State Schools Could Get More Federal Funds

Kentucky schools would get $164,375,000 or $192,03 in additional federal funds for public education if Congress enacts legislation introduced earlier this month.

The bill, drafted by the National Education Association (NEA), was introduced by Rep. Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) and co-sponsored by Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.) if it would appropriate $7.8 billion in general federal aid.

The legislation would provide a basic grant of $100 per school-age child, or a total of about $5.25 billion per year. The other $2.5 billion would be allocated on the basis of an equalization formula designed to give extra help to states with a greater number of families on poverty-level incomes.

Kentucky's allocation would include $85,000,000 as a basic grant and $78,775,000 for equalization. The latter is based on a computation showing that Kentucky has 3.2 percent of the nation's poor.

(California, by contrast, is assigned an equalization grant of $151,475,000 for a proportion of the nation's poor that adds up to 6.1 percent. The total amount that would be allotted to California would be $664,475,000, the highest figure for any state. California would receive $130.73 per child.)

Perkins, who introduced the bill known as the General Education Assistance Act of 1969, is chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Calling on the nation to "gear up to the enormous task of putting its education house in order," Perkins said the measure - HR 10833 - would "protect the essential educational authority of the states" while "relieving the strain on state and local taxation resulting from ever-increasing demands on our school systems."

NEA executive secretary Sam M. Lambert noted that it provides the massive federal aid long recognized as essential by the one-million-member organization, to which all members of the Kentucky Education Association (KEA) belong.

"The states and local districts cannot provide the funds for the educational programs needed by the nation," Lambert said.

"We are creating a nation of student 'haves' and 'have-nots,'" Lambert said, "because some of our school districts can afford to attract quality teachers, while others cannot."

Perkins, too, pointed to that problem when introducing the NEA-draft bill on behalf of himself and Mrs. Green. He said, "Our national economy and the very quality of American life is impaired by lack of well-educated and skilled workers."

The problem stems in large measure, he added, from the inability of the schools to attract and hold good teachers.

He pointed out that starting pay for an elementary teacher in some areas is as low as $2400 a year in spite of a strenuous effort on the part of taxpayers to maintain good schools.

Under Perkins' bill, at least half of the money would be used by the states for increasing teacher salaries - strengthening their efforts to attract and hold good teachers. The remainder would be used, at the discretion of the state education agency, for providing other critical needs, including pre-school and summer programs, shared-time programs, and the hiring of additional staff.

More than half again as large as any education bill yet enacted, and $1.8 billion larger than last year's NEA-sponsored bill, the measure would supplement - not replace - existing federal categorical or earmarked programs, including the $3.9 billion Elementary and Secondary Education Act. The proposal would affect 53 million school-age pupils.

Lambert noted that the legislation would, for the first time, provide large general or unearmarked funds to the states to be used according to their special needs. Each state, however, would be required to submit a plan for approval to the U.S. Commissioner of Education, showing how it proposed to use the funds for improving the teaching situation and for providing other critical needs.

Like Perkins, Lambert emphasized that state and local effort would have to be maintained in order for states to share in any part of the three-prong program - improving teacher salaries, providing stronger educational programs, and creating educational opportunities. The legislation would become effective in fiscal year 1970.

Experts Will Evaluate State Testing Method

An Examinations Advisory Group, made up of seven experts in the field of testing, will meet for the first time in June to study and evaluate the State Government's employment testing methods.

Personnel Commissioner Ralph E. Howe selected the study group at the request of Gov. Louie B. Nunn in an effort to up-date and improve written examination questions in which few changes have been made since 1960 when the Merit System was established.

For many jobs under the merit system, a written examination is required of the applicant seeking employment. Purpose of the test is to rank applicants according to their general abilities to perform the job for which they are applying or to measure their potential in performing the job.

Howe said the Advisory Group will examine general methods of testing by the Personnel Department and determine whether or not particular testing is suitable.

He explained that as a practical matter it is unlikely the Group can review all 46,000 questions on the State's written examinations. In some cases they will take a look at test questions and evaluate them for up-to-date effectiveness and validity.

"We may be able to run off a hundred sample questions and let the Group evaluate them for validity," Howe said.

After a series of monthly meetings, the Advisory Group will make recommendations for revision and possibly suggest some new sources of test materials that could be utilized.

The Personnel Department is currently using test materials from several sources: the Division of State Merit Systems of HEW, the Public Personnel Association, and some developed by personnel technicians within the Department.

Howe explained the Personnel Department will continue to select specific test, giving careful consideration to the recommendations set forth by the Group as well as suggestions offered by the various Departments of State Government.

He concluded by saying the Personnel Department is making every effort to study and appropriately revise the examination program to assure tests provide reliable predictions of job success.

The seven members of the Examinations Advisory Group are: Dr. Charles Elton, Iowa City, Iowa, director of applied research for the American College Testing Program;

William L. Holley, Louisville, manager of organization, planning and staffing for Brown-Forman Distillers;

Frank A. Malinowski, Chicago, director of test services, Public Personnel Association;

Dr. Kenneth Millard, Washington, D.C., director of examinations and research, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare;

Dr. John R. Paulsen, Lexington, manager of engineering personnel for IBM Corp.;

Dr. Harriet A. Rose, Lexington, director of testing and counseling at the University of Kentucky;

Walter W. Peura, Springfield, Ill., manager of recruitment and selection for the Illinois Department of Personnel.

MSU Student 22, Killed By Tractor

A 22-year-old Morehead State University student was killed Saturday when he was pinned underneath a tractor while working on his farm near West Liberty, Kentucky.

William Joseph Hopkins, Salyersville Route 2, was pronounced dead about 4 p.m. at the scene of the accident by coroner A.J. Herald.

He was crushed by the tractor which he was driving when the ground on an embankment gave way causing his tractor to flip over, pinning him beneath it and crushing his chest.

Hopkins was a part-time employee of the Commercial Bank and was attending Morehead State University, due to graduate in June.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Brenda Hopkins, an 18-month-old son, William Travis Hopkins and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Arnel Hopkins, also of Salyersville Route 2.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday at the Lacy Creek Church of Christ. Burial will be in the Brown cemetery. The body will be removed to the residence of his parents from the Potter Funeral Home at 2 p.m. today where it will remain until time of services.

DA Civilian Employee's Idea Saves Government $15 Million

PORT BELVOIR, Va. (ANP) - An Army civilian employee, whose suggestion was adopted by the Army, has saved the government $15 million, has received a check for $100,000 from the U.S. Army Chief Development Command (CDC).

Leland P. Herndon, winner of the 1968 contest, was the first civilian to win the $100,000 prize. He was named as the author of the idea for the "Automatic Division of the CDC's Organization Division. This office determines the Tables of Organization and Equipment for the Army, to include the weapons and their training devices.

Herndon's idea was caught by the Army Chief Development Command (CDC). It was a shoulder-fired, optically tracked and wire-guided anti-aircraft missile, whose concept was based on the idea of a "missile" that would be used to destroy an enemy's missile.

Penet That Refrains

CANTON, Mass. (UPI) - The Cats' Penet, the crowded old student union building at Colver-Stockton College, was replaced recently by a new student activities building. A contest was held among the students to name the new building. The winner, "Cats' Penet," was chosen.

An exact replica of the ST-1000 DRAGON missile and container to which the electronic tactical tracker would be attached. With this replica, the student could train in the complete target detection, aiming and tracking sequence up to firing.

Women Voters Name Officers

A general meeting of the League of Women Voters was held last Thursday in the Rowan County Library, at which time, officers were named for the coming year.

Miss Marilyn Riehle was chosen president; Mrs. Eugene White, 1st vice president; Mrs. William Hough, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Vinson Watts, secretary; and Mrs. Byron Wentz, treasurer.

Serving on the Board of Directors are Mrs. Alex Conyers, Mrs. Warren Cooper, Mrs. Paul Ford Davis, Mrs. Creed Patrick, Mrs. Mildred Wightman, Mrs. James Williams and Miss Clarice Williams.

During the session, Mrs. Paul J. Reynolds reported on the Kentucky League of Women Voters convention in Shakertown May 12 and 13.

The Kentucky League of Women Voters, composed of 14 leagues throughout the State, has formed a consensus of its membership with respect to air pollution as part of its continuing study, "The Evaluation of the State's Responsibility toward the Management of Natural Resources."

The seeds of this increasingly complex and confused mixture of nerve-racking civilization (?) were sown when man invented the wheel and learned how to start a fire.

Author Norman Mailer has got to where he'll do almost anything for a laugh. He has announced his candidacy for mayor of New York City.

The government's figure on what it costs presently to feed a family of four is from 50 to 75 percent too low if one or two of its members are teenagers.

TO W. C. FLANNERY:

WHY?

In the interest of the return of good government to Rowan County, we think the voters, before voting in Tuesday's primary, have the right to have these questions answered:

1. Why are you in business with Willis Clay Henry, a convicted trafficker in alcoholic beverages; this business is Contact Engineering Co.-remember?
2. Why did you take a bootlegger's word and try to require sworn police officers to take a lie detector test?
3. Why did you order these same police officers to return to a bootlegger the whiskey and beer the officers had seized on a search warrant?
4. If you are on call 24 hours a day as you say, why do you have an unlisted phone number, and why have you told the law enforcement officers not to bother you after office hours or on Sunday?
5. Why do you try to claim credit for the Food Stamp program in this county when you were not even present at the meeting of the fiscal court that adopted this program?
6. Why did you try to undermine Morehead State University and the very stability of that institution by counseling with and offering to give the long hairs (Bostick, remember?) a meeting place in the courthouse?
7. Why did you try to ram through the fiscal court a COUNTY police force plan (county judge's gestapo). Why waste tax payers' money on such folly?
8. Why do you try to take credit for aiding and helping the poor of this county when, in truth, you know and the people know, that all aid to poor is done by the fiscal court?

WHY? WHY? WHY?

The League To Restore Good Government in Rowan County was formed 17 days ago at a meeting attended by more than 20 good citizens, both democrats and republicans and membership is open to any Rowan County and without charge, although contributions are welcome to help pay such expenses as this advertising. We expect our membership to soon be in the hundreds. To this date more than 300 joined and contributed by mail.

This League intends to remain permanent to raise its voice hereafter in protest against open law violations and crime that is bringing Morehead and Rowan County . . . and our great University . . . a bad name.

However, our immediate objective is to bring to the attention of the public such total disregard for the law and human decency as being practiced every day by the present County Judge and this League dedicates itself to the defeat of anybody, regardless of party, who openly advocates disregard for the law, and defiance of the Kentucky State Police or other duly qualified officers and officials; and under disregard for other elected county officials.

You may join by clipping the coupon below and mailing it to Post Office Box 121 - Morehead, Ky. You do not have to contribute; but if you do want to contribute you need not give your name. Safety Check For Power Lawn Mower

It's that wonderful time of year again - Spring. The flowers are in bloom. The bird's on the wing. And the grass - well, the grass has grown tall and mangy, and it needs cutting.

But before you start another season of lawn mowing, the National Safety Council suggests that you read these hints for a safer, as well as more beautiful, lawn.

A spring check-up is in order for a power lawn mower that has been lying unused all winter, says Hans Grigo, technical consultant in the Council's home department.

Be sure that guards are all in place, that the blade is sharp and firmly attached, the wheels and handle are fastened tightly in place, and all controls are working properly.

Also note whether the mower leaves a

Harlen Hamm Is Elected Regional Thespian Director

Harlen Hamm of the University Breckinridge School at Morehead State University has been elected regional director of Thespian for West Virginia, Virginia, and Kentucky. Hamm has served the last three years as the State Director of Thespians for Kentucky. While serving in this capacity, he established the first state convention for high school drama students. Under Hamm's leadership the convention has grown from 75 high school drama students the first year to an attendance of over 500 high school drama students this year. Hamm was cited in 1968 as the "Kentucky Speech Teacher of the Year" and as the "Southern Speech Teacher of the Year." He recently was named the "Outstanding Young Educator in Rowan County" by the Morehead Jaycees.

Hamm's new position as regional director will require that he coordinate high school drama activities among the three different states. He will also plan a regional convention for the three states. He will attend a meeting of the regional directors which compose the leadership for the international organization at the head office in Cincinnati, Ohio during July.

Under Hamm's leadership, Kentucky gained more new troupes of thespians than any other state in the international organization during the 1968-69 school term. Kentucky now has a total of 43 schools involved.

stain of gasoline after it has been standing for a while. If it does, check the gas tank and lines to see if a leak has developed during the winter.

The operator might do well to check on himself, too, cautions Grigo. Is he wearing the proper clothes for using a power lawn mower? Loose, baggy slacks are out; the cuffs might get caught on the machine.

If an operator is in doubt about the safety rules for operating a power lawn mower, he should dig out his owner's manual and brush up on the rules. If the owner's manual has been thrown out with the garbage of several years past, just write to Mr. Grigo at the National Safety Council, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611, and he will send you a list of safety rules for using a power lawn mower.

The Editor:

It has been brought to our attention that some of the citizens of this community are confusing the League of Women Voters of Rowan County with the League to Return Good Government. We are not that organization.

The purpose of the League of Women Voters is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government.

The League of Women Voters may take action on governmental measures and policies in the public interest, but it shall not support or oppose any political party or candidate. The nonpartisanship policy of the League of Women Voters applies not only to the political parties but also to factions within a party, to any group which supports candidates, and to any candidate for public office whether or not they run under party designations.

It is hoped that this bit of information will help clear up any misunderstandings about the activities of the League of Women Voters of Rowan County.

★ Truth ★ Duty ★ Responsibility

It has been brought to my attention by some of my supporters that my opponent, in a frantic last minute scheme, is misleading the people in this county by accusing me of arbitrarily favoring a raise in our tax levy. As usual, he is telling a half truth; this is the whole truth: I favored a lower tax levy and it was originally passed as I favored. However the State Finance officer D. M. Magill, Department of Revenue, Frankfort, Ky., disapproved that budget for the reason that the levy would fall $17,500 short and he would not permit the county to carry on its governmental functions as we would have been operating without a budget. Therefore, out of necessity, the fiscal court, presided over by my opponent made a new levy to comply with the orders of the State Department of Revenue. This last order was passed by a majority vote of fiscal court; it is in full as follows and as appears of record in the Fiscal Court Order book (go to the Clerk's office and see it).

ROWAN COUNTY FISCAL COURT
July 27, 1968
Special Term

Hon. W. C. Flannery, Judge, Presiding
Hon. Clyde Litton, Mag. Present
Hon. Forrest May, Mag. Present
Hon. Murvel Scaggs, Mag. Present
Hon. C. O. Waddell, Mag. Present

On motion of Clyde Litton and seconded (by a member of the Fiscal Court) it is hereby moved that the County tax rate be set as follows for the Fiscal Year 1968-69.

12.5 cents on each $100.00 assessed valuation of real estate and personal property.

1.50 on each male persons 18 years of age and not over 65 years of age.

3.5 on each $100.00 assessed valuation for health tax.

56.6 on each $100.00 assessed valuation of real estate and personal property and franchise and $2.00 poll tax on all male persons of age of 18 years and under the age of 65 years of age for school tax and .38 on all bank-shares for school tax.

Due to a notification from Frankfort that the 1968 Legislature has reduced the Franchise tax rate allowable to Rowan County and for this reason the tax rate has been raised in order for the County to meet the minimum requirements of the Budget.

The fiscal court was required by law to pass this resolution.
I invite your comparison of the truth of this matter and that which is being told by the opposition.

CLYDE M. LITTON

MSU Blue-White Game Ends Spring Practice

"Although our offense did not move the ball as much as we would have liked, we have closed a successful spring practice session," Jake Hallum, Morehead State University head football coach, said following the annual Blue-White game Tuesday.

White-team tailback Louis Rogan ran three yards to score the game's only touchdown with one second remaining on the clock in the first half. John Clark kicked the extra point to give the White team a 7-0 victory.

"All four of our quarterbacks have shown a marked improvement," Hallum said about Bill Marston, Buck Donley, George Malone, and Steve Hale. Marston, an upcoming senior who was last year's regular, completed 10 of 21 passes for 118 yards.

A sophomore transfer from Wilmington College, Ohio, Donley completed both of his two passes for a total of 35 yards. He gained 14 yards on three keeper plays.

Malone, who will be a sophomore next fall, completed three of 11 passes for 56 yards. His longest pass of the night, a 37-yarder to end John High, set up Rogan's touchdown. Hale, a former redshirt, was outstanding as a punter, averaging 44.5 yards per kick. Marston's punting average was 42 yards.

"We received a good game from defensive ends Gary Listerman and Jim Edwards, and our linebackers, Harry Lyles, Bill Wamsley, Tom Lehman, and Ron Little, played well," Hallum said.

The coach also praised the efforts of defensive tackles John Slaughter and two-time All-OVC Dave Haverdick, nose guard Jerome Howard, and the running of wingback John Coning.

"Our defensive secondary has improved, as has our defensive line and quarterbacking situation," Hallum said. He said that Clint Walker, Doug Moore, and Bruce Henderson proved that they will be able to fill the fullback slot vacated by the graduation of Mike Mincey and Otto Gessl.

"Our attitude and morale has been great," Hallum said. "We have improved but have a long way to go before being ready for college competition. We are all looking forward to next fall to resume practice."

Morehead will open the 1969 season with a home game against Marshall University.

Pleasantly being tested by the U.S. Army Infantry Board, Fort Benning, Ga., the cover measures 80 by 84 inches and is made of close-woven daron. It has two eight inch sleeves, one at each end, which can be filled with soil and buried to serve as anchors. The cover weighs less than two pounds and can be folded into a seven by seven and a half inch portable packet.

• An Army private and a Vietnamese interpreter have joined forces in the small village of Chanh Lau, Republic of Vietnam, to mold leaders through boy scouting. Pfc. Ronald E. Harma, Dodge City, Kan., and S/Sgt. Phan Thu Trinh, an interpreter assigned to the 1st Infantry Division's 3d Brigade at Lai Khe, recently set up camp-outs for village youngsters, complete with pup-tents and meals. A colorful addition to the outing was the new uniforms donned by the scouts. The suits were fashioned by local seamstresses, with funds for materials having been provided by the G-5 section of the Big Red One.

• A 9th Division medic's attention to a medical training film at Fort Sam Houston saved the life of a comrade recently. Sgt. Elmer Gauthier of New York City, a medic with the 2d Brigade's 4th Battalion, 47th Infantry, was on a mission with his unit east of My Tho when he heard the familiar cry—"Medic!" Running over to the site, he examined Pvt. Leroy J. LeBlanc of New Orleans, La., who had blacked out. "His mouth was rigid and his tongue was back in his throat. There was no air getting in or out of his mouth," said Gauthier. The medic's only alternative was to perform an emergency tracheotomy, which involved cutting a hole in the man's windpipe to allow free breathing. The delicate operation, performed in the field, soon restored LeBlanc's breathing. He was later evacuated to Coletions Hospital where the incision was closed.

Label It Easy Elegance

SOUTH BEND, IND. (UPI)—Make use of stores' bridal gift registries. It saves a lot of problems like the newlyweds receiving four salad bowls, five iron, three coffee pots.

"Gone is the day when the hapless bride had to be braced for the possibility of opening four toasters in succession at a nuptial shower," says Mrs. Mary Gaffney, director of the Hagerty Home Care Institute here.

"Today, when a bride registers her choices with a competent store, she not only winds up with coordinated gifts of her own selections, but the store provides a carte blanche for exchanges if duplication is made."

"Such an arrangement eliminates the gift 'yaffs' and is a blessing to both giver and receiver."

Even if the bride who has in mind is not registered in a store, a few judicious questions put to her family or close friends can give a sound clue to personal choice. This plus some facts on buying patterns from the records of major stores can guide to a successful choice.

Mrs. Gaffney says that sales records show that most of today's brides are interested in sterling flatware, good china, crystal, silver hollowware serving pieces, colorful table linens and small kitchen appliances.

TAX! TAX! AND NOW MORE TAX!

Page 204 of Minute Book No. 8, 27th Day of July 1968

"On motion of CLYDE LITTON, and seconded, it is hereby moved that the county tax rate be set as follows for the fiscal year of 1968-69: 12.5 cents on each $100 assessed valuation of real estate and personal property." Last year's tax rate was at a low of 9.8 cents (Minute Book 8 of the Rowan County Court records).

If this is what you want, then vote for my opponent. This is a $2.70 increase per thousand.

This increase in TAXES was unnecessary at this time, as you can plainly see from the county's financial statement, with this surplus and only two months to go in the remainder of this fiscal year. This money is in the bank drawing no interest for the county when it should have been in your pocket.

I was against this increase in taxes. Our income from franchise taxes was cut in half by the last Legislature, but I have handled your money so wisely without half of the franchise taxes that it was still unnecessary for this TAX INCREASE for a number of years yet to come.

This is the highest tax rate that has ever been levied in the history of this county, and who made the motion to increase them, you can plainly see.

Vote For The Man Who Is Dedicated To His People And Who Is Qualified

In my campaigning this year and in the limited advertising that I have been able to afford, I have never made any attack on my opponent. Instead, I have sought the office of County Judge on the basis of my positive record and positive approach.

I pledge myself to full cooperation with the law enforcement agents of Morehead, Rowan County and the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

I further pledge myself to hear every case that is brought before me as your county judge without bias or prejudice and I promise in my decision to temper justice with mercy.

I feel that my opponent is becoming frantic as the primary day nears, and will probably hurl charges at me totally without basis or truth. At this late date, I can only urgently ask you to carefully investigate and look at the records at the courthouse. I take pride in my record and have no reason to hide anything.

State's Republican Women Turn Eyes Toward Frankfort

Kentucky's Republican women are turning their eyes toward Frankfort as plans for the 1969 convention of the Kentucky Federation of Republican Women include a luncheon at the Executive Mansion, a tour of the historical Capital City and a banquet honoring party leader, Gov. Louie B. Nunn.

Mrs. C.M. McDaniel, Middlesboro, president of the Federation, has sent out the call to the feminine Republicans inviting them to the three-day convention, June 11, 12, and 13.

ECRW president, Mrs. M.C. Hefman, will welcome the visitors during the call to order at 11 a.m., which will be followed by luncheon at the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. Louise B. Nunn, and Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, president, National Federation of Republican Women will be honored at a reception at 6 p.m., followed by the President's Buffet at 7 p.m., where club presidents will present 1968 project summaries.

Public Information Commissioner W. James Host will address the women June 12 at Noon.

Gov. Nunn will appear before the convention at 7 p.m. at a banquet in his honor which will host members of his cabinet and the elected GOP officials.

An installation breakfast June 13 will close the convention. Mrs. Harold Barton, Kentucky National Committee woman, will install the new officers.

Mrs. Marie Humphries, fourth vice president of the KFRW and chairman of the Kentucky Commission on Women will give the closing address at the installation breakfast.

State Agriculture Commissioner Heads Dairy Month

J. Robert Miller, Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture, has been named June Dairy Month Chairman by American Dairy Association of Kentucky. As chairman, Commissioner Miller will direct the month-long festivities honoring the dairy industry of Kentucky.

A kick-off luncheon for members of the Association and members of the dairy industry will be held Tuesday, June 2, at the Ramada Inn, Frankfort. This will be followed by June Dairy Day festivities in almost every county throughout the state.

1969 marks the 33rd celebration of June Dairy Month. June Dairy Month is a nationwide celebration participated in by leaders in agriculture, business, education, government, and scores of enterprises tied to the multi-billion-dollar dairy industry.

State Ends Park 'Swap' System

The state has abandoned the practice of swapping free lodging in its parks for tourist advertisements placed in news media.

Henceforth the parks and public information departments will pay cash for ads in newspapers, magazines, radio or television stations.

Public Information Commissioner James Host declined comment yesterday on whether he has received any criticism for his decision, which drew the support of Parks Commissioner Robert Gable, whose agency paid the bills.

But Host said the due-bill arrangement as practiced for years was expensive, wasteful to the state and subject to some abuses.

A news medium supposedly was limited to $200 annually for free state park rooms or cottages, but figures for fiscal 1967 show one publication obtained $1,450 in due bills at one swoop.

The news medium also was supposed to submit proof of publication through a "tear sheet" or affidavit of broadcast.

But Host said a number ignored this ground rule and simply took its choice of state lodgings without adequate proof of performance.

Host estimated the total cost of issuing due bills, including administrative expenses, at $90,000 in 1967.

The complaint of some news media is that the state was quite willing to use their services when the parks were seeking business, but in its current prosperity has turned ungrateful.

"We do appreciate the fact that they backed us when we needed them," Host said.

The commissioner said he has surveyed many other states on the due bill situation and found almost all have shelved the arrangement as archaic.

Martinsburg.

In recalling the reason for the temporary name change, Mrs. Bert White, who lives near Sandy Hook, remembers, "I've heard my mother, say thousands of Martins occupied the old frame courthouse. The birds created quite a problem, and folks would try to get rid of them by carrying the birds from the courthouse in sacks."

Today, Sandy Hook has a population of approximately 600 people. The county's centennial celebration began April 1, the date 100 years ago that Elliott became a county.

Sandy Hook To Celebrate 100th Birthday

The fourth of July will be a gala weekend celebration in Eastern Kentucky this year, as Sandy Hook commemorates its 100th birthday.

Located in Elliott county, this historic community is the county seat and was established by an act of legislature on April 1, 1869.

Created from Morgan, Carter, and Lawrence counties, history compiled by Ashland attorney Estill Hutchinson, discloses that in April of 1869, four commissioners met on land belonging to J.K. Hunter, and marked off boundaries for the county seat and a 60-foot plot for a courthouse.

"Sandy Hook, aptly named for a hook shape in the stream that flows through the town, was formerly known as Martinsburg, according to a history of the county compiled in 1873, and had a population of 62 inhabitants at that time," says Mrs. Irene Brown Resco, in her book entitled, "It Took Courage."

According to the county history, the name was again changed back to Sandy Hook, after being known for a time as

Water Line Contracts Are Awarded

C. L. Guilette, chairman of the Bath County Water District, has announced that contracts for construction of a water line from Farmer's Bridge to the Rowan-Bath County line into Owingsville were awarded Thursday, subject to approval by the Economic Development Administration (EDA).

Bids were awarded in two part. Successful bidder for the actual line construction was the Y and S Construction Co., Corbin, $445,440. Successful bidder for the building of storage tanks, pump and pumping station was Nickell Contracting Co., Daysboro, $54,937.

Thirteen bids for iron and concrete pipe ranging to a high $536,938 for line construction were received. Actual construction will begin within 90 days after approval by the EDA and the project is expected to be completed by this fall. The water, which comes from Morehead, will start from Farmer's Bridge with a 10-inch line and continue into Owingsville with an 8-inch line. The city of Owingsville has pledged $50,000 for the project.

Others working on the commission include Clyde Mason, engineer; A. C. Conway, attorney; William J. Razon, treasurer, and C. C. Johnson Jr., secretary.

More Relevance

According to what oracular columnists, highbrow commentators and their like are saying now, what's mainly wrong with the world and all is that there's scarcely any relevance left - hardly anything is relevant to anything else these days. What the world needs is more relevance - oodles and oodles of relevance.

Bring 'em Back Alive... Memorial Day

"The prudent driver is almost certain to have a safe and enjoyable trip."
"So follow the driving practices you know are right, and you will —"

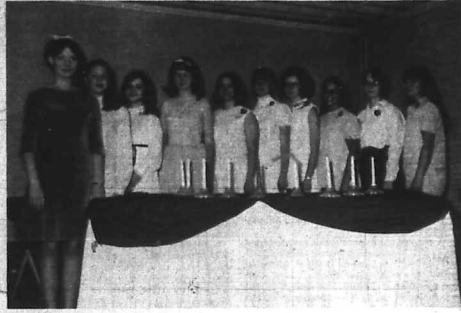

Bring 'em back alive...
With Memorial Day Weekend only a little more than a week away, Gov. Louie B. Nunn has once again lent his enthusiastic support to the American Automobile Club's "Bring 'em back alive" campaign, urging every motorist to approach the holiday weekend with safety the foremost thought in his mind.

First introduced to the public by Kentucky AAA clubs less than a year ago — just prior to the last July 4 holiday — and rerun during Labor Day Weekend, the campaign has consistently received both the Governor's strong support, and personal endorsement.

Stressing the positive approach to safer Holiday driving, the campaign is geared to create in every driver's mind an awareness of the common sense rules of good driving.

Last year, the program came in for particular words of praise from the Governor who noted that, although July 4 traffic on Kentucky's highways increased 16 percent, traffic fatalities dropped from 20 during the previous year to a record low of nine.

MSU Administrators Take Part In Seminar

Six Morehead State University administrators and faculty members participated in a two-day seminar between educators and state government officials at Cumberland Falls State Park, Saturday and Sunday.

Participants from Morehead included Dr. Ray Hornback, Vice President for University Affairs, Dr. Bickel, head of the political science department, Hubert V. Crawford, sociology instructor, Dr. Morris Norfleet, Vice President for Research and Development, Mrs. Elizabeth Mayo, Associate Professor of Mathematics, and Maurice Strider, Professor of Art.

The 55 educators, from the eastern half of the state, were in general agreement that such dialogue between the two sectors must continue if a mutual understanding of problems is to develop and produce maximum benefit for Kentucky.

Dr. Norfleet, vice president for development at Morehead State University, and a moderator in one of five discussion groups, called the conference "one of the finest opportunities we have had in recent years of opening channels of communication."

The conference is in line with Gov. Louie B. Nunn's repeated emphasis of getting fresh new ideas into state government.

The seminar dealt with five specific areas of discussion—general state government, human resources, education, state and area planning, and economic and natural resource development.

The conference convened with a filmed address by the governor Saturday morning. Gov. Nunn told the educators and 35 state government officials the great human resources on Kentucky college campuses are an important key to a better state government and an improved Kentucky.

Gov. Nunn said there is a limit to what state government, by itself, can or should do. "I am convinced one explanation for the inadequacy of state government throughout the nation has been its failure to mobilize and work with the individual talent or private sector."

A Public Service Commissioner, Tom Emberton, who preceded Gov. Nunn's filmed address called the seminars "the beginning of a trend in state government."

Emberton, formerly an aide to the governor, added "State governments in general have operated the services of particular states only in a prefatory manner. Now we hope to change it to one of creativity."

After the opening session, the discussion groups met and re-convened after dinner. At the evening session, the five groups each drafted a paper to be presented at the Sunday morning final session.

General State Government—Suggestions to improve state government centered around advocacy of new planning procedures and appliance of modern program evaluation techniques to existing programs. The group proposed each state government department have an employee devoted to long-range planning. They suggested use of modern review and evaluation techniques would hasten budget reductions in out-of-date programs and may eventually cause their elimination.

The group also focused on the need for personnel and better methods of administration of law enforcement agencies.

Human Resources—This group discussed the formation of a Human Resources Council composed of the principal agencies which deliver social services. A related Citizen Council was proposed to advise, counsel and examine needs and to recommend beneficial related programs.

Education—It was generally agreed there is a need to strengthen the current government of the state. The Council on Public Higher Education, stressing it must continually assess its role and functions. It was the general consensus this agency should be financed a great degree in order to plan more effectively and to provide the needed additional expertise in its staff and through the provision of outside consultants. The group encouraged an increasing liaison between the Council of Independent Colleges and the Council on

Public Higher Education

The group encourages the further development of the "Frankfort Semester" and student legislative assistance programs currently supported by the Nunn administration. It also recommends a much broader based internship program involving more disciplines.

The group pointed to "significant contributions" the university can make to assist in planning community service programs, but added execution of these plans should come from "other segments of the community, trained to implement and carry out the programs."

A person or contact office should be established, said the group, report by institutions of higher education and state agencies to facilitate resource identification and utilization by state agencies.

Economic and Natural Resources—The participants concluded master plans must be formulated to direct the use of natural resources. These plans must be "according to priorities consistent with the development of the economic and social structure of the state."

The group also advocated continual evaluation of state government organization "to assure that it is capable of responding to change."

The conference was the second of two "brainstorming sessions" between the educators and state government. The first seminar last month at Rough River, included college administrators and faculty from the western half of the state.

Members of the academic steering committee are: John Kennedy, UK Law School professor; Dr. Carl M. Hill, president of Kentucky State College; Dr. Charles White Jr., Academic Dean of Centre College and Dr. Rodger Gunn, assistant professor of political science at Eastern Kentucky University.

Trouser Trend or No, Brides Prefer Gowns

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trouser trend in female apparel has reached into the bridal market.

Bridal pants instead of bridal gowns will be in the minority, but they are available if the girl wishes. Many of them are extremely tastefully done and one manufacturer is showing a jumpsuit which is covered entirely by a lacy, long-sleeved bodice. After the wedding, the bride can wear the jumpsuit alone for at-home entertaining.

Paula Gay Laroche showed a stunning floor-length gown with gathered skirt, short white top, long sleeves and beneath white, point and satin ribbon, horizontal banding, the bride wore pants.

Don-London included crisp white embroidered organza pants, the legs see-through, the top a lined tunic.

Many designers are eliminating the bridal veil this year, showing headbands or ribbons attached to long flowing collars.

Traditional styles dominate, however, in wedding dresses. Of which 1969's more than two million brides will spend an estimated $162 million on their trousseaus.

The designer influence shows strongly in dress, reports H.N. Pollinsky, President, Bridal Showcase International, Inc. Showcases, headquartered in New York, franchisees in bridal salons nationally.

But forget the standard, scooped neckline, the tier on tier of fabric. If ties are used, they are banded in new ways as in some of the Spanish-influence gowns worn with mantillas.

Silhouettes look younger and many resemble the short-skirted, demure collared number that Julie Nixon Eisenhower wore last December. Some come with high necklines, dimidi skirts, or short-sleeved.

Many synthetics now go into the finest of bridal dresses — including the traditional summer organza and the year-round pants de toile. Lace still is important. And yes, there are also disposable gowns of paper.

Today's bride can choose, in place of attached court trains, detachable trains which can be worn with or without the gown, or others which detach at the waist.

In color, the all white and ivory remain tops, still, but other colors now are available from pale pastels to colored embroideries. Many have delicate appliques of flowers or petals on white.

Any way you look at it, the wedding business is big business. Brides spend an estimated $1 billion annually, Pollinsky says.

Polinsky says about 75 per cent of the bridal purchasing takes place in the six months preceding the wedding.

Other bridal fads edited by Pollinsky:

—Weddings have increased from 1,302,000 in 1934 to 2,000,000 in 1968, with U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) projections estimating 2,170,000 in 1970. Biggest year — 1946, with 2,291,000.

—June is the biggest wedding month, followed by August, with September winning by a nose over December for third place. However, it is a seven per cent difference between the lowest and highest months.

—Some 73 per cent of first marriage brides are wed in formal white.

—Since 1960, the median age for first marriages has risen from 20.3 years to 20.6 for females and 22.8 to 23.1 for males.

—The bride's median family income is $9,976, or 46 per cent higher than the U.S. 1967 national average. (Illustrated).

For a glamorous meal for 4, try tuna soufflé flavored with pretzel crumbs. It's piquant taste is a gourmet's delight — and flecked with bits of green chive, it adds "eye appeal" to any table.

"TUNA PRETZEL SOUFFLE"
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 1/2 cup very fine pretzel crumbs (Use a rolling pin to crush pretzels at the highest speed in your blender.)
 1 egg yolk
 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten
 Melt butter and stir in crumbs. Gradually stir in milk. Cook mixture while stirring until it thickens into a paste. Beat in egg yolk, one at a time. Stir in chives, salt, pepper and flaked tuna. Fold egg whites into tuna mixture, pour mixture into a 1 1/2 quart casserole or soufflé dish. Bake in a preheated oven (325°F) for 50 to 60 minutes or until soufflé is brown and puffed. Serve at once and wait for the compliments.

Regency-Edwardian Are Often Confused

By WALTER LOGAN
NEW YORK (UPI)

Chicago came bouncing into the office the other day waving a sheaf of documents from the New York Public Library. "Regency collars are the ones that stand up and Edwardian are the ones that lie flat," she said.

Miss Chicago, who might be described as a living doll, works for the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear (AIMBW) and had been to the library to look up on two areas of British history which have produced concurrently a rage for "Edwardian" and "Regency" clothes.

Many people have been confused by the terms, and so have the manufacturers who are likely to sew six or eight buttons on a double-breasted suit and call it "Edwardian" when more accurately the suit might be called a "Regency" suit.

Regency was that strange period in British history between 1811 and 1820 when King George III (he lost the American colonies) went off his rocker and George, the Prince of Wales, ruled as regent until he became George IV.

Edwardian, technically would be the period between 1902 and 1910 when Edward VII was on the throne of Britain. But the era began several years before that in the day "Dad" when Edward as Prince of Wales, preceded what we now call his living.

George IV, according to Miss Chicago, wasn't much on politics or government, but he was a very fashion-conscious "gent," thanks largely to his close friend, George Brummell, Esq., who had better known, of course, as Beau Brummell.

Beau Brummell, who spent a couple of hours a day lathering (other men of the era relied on perfume) and at least that much time tying his cravat, initiated many of the styles that are now being modified for today's market.

The Regency period gave us the high-collared, multi-button, wide, lapel jacket. Collars in Beau's day were high-standing, almost like a horse collar and usually tapered into V notches.

Travel Briefs

"Find the Finn"
 NEW YORK (UPI) — "Find the Finn" program to bring together foreign visitors with the people of Finland has been announced by the Finnish National Travel Office.

Under the plan, arrangements are made for interested families to spend a day in the home of a Finnish family (single) can meet with single, too). Families are divided into age groups. No cost or obligation is involved. Persons wishing to participate in the program can write for an application to the Finnish National Travel Office, 205 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Washington Tour
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — There will be 13 "tourmoldes" in operation beginning June 1 over the vast reaches of the Washington, D.C., Mall according to the American Automobile Association (AAA). The tours are operated by Universal City Studios and low-priced tickets allow a full day's use, says AAA.

Long, Long Flight
 HELSINKI (UPI) — The Finnish state-owned Finnair airlines is planning a real long-distance regular flight — U.S. West Coast-Helsinki-Far East. Finnair believes the plan could be realized in the early 1970s.

Snail Gives Show
 FLAMINGO, Fla. (UPI) — One of the loveliest sights in store for Everglades National Park visitors is the rare tree-climbing Liguia, a snail whose brilliant, multi-colored shell comes in more than 20 patterns. Vacationers at the park's Flamingo accommodations learn that the "snail's pace" of the Liguia, called the "gem of the Everglades," is about 4 1/2 inches a minute.

Convicts Appreciate Courses

ROLLA, Mo. (UPI) — To an inmate serving a life sentence at the Missouri state penitentiary, a college education is the road to a possible parole.

That is why he is among 60 inmates taking three college credit courses being taught for the first time at the prison by professors from the University of Missouri at Rolla.

"I realize I need to help myself in any way I can if I want to keep from spending the rest of my life here," one inmate said. "These college courses provide a way for a man to rebuild his life if he so wants. And I so want."

Another inmate, imprisoned for a killing, wants a degree so "I will be able to work with children to help them to keep from making the mistakes I've made."

Dr. David Hentzel of the university's department of social sciences said the inmates enrolled in the English, economics and psychology courses are, in general, more highly motivated than ordinary college students.

Hentzel, head of the prison, says they realize that they are one of the society's main sources of untapped enthusiasm for learning, and manpower.

Broken Car Sends Duo Onto Career

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL
FLORENCE, ITALY (UPI)—
How to convert American tourists into Italian fashion designers: Have their British car break down midway between Florence and Rome.

Wally Coons, of San Francisco, and Rose Nixon, of Durango, Colo., had nothing more than a leisurely vacation in Europe planned when their car stopped at Urbino between Rome and Florence.

"We flipped a coin as to which city to have the car towed to, and we came here," Coons said.

That was in 1952. Seventeen years later they still are in Florence, running a bustling wholesale fashion house that caters to the top bracket of the ready-to-wear trade in the United States, Europe and Australia.

The House of Pavone sells to the boutique and globetrotter rooms of such stores as Bergdorf
Goodman of New York, L.S.

Ayres of Annapolis, Md.,
Bellocks-Wilshire of Los Angeles, Camps of San Francisco, and Marshall Field's in Chicago.

Pavone clothes reach
Australian stores via Meredith Imports of Australia, and are sold in shops in Paris, Milan,
Rome and Florence.

Boredom sparked the first export venture by Nixon and Coons and it wasn't clothes.

While waiting for the car to be fixed, they decided to make up some furniture for Coons' home in San Francisco. In short order they were exporting it with the help of relatives in the Bay City.

Nixon had been an administrator at Children's Hospital in San Francisco and Coons the art director of the City of Paris department store there. Coons designed clothes for friends visiting this textile capital and in 1961 decided to try the fashion business.

The House of Pavone emphasized unusual fabrics wear everywhere designs and found buyers beating a path to the door a few steps from the Ponte Vecchio.

Sometimes they were ahead of the times. Coons showed a bell-bottomed trouser this spring who didn't? — and said he simply had dined off a pattern he used seven years ago.

His favorite "ahead of the times" story concerns a pretty fashion writer from the eastern United States. She wore one of his first pant suits to cover the Paris collection a couple of years before the Paris houses went for pants. She wrote back to say she turned almost as many heads as the models.

This year's most-sought fabric is a heavy wool weave in bright colors with a pattern of butterfly outlines. It shows up in coats, suits, trousers and huge matching carry-all bags. Last season a bright speckled wool was a steal, from material originally intended for bedspreads.

The story of fashion is a story of change. The change Coons has noticed is in his countrymen's figures.

"The American figure has spread through not wearing girdles and things," he said.

He reported that specialty shops often order suits with a size 10 top and a size 12
bottom, but keep all the labels size ten.

He said the shops tell him their customers' sizes just aren't the same as they were five years ago.

Relatives Fight For the Ballots

HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI)—
"I'm for women's rights," says the sister. "I'm for retaining government as it is now," says the brother.

Mrs. Gloria Simski, 33, and her brother, Peter S. Lepers, 36, may differ somewhat on politics but both agree that running for council seats is the best expression of their views.

Lepers is seeking a seat on the Hackensack Council on a platform of retaining the present forms of government.

His sister is campaigning on a women's rights platform for a seat in the neighboring town of Saddle Brook.

"It was our mother who got us interested," she said.

Lepers laughed during the interview and added, "Politics are inherent in our family and we're trying for public office —
the height of politics."

The pair's father and mother,
Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Lepers, and their two younger children,
Albert and Florence, are helping in both campaigns with posters and leaflets.

"We've never played favorites before, so we can't start now," said the elder Lepers.

RIISING FLOOD WATERS in Minot, N.D. An Army 2½-ton truck is loaded with household goods in a low-lying residential area inundated from the overflowing Missouri river. National Guardsmen and equipment from the 119th Transportation Company of the North Dakota National Guard helped thousands of residents evacuate their homes in Minot. Temporary waters constructed in sections of the city under Operation FORESIGHT reduced damage estimated at nearly ten million dollars.

Emergency Oxygen From Little 'Candle'

LANCASTER, N.Y. (UPI)—
The oxygen tank of the future may be a cigarette pack-sized 'candle' that suffers from asthma and other respiratory ailments can carry in their pockets for quick relief when they attack.

The candles, capable of producing an emergency supply of oxygen, also are ideally suited to supplant bulky oxygen containers in ambulances, for rescue operations and for activities requiring heavy physical exercise in relief of asthmatics such as mountain climbing.

'Candles' already are aboard
our Navy's deep diving submarines to insure an adequate supply of oxygen if the regular ventilation system fails and military planes are equipped with them in the event of cabin de-pressurization or oxygen deficiency at high altitudes," says
Vladimir Hvoschinsky, a top expert in the field. "Further refinement will reduce the size of the candle to that of a cigarette and open up a wide variety of important uses of the candles
by civilians."

Finnish-British Trade Increases

HELSINKI (UPI)—Finland's exports to Britain increased more than 25 per cent, or about $72 million, in 1968.
Their total value was approximately $385 million.

Finnish imports from Britain also increased to a total of $138 million, compared with $170 million in 1967.

Developed by Automatic
Sprinkler Corp., at its Scott
Aviation Laboratories, more than 30,000 oxygen-producing candles currently are carried by U.S. submarines. The devices produce pure oxygen by thermal decomposition of solidified chlorates that can be activated when the cover of the canister is removed.

For Sheriff

Rowan County

Some candidates will boast and brag about what they have done in the past and what all they will do in the future if elected.

How many do you know who have done what they promised?

I don't consider I have anything to brag and boast about. I am only what I am and no more. I am not concerned about the past. I am not looking back at my past.

I am concerned about the present, what is going on around and about now.

I have turned every brick behind me. For today is the day of salvation and Tuesday, May 27 is the day to decide between right and wrong and vote for your choice in this election.

My promise is this, if I am elected for Sheriff of Rowan County, I will do my job the very best I can.

Thank you.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The current success of novelist Philip Roth's vastly overrated "Portnoy's Complaint" certainly has done no harm to young Stanley Jaffe's debut as a motion picture producer, but this wasn't a plus he counted on when he turned Roth's "Goodbye, Columbus" into the much-played film now in general release.

It was pure coincidence that "Portnoy's Complaint" was published with such sensational impact a short time before Paramount Pictures released "Goodbye, Columbus." We made our film in the summer of 1966, and I don't believe Roth had even finished his new novel at that time. I certainly didn't know anything about it.

And if I had, who could have known that "Portnoy's Complaint" would make Roth's name practically a household word overnight? He had been writing good things for years without registering with the general public.

As things have turned out Jaffe's film, while it gets a huge benefit from Roth's sudden fame, doesn't need it. Reviewers across the country have praised highly the cinematic version of a humorously bittersweet story about a poor young Jew who gets romantically involved with the daughter of a well-off family.

Actually, it was pure coincidence again that I made a picture from Roth's novella. Jaffe said, "After establishing Willow Tree Productions in 1967, I went looking for material and settled upon a book about young people that was popular."

I made a bid for the rights and thought I had them sewed up, but there was a mix-up among agents, and I lost out.

I had read "Goodbye, Columbus" when it was published several years ago. In discussing my disappointment about the deal that wasn't with an agent friend, I mentioned that I was looking for something youthful and with the quality of "Goodbye, Columbus."

He suggested that I should buy the rights to Roth's book. I was amazed that in all the years since it won a National Book Award no one had ever bought the film rights. I lost no time in doing so.

Jaffe is forging ahead with production of films entitled "I, Ruchelle." Jaffe said, "I like 'Start Counting' and 'Separate' in the East and I intend to 'Pearce' now that he is off to operate from here and not from Hollywood."

Leading Ladies come and go, but "Mame" holds firm at the Winter Garden where the musical will begin its fourth year May 26 with Van Milder film star in the title role created by Angela Lansbury. Miss Miller takes over from Lane Morgan.

Your... Social Security

By: Thomas B. Thompson - Ashland District
Man. For Social Security Information writer:
District Social Security Office, 1816 Carter
Avenue - Ashland, Ky. Phone 325-7666.

Students who plan to work this summer should get their social security cards before they go looking for a job. An employer will ask for the number on the card, and without it the student may not be hired.

Thomas B. Thompson, district manager of the Ashland social security office, pointed out that such summer thousands of students get their first jobs and have their first experience with social security. Since almost all work today is covered by social security, the student will need his number to get proper credit for his work. The employer must have the number to report to the student's earnings for social security so that it will be credited to the right social security account.

Many companies will either not hire a worker who doesn't have a social security number or will hold up his pay until the number is furnished, Thompson pointed out. All work credited under social security builds valuable insurance protection for these young people. All their earnings from now on will count toward not just their future retirement benefits, but also toward disability benefits in case they become disabled or die.

Since most students apply for their social security numbers near the close of the school year, a lodger sometimes builds up at the social security office and the cards may be delayed.

To avoid a delay in getting your social security number in time for your job, apply early, Thompson said. Application forms may be obtained at most area post offices, or at the Ashland district social security office located at 1816 Carter Avenue. The telephone number is 325-7666.

Even a Blase Traveler Is Awed by a Jumbo Jet

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

EVEREST, WASH. (UPI)—Some time this winter, about 380 people will help open a new page in aviation history by making the first scheduled flight in the world's largest commercial jetliner.

The new air plane is the Boeing 747 or Jumbo Jet. Proto-type 001 made its maiden flight last February with test pilot Jack Waddell piloting it as a "pilot's dream." Air travelers should find some of their dreams come true, too.

There will be wider seats, more head room—bigger doors and more space to roam in both first class and economy sections. And it will fly faster—higher and farther than its predecessors.

We toured—and we mean toured—through one of the new superliners of the skies during a recent visit to the Boeing complex at Everett, near Seattle. We had seen mockups, models and photographs but still were overwhelmed by our first closeup look at the real thing. We felt like Gulliver in the land of the gigantic Broddings.

Painted in the blue, white and silver colors of Pan American World Airways, which will be the first to introduce Jumbo Jet service, "N747PA" looked like a leg and walking space. Seats mammoth humpback whale. The humpback houses the cockpit and almost two inches wider than first class lounge on the top deck—reached by a spiral stairway down—the main passenger deck. Luggage and cargo are stowed in containers carried in the belly of the huge three-decked aircraft, separated from two double rows in the center by 20-inch-wide aisles.

Some statistics: The B747 has an overall length of more than 221 feet (about 20 stories high if placed on end) compared to nearly 159 feet for the latest 707 models. Its wingspan is almost 196 feet while the tail juts up about as high as a five-story building, or more than 63 feet.

Each of its four Pratt & Whitney JT9D-3W turbofan engines are rated at 45,000 pounds of thrust compared to the 18,000 pounds thrust of JT3D-3B engines of the 707s. The powerful engines will allow the huge jetliner to operate from most current airports.

The B747 will cruise at 625 miles per hour, have a maximum altitude of 45,000 feet and a maximum range of 6,700 miles. Comparative figures for the 707 are 575 miles, 42,000 feet and 6,000 miles.

The "Jet Clipper America" we inspected at Paine Field was the second off the assembly line and still undergoing tests—its spacious interior was filled with engineers and technicians and scores of computers and other electronic devices to check on engines and other flight equipment. It and two sister ships will be among five involved in an intensive, 1,400-hour ground and flight test program to gain certification from the Federal Aviation Administration before the inaugural passenger flight.

Accommodation While the B747 will be capable of accommodating up to 490 passengers, Pan Am's basic configuration provides for 38 first class and 304 economy seats, or a total of 362. The B707 can carry up to 193 riders while Douglas' DC3 Super—of this far. Each plane costs about $20 million.

There will be two first class and three economy sections in the B747, stretching 187 feet from nose to tail. The Wright Brothers' first flight in 1903, incidentally, covered all of 120 feet.

There will be more head, hip, service, "N747PA" looked like a leg and walking space. Seats mammoth humpback whale. The humpback houses the cockpit and almost two inches wider than first class lounge on the top deck—reached by a spiral stairway down—the main passenger deck. Luggage and cargo are stowed in containers carried in the belly of the huge three-decked aircraft, separated from two double rows in the center by 20-inch-wide aisles.

The basic arrangement in first class will be four abreast, two double rows of seats and even wider aisles. So except for the relatively narrower forward and stern ends, aisles will be wide enough for passengers to pass one another without rubbing shoulders.

Main passenger cabins are almost 20 feet wide, or double that of the 707. The ceiling over the aisles is about 8 feet high—it is 6 feet over the seats. Carpeting throughout and virtually vertical walls are designed to help eliminate the old feeling of flying inside a tube and provide more of a "living room" atmosphere.

The main cabin, furthermore, will be divided into five separate "rooms" by the galleys (6), lavatories (12) and coat closets.

The B747 will carry a flight crew of 17—a captain pilot, first officer, flight engineer and 14 stewards. Most big jet planes today usually have six stewards.

There are 10 doors in the B747 but generally passengers will embark and disembark through only three, each 42 inches wide and 76 inches high. To speed handling, luggage will be loaded, carried and unloaded in containers.

Pan Am is scheduled to take delivery of its first Superjet this fall and inaugurate regular passenger services in the winter. Flight crews already are undergoing training to fly the giant transport.

A total of 12 U.S. airlines and 16 foreign carriers have announced orders for 187 B747s.

Rotary lawn mowers will last longer and work better if their blades are properly balanced. Have the blades balanced at the same time they are sharpened.

'Quiet' Tough Guy Role Pays Off for Eastwood

By TERRANCE W.
MC GARRY

COCUYOC, Mexico (UPI)—Clint Eastwood has to be the quietest, quietest, quietest tough guy in the movie world.

On screen, he comes off like the toughest guy in an Ivy League fraternity house, or a black belt in karate.

With his trademark, a stubby black cigarillo, tucked in a corner of his mouth, Eastwood parlayed this air of innocent menace into a fortune with three Italian "spaghetti-oster" Westerns, and jumped from relative obscurity to one of the world's top movie box-office draws.

Eating lunch with him it's hard to hear his voice across the table.

"I guess I'm just kind of a quiet guy," he mused during a break from filming "Two Mules for Sister Sara" on a Mexican hillside.

"I guess I bring a lot of myself to these roles, though I study the characters and try to figure them out. Some actors think a tough guy has to be played loud, or hard. I just do it my way, that's all."

Eastwood almost didn't accept the job that made him a star.

"My agent told me it was a German and Italian production to shoot a Western in Spain with a script based on the Japanese Samurai story. I told Hollywood scene. "Heck, I changed my mind when I read the script. It was something different. There are a lot of loose copies out now. I could be advice other struggling actors to look to the wide open prairies north of Madrid."

"No, I wouldn't presume to advise anybody. I don't know if lightning strikes twice. I hope to go on doing just what I'm doing - get better roles, not all Western roles. My next picture is in modern-day Chicago. I'd like to direct movies some day. I like the whole movie business. I just like being able to entertain people. It's a great honor."

And despite his low-20s look on screen, he's 38 years old.

Like most "overnight" successes, Eastwood spent a couple of struggling decades.

"I always played the producer's assistant or something. There were a lot of lean years until I landed 'Rawhide.' That television series kept me employed for eight years, and then the Italian offer came along."

Eastwood almost didn't accept the job that made him a star.

"My agent told me it was a German and Italian production to shoot a Western in Spain with a script based on the Japanese Samurai story. I told

Radio-Controlled Parawing Studied for Combat Use

FORT BELVOIR, Va. (ANP) - A unique system for airmen and separate air-drop of supplies using ground radio control to "home in" the cargo is presently undergoing development at the Army Combat Developments Command (CDC), Fort Belvoir, Va.

With the use of a parawing, a nylon wing-type parachute, now under consideration by CDC for Army-wide adoption, a 500-pound cargo load could be dropped on target from as far away as 12 miles and 50,000 feet above the ground, even during adverse weather. If required, the flight pattern could be changed during descent by an operator on the ground using a transmitter with a simple control button.

Air-drop delivery of supplies to besieged or isolated units presently requires reasonable weather. The radio-controlled parawing system would allow aircraft dropping the supplies to be out of the range of enemy gunners. Fog and darkness could also be used to good advantage.

Gift Exchange Helps Couples Out of Duplication Dilemma

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER
LOS ANGELES (UPI) —

When people look a gift horse in the mouth, Ted Margulis makes a profit.

"When my wife and I were married," the sandwich-board former advertising man explained, "We had the common experience of receiving duplicate wedding gifts which we couldn't use and which the store refused to take back."

"Worse, we received some silver the store was willing to exchange — but in the silver department we ran into the custom who gave it to us. She hadn't spoken to us in 15 years."

So, for the benefit of other newlyweds stuck with three toasters, six salad bowls and 18 silver trays, but no pots or pans, Ted and Shirley Margulis went into business.

They established The Gift Exchange, based here, with franchises operating in 26 other cities.

Brides — or anyone else — can take whatever they got that they don't like, don't need, or received more than one of, to the Gift Exchange, and trade it for something they do want.

"We'll accept anything that's new and undamaged," Margulis says. "We never refuse anything on the basis of what we ourselves like or dislike, never on the basis of personal taste."

From their files listing the retail prices of 1.5 million items, the Margulises evaluate the goods for what they actually would sell. The customer is given credit for that amount, to apply toward any item in the store. When she makes her selection of an item of equal value, she makes the trade — and pays a 20 per cent service charge.

Thus, if a bride receives two $10 walnut salad bowls and she'd rather have a spice rack, she turns in one salad bowl to Margulis. He gives her a credit slip for $10 and she browses around the store. If she finds a spice rack she likes, turned in by another customer, she pays for it with her credit slip, plus $2.

The $10 spice rack has cost her the equivalent of $12 — $2 cash and $10 in merchandise — but if she hadn't made the trade, she would have one salad bowl too many and no spice rack at all.

She's happy and Margulis is happy. He made $2.

If she doesn't find anything she likes, the customer may take her credit slip home with her and return later. The slip says they are good for 90 days, but Margulis says he will honor them anytime.

She pays nothing until she makes the trade. If she never returns, Margulis has a $10 salad bowl to trade or sell to someone else.

Customers who wish to buy an item for cash, without trading anything in, get a 20 per cent discount. So if Margulis sells the salad bowl to a cash customer he makes $8.

Surprisingly, his store is not a repository for white elephants, the "what-on-earth-is-it" which every bride receives. There are a few of those, but mostly the trade-ins are high quality, brand-name merchandise that

During the years, Margulis has been able to get a pretty good idea of what brides like, and what they get.

"Far and away, the most popular wedding gift is a salad bowl," Margulis says. "We get hundreds of them traded in because brides get too many."

"Silver is another often duplicated item. And many brides are too young for silver. They are not ready for it. We've talked a lot of girls into keeping lovely silver things that are really good and they don't know it."

What brides want and don't always get are waffle irons, blenders and king-size linens.

"We don't have enough of these things traded in to meet the demand," Margulis says. When a girl wants an item he doesn't have in stock, Margulis takes the order and sends her a postcard when it comes in.

"Most young couples are buying oversized beds these days," Margulis said. "But king-size linen is expensive, and it doesn't look like much to give someone just one sheet, so people just don't give linen as wedding gifts as much as they used to."

One of his favorite stories is about a woman who came in to buy a wedding gift and selected a crystal ewer, paying cash for it.

Two weeks later, the ewer brought the ewer in and exchanged it.

"We didn't tell her it had been purchased here," Margulis said. "Later the first lady came back. She had been invited to another wedding and was returning Margulis has a $10 salad bowl to trade or sell to someone else."

Although he has four employees, Margulis is in the store himself six days a week.

"It's like opening Christmas presents here every day," he says. "One of my assistants says he likes having a shower every half hour."

Ask dear old dad for a $5,000 loan.

He'll have a few things to ask you.

Who wants to be treated like a teenager trying to borrow the car for the night? Or hear his "How Your Mother & I Had to Scrap & Save" lecture? At Commercial Credit, we can give you money... with no hard feelings. And don't be hard on dad. Being asked for a chunk of money like that can really shake him up. Not us. Which is why, in a situation like this, we can be more like a father than he is. And with more than 500 offices coast to coast we feel mighty fatherly to a lot of people. Need money? That's what we're here for.

News Report From...

Rowan County Extension Office

Area Extension Agents

PLANT BEDS - The present is very favorable to plant bed diseases. I saw some damping off last week and if this weather continues, no doubt Anthracnose and Blue Mold will be making its appearance. Look at your bed often.

If your field has a history of weeds you may want to try one of the new materials such as Balan, Enide, or Vernam. Follow directions on the container or stop by the Extension Office for further information.

FARM RECORDS - Are you keeping farm records this year. We still have some Farm Record Books if you need one, stop by.

GARDENS - Most people have gotten a pretty good start with their gardens, but we must keep in mind that insect and disease control are important. This program starts as soon as the plants come through the soil and should continue at 7-10 day intervals until harvesting. You can dust or spray depending on which type equipment you have. We think that probably the cheapest and best coverage is the spray program.

As to materials to use for insects use one of the following: Malathion, Sevin, DDT, TDE. For diseases use either Zineb, Maneb, or Captain.

Received 4-H Certificates of Appreciation. Left to Right - Mr. Billy James, 7th grade teacher, and 4-H leader at Farmers School; Mrs. Thelma Kissick, 4-H supporter, and principal of Farmers School; Mrs. Nettie Kincaid, 4-H leader and 5th grade teacher at Farmers School. Others receiving certificates not pictured are Mrs. Virginia Martin, and Mr. Raymond Coggins.

These two come from the most part in spray or form.

Be sure to follow directions and precautions given by the manufacturer on the container of the materials.

CORN - USDA predicts for 1969 a corn crop of 64,409,000 which is the smallest in every 100 years. This is 378,000 less than last year. However, expected increase in yield will make the 1969 corn crop 4.5 billion bushels or slightly higher than 1968.

GOVERNMENT COST - We hear so much about what Agricultural subsidies is costing the government. According to Doane's report Agriculture get something over 7 billion dollars for all its programs with only $3.5 billion goes to farm income stabilization programs. This is considerably less than is spent on space research and about the same as spent on education. In 1967 Agricultural income programs received only about 2% of the total federal budget. In comparison, defense get 70 billion dollars while health, labor and welfare get 39 billion dollars.

IS NOTHING SACRED?

As almost everyone knows, your mother's chicken soup is the best medicine for a cold or, indeed, for almost any illness. But a letter in the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine has taken the aura out of the soup's aroma.

The subject first came up in a letter to the Editor when Dr. John W. Schatz of Temple University pleaded with medical researchers to restrain themselves and leave uninvestigated "for my mother's sake, chicken noodle soup."

Too late!

Dr. John R. Sellman of the University of California Medical Center revealed that laboratory investigation. And - the horror of it! - a key ingredient in the "unique flavor" turned out to be hydrogen sulfide, the same chemical that perfumes rotten eggs!

However, a consultation by Women's Medical News Service with an independent chemist indicates that Dr. Sellman may have been unduly harsh. Hydrogen sulfide is indeed a component of rotten eggs and chicken soup, but it also contributes to all meat flavors.

"I would be very dubious about Dr. Sellman's equivalence portulante," said the chemist. "Chicken soup is much more than hydrogen sulfide."

UNNECESSARY TONSILLECTOMIES

Too many children are irrationally and ritualistically subjected to tonsillectomies for the sake of their parents' peace of mind. Dr. Robert P. Bolande of Children's Hospital has suggested. Although there are medically sound reasons for removing tonsils, Dr. Bolande estimated that many - perhaps most - tonsillectomies are ill-advised and unnecessary. Driven by the desire to "do something," parents pressure doctors to perform surgery for irrational reasons, the doctor said, either from guilt over a child's chronic ill health or from "anxiety frustration" at repeated infections.

In Dr. Bolande's view, the surgical removal of tonsils and adenoids before age five should be sharply limited. Benefits are usually exaggerated and risks understated. Hundreds suffer serious after-effects. Most important for children, however, are the "acute and chronic effects on emotional development and personality."

So disturbing is the operation for young children that Dr. Bolande believes there are only four valid reasons for performing it on youngsters under five: 1) recurrent tonsillitis; 2) obstructive tonsils; 3) recurrent middle ear inflammations; 4) severe airway obstruction. For the latter two conditions, he said, only the adenoids need to be removed.

MOSTLY TALK, NOT ACTION

A distinguished sociologist insists that, so far as a Sexual Revolution is concerned, there's more smoke than fire, more talk than action.

In a speech at Michigan State University, Dr. Ira Reis said that his research shows that this generation acts very much the same as their parents acted when young. As in the 1920s, about half the women getting married are virgins; the divorce rate is the same as it was 30 years ago; women marry at about the same age as 20 years ago.

Furthermore, Dr. Reis denied the idea that the invention of totally reliable contraceptives has encouraged promiscuity.

"A gadget, like the pill, doesn't change the values of society," he said. "There is no runaway sexual permissiveness." But, he added, today's young people feel freer than their elders did to discuss sexuality and to work out their own sexual codes.

Hospital In Fleming Ups Room Rates

The board of governors of the Fleming County Hospital announced an increase in room rates, in both the hospital and extended care facility, effective June 1.

New rates will be: Hospital, private room $34, semiprivate room $26; extended care facility, private room $24, semiprivate room $16.50.

The increase was necessitated by the rising costs in food, drugs, medical and surgical supplies, and increased salaries and wages.

From the State Capital

Agree Or Not

I Say What I Think
by S. C. VanCuren

By S. C. VanCuren
Gov. Louis B. Hunt and his administration are trying hard to elect more Republicans in both the House and Senate this time, but admit reluctantly that it would be almost impossible to get a majority in either body.

In strictly Democratic districts in the state where there is no Republican opposition, the administration is hopeful Democrats who may be friendly toward the administration's program will be elected.

Only half of the 38 Senate seats are up for election this year, but only 11 Republicans are running in the 19 Districts.

In the 1965 legislative session there were 43 Republicans in the House and 14 in the Senate. Five Republicans are seeking re-election and the administration would like for all of them to return.

The administration and the State Republican Central Committee have encouraged Republicans to run in some of the nominally Democratic districts hoping to pick up some seats in November and to make the campaign easier in November for James Thompson who will be running for State Auditor to fill the unexpected term of Clyde Conley who died in office.

The Republican Central Committee and party headquarters here and in Louisville will handle the fall campaign.

One-time Democrat State Senator Casper D. (Cin) Gardner has changed his politics and will be the Republican nominee to oppose Democrat Delbert S. Murphy who is seeking re-election. Both are from Owensboro and neither has primary opposition.

And administration spokesmen believe the Republicans have a good chance of picking up four seats which would bring the total to 16 in the Senate.

Republican Gene Cravens will oppose Senator C. Gibson Downing in the 12th District in Fayette County. George Plummer is the Republican standard bearer in the 19th District composed of Lewis, Carter, Elliott and Greenup Counties. Jim Lewis, a Democrat, is seeking re-election.

Another seat the Republicans think they have a chance of winning is that of Senator Floyd Hayes Ellis that is composed of Breckinridge, Ohio, Grayson, Edmonson and Warren Counties. Ray B. White has no opposition in the Republican primary while Ellis has primary opposition.

Both parties have had fund-raising meetings and should be pretty well financed for the fall campaign. The Democrats are the one with money-raising problems since they do not control the governor's office. However, the Democrats have called their recent fund-raising campaign, where Senator Edward Kennedy spoke, a success and should be in a position to stage a strong campaign for their party in November.

State employees are always solicited for contributions by the party in power and this is the Republicans' prerogative this time and they should have no financial worries.

Meanwhile over on the Democrat side two are seeking their party's nomination for State Auditor. John W. Greene and Miss Mary Louise Foust. Miss Foust served as auditor 1955-59, and Greene served as assistant auditor 1963-67.

Greene has the support of Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, Atty. Gen. John Breckinridge, State Treasurer Thelma Stovall, State Supt. Wendell Barlow.

Greene was the party nominee in 1967 but was voted out by Conley in November. He has the advantage of having made a statewide race recently and has served in two gubernatorial campaigns. This, observers believe, make him the favorite in the primary.

Greene's campaign headquarters for the primary are in Frankfort. He has sent mailings to Democratic precinct committeemen and women

DIABETES

How One Victim Learned To Live With His Ailment

EDITOR'S NOTE: More than 5 million Americans have a disease called diabetes. More than 1 million of them are undiagnosed diabetics, and, unless detected, may eventually die of the disease. Here is the story of a UPI newsmen who learned several months ago that he had diabetes and the adjustments he has had to make.

By EDWARD McHALE
RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—

"Look at me," smiled my hospital roommate, rubbing the stump where his left leg used to be. "I've been a diabetic for more years than you've been alive, and despite this, life has been pretty good to me."

I could only admire the man's courageous attitude - it was diabetes which caused the circulatory problems resulting in amputation. But it was of little comfort to me, a newly diagnosed diabetic.

However, I later found others shared his strength. Like the space engineer and his wife whose 12-year-old son - a promising athlete - was also a new diabetic. I even learned to respect the teen-aged hippie whose "beard" and fuzzy sideburns seemed so ridiculous.

We were all patients at new England Deaconess Hospital in Boston - one of the foremost diabetic treatment centers in the world. It was my third hospital in three months and, like the last two, previously, I had been in a general hospital and psychiatric hospital here.

"There are five million diabetics in the United States today," the doctor told the 30 odd patients assembled for daily class. "However, only 3.5 million of these cases are diagnosed. The other 1.5 million (enough people to populate a city the size of Atlanta) don't realize they have this disease."

Diabetes mellitus also ranks as a major cause of death. It claimed 34,430 lives in 1967. I officially became a diabetic on Aug. 8, 1968, although the symptoms actually began to appear about two years earlier. During this period, I have lost 45 pounds.

"An unquenchable thirst, frequent urination, loss of weight," said the specialist. "These are some common signs of diabetes."

I'd been feeling poorly for some time - constantly debilitated and fatigued - but tended to attribute this to the normal wear and tear of an active job and social life. As my weight plunged, I consumed literally gallons of water, lost tea, lemonade, soft drinks and gin-and-tonic. I could sometimes feel my kidneys ready to burst.

"My God, Ed, you look emaciated," observed a cousin whom I hadn't seen in two years.

Since my cousin is a nun and doesn't lightly take such liberties with the Lord's name, I was prompted to undergo my first major physical examination in several years.

A 32-year-old bachelor is inclined to take good health for granted. The verdict was diabetes, and what followed was a nightmare of confusion, frustration, physical and mental misery.

Oral medication, the first step, failed to check the disease, and I "cheated" on the diet originally given me by my doctor.

On Oct. 18, 1968, I began taking daily injections of life-saving insulin.

"Diabetes, basically, is the inability of a person's pancreas to produce sufficient amounts of insulin," explained the Boston specialist. "Each day, insulin, the body is unable to convert food - vital carbohydrates, proteins and fats - into energy. Instead, growth stunts and weight is lost."

The result is excessive sugar in one's system.

"The disease is also hereditary, although it might not occur within a family for generations."

Diabetes has confounded medical science since the age of Hippocrates. The disease can be fatal, but it can also be mild enough to be controlled by diet, particularly among the elderly. Young diabetics almost certainly face the prospect of daily insulin injections for the rest of their lives.

About 70 per cent of all diabetes is diagnosed after age 40.

A diabetic can lead a normally active life. If his life habits are properly regimented, he can produce a healthy family, excel in sports and compete in any profession.

But he also inherits problems. Too much insulin, too much exercise or an improper diet can reduce the amount of sugar in a diabetic's blood so swiftly he will lose consciousness. Overeating, an infection, and too little insulin, on the other hand, can produce diabetic coma, perhaps even death.

(It was a convulsion - a massive seizure - that truly convinced me that diabetes is no laughing matter. Upon registering consciousness, and after treatment for a severely wrenched back and badly bruised knee, I became a believer.

Among other things, diabetes can also cause poor eyesight, strange circulation, produce foot infections and dental complications. In my case, it was accompanied by neuritis so severe and painful that it was sometimes impossible to walk.

"Education is one key," said one doctor. "A diabetic must recognize that he has an incurable disease which, if properly controlled, can help him live a happier and healthier life through proper diet, medication and self-discipline."

Nobody likes to give up the daily martini, nor have they yet invented a painless hypodermic needle, but I like to recall a simple rule that makes it all a little more tolerable:

"Happiness is better than no breath at all."

ANNUAL VISITORS... One couple, stuck here, returned to their home at the U.S. Air Force Academy, Defense Command's 10th Surveillance Squadron, Dayton, Ohio, every year. The couple return and make their home stay at the school. Airman Larry M. White, a security policeman, takes a turn at "bird watching."

Etiquette Guides Paying Of Those Wedding Bills

By KEN LYSDECKER
CHICAGO (UPI) — Jams, moon, crown, spoon — they all add up to love and marriage.

Preparing for one of the biggest events in one's life is a major campaign that starts with pre-wedding showers and parties. There are no simple matters; there is a lot of protocol to be observed.

Relative of the bride-to-be may give parties, but not showers, for such would smack of "double" for gifts. Close friends shower the bride and only close friends are invited.

There was a time when a shower was given as a "surprise," but rarely nowadays. If anything, the future bride should be shown a list of prospective guests before the invitations are sent. To be watched — danger of duplication of guests. It can be financially embarrassing for a female friend to be invited to showers again and again.

The honored guest at a shower should send a thank-you note to the hostess as soon as possible. It is not necessary to send cards to the guests for the "thank you" can be expressed as the future bride opens gifts at the shower.

But the bride should keep a list of exactly what gifts she receives, as well as a list of wedding presents, so that in the future she can express her pleasure about a particular gift when she meets the person who gave it.

Wedding invitations may be just for the ceremony, for the reception only, or for both. Any invitations should be signed by the mother of the bride with the address always handwritten, photographs, church rental, fees never typed. All invitations should be in the hands of the bride at least four weeks before the wedding, if possible.

Fleeting romantic, but still one of the facts of marriage, is the question of who foots the bill? The bride (or bride's family) pays for the bridesmaids, the wedding ring for the intended bridegroom, presents for her attendants, personal stationery and her medical examination.

The bridegroom comes up with money for his medical examination, along with the engagement and wedding rings for the bride.

He also pays for a gift for the bride, flowers for the two mothers, and boutonnières for the members of the wedding party. The bridegroom also picks up the tab for gloves, ascots or ties for the men, gifts for his best man and ushers, the clergyman's fee, and of course the cost of the honeymoon.

The family of the bride gets the larger chunk of the wedding bill, that includes invitations.

If elected, I will be YOUR Sheriff.

I have lived in Rowan County all my life. Having been in business 36 years at Elizabethtown, I know the people of Rowan County and I know how you wish to be served by your Sheriff.

I pledge my wholehearted support and protection to the churches and schools of Rowan County. Furthermore, I will cooperate, as I have done in the past, with City, University and State Police in enforcing the laws of Rowan County so that the office of Sheriff will be one of which you, the voters of Rowan County, may be proud of.

Weekly Meditation

The writer of the Book of Hebrews calls faith, "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Since the Christian "walks by faith and not by sight," it is important that we better understand the meaning of faith. Let us ask of these things: Faith is believing without seeing. To believe a truth without tangible proof, or to believe that something exists but cannot be concretely shown. The space scientist believed that John Glen could be launched into orbit around the earth long before he actually was. And the city fathers of Australia turned on the lights for him when he passed over them, though they could not see him. Saturday was, for years, known as Pancake Day at our house. Anxious for that day to arrive the little ones kept saying "Where is Saturday night Pancake Day?" I would reply mysteriously, "If a Saturday is the day." They believed me and that was that. Faith is also moving toward a certain goal without any lawless lawless. Alvin's pilots sometimes "fly blind," depending upon their instruments, and the principles of the universe. During World War II hundreds of thousands of men and women were sent to a certain place.

perfect precision land their troops on the correct section of the beach. The Christian walks each day on the path of love. At times clouds of sorrow and fear may obscure the face of the Father; waves of persecution and opposition may bar the path of service; set backs and disappointments may hinder advancement points into question marks. But, in his heart he knows that when reason and logic have bogged in the mire, faith will ultimately lead to the fulfillment of God's will for his life. As an anonymous poet has said:

Doubt sees the obstacles, Faith sees the way. Doubt sees the darkness, Faith sees the light. Faith sees the day, Doubt fears to take a step. Faith soars on high — Doubt questions "who believes?"

Faith answers, "I."

Faith is believing that God does all things well; that he is "too wise to make a mistake, and too good to be unkind." Faith believes that at the heart of a seemingly heartless and cruel universe there is a loving and personal God who is interested in and cares for His creation. He is a Creator who knows when a sparrow falls to the ground; a Shepherd who searches for the one sheep gone astray; a Father who watches for the first sign of the prodigal's return. He is a Counselor who knows the anxiety of fearful minds; the burdens of heavy hearts; the guilt of wounded consciences; the dream of tomorrow, shattered dreams and broken promises, and how to minister to these "bleeding sins" with love and forgiveness. Dying is a lonely business, but faith assures a Divine Comforter. Sin is an intolerable burden, but faith assures a Savior. Life at its "best is bad enough, life at its 'longest is short enough, a long life may not be long enough and a good life may not be long enough, but through faith any life is full enough. When logic and reason are refuted by life's enigmas and the dead end end, faith enables the soul to march triumphantly into eternity. "Faith means putting our full confidence in the things we hope for. It means being sure of things we cannot see." J.B. Phillips. Faith: Forsaking all I Trust Him: you? — L.R. Buskirk

County Health Department Will Give Pap Smear

A cancer detection program has been announced by the Rowan County Health Department. The test for cervical cancer (cancer of the neck of the womb), commonly called "Pap" smear is now available for women at the Health Center on West Sun Street.

About 14,000 women in the United States die each year from cancer of the uterus or womb. Cervical cancer is found in married women more frequently than unmarried women and in those who have had children more often than those who haven't.

The "Pap" test is a painless cell examination that takes only a few minutes. The test can find cancer of the neck of the womb in its earliest stages, long before it is serious enough to cause symptoms.

Every adult woman is urged to have the "Pap" smear done once a year. For more information contact your family physician or visit the Rowan County Health Center. The clinics will be every other Wednesday morning from 9:00 a.m. until noon beginning May 28.

Gifts of Snails Invade Petland

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS
NEW YORK (UPI) - Hermit crabs, iguanas, gerbils and pineapples are out. The current rage among people seeking unique pets is the lowly snail - rhinestones and pearls stuck to its shell.

"There's always someone wanting a different kind of pet," said a Manhattan pet shop owner. "This year the fad is jeweled snails."

This reporter, reluctant to keep a dog in a small city apartment but wanting a pet, recently joined the ranks of snail owners.

The snail, its half-dollar sized shell covered with glued-on pearls and rhinestones, arrived in a dormant state. When liberating, the snails seal the opening of their shells with a tough membrane.

"To awaken the snail," the instructions read, "merely out the membrane and submerge the snail in a small bowl of water." While a friend's snail took nine hours to emerge, mine came to life in 20 minutes. It was the first and only thing it ever did quickly.

Few people would say that snails make "fascinating fun" pets. They don't come when you call, or fetch your slippers or do tricks.

But they are inexpensive to keep. They eat lettuce and animal crackers. And they're relaxing to watch as they slowly move about.

My snail lives in a clear plastic leftover food container with a white paper towel. It spends most of the time munching on lettuce or hanging upside down from the cage top.

The only time it creates any excitement is when its grip slips and it falls to the floor of the cage.

My husband is one of the few people I know who is not impressed by my snail. He invariably asks "snailpot" for dinner. He looks at it as if it's a small pet, a puppy, a cat, what's the sense of having one? Status, conversation and shock value.

Consider status. How many people can legitimately get out of going to a dull cocktail party by saying "I have to go home and feed my snail."

Die Nigger Die by H. Rap Brown. (Dial, $3.95)

H. Rap Brown's bitterness about the chances for black white harmony in America is clearly understood in his "po-ally" autobiography. He skillfully and forcefully details the dehumanizing experience of being black in the United States.

Throughout a pickup narrative of his gradual development from a "blood" hanging out on street corners to an aggressive and assertive spokesman for revolting blacks, the former chairman of the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) weaves his persistent message that black men must not in any way submit to white America's technique of cutting them down by making them "negroes" (his lower case).

He talks also of color prejudice among blacks themselves: how lighter-skinned Negroes can assimilate better into white society and look down on their darker brothers.

"We must learn that Black is not a color but the way you think," he says, deriding natural haircuts that hold unnatural, unblack minds.

Brown glazes over his activities in Cambridge, Md., that led to his indictment for arson and inciting to riot (he is still a waiting trial).

Walter Winiewski (UPI)

Siege, by Edwin Conley (Stein and Day, $6.95)

This novel tells what happens when a well-trained Negro assault force, controlled by an embittered former Marine general, made up of combat veterans and financed by African states, takes over the island of Manhattan and holds it for ransom.

The goal: To force the U.S. government to give American Negroes an industrialized coastal state they can have for their own country.

Without giving away any of the plot, this is a frighteningly realistic first novel detailing step by step, how and why a Negro revolution could be planned and executed.

Corley's mawkish story-line weaves just barely fictional characters into a day-after-tomorrow narrative that stretches from Saigon to Watts to the blasted grounds of the Brooklyn Bridge.

The story is laced with the currently popular jargon of sex, black jingoistic jargon, and, in any other, implausible plot gimmicks. But in a decade when a huge combat force trained on a secret base for the Bay of Pigs invasion, there is no reason to doubt an "Afro-American Liberation Army" couldn't be trained in the same way.

The message is obvious: Effective programs to bring American Negroes into the mainstream of American society may have been ignored too long. On this hinges the book's climax.

When faced with a black militant shouting war, can the average Negro stay cool, and can the white community from the President on down keep its head?

Good questions from a book undoubtedly headed for the best-seller list.

Styles of Radical Will by Susan Sontag. (Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $5.95)

U Thant once said that in wartime, the first casualty is truth. Susan Sontag's long account of a trip to Hanoi last May, originally published in Esquire, indicates that wartime distortions, simplifications and illusions are not restricted to those in office.

Ms. Sontag's lightly reasoned essays have established her as one of the shrewdest critical talents in American intellectual life, quick to spot the shallow and the false, but for accounts of life in North Vietnam is quite simply inimitable.

She pictures the North Vietnamese as hardworking, simple people heroically dedicated to the task of hand and totally without the usual human attributes of jealousy, ambition, envy, vindictiveness or even simple cantankerousness. Apparently, the North Vietnamese never disagree, especially about the wisdom of sticking out the

Study In Social Welfare May Help In Job Hunting

The university will cooperate with colleges and universities from six states in a detailed study of social welfare training and job adjustments.

The School of Social Sciences at MSU has offered the volunteer services of 24 students majoring in social work for the study, according to Dr. Roscoe H. Playforth, school dean.

The project is sponsored by the Southern Regional Education Board and will start in September.

The university's part of the research will involve seven seniors and 17 juniors, Dean Playforth reported.

Seniors graduating next month will make regular reports on their new positions and juniors will record class

Succulent Salmon Poached in Beer

It's almost uncanny the way two cooks can begin with the same basic ingredients, and end up with such different results. Part of the explanation, of course, can be a difference in skill or experience. But far more often it's a matter of attitude. The successful cook is more adventurous about seasonings, and realizes that small changes can have a startling effect on flavor.

A perfect example is the poaching of fish. Fish has an unusual capacity to pick up flavors from its "surroundings"; whether it does or not depends on the character of the cooking liquid, and that's where inspiration comes in. In the hands of a clever cook, poaching can work very nicely a miracle. One cue any cook can profitably pick up is the use of beer as a poaching liquid for fish. It's a trick that comes well recommended—chefs have been relying on it for years. Take salmon steaks, for example. Poaching salmon in beer gives a subtly different taste which truly flatters this lovely, pink-fleshed delicacy. With this truly spring-like meal, no beverage is quite as compatible as cold, sparkling beer.

BEER POACHED SALMON

4 fresh or frozen salmon steaks
1 tablespoon whole pickling spice
1 (12 oz.) can or bottle beer
1 lemon, sliced
1 large onion, sliced
Salt

Defrost salmon if frozen. Arrange salmon steaks in single layer in a large skillet. Add pickling spice and enough beer to half cover the salmon. Place lemon and onion slices on top of salmon. Sprinkle with salt. Cover tightly. Bring to a boil, lower heat and simmer gently until fish flakes, about 15-20 minutes. Remove steaks with a slotted spoon and place on a warm serving platter. Spoon hot Spiced Beer over steaks.

SOUVISE SAUCE

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 pound onion, finely chopped
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
1 cup light cream
Salt and white pepper

Melt butter, add onion and saute over low heat, stirring occasionally, until onion is very tender and mushy. Pour butter and onion mixture into a blender. Return onion to pan and add milk. Gradually add milk and cream. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until thick and smooth. Season to taste with salt and white pepper. Yield: About 1 cup.

'Laugh-In' Show Opener Is Man of Many Parts

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD Correspondent
Owens is the nut on "The Rowan and Martin Laugh-In" who stands in front of a microphone, holds a cupped hand to his ear, taps Tuesday mornings. He and opens the show by announcing "Morgel is the friendly death!"

There is no Morgel. A death is a funny, tick-looking, domineering snowman. But Owens is real enough and even shows flashes of smug.

In addition to his playing straight man to the resident clowns on the show, Owens is a disc jockey for radio station KMPX in Hollywood from 3-6 p.m. daily.

When he isn't taping the "Laugh-In" or spinning records, the South Dakota native is doing commercials. Last year his voice was heard in no fewer than 350 commercial pitches in addition to providing the vocal cords for cartoon characters "Space Ghost" and "Hoggy Dangle."

Owens is married to a pretty girl named Arleta whom he met on the campus of Dakota Wesleyan University. They exchanged vows in 1956.

They are the parents of Scott, 9, and Christopher, 5.

Their family estate in the San Fernando valley is complete with swimming pool, a full-time maid and three dogs: two dachshunds, Julie and Roschard, and a terrier who answers to Skoshi.

Owens is proud of the fact that he began broadcasting in the Dakotas when he was only 16. He did his first announcing job with mother, Dakotian, Lawrence Wink.

The many-faceted Owens has three offices, one at home, another at KMPX, and a third in a Hollywood office building which is filled with filing cabinets of gags, trivia and information for his radio show.

Completing Book
At the moment he is completing his first book, "Gary Owens Looks at Radio," a tome on humor scheduled for publication in September.

Arleta is a brilliant amateur decorator and has furnished each of the rooms in their home in a different era and color scheme. One room is French Regency, another early Greek, another modern.

She also rules the kitchen, and specializes in a variety of hamburger dishes because they

Owens manages to juggle his busy schedule because the producers of the NBC-TV comedy sensation allow him to "wild in front of a microphone, hold a cupped hand to his ear, tap Tuesday mornings. He and opens the show by announcing "Morgel is the friendly death!"

To relieve the tensions of his fast-paced life, Owens plays basketball on a regulation outdoor court flanking his home.

MSU Teams Find Going Rough In OVC

Although they improved over last year's performances, Morehead State University's spring sports teams didn't fare so well in the Ohio Valley Championships at Bowling Green Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The golf team, coached by Ed Bignon, showed the most improvement over last year as it finished third with a score of 718, compared to Western Kentucky's winning 708. Bruce Walters, the lone senior on Morehead's team, tied for fifth place individually with a 178 score. Western's Rick Whitfield was the medalist with 173.

Morehead finished last in the 1969 tournament.

Coach George Sadler's tennis team finished in sixth place in the tough competition which ended Sunday. The tennis squad had also finished in last place last year.

Coach Marshall Banks' track team scored 5 points to the Austin Peay seventh place. Western Kentucky was the winner with 102 points. Last season Morehead scored 8 points for eighth place.

Dave Neely finished second in the high jump competition with a leap of 6'4", which was good for four points. Football player Jim Bayes finished fifth in the intermediate hurdles for Morehead's other point.

Sensing The News

Until very recently, the U.S. public assumed that the only significant threat to quality medical care for the American people was increased federal control of medicine. Many people in this country are mindful of how British medicine has deteriorated since the advent of the Welfare State under the Labor Party. But an even more direct and serious threat is emerging in the form of a ruthless unionization drive to enlist hospital workers and to best private and public hospitals on their knees.

A strike that should receive national attention, on account of the threat it poses to American medical care, is the strike called by the Drug and Hospital Workers Union against the Medical College of South Carolina.

It is not a commonplace strike by any means, for it involves a joint offensive with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), headed by the Rev. Ralph Abernathy - the protest has been conducted the notorious Poor People's Campaign in the nation's capital last summer. SCLC has been conducting a civil disobedience campaign in the streets of Charleston, S.C., where the Medical College is located, in an attempt to force the State of South Carolina to enter into collective bargaining with the union.

The National Labor Relations Act and its amendments exempt state and local government from its requirements. Thus South Carolina is under no obligation to negotiate with the union, which has notoriously leftwing leadership. Gov. Robert E. McNair has refused to deal with the union, and the South Carolina Legislature has backed him up in a special resolution. The Governor and his right hand pointed out that recognition of and negotiation with a public employee union would disrupt every department and agency of the state and plunge South Carolina into debt.

And now Walter Reuther, head of the United Automobile Workers, has got in the act. In a fiery speech before the union, he presented them with a check for $10,000 - and promised more if they needed it.

Every state has a vital stake in the outcome of the dispute. The union and SCLC are right if they crack South Carolina, they will be able to crack other states. The union aims at nothing less than an iron grip on U.S. hospitals. "This campaign," syndicated columnist Victor Riesel has said, "will shake many of the cities in which are virtually all of the land's 7,200 hospitals."

If America's hospitals become a union domain, it is clear what will happen to American medical care: it will deteriorate to an almost unthinkable level. A hospital is like a ship. It has to be run by professionals and operated on a strict, disciplined basis. Hospitals have to move fast on orders issued by doctors and administrators so as to accomplish life-saving functions.

If the Drug and Hospital Workers Union gets control of the nation's medical centers, it will administer them under doctors and hospital administrators who would have no assurance that orders would be carried out promptly, if at all. Indeed the country should understand that the Bluebird Hospital - an attempt thwarted only by the presence of police and National Guardsmen in large numbers. An entire city has been exposed to peril, including fire-bombings and rioting, as a result of the combined union-SCLC campaign.

If it is necessary to have long, expensive confrontations with the doctors of SCLC and the Drug and Hospital Workers Union, the public must not back down. Surrender to agitators, surrender to the lawlessness of civil disobedience campaigns, would live to haunt the nation and play havoc with the quality medical care that has been developed in the United States in the 20th century.

No union should be permitted to paralyze any hospital in America. The time to stop the irresponsible union drive is now; the place is South Carolina.

The adjective "ruthless" is used advisedly. In the strike called against the Medical College of South Carolina, unionists deserted their posts at the hospital, leaving patients unprotected. SCLC mounted mass rallies in the vicinity of the hospital, creating noise detrimental to seriously ill persons. An attempt was made to force entry into the teaching hospital - an attempt thwarted only by the presence of police and National Guardsmen in large numbers. An entire city has been exposed to peril, including fire-bombings and rioting, as a result of the combined union-SCLC campaign.

If it is necessary to have long, expensive confrontations with the doctors of SCLC and the Drug and Hospital Workers Union, the public must not back down. Paul M. Dillon 45 Dies Monday

A native of Morehead, Paul M. Dillon, died unexpectedly Monday at his home in Barboursville. He was 45.

The son of C.E. Dillon of Morehead and the late Ada Flannery Dillon, he was born April 17, 1924 in Morehead.

Mr. Dillon, educated in the Rowan County Schools, was a veteran of over 20 years service with the U.S. Armed Forces. He had served three overseas tours of duty prior to his discharge from service in 1966 when he suffered a severe heart attack in Germany. He held the rank of Master Sergeant.

Besides his father, Mr. Dillon is survived by his wife, Nona Kaha Dillon, five sons and one daughter, all of Barboursville.

He also leaves five brothers and two sisters: Vernon Dillon, Dyer, Ind.; Elwood Dillon, Gary, Ind.; James, Daniel and David Dillon, Morehead; Mrs. Goldie Emerine, Hammond, Ind.; and Mrs. Linda Converse, Naples, Italy.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon (Thursday) at 2 o'clock in Hoppes Funeral Home, Barboursville. Burial will be in Barboursville.

A Hollywood man bought $11 million worth of insurance for his family. Let's hope he's enormously mistaken, in that he evidently believes inflation will become rampant and worse.

$569,000 Loan For Water Is Approved

Rural Areas May Get Natural Gas This Month

SHERMAN R.

ARNETT

Your State

REPRESENTATIVE

Is On the Move To Bring

Water And Natural Gas

To The People Of

Rowan County

LINES FINISHED . . . K. E. Hainline, left, and Sherman Arnett discuss the furnishing of natural gas to about 300 rural Rowan families. Hainline is Systems Manager for Delta Gas Company, owner of the lines. This picture was taken at Clearfield near the distribution station. The gas will be provided within a month to Clearfield and west from Morehead along U. S. 60.

Water For Most Of County
Arnett said the water mains will be 33 miles long, extending from Morehead east to the Carter County line; north and west from Morehead to Fleming County, and in the town of Clearfield.

The water will be purchased for 35 cents a thousand gallons from the City of Morehead. Rowan Water, Inc. will operate its own system, including maintenance, reading of water meters, collection of bills etc.

The water system is owned by the consumers; the system by Delta, a private cooperation.

500 Put Up $50 Deposit

Arnett, who is State Representative, has advocated and worked the rural water and gas for the past four years.

More than 500 rural residents put up a $50 deposit for the water. The hook-on cost will be more than $50.

The FHA loan is for 40 years, and the plan of Rowan Water, Inc. is to amortize the loan within about 30 to 35 years.

PROJECT ASSURED . . . This is the group that is primarily responsible for rural water that is coming to most Rowan communities. Construction on the 33 miles of lines from Morehead is expected to start about June 15. From left - F. G. Foley, Farmers Home Administration, which approved a $569,000 loan; Paul Blair, Attorney; G. R. Alderman, general contractor of Middle row - James Wells, Director of Rowan Water, Inc.; Eugene F. White, Vice-President; Robert Alderman, President; Sherman R. Arnett, State Representative; Henry C. Cline, Secretary; Rear - George Rudenegal, representing SESCO Engineering, the architect and designer; John Bailey of SESCO; and Terry Britt, Farmers Home Administration. About 500 rural families should have city (PH) water by Christmas.

VOTE FOR

JESSIE ANDERSON

Democratic Candidate

FOR JAILER

* Honest * Dependable
* A Good Man

As this campaign is drawing to a close, I am very sorry that I have been unable to contact each of you personally. I would like to let you know something about me and my family.

I am the son of Willie and Carrie (Caudill) Anderson. I am one of a family of eleven children and my parents are residents of the Rock Fork neighborhood.

I have lived all my life in Rowan County. I am married to the former Ethel Meek. We are the parents of three children. Our daughter, Carolyn, is married to Ralph Webb. Our oldest son, Jessie Thomas (Tommy), is now serving with the U. S. Marine Corps at Guam; he has also served in Viet Nam. Our youngest son, Jack, is a senior at Rowan County High School.

I have been a farmer all of my life; however, for the past eight years I was also employed by the Morehead Utility Plant Board. I am now the present jailer, by appointment.

I am 48 years old and I am in good health. I feel I am qualified to care for anyone who should have the misfortune to become a prisoner in our county jail. I will treat each and every prisoner with fairness and compassion. I will always see that the Court House and its premises are kept neat and clean, as well as raising and lowering the flags as is required by law.

Your vote and influence will be greatly appreciated.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The largest photographic exposition ever staged in the American moves into the New York Coliseum June 7 for a nine-day stand that will feature cameras and equipment from many parts of the world.

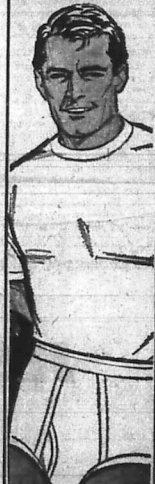

The latest photography concepts, products and equipment will be revealed, as well as industrial, commercial, scientific, educational, military and professional uses of photography.

Scores of manufacturers and exhibitors will be represented at the exposition, to be known as "Photo Expo 69."

Eastman Kodak Company, for example, will use 15,000 square feet of space to present seven separate areas of exhibits, including a display of giant color transparencies and a specially produced motion picture on the role of photography in closing the communications gap.

A special exhibit will display the history of space photography from its beginning through the Apollo missions.
