Carr Creek Noses Out Viking Five

Kings Out Play Visitors Last Three Quarters But Lose In The First

The name, Carr Creek, proved to be the down fall of the Morehead Vikings last Saturday night when Roy Hobrooks up and coming boys took the short end of a 26-22 score. The Kings failed to get started in the first quarter, while Carr Creek scored by scoring seven points. It was evident during this first quarter that the Kings were playing the Carr Creek name rather than the Carr Creek team. During the balance of the game, the last three quarters, the Kings not only out-played, but out fought, out gamed and out scored the visitors, to cut their lead down to and almost, but not quite top them. It was one of the closest shaves. The Carr Creeks have had this season, during which they have won 19 out of twenty games played losing only their first encounter to Hindman.

The Kings got off to a jittery start, being evidently under a nervous strain. Carr Creek scored on a free throw and followed rapidly with a field shot good for two more points. At the end of the quarter the score was 7-1, with the Kings tallying their only point on a free throw after missing three free throws in the scoring making the score at the end of the half 16-10.

During the last half the Morehead team showed their prowess. They not only held the visitors even, but gained on them, slightly. It is true, but enough to move to the fans that they are really doing a fighting team. Incidentally the game got out of control during the last half, and was one of the roughest seen on the local court for some time.

Last Thursday the Kings won their fifth consecutive encounter. The game was close, defeated Grayson, 23-22. The game was close and hard fought and thrilling with the score tied at the half, 13-13. With 20 seconds of the game remaining, Bob Tackett shot a beauty from the side, to connect with the winning point. Tackett took playing and (Continued On Page Two)

Citizens Of Morehead Express Thanks To Postal Employees

The News has been asked by a number of citizens and subscribers to express their appreciation for the services extended to the community by the postmaster, W. E. Crutcher and the employees of the post office during the Christmas holidays.

They wish to say that the service was the very best. The delivery men were out early and late delivering packages and letters. The windows were open long hours, and they want the postal employees one and all to know that they thoroughly appreciate the efforts and the sacrifice, those employees made to make Christmas brighter and more cheerful to the entire community.

They asked us to thank them all, particularly Jack Lewis and Ralph Miller on whom a great part of the burden of delivery fell. Other postal employees are Mrs. Flora Church, D. B. Bellamy and Henry Glover.

Friends of Judge White here and elsewhere hope for his speedy recovery, and that he will soon be able to assume his duties in the district.

F. F. A. Centers Attention On Irish Spuds

Studying Possibilities Of Growth Of Potatoes To Supply Local Demand

Learning To Do — Earning to Live. Doing to Learn — Living to Earn. The students of vocational agriculture are now concentrating their studying on the growing of Irish potatoes. The conditions discussed are: Everyone uses potatoes in some form, Rowan County does not produce sufficient amount of potatoes to supply the demand. Potatoes can be grown in Rowan County with a profit, when prices are as high as they are this year.

To be a successful grower of potatoes, or any other crops, (one should first make a few definite decisions, some important ones to deal with are: Shall I grow this particular crop or enterprise? What are the possible returns per acre? Do I have facilities to carry out the work? Market demand, cost of production, type of soil to be used, adaptation of crop, fertilizer and manure. Every factor that enters into the production of Irish potatoes and to over look one of them may cause a limitation in production, profit and success.

The starting of potato projects is some time off yet but it is the proper thing to have plans made ahead of time and know how to deal with each job as it arrives.

The members of the F. F. A. chapter hope to make a success this year in potato growing and award prizes to the one making the largest yield per acre.

At present the chapter has a baby chick project going and in a few weeks the chapter will have broilers and fryers for sale. Some of the individual members have chick projects under way now and will be ready for the early market with fryers and broilers.

Billings, Faithful Snooks — Samantha Piper, Faithful Dixon, Corinda Sesser, Ruth Ketchum, Susan Crawford, Sally Brown, Mable Jones, Dorcas Doonille, Brown — Luther Brown, David Snooks, Billy Corwell, Obediah Buzzard, Stephen Tucker, Jeremiah Jenkins, Bobby O'Leary, Sam Simpson, Sam Dipert.

Eagles Trim Transylvania In Hot 4 Minutes

Four minutes of hot basketball by the Eagles at the beginning of the second half in their game against Transylvania Saturday night, stoned for a poor first half and a mediocre balance of hit and miss, scored a 27-22 victory. The Eagles win over Transy 32-24.

The game, incidentally was the second of the season against Transy, and stands for the worst loss to that team at Lexington.

Adams, Barnes, at forward positions, Wiggers at Center and Talcott and Mussman started for the Eagles and played listless ball. Their floor work was excellent; they worked the ball down to shooting distance, got the shots un-missed.

"If the boys get to hitting," said Coach Johnson in discussing the game, "they will stop places. They certainly get the shot. But to count, that ball has to go through the hoop. They don't pay off on misses or on shots alone."

The starting five for the Eagles closed the first half with a score of 19 to 12 in favor of Transylvania. Substitutions by Morehead at the beginning of the second half produced better results, and the Eagles played the first four minutes of that section the best ball they have played this season. During that spurt they overcame the lead piled up by Transy in the first half, passed them, and never headed. They outscored the visitors 20 to 5 in the next few minutes. According to the statistics well known as Coach Johnson, couldn't be stopped, but by the Eagles, was the outstanding performer on the floor, with 14 points to his credit out of 24.

The Eagles go to Murray Station, where they meet the Thorobred team in the next few days. The Eagles have yet to defeat the Thorobreds either at basketball or football. (Continued On Page Two)

Lyle Howard Home Is Destroyed In Saturday Fire

Flames Caused By Overheated Parlor Furnace Sweep through home.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Howard was almost completely destroyed by fire last Saturday morning. The fire is said to have started from an overheated parlor furnace in the living room of the five roomed home. Difficulty in obtaining water from the frozen hydrants and the fire flames to gain considerable headway.

The fire department, did good work when they did obtain water, although from the home and its contents were total loss.

Mrs. Howard owned the home, to which she had recently moved. She had lost practically all her furniture in the July Flood, and the loss was partly covered by insurance.

J. T. Thomas, throughout this section affectionately as Bunk Evans dropped into the Rowan County News office this week to renew his subscription to the News. Bunk in chatting with the editor said, "I guess I'm the oldest subscriber the Rowan County News has so far. The number of years I have taken the paper go."

He then went on to explain that in 1887 Bill Schooler was editor of the News, or as it was then called, "The Mauldiner." On January 25, 1887, Mr. Schooler, who was his death recently was editor of a paper in Ohio, met Bunk on the newspaper man, Mr. Schooler was short of funds. He asked Bunk for a loan of $10.00. Bunk was a young like to know it.

Cold Wave Hold Grip On Entire Section

Gas Boater Fails To Boost Says Irrate Subscriber In Answer To News Story

The cold wave which has held this community, section, state, and nation in its grip since the first of the year, is expected to continue at least for the balance of the week according to reports from the weather bureau. Kentucky is not so hot of however, if we compare it with cold here that farther South. With Atlanta, Ga. and Birmingham, Ala. under a blanket of 10 inches of snow, the two or three inches in Kentucky is certainly of the right variety.

Temperatures are expected to drop again to sub-zero, the wave being on its way here from the north.

It is reported that the shortage of the gas supply in Morehead is partly due to the interference of unknown parties who have closed off the gas from the lines of the producing wells and have diverted the gas to other main lines. Investigation will soon be made of this condition and the parties who are guilty of this act will be prosecuted.

The law is very strict in matters of this kind and an extremely severe penalty is meted out by the law to persons who interfere with the operation of a utility serving the public.

Mid-west. Temperatures as low as 7 to 10 are said to be coming. All of which probably means another freezing time for Morehead, with gas at a premium and then unobtainable.

Last week the News ran an article about the gas situation here. It was to press the word came that the booster had been attached and that the gas would be better. The News article that paraded in the article already written.

It is the desire of the National Youth Administration to let all needy single youth between the ages of eighteen and twenty-five receive the training available for them.

The Homemaking Center now has twenty-seven girls. They are taught cooking, sewing and other related training subjects.

The sewing consists of making clothes for needy school children. These garments are distributed by Mabel Alfrey through the teachers of the county to the children. They plan and cook their noon day meal.

Blue Moon Restaurant Is Burned

Fire Of Unknown Origin Destroys Cafe And Bus Station Friday Night

Fire completely destroyed the Blue Moon Restaurant on Friday night of last week, and only the heroic efforts of the fire department saved the spread of the flames to the A. W. Hogue building next door, which houses the residence of Mr. Hogue, his store and the Johnson Heavy Shoppe.

The fire originated in the back room of the Blue Moon, being discovered about 7:30 p. m. While no accurate knowledge of the cause is available, it is thought that someone had carelessly dropped a match into a pile of rubbish, waiting to be moved. When the flames were first noted the entire back of the building was in flames.

Firemen responding to the alarm discovered that the hydrants of the city had frozen in the sub-zero weather and the hoses were frozen. Therefore they could use the hose. Several lengths of hose burst from the cold weather and the pressure in the hose picture and largely because the management had done everything in its power to provide for the comfort of the patrons.

The Mills expects to continue to offer the best of services at popular prices, and to give to the thronging public of Morehead, as good a reproduction together with as great comfort as can be obtained from any theatre in any city.

Ghost Basketball Game Here Thursday Night

Ever hear of Ghost Basketball? Neither did we, until the Morehead High School scheduled a game for Thursday night of this week. The game is said to be played in the dark, with only ghostly glimmers from the sides of the ball and hoops. Everything else, including the players is dark and ghostly.

The floor, out of bounds lines, fluorescent lights will be outlined in luminous paint. Prices for this unique game will be 25 cents and 15 cents.

The Blue Moon also served as a bus station for the Greyhound Bus Lines. A ticket office for the bus lines is being opened across the street from the lot, in the Dixie Grill.

Mr. Clayton stated to a News representative that at present they had no plans for the future, but they hoped to be able to open a restaurant in the near future.

One of the worst features of the fire was the uncontrolled action of the crowd, some of whom were simply looting the store. Many of many of whom were committing acts of vandalism. An excellent example of this was the method in which the store was gutted.

Hail, The Firemen!

Morehead has a duty and a right to be proud of its volunteer fire department. After watching the heroic efforts of those loyal boys, who had absolutely nothing to gain except perhaps a few words of praise if they won, and certainly a vast amount of commendation if they lost. When the fire at the Blue Moon Cafe was at its height, when it looked as if the Hodge building next door was also doomed, those boys, fought valiantly to save what they could and to prevent the spread of the flames. That they succeeded in saving anything in the block under the handicap of subzero weather, frozen water mains, had hose, and an uncontrollable crowd, is the best recommendation they could possibly have.

We saw the men at their work, as did the majority of the town. Their hands nearly frozen, their clothing caked with ice, their faces blackened with smoke which filled their eyes and their lungs, yet they stuck manfully to their posts and conquered the flames.

Too much credit cannot be given to men such as these. They have no obligation other than their word to their utmost to protect the homes and business places of the city. They give and give freely of their time, of their health, and of their safety to protect the property of the citizens of the city.

And what does the city do for them? The city pays them a paltry ONE DOLLAR for each fire they attend. The city furnishes the equipment, in the past grudgingly, that they may fight to save the homes and property of the town. If they do save the property, they have in the minds of most of us, only done their duty. If they fail, because of faulty equipment, frozen hydrants, or uncontrollable conditions, they are criticized and blamed.

We have said before, and we repeat, that Morehead owes these firemen more than they can pay them.

The least the city and the citizens can do is to see that they have equipment that will aid them in doing their work and in saving the property of the city. This is a matter, not only of vital interest to the firemen, but to the citizens and property owners, even more directly.

If, and that little word has spelled defeat in almost every language, if the Eagles get started hitting, if they develop that basket eye so necessary to a winner, they have a good chance to annex Murray. Sunday the squad will probably spend in Bowling Green awaiting a game with Western Monday night. Here again they go up against a team they have never downed. But, again they have an outside chance to win. Even Ed Dodd's team has been defeated.

Blue Moon Cafe Burned Friday Night

(Continued From Page One) ings of the Johnson Beauty Shoppe were "saved". Every article of equipment, most of them expensive were dragged out of the room, long before there was any danger of the fire spreading. One man carried out two mirrors, and fell, because he was drunk, breaking them both. The same man was found making off with a clock, which he claimed he had bought. He dropped it and smashed it. Other items were carried out and set down in the street, before they were broken. Mrs. Hodge's electric stove was almost ruined in dragging it out of their home. Furniture and equipment was a total loss, running into hundreds of dollars.

In the opinion of most citizens there is no excuse for things of this sort, happening. The populace needs to be taught by stringent methods if necessary that the property of others is still sacred.

The Youth in Business

By C. E. Johnston
Dean, Schools of Business
International Correspondence Schools

BUSINESS and industry will always have need for young men and young women who can find better ways of doing jobs. It is often a good plan for the young man who wishes to obtain a worthwhile position in a particular company to seek a minor or routine job in the first instance. The routine methods are found in any firm and can always be improved upon. Therefore, brains and intelligence pay large dividends when employed in routine work.

Opportunity is not dead. During the year there will be an individual seeking a job, however, the young person should study himself and determine just what he has to offer. He should then build a sales campaign for himself, and should, therefore, concentrate his efforts on seeking a type of position for which he is suited.

Thousands and thousands of jobs will be filled in 1940, but the person looking for a job must realize that there is no substitute for knowledge and ability. The applicant for a job must have a complete new attitude towards it and all out for it. He must be intelligent and able before, but in the end it will be the intelligent and trained person who gets the position.

even though there is a fire. As a matter of fact there proved to be no need for removing anything from the Hodge building, as it was not injured in any way by the fire. There people are perhaps well meaning, but they can do a world of damage by their well meant, but unneeded assistance. Plans for rebuilding the Blue Moon are being worked out for consideration.

Selling Quail Is Violation Of Law

Selling quail at any time in the state of Kentucky is a violation of the Game and Fish laws as Macie and Evans, Jefferson county, found out recently.

He approached a deputy conservation officer on the matter of quail and stated that he could supply him (the officer) with all the quail he wanted at $3.50 per dozen.

He was caught selling the birds and brought to trial in Jefferson county. Judge Ward Lehigh, cooperating with conservation officer, Cliff Sipe, fined Evans $200 and $15.50 court costs.

It is just a little lesson again on "Crime Doesn't Pay." Sooner or later the violators are caught and must pay for their disregard of laws set up by sportsmen who are trying to preserve the wildlife so that there can be a continuous supply year after year.

Montgomery County Reports Seeing White Fox

The Division of Game and Fish has received word that Montgomery county foxhunters are all agape now following reports of several persons who stated that they had seen a white fox on the Grover Anderson farm on the Levee Pike. According to reports reaching the Division Office, Howard Hadden, M. Sterling attorney, and T. H. Canan, prominent farmer and member of the Montgomery hunters association, stated that the fox was of an average size and was white all over except for patches of red on the belly. Experienced hunters declared that a white fox was extremely rare in this section and devotees of the chase today were planning to scan the countryside in the hope of securing a glimpse of the animal.

WANT TO REDUCE DRINK BEFORE MEAL

Here's a way fat persons can keep from eating too much: drink water or milk before meals. This is because this will tend to satisfy the appetite partially and thus lower the food intake, says the Kentucky College of Agriculture. On the other hand, if a gain in weight is desired, finish the meal and then drink a glass of milk in addition.

Several glasses of water a day—two to six, to be specific—are recommended for the average person. Occasionally one hears that "so-and-so never drinks water." This indicates that he or she is getting water from vegetables and fruit, or through coffee, milk or other drinks.

A sow on fat feed following farrowing requires 7 to 8 pounds of feed daily per 100 pounds of weight, depending on the number of pigs. Pigs that furnish a heavy flow of milk are desirable, so the pigs will get a good start.

The Women

"I know what you're going to say. You forget she's writing a good column. And you told her about Stephen and Mary."
"Oh Edith," Peggy cried. "I'll be in all those dreadful tabloids."
"Well," Edith cried, "I don't really make much difference. The divorce is practically settled."
"Who says so?" Sylvia asked carefully.
"I said," Sylvia began patiently. "That Mary couldn't broadcast her domestic difficulties and not expect them to wind up in a scandal." She shrugged. "But let the story ride, it'll be forgotten tomorrow. You know the awful things they printed about — what's her name? — before she jumped out of the window? Why I can't even remember her name, so who cares? Tooodleo."
The door closed behind her, and Peggy turned to Edith. "Honestly I think Sylvia is a dreadful woman. I'm going to tell her so." Edith's smile was generous. "Oh she can't help it. Just her tough luck she wasn't born deaf and dumb."
"She'll stub her toe some day." "Some day!" Edith laughed with relish. Why, she's been stubbing it for over a year. Ever meet that finer customer's man in Howard's office?"
Peggy was shocked. "Edith! Cos'ly, you know Edith went on. A lovely Platonic friendship if I ever saw one — or so Howard thinks." She stopped, then addressed the younger woman earnestly. "Peggy take a tip from me. Keep away from other women's troubles. I've never had a fight with a girl friend in all my life. Why? I hear no evil, I see no evil, I speak no evil."
Dolly de Ruyter did a grand job of the ugly item, in true tabloid style, she informed her readers that:
"Wife K. O.'s Love Thief."
"By the next day everybody was buzzing with it. After that, the open quarrel with Stephen was inevitable. One thing Mary always thought about afterwards — the relief, pleading why Stephen had told her that this was his first lapse and the hurt defeat in his eyes when she had said she could never trust him again."
The preparations for the divorce started next day and finally the afternoon arrived when Mary was all ready to catch the train for Reno.
Little Mary was waiting for her in the drawing room. Mary pulled her to the couch. "Darling! It was going to be even more painful and difficult than she had thought. 'I want to talk to you dear.'"
"Have I done something wrong Mother?"
"Oh no darling, no. Mary you know Daddy's been gone for some time — a month. And now I must tell you why." She plunged in. "You see when a man and woman fall in love they get married. And then —"
"Oh yes, then they have these children."
"But — but sometimes married people don't stay in love. The husband and the wife fall out of love. Her throat felt raw. "And when they do, they get unmarried. They — they get what is called a divorce."
"Little Mary was wide-eyed. 'I know what that is. Lots of my friends have mummies and daddies who are divorced.'"
"Well," her voice was barely a whisper. "Your father and I are getting a divorce. That's why I'm going away. That's why — oh darling. I can't explain to you quite but —"
"Little Mary's lips quivered. Now she was beginning to understand. "Mother, doesn't Daddy love you any more?"
"No, he doesn't."
"Don't you love him?"
"Oh, Mother, why?"
"I don't know but it isn't either Daddy's or Mother's fault. You'll just have to take my word for it. Now come along. Maybe I can explain it better in the car, on the way to the station."
She stopped short as the door opened and Jane handed her a box of flowers. They were orchids and for a moment with hope flooded over her as she saw Stephen's card. Then she read the message: "What can I say? Stephen."
In a gesture of revulsion she threw them down from her. "Come Mary, I — I don't want to miss my train."
"That night she sat in the club car of the thundering vehicle that was speeding her westward. Suddenly a voice addressed her. She turned to see a big blonde woman holding out a glass of champagne. "Have some of this dear. You look so desolate. Thus must be your first trip to Reno."
Mary smiled a little. "Yes it is."

"Well, it's my fourth. But I remember the first time very well. I felt just like you look. Alone and scared." She beckoned to a bright faced little brunette who was sitting near the window. "You too dear, don't sit over there in that corner. Come and have a little drink."
Introductions were made and Mary learned that her blonde friend was the Countess de Leau, internationally known for her marriages to a series of young and handsome men. The other girl was Miriam Arnold, lately of the Seandals chorus and the commercial modeling field.
With her second glass of champagne Mary began to warm up to them. She liked them. Each in her own way was quite nice and genuine. "You're just what I need Countess," Miriam said suddenly. "Do you mind if I ask you a personal question?"
"No dear, of course not. I love to talk about myself."
"Doesn't it take a lot of courage to marry so often?"
"Not after the first few. What it really takes is money. None of my husbands ever had a bean." In the semi-darkness she peered out at the mountains. "Oh, dear, they remind me of my third husband. He was a Swiss. I nearly broke my neck sliding down one of those Alpine glaciers once. I always thought Gustave pushed me."
Mary giggled. "No wonder you divorced him."
"Oh, but love takes care of its own." The Countess beamed. "Ah, Miriam, Miriam. I slid right into the arms of my fourth husband, the Count."
"The one you're divorcing now?" Miriam asked.
"Yes-Hels. What could I do when I found he was putting arsenic in my headache powders?" She brooded a moment. "I brought with me I don't pick 'em for their characters." She turned to Mary. "I'll bet you picked yours for character didn't you?"
"Well, partly."
"And where's it go now?" On the train for Reno.
"Mary nodded solemnly and took another long sliding down. "Right you are Countess. On the train for Reno."
"Your marriage may not last till death but it's fun while it holds together and I think it's right to stand around waiting for some one to die don't you? And it usually takes years too. What did you pick yours for Miriam?"
"Not for character," was the dry retort.
"There, you see? No matter what you pick 'em for, where does it get you?"
"Mary intoned. "On the train for Reno."
"That's the answer, Let's have another little drink. Say, are you girls staying at a hotel in Reno?" They nodded.
"Well, don't do it. I made the same mistake twice. Place to bring out while you're taking care is a dude ranch, the Double Star T. You won't get lonesome there because the place furnishes cowboys. "Cowboy," Miriam exclaimed. "What for?"
"For practically nothing. You just have to pay for their eats and drinks if they take you to town."
Mary nodded. "Ranch. Might be nice to ride every day."
"There's no more drinkable place girls," the Countess said sidently. "What'll it be?"
"Mary raised her glass. Her lips twisted with bitterness. "To Reno — biggest little City in the world — the Great American Cradle of Liberty."
"Reno," Miriam breathed. "Beautiful City of the Great Divorces."
The Countess shook her head sadly. "Only my husbands never have anything to do with it."
With deep understanding they clinked glasses and drank.

The Youth in Business
By C. E. Johnston

DUSS secretarial work offers opportunity to most to answer unquestionably is yes. Many executives prefer male secretaries. Men can when necessary, stand the rigors of long hours of work under trying conditions. They are not irritable or uncooperative. They intend to back business their career and, therefore, are likely to take an interest in every detail of their employers' work.
There is a shortage of male secretaries. Why is this the case? The answer is that the first step in becoming a secretary is the acquiring of the ability to take and transcribe dictation quickly and accurately. The ability of private secretaries to typewrite is almost invaluable in both business and private life.
The salaries of private secretaries who men or women are high and to men at least they are open many opportunities for advancement. Secretaries to executives become executives with such titles as assistant to the president or assistant to the vice-president. Because of their knowledge of the details of the business they are often given high positions in other departments.

MOTORISTS AND TAXPAYERS!

YOU, as users of Kentucky highways, know the danger you meet, the inconvenience you endure, because of big trucks, even though the present Kentucky law limits their length to 30 feet, and their weight to 9 tons.

Certain commercial trucking companies and their allied interests from other States will renew their attack on this law at the January, 1940, session of the Kentucky Legislature. Because of the great financial power which is now massed behind this attack, it will undoubtedly be successful unless the people of Kentucky—motorists, operators of trucks of reasonable size and taxpayers—unite to protect their own safety and their highways, which are their property.

We believe we are rendering a public service in bringing these facts to your attention, and in suggesting that all who are opposed to having larger and heavier trucks express their views to their Senators and Representatives before they go to Frankfort.

Larger and heavier trucks would:

1. Make use of the highways more hazardous.
2. Cause added inconvenience.
3. Destroy the roads and bridges.
4. Increase taxes to build and maintain a few highways for big trucks.
5. Leave little or nothing to maintain secondary and farm-to-market roads.

It has been officially estimated that it would cost $88,800,000 to put Kentucky's main highways in condition to support big trucks.

Why Railroads Are Interested

Railroads build, maintain and pay taxes on their roadways. It is grossly unfair for the government to permit great public utility transportation companies to operate trucks as big as freight cars upon our highways and maintain at public expense.

As the largest taxpayers in Kentucky railroads have the same interest as other taxpayers in avoiding payment of additional taxes to build and maintain super-highways needed only for super-size trucks which constitute less than one per cent of all highway users.

Like farmers and merchants, railroads are interested in the maintenance of adequate secondary and farm-to-market roads.

Here is What Secretary of the Interior, HAROLD L. ICKES, Had to Say:

"The people started to build good roads so that they might have the pleasure and recreation that is made possible by traveling in their own cars. At least this has been one of our taxes for. . . . We know we have been digging into our pockets . . . to build better roads for the truck driver. The more the driver who drives the more money he is bringing longer and longer. I have promised to give down a truck-impairing road in the highest amount that I can find and"

Marriage Solemnized In Mt. Sterling.
The marriage of Miss Mary Jane Robertson, daughter of Mrs. Thomas B. Banger, Robertson, and the late Mr. Robertson, to Mr. Andre Bennett Bowne, of Lexington and Clearfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin S. Bowne of Lexington, was solemnized Saturday morning in the First Christian Church.

The church was effectively decorated with stately palms and ferns and cathedral candles and a tall basket of pink gladioli. The impressive ring service was read by the Rev. A. C. Brooks, assisted by the Rev. Howard S. Stephenson. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, the Rev. A. R. Robertson, of Berea, was radiant in a gown of white tulle, ensemble of cocoa wool, with brown straw hat and matching shoes. Her shoulder corsage was a pink camellias.

Mrs. Allie C. Conway, of Sharpshooting, the bride's only attendant, was in dusty pink wool with felt hat to match, and a shoulder bouquet of lavender iris and pink roses. She carried a blue kid purse. Mr. Bowne served as his own best man, and the ushers were Mr.

James W. Robertson, Mr. Allie C. Conway, Mr. Robert Everett and Mr. J. W. Steger of Lexington. A program of beautiful nuptial music was played by Mrs. Charles D. Grubbs, as follows: "Venetian Love Song," by Nevin; "To a Wild Rose," MacLachlan; Cadman's "At Dawning"; and "My Desire," "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life," Herbert Sanderson's "Until," "I Love You Love Dream," by List, with the "Truly," Carrie Jacobs Bond; and "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin" as the processional, and Mendelssohn's wedding march. The recessional, Mr. Genry Shelton, of Lexington sang "Dream Girl of Pi, K, A," by Stella, "Because," by D'Hardelot, and "O. Promise Me."

Mrs. Robertson wore for her daughters wedding an ashes of roses crepe dress with matching hat and accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of violets and pink roses. Mrs. Bowne, mother of the bridegroom was in powder blue crepe with hat to match and a corsage of Belmont gardenias. The happy young couple left immediately after the ceremony for a wedding trip to Miami and other Southern points, and upon their return they will be at home in Morehead.

The bride is one of the most popular and attractive young girls of our city, and by her graceful and charming manner has endeared herself to everyone with whom she has come in contact. She comes of one of the pioneer and aristocratic families of Montgomery county. She is a graduate of Transylvania College, where she was a popular member of Chi Omega sorority. During her four years in college many honors were conferred upon her, and in her senior year she was chosen as "Miss Transylvania," the highest honor which the college can bestow upon a student. For the past two years she has been secretary to the superintendent of Mt. Sterling City Schools.

Mr. Bowne attended Vanderbilt University and the University of Kentucky, and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is possessed with a pleasing personality and has exceptional business ability. He is associated with the Lee-Clay Product Company at Clearfield, Ky.

Former Resident Married in Ohio
The ceremony uniting the lives of Miss Pearl Barbour and Mr. Fred Adam was solemnized on Thursday evening at 6:45 o'clock at the First Church of Christ with the Rev. R. Traffic Crow officiating at the single ring service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Barbour of Morehead, but has resided at the home of her sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. W. Roy Porter of Bridge street, for the past several years. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Adam of North Broadway.

Nuptial music preceded the ceremony with Miss Marjorie Phillips presiding at the church organ. The wedding hymn was "Ab Sweet Mystery of Life," by Victor Heber, "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, "Bridal Song," by Wagner from "Lohengrin," "Wedding March" from "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Mendelssohn.

For her wedding the bride chose a street length dress of dusty rose crepe and wore many accessories. The dress was made with a high neckline, the sleeves being full at the shoulder and fitted just below the elbow. Rows of the same shade were at the bodice and waistline. Soft vertical shirring marked the waistline of the dress which, besides the skirt having half fullness. Her shoulder corsage was fashioned of gardenias.

Mr. Adam chose for his best man Mr. Harold Sexton of North Broadway. Ushers were Mr. Russell Adams and Mr. Roscoe Adam, brothers of the groom.

The bride attended Shelby high school but graduated from the Senior High School at Morehead, and attended Morehead State Teachers College. She is a member of the assembly department of the Autoclub of America.
