A MURDERER MORBED.

John Martin, Who Killed His Accomplice in Orimo is Taken From Jail on a Bogut -order and Afterward Riddled With Birjets.

THE THIRD CHAPTER OF A RACEDY.

[Special to the Courier-Journal.]

MORRHEAD, KY., Dec. 10.—Your readers will readily remember the terrible affair which resulted in the death of Solomon Bradley, one of our best citizent on election day, August 4, for which John Martin, of Morehead, and Floyd Toliver, of Farmer's, this county, were alike indicted by the last grand jury for manslaughter, is not being determined which fired the deadly shot. They were both out on bail. Up to August 4 they determined which fired the deadly shot. They were both out on bail. Up to Acgust 4 they seem to have been close friends; since then they seem to have been most bitter enemies. They met in the bar-room of the falt House, in this place, December 2, we en Toliver asked Martin to drink with him, which Martin refused to do, saying he did not want anything. Toliver turned and said:

"John, I have nothing against fou."

anything. Toliver turned and said:

"John, I have nothing against fou."

Martin said: "Nor have I against you,
and I have treated you like a gentleman
when you come to my house, but I think you have done me dirt."

The line said: "No. I haven't John, but I

Tolliver said: "No, I haven't John, but I hear you said you intended to m b me, and all there is between us is whether or not you At this time Tolliver had his right hand on Martin's left shoulder and his left hand resting on his own hip. Martin had his left hand on Tolliver and his right and in his overcoat pocket. Answering Tilliver that he did not say it, and, drawing I is revolver at the some time, he shot Tolliver near that heart, death resulting immediately.

Toliver and Martin were both considered brave men, and have men to the first that the same and have men to the first that the same and have men to the first that the same and have men to the same to the same

Toliver and Martin were both considered brave men, and have many frien is in this and adjoining counties. Martin was arrested, and claimed be did the doed in self-defense. He was taken to Winclester jail for safe-keeping, and yesterday, some one forged an order signed by the two magistrates to the jailer at Winchester o deliver Martin to the bearer. This was nailed to Alvin Bowling, one of the guard, who took Martin to Winchester December i, with instructions to go after Martin, and he did so, taking two or three deputies along: Martin's wife went to Winchester yesterday and saw him, left in time for the express train, and the guards went to the jail after she had left, got Martin and started with him on the same train, his wife being in one the same train, his wife being in one coach and he in another. When they reached Farmer's, at 1 o'clock A. M., where Tolliver had lived, a masked body of fifteen or twenty armed men, with heavy revolvers and double-barried shotguns, covered the guards and trainmen, and shot Martin four or five times with a beavy revolver; took the guards off the train and ordered the train to move on. The guards were ordered to their respective homes and the band dispersed. Martin's wife, the trainmen and Dr. C. A. Black, the raileray's surgeon at this place, did all they could for him until they reached his friends at this place. He died at 8:30 this morning, leaving a wife and five children. Tolliver left a wife and two children. Bradley left a wife, and ten children. children. This calls to mind the great U iderwood war several years ago, and from the looks of things at this writing may prove a sadder affair. FROM ANOTHER CORRESPOND INT.

[Special to the Courier-Journa,]

MT. STERLING, KY., Dec. 10.—There was another foul murder in Rowan county last night, the particulars of which are theses Last Tuesday night, John Martin shot and instantly killed F. M. Tolliver, of Farmer's, in the barroom of the Carley House in Morehead. They were both in the fight at Morehead on the day of the August election, in which Coleman Bradley was killed, and were under bond to appear at the next term of court to answer to the charge of killing Bradley. They were on opposite sides in the fight and had not been very friendly since. Meeting in the bar-room at Morehead last Tuesday, Tolliver asked Martin to drink with him. Martin refused, and immediately drew his pistol and shot Tolliver dead. Since then the feeling has been intense against Martin and on Wednesday he was taken to Winchester for safe keeping, and last night on the late train in charge of A. M. Bowling, Marshall on Wednesday he was taken to Winchester for safe keeping, and last night on the late train, in charge of A. M. Bowling, Marshal of Farmer's, Rowan county, with two other guards, passed through here, en route to Morehead, to have his examining trial. At Farmer's a party of masked men numbering about of these boarded the train from the cast fifteen, boarded the train from the east side and came toward the prisoner. No sooner did Martin see them than he exclaimed: "My God!" when than he exclaimed: "My God!" when one of them fired on him, wounding him in the side. The firing then became general, both from the outside and on the inside of the car. After the firing ceased, it was found that the poor man was riddled with bullets. He was taken to Morehead, where to died at 9 o'clock this morning.

It is openly charged that Bowling was in collusion with the mob, and that the order collusion with the mob, and that the order collusion with the mob, and that the order under which the prisoner was removed from Winchester was forged. Bowling and his posse made no show of defense, and Martin, just before dying, claimed that he received one shot at the hands of I; wling. Great excitement prevails in Roway and a general outbreak between the friends of Tolliver and Martin is feared. This makes the third tragedy that has been enacted in Rowan in the last two weeks. Martin was a desperado and had killed two or thire men,
