

TROUBLE IN ROWAN.

The Powers House At Morehead Attacked By a Mob, and the Proprietor Driven Away.

WINCHESTER, April 30.—[Special.]—H. C. Powers, proprietor of the Powers House, of Morehead, was in the city last night, and reported that his house was attacked by a mob during the previous night, all the windows demolished, and other damage done. To-day he sent back for his family and furniture, being convinced that he would be killed if he remained longer in Rowan county. Previous to his departure he rented the hotel to Craig Tolliver for $250 per year. Mr. Powers had built up a thriving business in the town, and had tried to keep out of the factional fights. A short time since he had a difficulty with Jay Toliver, and since that time his house has been attacked twice. He says the people denounce in unmeasured terms the compromise made by which the prosecution of Tolliver and his gang was dropped.
