THE COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, ROWAN CIRCUIT COURT
City of Morehead Plaintiff,
V. J. N. Kissinger and his wife, et al. Defendants.
By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Rowan Circuit Court rendered at the March Term thereof, 1938, in the above cause, for the sum of Four Hundred and Fifty Dollars and Fifty-Nine ($415.90) Dollars, with interest at the rate of six percent per annum from the 24th day of July, 1938, until paid and its cost thereon, to-wit: following described property, to-wit:

truck drivers, trucking firms, parts dealers and garages throughout the country information designed to assure the continued and uninterrupted flow of automobiles and the necessities of civilization. All are being asked to observe a "Keep 'em Rolling" during the emergency.

The House passed and sent to the Senate legislation authorizing $93 million to complete a barge canal on St. John's river Florida, and a pipeline from Port Saint Joe, Florida, to Jacksonville, Florida; for enlargement of the existing Intracoastal Waterway running the St. Marks River, Florida, to Corpus Christi, Texas, and its extension to Brownsville, Texas; and for construction of a pipeline through the Tensas, Mississippi, oil fields to Charleston, South Carolina, and to New York.

A WEEK OF THE WAR

Price Administrator Henderson told the press if price ceilings hold their ground, the buying power of the entire war effort will cost $62 billion less than it would cost if price ceilings were lifted during the last year of the war. He said that under price ceilings there were more than $161 billion in 1941.

The War Department said it will try to increase the production of military aircraft by 50 percent by the end of this month.

The War Manpower Commission said the job for men in the armed forces is 8,000,000 to 7,000,000 men by the end of 1943; 20,000,000 men will be needed in war production and transportation by 1944; 12,000,000 will be required to harvest the 1943 crop. The President's Committee on Fair Employment Practice said in 1944 high school enrollment might be reduced by forty to fifty percent, college enrollment by seventy to eighty percent, and half the nation's schools may be closed due to the increasing need for war workers.

The President signed legislation appropriating an additional nine and one-half million to increase the cost of training war workers in vocational courses of less than college grade. Selective Service announced that it will increase military age group forty-five to sixty-five will receive occupational questionnaires shortly which will be used to locate individuals with professional and scientific qualifications and with essential skills. The War Relocation Authority said that the following districts coast lumbermen will be considered for temporary draft deferment. Agriculture Secretary Wickard said the farm labor supply problem might be solved if either the Government paid transportation expenses as part of the war program, or farmers pooled resources to bring in the migrant labor they need. Railroads have already agreed to reduce fares for migrant farm workers.

The ODT established a U. S. Truck Conservation Corps to mobilize the nation's five million trucks—greatest truck fleet in the world—for more effective war service. The Office distributed to

THE HOME FRONT

During the week, Americans at home read the news from the military front—the dramatic story of the Japanese fleet and invasion force at Midway Island.

At home, nothing happened so significant as the re-examination of old news and the emphasis on the shortages of critical materials, of metals, of transportation, of rubber—always rubber—and of manufacturing capacity to make the things to which civilian America has always accustomed.

At home, there were no reports to watch, no pyrotechnics of battle. It is manpower mobilization, more work and more shipbuilding, more work and more shipbuilding.

Yet, what Americans at home have succeeded at in the months of hum-drum plugging—finally exploded and made history and heroes at Midway.

At home, there are no reports to watch, no pyrotechnics of battle. It is manpower mobilization, more work and more shipbuilding, more work and more shipbuilding.

Production is one of the orders of the day, well as the months of the war.

A few days ago, officials of the War Production Drive journeyed to Rochester, N. Y., for a ceremony which would have been the dedication of a new plant at the plant of the company, the Syracuse-Gould Corporation, which had increased its war production four hundred percent in a single month.

There are, however, production difficulties. The chief of these is the shortage of metals and rubber. The metal shortage has not yet closed blast furnaces, and every body by now knows what that means in terms of ships and guns and machinery of modern war.

Continued conversion of industrial plants from civilian to war manufacture will continue to cause shortages of many manufactured goods. The metal shortage might be theoretically plentiful. Cropping of our transportation systems, submarine sinkings on the high seas, the metal shortage will continue to cause shortages of many manufactured goods.

The White House announced that the first preference—of travel, of eating and the clothing we wear will change. Fish will be scarcer, because we are so much to our Allies. The passage of the tin can will cause us to buy more tin cans.

As war traffic jams our railroads and taxes every bus and truck with their vanishing tires, traveling may be restricted to the bare bones of necessity, to day coaches and upper berths, instead of parlor cars.

If people don't conserve their tires in business and pleasures, the war rating may do for them. There's no prospect of synthetic rubber for civilian use before 1944. Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Federal Reserve Administration, and Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the nation's foremost transportation authority, has a proposition in this quiet fashion before a meeting of Cleveland Business and Industry Association, an automobile during the week.

Most of the country's milk trucks will be off the street in two years, a survey prepared by the Milk Industry Foundation says. The National Association of Milk Dealers disclosed. The survey reported that 206 reported their trucks would stop their deliveries within a year unless conservation projects were set up.

Office of Price Administration inspectors are checking up on merchants in Louisville, Charleston, Columbus, Ohio, and Indianapolis, this week to see whether they are posting their ceiling price.

as "cost-of-living commodities" correctly or at all. Many merchants are slow in finding out about the provisions of the General Maximum Price Regulation.

Government rent control is being gradually extended. During the next few months, twenty-five additional defense rental areas were designated, bringing the total of designated areas to 366 with a population of eighty-nine million people.

A few days ago War Manpower Commission Chairman Paul V. McNutt released figures of the United States Employment Service showing that a growing army of physically handicapped men and women is taking a place in production.

OPA is keeping a firm hand on price tags at a rate that appeals to the LIMA, Ohio, Packing Company protesting the ceiling on dressed hogs and wholesale pork cuts. The company has asked the War Production Drive to higher price-ceiling filled by a Nevada company was also denied.

While merchants work to comply with the price ceiling and the landowners in rent controlled communities this week are trying to get a better deal, the fact that OPA is not going to let them inflate rents.

In the major departments of our emergency war effort, progress is reported. OPA will begin this week a national survey to see whether retail merchants are complying with the General Maximum Price Regulation by posting properly the selling and ceiling prices of the cost-of-living commodities.

The Cleveland Regional Office which handles work on West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana, is now checking in Detroit. The OPA investigators will be in Virginia, and Louisiana, West Virginia, and Kentucky, in a few days. The checkups are officially described as educational, but records of results will be kept.

Unemployment Tax To Be Discontinued Effective July 1

Employees Have Built Up Reserve Fund For Benefits
Many of the more important changes in the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Act at the last session of the legislature will become effective July 1. One of the changes will enable the Kentucky Unemployment Compensation Commission to announce that as a result of one of these amendments employees will not be required to contribute to the Unemployment Insurance Fund on wages earned during the 30 days the Commission director declared. At present employees contributed one percent of their taxable wages. "Another change will enable the Commission to return to its former procedure of paying benefits upon the Commission to issue the claimant's first benefit check shortly after his second week of unemployment. At present, because of the two-week waiting period requirement and the provision that checks issued bi-weekly, the Commission must wait until the claimant's first check until after his fourth week of unemployment. "Other changes raise the minimum weekly benefit to $4.50 to $5.00 and the maximum weekly benefit from $15.00 to $16.00. Benefits for total unemployment will, as at present, be paid for 30 weeks. This period, however, for claimant's whose rate is reduced by other remuneration for earnings or other remuneration may extend beyond sixteen weeks. In no case, however, will the claimant receive a greater benefit than the claimant who is totally unemployed. "These are the principal changes becoming effective July 1. Every state has a new I. Q.—an "independent quota"—for sale of war bonds. Are you investing ten percent of your income in future security for your family's independence? Haphazard spending on food and clothing as a means to the men in khaki and blue. Your dollars, invested in War Bonds, will make tanks and float ships.

Unnecessary spending in war times is sabotage--whether conscious or not. Your dollars are needed for war production. Help your state meet its War Bond quota.

Your home is a "front line" on the war front and the production front. Every dollar you save on your household budget, invested in War Bonds, is a Victory dollar added to your county's quota.

out any new carving sets, pen and pocket knives and manufacturing scissors. WPB decided, therefore, weren't necessary in wartime, ordered their production stopped after June 30. WPB also cut and sharply, manufacture of tableware and other cutlery. Here's what the saving means in terms of metals and materials badly needed in the fight for freedom—6,000 tons of iron and steel, 2,000 tons of stainless steel, 600 tons of copper alloy, and smaller amounts of nickel, chrome, rubber and plastics. The U.S.A. has put more materials into the United States' pool than any other of the democracies, because we have had more to give. We've sent and are sending vast quantities of weapons and supplies to our Allies in the form of lend-lease shipments. Now, however, the adventure in cooperation is working both ways—we're getting help from these Allies as well as giving it. Lend-Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettin, Jr., the other day disclosed that the British are feeding our troops in Northern Ireland, furnishing them with supplies and building their army. And that Great Britain also has turned over much military equipment to us, including a complete gun factory. Russia has sent us valuable data ment and the semi-centennial of the statehood of Kentucky.

Free Enterprise Is Necessary In Peace As Well As In War

While we fight a war, we must also plan for the peace that is to come. When the last shot is fired, this nation will face problems as vast, as difficult and as vital, to the survival as those posed by the war itself. On the credit side, we will have a productive machine greater than that of all the rest of the world combined—a machine which will be unparalleled in efficiency as well as in size. On the debit side, we will have a national debt of over $100,000,000,000. The rest alone on that debt will amount to some $6,000,000,000 a year. That debt cannot be serviced, and gradually reduced, only if our national income holds to levels unknown before the war began. And such income can be secured only from private enterprise—from the earnings of industry and the individual—not from government spending.

When the war ends we will have, on the one hand, a colossal bureaucracy built up during the war. We will have, on the other, the incredible resources and installed capacity developed by private enterprise. And the greatest test will come. If democracy and freedom are to survive the peace, if the American standard of living is to again rise to its greater heights, that system we call private enterprise will have to control all the restraints and make the philosophy of industry unavoidable.

Yes, Kentucky is badly in need of timber, clear water, fish, game and jobs. These can be provided for in a large scale if we, the people, would all join hands with the Forest Service in cooperation and help stop forest fires and make the forest program grow to a great help to our country. We are badly in need of protection against forest fires. Of all the enemies of the forest, fire is the greatest. Fire protection plays a large part in the forestry program and each year thousands of dollars are spent in fighting fires. This money could well be used in the building of roads and other improvements of lasting value.

Remember Pearl Harbor!

Destitute, Post-War World Will Need American Products

Office Of Civilian Defense Conducts Experiments

Extensive experiments on methods of dealing with incendiary bombs and the resultant fires are being conducted by the Office of Civilian Defense, Director James M. Landis today informed Dan T. Moore, director of the Fifth Region of the Office of Civilian Defense. The results, which may bring some drastic changes in technique, will be made available as soon as certain scientific questions have been resolved, Landis said.

"Publication of reports in this country on new British methods of fighting incendiaries has caused us to receive numerous inquiries in the matter," according to Land-

is. "For some weeks we have been making careful experiments and checking against the British experience."

Price Administrator Henderson said there will be more rationing of essential articles, but the rationing system, he said, there will be additional shortages in power, fuel reserves and transportation. WPB Automobile Division Chief Kanzler reported that he will help relieve potential rubber and automotive replacement parts shortages. Board Chairman Nelson said administrative difficulties will make it impossible to institute such gasoline rationing before July 1. The OPA reported the June ration quota for new passenger automobiles will be 40,000 plus carryover of unused quotas from March, April or May.

Free Enterprise Is Necessary In Peace As Well As In War

Destitute, Post-War World Will Need American Products

While we fight a war, we must also plan for the peace that is to come. When the last shot is fired, this nation will face problems as vast, as difficult and as vital, to the survival as those posed by the war itself.

On the credit side, we will have a productive machine greater than that of all the rest of the world combined—a machine which will be unparalleled in efficiency as well as in size. On the debit side, we will have a national debt of over $20,000,000,000. If we rest alone on that debt will amount to some $6,000,000,000 a year. That debt cannot be serviced, and gradually reduced, only if our national income holds to levels unknown before the war began. And such income can be secured only from private enterprise—from the earnings of industry and the individual—not from government spending.

When the war ends we will have, on the one hand, a colossal bureaucracy built up during the war. We will have, on the other, the incredible resources and installed capacity developed by private enterprise. And that is the great test will come. If democracy and freedom are to survive the peace, if the American standard of living is to again rise to its greater heights, that system we call private enterprise will have to control the war emergency made unavoidable.

We cannot progress in the future if the philosophy of scarcity, which we cannot progress and meet our obligations if super-government is perpetuated and competes with private enterprise in the economic endeavor. We can progress, if and only if, the enormous energies of the American people and American industry are completely released and encouraged to produce—then they can pay the needed taxes to keep the country solvent.

In a famous address, Vice-president Wallace said that the post-war era must be the era of the common man. And that can have only one meaning: "It must be the era in which all men are not only permitted but encouraged to use their brains and their abilities and energies can take them, undeterred by the dead hand of bureaucracy." It must be the era of true freedom for all people everywhere.

This country is the leader in producing for war. It must also be the leader in producing for peace. All over the world, hungry and destitute people, living in ruined lands, will want and need what our American factories can provide. The salvation of the world will lie in more trade, more production—and more free enterprise.

The problem of the debt is not simply a problem in economics. It is a problem in philosophy as well. If it is faced in the typical American manner, and all private capital is encouraged to go to work and create maximum production, it can be solved. If it is faced in the manner of the totalitarian states, and more and more power is seized by governments, accompanied by more and more public debt, leaving the people with less and less freedom of action, it can never be solved. Then we would have truly lost the war, entirely aside from the military decision reached.

After this war, free enterprise in America will be in a position to make an unprecedented contribution to the well-being of our own people and the peoples of all other lands. It will be in a position to raise the general standard of living to unprecedented heights. If we have faith in this country, if we understand this country and all it stands for and all it is now fighting for, that will be done.

Need Of Forestry And Fire Prevention

By RAY O. FRALEY, Fire Guard Stationed at Morehead Lookout

Forestry is the art of producing in perpetuity the maximum yield of timber and other forest products from non-agricultural soils such as constitute the greater part of Rowan county's land. While timber, fence posts, telephone poles, shingle timber, railroad ties, etc., are the forest products which come first to mind; the forests of our country supply other needs of equal importance. The tree-covered area of this nation will face problems as vast, as difficult and as vital, to the survival as those posed by the war itself.

When the war ends we will have, on the one hand, a colossal bureaucracy built up during the war. We will have, on the other, the incredible resources and installed capacity developed by private enterprise. And that is the great test will come. Office Of Civilian Defense Conducts Experiments

Extensive experiments on methods of dealing with incendiary bombs and the resultant fires are being conducted by the Office of Civilian Defense, Director James M. Landis today informed Dan T. Moore, director of the Fifth Region of the Office of Civilian Defense. The results, which may bring some drastic changes in technique, will be made available as soon as certain scientific questions have been resolved, Landis said.

"Publication of reports in this country on new British methods of fighting incendiaries has caused us to receive numerous inquiries in the matter," according to Land-
