Various Courses Offered In Order To Feed Workers To War Industries

No era of our nation's history has offered the job opportunities of the present day, according to Harry H. Severson, manager of the United States Employment Service at Ashland.

In an interview today Severson said, "The various training courses set up to feed workers to war industries are an incentive to anyone who wants to help the war effort as much as possible, and at the same time prepare himself for a successful future."

Manager Severson and members of the staff will be glad to give detailed information to all who are interested in vocational training. He reported that in addition to the recently announced preliminary radio training which pays trainees $85.00 per month, the N. Y. A. was offering its vocational trainees $24.00 per month, and the State Vocational School was making its courses available at no cost to the trainee.

ing its courses available at no cost to the trainee.

These opportunities offered persons interested in training are, specifically: Machine Shop, Sheet Metal Work, Welding, Foundry Work, Wood Pattern and Radio. The Radio instruction being only the preliminary training for the Advanced School in Avon, Kentucky. The other courses are being given at Ashland.

A representative of the United States Employment Service office at Ashland will be at the Morehead Courthouse, June 2, at 1:00 p. m.

Mr. Severson further stated that representatives of his office appearing at the points mentioned would accept applications for all current war training courses now open, and would answer in detail the questions of interested persons.

Deferment Granted Men Accepted in U. S. Signal Corps
 Men in draft classification IA between the ages of eighteen and forty-five may now be accepted for student radio trainee positions, United States Army Signal Corps, according to a War Department announcement made Monday, May 23, provided the applicants pass necessary civil service and physical examinations and join the Enlisted Men's Reserve.
 Captain W. Gayle, officer in charge, Civilian Training, Lexington Signal Depot, stated in an interview Monday that "authentic deferment will be granted those in class IA who enroll in the enlisted men's reserve until they have received a minimum of six months' training or have completed the first two courses in radio maintenance and repair."
 Men of the Enlisted Reserve, while taking signal corps training, will be on the same basis as the other trainees.
 Those who qualify but who are without previous training will go into the Mechanical Learner course at $100.00 per year. Those who have had previous training and experience will be eligible for the next school, the Junior Repairman Trainee course.
 Persons between the ages of eighteen and forty-five who are interested may file applications with the representative of the Sixth United States Civil Service District, Postoffice Box 853, Lexington, Kentucky, or at their nearest United States Employment Office. Proper forms may be obtained from any first or second-class post office or from the nearest employment service office.

Collection Of Scrap Metal
 and etanol shrdlu etnot
 An intensive campaign for the collection of scrap metals and rubber for war use from farmers in and around the Work Project Administration in ten Kentucky counties in cooperation with the Kentucky Salvage Committee headed by Adjutant-General G. Lee McClain. The counties of Boyd, Floyd, Knott, Estill, Clark, Wayne, Green, Hancock, and Meade have been selected for the initial start with plans to spread the service to the entire state once trial methods prove successful.
 A flying squadron with George F. Shaw representing WPA together with representatives of the Salvage Committee are engaged in meetings with officials of local communities affected seeking cooperation and explaining details for the mass collection. These meetings will be completed by the middle of the coming week. The plan as outlined in these meetings is substantially as follows:
 Following the postmaster of each community a letter from Donald Nelson, head of the War Production Board, will be sent to each farmer setting forth the urgent need for his scrap and requesting his full cooperation. Accompanying each letter will be a card, free of postage, which the farmer will fill out designating the amount of scrap he has on hand and its location together with such other information as may be needed.
 This card is self addressed to General McClain at his Frankfort office. In turn General McClain will forward this information to WPA which will set the latter organization's fleet of trucks into action for systematic collection.
 As each WPA truck visits a farm and collects scrap the farmer is given a ticket showing exactly the quantity and quality of his sale or donation. If he asks nothing for his scrap and donates it to the government, as his patriotic duty, the farmer's ticket is so marked. If the farmer desires payment these tickets are forward through WPA channels to the United States Treasury Department and in due time the farmer will receive full payment by government check through the mails.
 WPA office records will reflect, each individual transaction at all times.
 Discussing the project informally today George H. Goodman, WPA Administrator, said prospects were not gratifying and that he felt most farmers would willingly donate their scrap.
 "When I stop to think of the Kentucky boys killed and captured in the Philippines I am comforted somewhat by the thought that the WPA organization is going all out in its war effort and that thirty percent of the total WPA employment in the state is so engaged, with daily additions of projects to fit the national pattern of "win the war."

FOR DEFENSE BUY GREYHOUND SERVICE BUSES
 In normal times, every organization is thought of in terms of its normal function. With GREYHOUND, it is transportation... the means of carrying you from where you are to where you want to go... comfortably, dependably, inexpensively.

But in times like these, GREYHOUND assumes a much broader aspect: As the family car becomes an item to be preserved, GREYHOUND moves into the breach to play a dual role. To its normal function as a carrier, it now contributes a service of incalculable value as a conservator of rubber, metals, and fuel. With greater carrying capacity per pound and per gallon of these precious elements, buses are in the forefront in the efforts toward national defense.

Carrying business men on trips, war-workers to jobs, selectees to induction centers, service men to camps and on furloughs, GREYHOUND is doing double duty on America's Highways to Victory!

Workers Consume Inadequate Food

"Dietary studies of workers in many sections of the country indicate that the average employed worker and his family consume meals far from adequate," states Milton Hult, president of the National Dairy Council. The Committee on Nutrition and Industry of the National Research Council reports that facilities for feeding workers in industrial cafeterias are very poor. Only one of thirty-three cafeterias surveyed was directed by a trained dietitian. Furthermore, workers were making poor choices even when wholesome foods were available. This evidence indicates that the nutritional status of industrial workers needs a lot of improvement.

Many employers have become suddenly aware of the importance of good nutrition for their employees and have become ready victims of the campaign being waged to sell synthetic vitamin concentrates. In some cases employers are passing out vitamin tablets to employees in an indiscriminate fashion in the hope of raising the efficiency to a high level. Nutrition authorities are in agreement, however, that this practice is unwise and uneconomical. The nutritional needs of industrial work-

Navy School at G.E.
 Just one evidence of the cooperation between the armed services and our vast industrial army—a school for submarine electricians conducted at one General Electric factory.

1. Electricity is vital to the running of every submarine. It does an amazing variety of important jobs, from turning the propeller to cooking the coffee.
 2. For that reason, there must be well-trained electricians on every underwater craft. At this school, Navy electricians attend classes taught by G-E engineers...
 3. ...and go out into the shops where they work together to construct the same kind of electric equipment that will some day be put in their charge.
 4. This is but one proof of the thorough training which the U.S. Navy gives its men, so that the vital equipment of war will always be ready for action.

General Electric believes that its first duty as a good citizen is to be a good soldier.

but also purchasers of large quantities of fertilizer, feeds, machinery, and other supplies for production and large quantities of goods and services for farm family living. They stand to benefit directly from the stabilization of prices of these commodities. They are owners of bonds, life insurance policies, and farm mortgages. At the same time prices of many of the basic commodities which farmers have for sale are guaranteed against decline below eighty-five percent of parity, and for the most part are not subject to price ceilings.

By loyal cooperation with every phase of the government's program to increase production and to raise the standard of living, farmers should be able to conduct their business in a profitable manner and make a maximum contribution to the total war effort. The more complete the success of the government program, the smaller will be the necessary sacrifices in blood and living standards, the more quickly will victory be won, and the sooner will agriculture and the country as a whole be able to return to the ways of peace.

In response to the Secretary of Agriculture's Assignment, the Extension Service is developing a neighborhood leader system capable of reaching every family with Agriculture's Wartime program. The Rowan County Agricultural agent is now planning to start this program in Rowan County whereby every farmer will be kept informed of the Agriculture needs and what he can do about them.

It is a settled fact that if everyone were an Artesian Bacallaurus (A. B.) there would be no advantage to anyone in going to college. It would be like exchanging a bishop for a bishop in chess. If you go to college and I don't you can outwit me in a deal but if we both go—that makes it isn't you and that's just what you want, and that's why I say everyone should go to college or nobody should.

I am about to say here that we don't get our education in the first half but in the second half of life. We see to it that the school we are sufficiently insulated from the facts of life. A commencement speaker is supposed to tell them in some of the secrets, but they usually don't. All they say is, "take the stairs, the elevator to success is out of order."

What a difference it should make if the rule were to plant a microphone in the secret cubicles where men transact their business, and broadcast these recordings in the classrooms in the place of the professor's lectures. But it will never be.

We older men have too much at stake—we own and operate this political, and to do that would have the effect of letting the younger set get the power. They must be kept in darkness. No it will never be. Besides, it would corrupt their minds—a crime for which many a professor has lost his life, like Socrates did.

The Indians used to have a coming out party or ceremony for the youths, at which they would tell them the secrets of the tribe, but only after they were full grown and their judgment mature. We got it from the Indians, that's where we got it. If that isn't it, then where did we get it? I ask you?

Memorial Day... A New Meaning

War is longer in the dim and distant past, but is a grim reality of today. Youth, as before, has taken up arms, and Memorial Day has a deeper meaning.

On many battlefields, and recently at Corregidor and Bataan, our fighting forces have maintained their reputation for valor. Deeds of heroism are again being performed in defense of freedom.

As we pause to remember those who fought in former wars, the nation is also mindful of the great service being rendered by brave men of today.
