Red Cross Money From Kentucky

No Call Made National In Drive To Raise Funds For Flood Losses

National Red Cross has issued a statement as to where the funds used in rehabilitation work in the Eastern Kentucky flood zones was gathered. Contrary to popular opinion, they say, no national call was issued for funds, the entire amount being raised in Kentucky and in nearby cities, with Cincinnati the largest donor outside of the state. In all they say the cost of the rehabilitation work in Eastern Kentucky will total about $70,000, exclusive of operating expenses. Of this amount the result of the appeal amount of approximately $40,000. To take care of the other sum of $30,000, National Headquarters took from its funds $20,000.

Besides this all operating expenses were paid for by the National organization.

The appeal for funds for the relief of the Kentucky flood areas was sent only to the counties in the eastern half of Kentucky and mailed to this was a few border line chapters in Ohio, West Virginia and Tennessee. However, a little money came from outside of the Kentucky chapters. Cincinnati contributed the largest sum of any city outside of Kentucky with the contribution of $2,500.

Below are some of the cities and amounts as they have been reported. Some of these figures will be revised and increased slightly.

|------------------------|------------|
| St. Sterling | $600.00 |
| London | $2,500.00 |
| Newport | $97.25 |
| Covington | $1,000.00 |
| Frankfort | $750.00 |
| Cincinnati | $2,500.00 |
| Ashland | $3,400.00 |
| Ja-son Breathitt (co.) | $1,100.00 |
| Carder | $3,200.00 |
| Linton | $3,075.47 |
| Wright county | $900.00 |

Morehead contributions included approximately $18,000 in gifts from other cities and towns in the surrounding territory.

COZY TO SHOW Western Play Sunday P. M.

"Frontier Marshal" coming to the Cozy Theatre is a film for the "Stagecoach" and "Dodge City", rated a roaring melodrama from start to finish. The story is set in the Arizona, in its untempered youth old in terms of a personal story with a happy ending.

"Frontier Marshal" will be at the Cozy Theatre Saturday, Sunday and Monday, August 23, 24, 25 and 27.

Randolph Scott, Cesar Romero, Alan Caidline, Nancy Kelly, Helen Barnes and Eddie Fox, Jr., who plays his late father are in the play. Scott is can be promised just his best picture. He has been here. Romero also hits a new high and Miss Barnes finally gets a chance to really turn on her talent. Caidline is less long but no less potent before the camera and Miss Kelly lives up to her press as the good girl in love with the bad man with a heart of gold.

"Frontier Marshal" is a picture that portrays his father in his prime and gives the audience one.

"Frontier Marshal" may or may not be the biggest hit of the year but it has been given a picture that does for Tombsone what Dodge City did for that place, but it's quite clear that "Tombsone" wouldn't quite do for the lights. That it is a telling of the story of that city is, however, a point for showmen.

New Old Age Insurance Plan Started

Plans For Putting New Law Into Operation Going Forward Apace

With the signing of the new social security legislation by President Roosevelt, plans for putting into operation the new old age insurance program were being formulated today in the Social Security Board office at federal agency.

"The President's signature makes the amendments adopted by the Congress the law of the land," said James A. Chaney, manager of the Social Security Board office of the social security board.

"Effect of the amendments is far reaching. Time will be required for study of the new law and to work out benefit schedules, which are now established. Those studies have been started in the Washington headquarters of the social security board; also in the Cleveland regional office, which serves the States of Kentucky, Michigan and Ohio.

"Immediate effect of the new legislation so far as our local office is concerned is to put an end to the payment of lump sum benefits, which heretofore has been available to those regarding the age 65, after having worked in employment covered by the social security act. Monthly benefits will replace these single money benefits after January 1, 1940. We shall continue to pay single money benefits to the legal heirs of deceased workers who have died after serving in employment covered by old age insurance.

The new benefit schedules are based on a formula which uses average wages rather than total wages, so far as the payment of monthly annuities is concerned. This schedule is now being worked out and will be announced later.

"Starting next January there will be expanded for workers who have aged wives and who retire

Four Year Time Limit Set For Wage Record Checks

Congress has placed a four year time limit on the period during which wage records of the Social Security Board may be checked and credited. This amendment was made today by Mr. J. A. Chaney, manager of the Social Security Board office in Ashland, Ky.

"Workers whose records concerning their service under old age insurance should remember this fact," Mr. Chaney said.

"The action of the Congress will prevent a worker who is covered by old age insurance from going back more than four years to get a revision of his wage record. The amended law provides that at the end of the fourth calendar year following any year in which wages were paid records of the Board shall be regarded as conclusive."

"This does not mean the Board will change its policy of giving all possible aid so that a worker's wage records may include every earned dollar that should properly be his there. But it does mean a worker who suspects some of his wages have not been reported by his employer, and are not credited to him, will use his right to an examination of his record if he waits too long.

"Wage records for 1937 and 1938 are now being worked out to all workers covered by the Social Security Act and may be had by the use of cards, which are now available at our office," Mr. Chaney said.

Dove Season To Open in Kentucky September 1

The hunter's attention is called to the opening of the Dove season September 1, by Major James Brown, Director of the Division of Game and Fish.

Major Brown emphasized the shooting time each day during the dove season which begins at 7 a. m. and closes at sunset. Any earlier or later shooting will be in violation to the law and will be inviting arrest. The daily limit on doves is 15 with a possession limit of not more than 15.

Major Brown said that the federal regulation states that water-fowl and mourning doves are not permitted to be taken by means, aid or use, directly or indirectly, of any wheat, oats, or other grain or any kind of whatsoever placed, deposited, distributed, scattered or otherwise put out whereby such waterfowl or doves are lured, attracted, or enticed. Violation of this regulation is both a state and federal offense.

The season which opens on September 1st, closes on October 31st.

Requests may be made through a personal or telephone call or a postcard will do." Mr. Chaney concluded.

Starting after Labor Day, he is planning a broad program of informational activity to acquaint residents of all service areas with their rights and duties under the amendments.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS

By Lebbeus Mitchell

Fifteen more years passed, Chips found an institution at Brookfield, a friend to all the boys, still going to cracking little jokes with them. His shareboard gown was the cause of much friendly amusement—except for the new Headmaster, Watson.

"The latter called him into the study one day, just after Chips had never thought about it."

"Well, the suggestion's there for you to consider. I'm sure the Governor will grant you an adequate pension."

"But I don't want to retire!"

"—need to think about it," Chipsing. Your teaching methods are old-fashioned, your personal habits are slovenly, and you ignore my instructions in a way I should consider rank insubordination, in a younger man."

DO YOU KNOW?

—THAT KENTUCKY DISTILLERIES USE OVER 800,000 KENTUCKY-MADE BARRELS EVERY YEAR?

—THAT THE MANUFACTURE OF THESE BARRELS ALONE IS WORTH OVER $4,000,000 ANNUALLY TO KENTUCKY?

—THAT THE MANUFACTURE OF LABELS, CASES, PRINTED MATTER, ETC. PUTS DOZENS OF OTHER MILLIONS INTO THE PAY ENVELOPES OF THOUSANDS OF KENTUCKY FAMILIES?

the Headship and hold the post until the war's over."

QUALITY FIRST

Those who criticize the agency system of selling life insurance, for the reason that the salesman must be paid a commission, show a serious lack of understanding of the basic principle of wise insurance acquisition.

"That principal might be put in these words—the quality of your insurance is very bit as important and perhaps more so, than the quantity you own."

The 3000 insurance salesman doesn't try to sell you just insurance—his business is to sell you the right kind of insurance. A policy that might perfectly fit the need of your neighbor, might be entirely wrong for you.

In brief, the insurance man is a counselor and analyst, not just a salesman. And you wouldn't get that without the agency system.

THE SILENT PARTNER

All of us realize the necessity for fire insurance as a protector of our investment in physical property. Few of us, perhaps, realize the immense contribution fire insurance has made to the development of this race, rich land of ours.

As a prominent fire insurance company executive has said: "Fire insurance has been a silent partner in every enterprise that went into the making of our nation. As the frontiers expanded, and the railroads pushed their steel wheels into the wilderness, capital stock company fire insurance extended its protective arm, and helped to make possible the thousands of new communities that replaced fields and forests."

"From the beginning of our country every type of industrial and commercial enterprise, you will find fire insurance in the same close and indispensable relationship, bringing stability to credit and commercial activities that are the wrap and woof of our national economic fabric—it guides them to go on rendering that same efficient service through the years that lie ahead."

Fire insurance has been considered the "backlog of credits" and that makes it the backlog of all industry, all building, all economic activity. It is an industry which eminently deserves the proud designation of "an institution serving the public interest."

Frank Maxey, Mgr.

"Slovenly, you say?" asked Chips, bewildered by the outburst.

"Yes, the town you are wearing is a subject of amusement to the whole school. A year ago I told you I wanted you to teach the boys a few of Latin pronunciation. You totally ignored my request."

"Oh, that! Nonsense in my opinion. What's the good of teaching the boys to say 'Kikero' when for the rest of their lives they'll say 'Cicero'."

"There you are! You had an opinion and I another. But I happened to be the Headmaster here. I'm trying to make Brookfield an up-to-date school and you insist on clinging to the past. The world is changing."

"I wanted to see you, Chips. I'm off for France on Friday. You know I got married last year."

"I know, Colley. I'm very glad."

"Helen's a Canadian girl—hasn't had time to make many friends over here. She could have lived with my father but—of course you heard about that."

"Yes I have."

"When the firm went smash, other people were ruined, too. It was the thought of that—that killed him. So you see, Helen's going to be rather lonely there. Charlotte with only the baby—she's almost a year old—and I wonder—if an awful check, but could you run over sometimes to see her?"

"Why, of course, I will. You are doing me a great honor."

Returning to Mrs. Wicketts, Chips found Colonel Morgan, now Governor of the Board, and Henderson, another member, waiting to see him.

"Sit down, Chips, and hold on tight," said Col. Morgan. "We're going to give you a shock. We are going to be in his hole next term. Joint the masters have already joined up and their substitutions here are a pretty dreadful lot. And now Ralston wants to go. He's only 39 and it's unfair to hold him. The Governors met last night and came to a decision. If you feel equal to it, Chips, will you come back? There's no man living who knows the school like you do. We'll like to have you take over."

"The Governors don't want you to resign, Chips. Brookfield wouldn't be the same without you—and they know it. You can stay here until you're a hundred, if you feel like. And we hope you will."

Morgan, Forrester and the other Governors echoed that sentiment. Chips got slowly to his feet, his dentation raising the muscles of his face to twitch. "Sir, John, gentleman—it's good of you, John—of all you gentlemen—to chip this trouble for an old man. But before I avail myself of your confidence I should like to be able to persuade the Head in these times Brookfield needs both of us."

"That's very generous of you, Chips," said Forrester, and Morgan wondered if it would work.

"I shall see to it that it does work," said Chips. "I'm seven going to teach my Latin class to say 'Kikero.' A few years of that and I'll have to retire!"

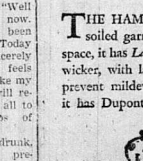

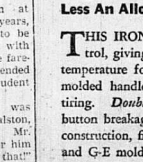

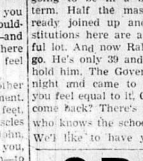

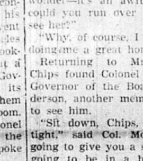

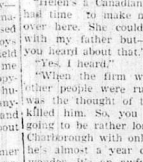

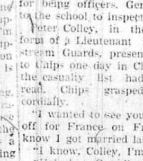

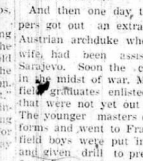

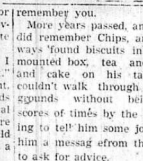

And so Chips stayed on at Brookfield for another five years, and then he himself asked to be retired. Ralston accepted, but with regret which he voiced at the farewell supper for Chips, attended by the entire faculty and student body.

"Five years ago, when I was new to Brookfield," said Ralston. "I ventured to suggest to Mr. Chipsing that it was time for him to retire. I was as new as that!"

Latter graded the remark, "I want we know each other better now. Mr. Chipsing's loyalty has been equal to my every demand. Today I don't regret more sincerely than I do that he finally feels himself compelled to—er—take my hint. Luckily for us he will remain nearby. I invite you all to join me in a toast: To Chips of Brookfield."

After that toast had been drunk, the Captain of the school, presented Chips with a silver-mounted biscuit box which, he assured the recipient had been subscribed to by every boy in the school, adding that force had not been required in a single instance to collect the subscriptions.

"I've seen a good many changes in Brookfield," said Chips in the course of his speech. "I remember so much that I think I ought to write a book—call it perhaps 'Memories of Top and Line'—I may forget some things but I'll never forget your face. In my mind you remain boys, just as you are this evening. Although I am resigning, I shall still be near the school—at Mrs. Wickett's house. Remember me sometimes. I shall always

No announcement has yet come from Washington as to what future use the survey would be put to. Goodman said, however, it would doubtless serve as a future guide for WPA policy and legislation.
