

Merchants To Re-Open Cash Gifts

To Give Merchandise Coupons In Business Drive To Start Sat. March 23

Interrupted last year by the Army Cut Rate, the merchants of this county are again planning on their annual distribution of gifts from the merchants to their customers. The plan is the same as that in use during the past three years, which has proved so successful, that a number of the customers have requested that if it be done again. Only a few changes have been made in the plan.

This year, each week beginning Saturday, March 23, the merchants of the city, whose names appear below will give away $50.00 in merchandise coupons. Hereafter they have given away cash gifts. The coupons will be issued for $100, $100, $50 and twenty for $150 each, in all 23 gifts from the merchants to their customers. Notice the difference this year, instead of giving cash as in former years, merchants coupons will be given. These coupons will be good for the specified amount in trade at any merchant or business place which is taking part in the business building evening.

Thus if you are awarded $15.00 instead of cash you will be given a coupon good for that amount in trade. This may be traded at any of the merchants participating in the plan.

Tickets are given by the following merchants:

Brace 5c, 10c and 41 Store, Amos & Andy, Cut Rate Grocery Co., Midland Tail Garage, East End Grocery, S. and W. Dispensary, Eagles Nest Cafe, I. G. A. Grocery, Morehead Mercantile Co., D. R. Perry Motor Co., J. A. Allen Grocery, The Bargain Store Regal Store, McKinley's Department Store, Golden's Department Store, C. E. Bishop Drug Room, Shady Rest Service Station, Morehead Lumber Co., Union Grocery, The Big Store, Sloss Bargain Store, McBreyer's Furniture Store, Economy Store, Battison's Drug Store, Wells Grocery, Peoples Bank Model Laundry, Eastern State Hotel, Mills Theatre, Citizens Bank, H. The Regional Basketball Tournament held here last week is now history and rather unpleasant history for Morehead, who had teams representing them in the tournament. Ashland, who for a few years has failed to represent this region in the state tournament came into their own again, by defeating first Morehead High by a two heavy score, and in the finals defeating Breckinridge High by a score of 34-20. Camargo gave the Tomcats their first victory in the tournament, by defeating first Morehead, and then in the finals defeating Breckinridge High by a score of 34-20. Teachers Who Receive Bonus From Board

All teachers both in the rural and consolidated school were given a bonus this year, based upon certain standards, which if lived up to would increase the effectiveness of the school system as a whole. Golda Dillon, Lottie McBreyer, Edith Hart, Muri Gregory, Dorothy Mills, Mayme Love, Lydia M. Caudill.

Farmers May Buy Seed Locally

Many of the farmers who have become interested in the Eppahart Certified Tobacco Seed have been making inquiries as to where they may obtain the seed locally. It has naturally been more or less of an oversight on the part of the News that we have failed to give instructions as to where the seed may be obtained.

Local farmers who are interested may obtain Eppahart Certified Tobacco Seed No. 16 from either of the two local banks, The Citizens Bank or the Peoples Bank of Morehead. Or if they wish they may drop a card to or see Mr. David Eppahart personally, Mr. Eppahart's address is in Morehead, Route One. He may also be reached at Hills, Ky.

The popularity of this newly developed seed is being attested every day by farmers who are not satisfied with anything but the best, especially when they can obtain the best Certified seed at the same cost as they pay for uncertified seed that has not been (Continued On Page Four)

C. C. C. Camp At Redburn Is Threatened

Camp May Be Discontinued As Result Of Shortage Of Federal Funds

Citizens of Morehead and Rowan County, who have fought valiantly on several different occasions to retain the CCC camp at Redburn, will again be in for a fight, if they would retain the camp. This time, according to reports, four camps in Kentucky are slated to go, due to the reduction in appropriations by Congress. Morehead is one of the four listed to be discontinued. Another is in Park county, one at the Mammoth Cave National Park and one at Elizabethtown.

According to the plan a new camp will be opened at Georgetown.

Two years ago the threat of closing the camp aroused the citizens here to a fighting pitch and the camp was retained. This time the situation appears to be more desperate, as the appropriation for the camps has been drastically cut and this appears little likelihood it will be retained.

However, until it has been definitely closed, the citizens of this community are advised to get in touch with their Congressmen and Senators and urge them to use their best effort to halt the plan to discontinue the camp. This camp means much, not only to Morehead, but to the surrounding counties as well. Many of the boys from nearby counties are located in the Morehead camp, near to their homes, and these boys will be moved to other localities. Naturally when the number of (Continued On Page Three)

The report shows a total of 33,257 jobs filled by the Employment Service as compared to 2,745 for 1938. Jobs in private industry increased from 10,510 in 1938 to 20,303 last year. Merida Ison Case Dismissed By Agreement Of Judge And Attys After Two Juries Fail To Decide

Term Of Court Drawing To Close Sees Heavy Docket Being Cleared; Many Cases Being Taken Off After Years Of Hanging Fire

With the Rowan Circuit Court working long hours, and disposing of cases in record fashion the Merida Ison case is drawn to the end of the second week. A large number of important cases have been disposed of, and the docket is in a fair way to be cleaned up before the final close of the term.

High lighting the interest of the sessions last week was the trial of the Merida Ison case, charged with the crime of rape. It was the second trial of Ison and the second hung jury in the case. Ison and Bennie Ison, also of Elliott county were charged with the rape of two young Elliott county girls, Bennie Ison was not tried. The evidence of the slimiest sort occupied two days. The jury reported that they were unable to agree, and were finally dismissed. It developed later that eleven of the jury were for acquittal on the grounds that the evidence was insufficient for conviction, and that they believed Ison was not guilty. One was refused a jury report for or against acquittal, thus making it eleven for acquittal and one non-committal. Under the circumstances, Judge Burke and Commonwealth Attorney Sidney Caudill agreed with the defense attorney, James Clay that this case should be allowed without privilege to re-open.

The dismissal will amount to an acquittal for Ison. The case against Bennie Ison was also filed away and the testimony was taken in two cases was the same.

Jesse Hargis charged with aiding and abetting murder was released under bond of $2,500. More money was required by Frank Stone and Howard Kegley charged with murder was continued.

Wayne Brainerd charged with stealing a car was given one hour in the county jail.

Vester Bowling charged with murder was found guilty and given five years in the penitentiary.

Edna Gentry charged with refusing to testify before the Grand Jury was given a sentence of 24 hours in the county jail on a charge of contempt of court.

The case of murder against John Cy Perry was set down for trial on Friday of this week.

John Gentry charged with assault with a deadly weapon was found guilty and sentenced to one year in the penitentiary.

Drive For Aid To Crippled Of County Headed By Strong Committee

GIVE THEM THEIR CHANCES

This plea of the sponsors of the $50,000 Seal Sale and membership campaign of the Kentucky Society for Crippled Children, beginning Monday, March 23, is to augment the recognized sportsmanship and gallantry of Kentuckians. Easter Sunday the drive closes. Realization of the goal is meant that scores of children on the waiting list of the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission will have their chance for treatment and a chance to compete in the battle of life on a physical footing equal with their fellows.

Within the last two years the Commission has handled an average of 163 cases every month, or a total of 2,537 individual cases. Twenty-five children from Rowan County have been examined in the crippled children's diagnostic clinics and forty-six have been treated at the expense of the Society. More money is needed to augment the State and Federal funds to give more adequate service to crippled children. A Gift From You Will Help The Children of Rowan County.

Rowan county Chairman, C. O. Peratt, informs us that this committee is composed of $250.00 or a gross income over $300.00 are required to file an income tax return with the Kentucky Department of Revenue, or its agent, on or before April 15th, 1940.

Mr. Keller said that he had been especially assigned by the Department to check on the fact that limited facilities made the Department unable to send a representative to this vicinity at any other time to help Mrs. Robinson, Prof. W. B. Jackson, and Prof. Jesse Mayes, 1938 income tax returns.

Young Estate Plans New Building

Sells Logan Property To George Caudill To Build On Blue Moon Site

A deal was closed on Tuesday of this week, transferring the Logan property next to the George Caudill building on Main Street from the Alle W. Young estate to George Caudill. The terms of the sale were not disclosed.

The Alle W. Young estate will begin immediately on the construction of a new fire proof building on the site of the Blue Moon Restaurant, which was destroyed by fire early this year. Plans at present are unsettled, although the probabilities are that a two story brick building modern in every respect will be erected on the site. The lower floor of the new building has already been leased to Claude Clayton and Frank Laughlin, who will re-establish the restaurant and bus depot, they were operating before the fire.

Construction will be rushed so that it may be finished at the earliest possible moment.

A Loop At The Stars

For a month Bill Matt had been wondering uneasily how it would seem to have her back on the ranch again after a year of what old Bat-Eye Bascom called "wood-slacking" in a fashionable finishing school back east.

"They call 'em finishin' schools," quipped Bat-Eye, "because they finish a gal for seven ben worth a damn to anybody else as a ornamental. I've saw ranch mals that could bulldoze a two-year old come back from one of them lady gormones so delicate that they couldn't reach halfway across the table for a basket!"

Bill Matt couldn't figger how it would be with Lina. Not that it was any of his business. She had sent him a postcard or two. One was a flash-light picture of some kid at a fancy dance shelling a "prom" with "Find the sweetest cow gal" written on it in her careless, exuberant scrawl. In the maze of tuxedos and heavily necked evening gowns he had finally found her. But she didn't look much like a cow gal now.

It was Bill Matt who picked up the mail that brought her telegram. He took it in at once to old "Barzee" Lincoln, who was his boss and Lina's father. He felt relieved when McKeever read the wire.

"Cowgal and two friends arrivin' klo quero Monday want to ride out to the shack Gaudy horses please, Love, Lina."

"At least, though the talk, sportin' of a cow gal, she can't be a cow gal. You just as well take the ponies for 'em yourself," Bill said McKeever. "Two that's gentle enough for a couple of old women and not too much of a bronc for Lina, she said. He did not practice."

Bill Matt grinned faintly. "She can't ride," he said. "Oh! Barzee looked at him sharply. "That's the gal that you been schoolin' out so carefully all winter—when you should have been at work!"

Bill Matt nodded, twirling his hat and blushing. Like as not old Barzee knew well enough why he had been taking such pains to develop all of the little black ponies' talents.

"An' you afraid a woman ridin' him'll spoil him, Bill? Barzee's weathered eyes squinted to hide the twinkle. "I'll be on hand to kinder keep a eye on 'em, Barzee."

"No, you won't. I was aimin' for you to drive the wagon in early this mornin' with the girls at old Hayfork Johnny's then put in the day haulin' wire to the fence crew down on the Ouepo. You can bring their baggage when you drive out Tuesday. Better ask the boss for a list—she'll likely be wantin some extras with Lina's gudes to feed."

"By the boss, Barzee meant his wire."

"Right," said Bill Matt briefly and started out. Neither his face or his tone gave any hint of his mixed up emotions stirring around inside of him—half disappointed that he would miss seeing Lina McKeever's blue eyes with delight over the little coal black pony he had spent long months training especially for her, half bashful relief from the embarrassment of greeting her at the depot.

Barzee's voice, solemn with that judicial soberness which men of the range use to cloak their humor sometimes at the depot. "Of course," you was countin' on gittin' a head start over the other boys with them lady gudes on Lina, Bill. I can see you could. They'll keep," said Bill Matt, and went to find Mrs. Keever and get her grocery list.

Tuesday morning, divided out from Moquero, Bill Matt got to figuring on what he would say to Lina would have been too bashful to tell her—but it was Bill Matt who had thought of the pace and single foot, especially for that that through all the long months since she had left last fall she had been patiently schooling the pony to saddle perfection as his gift of welcome on her return. Nobody at the ranch, he figured, had guessed but what he had picked Velvet for his own special mount—his "Sunday hoss," as they called it. But Lina—

"Hold on, father," he told himself. "What business has a saddle-worshiped cowhand like you got fiddin' a loop at the stars? She ain't been off to school to learn to be a head for a buckaroo, she's a lady now."

Nevertheless, as the wagon rumbled roughly ranchward, his imagination drummed up quite a romantic scene, as the minds of the extremely bashful often do.

"Gosh, Bill!" she would sigh. "I never rode such a perfect horse in my life. Are you sure you meant him just for me?"

"Why not?" he would answer gallantly. "A perfect horse deserves a perfect rider, Miss Lina!"

"And pretty! Why, he's the color of night!"

"That's because I remember the color of your hair when I picked him out," he would say, boldly holding out her hand just a little longer than was really necessary. "The ranch has been a mighty lonesome place without you, Miss Lina. Every minute I've been workin' out Velvet. It's been with the hopes of dukin' your return a happy one."

"Bill!" she would sigh. "Then he would ask her if she wouldn't like to ride up to North Mesa with him Sunday afternoon and see if the little pink galaxy cattus were in bloom yet. They would be, of course, and he would tell her how their tender delicate beauty always made him think of her. They would ride back together, knee to knee in the twilight, and then—"

As the wagon lurched noisily over a rough spot at the rimrock and started down the winding road toward the grassy sweep of Bar Z valley, really jolted Bill Matt about the matter. He remembered the right foot reached for the brake as three riders appeared around the curve ahead, coming leisurely up the road. The horse in the lead was a man, a tall black-haired dude in short-sleeved white shirt, fawn-colored flannel shirt and shiny black English riding boots.

Cowgal and two friends," the telegram had said. Nothing about one of them being a man. A man, a tall, looking man at that, Bill Matt perceived, as they rode up to the wagon. He didn't see the saddle, like a cowboy, but he did see the right side of the seat, either, even if he was a dude.

"Looking as Lina McKeever, he was from Ohio to the Bar Z ranch. Well, it was reason enough to could mean that."

Farmers May Get Seeds Locally

 tested officially for either weight, purity or germination. Epphardt's seed has been tested by the Sterilized Seed Growers Association for weight for growing germination and for purity. It was grown locally and had the care, rearing by the association and was grown under their supervision. Certainly a farmer could not go wrong by purchasing seed from a tobacco grower whom they know, personally and by reputation. Nor can they go wrong buying seed that has the stamp of approval from the Kentucky Experiment Station and from the Certified Seed Growers Association, a seed that has been tested and proven to be superior, and a seed that is disease resistant and hardy, as well as productive.

The farmers themselves are proving this fact, by the number of orders that have already been received. The planting season is right at hand now, and farmers who have not yet placed their orders for seed are urged to do so at once.

Seed may also be purchased at the Peoples Bank of Sandy Hook.
