FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Seniors:

Congratulations on your fine record. Your splendid achievements indicate that you will succeed in the field of your choice.

You are graduating in one of the most changing, and yet one of the most challenging periods in the history of our country. You could have followed no better course in these times than to finish college to prepare yourselves to meet the problems that are to come.

The college graduate has furnished the leadership in the armed services to fight this great war. And just as surely, he will be called upon to meet and to solve the great problems that must come with the peace we have at last achieved.

The four years spent in college are, in many ways, the most fruitful in a person's life. New vistas are seen; new horizons are passed; and new trails are blazed. We at Morehead invite you to continue your education at Morehead State Teachers College.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. VAUGHAN, President.

a workshop for piano teachers at Eastman School of Music.

Miss Lulu Ripley of Washington, D. C., is visiting her family and friends in Morehead. She is a former student.

V-J Program

continues from front page

Representing the church, Rev. James G. Wade, pastor of the Church of God, spoke on the part that the church will and must play in the war.

"Sunday School and Church are part of American life," he said, and stressed the fact that they must continue to remain that way.

At the close of the program, all the servicemen and veterans of this war were recognized, as well as all parents and wives of servicemen.

Another outstanding feature of the workshop was a complete display of pamphlets and literature on related topics, obtained from various sanitation, recreation and sporting agencies. One of this material should serve to aid those in attendance at the conference in their own communities.

Following is a list of those persons who enrolled in the war conference.

Maam County—Mr. Dan Rogers, superintendent; Mr. V. F. Frisby, Principal, Orangeburg School; Mr. J. V. Mullins, attendance officer; Miss Patsy Thomas, teacher; Miss Ann Lee, teacher.

Flaming County—Mr. Frank D. Scott, superintendent.

Greensburg County—Miss Ina Berkley, helping teacher; Miss Dora Shiver, teacher.

Rowan County—Mrs. Mabel Alford, attendance officer.

Carter County—Mr. Max Calhoun, principal, Grayson High School; Mr. Hubert Chaffin, sanitary inspector for Carter County; Mrs. J. W. North, teacher; Mrs. Jewell Horton, helping teacher; and Mrs. Grace Horton, attendance officer.

Members of the war conference were housed in the dormitories of the hotel where their meals were furnished by the college cafeteria.

Question: What is your reaction to the surrender of Japan and the end of the war?

Delmar Roberts—Don't know my reaction, but I think it's wonderful!

Edyth Ann Pratt—Gee, I think it's just wonderful!

Wilma Gamp—The most wonderful news I've ever heard of up with.

Opal Hall—Too good to be true. Ann Crupper—I just can't believe it.

Veris Annett—Can't believe it, either.

Mattie Williams—Keeps me sitting on the bench.

Geneva Barham—The most wonderful news I've ever heard.

Gayle Bickford—"Oh, Lord!"

Geneva Dameron—"My husband will be coming home."

Grace Rose—"I'm so happy I can't think."

Maude Pollitt—Leaves me speechless!

Martin Rogers—"Don't know what to think of it."

Brian Carr—"G-R-E-A-T!"

Ray Moore—"Blow 'em off with atomic bombs."

Betsy Wampler—"Unbelievable—but wonderful!"

Valera Turner—"I started yelling!"

Gladys Lewis—"Randy won't have to go overseas."

Betsy Tarver—"I was too happy to even think."

Wilma Spauld—There will be a lot of boys back on the campus in the next six months.

An N.B.C. broadcast from Manila today said Japanese representatives in the surrender conference will leave Tokyo Sunday.

BOOK REVIEW

SO WELL REMEMBERED

By James Hilton

For one who has read nothing of Mr. Hilton's later than "Good-Bye Mr. Chips," this novel offers a very good opportunity to catch up on his career. Since "Good-Bye Mr. Chips" he has become something of an institution for a large and faithful audience. What sort of work does he do, and wherein does it please? Probably a reading of three or four books would produce no better conclusion, but if this latest of his novels is any fair indication, it would seem that Mr. Hilton's forte is the atmosphere in which he immerses his stories, rather than the stories themselves. For what, in this instance, is the story? George Bowell, Counselor in the Little British town of Broadway, learns that his wife, Livia, has left him to marry young Lord Jeffrey Winslow. He is sad, but not embittered; he determines that if she is happy it is all for the best, and proceeds with his good works in Broadway main-clerance. The war breaks out, and Mayor Bowell is turning the hospitals—he achieves, with gentle deception, as the tale ends.

Even this necessarily bare outline of the plot will reveal its modest proportions. Mr. Hilton does not strain after any large objective, either dramatic or intellectual. Nothing that happens to George Bowell, not even the vanishing of his beloved wife, really affects the placidity of his unobtrusive and virtuous ways. J believe a graph of his emotional reactions could proceed through the book along a steady median line, with perhaps a little wiggle up, down, where Livia leaves him. And as for ideas, he, again, proudly undisturbed. He manages to talk a great deal throughout, with all sorts of people, on the war, life, religion, marriage, destiny, without saying anything bold or original.
