DEFENSE BOND Quiz

Q. Why should Americans buy Defense Bonds and Stamps now?

A. Among the reasons are: (1) It is the quickest way in which every citizen can both serve his country and conserve his earnings, and (2) the purchase of the Bonds and Stamps helps not only to finance National Defense but also to prevent high prices and increased cost of living.

Q. Can I pledge a Defense Bond as collateral for a bank loan?

A. No. Bonds are registered and not transferable. They are payable only to the persons named on the Bond.

NOTE.—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest postoffice, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., for a mailorder form.

Letter To The Editor:

Editor,
The Morehead Independent
Morehead, Kentucky

Dear Editor:

I have just seen a clipping from your issue of August 7 entitled "Motor Truck Club Endorses Highway Revenue Campaign."

It would be difficult to find a more arrogant, selfish or misleading piece of propaganda than that being currently distributed by the Motor Truck Club of Kentucky "endorsing" Highway Commissioner Donaldson's program to increase highway revenues by stimulating travel in Kentucky.

In the first place, since there is probably no one in Kentucky who is not in favor of such a program, the "endorsement" hardly qualifies as news. It is really only an excuse to distribute some one-sided and misleading propaganda in favor of bigger trucks.

Increased truck weights, the "endorsement" says, will reduce hauling costs. But it fails to point out that rates charged by common carrier trucks are already as low in Kentucky as in states north of the Ohio River, and actually lower than in other southern states where larger and heavier trucks are permitted. The Truck Club has only one reason for wanting larger trucks, and that is to permit its members to increase their profits, so it is difficult to believe that higher load limits would induce them to cut rates which are already as low as or lower than those in effect elsewhere.

Increased truck weights, the "endorsement" says, will increase highway revenues by letting heavy trucks which now go around Kentucky because of its low law operate through the state. Possibly that would increase the number of big trucks using Kentucky highways, but it would also increase in proportion the danger and annoyance to their other users, including Kentucky motorists, farmers, merchants and citizens generally, and the very tourists whom Mr. Donaldson wants to encourage.

But the "endorsement" fails to state that the Truck Club, besides favoring increased weight and size, is also working tight and dry for reduced taxes, and especially for so-called "reciprocity" pacts and laws which would exempt all out-of-state trucks from payment of any Kentucky licenses, fees or taxes. So while heavier load limits might increase the volume of trucking in Kentucky, they would not increase Kentucky's highway revenues, because the additional heavy trucks would all be from other states and consequently, if the Truck Club has its way, would be exempt from all Kentucky taxes, except for an occasional fifty or sixty cents when they have to buy enough gasoline here to

"One Of Kentucky's Greater Weeklies"

Bernarr McFadden Says...

Hitler is a demon, a brute, a devil in human form. The English language is inadequate, there are no words that can properly describe our opinion of this tyrannical dictator.

But what has he done to this country? He is sending us on a wild rampage in our preparation for war. And billions of treasures are lavishly expended in this terrific rush to make amends for our shameful neglect throughout the years.

Though we may not be able to emphatically express our opinion of Hitlerism we could not fittingly value the revolutionary changes that it has brought to this country. We have been awakened from a long sleep. He has been so occupied with fights among ourselves that we have ignored our foreign enemies.

At last we have been made to realize the necessity for national self protection, but the value of strong, broad shouldered healthy manhood and womanhood in this emergency is not yet fully recognized.

In attaining our objective, some of the dehumanizing evils which have been sapping the vitality of the race for generations are now being exposed.

The white flour curse, the fake staff of life that has weakened the race, starved bones and teeth, given children rickets and dwarfed their growth, is now out in the open with all its skeletonized defects. If the actual truth were known millions of graves, cutting off lives prematurely, could attest to the gravity of these deadly mistakes through many generations.

A few years ago the discovery of vitamins brought damning charges against many of the processes for preserving foods. Flavor and vitamins were destroyed, salt, pepper, and other condiments were used to replace them.

The Government is now active in correcting these deadly errors. Preparatory measures for the knowledge of vitamins to indicate the deficiencies of many of our staple foods.

As a health crusader for more than half a century I have pointed out the defects in many food products which were dehumanizing the race. And I was called a crank and a food faddist for my efforts.

But the facts brought out by vitamin experiments proved conclusively the accuracy of many of my deductions.

But Hitler's bombing of women and children make us realize that we are not immune from attack. We must protect our country from invasion. Preparatory measures that every intelligent American has advocated for years, is now going forward with almost fanatical zeal.

From this we should place the needs of the nation above our individual financial interests. Forward financial leaders have restrained and restricted Government officials in the efforts that should have been made many years ago for a protection of the health of the public, and our Health Officers are to blame to an equal degree.

Hitler has not only taught us the value of the mechanized units of war but he will ultimately make us realize the necessity of having manpower back of them, and back of it all the vital womanhood necessary for our national salvation through the perpetuation of the race.

Filling Stations On East Coast Given Labor Day Quotas

Assured Of Supply For Labor Day Week-end

The East was assured of ample gasoline for Labor Day week-end travel as the oil industry Saturday set up a daily quota system for supplying 100,000 filling stations from Maine to Florida during the remainder of August.

Ralph K. Davies, acting defense petroleum co-ordinator, said the station quota plan was adopted because of concern that some localities might exhaust their supplies for August and be completely without gasoline on the Labor Day week-end.

The system will work in this manner: 1. The supplies will calculate the quality of gasoline due each of their retail outlets for the remainder of August.

2. Effective Monday morning they will divide the number of gallons due each outlet into five equal daily quotas.

3. These daily quotas then will be delivered to the filling stations each day, and the station operator will fix the number of gallons he can sell each customer by calculating the number of vehicles he ordinarily serves and dividing his daily quota accordingly. On Saturday and Sunday the tanks of all filling stations will be filled to take care of the Labor Day week-end. These deliveries will be charged against September quotas.

Davies said the dealers would have to observe a monthly quota in September and space sales to make their monthly supply last through the month.

A Federal order cutting by ten per cent this month the volume handled by operators in July was the direct consequence of the Government's effort to aid Great Britain by transferring American tankers to the British, and there were unverified reports that one hundred additional deep sea tankers would be turned over shortly.

Scattered reports of contemplated partial or complete shutdown of stations Sunday come from Connecticut, Maine, New York, New Jersey, Northern Virginia, Georgia and Florida, where pumps were running dry. Atlanta announced stations there would be closed on Sundays.

Price increases of from a half to two-cents a gallon were put into effect in parts of Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New Jersey.

Added to this was the statement of Senator George (D. Ga.) indicating that rationing would be much more severe. He said that he was reliably informed that lack of oil transportation would force a one-third cut in Eastern motor fuel, against the present ten per

Meeting To Discuss Bang's Disease Postponed To Sept. 12

Protests of many stockyard operators against a new order broadening the requirement for Bang's disease tests of cattle in Kentucky brought postponement Saturday of a scheduled meeting of operators here Monday to discuss the plan.

William H. May, State agriculture commissioner said many of the men running the state's ninety stockyards wanted to be heard on the matter and that they would be given an opportunity to express their views before the State Agriculture Board, at its next meeting in Louisville September 12.

The rule would require tests of all cattle more than six years old shipped through stockyards for any purpose other than slaughter. The disease does not affect the meat of infected animals.

At present, the tests are required only for cattle shipped in interstate commerce.

May said the new order, directed by the state board, would be withheld until after the Louisville meeting.

Whitley county farmers shipped 110 tons of potatoes to city markets, cooperatively as well as selling small amounts locally.

More Officers Are Needed By Division Of Game And Fish

Auditor Suggests Hiring Additional Personnel

The report on the Division of Game and Fish which David A. Logan, State Auditor, made recently, tells rather pointedly about the job the Division has done since the new personnel took over last December.

In his report to Governor Johnson, Logan urged that more "Conservation officers be hired."

The auditor's recommendations were based on the expectation of increased revenue for the boosting of state-wide hunting license fees from $1.00 to $3.00.

"For the proper enforcement of all laws governing the conservation of wildlife throughout the state," Logan said, "the number of wardens now employed is insufficient."

He reported that the division employed fifty-seven wardens, part-time and full-time, for the fiscal year which ended June 30th.

fish officials and those of other states. Logan's report also lauded the division for reductions in salaries and traveling expenses and for revoking 530 volunteer game warden commissions.

The report stated that none of the commissions had been called in since 1928 and "many of these had fallen into hands of persons using them for their own personal advantage and gain."

When S. A. Wakefield was promoted to the directorship of the Division of Game and Fish, the latter part of December, 1940, he found outstanding bills and claims amounting to $17,000 more than his bank balance.

At the end of the fiscal year, June 30, the bank balance was $10,571. And all bills and claims had been paid.

In six months' time, Wakefield's policy of living within the Division's means and creating a backlog against periods of diminishing income, has resulted in putting an amount of $27,000 on the right side of the ledger.

For the fiscal year the Division had receipts of $193,377 and expenditures of $182,806, the first time in three years it had a balance at the close of the fiscal period.

A GOOD NAME

A good name is rather to be chosen, than great riches.—Proverbs

Yes, a good name is something to be proud of, something to be guarded jealously, to be protected at whatever cost.

Kentucky's $20,000,000 legalized beer industry is proud of the good name enjoyed by beer, the wholesome beverage of moderation.

In order to eliminate such places, Kentucky's beer industry is cooperating with state and local law-enforcement officials to maintain clean, wholesome conditions wherever beer is sold.

Results to date: 18 retail beer licenses revoked; 7 suspended; 2 outlets padlocked forever; 4 licenses refused.

Such flim-flamming as that, rare as it may be, has no place in union practice.

Well, that's how we see it. We believe that railroad employees, in general, have been better paid than almost any other big group of workers. You have kept your wages high by building strong unions. The public has a good deal of confidence in your patriotism and loyalty. But if you insist on a $900,000,000 wage increase, or any large part of it, and keep on threatening about how you will tie up railroad transportation if you don't get it, you will lose public sympathy and support. You will become as unpopular in the eyes of the people as that old fuss-grump John Lewis. Thank which there is none whither.

To Our Many Friends And Patrons:

To our many Friends and Patrons—your merchant, regardless of where you trade, is confronted this year with more problems and the most difficult, in the history of this generation. Many of the luxuries you have had in the past will not be on the market at all this fall. All the necessities in life are considerably higher in price. Many things have doubled in price. The pure silk hose you see on your merchant's shelves are all the silk hose there are. There are no mills today manufacturing pure silk hose. When the stock on your merchant's shelves are gone there will be no more. There isn't a mill in the United States who has, or we'll quote a price on a single yard of sheeting for domestic use. There are many types of favorite foods entirely off the market.

Our Advice To You

Go to your local merchant, or wherever you do your shopping, and buy all the things you will need this winter. Don't buy things you may not need. Leave some for the other fellow and neighbor. You will be well awarded in the savings you will make by getting what your merchant has bought at low prices.

Our Policy

We have done everything humanly possible to keep our prices below the market, in consistence with good quality merchandise. We bought thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of merchandise, commencing early last winter for delivery this Fall. The greater part of this merchandise has been delivered and is either in our store or warehouse. Most of this merchandise was bought at the old prices, a little at the early slight advances. We have on hand now over a thousand blankets, several thousand winter staple shoes, work clothes, sweaters, winter underwear and shirts. What merchandise we have on hand and in our warehouse will be sold in consistence with the savings we made by placing our order a year in advance to be of most service to our customers and this community, and we will pass these savings on to you.

But ---

Due to unforeseen conditions in the raw material market, we are unable to guarantee prices any farther than our present stock on hands and prices will be subject to change without notice.

Your best assurance of getting merchandise at the old prices, and getting some items at any price we advise that you plan your needs and BUY NOW!

You can buy your winter needs here now at present low prices with a small deposit and we will hold it for you until wanted. Pick out what you will need for this winter NOW. PAY FOR IT WHEN YOU CAN!

Smith-Hughes Act Recognizes Need For Farm Training

Advantages Of Vocational Agriculture Are Outlined By Instructor

(By Carl Wade)

The first National Vocational Education Act (the Smith-Hughes Act) which was passed by Congress, and signed by President Woodrow Wilson on February 23, 1917, recognized this necessity. Section 10, Public No. 347, 84th Congress, says "that such education shall be of less than college grade and be designed to meet the needs of persons over fourteen years of age who have entered upon or who are preparing to enter upon the work of the farm or of the farm home."

The public schools of this country are expected to assume responsibility for training farmers and farmers' wives. The circumstances indicate that farm families in the future will be composed of individuals who have had special training for the responsibilities that they will assume. The training that will be provided develops not only knowledge and skills but also desirable attitudes.

The man of the farm and the woman of the farm home must each have a working knowledge and a sympathetic point of view toward the responsibilities of the other, if farming in its largest sense is to succeed. There are serious problems that directly concern more than the other, but out of the business of each come problems that are common to both. In the solution of these common problems, which must be undertaken jointly, there must be a knowledge, and appreciation, and each of the special problems of the other.

Cooperative educational programs in vocational agriculture and home economics are intended for and designed for meeting the needs of three recognized groups:

1. Adult farmers and their wives who are established in farming and homemaking on farms and young married couples who are getting a start in farming.
2. Out-of-school young men

Railroaders Want $900,000,000 Wage Increase This Year

Following is Editorial From Charlotte (N. C.) News

Casey Jones: Said, "I want nine hundred million."

Casey Jones: "And I want it on the line."

Casey Jones: "I got to have more money."

"Or I'll strike this lousy railroad."

"Till they're ready to sign."

—Casey Jones (chorus) 1941 version.

If somebody will please tell that guy over on the other side of the roundhouse to make less noise, we'd like to ask a few questions. Now as we understand it, the railroad brotherhoods and unions are demanding higher wages. You want a total of $900,000,000 added to your wages and salaries. That is a sizeable chunk of dough. According to American Railroads, which we admit is an organization sponsored by your bosses, $800,000,000 is enough to equip completely 4,500,000 soldiers in the United States Army. With that sum, you could build eighteen dreadnaughts or 150 brand new (and badly-needed) destroyers.

O. K. So what? So if you railroad men really deserve a pay raise, if the railroads can stand the gaff and you've got it coming to you, it's all right by us. But that brings up those questions we mentioned.

You know better than we that for the first time in more than ten years, the railroad industry is starting to get back on its feet. Scores of railroads have been and still are in receivership. Many are just beginning to show black ink on the ledger. And now here you men come along and demand extra pay amounting to more than double the aggregate fares paid by all railroad passengers in the nation last year. It that reasonable?

You, Casey, what kind of pay are you getting? We'll tell you. You're engineer on a passenger locomotive. Your "basic" pay for one hundred miles is $7.34. If your daily run is 150 miles, you get $11.01. But the union—not the railroad—says you can't run more than 4,900 a month. So you make $322.32 a month—about $4,228 a year. In our business, mister, that ain't hay.

And here's this matter of "featherbedding." The magazine Railway Age cites this example: "A regularly assigned fireman made a round trip of 50 miles. On the first leg of the trip the train carried only passenger cars. At the turning point the crew was required to back its passenger cars to a point where the engine was turned and given necessary attention by the enginehouse forces. Returning, the train carried only freight cars back to its starting point. The adjustment board held that the fireman was entitled to three days pay for the one day he worked—(1) a day's pay in passenger cars from the initial turning to the turning point; (2)

Long-distance marriage in the modern manner, and its results, form the key theme of "Highway West," Ronald Colman's life.

Colman plays the part of a wealthy, good-humored and busy publisher with a lovely but penny-headed wife. The latter spends most of her time at various society resorts, where she encounters romantic playboys who fall in love with her and convince her that she is being abandoned by her money-grubbing spouse.

Every so often she decides she must divorce her husband and marry the admirer of the moment—and this is where Colman comes in. By skillful maneuvering he breaks up the incipient affair and brings his beautiful partner back to her senses.

In a radio address to the Army on the reasons for extension of selective service, War Secretary Stimson said the Government realized the personal sacrifice of additional service but was also conscious of the danger to the United States. He said "some of the most significant symptoms, which are invariably forecast the coming of a new Axis attack, are occurring in South America, the most dangerous avenue of attack against us."

The releases will be made upon application in accordance with the following priorities: dependency and hardship, age of more than 28 on July 1, 1941, and marriage of those who have served twelve months. Men completing enlistments will also be released on request.

The Public Health Service announced a six-week members of the United States medical commission will go to China to direct health measures for 250,000 Chinese along the 1,700 mile railroad along the Burma road.

President Roosevelt told his press conference that on the average defense production is up to estimates and in some cases actually exceeds estimates. He said, however, he still is not satisfied with several hundred tanks manufactured this year have gone to the British, the quota of sixty-one anti-aircraft guns monthly is being more than met; 160 37-mm anti-tank guns will be delivered in August and September and 320 in October. 340 81 mm mortars will be made in August.

OPM Director Knudsen told a press conference that the defense progress is sufficient to provide adequate equipment for the Army within six or seven months. He predicted again the United States can out-produce any other nation but said that the nation is still not showing the correct spirit. Production rather than shipping, he said, is the greatest bottleneck in United States aid to Britain.

Under Secretary Patterson, speaking at Syracuse, said the Army will not have resorted to broomsticks instead of weapons for training because "America is still last pushing toward peak production." Tooling up will soon be over. Guns, tanks, and planes are coming in daily increasing numbers." He cited production increases in the past six months: tanks 800 percent, other vehicles, 600 percent, machine guns, 225 percent, anti-aircraft guns, 400 percent, smokeless powder, 400 percent.

Civilian Supply

OPM and the Office of Price Administration ordered auto production for the 1942 model year cut to 817,000 cars during the four months beginning August 1, compared with 1,560,000 during the four months ended July 31. General Motors, Chrysler and Ford were asked to make a 27.6 percent cut from last year's levels; Studebaker, Hudson, Nash, Packard, Willys and Crosley, 20.2.

OPM Associate Director Hill, speaking at St. Louis, said "the industry would be headed off by transfer of workers to defense plants and other defense industries and the conversion of auto production machinery to defense work along the same lines as similar moves in the silk industry."

Defense Contracting

The OPM announced changes in Army and Navy purchasing policies to combat unemployment in plants and communities threatened with shortages of materials because of priority action and to utilize more of the nation's productive capacities through subcontracting. The Government can negotiate contracts at prices up to fifteen percent above current quotations, deal with joint groups of small contractors, eliminate bids and performance bonds when necessary, inspect products at the plant to facilitate prompt payment and call for bids to be broken down into optional units to permit smaller firms to bid.

Agriculture

Price Administrator Henderson set ceiling prices of burlap used at in the packaging of feed fertilizer and agricultural products, at approximately twenty percent below recent New York quotations.

OPM announced thirty-five to forty new egg-drying plants will be built by private interests at a cost of from $50,000 to $100,000 each in Illinois, Iowa, the United States, New York, Tennessee, Wisconsin, and Ohio, increasing capacity from 12,000,000 to more than 100,000,000 pounds annually to provide dried eggs to Great Britain. Similar projects are under consideration to expand milk-drying, cheese and other concentrated food production for American and British requirements.

Civilian Defense

Civilian Defense Director LeGuardia arranged for the first Statewide "blackout" to be held the night of September 12th in New Mexico. Twelve towns will be "combined," fires will be started in vacant lots and other emergencies will be rehearsed.

Mr. LaGuardia also announced a training program for 100,000 volunteer nurses' aides with the collaboration of the Red Cross and local hospitals. The Public Health Service called for 50,000 young women to begin professional nursing training this fall to meet a future shortage. At present, the Service said, there are 10,000 vacant positions for registered nurses in the Nation's hospitals.

Credit Control

The Federal Reserve Board issued tentative regulations which it said will probably be placed in effect in September to increase the required size of down payments on installment buying (they will be from fifteen to thirty-three percent) and to shorten to eight-teen months the time for payments on autos, airplanes, power boats, motorcycles, refrigerators, washing machines, stoves, air-conditioners, radio sets and similar household appliances.

Use Of Home Crops Saves Farmer An Estimated $5 12.00

A survey made by the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics in southwestern counties of the state showed that home-used products were worth an average of $512 a farm a year, when calculated at farm prices, and more than double that amount when retail prices were used.

For 107 farms, the average value of products used from the farm, figured at farm prices, was: milk $103.00; poultry $33.00; other meats, $4.00; eggs, $19.00; fruits and vegetables, $80.00; fuel, $4.00; house rent, $190.00. The value of food alone furnished the family was $312.00.

In terms of quantities, these values mean approximately 730 gallons of milk, 1,710 pounds of pork, 182 pounds of poultry, forty-seven pounds of beef and mutton, and 127 dozens of eggs. The report adds:

"The more profitable farmers used more farm-produced products in the home than did all farmers. By doing this they have more money to return to their farm business because of the lowering of purchased foods. The larger the farm the greater the value of the home-used products. This is due to having more people on the farm to feed. The economic advantage gained from using home-produced products is sufficient to justify considerable labor toward getting ample foodstuffs from the farm."

Four-H Club members of Nelson county were active in the aluminum for defense drive.

A beef cattle and swine tour, held recently in Jessamine county, attracted large attendance.

Martin county farmers reported in a check-up on hybrid corn that it withstood windstorms better than other varieties.

In Metcalfe county seventy-five percent of the aluminum collected came from farm people.

Ernest Lane Is Appointed Head
Of Cave Area CCC

Ernest E. Lane, resident of Edmonson County, this week received notice of his appointment as project superintendent for CCC Camp No. 910, in the first of the four camps originally established in Mammoth Cave National Park. Lane succeeds J. Vernon Black, who resigned in May to accept a position with the Kentucky State Park Commission as superintendent of Cumberland Falls State park. Since May Lane has been acting superintendent for the camp.

Kate Schwarz Has
Most Unusual Job
At Mammoth Cave

Is "Underground Hostess" In Snowball Dining Room
In this day of unusual jobs for women, Kate Schwarz of Camp Taylor, Kentucky, certainly holds one of the oddest jobs in Kentucky. She is hostess in the Snowball Dining Room of Mammoth Cave National Park—a restaurant operated 267 feet underground for visitors taking the so-called all-day tour through Mammoth Cave.
Groups of from fifteen to sixty go in twice daily during the summer, at ten a. m. and at three p. m. The morning group has luncheon in this unique dining room at two p. m. The afternoon party stops here for a seven o'clock supper. Kate's job is to see that the food, previously prepared in the Mammoth Cave Hotel kitchen, is safely transported over several miles of surface road to the Carmichael Entrance. Here, porters carry it down the 184 steps leading to Cleveland's Avenue and transfer it to a rather rubber tired cart. For a mile and a half they haul the cart through the winding gypsum covered channel that leads to the Snowball Dining Room.
Open under the cave, under Kate's supervision the food is put in electric heating cabinets, tables set with the settings items put to boil. By the time the touring party arrives, hungry after three hours cave sightseeing in 54 degree temperature, they are more than ready to do justice to hot soup, hot chicken and endless steaming cups of coffee. They are quickly served by Kate and her helpers. After lunch the ranger-naturalist, Arthur C. Landahl, entertains them with a short interpretive talk explaining some of the things they have seen or will see on the rest of the trip. Meanwhile, Kate and her helpers busy themselves to clean the dining room and make ready for the second contingent of the day.

THE GARDEN
(By JOHN S. GARDNER)

The next best way to store the "cool" vegetables for the winter is to bury them in "pits" or "hills." This is not news to Kentuckians, as they have been storing their potatoes, cabbage and the like this way, for years.
However, sometimes, the potatoes "grow out of the top" and sometimes spoilage occurs. This results from a combination of excessive heating and "sweating" in the pit.
Sometimes, the cause of heating is that the pit is placed where it receives the full winter sun. The obvious thing to do is to locate it in the northern shade of a building or of trees. The "sweating" occurs because, as ordinarily constructed, a "pit" offers little opportunity for moisture given off by the stored vegetables, to escape.
In discussions of foregoing storage structures it has been emphasized that an adequate ventilating system consists of an intake placed low as possible, and an outlet, at the highest point in the ceiling. The customary "pit" has the outlet, a vent rising from the center of the pile, but adding an intake is easy, in this wise.
The site for the pit is chosen in the usual manner. Then its center is located, and through it, at right angles, two ditches six inches deep and six inches wide are dug, long enough to reach across the base of the pile. These ditches are covered with plants, and where they intersect, the customary center vent is placed, the vegetables piled and pit completed. The ends of the cross-ditches are closed with snags of balling wire to keep out mice.
For the first four to six weeks, full ventilation is given by keeping both vents open, but after that, the intakes (the ditch-ends of the base) should be closed with earth, as well as the outlet at the pit's tip. On days warm at noon, it is advisable from time to time to open the top vent, to take care of excessive moisture, and to keep the atmosphere sweet.

Wakefield, Director of the Division of Game and Fish.
It took the boys about twenty-five minutes to land the fish after hooking it. And they are certainly proud of their catch.

Plans For Bigger

Co. Fair Underway

Plans for a bigger and better Rowan County School and Agricultural Fair are now underway, according to Fair Association officials.
One hundred and eighty dollars will be given as prizes in the Agricultural rings.
Probably the most attractive prize of the entire fair will be the two ten-dollar prizes offered in the Stock Show. Ten dollars will be given for the best team of horses entered in the Stock Show, and an equal prize will be offered for the best team of mules.
Owsley county farmers have cut clover crops twice with good results, though avoiding too close and frequent cuttings.

boards of health, service clubs and other groups.
Augmenting the fourteen-person State Committee are district and county organizations, now operating to have greatly-improved school lunches, big home gardens, stocking of ponds with fish and otherwise encouraging wildlife, and supplies of canned foods for winter, etc. A two and one-half week special "refresher" course in nutrition was given by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics August 6-23 for workers in defense and staff members of Federal agencies.
