Brown Opens Campaign For Nomination

Lexington Attorney Says He Has Personal Endorsement Of The President

Claiming President Roosevelt's personal approval of his candidacy, John Young Brown, brilliant Lexington attorney and statesman, formally opened his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor, at Morganfield Saturday.

"I'm not violating any confidence, because it's been in the newspapers," Senator Brown, addressing himself to Senator Allen W. Barkley, who introduced him, "when I tell you that before I even considered getting in this race, I went to Washington and sat down by the President of the United States and asked him what he thought about it, and I wouldn't be in this race today if I didn't know it, was all right with the President of the United States."

Mr. Brown asked if he had taken to President Roosevelt about the Kentucky race, Senator Barkley replied, "I'm speaking only for myself." He said his future activity in Mr. Brown's behalf would depend on his duties as Floor Leader of the Senate. He expressed the hope congress would adjourn by mid-July.

The Senator recalled that he had publicly announced his support of Mr. Brown and said he considered it a compliment that it had been suggested he was here to repay a debt of gratitude to Mr. Brown for supporting him in the senatorial primary last year against Gov. A. B. Chandler.

"I'm here not out of gratitude to Mr. Brown, but to the people. I'm here to help in the selection of the next Governor," the Senator said. He asserted he favored Mr. Brown "because of his courageous, unspotted character, his service in the State Legislature"

Bates Receives High Praise In Washington

Eighth District Congressman Has Broken All Precedent And Risen To High Place In Nation's Legislative Hall's With His Fearless Work Says Post

The Washington Post of Sunday, May 27, under the heading of "Bates, a Mid 'Teacher,' Shows Iron in Milk Inquiry," says that the Eighth District Representative has broken all precedents for freshmen members to Congress and lauds the manner in which he has conducted himself in investigations of the District of Columbia.

The Post article, reads as follows: "A soft spoken former school teacher who was born and reared in the hazy mountain section of the District of Columbia, the Representative Joe B. Bates, chairman of the subcommittee on education of the House of Representatives, has broken all precedents for freshmen members to Congress and lauds the manner in which he has conducted himself in investigations of the District of Columbia."

As a freshman member of the House of Representatives, Bates has broken all precedents for freshmen members to Congress and lauds the manner in which he has conducted himself in investigations of the District of Columbia.

Uncovered startling evidence of having allowed graft, and a party that apparently had only a remote connection with the product.

"The successor in the House of Justice Fred M. Vinson, Bates was assigned to the District Committee just as any other unknown and inexperience member might be," Chairman Jennings Randolph then appointed him chairman of what hereafter had been one of the least important sub-committees, called "Public Health and Hospitals."

Chandler To Delay Action On H. A. Babb

Governor Plans To Conduct Investigation Later, Probably In August

Governor A. B. Chandler announced last week that action on an investigation of the record of H. A. Babb, President of the Morhead State Teachers College, has been postponed until later in the summer, probably in August. Friends of the Governor said that he had postponed action rather than cause any confusion at this time, but that he would seek Babb's removal before the opening of the fall semester next fall.

The Governor told 400 students who went to Frankfort in protest against Babb, that "when you return to school at Morhead in September you will find that things will have been made right."

At the same time the Governor also publicly declared that "Babb" is a dishonest problem child, my friends and the upstanding citizens of eastern Kentucky have been asking me to get rid of him ever since I became the Chief Executive.

$50,000 Loss Sustained in Haldeman Fire

United Supply Company Store Burned To Ground In Blaze Thursday

Loss of approximately $50,000 was sustained at Haldeman last Thursday when the store, owned by the United Supply Company burned to the ground.

The blaze destroyed the Haldeman office, located in the same building, and also the telephone exchange. The Ashland Home Telephone Company was able to resume service after a few hours. The fire but only a few telephones could be placed in use.

Officials of the company made no comment regarding the cause of the fire, other than to say they were awaiting the report of insurance adjusters.

The store is the largest in Rowan County.

Noah Danner, a barber, who lives directly across from the store was starting on an early morning fishing trip when he discovered the blaze at 1:30 a. m. Danner first saw the alarm and in a few minutes Haldeman people formed bucket brigades.

Approximately thirty minutes after the fire was discovered, company officials determined that the stock and fixtures were not to be saved and all efforts were concentrated on saving the store and the United Supply Company.

Officials were loud in their praise of the women of the community who brought every available water bucket to aid in protecting the property of their husband's employers.

One office of the company was not affected and offices that had recently moved into this, without any loss of time for any employees. J. E. Leiglow, manager of the store, says the company immediately set up a business office in his home and wheels were set in motion to resume business as soon as possible. Arrangements have been made for a temporary store in the Old Imperial Hotel Building, adjacent to the brick yard. Within a few hours carpenters were busy building a new store for the United Supply Company.

IT'S A WONDERFUL WORLD

ADAPTED FROM THE Metro-Goldwyn Mayer PICTURE

GERTRUDE GELBIN

Late that afternoon, as they sat on the boat's deck, Guy told her the story of Willie Heywood and the Dolores Gonzales murder. Willie, known to the upper crust, his Broadway pals and the newspaper columnists as Willie the Pooh, had hired Guy to keep him from falling down manholes when he'd over-imbibed in double scotches.

Willie's dream girl was Dolores Gonzales. For six months, they'd billed and cooed. And then Willie met Vivian Brown. And one week after meeting her, he turned forty and came into full control of the ten million dollar Heyward fortune. And the day of his birthday he carried Vivian, leaving Dolores flat.

The day after the wedding, Willie set out on a solo celebration. Guy traced him from bar to bar, arriving at his ultimate destination — Dolores' apartment. But when Guy opened the door, he found Dolores dead on the floor—and Willie, in a drunken stupor, holding a smoking gun.

"But I know Willie didn't kill and came into full control of the That's why I hid him for two weeks. Hiding his is what earned me that year's sentence in Sing Sing."

"But what made you want to get to Saugerties?" she asked.

Guy continued with his story. When he discovered Dolores dead on the floor, he found next to her a half of a dime, a coin cut in half, such as might be shared by two people as a love charm. He'd seen such a coin before. Vivian had her charm bracelet. And then, he'd seen Saurteries, you scram, so that I can work this out—"

"Not me," she said, rising. "We're partners now. I want the fun of it—and I'm not afraid of the danger."

"Sweetie," he began angrily. "I'm going to the cabin to rest."

She interrupted sweetly and marched off the deck.

Inside the cabin, Edwina settled down for a brief nap. The sound of the boat's ladder rattling against the tug brought her on the run to the porthole. She reached it just in time to see Guy climb in his shorts, lower himself gingerly into the water. Then, holding his clothes high out of the water with one hand, he began swimming for shore.

"I read the Personal Column just for the fun of it," he explained. "This item said: Sweetie, I'm surprised to learn you thought I was dead. And it was signed HALF-A-DIME. I waited for another item like it; there was none, until the day I was on my way to Sing Sing. I found this one." He handed her a crumpled clipping.

"Darling," she read. "Why don't you come to the Saurteries. They are Wednesday evening and see your long, lost husband? HALF-A-DIME."

"So I jumped off the train so I could get to Saurteries," he explained. "The way I figure it, Vivian framed Willie so she could inherit the ten million. But Vivian's been married before—only she thought Husband No. 1 was dead. And now he turns up and is probably blackmailing her—"

"Yes," she cried warning to his deduction. "If Vivian had known HALF-A-DIME was alive she couldn't have married Willie. And now the past rises up to upset her perfect crime, so she must remove the past before she can collect Mr. Heyward's ten million as his widow. If we only had some clue to HALF-A-DIME."

"According to my dream book," he replied, "HALF-A-DIME is an actor at that Saurteries Theatre—"

"You're wonderful!" she breathed. "Now you understand why I want you to be a good girl and leave me alone. When we get to Saurteries, you scram, so that I can work this out—"

"Not me," she said, rising. "We're partners now. I want the fun of it—and I'm not afraid of the danger."

"Sweetie," he began angrily. "I'm going to the cabin to rest."

She interrupted sweetly and marched off the deck.

MURDER IN THE WINGS
Guy stood before the exhorn recently converted into a summer theatre and read, the huge sign-board:

"WHAT PRICE GLORY"

He made for the rambling wood-en building which served as dressing rooms and offices. He stopped before the door marked "Madame Chambers," knocked, then entered the ornately furnished, drupe-hung photograph studded office.

The middle aged woman sitting at the desk flashed him a smile. "Hello!" she greeted. "You're Cyril Hemingway, aren't you?"

Before he could answer, a girl wearing glasses, her hair piled high on her head, rushed up to him.

"Cyril!" she gasped.

Guy all but collapsed. For the girl was Edwina!

"Oh, I'm so glad you could come, Cyril," Edwina cooed. "You see I'm doing an article for the Chambers' great work in the New York Times on Madame triumphantly. "I'm going to interview—" —and one of her actors is down with the flu. That's why I suggest—"

—sure we can get a lead on HALF-A-DIME that way—"

"Okay," he cried.

She stood on her toes and planted a sudden kiss on his cheek. "From one wizard to another," she laughed and hurried off.

Guy went into his dressing room and began studying his lines. He repeated the part aloud in a thick Southern drawl. A hook from the wardrobe made him grunt up. There stood Cap Streeter, his buddy de-"

"Good morning, Flash Gordon," Cap snorted. "Where's Mingo?"

Guy dusted off a chair. "Sit down, pardner, and rest your brains—"

Miss Bradley Bride
John Paul Nickell
 Quietly solemnized at high noon today in the First Christian church was the marriage of Miss Mary Frances Bradley, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Bradley of 3037 Montgomery avenue, to Mr. John Paul Nickell, son of Dr. Homer Nickell of Morehead, Ky., and the late Mrs. Nickell.

The nuptials were read by the Reverend Joseph S. Falschner before a small group of friends and relatives of the young couple.

The bride, an attractive brunette, wore a white suit, with British dress accessories for her June morning wedding. Her flowers were white roses.

The couple left soon after the wedding today for Chapel Hill, N. C., where Mr. Nickell will continue his graduate work on his Master's degree. For the past year he has been instructor of Social Science and Drama at the Whiteville, N. C. high school, where he will take his bride in the fall and continue in the same work. Mr. Nickell's A. B. degree was received at Morehead State Teachers College, where he was a member of the Campus Club, and president of the Revellers dramatic club. He has done graduate work at the University of North Carolina, where he will take another course this summer. There he belonged to the Carolina Playmakers and to Kappa Sigma social fraternity.

Mrs. Nickell, bride in today's wedding, is one of Ashland's most attractive young women. She was a member of the 1936 graduating class at the Ashland high school, later attending Lindwood College, near Women at St. Charles, Mo., she spent one year at the University of Kentucky in Lexington, where she became affiliated with Kappa Delta sorority.

The couple will return here in about six weeks, to spend a portion of the summer with their parents, and will return to Whitesville, N. C., in the fall.

Return From Visit With Son
 Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Adams and daughter, Mary McClung, returned Tuesday from a few days visit with their son and brother, Asa, Jr., in Lansing, Mich.

Carmichael-Caudill
 The marriage of Miss Thelma Dudley Carmichael, daughter of Mrs. Roscoe Carmichael of Frankfort, Ind., to Mr. Roy Cornelius Caudill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam M. Caudill of Morehead, was solemnized at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the First Baptist church in Morehead by the Rev. Euell H. Kaeze.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Hayden M. Carmichael, was becomingly attired in a pink star crepe dress with pleated jacket, with natural linen accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was of gardenias and her only ornament was her father's jeweled masonic watch fob worn on a gold chain.

Miss Ruby Carmichael, her sister's only attendant, wore a red-tinge dress of blue crepe with straw-colored accessories and a shoulder bouquet of tallman roots.

Mr. Roy Cassidy of Morehead was Mr. Caudill's best man.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Marie Louise Oppenheimer, pianist, played "I Love You Truly," "O Promise Me," and "Because," with the "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" for the entrance of the bride party, and the wedding march from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" for the recessional.

Mr. and Mrs. Caudill left immediately after the ceremony for a tour of the East, after which they will be at home at 153 East Main street, Morehead.

The bride, a graduate of the Paris City high school, attended Cumberland College, received an A. B. degree from Morehead State Teachers College, where she was a member of the college chorus, dramatic club and the student council. For the past year she has been a member of the faculty of the Huddies Mills consolidated school, Bourbon county.

Mr. Caudill, who is a graduate of Morehead State Teachers College, where she was a member of the Campus Club, is now cashier of the Peoples Bank of Morehead.

Only the immediate families and a few close friends were present at the wedding.

Spending Week In Ashland
 Miss Marion Louise Oppenheimer is spending the week in Ashland the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bradley. They will all return to Morehead Saturday.

Little Princess Is Cozy Feature

Chosen as the story that can boast of being adequate to the amazing talent of Shirley Temple, and the ideal subject for her first Technicolor vehicle, 20th Century Fox's screen version of Frances Hodgson Burnett's immortal classic, "The Little Princess," comes to the Cozy Theatre Saturday, June 3.

Produced on a more pretentious scale than any previous Shirley Temple film, advance reports have acclaimed "The Little Princess" not only the dapper and finest picture, but one of the truly great films of all times.

Darryl F. Zanuck, in charge of production, assembled an imposing supporting cast, headed by Richard Green and Anita Louise in the romantic leads, and including Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Arthur Treacher, Mary Nash, Sybil Jason, Miss Mander and Marica Mae Jones. Gene Markey was appointed associate producer and Walter Lang was handed the megaphone-voiced assignment.

During the week of wardrobe and makeup tests before the picture started shooting, a controversy erupted, centered by Richard Green and Anita Louise over whether or not Shirley should wear makeup. The color experts insisted that no star had ever appeared before a Technicolor camera without benefit of makeup and that Shirley would prove no exception.

They solved the problem by making three tests of the star, one with a powder makeup, one with the special Technicolor makeup and one with no makeup at all. Lang was right. The test of Shirley without benefit of makeup proved the best and the star appeared without makeup throughout the picture.

Minors Covered Under Old Age Insurance Plan

No Age Limit On Down Side, Director Says
 There is no age limit on the down side, so far as old-age insurance is concerned.

Minors are covered under the old age insurance system just the same as adults, if they serve in employment which is covered under the Social Security Act. Therefore, school students who plan to do part time work in commerce or industry during the vacation period should obtain social security numbers before seeking jobs.

These statements are made by Mr. J. A. Chaney, manager of the Social Security Board field office in Ashland.

Commenting on this subject Mr. Chaney said, "Several employers recently have told us they did not know that minors are covered under the Social Security Act. This is untrue. We make no distinction as to age on the down side of the scale. Workers who reach age 65 no longer are covered under the act, but young folks who serve in commerce or industry are covered and should present their social security cards to their employers when they take up new jobs."

HAY CUTTING TIME

On bottom land, lespedeza should be cut for hay when it begins to lodge or fall, or when the lower leaves start dropping in great volume, says a leaflet of the Kentucky College of Agriculture dealing with cutting, curing and storing hay. On upland, the early bloom of Korean lespedeza usually coincides with the dropping of lower leaves, even though lodging does not occur. It should be cut before this time is reached.

Bates Is Given High Praise

 The close cooperation between the health department and local medical schools broke over administration of Gallinger hospital, youthful looking Joe Bates found himself thrust into the local limelight. After a painstaking investigation, he made an honest and courageous report despite pressure to do otherwise.

"Then came the direction of the House that the District Committee investigate the milk fight between dairy producers of this and other Western producers. He was chosen because he came from a neutral territory and milk is closer to 'public health' than any of the other subcommittee titles.

"Little did anyone expect, least of all Joe Bates, that the milk row would become one of the most interesting lobbying committee

"leaks," paving contract deals, and other sensational, but unrelated matters.

Had But Two Jobs
 "Like his previous jobs, however he tackled the task of uncovering the scandal even though he knew that his own name had been used indirectly in one of the 'lobby' offers. The honor of the House, he felt, was at stake.

"The people in my district aren't interested in this milk fight," he said, "but I know they want me to do a decent and thorough job because they are fine people."
 Bates boasts that he never held but two jobs in his life. He was school teacher for nine years and then entered politics. The latter "job," however, included 16 years as county clerk, and election to Congress.

Song Festival Scheduled June 11

 time of Mary Stuart, Mrs. Caudill will wear a costume of royal Stuart plaid. The ballads which the children will sing are "Bonnie George Campbell," "The Dying Scot." The children are Virginia Lee Roberts, Frances Burns, Nancy Jane Holbrook, Nettie Robinson, Virginia Lee Roberts, and Frances Burns will sing "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

Scenes of old England will be reviewed when the Ladies in Waiting in their full skirted, tight bodied frocks of "Lark with ruff of white at the neck" and sleeve take their place on the great rustic stage in front of the tiny windowless cabin. Their frocks are in the Elizabethan mode. They form a semi circle about the speaker of the Prologue in a rich velvet costume of Elizabethan mode. The Prologue sets forth the Anglo Saxon origin of the moun-

 and as a member of Congress during the first two years of the Roosevelt Administration, his cooperation with Washington and the belief he would be unopposed by any man or group of men in Kentucky."

After Senator Barkley had introduced Mr. Brown as the next and greatest Governor of Kentucky, Mr. Brown responded, "I may not be the greatest Governor but I have been presented by the greatest citizen in the United States."

 Each of the speakers was applauded frenziedly by the entire crowd. Many wore ribbons, neckties and hats indicating the counties they represented. The neckties were shown in keeping with the name of the candidate.

Among those on the speakers platform were Thomas S. Shea, Russellville; Farmer Gov. Ruby Laffoon, Eugene; Flowers, Russellville, former Commissioner of Agriculture under Governor Laffoon; Garth K. Ferguson, La Center; Commissioner of Agriculture, and Edward Galtiff, Williamsburg, Highway Commissioner under Governor Laffoon. Peter Campbell, Louisville, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations in Kentucky, attended the opening.
