NATURE

(By Dr. G. B. Pennebaker, M.D.)

HIBERNATION OF MAMMALS

On a great part of our earth's surface conditions are not favorable for active life and growth for most mammals during a considerable part of the year. In some places the unfavorable condition is due to a lack of moisture or low temperature; in other places the unfavorable conditions are met by the animal by either migrating as many of the birds, the tree bats and some other mammals; or by going into a period of inactivity. In the hot or dry regions this rest period is called hibernation while in the colder regions the animal is said to hibernate. Some of our mammals and practically all of our cold blooded animals hibernate in the temperate regions. Many of our birds migrate but none of them hibernate.

In the late fall the mammals that hibernate select a desirable place that will remain above the freezing temperature, such as a cave, a deep burrow, or a hollow tree and prepares his winter bed. The type of place chosen varies according to the species of animal. Here he goes to sleep and hibernation is complete he awakes only when the warm days of spring have come. However in some animals the sleep is not so deep and they awaken to feed during every warm spell of the winter only to go back to sleep with the return of cold weather. During this time the animal lives on the food material stored in the body so that when spring comes the fat of the body has been used up and he is much reduced in size.

During hibernation the functions of the body are greatly reduced; the metabolism goes on at a very slow rate. If hibernation is complete it almost ceases. The rate of heart beat and breathing is reduced to a minimum and the body temperature falls to slightly above that of the environment. The gopher, for instance, has a summer body temperature of forty C. but in winter it is reduced to fifteen degrees; his summer respiration rate of fifty times per minute becomes almost imperceptible in winter; the heart beat, which is about three times as fast as men's is reduced to about four or five times per minute during hibernation period. The blood becomes so altered and its rate of flow so reduced that there is but a slight bleeding even from major wounds.

Among the mammals that hibernate practically completely are the gopher, bat, woodchuck and skunk; female bear and prairie dog in their northern-most range. Others, such as some mice, the squirrel, opossum and the mole bear hibernate intermittently.

Will You Do Your Bit To Help The Child Around The Corner?

By Joining The Drive For THE INFANTILE PARALYSIS FUND

How You Can Help

By purchasing a ticket and making up a party to attend the dinner celebrating

The President's Birthday FOR INFANTILE PARALYSIS

THURS., JAN. 30, 7:00 P. M.

At Which Justice Fred M. Vinson Will Be The Principal Speaker

A sumptuous banquet with the best possible obtainable speakers appearing has been arranged. More than one half of your admission price of $1.50 each person will go for the infantile paralysis fund. In addition the food committee has arranged with Miss Gray, the director of the cafeteria, to serve the best possible meal. Make plans now to form a party and attend. Many state officials, the college Board of Regents and leaders throughout Eastern Kentucky have already accepted invitations to attend.

You Can Also Help

By Joining "The March Of Dimes"

You may make your contribution to the "March of Dimes" campaign by buying coin containers will be placed in all business houses in which you are invited to deposit your contribution. In addition, gift coin containers will be placed at different times in the principal business sections of the city and young ladies will be given their contribution placing an emblem tag on all those who give to the fund.

Where Your Contribution Goes

All the money that is made in this campaign will be compiled and given to the Crippled Children and Infantile Paralysis Fund, Cases in Rowan County will be cared for out of the State and national funds. The average cost per year of caring for a child with infantile paralysis is $100.00. The money you give, much as the best of physicians and care is made possible through these contributions all over the United States will be carefully audited by the Executive Committee, which consists of leading individuals throughout the community.

Front view of the Kentucky State Capitol at Frankfort. Necessary repairs amounting to $68,000 are being made to the dome.

Refinancing of the state debt to carry only one percent interest will mark one of the greatest savings ever accomplished by a state administration in Kentucky, administration leaders said here following an announcement by Governor Keen Johnson of an agreement with bankers to refund the indebtedness.

"Five years ago," Governor Johnson said shortly after the refinancing plan was agreed on, "the state paid $1,350,000 in one year's time in interest on the state debt. It then ranged near $27,000,000 and carried the heavy burden of five percent interest. A reduction from $1,350,000 to $40,000 in interest marks a considering saving."

institutions, Governor Johnson recently stated.

Nearly $500,000 has been spent on repair of these institutional buildings, despite the economy program of the administration.

The Governor has said that while there have been "no cornerstone layings and no dedications, the boilers, wiring facilities, laundries and furnaces have been repaired."

Immediately after the oral contest, all students who took part in the Spelling Bee were given a free lunch. At this time, Mr. Leo Ball, who was Chairman of the Spelling Bee Committee, presented the award. The first prize was a new $100.00 bill, the second prize, a new $50.00 bill and the third prize, $20.00. Every child who entered the contest received a nice Webster's Dictionary. Immediately after the luncheon, the children were taken on a tour of the Morehead State Teachers College campus, and then to a free picture show, given by the Mills Theatre.

All arrangements for the County Spelling Bee were planned and carried out by the Spelling Bee Committee composed of Leo Ball, Chairman, Margaret S. as high school librarian.

The Home Economics will open the new Home Management house for students majoring in the department. Miss Berneice Flanagan will be in charge.

The Training school is inaugurating a new time schedule for next semester. All classes will begin and end on the hour, corresponding with the college schedule. This will remedy a situation which has proved inconvenient for student teachers in the past.

New courses are being offered also at Breckinridge. A course in Senior science will be taught from the standpoint of the consumer, and Home Ec. is being offered as an elective to the senior high students, while the ninth grade will take one Home Ec. class daily. Other new classes offered include a beginning typing class, an advanced Industrial Arts unit involving metals and crafts, and art for the ninth grade girls.

probably embody the majority of regulations, according to acting Dean, Chiles Van Antwerp.

The student must maintain an average standing of 2.0 and no credit will be granted for a grade below (C). The degree will require thirty-six weeks of residence and the student will be required to complete a minimum of thirty semester hours, twenty-four of which shall be in regular Western University courses and six in his major field. The major field will require a minimum of twelve semester hours of course work in addition to the thesis. A maximum of twelve semester hours of work in a minor field will be accepted for the degree.

Rev. L. E. Leeper Conducts Bible Study in Schools

Reverend L. E. Leeper, who has for the past two years conducted Bible Study in the schools of Rowan County, concluded his year's work with a Bible Sword Drill contest, held at the High School Gymnasium, Friday, January 17th.

The drill consisted of his calling passages of the scripture and the children competing to see which could find the passage called for first. It was a very interesting program and the winner of the event was awarded a beautiful gold lettered Bible. Sabra McBrayer of Poplar Grove School won first place; Rubie Mae Earls of Stratton Branch School won second place; Vada Plank of Clark School won third place and Eileen Fouch of Clark School was fourth place.

The children who participated in this event were entertained and given a luncheon at the Baptist Church by the Reverend and Mrs. Leeper.

Men Needed For Nat'l. Defense Jobs

Getting the skilled men needed for National Defense jobs continues to be one of the greatest problems of the new year for the Civil Service Commission. Thousands were appointed during 1946 but thousands more are going to be needed during the coming year at the arsenals and navy yards and in the air service. Toolmakers, instrument makers, and machinists are especially in demand, and they are especially necessary to the national defense program. Among others also urgently needed are: Aircraft instrument mechanics; metalworkers (aviation); coppermiths; grinders; liftmen; ordnance mechanics; shipfitters; and instrument workers (shifting duty). If you are skilled in any of these trades, and want a Government job, write to or call for information at the office of the Board of United States Civil Service Examiners at any first or second-class post office. You may also learn about these jobs by consulting the notices posted in the third-class post offices.

Interview With Escamilla More Interesting Than Any Novel

(By LARUE WARNER)

Colonel Escamilla de Escamilla during the concert which he and company presented Wednesday night at the College Auditorium, appeared in the traditional Mexican cowboy outfit. On the stage he and the talker presented an interesting and colorful but they were nothing compared to the one-related backstage after the performance. Colonel Escamilla is forty-one years old, but certainly does not look it. He says that twenty-two years of his life have been spent in fighting. His life story, the bits of it that he told, was more fascinating than any novel.

Colonel Escamilla was born in the heart of the Yaqui Indian country and was raised among them. At an early age he was adopted into the tribe.

When Escamilla was fourteen he joined Pancho Villa in his guerrilla warfare. He was wounded four times and had his left hand cut off by machine gun bullets. He said that Villa's father was a woodcutter on his father's ranch. He and Villa were good friends before the uprising and so naturally he joined Villa's forces. Colonel Escamilla told of being captured along with some companions by the Federal ists and of their sentence to be shot at sunrise. In the night the Colonel and his men managed to escape and in the stormy, loose and escaped through the wall.

The men of Escamilla's troupe all came from his ranch in Mexico. Some were Greco, Rubio came from the isthmus of Tehuantepec and is a princess of the last tribe of Incu Indians.

Escamilla was made a Colonel for life in the Mexican National Army, the youngest man to ever be given such an honor.

Colonel Escamilla has in the last few years been giving concerts in Europe and South America. He left England in 1937. He is rapidly touring the United States giving four or five concerts each week. They travel and carry their equipment by train and by station wagon. From Morehead they were going to Cleveland.

Backstage was filled with people of all ages after the program. Colonel Escamilla, autographed, answered questions, and talked in Spanish to members of his company almost simultaneously.

A few minutes conversation with Escamilla is enough to convince one that he is one of the most interesting characters one is likely to meet.
