This year there were in the entire parade only seven children in their bare feet, and these were all well clothed. The following awards of prizes were made in the parade, floras and various school contests. BIBLE STUDY

Question—In view of the fact that there are so many different churches and denominations and each one claiming it is right, how can one know what to do or believe?—B. T. (Any one who sends in a question gets a free booklet entitled "The Bible, The Judgement, and You.")

Of course, in public discussions such as this, we must be careful not to take advantage of our position. And yet, this gives us free reign to express our opinion, though it may or may not concur in that opinion. However, the writer must speak as he sees it.

It is difficult to tell who is right or who is wrong, by listening alone to those who speak from their own viewpoints. But God has graciously given us His Word, and made it available to every searching heart, so that we can read it for ourselves. If they who speak their positions agree with that word, then they can be counted on as sound in their advice. If he is not true to that Word, then they can be counted on as sound in their advice. If he is not true to that Word, I would not count on their advice, even though they might be right in some things.

Any man who wants to lead people aright will be willing for the Word of God to be judged by the Word of God. He will seek that Word as his authority and by that Word will be willing for what he says to be judged by the Word of God alone. If he is honest in his search for truth he will seek that Word as his authority and by that Word will be able, no matter if it contradicts his predetermined ideas. Every man who is honest and sincere wants to know the truth. And every man who is worthy of being followed is one who is sincere and honest. And if he is to know the truth he will seek that truth in the Word of God, and will try all theories and doctrines by that Word. If he is not willing to do this he is not willing to be honest, and is not worthy of being followed.

All churches and denominations can't be right, for there is too much difference between them. The old time-worn statement that "One church is as good as another" is not true. There may be as good people in one church as there is another, but we are not saved by being in one who is good for us, and whom God accepted in our stead. And since that is the only way man can be saved from sin, if my doctrine leads him to believe in another way of salvation, even though I'm in my own heart, he will be lost.

Our creeds differ, though our faith may be the same. That is, we may be trusting the same Saviour to save us, but if we do not understand how we are being saved, and do not analyze our experience of faith in the right way, we may present a creed which will fail to lead another to the faith which we have. Our creeds may or may not lead another to Christ, and we must therefore be careful of what we preach. Therefore, since a church is built around a creed or set of doctrines, and they may be right or wrong, one church is not as good as another. It depends Resources: Ira N. The 33,000 acre Big Levels area was set aside by Presidential proclamation in 1916 for experimental work in wildlife management work and as a proving ground for ideas and practices in the management of land, water and vegetation in its effect on protection and welfare of wildlife, before they are put into effect on the one and a quarter million acres of national forest land in Virginia. Now especially favorable for wildlife at first, it is fast becoming a most desirable area for both big and small game, according to the Forest Service. The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the State Game Commission, and local sportsmen's groups are cooperating with the Forest Service in the project.
The State of Virginia has instituted a special one dollar fee in addition to the required state hunting license fee for hunting on national forest lands, this

That Morehead is a thriving and progressive city, advantageously and geographically located, and for progress and growth has surpassed every other city of its classification, in the state. OUR STATE TEACHERS COLLEGE with its vast buildings and equipment, the many new and beautiful homes, and new business buildings, our paved streets, water and sewer systems, our gas system, telephone, electric service, all surrounded by its splendid roads leading out into every section, with our connection with the outside trade areas, make Morehead, one of the most ideal cities in which to live and do business in Kentucky.

THE OPERATION of the city government is a very important matter to every tax payer and individual, and is a matter in which every citizen should take an active part. THE POWER TO TAX and has long been considered the POWER TO DESTROY, and therefore should be used only when absolutely necessary. THE PEOPLE LEAST GOVERNED IS THE PEOPLE BEST GOVERNED.

THE PEOPLE LEAST GOVERNED IS THE PEOPLE BEST GOVERNED. One should have only that kind of Government necessary for the orderly and tranquil life which can be afforded our people.

I AM OPPOSED to any tax that places any burden on the people, either Occupational or otherwise, unless it be necessary for the practical, legitimate and business like operation of our City, and only when approved by a majority of the people who are required to pay it.

I AM IN FAVOR of lower water rates, and they can be had if the City is properly managed. I AM IN FAVOR of lower power and light rates and I believe they can be secured if your Mayor and City Council will make an effort to secure them.

AND THE GREATEST thing of all that I am in favor of is that the City Council through the City Clerk, convey with the ample of legislation to the public affairs of the City annually as required by law, so that the taxpayer can see where his money is being spent.

A GROUP OF CITIZENS and tax payers have asked me to be a candidate for the office of mayor to fill an unexpired term, and I have consented to ask the voters and tax payers to elect me to this office which is the most responsible the City any business, that with the high interest I have in the welfare of the city as a resident for the past thirty-five years, that I will accept the responsibility, and I promise if elected to give the city my time at any time in the full interest of all that, if needed, I will be here ready to serve you in my fullest capacity.

I FURTHER PROMISE that I have no one whom I have promised any favors for their support, that I will not dictate to members of the council who have been elected by the people but will preside over the council at their meetings and give them my full support and cooperation in all matters in the best interest of the city. That the selection of officers and employees will be left entirely to the choice of the council.

A recent issue of Consumers' Guide, a publication of the Department of Agriculture, offers simple and obvious here are the housewife some excellent shopping advice. It is certainly one of the best pieces of advice I have ever seen in my market—check supplies in your leader and left overs in your refrigerator.

Half Of Nation's Forest Fires On Unprotected Land

Forestry Department Reports Show That Most Damage Occurs There

More than half of the Nation's forest fires, nearly 90 percent of the area burned, and 34 of the damage are reported on the 152 million acres of forest lands still lacking organized protection, according to the annual summary issued during National Fire Prevention Week by the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Forest fires averaged one for every two and half minutes during the 1939 calendar year, or 212,471, according to reports from state foresters, national forests and other federal agencies, which indicated a loss of nearly 40 million dollars and 30 million acres of forest land burned. Although last year's fires were 19,558 under those in 1938, and the area burned was three and a half million acres less, damages were three million dollars greater.

Out of 585,422,000 acres of forest land needing it, the Forest Service reports that 152,167,000 acres are still without organized fire protection—more than 17 percent of that area being burned over last year, while less than one percent of the protected area being burned over last year while less than one percent of the protected area suffered fire damage. Much of the area now under protection also still lacks adequate forces and facilities, although cost of adequate fire protection would amount to only a few cents an acre a year in most areas.

An average timber production on the total burned-over area of 200 board feet of timber an acre annually, would have represented enough lumber to build a third of a million six room frame houses, the Forest Service said. While not all timber is destroyed by fires, the trees may be damaged so that decay an direct injury is encouraged. Forest fires kill much young growth and production needed for future timber, crops, damage forage and food plants needed for the big game animals and other wildlife or livestock or may kill wildlife itself, reduce the water-holding capacity of watersheds that supply reservoirs for irrigation and domestic use, and when they burn over the same area year after year, keep the land non-productive.

Of the 85,677 fires reported on protected State and private lands, lightning causes less than 3 percent and human carelessness the greater portion of the remainder, the count being: railroads about 5 percent, campers 9 percent, smokers 26 percent, debris burning 15 per cent, incendiaries 25 percent, lumbering 2 percent, miscellaneous and unknown causes 15 percent. Two thirds of the fires on protected State and privately owned land were kept to ten acres or less in size, the greatest damage from any one cause resulting from incendiaries who succeed in burning 1,195,660 acres out of the 3,266,000 acres of protected land burned.

States where all forest land needing it is under some degree of organized protection include Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Oregon and the Territory of Hawaii. Less than one percent remains unprotected in Michigan and Washington,

Eagles Tie With Murray

Murray went to the air but Hatfield redeemed himself by intercepting a pass on the Eagles 30 and taking it to Murrays 11. Vaznellis, reported injured early the day before but in the game, hit the line twice for 15 yards and on his third effort made it a first down on Murrays 19. The western Kentucky team lightened up and the Eagles tried for a field goal but Zachems kick was wide.

Zachem took another try at a field goal late in the fourth quarter but again failed. A bad pass to Lee, who picked up the ball and ran eight yards but failed to make the necessary yardage, gave Morehead the ball on Murray's 32. Vaznellis picked up two at center and Varney
