"ONE OF KENTUCKY'S GREATER WEEKLIES"

MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 4, 1942

VOLUME IX NUMBER TWENTY-THREE

12th Folk Song Festival To Be Held, June 14th

Rowan Counties To Participate In Festivities Near Ashland

The twelfth annual AMERICAN FOLK SONG FESTIVAL, which grows from the centuries-old tradition, the Sinkin' Gatherin' of the Kentucky mountains, will be held Sunday, June 14th at Traipsin' Woman cabin on the Mayo Trail, eighteen miles south of Ashland, Boyd County, Kentucky, under the direction of its founder, Jean Whittier, "The Traipsin' Woman."

This year the American Folk Song Festival will partake of added significance, inasmuch as many of the younger boys and men who have heretofore participated so proudly in this annual event, have shouldered their muskets to defend their native shores, the greater responsibility of carrying on their centuries-old tradition will fall upon the very young boys upon the shoulders of the very old. And because of the darkening clouds of war many of the ballad makers have turned their craft to other things of the world strife, and of heroes of the last World War, "Pearl Harbor," and the "Japs."

At this year's festival, an Ohio sculptor, Mrs. Earl Mathie, will reveal a portrait which she recently completed of Jilon Setters, the Singin' Fiddler of Lost Hope Hollow, most famous of all mountain minstrels, the died May 7, 1942 though he could neither read nor write, has composed and set to tune more than one hundred and fifty ballads, some of which are including "Rowan County Troubles," which is the story of the Martin-Towler feud, the late Dr. George Lyman Kittredge of Harvard says, "will live as a classic in ballads." Jilon Setters' latest ballad, called "The Battle of Sergeant York" will be finished and sung by Sid Hatfield.

Little Phyllis Preston of the Big Sandy country, whose grandfather, her father and her mother, were one of the early settlers of that region, will sing ballads made up by her own blood kin, including the ballads "Big Mawdy" and "Push Boat." Little Bud McCoy, not yet six, will sing the ballad "Lost Hope Hollow." The story of Rosanna, daughter of old Randall McCoy, leader of his clan, who loved Jesse Hatfield, son of Deputy Anse Hatfield.

At the festival this year there will be a native art exhibit with some fine examples of the handicrafts of Rowan County children, under the sponsorship of the Rowan County branch of the American Association of University Women. Creative and native art in Rowan county had its beginning many years ago when Mrs. Lydia Messer Caudill, first teacher of a one-room log school (and later county superintendent of Rowan county schools), was inspired to create the efforts of her pupils, who one day brought to her desk a clay model of a dog and a horse he had made from native clay. The art of Rowan county children has been recognized in national exhibits. (See Courier-Journal, June 29, 1941.) Mrs. Lydia Messer Caudill wears

Sequitennial Stamp Issue Aids Publicity

The issuance of Kentucky's commemorative stamp throughout the nation has caused thousands of requests for program information to pour in to the Kentucky Sequitennial Commission's headquarters in Lexington, it was learned today from H. I. Miranda, Executive Secretary for the commission.

The publicity was aided when Governor Johnson made the first purchase of staided commemorative stamps in Frankfort, June 1, and contributed the sheet of fifty stamps to the Kentucky Historical Society.

H. S. Chamberlain, representative of the postoffice department in Washington, stated that the stamp issued at Frankfort created more local and state-wide interest than had any other special issue which he has conducted in several years.

Chamberlain also said, "It is likely that more than 10,000,000 uncancelled stamps will be placed in stamp albums throughout the nation, which will contribute approximately $300,000 to the general fund, aiding the war effort."

Mrs. Wm. Richardson Succumbs Sunday

Mrs. William Richardson, 70, Dry Creek resident, died May 31, after a prolonged illness.

Mrs. Richardson was born in Powell county, Kentucky, and had been married forty-eight years. She was a member of the Church of Christ.

She is survived by her husband and eight children: Mrs. Rebecca Jones, Mrs. K. H. Fannin, Mrs. Ralph Wood, Mrs. J. W. Fannin, Mrs. Jack Stone, Dayton, Ohio; Burl Richardson, Virgil Richardson, LeRoy Richardson, all of Rowan county, and Ora Richardson, U. S. Army, Camp Shelby, Mississippi.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, at 1:00 p. m., at the Christian Church in Stanton, Powell county, Kentucky. Burial was made in Stanton.

USDA To Direct Educational Work On Price Ceilings

The Extension Service of the United States Department of Agriculture has been designated by Secretary of Agriculture to carry out the educational work on Price Ceiling in an all-out effort to prevent inflation.

In order to acquaint the public with this program, the following meetings have been scheduled by the county agent: Although this is a very busy time of year, we feel that every farmer should take an hour or so off from his work and find out just what this program is and how it will help him to make our country a better place to live now and after the war is over.

Monday, June 3, at 3:00 p. m., county agent's office; Big Brushy, Monday, June 3, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Admire-Davis, Monday, June 3, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Poplar Grove, Tuesday, June 9, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Elliptonville, Wednesday, June 10, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Shary, Thursday, June 11, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Haldeman, Friday, June 12, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Minor, Friday, June 12, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Perkins, Monday, June 15, at 7:30 p. m., school house; Oggsvelt, Tuesday, June 16, at 2:00 p. m., school house; Farmers,

Clearfield Baseball Club To Play Colored Team Sunday

The Clearfield Ice Clay Baseball club is scheduled to meet at Mt. Sterling colored team, at Clearfield, Sunday, June 7, at 2:30 p. m.

Sunday's game is expected to be one of the toughest this season for the Clearfield fans, inasmuch as the Mt. Sterling colored boys are one of the best amateur baseball clubs in the state, and have defeated the highly touted Cincinnati White Sox colored team from the Queen City.

Under the able leadership of Coach Ellis Johnson, the Clearfield club has experienced some of its best seasons, with a record of six victories to one single defeat so far this season.

Johnson's game promises to be a real thriller-diller. Men of the armed forces in uniform and Boy Scouts in uniform are admitted free.

American Legion To Sponsor Passion Play Fri., June 19

Motion Picture To Be Shown At College Auditorium

For the first time in history, the public may now see the famous Passion Play, as given in Oberammergau and Frieberg, in a talking motion picture, which will be sponsored in the community by the Corbie Ellington Post 126, of the American Legion.

The moving picture version of the great drama will be shown at the College auditorium, Friday, June 19, at three separate showings: two evening shows and a matinee.

For the gigantic $800,000 spectacle, greater than any Hollywood epic, a complete set of special motion picture sound equipment will be brought to Morehead to support projectorial travels with the equipment and the latest type of megaphone will be used.

A cast of thousands of actors render hundreds of awe-inspiring scenes filled with stark reality, for "one hour" and forty minutes of intense and thrilling scenes such as Christ being crucified, the nails being driven in his hands and the mob crying out for his blood. Pilate washing his hands of the guilt, Judas betraying the Savior with a kiss, and hundreds of other unforgettable Bible scenes are shown in this, the greatest dramatic production ever filmed.

Admission at all times will be free except for adults and nine cents for children. Proceeds derived from this Legion-sponsored event will be used to help in the charity work that the Corbie Ellington Post endeavors to render from time to time. The money is being put up for the building of the new motion picture which will be repaid a hundred-fold in unsurpassable entertainment.

College Turns Over Facilities to Navy At Formal Ceremonies

Lieutenant-Commander Walker Officially Accepts Dormitories And Portion Of Science Hall

The United States Navy officially commissioned a part of Morehead State Teachers College Monday as a training unit for ship electricians.

On the spacious grounds fronting Men's Hall, Lieutenant-Commander George Walker accepted Thompson Hall, Men's Hall and portions of the science building, gymnasium, swimming pool, cafeteria and other facilities on behalf of the navy when it was formally tendered by President William H. Vaughan.

Carroll D. Alcott Addresses M.S.T.C. Graduating Class

Radio Commentator And Newspaperman Speaks On War

There can be nothing half-way about this war with Japan, Carroll D. Alcott, radio commentator on the East, told the graduating class of twenty-six at Morehead State Teachers college Tuesday night. Morehead College has enlisted the only things the Japanese understand about deciding the final outcome of the war. One either declares victory or total loss. There can be no half-day point, such as peace by compromise, nor can the loser expect any favors from Japan," he said.

Alcott is a newspaperman of sixteen years experience and a radio commentator. He was one of ten Americans and Britons ordered out of China two years ago by the invading Japanese. Because he was living in the International Settlement of Shanghai, then controlled by Americans and British, he refused to leave at the time.

"The Japanese must be given a choice of being beaten or of declaring kind of peace would be regarded by the Japs as weakness on our part, and they would prepare a final fight us again," Alcott said.

Declaring that "President Vaughan and his associates have very ably met this situation and have prepared a curriculum which meets the Navy's requirements," C. O. M.

Commander Walker said he felt confident that "the men graduated from this school will be equal to or better than the best of other schools giving similar training."

Pointing out that the colleges of the nation are equipped to render a distinct service to their country, President Vaughan said, "I have a great confidence in the men who are to be graduated from this school. We are not content that our students and graduates should fight and work, but we are content that they should be able to do so with a full understanding of the magnitude and genuine determination to pursue it to the end."

Preceding Dr. Vaughan and Lieutenant Walker on the program, Harlan Powers, city attorney, officially welcomed the naval school to Morehead. "We are proud to have the National Post-secondary schools in the United States, and on behalf of the city we extend a bountiful welcome with a glad heart to the men who are here to do their part in this war."

The bluejackets paraded from Thompson Hall to Men's Hall before the ceremony. The proceedings were climaxed with an official order by Commander Walker for the raising of the flag.

WIT, WISDOM, BLASPHEMY AND THE LIKE WITH DIATRIBES ON PSYCHOLOGY

Humor Is A Funny Thing But A Smart Man Will Learn No Other Way

By REX HOKE

Next to fishing I know of no more intriguing pastime than plotting to get a fellow into a bear. The other fellow's of course, yours can wait. You'll not succeed if he's not a bear. You'll not succeed if that's where humor enters and the fun starts. It's one thing to try to bridge Old Sam with the edge of the cliff with a bunch of tackle, and the same with a little extra to play that two-legged man fish for a sucker.

There was a story of a duck-blind in one eye you could yoke him through by slipping up on one side (first you had to remember which eye he was blind in, but that was as commonly said, "The thought is the first half of the act," to get him to act all you need to do slip the idea to him. "The thought is the first half of the act," to get him to act all you need to do slip the idea to him. "The thought is the first half of the act," to get him to act all you need to do slip the idea to him.

But an illustration that will do just as well as the matador with a red blanket. That's where the bull comes in—running of course with his tail waving like a flag. The bull naturally thinks the man is behind the blanket (but he isn't—when he gets there),

Foxton Man Convicted Of Setting Forest Fire

Supervisor H. L. Borden, of Winchester, Kentucky, revealed today that criminal or civil prosecution action had been taken by Forest Ranger on sixty-three percent of all fires occurring this year in the Cumberland National Forest. Sixty-two convictions or civil settlements have been attained.

He points out that a reasonable amount of care would have avoided the damage from these fires, and the spending of tax-payers' money in fighting them.

Typical of these law enforcement cases is that of George McKinney, resident of Foxton, Jackson County, who was convicted in Magistrate Court on May 16, 1942, at McKee, Kentucky, for letting fire get out of control on 400-acre owned seventy-five acres of young woodland on the Rachael McKinney farm.

"If you could not pay the $200 fine imposed on him by the jury and he was committed to jail by magistrate Hubert Gabbard.

THIS WEEK IN THE WAR
Army Air Corps Com. Arnold told a press conference in London that United States fighter and bomber planes will soon join the British Air Force in bombing Germany.

United States Commissioner of Education, Studs Terkel, reported that about 430,000 men have been rejected for Army service so far because of illiteracy.

The President asked Congress for an additional $600 million for expansion of naval aviation and shipbuilding.

The WFB reported more than 400,000 scrapped automobiles from auto graveyards yielded 350,000 tons of scrap metal.

her you can just class him with the bad element—a laugh is definite and unmistakable.

Leacock gives this sign which I think is a good one: "A humorous person would be apt to be cut out nearly to the heart by unkindness, more deeply depressed by adversity, more elated by success than fortune, than a person with but little of that quick sense of contrast and relief which is the focus of the humorous point of view."

There is the trick of double meaning. It is not so hard to pretend—if he's smart he does—there is a face saver and then there are the other things which he recognizes as the real side. He will offend the face saver, but he will not offend the person in silence. In our illustration the bull thinks there are two matadors—the one behind the blanket and the one off to the side. The bull doesn't notice that the man just steps to the side, this is very natural as all first-class bulls will close their eyes when they start at a target.

The next time you see a fight watch the bull coming down the path at the man, keep a look at his eyes and you'll see he has been shut (This is difficult at this period as you'll want to see the man, but there's no harm in a recent discovery).

But the psychology of bull fighting is too much digression—the interest starts at a target. So humor is the agent by which we soften up the enemy to put us in communication with him so we can give him an idea.

At another time he said, "I guess I wouldn't be very humorous if it wasn't for the government. I don't make jokes. I just watch the government and report the way I see it."

Strange as it may seem when truth hits us in the face we laugh, "especially if it is fact we commonly hide but are intimately familiar with as an undercurrent. The richness of the flavor of truth—and humor—thus presented, we taste but cannot describe."

Whenever someone with a careless gesture uncovers before our eyes what we're giving up our lives desperately to hide from one another—well if he did it playfully, we get a laugh—that is if we were caught in the right mood when he did it. So the humorist, like a matador, must study the moods of his bull (Some other word than "bull" would be better). I fear we've used that too much.

Unfortunately however there is a bad element in society that is lacking in humor capacity and they can't teach anything—like you get a duck now and then you can't joke.

He can be identified by a tendency to get mad when a joke is passed around. Watch the next man you tell a joke to and note whether he laughs or gets angry. If he just sits silent and does nei-

Alcott Addresses

A series of military disasters for the Japs, a not too lenient peace, and economic readjustments were advocated by the speaker. "Long after the war is over, the United Nations must maintain powerful patrols and defense in the Orient," Alcott said. "This means, of course, an international police force, but it is the only way that peace can be preserved."

Here Is Permanence

In a war weary world, there is still permanence. The seasons come in their turn. Birds build their nests. Crops flourish in the fields. The sky glows with the glory of the sunset. To these unchanging things we may look, when the mind seeks peace and consolation.
We are still most fortunate. Good neighbors and true friends we may have. Stress strengthens such bonds. Things that cost us least may be the most valuable. It is a time when neighborliness and mutual helpfulness should prevail.
This bank . . . long your neighbor . . . will welcome any opportunity to serve you.
