.

The new tire has been named the G-100, exceptionally appropriate in view of its announcement during the centennial year. Representing 40 years of experience in tire design and manufacture by the world's largest rubber company, the G-100 with its All-Weather tread embodies many improvements. Chief among the new features of the tire are its new center-traction non-skid design, its which with Goodyear tires are more closely nested; 11 per cent more rubber has been placed in contact with the road; improved to give up to 35 per cent more mileage by actual road test; two-way tread compression and twin cord breakers; more durable cords in each ply for still greater protection against blowouts, punctures and bruises; four riding ridges for quiet, easy roll and even tread wear; high-taper shoulders, giving modern appearance.

"In our estimation, the G-100 is well worth of its introduction during the centennial year of rubber manufacturing.

Death Claims Elijah Hogge

(Continued From Page One) politics most of his life and was instrumental in the founding of the Morehead State Teachers College. He sought only two public offices and was elected to both of them; as County Attorney from 1913 to 1917 and Mayor of Morehead from 1918 until 1921. Judge Hogge served several times as special judge in Circuit Courts. On February 13, 1895 he married Margaret Allen of Morehead. She and one son, Walter A. Hogge of Lexington; and two daughters, Mary Hogge and Mrs. Roy Corlette both of Morehead survive. He is also survived by two half brothers, Grover and Edgar Hogge and a sister, Mrs. Bettie Littleton of Ashland.

The funeral rites were conducted by Rev. A. E. Lankford and Dr. G. B. Traylor. Activeasket bearers were M. S. Howell, Preston Webb, Taylor Young, M. V. Crossley, D. B. Leichter, Russell Beck, Harlan Blair and C. D. Downing.

The honorary bearers were Oscar Buzemann, Harlan Powers, D. B. Caudill, James Clay, R. M. Clay, J. W. Riley, C. C. Crosthwaite, W. E. Proctor, Drew Evans, Jack Wilson, C. P. # Eighth District Asks Recognition

This feeling is bound to be a principal factor in the forthcoming election.

Shannon Starts Campaign Another Eastern Kentuckian, E. E. Shannon, present state auditor and an almost certain candidate for State Treasurer, has been noticeably active recently. Mr. Shannon enjoys well founded contracts throughout the state and should receive a heavy vote from this section. He will probably appear on the state with Keen Johnson.

What state political leaders have perhaps been overlooking in choosing candidates is the Eighth Congressional District has the largest Democratic primary vote of any district in the state. Eighth District leaders are clamoring for more recognition and apparently they are going to receive it this time.

Shannon Starts Campaigning Anti-administration forces, with some reports to the contrary, are nevertheless in possibly better accord than are administration headquarters. John Young Brown has already been decided upon at a harmonious meeting as their central candidate for governor. In connection with his campaign next week, and judging from past activity of the Lexington attorney, he will start speaking over the state soon, appearing in each of the 120 counties.

The manner in which Rowan County stacks up at present Brown appears stronger than Johnson.

here. For example, Barkley carrying this county with little financial support, plus the fact that the state administration will have less patronage and money to throw to Johnson than they did to Chandler in the Senatorial fight, should doubt better here than Barkley did.

Caudill Candidacy Mentioned

Judge D. B. Caudill has not filed for reelection as Circuit Judge. However, the Morehead jurist unquestionably is putting out plenty of feelers throughout the district and his announcement can be expected within a few days. W. C. Hamilton and Bridges White of Mt. Sterling are seeking the Democratic nomination. It is probable that everyone who is a candidate will file on the Democratic and Republican tickets.

Lloyd Speaks For Maximum $30 Pension

Morehead Man Says That Merit System Should Be Used In Picking Employees

Public aid payments to Kentucky's needy aged, State Public Assistant Director A. Y. Lloyd said today, should be increased to a "maximum" of $30 a month, with each recipient's grant fixed by his needs.

Present grants, which Lloyd said average $9 a month with the Federal Government bearing half the cost, range on the basis of need up to a maximum of $15 a month for needy citizens over 65 who are not inmates of public or private institutions.

Lloyd also advocated passage at the November election of the proposed constitutional amendment to present administration and needy citizens with subsequent legislation to extend the State's public assistance program to those groups.

He said his views, radiating through W.M.A.S., as part of the University of Kentucky's social work series, were "distinctly my own and not meant to commit the present administration or any individual as to future policy."

Approximately 185,000 persons over 65 now live in Kentucky, Lloyd said, and 243 in each thousand of them are receiving "regular payments of old age assistance—nineteen more than the average in the entire United States."

The Truth from the Inside

By IRVIN S. COBB
THE dining car waiter was one of those persons who feel a sense of personal proprietorship in the institutions they serve—a type not at all uncommon among the members of the colored race in America. So when the gentleman who was going to California gave a breakfast order of grapefruit, toast, coffee and soft boiled eggs, he bent over the patron and in confidential tones whispered: "Boss, I would not keer to recormend the aigs this mornin'. New sub, I would suggest you tuck somethin' else on the bill."

"What's the matter with the eggs—aren't they fresh?" asked the customer.

"The waiter's voice sank still lower. "I don't know of they's fresh, or of they ain't," he said; "but to tell you the truth we ain't got any."

Dr. A. Y. Lloyd Asks $30 Pension

(Continued From Page Four) Since the first grants in August, 1936, he added, 56,214 persons have drawn "more than 1,000,000 checks totaling nearly $10,000,000" and "many other" thousands have been denied because they were ineligible under the law.

In March, he said, 45,000 persons received checks totaling $300,000 getting assistance without regard to "color, race, creed, religion or political affiliation."

Local Responsibility Favored

Lloyd suggested that future administrations continue "our present policy of decentralization from the State office to provide for greater local responsibility." He suggested that administrative employees be selected under "an effective merit system and protected from the possibility of political coercion," and that field workers' recommendations be reviewed by a "small, non-partisan, non-selective" local committee, in each county.

HOKUM IS STILL A GOOD BET

But, Edward Arnold still wants it definitely understood, there's a distinction between hokum and hating.

"Miche Aser's role of the ballet teacher in 'You Can't Take It With You' was pure hokum," he illustrated. "But Miche's acting made it classic characterization, as funny as it was phoney. It's when an actor is really play-acting on the screen that an audience enjoys it the most. Give me the outright leering villain any time in preference to the deeply psychological study which sends the theatregoers home worrying about whether it was schizophrenia which made him murder his grandmother, or just her money."

Audiences don't go to the motion picture theater to think, Arnold is convinced, though he doesn't believe that is necessarily any reflection on their mental age. They like to see familiar things in new wrappings. "East Lynne" is still a good plot formula if placed in a new locale and acted without the scenery-chewing, he is sure.

Currently appearing in his third Western, as the deep-eyed villain of "Let Freedom Ring," Arnold confesses that while he misses the twirling mustaches which he would have worn twenty or more years ago when he and Frank Morgan were touring the "salika" he really relishes the opportunity to be theatrical.

"In the theatrical type of picture," he amplified, "all the stunts are simple and understandable. You can concentrate on making the picture a thoroughly lusty, characterful snake or a hero of high-minded ideals, and get some flavor out of it, like mixing up a good Whoozie. That's the whole secret of the success of Westerns. That's why we're gradually getting wise to ourselves and reviving the vital elements of Westerns. That's why hokum, it's surefire, if it's handled right."

"When Frank Capra wanted me to play the harmonies in that final scene of 'You Can't Take It With You,' I objected that it was too hokey. 'It just won't go,' I argued. 'I'll go if you play it right,' he answered, and it worked. Since I should have known it would, audiences will never outgrow hokum. Pictures like 'Idiot's Delight' are one entertainment that is timeless. Historical pictures like 'Marie Antoinette' can be marvelous entertainment. But I still submit to you that 'Gable's glamour girl' and 'Shearer's phony countess' will be remembered long after the serious moments of 'Idiot's Delight' are forgotten."

"Now in 'Let Freedom Ring' I have more love scenes with Virginia Bruce than Nelson Eddy as the hero. Yet I'm the sort of cat that he girl in her right senses would have anything to do with. But I'm reasonably certain that I'll never get a thrill out of seeing Virginia fall for the villain's wiles, so long as the two of us don't go overboard with it. It's just that he's believable of the period if it isn't hammed. It's when you deliberately try to disguise hokum as great drama that audiences get up and walk out."

If You're Planning To Build By W. S. Lowndes Director, Schools of Architecture and International Correspondence Schools WHEN you are planning your house, no matter how inexpensive it may be, keep in mind that you will furnish it. The position of the windows in a bedroom often determines the location of the bed. This is only a detail in house planning but it is important when the structure is completed. Sizes should be remembered at all times. Large pieces of furniture should never be placed against a window. Another matter that should be considered in the stock sizes of rugs and carpets. It is aggravating to find that a room is a few inches too short to take a suitable stocksize floor covering. Light in Closet—It always is desirable to have light and plenty of it in a closet. The door should be arranged to open in such a manner as to permit daylight to shine directly into the closet. When cost does not forbid, an electric light should be placed in every closet. This light should be operated by means of a door switch that will turn on the light when door is opened and turn off when the door is closed. Dining nooks, alcoves and breakfast nooks are some of the names applied to small spaces just large enough to accommodate a table and two or four seats. A dining nook should be placed in the kitchen adjacent to the kitchen so that meals will be served in serving the dining room. Tables should be well lighted and arranged so that they will receive an abundance of sunshine in the morning hours. They should be cheerful and inviting atmosphere.

WILSON DIEXIE THE MERCHANDISE MART WE MUST PROTECT FROM FIRE In the 1936-37 campaign to stamp out non-accused fires that burn over 4,000,000 acres annually, the United States Forest Service in cooperation with the state forestry agencies and organizations interested in conservation, will distribute in poster form nearly a million reproductions of the above painting by the famous illustrator, James Montgomery Flagg. The painting is the property of the American Forestry Association.

'Will Rogers' Humorous Story By WILL ROGERS YOU know, it does take a lot of nerve for a man to ask a girl to marry him these days. Why he's got to figure to the cost of breakfast and lipstick and all these other modern conveniences, which he has to pay for. Well, there was a girl by the name of Molly, maybe it was, and she says to her dad, "I don't know whether the Major is going to ask me to marry him or not. He's been awful loving to me and all that, and if he don't ask me pretty soon I guess I ought to give him the gas. What do you think, Dad?" "Don't worry, daughter," says the old man. "The Major will say, 'But don't rush him too hard. The more good gas he gets, the more medals with palms and alfalfa for bravery. You can't expect the impossible of him. But don't worry, he'll get up nerve enough pretty soon.'

YOURS IN TRUST WE MUST PROTECT FROM FIRE

I WONT RIDE WITH A RECKLESS AUTO DRIVER! "Boys who show-off by driving recklessly, by speeding, by dashing up to an intersection and skidding on the brakes are not popular with the girls," according to Charles F. Fox, Safety Chairman of the Cincinnati Automobile Club. This information was gained in a survey made among girls attending the Drivers' School operated by the Cincinnati Automobile Club in dual-control motor cars. In this school novices are taught to drive an automobile in a series of ten lessons, eight of which are actually driving an automobile, two are lectures on the mechanics of the car and its operation. Girls are asked what other girls think of the show-off young man who tries to impress people by the dare devil attitude which he adopts in driving his automobile carelessly and usually with a great honking of the horn to attract all the attention possible. Without exception these girls realize, the Cincinnati Automobile Club report discovered, that one automobile accident may ruin them forever with a scarred face, a torn scalp, a broken leg or arm, disfiguring bruises, or all of which destroy that girl values above all else... her appearance. The survey also reveals that girls are asking their friends to take them home from a party rather than run the risk of driving with an escort who may be simply trying. If the women of this country band together against the reckless driver I believe they can do more for the cause of safety than all the campaigner ever launched, Chairman Fox stated. Boys may not listen to their mothers... but they will listen to another woman every time. The girls they are interested with, The Cincinnati Automobile Club seeks the cooperation of every motorist in reducing accidents.

White House by five Democratic Senators. Senator Leo, Oklahoma Democrat, who acted as spokesman for this group, said they told the President they thought W. P. A. "by all means" should have $150,000,000 more to run it until July 1.

The President asked Congress recently to appropriate an addition of $150,000,000 for W. P. A. The amount slashed from his original $875,000,000 estimate of his new bill.

Such a procedure, Barkley said, might hinder business more than it would help. He said, however, that he would favor existing revenues, but he said elimination of some existing taxes would be necessary to be followed by an increase in others.

Recently, a number of workers who are drawing unemployment compensation benefits under our State insurance law have called on the office to discuss this matter. Some of these workers thought the unemployment compensation which they get now, might be reduced if old age insurance annuities or lump sum benefits to which these workers may be entitled later.

"There is no connection between the two types of benefits. Job insurance benefits are paid by the state to workers who become unemployed and who are covered by this state's unemployment compensation law. Old age insurance benefits, for which workers contribute one percent of their wages while employed in jobs covered by the Social Security Act, are paid to a worker when he reaches age 65 or to his legal heirs if he dies. There are no deductions or changes in old age insurance benefits because of any payments made under our state's insurance law," Mr. Chaney concluded.

It was a kind note and a living one which Larry had written, she was almost embarrassed from months of fast work and the excitement of his smiles since he had been to a much more than he knew. He was not one to become a heavy drinker. He was going to New York because his models were finished and he must make arrangements for a production. This was only a temporary separation, unless she decreed otherwise. He was sure she would not. They loved each other too deeply. But until he, too, saw success ahead, they could not be reunited. Yes, by knew she would give him everything she had. Perhaps he was stubborn in his pride, but there was an ugly word for a man who a woman gave him money. He felt that word applied even when the woman was the man's wife.

Mary's first impulse was to fly to New York. But she knew she must not. Larry's pride was a stubborn. She did not know how she could bear the loneliness, but she knew she could do nothing but wait for him to be an understanding and loving wife and patient.

The telephone rang. She choked back her sobs as she answered it. It was Larry, he was shouting to say he had no more that he was coming back. She almost dropped the receiver in the disappointment when she knew it was the stalling "I can't come out today."

"Something has happened and..." "What do you mean you can't come?" "I'm sorry, but you aren't having me think of temporary arrangements just because you're a star. It's out of it."

"You ought to know better than that," she said. "I can't let you know to ever say that it's just something."

"Yes," I know something has happened," he said in a but to please me. It was Sandra Lee, told her an actor on always come when called. And always does. Understand."

"All right," she said. "I'll be over as soon as I can get there."

When Larry arrived in New York he took time only to find a hotel and went to a doctor. It was before he hurried to the office of Mort Hodges, agent for any and all kinds of show and stage appearances.

In slanting sentences Larry told his plans as he unpacked the models.

"All right, Hodges," he said tartly, "say I'm crazy."

"You're crazy all right — like Ziegfeld was crazy. When do you want to go?"

"I have my lists all worked out. I know just as performers I want I think we should open when the fall season is made way."

"Larry took the hold of a chair to steady himself. This was not what he had expected Hodges to say. He turned and without a word began packing the models.

"Yes, I'm fat," said Hodges, but I've been that many a time as you know. While there's life there's hope. I've never been so broke I didn't remember that. And I've never been so down I couldn't talk. There's always good money for a good show. Yours is more than good, my boy. The first thing for us to do is to figure out what it will cost and then decide what we need to start with."

They did some rapid calculating and Hodges reached for the phone. Suddenly the door opened and a man and woman came in. Larry had his back to the door and he wasn't interested in anything in the world but the phone call. Hodges was about to make. That is he wasn't until he heard Hodges call "Hello, Miss Sherman and hello, Hodges."

At first Larry and Eddie could not speak. Then the words came in a torrent — questions as to how they were joy at this unexpected reunion, jokes, about the past. Hodges had been hating her but she also giving an indication of all sorts of things together. He had to think of sordid money.

"How much?" Hodges asked, "Can't say exactly," Mary said fidgety.

"What did he say?" asked Larry receiver. tensely when Hodges hung up the phone. "I've sold Pearson on the idea," he said. "Hold on now before you go wild with joy. It all hinges on one thing. It's the usual thing. He has a tip on the market. If it's as good as he hopes, he'll see us through."

"Don't try to hold me down," Larry said. "I've a hunch the tip is tops and if I'm wrong, there are other backers and other tips and a hunch like yours would sell anything to anybody. Now before I dash on my glorious way, I must send a telegram to Mary."

Before he could reach the phone, Hodges put out his hand. "Go easy on this," he said. "There's a telephone office right phone some other prospect."

"But he sat still — an inscrutable look on his face as the door closed behind Larry. Eddie took up the phone. He started to dial, frowned then tried again.

"Do you like wasting your time?" Hodges asked. "The service was cut off yesterday."

"Then how did you put through that call a moment ago?" "I use you never knew it before. I'm a pretty good actor... do? I have to make sure he let me know I never knew or heard of anyone named Pearson in my life. Now a minute before you start on a tongue-lashing. You're the old friend Larry has. I saw he needed encouragement. But that's not all. He has something and I know I can get the backing. I'm not running any risk of losing another agent get a cut. So I had to stall. Say, do either of you happen to know anybody who would come in on this?"

Kitty Sherman shook her head. "What would you say if I said perhaps I'd?" asked Eddie. "Well, I'm not acting it do and I'm not saying I don't come on. Kitty, there's where we make our exit. I've some business to attend to."

Larry and a number of friends on Broadway were supposed to dinner and spending the evening together. He did not have one and did not intend to make one. He was going to the hotel and for a message from Mary. They were not present here he waited. Perhaps she was angry. Perhaps she would punish him for a time while for leaving as he had. He wished he had some of those things for Mary, instead of writing them. All he could have hoped for and more. It was the first of many big messages. Every day he wrote her while home. Every day he wrote her. Within a week Larry was working as he had never done before. Hodges, making out checks for the deposits needed, assured him that he had more than they needed to start work and all that was needed Larry would be subject to their order.

The day Mary heard from Larry that the Ice Follies would open on Thanksgiving Day, Tolliver felt that a big publicity campaign had been planned for her new appearance at the premiere in New York. The date was Thanksgiving.

She and Larry were so happy at the promise of being together again that the conflict of the opening seemed negligible.

These were many things to do as the day of his opening when Larry's fame was spreading. His appearances would have done. He delegated them to his assistants. But Hodges had said that he was going to meet Mary when her good landed in Newark.

The girl — that is if it could be called — was waiting to watch her step from the stage and be thrown to hidden by photographers and reporters. He had a glimpse of her searching the crowd for him. He could not look through the milling mass of men and women and children. The police had difficulty in clearing a way for her to the waiting car. Just before it started her eyes closed. He thought she held out her hands in a little gesture going to jump out. Then she wore of helplessness and sank back in the seat.

"And I don't even know where she's going," he growled as he stepped in a taxi. He went to the Police. He wanted to work so he would not think. And he wanted to be where Mary could phone him. "See Mary?" asked Eddie as Larry hurried in.

"Just" he snapped. "Eddie was a wife as well as devoted friend. He knew when wisdom, when devotion meant silence. Mary had thought she would have some time to herself once she had reached the hotel. She must get in touch with Larry. She hadn't liked the look on his face as she was driven away. She found her suite crowded. Men and women sat from time to time but others took their place.

"I'll just have to get away a few minutes," she said appealingly to Tolliver. "I must look like the wreck of the Hesperus. Fine and fortunate that is for the New York crowd."

She did reach her bedroom but a persistent visitor reporter followed her. She said she wanted a sly on the way of star freshness her importance. Mary had that hopelessness feeling which she had had at the airport when Larry could not reach her. The reporter finally left and Mary started for the phone. There was a knock on the door. More photographers were waiting.

THE ICE FOLLIES OF 1939

BY LUCY HUFFAKER

CHAPTER TWO
When Mary woke the next morning, she blinked her eyes smarting from the brilliant sunshine. She wished her head did not feel so big and empty.

Lucy Huffaker
"Larry dear," she called, "will you be a good to an erring wife and bring her a glass of icy water. You know I'm not a drinking woman and I need first aid."

she knew Larry's love for her and his kindness would not let him be unsympathetic when she needed help. She tried to sit up. She couldn't. She lay there for a minute or two, and then she felt a hand on her forehead and a cool, moist cloth. She had seen a large envelop with her name on it.

It was a kind note and a loving one which Larry had written. She was almost exhausted from months of hard work and the excitement of her sudden success had been too much for her. He knew she was not one to become a heavy drinker. He was going to New York to see that she was fitted and she must make arrangements for a production. This was only a temporary separation, unless she decided otherwise. He was sure she would not. They loved each other too deeply. But until he too, saw success ahead, they could not be reunited. Yes, he knew she would give him everything she had. Perhaps he was a bit stubborn in his pride, but there was an ugly word for a man who let a woman give him money. He felt that would applied even when the woman was the man's wife.

Mary's first impulse was to fly to New York, but she knew she must not. Larry's pride was indeed stubborn. She did not know how she could bear the loneliness, but she was up to the task. It was up to her to be an understanding and loving, wise and patient.

The telephone rang. She choked back her sobs as she answered it. It was Larry. He was phoning to say he had not gone that he was coming back. She almost dropped the receiver in her disappointment when she knew it was the studio. "But I can't come— not today," she said. "Something has happened."

"What do you mean you can't come?" Jerry Tolliver. "You aren't having me a chunk of temperament are you, just because you're a star? If so, out it out!"

"You ought to know better than that," she said. "I can't tell you now or ever what it is but something."

"Yes," I know something has happened," he cut in. "But what?" "If it's Mary McKay, it's no concern of mine. If it's Sandra Lee, tell her an actor can always come when called. And always does. Understand?"

"All right," she said. "I'll be over as soon as I can get there."

When Larry arrived in New York he took the only way to find a hotel and said a day-letter to Mary before he hurried to the office of Mort Hodges, agent for any and all kinds of shows and some times producer.

In a matter of minutes Larry told his plans as he unpacked the medicine.

"All right, Hodges," he said tartly. "You're crazy all right — like Ziegfeld was crazy. When do you want to start?"

"I have my lists all worked out. I know just the performers I want. I think we should open when the fall season is under way. It's an estimate and which I'll have to lay down deposits. How much money you got by you?"

Larry took hold of a chair to steady himself. This was not what he had expected Hodges to say. He turned and without a word began packing the medicine.

"Yes, I'm first," said Hodges, but I've been that many a time as you know. While there's life there's push. I've never been so broke. I didn't remember that. And I've never been so down I couldn't talk. There's always good money for a good show. Yours is more than good, my boy. Larry had his back to the door and he wasn't interested in anything in the world but the phone call Hodges was about to make. That is he wasn't until he heard Hodges call out "Hello, Miss Smerman and hello, Burgess."

At first Larry and Eddie could not speak. Then the words came in a torrent — questions as to how they were, joy at this unexpected reunion, jokes about the past. Hodges had been lying. He had said he had assets and that they would start giving an imitation of a crabs getting together. He had to think of sordid money.

said Larry. "I've a hunch the tip is tops and if I'm wrong, there are other backers and other tips and a special like yours would sell anything to anybody. Now before I dash on my glorious way, I must send a note to Mary."

Before he could reach the phone, Hodges put out his hand. "Go easy on this," he said. "There's a telegraph office right downstairs. Anyway I've got to phone some other prospects."

But he sat still — an inscrutable look on his face as the door closed behind Larry. Eddie took up the phone. He started to dial, frowned then tried again.

She did reach her bedroom but a persistent woman reporter followed her. She said she wanted a story on the way a star's freshener. Her persistence Mary had that. She felt as if she were a knock on the door. There was a knock on the door. More photographers were waiting.

Mr. And Mrs. Frank Cooper Married Longest

Two weeks ago the News carried an article stating that Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Cornette were celebrating their 26th wedding anniversary and pointed out that this was probably the oldest living married couple in Rowan County.

Frank Netherley of Smile writes that his neighbors Uncle Frank Cooper and wife are both living and have been wed 62 years last January. Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Cooper and until we are advised different we will consider them as the couple now living in Rowan County who have been married the longest.

Anyone knowing a couple now living that have been wed more than 62 years should write the News office as the paper is attempting to discover the oldest living couple in the county.

TON OF FERTILIZER PER FARM IS U. S. AVERAGE

CHICAGO.—Use of chemical fertilizer in the United States has increased 400 per cent in the past fifty years, yet the consumption today averages slightly more than a ton per farm for the entire country, a report of the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee says.

This Ohio farmer believes in fertilizer. Crop in his left hand was fertilized. The one in his right was not.

"In 1888 American farms used in addition to manure about 1,000,000 tons of commercial fertilizer," the report sets forth. "In 1938 the consumption of fertilizer was estimated at 7,200,000 tons, or about one and one-tenth tons per farm.

Twenty years ago the average ton of mixed fertilizer contained only 13.8 per cent of plant food, as against 18.6 per cent now. Thus the average retail price of a unit of plant food was nearly 50 per cent lower in 1918 than it was in 1888."

Ice Follies Of '39

(Continued From Page Seven) when she finally managed to get alone in the bedroom. She locked the door behind her. She reached the phone and dialed her number. The lines were all busy. There were knocks on the door. She did not answer. She dialed again and again. At last she got the ice Palace. At long last. She got Larry "Darling, where are you?" he cried. "Never mind. Get over here right away."

"I can't get through the mob," she said. "A press tea — if you'd call it a tea which I wouldn't — is going on. You come over here!" "And see you in a mob I can't break through? No thank you. I had enough of that this morning quite enough to last me always. It's different here. We'll be alone in my office."

"I just can't, Larry," she said in a voice which shook. "I suppose you can't. You see I was thinking of you a my wife. I forgot that Sandra Lee hasn't a husband. She has her public."

"Larry," she was pleading now. "don't make it harder for me than it is. I want to be with you as much as you want to be with me. Surely you know that." "Forgive me, dear. I don't want in an hour."

to be cruel but — say, you'll have to have dinner. Where'll we meet? There was a pause before Mary could speak.

"I must go to dinner with some gang or other, so I'm told. Larry darling, please try to understand. I can't do anything I want to do. I get orders. I obey orders. She had never heard Larry's voice, sound as it did when he began speaking. She would not have believed he could say such bitter words. Suddenly she cut in.

"I don't blame you, dear, for talking so — only please don't. I've had a terrible day, and I have to fight to keep from crying like a baby. For weeks I've thought of nothing but one being together again — and then, to run into this. She stopped a minute and then said with determination: "I don't care if it happens. I'll shoot me if they want to. I'm going to see you. I'll get away if I have to jump out the window. Meet me at the Park. Ninth Street entrance to the Fifty-min hour."
