Homes In City Inundated By Bursting Pipes

Shortage Of Gas, And Failure To Heat Causes Damage To Homes In City

In this and succeeding issues of the Rowan County News will appear a series of articles on the gas and P. Store. The local store is under the management of Mr. John Crossfield, under whose management a notice published in the paper indicates that the gas is being diverted from the city mains to private use.

New Music Teacher Takes Over Duties

Miss Mildred Sweet Elected As Instructor In Place Of Miss Riggs

Miss Mildred Sweet, of Sioux City, Iowa, has been appointed to succeed Miss Riggs as instructor in the Department of Music of Morehead State Teachers College. A friend and fellow-student of the late Miss Dorothy J. Riggs, whom she succeeds, Miss Sweet received her B. A. degree in Music from Morehead College, Sioux City, her Master's degree in Music from the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester (N. Y.) and has since then further graduate work at Northwestern University.

Officials Displeased With Newspaper Story

The following statement is published at the request of the County Judge, E. P. Peffer, and County Attorney, R. M. Clay, in answer to an article appearing in a local newspaper last week.

In view of the fact that a local newspaper has through an article appearing in the issue of January 25, reflecting on the integrity and intelligence of the Rowan County Court, and the County Attorney, we wish to make the following statement in the columns of the Morehead News, in order that the public may know the exact facts.

Weather Causes College Enrollment To Show Decrease

Rural School Still In Session Cause Number To Drop; Manning Appointed

While figures, for the enrollment at the Morehead State Teachers' College, are not available, a seasonal falling off is reported to have occurred. College authorities feel that this is due to the fact that the school has been in session for the past month, preventing the teachers of this locality from finishing their schools at the usual time.

Carl Jones Home Is Destroyed In Monday Fire

Fire completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jones, just outside the city limits of the new addition, on Monday night of this week.

The home, and its contents, were completely destroyed. The origin of the fire is not known, but it is believed to have been caused by an overloaded fire.

Produce-Consumer Campaign To Sell Pork Products

Kroger Store Cooperating With Producers To Help Meet Surplus Pork

In an effort to help meet the huge surplus of pork now facing producers, Kroger stores will participate in a Produce-Consumer campaign in this important fair province, starting its intensive holiday promotions starting Feb. 1 and Feb. 29, according to L. J. Huekamp, general manager for the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company in this territory.

Eagles Lose Two Games Over Week End

Western And Murray Still Hang Out Jinx Sign For Eagles; Wiggers Stars

Desperate drives to overcome slight leads in both the Murray and Western games on Saturday night and Monday night, caused the Eagles to lose their contests. The Murray contest by 36-24 and the Western game by 36-28. Both games were actually tied in the last four minutes of play, when the Eagles drew up to within two points of their opponents, Murray and Western, in those encounters.

Mutiny In Big House Picture

Based On Prison Break, Feature Conflict Between Good And Bad Elements

That the people of this community appreciate the comforts provided for them at the Mills Theatre, where only the best in comfort, sound and production are offered, has been evidenced for the past week, since the opening of the theatre, by the unexpected large crowds that have been in attendance. This in spite of the unusually inclement weather and the extreme cold.

Vikings In Finest Form Trim Soldier

Reserves Play Greater Part Of Game To Pile Up 47-25 Lead; Vikings Win

Vikings and Kingklets had another on night last Friday night at the local high school gymnasium. The Vikings were the greater part of the game Coach Pappy rumped away with the major contest between the two teams 47-25. Earlier in the evening Pappy's little boys scored their third consecutive win by overturning the Solon team 27-18.

Loses Purse After Fire Breaks Out In Home

Fire discovered in the home of Mrs. Duncan on Fourth street, on Friday night of last week did comparatively little damage. When the fire was discovered the alarm was sounded, but in the mean time neighbors rushed in and formed a bucket brigade which had the fire under control by the time the fire department arrived. The chemical engine was used to complete extinguishing the fire.

Chief damage was done by the water, which wet some of the furniture.

Young Peoples Guild To Meet On Friday

The Young Peoples Guild Council of the Christian Church will meet Friday of this week at the home of the Pastor and his wife to plan their work for the new semester.

Most satisfaction has been felt since the large attendance at Guild meetings by the students, and over the quality of Sunday Evening programs.

ELLIOTTSVILLE SCHOOL NEWS
The high school department of the Elliottsville school is busy with final examinations. The first semester closes Wednesday, January 24, hence the second semester will begin Thursday, January 25.

Many of the students are looking forward to the opening of the new semester because of the added extra-curricular activities. Every student will be able to participate in at least one of the clubs to be organized.

Chapel will be held every two weeks. A program committee has been appointed from the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grade groups.

Twenty six pupils were absent on Monday, Jan. 22. Some of these absences may have been caused by the false report that the pipes of the radiators had frozen and burst.

Dorothy Dean and Lillian Crockett, two N. Y. girls are taking a great deal of pleasure in making and keeping the bulletin board attractive and interesting.

The team has been outfitted with new suits and warm-up jackets with a new team for the first time in the game with Morehead High last Friday night.

FARMERS SCHOOL NEWS
A committee headed by Mr. Caudill canvassed the community for subscriptions to a fund with which to buy steel folding chairs for the gymnasium.

The chairs cost approximately a dollar each, plus freight, to be exact and fifty chairs were bought. They are now in the gymnasium. Each contributor's name is to be printed on one chair for one dollar that he gave.

Very much appreciate these chairs and thank all those who contributed money for them. The following is a complete list of contributors: H. A. Peirrey, Harlan Blair, C. E. Bishop, Drug Co. five chairs, A. B. McKinney, two chairs, Austin Riddle, Jerry Riggles, Mrs. Austin Riddle, J. L. Boggs, Mabel Alfrey, Myrtle G. W. G. CROFT SCHOOL
Due to the cold weather as well as a heavy coughing, our attendance has fallen off considerably. But those who are coming are doing good work.

We had a Christmas program and everyone seemed to enjoy themselves. The children enjoyed trimming the tree and had a great time giving and receiving presents.

Each child received one or two presents from some pupils. The school and everyone got a present from the teacher.

Our teacher received many presents from the children and he appreciated each one very much.

We had several visitors of late and many have returned from the beauty of our school room.

We appreciate the interest in our work and extend to them our invitation to visit us at any time they care to come.

GRANTON SCHOOL NEWS
Due to the sickness, cold weather and snow many children have been absent from school.

The children who have been present at every school day are as follows: Rosie DeLoard, Ella DeLoard, Wilda DeLoard, Tackett, Ernie Tackett, Elwood Tackett, John Cranfill, Christine Littleton, Louise Kelsey, Marie Stigall, Guyneith Hogge and Fred Hogge.

The swinging bridge at the Strull ford has been started but the nations did not get it finished Saturday. It is hoped that it will be completed soon.

The honor roll for the first grade are Troy White, Leroy Morehouse, Ella DeLoard and Vernon Cox. Fred Hogge will represent Cranston to the school spelling Bee.

Standard Oil Dealers Offer New Gasoline

Crown Extra Gasoline Replaces Ethyl Products At All Standard Stations

Effective today, Standard Oil stations and dealers throughout this territory are offering their customers "Crown Extra" gasoline, the extra quality product which has replaced the old Crown Ethyl Gasoline.

"Crown Extra" is a descriptive name for this motor fuel, because in addition to containing tetraethyl lead fluid, Crown Extra Gasoline has been specially made from a superior base stock—extra fine in all its specifications.

Made for those who want the best, Crown Extra is an extra quality gasoline, selling at the same price formerly charged for Crown Ethyl.

C. and O. To Feature "See America First"

Series Of Ads To Be Released On Beauties Of Local Scenery

Historic Virginia has been adopted as the theme for the Chesapeake and Ohio line's 1940 series of advertising program, the purpose of which will be to publicize opportunities and attractions afforded in that state for recreational and educational travel.

"See the FIRST of America First will be a message reiterated in a series of display ads to appear in selected newspapers in the Middle West territory served by C. & O. Lines and in several publications of general circulation, beginning this month.

This series will be initiated with a display ad depicting Tidewater Virginia, cradle of Colonial America, rich in old memories, traditions and hallowed shrines. For its illustrative purposes this advertisement will include a decorative map of Tidewater Virginia which will highlight places of historic interest and appeal to Americans and to visitors from abroad.

Succeeding ads will feature, individually, the historic localities which the passenger service of the C. & O. Lines render readily accessible to a large part of the Middle West and to Western travel gateways.

The travel keynote was chosen by the C. & O. for this year's advertising because of the prospect of increased travel within American boundaries as a result of unsettled European conditions and travel restrictions embodied in the Neutrality Act.

Besides promoting travel in its advertising, the C. & O. is seeking to encourage travel by a service that furnishes "travel packages" designed to relieve the traveler of all irksome details. This variety of trips with everything planned and budgeted and with all details, such as stopovers, hotel reservations, sight-seeing trips and the like, arranged in advance by passenger agents and passenger representative of the lines.

Answers To Questions

A new booklet containing 100 commonest asked questions about social security is now being distributed by the Ashland office of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. The questions are answered in this booklet, which will be sent without charge to anyone requesting it.

We answer these questions every day, in the operation of our field office," Mr. J. A. Chaney said.

"The answers are of interest to everyone who has a social security number or who is the survivor of a worker who has been employed in jobs covered by the Social Security Act."

WAR RAVAGES HERE

Last year fire loss in this country total nearly a million dollars a day—$25 million a week.

But three hundred million dollars is no petty sum even here when you think of the lives, jobs and intangibles lost involved, which no insurance can compensate.

Three hundred million dollars would pay the cost of rebuilding our proposed recordbreaking naval building program. It could pay for thousands of the costly airplanes now needed by the army to make a more peaceful comparison, it would build 100,000 homes costing $3,000 each. Or it would buy 200 hospital care for countless thousands of sick people and ameliorate ghastly suffering.

Last, but not least, is fire's destruction of life. According to news reports, Finland lost only 258 civilian lives by air raids in the first six weeks of its war with Russia, whereas the United States loses over 10,000 lives by the ravages of fire alone in an average year, or nearly 200 a day.

Although this nation is blessed with peace, it suffers war ravages from an enemy it can control, its time to go to war against fire!

THE VILLAGE MOVEMENT

Hicks in the little town of Scarsdale, New York, a movement was recently started which is typically in the American tradition.

It is known as "The Village Movement," and is sponsored by a group of representative citizens of the community. Its purpose is to restore representative government and to let business expand and make more jobs. Its ten objectives include: to uphold the Constitutional division of power of the Federal government; to restore to the Federal government simplicity of form and economy of operation; to resist government encroachment upon legitimate business; to encourage agriculture and industry; and aim those in need through local machinery; to support labor in its right to work and bargain collectively; to foster all social improvements of reasonable character which the country can pay for; and to resist the coercive tactics of all irresponsible groups.

The underlying purpose of this movement is obvious—to impress the people and the political community with the traditions of the nation's founders. Few of us realize how far we have strayed from the principles of local self-reliance, independence and rights of local government which have been lost little by little, almost without notice. And the result has been to create a gigantic and incredibly costly Federal bureaucracy which is inevitably opposed to the perpetuation of true democracy.

What these Scarsdale people have done, should be emulated on the widest possible scale by thousands of other communities of America. If we are to maintain democracy and sound and solvent government, there must be a resurgence of local responsibility, local independence, local effort to serve the industries farmers and working people of the country. Centralized government is the enemy of true representative government. And the Village Movement must be one possible answer for a trend which has gone farther than most of us know in adding this country with the principles of totalitarianism.

AVOID "TAG-ENDS" WHEN BUYING WOOL

Buy a coat now, during the January or February sales—but be sure not to collect "tag ends" unknowingly, says Miss Verna Latzke of the University of Kentucky home economics department.

The style must be such that it will carry over to next winter and still be good. This means it will be simple and well-cut, with good lines.

An important consideration is whether the coat will fit in with next winter's wardrobe as a whole. The style, color and length must go with the remainder of the clothes to be worn during 1940-41. This involves thinking ahead. For instance, if the buyer has worn brown several years and plans to defy habit next year with an all-black outfit, it would be unwise to purchase a brown winter coat.

A neutral color is desirable, such as blue, black, shades of brown or tan, or subtle gray tones may be selected. Avoid flamboyant colors.

If two coats are on sale at the same price, the buyer should observe which of them has the greater value, in case there is a difference. One may be a better-quality coat marked down, while the other is for sale at its regular price.

A person of moderate income usually is not wise in choosing a fur coat.

To take advantage of sales, watch style trends. By once getting the "hang" of clothing trends over a period of several years, the buyer is able always to select with taste and good knowledge takes the place of much money.

CHICK BROODING QUESTIONS
Precautions and suggestions for brooding chicks, taken from the Kentucky College of Agriculture Extension circular No. 157, "Brooding Chicks Artificially."

Keep the fire burning in the brooder stove for two or three days before putting the chicks into the house and regulate it so as to provide the proper temperature. Overheating must be avoided.

Feed the chicks when they are put into the brooder house, if the chicks are not fed immediately they may eat some of the litter, which might cause digestive trouble.

Use only feeds of good quality to allow sufficient feeder space to

"TWO BRIGHT BOYS"

The Women

Reno was a revelation to Mary. She hadn't dreamed that there were so many philosophies on marriage and divorce in existence. Even Lucy, the chambermaid had one.

As for Miriam and the Countess, Mary had developed a great affection for them. It was nice chatting about life with Miriam and for sheer amusement, there was nothing funnier than watching the Countess wooing Cowboy Buck and making plans for her fifth marriage.

Some of the days went fast, some slowly. Each morning there was always the hope of a letter from Stephen. But none came, and now, it was the last day. Tomorrow her divorce would be final. She was sitting in back of the farmhouse with Miriam and the Countess, trying to interest herself in a novel when suddenly she heard a familiar voice. Well, of all people Sylvia Fowler. There was a great hullabaloo of reunion and introductions, then Sylvia settled down to talk.

Could you imagine Howard Fowler kicking me out like that? After all she'd sacrificed. Why, she'd given him her youth, her everything. Never mind, though, the old stand. "Then get a load of this, I should have liked that girl where she kicked me in his arms."

Mary slowly shook her head. "A good argument, Miriam, so modern, so simple. But it's too simple my dear. Love letters are for lovers. The things that made Stephen my husband and my wife were little things — illnesses, worries, the fourth of July, making a garden together — things like that. And the fact that you to now, he needed me. But he doesn't any more."

The telephone rang and a thrill went through her as she heard her beloved's voice. "Stephen."

Miriam whispered, "Make him that speech you just made me."

She nodded. "Stephen? Why yes, I'm very cheerful. It's so good to hear your voice, Stephen. Yes, it's scheduled for tomorrow at twelve and I'll be there. No, I haven't seen the paper. There was a long pause. "Yes, I'd rather you told me. No, I'm not bitter. No, no plans at all. Goodbye Stephen, Goodbye."

"He's marrying her?" Miriam asked sharply.

She nodded, stunned. "And I've given him to her. I've handed him right over. This is just what she wanted me to do. I let her twist. On why did I let it happen. I shouldn't have. Yes, Miriam's idea of comfort was to get down to facts and the present. "Never mind what you've done. Mary, it's where are you going from here?"

Mary looked past her into the vision of a bleak and empty future. Then she said, "I don't know. Where am I going from here?"

A year had passed, a year of sorrow, of heartache and sleepless nights, a year of the loss of values. Yes, Mary had learned something — that perhaps pride and self-respect were things that after all, compromise has its virtues if it brings happiness in the end.

She was planning on a corsage of flowers and waiting for Michael Menimore to call for her when her mother walked into her boudoir one evening.

"You know, darling," Mrs. Morehead said, looking around her. "I've been thinking about you a lot here and in your bedroom. You've done that to the rest of the apartment. Why do you keep this old stuff here?"

"It reminds me of things — I don't want to forget." She knew what her mother was thinking. Why didn't she marry again? She'd tried to fall in love with some of her beaux, especially nice Michael, but it hadn't worked. "How do you like my new lipstick, mother —?"

The telephone rang and she snatched it. "Hello. Yes? Oh, hello Stephen." She began to smile. "Why yes, little Mary will be at your house at seven." This was the weekly visit. "No, Stephen, she went on hurriedly, glad of this opportunity to discuss a matter that had been on her mind, "there's no reason why you should come out of a night club just because I bounce in, is there? We may as well be civilized and forget we ever were married." "I know Stephen, it's sweet of you not to want to forget it but — what? Of course, I'll dance with you sometime. Tonight? Well, I usually end up at El Morocco. O. K. Mister, I'll see you there." She hung up and looked at her mother with shining eyes. "You know, I wonder — everybody has made such a point of telling me how happy Stephen is — how he broke off. I think I'll wear my new evening gown. The white one."

It was long after midnight when she returned. Then, for a few happy moments she stood in front of the mirror and gazed gracefully remembering the way she had danced with Stephen tonight. All sat once she turned around. Little Mary was standing there. "Hello, darling."

"Hello." The child climbed into her mother's bed. "I had a bad dream. Mummy," she said, her eyes. "This is the only nice thing about a divorce. You get a chance to sleep with your mother sometimes. Hurry and get into bed."

A few moments later she was cuddled into her mother's arms. "You know," she said drowsily. "Crystal's so silly. I told Daddy so tonight."

"Oh, you mustn't hurt Daddy's feelings."

"Mummy, I think Daddy doesn't love her as much as you any more. I told him that too but he said I mustn't tell you. I'll tell you why do you care how he feels? Mummy?"

"Yes?" Mary hardly dared breathe.

"What's anyone want with a telephone in the bathroom? Crystal had one and she was awful mad when I walked in on her while she was talking. She was talking so lovey-dovey it would make you sick. She kept calling him 'Baby.'"

Mary's eyes widened. Oh, it couldn't be true. And yet it might be. Crystal betraying Stephen? And if he didn't care any longer — why, it might be the solution to everything.

"Was that — all?"

"I didn't hear anything else. She hung up when she saw me. The telephone rang again just as I left and Cousin Sylvia went in. I bet she heard who Crystal was talking to."

Mary jumped up, electrified. Quickly she went to the telephone and dictated a telegram to Sylvia. They must forget their differences at Reno. She was giving a dinner party at the Moon and Stars Roof for all the Renovites on Friday. Wouldn't Sylvia please come? Her first move the next day was to see that Stephen knew, through Little Mary that she'd be there on Friday. He'd manoeuvre things to see her, she was certain. All of her ideas about fair play had vanished. She was a fighting woman now. Out to get the man she loved.

Friday night arrived and every one was present including the Countess who immediately began to moan about her young husband's luck.

The girls were gathered together in the dressing room as she related her suspicious about her husband's infidelity. I've had five husbands," she wept, "and Buck's the first who ever told me what he really thinks of me — in public. Oh, I'll find out who's stealing him from me. Just wait."

She saw Sylvia off in a corner by herself, her eyes lighted up. "Oh Sylvia darling," she gurgled, "how good to see you my dear. Why I thought you'd be looking worried and —"

"Aie worried?" Sylvia stared at her. "What about?"

Mary hesitated, then took her arm. "Well I don't like to talk about it, but it's Crystal and the things she says about you. It isn't because I dislike her, understand but I didn't think she should go around giving everyone the impression that you're carrying on a wild affair with —"

"Oh, Mary, I'll black both her eyes. Who am I carrying on with?"

"Your psycho-analyst my dear, she's not only broadcasting it but she's making everybody laugh at it."

"For ten minutes Sylvia raved. Then she calmed down and a crafty look came into her eyes. "I'll fix that little guttersnipe. I'm carrying on, eh?" With a flourish she pulled a key from her bag. "Here, I took this out of her dressing table drawer. I don't know who he is but she meets him at the Gothic Arms every afternoon."

Mary took it and then sent a

Producer-Consumer To Sell Pork
year. In addition, the situation has become even more serious because the war has deprived hog raisers of important European markets.

Pork advertisements carrying the Producer-Consumer campaign emblem will be placed by the Kroger company in more than 1,250 daily and weekly newspapers throughout the company's territory, according to Albert H. Morrill, president of the firm. He added that the food chain store industry as a whole will use space in more than 8,000 newspapers to tell the pork story to 25,000,000 readers.

Morrill explained that this event is more than 20 Producer-Consumer campaigns on surplus farm products in which Kroger and other chain store companies have participated in its past campaigns.
During a similar campaign on beef in 1936, Kroger sales of this product were increased 14 per cent. Early in 1937 the company's participation in a lamb campaign resulted in a 73 per cent increase in movement of lamb in Kroger stores.

ed for an infringement of rules. Friday night the Vikings will play their sixth conference game. The Kings say they have a perfect record in conference play, having won all of their five previous starts, and are at the top of the heap in conference play. They are out to keep their conference record clean with a win over the highly touted Louisa team. Friday night will tell the story.

Eagles Lost 2 Games Over Week-End
were again more frequent. The Eagles made the trip without the services of their star forward, Talbot, who was laid up with an attack of flu and who did not make the trip.

Wiggers was by far the outstanding man on the squad on the trip. He held Murray's star center, Washer to two field baskets, one in the last seconds of the game while rolling up 9 points for himself. In the Western game he tallied 14 points to stand out, while his opposing center was scoring five points, with two field baskets. When it is considered that the Western center is Towery, who is all K. L. J. C. and all S. I. L. center, and that he has been scoring an average of 18 points per game during the past season, Wiggers is entitled to considerable credit.

Ball with 17 points was outstanding for Western.

The Eagles play Union here Saturday night. The game with Holbrook originally scheduled for February 5, has been postponed to February 17. On February 5, Brock's bridge meets the Ashland High Tomcats here.

Announcement has been made that the district basketball tournament will be held at Grayson, while the regional will be held here.

Homes Of City Inundated By Bursting Pipes

ers with friends. The home of Judge D. B. Caudill is an example. According to reports, Judge Caudill's home is almost a complete wreck, with seven radiators burst, the basement flooded with sewage and water, the floors ruined, and rugs and furniture a total loss. It is estimated that the loss to the Caudill home will exceed $1,000. Other homes are in nearly as bad a condition.

There is scarcely a home in the city in which the water pipes have frozen.

The one bright spot in the otherwise dark outlook, is that the stove makers have equipped a harvest with the sale of stoves to replace gas equipment, and the coal dealers and truckers have worked overtime to supply the needs of those who have been forced to go back to the use of coal.

THE WOMEN

message outside. A moment later Crystal appeared. Mary nodded sweetly and held out the key.

Well, Mrs. Haines, there's no point in a scene but it seems that this belongs to you."

Crystal turned a beet red. "So what! I'm not the only person who has a key to a Gothic apartment."

Mary nodded patiently. "I'm only warning you my dear. I think it's very friendly of me to come to you first with it instead of

"Listen you fool! Crystal snipped. "I like what I got and I'm going to keep it. You handed me your husband on a silver platter when you went to Reno but don't expect me to hand him back."

"I don't. I expect him to come all by himself!"

"Attagirl, Mary," Sylvia yelled. The door was opened by Cigarettes who handed Mary a note. She stared at it. A rolled up piece of paper was stuck through a key-hole. Wonderfully, Mary read the note. "Dear Mrs. Haines No. 2. I will you please tell Mrs. Haines No. 2 that this fell out of Bucky's pocket. It seems to be a mate to the one you're arguing about. P. S. He drank a bit too much and started talking P. S. No. 2 and in lobby. Please see me, Stephen."

Without a word Mary showed the message to Crystal. "You seem to be the 'other woman' in the Countess's case."

"Are you Crystal?" Sylvia yelled, delighted. Then she looked at Mary and sudden realization came to her. "Why Mary you've been using us—seeing the way she do."

"Yes, Crystal said, almost wnderingly, "you're just a cat like the rest of us."

Mary started for the door. "Only SALISMAN WANTED"
