

CHAPTER THREE

Joe Wyman contributed such spectacular help that within twenty-four hours Crandell was behind bars. Nick was exonerated and yours Dr. Kildare cleared of all charges implicating him in the murder of Phony Garson.

Old Dr. Gillespie was delighted with the turn of events. It was nurse Mary Loumont who informed Dr. Gillespie that Kildare was not in the clear even though Crandell had confessed the murder.

"His troubles are just beginning. Mary informed him. "I'm in love with Rosalie Lewitt — Nick's sister." Gillespie waved her away. "Reticulous."

"I overheard him talking to her on the phone. I heard him say: 'Goodbye darling. I love you. Gillespie paled. "Why didn't you tell me that before?" he demanded. Her eyes fell before his glowing look. "I know. You couldn't make up your mind whether you were on his side — or mine — or your own —"

"Mary! Puss! my wiled chair out of here. I'm going to take a look at that red-head with the green coupe."

Rosalie knew him at once. You're Doctor Gillespie," she said, as she opened the door. Gillespie wheeled himself into her living room without waiting to answer. "Jimmy Kildare is very fond of you," he said kindly. "And I'm very fond of Jimmy Kildare. Why don't you tell me all about yourself?"

The ringing of the phone prevented her answer. She crossed the room to answer it. Jimmy was calling. "Why hello, Jimmy?" she cried and flashed a triumphant look at Gillespie. "Who? Nick is innocent and you're proud of it?" Her eyes filled with tears of happiness. "Oh, Jimmy — you're sure you have the murderer? Well — who is he?" Her face went suddenly white. "Who?" she whispered. "Tom Crandell? Tom Crandell must escaped her. She averted all but faintest, then half collapsed into a chair and began to shake in senseless, hysterical grief. Gillespie wheeled his chair to the phone. "Kildare," he said sharply. "This is Dr. Gillespie. You'd better come up here right away."

He hung up the receiver and turned to Rosalie. The girl had seized a framed photo from the piano and was crushing it to her lips.

The whole story was now complete to him. She wept in an agony of tears. "You had no suspicion of the truth?" he asked sternly. "You knew no reason why Crandell would kill Garson — why he would want your brother dead?"

"No, no, she said. "Tom and my brother were the best of friends."

The doorkbell rang.

"That's Jimmy," he said. "Pull yourself together, my dear, and open the door."

"Are you going to tell him?" she asked fearfully. He shook his head. "No I'm not going to tell him anything. You are."

And Rosalie did. At first Jimmy was too stunned, too incredulously to grasp the real meaning of her story.

"You didn't care anything about me at all?" he asked at last. "No Jimmy I've always loved Tom Crandell. Everything I did for far as you were concerned was to save Nick. I never dreamed it was Tom. You must believe that, I honestly thought Nick killed Garson."

And so I did everything — anything — just to keep you in line."

He stared at her for a moment. In her face he read the truth. He lost another word, he turned and walked out of her life.

Four days later Dr. Gillespie sat in his office and waited for some word from his favorite interne. None came. Joe Wyman wandered in and out for now.

"Does he know that I'm the one tipped the cops off to Nick's hide-out place?" Joe asked hesitantly. "No."

"You think he'll be mad when he finds out?" Joe questioned. The phone rang. Sally, the telephone operator, reported that Jim my had just come into the hospital.

"Send him in here," roared Gillespie. He turned on Joe in a rage. "Wyman, you fall-out-get out of here —"

Wyman did a quick fade-out through the rear door just as young Kildare entered the anti-room to Gillespie's office.

Dr. Gillespie glared at his protégé from under beetling brows. "What's the idea of barging in here after midnight, Kildare? This is a hospital, not a night club. Jimmy's law set in the well-known straight line. "I just came to say goodbye. I'm going home to practice with my father. If I had any sense, I'd have gone in the first place."

"If you'd had any sense there?"

would have been no need for going at all," bellowed Gillespie.

Jimmy glanced at the clock. "Dr. Gillespie, I've just thirty minutes to catch my train, so I've no time to listen —"

"Why your young whippersnapper. If you're as set in your ways as the whole thing would have been over before you started," she glared.

"Are you planning? You mean you planned that arrest?" "Certainly I did. And I gave Wyman twenty dollars for a stool pigeon to tip off the police to flow a red-head in a green coupe. "At that, I'll bet Wyman kept his truck himself."

"That is, I hadn't come back," challenged Jimmy. "What would you expect me to do?"

Gillespie glared at him. "If you'd have had any sense, you'd have transferred to this hospital — that you your chance to talk to him."

Economy Or Revenge

Four of Governor Chandler's best friends were released from the faculty and ground force of the Morehead State Teachers College last Monday afternoon when the Board of Regents met, here by the simple process of the president of the institution failing to recommend their reelection. Newspaper reports state that the reason assigned for the failure to reelect the four was given as an economy move.

That on the face of it, is ridiculous, a mere smoke screen to conceal that actual motive of revenge. For the actual motive was revenge, in our opinion.

Let us state at the outset that we have no patience with ineffectiveness. If the employees and faculty members of the college are inefficient, they should be released, but the reason should be assigned.

It would be rather pointless to review in detail the growth of the process which was finally climaxed in the dismissal of the employees Monday. That has already been gone into thoroughly in past issues of the News, all of which we again repeat in effect. Monday's action by Babb is merely the final action of a vengeful man determined to rock his vengeance of those whom he considers his enemies, regardless of their qualifications for their work.

We intend to be brief in this column. We cite only one instance which we know to be the truth, the facts of which give the complete lie to the statement that Dean Clarence E. Nickell has failed to cooperate with the administration.

In February, 1938, the editor of the News was in Frankfort with Dean Nickell who at that time had Senator. We saw the Governor, who offered at that time to remove Babb as president of the Morehead State Teachers College and to install Dean Nickell himself in the position. Dean Nickell proved himself to be all man. He told the Governor, in our presence, that he believed it would tear up the college and injure it, that the welfare of the college was more valuable to him than a position and that he thought it would be well to leave Babb in as president, and give him an opportunity to prove himself and his ability. Dean Nickell at that time turned down an opportunity for advancement, because he was big enough to want to give the man who Monday "cut his throat" a chance to make good.

Babb has been persecuting Nickell, since that time, because he recognized in him a danger to his dictatorship. The result Monday was merely a climax to a reign of persecution and bitterness that has extended practically from the time Nickell saved his hide as president, to the present day.

His insidious program of propaganda has failed, as was completely demonstrated by the scenes of the past two days, when hundreds of students paraded until late Monday night past the president's home, demanding an explanation and that the men who had been dismissed be reinstated. It was a complete indication of the charge that Dean Nickell was a hindrance to the progress of the college. It completely refuted the charge that these men who were dismissed had interfered with the administration.

We believe and we hope that something good will come of this. We believe that justice will triumph and that these men will be able to say when they look back on this week, that, even though they lost their job, their sacrifice has not been in vain. Because we believe that this move on the part of Babb, clanking as it does the acts of the past, will result in his complete and final downfall. May that day be hastened.

What—No Base After Ten Years

Reports from Frankfort through the Highway Department, indicate that the Christy Creek residents will remain in the dirt and continue to eat the dust from the Sandy Hook-Rodburn Highway for at least another summer. The reports say that after ten long years of dust eating, and complaint, the engineers of the highway department have finally discovered that the road does not have sufficient base on which to lay a surface.

Frankly we do not presume to know all or even little about highway construction, or surfacing. It does seem on the face of it, that the excuse of not having a sufficient base on which to construct a black top surface is a flimsy one at best.

The Sandy Hook-Rodburn Highway was first built a matter of ten years ago. It has been surfaced with rock for at least six years or longer. That rock has undoubtedly had ample opportunity to settle and build a firm and solid base. In fact, in that length of time it should have filled the soil to such an extent as to make the base almost solid.

The Flemingsburg road was graded and drained one year and surfaced the next with concrete, a much higher type surfacing than is asked on the Christy Creek road. That base was evidently all right for this type of surface in less than a year. Yet the base on the Christy Creek road is said to be insufficient for a black top surface.

Last year the engineers approved the surfacing of this road. The highway department went so far as to award a contract for the surfacing. The citizens were excited and delighted. This all occurred before the citizens were wakened and a contract was issued, and a contract was entirely forgotten and no work order was issued, and a contract without a work order is worth scarcely the paper it is written on. Still, after having approved this contract, and certainly it was not approved until after the engineers (or was it another set of engineers) specifications, these same engineers (or was it another set of engineers) discover that the base is not sufficient for a surface.

Politics to one side, we believe that this road should be surfaced. If it cannot be done, we insist that the highway department at least give some plausible reason why it should not be done. The citizens along his highway are good citizens. They are taxpayers and support all the functions of government. Yet they are forced to live in a cloud of death producing dust, while others no more worthy are given surfaced highways past their homes. The road is not only unhealthy for the residents but dangerous for driving, due to this dust that blinds drivers and causes practically every wreck that occurs along the highway.

Coney Island Is Fine Amusement Park

Coney Island, Cincinnati, "America's finest amusement park," is now open for the season. A program of special entertainment features is announced for the week end and for Decoration Day.

The holiday will be made especially attractive by fireworks. The 20-mile Ohio river ride to and from Coney aboard the palatial, all-steel steamer Island Queen is an outing in itself. A thousand free picnic tables, free playground facilities for children, the large athletic field for the free use of children and adults, are among the attractive available to all holiday visitors.

"The Watercade," the free fireworks spectacle with which Coney opened its season, will continue every night through Sunday, starting at 9 o'clock. A large cast, including electrically lighted gondolas, floats and barges, canoe contests, and the Court of the Princesses, and the Lake of Fire, are featured. Ritchey's Water Circus, which is part of the production, also is presented at 9 o'clock every afternoon in a free performance of high and fancy diving.

The Coney Circus is another new feature this season. It presents an aggregation of clever performing dogs, cats, ponies, monkeys and other animal acts.

Coney Island is on U. S. Route No. 52. Auto parking is free and the public landing in Cincinnati for those who wish to board the Island Queen, and at Coney for those who enter by the auto gate.

If you placed millions of dollars worth of advertising each year

You would follow the same principles that the major companies in the United States pursue—you would place it in the hands of reliable advertising agencies—experts who can guarantee that you will receive the most for your advertising dollar.

By what basis does a national advertising agency determine the advertising value of publications?

Possessing an accurate knowledge of how to get the best results from each dollar expended, an advertising expert considers these four cardinal points in rating a newspaper or any other advertising medium—
1—Paid-up Circulation, 2—How well it covers its territory, 3—Price of advertising per column inch or agate line, and 4—The buying power of the people it serves and its connection with the product being advertised.

You—Mr. Merchant Can Very Wisely Adopt the same Advertising Principles

Make a close investigation of the circulation of a newspaper before spending your advertising dollar—ascertain the number of families that newspaper reaches—Families that are prospective customers—determine the price per column inch you will pay—Find out the actual standing of that newspaper with your clientele. Spend your advertising money wisely so that you will receive value for every dollar you spend.

The Rowan County News, Established 43 Years Ago, Invites Your Close Inspection and Comparison

This newspaper asks that you carefully check its circulation—its standing in the community—the territory it serves and how its advertising columns can serve you—then make a comparison—

OVER 3,300 SUBSCRIBERS — ALMOST 3 TIMES THE CIRCULATION REACHED BY ANY OTHER PUBLICATION IN ROWAN COUNTY

The high esteem with which the columns of this newspaper are held by the people of this section of Kentucky is forcibly and undeniably explained with the matter of fact record that the Rowan County News has over 3,300 subscribers, almost three times as much circulation as any other publication in Rowan County. Yet the advertising rates in have not been raised for local merchants—in other words an advertisement placed in this newspaper is worth almost three times as much as that placed in any other publication in this county. The Rowan County News reaches eighty-five percent of the homes of this county and also has a large circulation in Elliott, Morgan, Fleming, Bath, Menifee and Carter Counties—all of which is in a shopping radius of Morehead. Ninety percent of the 3,300 subscribers on the Rowan County News's lists are in a territory within 25 miles of Morehead.

There must be a reason why the people prefer the Rowan County News. For 43 years it has been their newspaper and each year that has passed has seen the circulation lists increase.

WE INVITE YOU, MR. MERCHANT, TO CAREFULLY INVESTIGATE AND THEN MAKE A COMPARISON.

Lapping" was called in his home a number of times by telephone which he refused to answer and he did finally unwillingly direct his modellers, Roberts and Caudill to unlock the cell and release plaintiff—Lapping and Lester Hogge. City Attorney aided and abetted Roberts and Caudill."
 Lapping is also accused of serving as Mayor illegally, as he is charged with holding a state position as director of the Training School, with having been elected to office, corrupt and is unfit and unqualified to teach any subject of law and is guilty of pernicious political activity by changing his politics to vote for a political party.

 He charges that all members involved as well as the members-of the Board of Education and superintendent are members of the Masonic Fraternity and that they have banded together to create an interlocking directorate among members of the order.
 P. H. Bee was included in the suit as the police department had sponsored the Bee Shows here last week, and Proctor hoped to attach the receipts due Caudill and Roberts. However the Carnival had left town before the papers had been served.
 He charged intimidation and coercion and a number of other crimes and misdemeanors for all of which he had a judgement in the sum of $10,000.

Member Of Committee
 Several educators in various parts of the United States recently were asked by the Editor of "The Journal of Education," a journal reaching all parts of the country and published in Boston, Massachusetts to participate in a Symposium. Dr. Frank B. Miller of Morehead was one of the nine asked.
 The Symposium was built around the question: "How Much Helpful Supervision Should A Superintendent Give?" The discussions of this Symposium compose the leading article in the May issue of "The Journal of Education." The May issue is dedicated to the unnamed teacher in a midwestern state who raised the question about Supervision which has brought a variety of thoughtful and constructive responses from practical school-folk" as the editor writes.
 Dr. Frank B. Miller's contribution was entitled "Democratic Supervision."

WOMEN'S NOTES
 The Young Women's Christian League is planning a picnic at the Rock Fork Camp Ground on Saturday, May 27. The picnic will be held from 10:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. and will include a luncheon, games, and a program. Tickets are 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children. The picnic will be held on the grounds of the Rock Fork Camp Ground, near the Rock Fork River.
 The Rock Fork Camp Ground is one of the most beautiful spots in the county. It is situated on the banks of the Rock Fork River, and is surrounded by dense woods. The camp ground is well equipped with modern conveniences, and is a popular resort for the people of the county.
 The Young Women's Christian League is a branch of the Y. W. C. A. of Morehead. It was organized in 1910, and has since that time been active in promoting the welfare of the young women of the community. The league has a number of interesting projects, and is always ready to help in any way possible.

Students Demand Dean Nickell Be Reinstated
 tion; that he had not asked the students to do it, that he had not started it and that he would do nothing to stop it. He declared that he hoped the students would do nothing to injure themselves or their records.
 Babo agreed then to call a meeting of the entire student body for Wednesday morning on condition that the students attended classes Tuesday. Later he is said to have changed his mind, saying that the students had not called the strike off.
 According to Babo less than ten percent of the students failed to attend classes. Others stated that less than forty per cent of the students were in their classes Tuesday morning.
 Throughout the morning strike leaders led groups through the various buildings maintaining their militant spirit throughout.
 Another monster demonstration was planned for Tuesday night, but on the return of Dean Nickell from Frankfort where he had spent the day in conference with the governor, the strikers decided to postpone the parade, at Nickell's request.
 It was, all in all, a complete victory for Dean Nickell and gave conclusive proof of his popularity with the students of the college.

Calling Dr. Kildare

Jimmy stared at him, speechless.

The only redeeming thing about the whole performance," Gillespie shouted, "was your instinctive faith in Nick." He was silent for a moment. "Your instinct still works, even when everything else about you has gone haywire," he conceded gratefully.

"I suppose I should also think you for — for this afternoon at Rosalie's," Jimmy said flatly. "I struck out my chin and some body took a crack at it. It hurts. But at least I know that sort of thing is never going to happen to me again. I didn't have to be so—so blind."

"You did NOT, you niddumpoo," agreed Gillespie. "Books have been written about girls like Rosalie — but they're just the long way of saying one thing. She's a bad little girl. And you should have known it."

Jimmy nodded. "I'll miss my train."

"No, Kildare. You've got time. I want to know about the killing." "It was diabolically clever," explained Jimmy. "Crandell owed Garson a lot of money. He was also worried because Nick was starting to question about him and Rosalie. So he ribbed Nick into a grievance against Garson, waited until they met — then shot them both with different guns; he gave it all look like a gun fight."

"Very clever," agreed Gillespie. Jimmy extended his hand. "Good-bye, Dr. Gillespie. And thank you for everything. I've been wrong and stupid. But I'm paying for it." Gillespie took his hand. "Say," he said abruptly, "instead of going to Hartford tonight, how'd you like to stay and be my assistant again?"

Jimmy's eyes all but popped out

"Why are you asking me to do now?" Gillespie demanded. "Because I don't want to waste all my trouble and effort," Gillespie replied testily. "Why do you suppose I had Garson put you in the dispensary?"

"You arranged that, too?" Jimmy asked.

"Certainly," belated the other. "And I put Mary Lamont there to see if contact with hundreds of human beings would tell you that there's more to diagnosing than guinea pigs and microscopes."

Jimmy nodded seriously.

"Kildare," continued the other, "there are what I call invisible wounds — wounds to the conscience, the soul, the heart — wounds which only a doctor with a heart of his own can see. People die of these invisible wounds just as surely as —" he stopped and raised his hand — "just as surely as of this thing on my fingers."

"You know," Kildare answered gently. "I didn't believe you when you told me what Dr. Lockberg said."

"Did you think I'd do this to you?" shouted Gillespie. "Do you think you'd be here now if I hadn't seen that you didn't believe me when I said Lockberg said I didn't have cancer?"

Instinctively Jimmy put out a tentative hand to temper, comforting gesture.

"Then we've got to work that much faster, haven't we?" he asked gently.

"Of course. You know, Kildare, we haven't the faintest idea yet of what doctors can really do. Except if you don't want to consider your God-given privilege of easing pain and postponing death, there's a practical side of it. There's enough money, time and labor lost through illness to pay all the doctors on earth — to say nothing of the tragedy that's caused when some little pay envelope is shy two days' wages." He stared into space.

"Kildare, the day is coming when a man, who didn't ask to be put on this earth will be guaranteed by every resource of the human race the right of health, added to his rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"I know," said Jimmy softly. Gillespie's dream of a world not having settled the future destinies of all the people that'll ever be born on this misguided planet, well consider the subject closed. He leaned back in his wheelchair. "I'll admit I was a little rough on you, Jimmy."

"I'm sure I've learned some thing," Jimmy smiled. He glanced up at the wall clock. "I'd better wire my mother that I'm not coming home."

"I talked to her an hour ago," Gillespie answered complacently. "She doesn't expect you."

Kildare weighed his head. What could anybody do with this amazing, wonderful, savage old man?

Well — what do you want to do now?" Gillespie demanded. "Do you want to go to work — or are you going to waste the whole rest of the night sleeping?"

"Sleeping? Why? I stopped feeling sleepy" about five minutes ago —"

"Then why don't you get out of here and start working on the unfortunate young woman waiting in the ward," laughed Gillespie.

Jimmy snuggled contentedly and started for the door.

"Before you go," belated Gillespie, "you'd better fix that clock. It's pointed to the wall clock behind him. "It's fifteen minutes slow."

"Fifteen minutes slow?" queried Jimmy.

Gillespie nodded. "I fixed it that way. I wanted to make sure you'd miss your train."

Jimmy threw him one last, comprehending look. He fixed the clock, then pulled open the door. As the door closed behind him, Dr. Kildare, old Dr. Gillespie chuckled happily to himself.

not attempt to fight fire, wearing cotton or silk dresses—a human life is worth more than property. 4. See that everyone is out of danger before you fight the fire. 5. Money spent for fire prevention, such as approved electrical appliances, repairs to chimneys and heating plants, fire stops, etc., is worth more than that spent for extinguishing equipment.

WILLING BOOSTS DAIRYING PROFIT

Culling low producers is lending to boost profits in the Bullitt-ferson Dairy Herd Improvement Association. One member sent eight cows to the butcher. Their record last year was $35.78 over feed cost. Sixteen cows retained in the herd averaged $86.20 over feed cost.

The low producers, says Tester Paul Robbins, consumed 29 percent of the feed used in the herd and produced 17 percent of the profit, while the 16 better cows consumed 71 percent of the feed and produced 83 percent of the profit. It would require 28 of the poor producers to return as much profit as the 16 cows of the herd. It is the low-grade group made out, it would take nearly four cows of the low-producing kind to equal one of the better-class.

Fast Broil for Steaks

FAST broiling of steaks is recommended by a new scientific broiler burner of the modern gas range if you want a dining masterpiece in double-quick time. The broiling is speedy, easy and smokeless. What could be simpler?

Wipe one and one-half inch thick rib steak with damp cloth, remove excess fat, clip edges, pre-cook broiler with heat regulator set at 250 degrees Fahrenheit. Or, if one burner serves both oven and broiler, turn the burner on full — leaving the oven door open slightly during broiling. Close broiler door in both cases.

Place steak on broiler rack 2 inches from flame. For a rare steak broil until nicely browned, turn and broil for same time on other side. For a medium rare steak broil 12 minutes on each side; longer for a steak well done. Leave meat in hot broiler compartment for one minute after burner is turned off, to mellow it.

Remove from broiler rack to a HOT platter—always Garnish with small garnets cups filled with horseradish cream, or stuffed bell peppers and tomato and lettuce potatoe dice immediately.

MOLE YOUR STOCKINGS

By Katharine Fisher
Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

We've spent many an hour in our textile laboratory investigating a quality of making well-known brands of hosiery, to find out how you can do to make your stockings wear longer. "Wear squares" of active girls and women, have helped us verify our laboratory findings on stockings in actual use. Here are the several things we've found which will help you lengthen the life of your stockings.

First, buy a good brand of hosiery. Before buying, plan your hosiery on the following points:

- 1. Buy 2-hair for evening wear.
- 2. Buy 4-hair for afternoon or informal wear.
- 3. Buy 6-hair for street or business.
- 4. Buy 8-hair for sport and sportswear.
- 5. Buy 10-hair for extra service.

Of course, the very shoddy stockings do not wear as well as the heavier ones. But that you will want to wear them on occasions or their beauty alone.

Buy at least 2 pairs of the same color at the same time. If one of each pair wears out, you will still have a whole pair left. Considering there is a price saving when 2 pairs are bought.

Be sure the linings of your shoes are smooth to prevent unnecessary wear. Rough soles or sharp-edged buckles may also cause snags and runs.

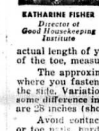

Put your stockings properly. The best way is to first roll the leg of the stocking down and slip the foot through the roll into the toe. Then straighten the foot open, and slowly unroll the stocking, smoothing it up over the heel with the finger tips and straightening the leg down at the same time.

Don't wear garters after you have lost their elasticity. They should have plenty of stretch. The garter should always be clasped halfway down the leg or reinforced part of the stocking, never in the heel or toe patch, or on the heel. Put garters white, seated in order to allow for knee action.

It is important, too, to buy the correct size and length of stocking. The size stocking to buy is the actual length of your foot in inches, from the back of the heel to the end of the toe, measured along the side of the foot.

The approximate length of stockings you require is from the point where you fasten your garter to the bottom of the heel, measured at the side. Variations in size of ankle, calf and top measurements make some difference in length requirements. The standard lengths for hosiery are 28 inches (short), 30 inches (average) and 32-33 inches (extra long).

Avoid contact with sharp or rough objects, such as rough gear or toe caps, hard collars or corsets, settings of rings, silvers or wood and rough harness or chairs, and particularly desks. If you are an office worker, stand by the legs when you also might injure the delicate silk threads in shoes, stockings or your toe nails smoothly pedicured. If you have dry skin on feet, use a cream lotion on it as regularly as you do on your hands. If you are sensitive, many of the most popular threads and runs which happen so quickly and are so disastrous, can be avoided.

Cincinnati Reds Close Three Game Series

There are no soft spots in this hectic National League race. At least, the Cincinnati Reds haven't been able to find any. And, so all they have to look forward to this coming week is another big of feverish activity against the toughest of their tough foes.

They were to close their three game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers at Crosley Field Tuesday, engage the New York Giants in a two game series Wednesday and Thursday, then move to St. Louis for four games in three days there, for Sunday.

The doubleheader being scheduled Monday they will be back in their own orchard against the pennant defending Chicago Cubs, then Walnut Street, Cincinnati. In will engage these Cubs in morning games when reservations are accepted and afternoon games on Tuesday, accompanied by checks or money on Memorial Day. The morning game tickets will be sent you by will start at 10 o'clock and the afternoon game will get under way at 3.

The Giants gave the Reds a pretty tough dose in New York a short time ago, whipping them in two straight games. It is natural for the Reds to look for revenge, particularly with each game meaning as much as it does in this hot race. Second game of the Giant series, Thursday, will be ladies' day.

Following the Memorial Day games against the Cubs, the Reds will take to the road until June 14, when they will return for a long home stay. On June 15 they will play their first night game of the season against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Tickets for all future Redleg games may be reserved by writing the Henry Straus Co., Sixth and Main defending Chicago Cubs, then Walnut Street, Cincinnati. In will engage these Cubs in morning games when reservations are accepted and afternoon games on Tuesday, accompanied by checks or money on Memorial Day. The morning game tickets will be sent you by

Fertilization Can Rob Crops Of Plant Food

Have a one-sided program of fertilization can eventually reduce crop production and rob the soil of valuable plant food elements was explained by Prof. George Roberts of the University of Kentucky.

A well balanced system of soil improvement is the Kentucky farmer's best insurance for maintaining fertility and crop productivity. Prof. Roberts pointed out:

"Too many farmers," he said, "think that when they have limed and fertilized their land with phosphates, so that legumes can be grown, the continued use of this treatment is all that is necessary to keep their land productive."

"After growing a good legume crop, the yield of corn or tobacco may be so much better than proviously that it would appear they were justified in their belief. However, when something is added to the soil to make it produce more, obviously the larger yields draw more heavily upon all the plant nutrients in the soil and exhaust those not added much more rapidly.

"For example, if the yield of crops is doubled, as is often the case when lime and phosphate are used, the draft on potash is twice as great. Then unless provision is made for returning potash to the soil, a time will come when crops will not get enough and yields will be seriously reduced.

"Potash starvation shows up quicker on tobacco and alfalfa than on other crops, but even corn will sooner or later be affected.

"Primarily, most of the potash used by grain crops is in the stalk and straw and much of that used by tobacco is in the stalk. Also, a ton nineteenth of the potash is fed consumed by farm animals if excreted in the manure, but about two-thirds of it in liquid manure. If manure is carefully saved and returned to the soil and all crop residues are carefully saved and used for bedding or returned to the soil, then the potash supply will be maintained on most Kentucky soils for most crops.

"However, it will be found profitable to use some potash in the fertilizer for tobacco, unless manured very liberally. Alfalfa grown on the same land will almost certainly suffer from a potash shortage unless the ground is manured, or potash fertilizers are used along with other needed fertilizers."

THE FARM AND HOME
More living on porches is advocated by Miss Ida Hagman, home economist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Ninety percent of Kentucky homes have porches that can be used comfortably for six months in the year, she declares.

Fabrics that have been previously treated to develop crease resistance should be carefully washed. Like silk or wool, they should be laundered in lukewarm water with neutral soap. The water and strong soap destroy their resistance to wrinkles.

Kill lice and mites before they come home to your kitchen. Boil each bowl with sodium bicarbonate in warm water, dip the handle in solution of 10 gallons of lukewarm water in which a pound of sodium fluoride has been dissolved. Clean and spray roots and other equipment with nicotine sulphate solution.

It is better not to turn pigs on pasture until they are at least three weeks old. Younger pigs may become chilled by wet pasture, which lowers their resistance and makes them liable to scours. Keep troughs clean and feeds dry.

Best cakes are made when all ingredients are at room temperature. At room temperatures, the fat will be soft enough to beat easily, the eggs will whip to best volume than when cold, and the ingredients will blend to a better consistency.

The New World has the finest birds on earth; the United States has the finest birds in the New World; Kentucky has the finest birds in the United States; look for yourselves and see.

SPRING CONSIDERED GOOD TIME TO PAINT
When men talk about painting they usually are thinking about porches and the building. Women, on the other hand, often think about making something look better. This want to brighten up kitchen walls, lighten the woodwork, or change colors.

For homemakers seized with the spring urge to paint, Miss Ida Hagman of the Kentucky College of Agriculture has several practical suggestions.

First, prepare for the painting job. Get the right kind of paint for the work to be done and follow the manufacturer's directions as to stirring, thinning, undercoating and the like. Wall paint will do on a floor. Floor or deck paint on a window sash or door is against wear from the feet.

Anything to be painted needs some preparation. New unpainted wood requires little beyond dusting, thinning, undercoating and the like. Wall paint will do on a floor. Floor or deck paint on a window sash or door is against wear from the feet.

FARMERS' INSPECT PROCESSING PLANTS
Farmers of Boone, Campbell and Kenton counties recently visited packing, poultry and dairy plants in Cincinnati, where they saw grading, selling and processing of live stock, poultry and dairy products. They also heard explanations of the procedure followed in receiving, grading and processing of live stock and poultry, and in putting out market news and price quotations. Handling of eggs and poultry, including government grading and pasteurization and bottling of milk and the manufacture of ice cream, butter and cheese were interesting features of the tour.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

An Appeal to the Senses

By IRVIN S. COBB

THE editor of a New York evening newspaper has a little niece who, on her sixth birthday, received as presents a wrist-watch and a large bottle of perfume. Having strapped on the watch, and carefully scented herself, the youngster spent the entire day proudly parading the apartment directing the attention of all and sundry to her new possessions. Eventually she became somewhat of a bore. For the evening some friends of her parents were coming in. "Honey," said her mother, "I can understand why you should be proud of your birthday gifts but grows people are not interested in such things. You may come to dinner tonight on condition that you do not mention your wrist-watch or your bottle of perfume."

The little one promised. At the table she sat, saying not a word, but from time to time sniffing audibly, and at frequent intervals raising her left wrist to her ear to catch the sound of the ticking. These tactics failed to attract attention on the part of the guests. Toward the end of the meal, in a lull in the conversation, little Miss Helen mused: "Listen, everybody," she said. "If anybody hears anything or smells anything sweet, it's me."

A GOOD CUP OF COFFEE EVERY TIME YOU TRY

By Katharine Fisher

Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

Michael Angelo said that trifles make perfection—but perfection is no trifle! So it is with coffee making. A good cup of coffee can be made every time you try, but only if you will remember a number of seemingly small but vastly important things which enter into the process. Should you forget about them, it will only be luck if your coffee isn't too weak or too strong, cloudy or bitter. Here are the rules of good coffee making, rules that have been carefully tested by a host of good housewives and months of research by coffee experts in our own Good Housekeeping Institute laboratories.

Be sure your coffee is fresh. The coffee you use, whether in the bean or ground, must be fresh. Be sure you know when the coffee you buy was roasted, or that it is vacuum-packed. In the case of coffee which is not vacuum-packed, if there is a date on the container it should be within a few days of the date of purchase.

Select coffee with flavor you like. The price of coffee varies according to the cost of the different coffees that make up a particular blend. The flavor also varies with the blend, so you may find it necessary to try several brands before you find one that appeals to your particular taste. So, buy a brand with a flavor you like and no more than you can use in a week.

A universal grind makes good coffee. Usually it isn't necessary to ask your grocer to grind or regrind coffee to suit the coffee-making device you use. If a universal grind is available, it will be satisfactory for any type of coffee maker. If the brand you prefer does not have a universal grind, buy a percolator and a drip grind for a drip-coffee maker.

Don't mix fresh coffee with stale. It isn't necessary to discard coffee that you have left in the container. In doing this you may jeopardize the flavor of the fresh coffee by mixing it with coffee left in the container.

Keep coffee maker clean. Your coffee-making utensils should be scrupulously clean. Coffee oils have a habit of clinging to the inner surfaces of utensils and eventually give off an unpleasant musty flavor to the solution and let it boil. If the appliance cannot stand such heat, let it soak in a dishpan full of this hot solution. Bases of coffee makers in which there is an electric heating element must never be immersed in water. Percolators can be filled with either of the foregoing solutions; the application of heat will cleanse the tube. Be sure to rinse thoroughly after cleaning with any solution. And when the coffee maker is set aside, keep the cover off so it can "air."

The standard measure in making coffee. Now we come to the actual making of the coffee. For a brew which suits many people, use two level standard measuring tablespoons of coffee for each half-pint standard measuring cupful of water. These proportions hold good for all methods of coffee making. If you prefer some other strength, determine your own proportions and be sure to measure them carefully. You will have coffee that may taste very grainy sometimes and pretty bad at other times.

At least twice a month give your coffee maker a more thorough cleaning. Porcelain, enamelware or glass utensils should be cleaned by boiling in a solution of one tablespoon of washing soda or borax to each quart of water. If you wish, you can fill such a coffee maker with the solution and let it boil. If the appliance cannot stand such heat, let it soak in a dishpan full of this hot solution. Percolators can be filled with either of the foregoing solutions; the application of heat will cleanse the tube. Be sure to rinse thoroughly after cleaning with any solution. AND that's just the beer tax revenue this state itself collects... to lift the burden of direct taxation for our shoulders. Nationwide, beer contributes over a million dollars yearly to the cost of government. Think what that means in paying for relief, in public works, in old age assistance right in your own community.

Then think of the million new jobs that beer made. And then add that to a 100 million dollar market for farmers' crops!

How can we keep these benefits... for you and for us? Brewers of America realize this depends on keeping beer selling as wholesome as beer itself. They want to help public officials in every possible way. They cannot enforce laws. But they can—and will—cooperate!
