H. Buckner, vice chairman; A. L. Plank, regular member; Elmer Under, alternate; and O. E. Glickerson, second alternate.

The delegate of the four communities met at the county office and selected the county committee composed of C. B. Turner, chairman; George Brown, first alternate; M. E. Adkins, regular member; Reynold Elling, second alternate; and Mrs. Lulla Brann, secretary-treasurer.

Elam-Wheeler Wholesale Grocery Moves

The Elam and Wheeler Wholesale Grocery Company has moved into their new quarters on Main Street, the move having been completed on Monday of this week. The company was formerly located on Railroad Street, the building occupied for many years by the Coughlin Wholesale Grocery Company. This spring construction on the new building was started and was recently completed.

The new building is a two story structure, with ample floor space on the two floors for a large stock of merchandise. The front of the building is of yellow brick. Drive ways at the side and rear of the building provide ample space for trucks to load and unload. The company is owned and managed by O. B. Elam and S. P. Wheeler.

News Fifth Column Gets Much Comment

The Rowan County News-Fifth Column in the last issue apparently appealed to numerous of our readers, whether from the fact that it required no effort on our part to read it or at any rate it is safe to say that it caused the comment of several ordinary columns would have caused.

Among the comments heard, were a few that might have been regarded as "back-handed" compliments, such as "It's the best thing you ever wrote," "It was typical of your style," and so forth.

Actually it told the truth in as few words as possible. There is no Fifth Column in Rowan county. There are no subversive activities. There are no elements that even closely simulate such activities.

September Special Term Is Arranged

Jury List To Try Civil Cases Is Announced As Judge Clears Docket

The special term of the Rowan Circuit Court, called by Circuit Judge W. B. White, will open on September 2, for the trial of civil cases held over from previous terms, according to an announcement by Joe McKinney, Circuit Court Clerk of Rowan county.

A special effort will be made to bring about a settlement of all the old paving cases that have been hanging fire for several years. Suit has been brought on many of the property owners, for the collection of the paving assessments. Due to a number of reasons, these have been postponed from time to time, with a few being settled at each term.

It is apparently Judge White's determination to clean the entire docket of these cases that have been hanging fire for a number of years, and to start out at the October term with an entirely clean slate. He then proposes to keep the docket up to date, trying each case as it comes as nearly as possible.

For Jury service during the September Special term, the following have been selected on the Petit jury panel. It will be noted that there will be no Grand Jury at this term of court, the regular term being held the first Monday in October.

Irvin Livingood, Andy Ramey, Heck McKenzie, D. L. Reeves, Frank Adkins, Hartley Battison, Smith Robinson, A. H. Elliott, W. E. Moccabee, Mrs. Leora Hurt Chas Ellis, Burd Moore, I. J. Masters, S. E. Bowling, G. W. White, Sam Hargis, Clyde Smith, Elmer Shay, Ballard Foreman, Arthur Evans, Chas. Bumsardner, Doyl Lawson, Frank Reynolds, Mrs. A. L. McElroy, Walter Swift, Leslie Wells, Early Cantill, Gerald Burrows, T. B. Cox, Denton Blair.

President W. H. Vaughan made a very interesting talk to the teachers at the last Teachers Meeting which was held Friday August 9th. He chose for his subject "The Kind of Teacher I Would Like For My Boy To Have." The different points were brought out in the following order:
I want him to have that which will develop him: mentally, socially, spiritually, physically.
I want his teacher to realize that activity is important.
I want his teacher to teach him good manners, self control, and a congenial disposition.
I want him to learn to read to his environment.
I want much beauty instilled into his school life.
I believe that the schools of today should relieve and vitalize the culture of the past.

City Council To Discuss New Ordinance

To Hold Special Meeting Before Adopting Occupational Tax Licenses

Routine matters, the payment of claims and the signing of the County Municipal League occupied the time of the Morehead city council at the meeting on Tuesday night, while the more important business was the consideration of a proposal occupational tax ordinance was postponed until a special meeting could be held to devote entirely to a study and discussion of the ordinance.

The proposed occupational tax ordinance which should be of vital interest to the business men and citizens of Morehead, as it fixes a license tax on every piece of business in any form within the city limits. Local business men are taxed at a fixed rate, while firms, trucks, and all other business in Morehead, with plans or headquarters in other cities or towns, are taxed a higher rate, in some instances eight or ten times as much.

For example, laundry trucks doing business in Morehead, and operating plants in the city, are charged, according to the new ordinance a flat rate of $200 per year, while plants operating in the city, but running plants elsewhere are taxed $2000 per year.

In making up the proposed ordinance, City Clerk Charles E. Jennings was ordered by the council to contact the city clerks in other cities of a similar or approximate nature, to obtain copies of ordinances prevailing in those cities as a model for the Morehead ordinance. These ordinances, which are available for the benefit of a test in the Court of Appeals and had been upheld, so that Morehead in drawing up its ordinance, would be sure of ruling already made and is (Continued On Page Four)

We Endorse Our Good Friend, A. P. Plummer

We have been very much interested not only concerning the editorials that have been appearing in various newspapers of the district, over the relative merits and demerits of our very good friend, Commissioner A. P. Plummer, as road commissioner of the Fifth District. Mr. Plummer has been and is one of our very good friends. We recall that in 1930 a similar effort was made to prevent his appointment as road commissioner. At that time we were very much in favor of his appointment. During the last four years and more, we have not had occasion to change our mind.

It will be remembered that during the past two years the Rowan County News has not seen eye to eye with Mr. Plummer politically, but that has not altered the personal friendship for him. We have felt, as he has felt, that to differ politically is a personal privilege.

We have realized, too, that Fleming county has many miles of road, over many of which we have had the privilege of driving. They are good roads, and we are glad that our neighbors in Fleming county have such wonderful means of travel. Neither do we envy them. We feel that, if Harrison county, or Montgomery county, or Carter county, had a highway commissioner had the same complaint would now be made about them.

One thing however, has been apparently overlooked by the critics of Mr. Plummer. That is that in working out the road program for Fleming county, it has been a matter of close cooperation between the state highway department and the WPA in that county that has made possible a great many miles of highway in the county. For several years past, the fiscal court of Fleming county has worked in close harmony with the highway department and that WPA in the WPA road program with the state highway program, so that many extra miles of highway were completed through the united efforts of the Fiscal court, the WPA and the highway department.

If the same program had been carried out in other counties, there is little doubt but that considerably more mileage would have been built in all the counties of the district.

Using Rowan county's rural highway fund as an example of this fact, for the past few years up until the present, the rural highway fund in this county has been almost a total loss, because no effort was made to build permanent highways, but rather the fund was divided up into dribbles, applied here, there and yonder, where it might go some good politically. It didn't, and it didn't build roads. We just wonder, if perhaps the same thing might not be true of other counties.

Be that as it may, Rowan county has probably as nearly a complete system of highways, with the exception of about ten miles, as any county in the district. This is partly due to the activities of the State Highway Department, under Mr. Plummer partly due to the WPA and partly due to the CCC in the county which has completed miles of forest trail.

And Rowan county is not complaining about the tenure of office of Mr. Plummer. He has the endorsement of the organization which supported Governor Johnson, he has the endorsement of numerous friends, and the people of Rowan county are well satisfied with his services.

And while the News, as previously stated, has not always agreed with Mr. Plummer politically, and while our endorsement may not mean much to the general scheme of things, the News does take pleasure in publicly endorsing A. P. Plummer for highway commissioner.

DEMOCRACY

The future of agricultural marketing cooperation in America depends upon the future of democracy in America. That was the main theme which ran through all sessions of the recent meeting of the American Institute of Cooperation in Marketing, held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., August 1-5, 1939. Delegates representing 2,500,000 farmers attended. They saw, in present world and domestic conditions, the greatest challenge to the farmer and the marketing cooperative movement have ever faced. They also saw a great opportunity for service to the nation.

Such a movement as marketing cooperation is possible only in a democracy. It represents the combined efforts of free men—individualists, who are living in a free land. It is purely voluntary—it is not dictated.

RURAL FIRE FIGHTERS

Six communities deserve the praise and emulation of all America.

Those communities are Cincinnati, Ohio; Milwaukee, Wis.; Hartford, Conn.; Lakewood, O.; Petersburg, Va.; and Ridgewood, New Jersey.

These communities, which won the annual rewards given by the United States Chamber of Commerce for outstanding work in the field of fire prevention during 1938, Cincinnati won the grand award, and the other communities were winners in their various population classes, ranging from under 20,000 to over 500,000. In the 1939 contest some 250 cities, representing about 50 per cent of America's urban population, participated.

These cities did far more than win awards. They saved an untold number of lives. They saved an untold amount of property from destruction. They saved jobs that would have been lost, opportunities that would have disappeared, taxes that would have vanished, and perhaps lives that would have been in jeopardy. And they did that by hard work—by getting down to cases, studying the origins of fires, and then rigorously applying the knowledge gained to the end that fire be outlawed.

There's no luck in fire prevention. There is no room for slackers. These are the cures to America's tragic and inexcusable "fire disease." Everyone just do his share. There is no room for slackers in the war against fire.

All honor to the six American communities which fought fire to a standstill. Every community should work to win honors as they win.

A GROWING INDUSTRY

The demand for bank loans is increasing—and the banks, on the whole, are fully meeting the legitimate needs of large and small borrowers alike. That is the logical deduction to be made from a survey of commercial bank loans for 1939, which covered 6,500 banks, holding about

The Rowan County News, Morehead, Kentucky.

8 per cent of the nation's commercial bank deposits.

Last year, these banks made 13,000,000 new personal and business loans, for a tremendous aggregate of $23,700,000,000. They renewed more than 12,000,000 loans, for a total of $16,300,000,000 and made 237,000 mortgage loans, for a total of $1,200,000,000.

Two highly interesting trends were in evidence: First, demand for bank loans on the rise as indicated by the fact that the volume of loans during the second half of the year was 17 per cent greater than the first half. Second, a very large proportion of all the transactions made involved relatively small amounts, and represented service to the modest borrower.

The average loan was $1,813, and the average mortgage loan was $3,155. Inasmuch as the average loan includes returns from very large banks which carry on transactions in astronomical amounts, it is evident that the majority of loans made in the typical bank involve small sums.

Summing up the experience of the year, the banks covered in the survey served their customers in nearly 20,000,000 separate credit transactions, for a total of $41,000,000,000. That money went to build homes, to set up factories, to expand industries, to pay pressing personal obligations, to employ labor, to market new commodities, for all the thousand and one activities which constitute the involved economic life of a great nation. Banking serves all of America—and the scope of its service grows as the years pass.

STRESS IMPORTANCE OF MILK IN DIET

An adult should drink a pint of milk daily and a child two pints, according to health standards of home economists at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

This a family of two adults and three children need eight pints and a gallon of milk daily. A good milk cow should produce two to four gallons daily, or enough to supply milk and some cream and butter for a family of five. However, since a cow must be dry a part of the year, a farm family should have at least two milk cows.

130 Anniversary Observance Kentucky 1st Sunday School

By James A. McComb

The Cow Bells Were Calling the children, hearing the tinkle of cow bells on either side of the shady streets in their vicinity in Frankfort, left their homes and began strolling down the avenues toward Liberty Hall. Young Mason and Orlando Brown had adopted the unique custom of ringing cow bells before the feet of their little friends, announcing it was time for Sabbath School under the apple tree in their yard.

Their mother, Margareta Brown, is a deeply religious woman. As the wife of John Brown, Kentucky's distinguished first United States Senator, she occupied an influential position in the State's social and religious life. Her husband had brought her from New York and proudly established her as mistress of Liberty Hall. The famous and brilliant Thomas Jefferson had designed the home and the Senator looked forward to a delightful social life with his bride, the former Margareta Mason of New York, as the center of Kentucky's parties and balls. The upper floors of the spacious house had been arranged with this in view.

For some time things went as planned. Their home was brightened by the coming of a baby girl. This joy-filled love led him to enrich an already abundant life. And then, at about eight years of age, the child died.

Margareta Brown was struck stock still in her plans by this sudden heart-breaking tragedy. In that hour of sorrow tears in her eyes glistened more brightly than the jewels on her hands. That experience marked the directing of her thoughts to things religious. Politely but firmly she turned her back on the round of gay events in which she and her illustrious husband had delighted.

In memory of her loved one she decided to provide religious training for the children of her community and it was in this connection she hit upon the plan of having them assemble under the ample shade of an apple tree in her garden. This was it in the latter part September 1810, Kentucky's first Sunday School was established.

True To Her Convictions

We cite a particular instance that shows her unyielding loyalty to her convictions. If ever there was a social function called to dedicate one's yield, this was it but yielded she did not. General La Fayette was being feted in this country as a beloved hero of American liberty. After a triumphant tour of the East a trip to Kentucky was arranged for him. His visit to Frankfort was the theme of an interesting letter written by Mrs. Margareta (Mason) Brown to her mother, Mrs. John Mason, of New York City.

Frankfort, Ky., July 12, 1825
 "The arrival of General La Fayette occasioned as much bustle in proportion to the population as that at New York and I must relate a circumstance which I know will give you entire historical data for the speaker, supply each County paper with suitable publicity material and otherwise assist each Committee to carefully plan and thoroughly prepare for a worthy observance of the 150th Anniversary of Kentucky's first Sunday School, September 22, 1810. Watch your local papers and religious periodicals for further information in the near future. Many radio devotional programs will carry announcements and other material about this memorable Celebration. Pupil notices about the date and local plans will be frequently heard in the next few weeks. Connect all this with the many letters leaving the Director's office and the work of mouth advertising that will spread this news from friend to friend and a clear understanding of the scope of this Committee's undertaking will stand forth.

Every county in Kentucky will have a County Celebration Committee of not less than seven members, two of whom will be young people. In the case of some County's failure to respond, we shall ask those interested to please attend the celebration in the adjoining County Seat. There may be one or two instances where two Counties will be requested to combine for this great event.

Every reasonable effort is being made by the Kentucky Sunday School Association to prepare programs, assemble authorities room this year. One of the most outstanding on the livability theme to be brought forward by the Antique Mart, is a huge display by one of Kentucky's outstanding retail stores. This large firm has taken over an entire aisle in the M and M Building and is constructing a series of rooms. In the living room, dining room, and bedrooms will be displayed Colton Beryl Hard Maple furniture of Early American design.

Another exhibit which will attract considerable interest is the display of the American Association of Railways which is entirely mechanized and serviced by a crew of mechanics. This is the same exhibit which was in New York last season during the New York World's Fair.

Last year, the M & M Building was visited by more than 332,000 persons during the week of the State Fair.

City Council To Discuss Ordinance

If and when the ordinance is adopted, those who do business in Morehead will pay a small license fee for the right to do business in the city. Others who drop in to sell so much as a pin will be taxed at a much higher rate. Thus the local business man will be given protection to which he is entitled, while his outside competitor, who has up to the present done ample business here without paying out a dime to carry on the expenses of the city, will be made to pay his proportionate share of the expense.

It has long been a recognized fact that the business men of Morehead by their tax payments have kept the city expenses running. They have turned in their investments here, investments that have made Morehead and supported its institutions. It has long been felt that these local business men should receive the protection of some such ordinance, protection that will keep their investments here, or will at least force the man who has no local tax burden to assume at least a portion of the load, in exchange for the privilege of doing business in the city.

Relative to the legality of such an ordinance, we publish here an excerpt from a letter from the office of the Attorney General, in answer to a request for an opinion on the ordinance.

Now in regard to your general city license ordinance submitted and the question whether you can require a different license from a laundry operating in your city and on an agent for a laundry outside of your city, the Court of Appeals has held that a city which has a right to classify and even subclassify and have held specifically in the Case of Williams v. City of Bowling Green, 255 Ky. 11, 70 S. W. (2d) 967, that the city could impose a different license on an agent representing a non-resident laundry from that on a resident laundry in the city. In that case the city of Bowling Green imposed a license of $200.00 on a laundry agent and $25.00 on a resident laundry and the Court of Appeals upheld this classification license.

I have not examined the other items of your ordinance and consequently I am addressing my opinion to this specific matter. If there is any other specific matter in regard to your ordinance that you want an opinion, we will be glad to furnish it to you, and I am returning the copy of your ordinance herewith as requested.

Public Service Commission Tests

The plan is to inspect and test the meters in approximately 100 of the residences and business places in the city. At the same time the lines are tested for voltage.

According to statements made by members of the group they have found a surprising accuracy in the meters that have been tested thus far. The results on the complete inspection will not be published for some time.

AN OPEN LETTER to All Kentucky Beer Retailers

Your license is a valuable and protected permit to engage in a legitimate business. . . but in that business, among your group, are a few persons who fail to realize that their license is also a privilege which may be revoked if it is not respected.

The vast majority of retail beer licensees are aware of this fact and conduct their establishments in accordance with law, order and public sentiment. But Kentucky's $20,000,000 beer industry insists that all retail outlets be operated strictly upon the principles of good citizenship.

Toward this end there has been formed the Kentucky Brewers and Beer Distributors Committee, which is assisting law-enforcement officials in every way possible to clean up or close-up outlets guilty of law violations or anti-social practices. Our work will be pressed vigorously as the campaign progresses.

This program is designed to protect the public interest and to safeguard your business from the selfish and unlawful acts of a small minority. We feel certain, therefore, of your support.
