EVOLUTION OF KENTUCKY 6 & 7.

Ohio River Boundary  Line 113

Kentucky and Tennessee Boundary  Line 113

Later Changes in County Boundary Limitations 118–133
The records concerning the original boundaries of the various counties of the State of Kentucky are to be found in the Acts of the General Assembly and Littell's "Laws of Kentucky," with the exception of the years 1819, 1820 and 1834. These volumes are not available at the Louisville Public Library, the Filson Club or the University of Louisville Law Library in the city of Louisville, but can be obtained at Frankfort, Kentucky.

While giving particulars as to the original boundaries, the time, the place and methods proposed for erection of the counties, no reason for their establishment is given except in one or two instances in the Acts of the General Assembly. In Robertson's "Petitions of the Early Inhabitants of Kentucky," such information pertaining to the reason for the formation of new counties is very meager. New counties were formed because it was politically expedient to do so. Roads to the county seat often led through territory of hostile Indians; (Bourbon county) the inconveniences caused by the extent of territory, the great expense involved in such travel plus the dangers of exposure to floods, enemies and high-waters and the ensuing penalty of being fined for non-attendance at the remote courthouse; (Lincoln county) such reasons as these predominated in the pleas for new counties.

Experts on the subject differ as to the exact locality where boundaries were and should be. Years often elapsed between the Act of the General Assembly which erected a certain county, and the actual running and marking of the boundary line. During such intervals, the tree, the stone or the house given as a particular bound might be demolished or lost or burned. Thus, disputes arose frequently on this subject; acts were passed to amend thrice amended acts to set right the boundaries; lines were changed a few yards here, a quarter mile there, so as to include or exclude certain citizens; and long before the surveyors attempted to re-mark the bounds, said citizens might die or move or their houses burn or be sold, and the Assembly would again change the bounds with a repetition of the above mentioned circumstances.

During the early inception of the counties, maps were inaccurate and the hazardous times and conditions not conducive to reliability or speed. People were too busy making history to worry about the recording of it. Thus, valuable records were carelessly lost or destroyed and invaluable information lost forever. The surveyors were, apparently, at times incompetent or their equipment was. Discrepancies arise to confound the historian and one man’s conviction concerning the exact locality of certain old boundary lines, may be considered quite as reliable as another, in many instances.

EVOLUTION OF KENTUCKY

The State of Kentucky covers a portion of the territory that, under the Colonial system, constituted the County of Augusta in Virginia.

The County of Augusta was formed in 1738 in the twelfth year of George II by an act of Colonial legislature held at the Capitol of Williamsburg. (a)

In 1769, the tenth year of George III, the county of Augusta was divided and the county of Botetourt carved from same. (b)

In 1772, the twelfth year of George III, the county of Botetourt was divided and the county of Fincastle carved from same. (c)

On Dec. 6, 1776, in the first year of the Commonwealth of Virginia, the county of Fincastle was divided into the three counties: Kentucky, Washington and Montgomery. The boundary of Kentucky as given in the act, is as follows: "all that part thereof which lies to the south and westward of a line beginning on the Ohio, at the mouth of Great Sandy Creek, and running up the same and the main and northeasterly branch thereof to the Great Laurel Ridge or Cumberland Mountain to the line of North Carolina, shall be one distinct county, and called and known by the name of Kentucky." (d)

In May, 1780, Kentucky county was divided into three counties: Jefferson, Fayette and Lincoln.

Jefferson county embraced: "---that part of the south side of the Kentucky river which lies west and north of a line beginning at the mouth of Bensons big creek and running up the same and its main fork to the head; thence south to the nearest waters of Hammonds creek, and down the same to its junction with the Town fork of Salt river; thence south to Green river and down the same to its junction with the Ohio."

Fayette county embraced: "---that part which lies north of the line beginning at the mouth of the Kentucky river, and up the same to its middle fork to the head, and thence south-east to Washington line." (a)

Lincoln county embraced the residue of the county of Kentucky. (b)

Nelson county was formed in 1784 by the general assembly of Virginia, and named in honor of ex-Governor Thomas Nelson of Virginia. It then embraced all that territory lying between Salt and Green Rivers, as far east as the east line of Washington county. (c) Out of that original territory have been formed the following counties: Washington, Hardin and part of Green in 1792, part of Bullitt in 1796, Ohio in 1798, Breckinridge in 1799, Grayson and part of Butler in 1810, Daviess in 1815, part of Hart in 1819, Made in 1823, part of Spencer in 1824, part of Edmonson in 1825, part of Anderson in 1827, Hancock in 1829, Marion in 1834, Larue in 1843, Taylor in 1848 and part of McLean in 1854. (a)

An act approved Feb. 16, 1843: "-----that the county line between the counties of Casey and Lincoln shall be changed so as to include the farm and dwelling of David Floyd, now of the county of Casey, in the county of Lincoln—the line to begin at the mouth of the Mudlick branch, and to run so as to include said Floyd in the county of Lincoln. (b)

Bourbon county, named in compliment to a prince of the French Bourbon family who rendered services to America during the Revolutionary War, was made from a part of Fayette county.

Bourbon county, established 1785 by an act of the General Assembly of Virginia, as follows: "-----that from and after the first day of May, 1786, the county of Fayette shall be divided into two distinct counties, that is to say, so much of the said county within the following lines; Beginning at the mouth of Upper Howards creek, on the Ky. river, running up the main fork thereof to the head; thence with the dividing ridge, between Ky. and Licking creek, until it comes opposite the head of Eagle creek, from thence a direct line to the nearest part of Raven creek, a branch of Licking, down Raven creek to the mouth thereof; thence with Licking to the Ohio; thence with the Ohio to the mouth of Sandy Creek, up Sandy creek, to the Cumberland Mt., thence with the said mountain to the line of Lincoln county; thence with that line and down the Ky. river to the beginning, shall be one distinct county, and called and known by the name of Bourbon----------

(a) The residue of said county shall retain the name of Fayette.

(b) Mercer County, named in honor of General Hugh Mercer is the first formed out of Lincoln county, and sixth to be established in Ky. (c) in 1785. An act to add part of Casey county to Mercer, approved Dec. 22, 1820, as follows:

Whereas a portion of the citizens of Casey county have petitioned to be added to the county of Mercer: Therefore all that part of Casey county included within the following bounds shall be added to the county of Mercer, viz. Beginning on the Mercer and Casey county line, 3 1/2 miles from the S.W. corner of Mercer county, thence such a course as will include the residence of the following persons in the county of Mercer (now residents of Casey county) viz. John Bowling, Arthur Northcut, Geo. White, Matthew Coulter, John Goode, Ephraim Cunningham, John Gee, Jacob Johnson, Geo. Hunter, Martin Conder, Chas. Kirkland, Leonord Taylor, Wm. Hewenton, Thom. Hurchings, Thom. Shannon, Matthew Flory, Wm. Leoleet, Wm. Clemmens, Arthur Jones, John Christian, Henry Harper, Wm. Taylor, Jacqueline A. Lewis and Wm. Lobb, striking the Lincoln county line 3 1/2 miles from the N.E. corner of Casey county, thence northwardly to the junction of the Lincoln-Mercer and Casey county lines; thence with the present Mercer line to the beginning.

MCCracken County is one of the earliest counties of the territory known as Jackson's Purchase (Vol.I) and was established out of part of Hickman county in 1824 and named from Capt. Virgil McCracken. Its early settlement was retarded by the extremely low price of the land—the legislature at first fixing the price at 25¢ per acre and then reducing it to 12½¢. Thus, it obtained a doubtful reputation concerning quality; speculators bought up huge quantities and kept them out of the market for years. (a) Act approved Dec. 19, 1821, as follows: "The fourth county (made from Hickman county territory) to be known by the name of McCracken—to be bounded as follows, viz: Beginning in the middle of the Mississippi river, opposite the mouth of Mayfield's creek;

therefore up the Mississippi river to the mouth of the Ohio river;
therefore up the Northwest side of said river to the mouth of the Tennessee river; therefore up the Tennessee river to the termination of range line 2 East of the meridian, on said river; therefore South with said range line to the Southeast corner of township 6 North, range 2 East, of the meridian;
therefore West with the North boundary to the county of Graves, to the Northwest corner thereof; therefore with the line of range 1 West of the meridian line, to Mayfield's creek;
therefore down said creek with its meanders, to the beginning. (b) An Act of the General Assembly was passed Dec. 17, 1824, to establish McCracken county. (c)

EDMONSON COUNTY was formed in 1825 out of parts of Warren, Hart and Grayson counties and was named in honor of Captain John Edmonson. An act was approved Jan. 12, 1825,

Doubts were suggested whether the counties calling for the Ohio river as the boundary line, extend to the State line on the North and West side of the river or if the margin of the Southeast side is the limit of the counties. The boundaries were declared to be as follows: "That each county of this commonwealth calling for the river Ohio as the boundary line, shall be considered as bounded in that particular by the State line on the Northwest side of said river, and the bed of the river and the islands, therefore shall be within the respective counties holding the main land opposite thereto within this State, and the several county tribunals shall hold jurisdiction accordingly"(a)

A dispute between Kentucky and Tennessee as to the true position of the boundary line between the two states was settled by act of the 24th General Assembly in 1816 as follows: "That the line usually called Walker's line, so far as it was originally run and marked, to-wit: From a point near the mouth of Obed’s alias Oba’s river, to the Tennessee river, be the true jurisdictional line between this state and the state of Tennessee; and at the eastern extremity of Walker’s line near the mouth of Obed’s river aforesaid, a line shall be run at right angles either North or South as the case may require, till it reaches the true chartered limits of the two states, in the latitude of 36 degrees and 30 minutes North; and from that point the line shall be extended to the East, still keeping the same latitude, till it reaches the eastern boundary of this state. And at the West extremity of Walker’s line, to-wit: At the Tennessee river a line shall be extended up or down said river (as the case may require) (a) Act of 18th Gen. Assembly. Chap. CLXIX, P. 100.
till it reaches the true chartered latitude of 36 degrees and 30 minutes North; and from that point the line shall be extended due West, still keeping the same latitude till it reaches the river Mississippi. And the line so pointed out by this act, shall be, and remain, the true jurisdictional line between this State and the State of Tennessee.

Act approved Jan. 20, 1835: "That the line originally run between the counties of Barren and Hart, be established, except so much of it as includes the dwelling house of Robert Ferguson in the county of Hart----that the dwelling of Robert Ferguson be, and the same is hereby declared to be, in the county of Barren. (c)

Act approved, Feb. 22, 1837, to establish the dividing line between Marion and Washington counties: "Whereas, It is represented to this General Assembly, that two of the commissioners appointed by and named in the act, entitled, an act supplementary to an act, entitled, an act to establish the county of Marion, to survey and mark the lines of the county of Marion, which divide the same from the county of Washington, are equally divided in opinion respecting the construction to be given, to the direction given in the act to establish the county of Marion, and in order to fix the the point of commencement for said survey and marking the line, which direction is in these words, to-wit: beginning at a point half way on the road leading from Lebanon to Springfield—Therefore, that in ascertaining the point half way on the road leading from Lebanon to Springfield, as directed in said act, the same shall be done by the commissioners aforesaid, by following the course and distance of said road, and not by taking a straight or base line from Lebanon to Springfield. (a)

Act approved Dec. 18, 1837, to define more particularly the line between Boone and Gallatin counties, as follows: "Whereas in an act of the General Assembly, approved Feb. 9, 1837, establishing the county of Trimble—certain creeks on the line between the counties of Gallatin and Boone are miscalled—wherefore—Be it enacted—that the line between the counties of Boone and Gallatin, beginning on the banks of the Ohio river at the mouth of Big Bone creek; thence up said creek to the South fork of Big Bone creek; thence up said South fork to Thomas Branna, leaving said Brann in Boone; thence up said South fork to the widow Hughe's old place, to the intersection of said creek by the Louisville and Cincinnati road; thence with the line as designated by the 12th section of the above recited act———? (b)

An act more particularly to define the county line between Lewis and Greenup counties: "Whereas doubts have arisen as to the correct line between the counties of Lewis and Greenup—for the remedy whereas—Be it enacted———appoint commissioners, for and on behalf of their respective counties, to mark and define that part of the line, between said counties, which commences on the Ohio river, opposite the mouth of the Big Scioto river, and thence Mc Cracjen counties, approved Feb. 15, 1838, as follows: "Whereas, doubts exist in relation to the true boundary line between the counties of Hickman and Mc Cracken at the mouth of Mayfield's creek—therefore, Be it enacted——That island number one, lying in the Mississippi river opposite to the mouth of Mayfield creek, shall form and compose a part of Hickman county" (b)

An act to have the line run and marked between Morgan and Floyd counties, approved Feb. 5, 1839, as follows: "Whereas doubts exist as to where the line runs between the counties of Morgan and Floyd at some particular places; for remedy whereof,—employ chain carriers——to run all said line that is not plainly marked and run" (c)

Whereas doubts have arisen as to where the line between the counties of Scott and Franklin runs, in consequence of the removal of trees and other objects which once denoted where the same passed by the opening and improvement of farms, and whereas, by the act of 1794, establishing the said county of Franklin, the same is required to be bounded on one part thereof by the then established line of Scott, which, by the act of 1792, called to run from the Eight Mile Tree on the road leading from Frankfort to Georgetown; and to run thence in a straight line so as to intersect the Big Buffalo road, between the head of Cedar creek and Lecompte's run----------" (d)

The Kentucky legislature passed an act to establish the county of Henrietta, out of that portion of Trigg county which lies between the Cumberland and Tennessee Rivers and in addition a very small patch of Marshall county, one mile each on its North and West, and less than one and a half mile each on its South and East boundaries—purposely to include East and West Aurora, on the Tennessee river, one of which shall be the county seat. But its establishment is dependent upon the approval of voters in Trigg county at the August election. The majority voted against the new county; it was not established. (a)

Act approved "That the boundary line between the counties of Morgan and Wolfe be so changed and altered as to attach to the county of Wolfe all that portion of Morgan county which is described in the following—beginning on the dividing ridge between Frozen Creek waters and the Red River waters, where the Morgan, Breathitt and Wolfe county line join; thence running with said dividing ridge, around to a point where the Wolfe where the Wolfe county line leaves said dividing ridge, near the farm of Lm W. Days, so as to include all the wagers of Red River in the county of Wolfe, except the dwelling house of S.R. Wilson, and all persons living above him, on what is known as the Slate Road Fork of Red River—the same is hereby, made a part of the county of Wolfe. (b)"

Act approved Feb. 20, 1844, as follows: "That the island at the mouth of the Tennessee River, opposite the town of Paducah, called "The Tennessee Island; be, and the same is hereby attached to, and made a part of the county of McCracken." (a)

Act approved Feb. 29, 1844, as follows: "That from and after the passage of this act, there shall be, and is hereby added to the county of Bracken, all that part of the county of Nicholas included in the following boundary, to-wit: Beginning where the Nicholas and Harrison county line crosses the new cut road to the Mason county line; thence with the Mason county line to the Bracken county line; thence with the Bracken line to the Harrison county line; and thence with the Harrison county line to the beginning, which shall be known as a part of the county of Bracken, and within its boundary lines." (b)

Act approved Mar. 10, 1856, as follows: "That the boundary of Perry county be so changed as to include the farms of Wm. Bowling and Joseph Mullins in Breakhitt county and the farm and residence of Henry C. Caudle in Letcher county." (c)

Act to change the Clay and Harlan county line approved Jan. 1, 1852, as follows: "---beginning at the lower end of Alexander Whitehead's farm, at the mouth of Gabe's hollow, at the Clay and Harlan county line; thence a straight line to intersect the Clay and Harlan county lines, to the top of the Kentucky ridge, at the head of the Rocky Hollow of Mile Branch; and that all that part of Clay county included in this boundary, be and the same is hereby added to the county of Harlan." Act approved Feb. 18, 1854, as follows: "That the surveyors of Hardin and Breckinridge counties—proceed to run, mark and establish the true line of said counties, running from said Big Spring to a point on Rough Creek, opposite the mouth of Clifty, as designated by the act, entitled, an act for the division of Hardin county, approved Dec. 9, 1799, and may adjourn from time to time until they have completed the survey. At the end of each mile they shall put up large stones, so as to be two feet above and two feet below the surface of the ground, and marked with the letters C. L. in large capitals. If either of them shall be absent on the day mentioned, the one present shall adjourn to some other day. If the two shall disagree as to the true line, they may call on the surveyor of Meade county as an umpire. They shall make a report to the county courts of said counties, and shall have the report recorded, and make them such compensation as may be reasonable, and pay the other expenses—each county paying one half of the whole expenses. The line so established shall be the line between the said counties of Hardin and Breckinridge."

Act to establish lines between the counties of Lawrence, Floyd and Pike. Act approved Mar. 6, 1854, as follows: "That the division lines between the counties of Lawrence, Floyd and Pike be and the same are hereby changed to the following boundary, to-wit: Beginning at the mouth of Pigeon Roost Fork of Wolf Creek, thence up said fork, South 16 degrees East, 330 poles, to a sugar tree, two white oaks, three chestnuts, a hickory, and locust, standing on top of the dividing ridge between the waters of said fork and the Emily's Fork of Wolf creek; thence with the top of said ridge to a white oak, hickory, black oak, two black gums, a dogwood and a small chestnut marked L.P., with three cuts on either side, near the head of Emily's fork; thence down the dividing ridge between the waters of Emily's fork and Big creek to a birch, three hickories, a chestnut, and a dogwood, marked as aforesaid, on top of the last high knob between the waters of Wolf creek and Big creek, at the head of the Long Branch and Emily's fork on the lower side of Long branch to two birches and a maple standing on a large ledge of rocks at the point of the ridge on the lower side of Long branch next to the river of Tugg, marked P. L. with three cuts on either side; thence down the point of the ridge on the side below the mouth of Long branch to where it empties into the river of Tugg, including the fork of Pigeon Roost and its tributary streams in the county of Floyd, and all the waters of Wolf creek from the mouth of the Pigeon Roost fork down to the mouth of Wolf's creek and also the territory up the river of Tugg, to the mouth of Long Branch in the county of Lawrence?(a)

Men and women who founded Kentucky emerge from the past as epic figures, and the names of Kentucky's 120 counties perpetuate the memory not only of scouts, pioneers, soldiers and statesmen who created Kentucky but of nationally and internationally known Americans.

The nation itself was in the making when Kentucky came into being, and the great empire of the west was likewise being won. Those who afterward were to be known as Kentuckians, although they had not been born in the state, had a tremendous part in the Homeric adventures which gave the United States of America to the world.

Names of Kentucky counties constitute a sort of national history log--here are honored Daniel Boone, and the Bourbons of France, Simon Kenton and Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Benjamin Franklin, Marquis de la Fayette, Oliver Hazard Perry, Robert E. Lee, Count Pulaski, Gen. Henry Knox. To be familiar with the lives, achievements and adventures of these for whom Kentucky counties have been christened is to have a comprehensive idea of American history for the last 200 years, including some excursions into Old World events. Kentucky counties christened in honor of presidents of the United States include: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Hancock and Monroe. Counties which perpetuate the names of heroes who met death in the Revolutionary War, War of 1812-14, battles of the River Raisin, Blue Lick, Tippecanoe, and Indian Warfare in general are: Allen, Bracken, Christian, Daviess, Edmonson, Estill, Graves, Hardin Harlan, Hart, Hickman, Lawrence, McCracken, Meade, Montgomery, Oldham, Perry, Pike, Simpson, Spencer, Todd and Trigg. Signers of the Declaration of Independence, scouts, pioneers, spies, natives of foreign countries who aided the United States, soldiers of the Mexican War, and the War Between the States, justices of the Supreme Court, naval commanders, and colonizers such as Col. Richard Henderson are enrolled in the register of Kentucky counties. In three instances the spelling of names of counties today differs from the spelling favored by their originals. Davie's County was called in honor of Joseph Hamilton Davie, who prosecuted Aaron Burr; Green County for Maj. Gen. Nathaniel Greene, the final "e" having been dropped as the years passed, and Calloway County was named to memorialize Col. Richard Callaway, pioneer. One Kentucky county, Jessamine, was named for a woman, Jessamine Douglas, young daughter of a Scotch settler, who was tomahawked by a stealthy Indian as she sat on the banks of a creek which had been called Jessamine Creek by her father. From this creek Jessamine County derives its name.

Considering Kentucky's scenic beauty comparatively few counties were called for reasons pertaining to their topography. Ohio County drew its name from the Ohio River; Barren County so called because of the prairies or "barrens"; Bath County because of its medicinal waters; and Laurel County because of its abundance of laurel, or rhododendron.

While Cumberland County secured its name through the Cumberland River and mountains, these had previously been named for the English Duke--Cumberland.

One Kentucky county originally used the Christian as well as surname of its god-father, Bell County, long known as "Josh Bell County," but this appellation of "Josh" has long since been discarded. Usually the surnames of famous men have been considered sufficient to tell the story but in the case of three Kentucky counties--Grant, Lincoln, and Clay, the rule does not hold good, as Lincoln County was not called for Abraham Lincoln, Grant County was not named for General Ulysses S. Grant, and Clay County was not named for Henry Clay.
ADAI R COUNTY --- Created in 1801. Named in honor of General John Adair, a soldier in the Revolution, who emigrated to Kentucky in 1766 from South Carolina and became Governor of the State in 1820.

ALLEN COUNTY --- Created in 1815. Named in honor of Colonel John Allen, who fell in the battle of the River Raisin.

BALLARD COUNTY --- Created in 1842. Named in honor of Captain Bland Ballard, famous as a spy and Indian fighter under General George Roger Clark.

BAREN COUNTY --- Created in 1798. Received its name from "the barren or prairies which abound in this region of our country."

BATH COUNTY --- Created in 1811. Received its name from the great number of medicinal springs within its borders.

BELL COUNTY --- Created in 1867. Named in honor of Josha Fry Bell, a brilliant Kentucky lawyer during the middle of the last century.

BOONE COUNTY --- Created in 1798. Named in honor of Daniel Boones.
BOURBON COUNTY — Created in 1786. Named in honor of the Bourbon family of France, a prince of the family having rendered services to America for which the Virginians felt grateful.

BOYD COUNTY — Created in 1860. Named in honor of Linn Boyd, who served in Congress from Kentucky for eighteen years, beginning in 1855.

BOYLE COUNTY — Created in 1842. Named in honor of Judge John Boyle, a member of Congress from Kentucky, and for more than sixteen years Chief Justice of the State Court of Appeals.

BRACKEN COUNTY — Created in 1775. Named in honor of William Bracken, a hunter and pioneer.

BREATHITT COUNTY — Created in 1839. Named in honor of John Breathitt, elected Governor of Kentucky in 1832, who died in the Governor's house in Frankfort on February 21, 1834.

BRECKENRIDGE COUNTY — Created in 1792. Named in honor of John Breckinridge, lawyer and statesman, whose name was connected prominently with the early history of Kentucky.

BULLITT COUNTY — Created in 1796. Named in honor of Colonel Alexander Scott Bullitt, who was a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention in 1792 and who served as Lieutenant-Governor for one term beginning in 1800.
BUTLER COUNTY — Created in 1810. Named in honor of General Richard Butler, an officer of the Revolutionary War who was one of the commissioners with General George Rogers Clark delegated to make a treaty with the Shawnee and Delaware Indians.

Caldwell County — Created in 1809. Named in honor of General John Caldwell, who served under General George Rogers Clark in the campaign against the Indians in 1786, and who subsequently, in 1804, was elected Lieutenant Governor of Kentucky.

Calloway County — Created in 1822. Named in honor of Colonel Richard Callaway, one of the pioneers of Kentucky.

Campbell County — Created in 1794. Named in honor of John Campbell, a native of Ireland, who received from the Commonwealth of Virginia a grant of 4,000 acres of land near the present city of Louisville.

Carroll County — Created in 1838. Named in honor of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Carter County — Created in 1838. Named in honor of General William G. Carter, who was State Senator from the district including Lewis, Greenup, and Lawrence Counties at the time of Carter's organization.
CASEY COUNTY. Created in 1791. Named in honor of Colonel William Casey, a native of Virginia.

CHRISTIAN COUNTY. Created in 1796. Named in honor of Colonel William Christian, an officer in the Revolutionary war and an Indian fighter. He was killed in a battle with Indians.

CLARK COUNTY. Created in 1792. Named in honor of Kentucky's military hero, General George Rogers Clark.

CLAY COUNTY. Created in 1806. Named in honor of General Green Clay, prominent in the defense of Fort Meigs. He was also one of the foremost surveyors of the early days.

CLINTON COUNTY. Created in 1835. Named in honor of DeWitt Clinton, Governor of the State of New York, about ten years before the county was created, and a man of national fame during his life.

CRITTENDEN COUNTY. Created in 1842. Named in honor of John J. Crittenden, several times a Senator from Kentucky and named twice as Attorney General of the United States.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY. Created in 1798. Named after the river which winds its way across the county in a southwesterly direction.

DAVIESS COUNTY. Created in 1815. Named in honor of Joseph Hamilton Daviess.
EDMONSON COUNTY --- Created in 1825. Named in honor of Captain John Edmonson. He headed a company of volunteer riflemen who joined Colonel John Allen's regiment in 1812. He was killed in the Battle of River Raisin the next year.

ELLIOTT COUNTY --- Created in 1869. Named in honor of Judge John M. Elliott, a resident of Bath County and Circuit Judge of the Thirteenth Judicial District. He likewise served on the Court of Appeals.

ESTILL COUNTY --- Created in 1808. Named in honor of Captain James Estill, a gallant pioneer, was killed in the battle of Little Mountain, probably one of the most noteworthy struggles between whites and Indians in the early days of Kentucky.

FAYETTE COUNTY --- Created in 1780. Named in honor of Marquis de La Fayette, and Lexington was established as the county seat.

FLEMING COUNTY --- Created in 1793. Named in honor of Colonel John Fleming, a pioneer and Indian fighter.

FLOYD COUNTY --- Created in 1799. Named in honor of Colonel John Floyd, famous among the men of early Kentucky. He was a surveyor of renown, a leader among the pioneers, and an Indian fighter.

FRANKLIN COUNTY --- Created in 1794. Named in honor of Benjamin Franklin.
FULTON COUNTY — Created in 1845. Named in honor of Robert Fulton, the celebrated engineer of steamboat fame.

GALLATIN COUNTY — Created in 1798. Named in honor of Albert Gallatin, a native of Switzerland, prominent in public life at the time of its formation, and Secretary of the Treasury under President Jefferson.

GARRARD COUNTY — Created in 1796. Named in honor of James Garrard, then Governor of the State.

GRANT COUNTY — Created in 1820. Named in honor of Colonel John Grant or his brother, Samuel Grant, the latter seeming to have a shade the better claim for the honor. The brothers were prominent in the early affairs of the State, Samuel meeting his death at the hands of the Indians.

GRAVES COUNTY — Created in 1823. Named in honor of Major Benjamin Graves, an officer in the regiment of Colonel Lewis in the War of 1812. Major Graves was killed at the battle of the River Raisin.

GRAYSON COUNTY — Created in 1810. Named in honor of William Grayson, a Virginia statesman who died while en route to Washington to serve in the United States Senate.
