

Rowan County Property To Be Re-Assessed

The Kentucky Department of Revenue virtually stripped all power this week from Rowan County Property Valuation Administrator (Tax Commissioner) Mrs. Juanita Wilson, and ordered that an emergency assessment (be made) and all property assessed at full value.

Commissioner of Revenue James E. Luckett took the "drastic action" with service of the notice to Mrs. Wilson, and also officially recording the document in the office of the County Court Clerk.

The Revenue Department made a number of charges against Mrs. Wilson, a wheel chair patient, who started her fifth consecutive term in the office on January 1. She was re-elected last year without primary or general election opposition, as several persons failed to pass the test required by the State Department of Revenue before they can file for this office. The incumbent (Mrs. Wilson) was not required to take the written test.

Mrs. Wilson said today that she had employed legal counsel and would oppose the action in the courts. She indicated grounds of the suit may be based on the "constitutionality" of Luckett's action, and she was an "elective" official.

The order decreed that Virgil Phillips be in charge of the re-assessment. His residence is at nearby Olive Hill.

Immediately on serving the notice, the Revenue Department moved four agents into Morehead. Mrs. Wilson said she intended to go to her office in the courthouse every day, "but, they have taken over."

Courthouse observers were of the opinion that some property would be re-assessed four or five times higher than at present.

Luckett's executive order came after Mrs. Wilson had submitted her assessments for every day, "but, they have taken over."

Mrs. Wilson and the Revenue Department have not been seeing eye-to-eye on local tax assessments for a number of years. Phillips was assigned to her office about three months ago. Mrs. Wilson said it was understanding that Phillips was to "assist" her.

Luckett's order stated the Fiscal Court had expressed concern over Rowan assessments, and he had received letters from County Judge (Otis Caldwell) and County Attorney (James E. Clay) to take any action necessary to correct the assessment.

The complete order by the Department of Revenue and signed by Commissioner Luckett is as follows:

"WHEREAS, on July 2, 1969, the Department of Revenue informed the Rowan County Property Valuation Administrator (tax commissioner) that the assessment level of property in Rowan County was grossly inequitable and that the overall assessment level for 1969 was at a lower limit of acceptability. And further, that immediate plans to correct the inequity and to increase the overall assessment to the full value level must be implemented in order to avoid an unacceptable assessment for 1970, and

"WHEREAS, review of the 1969 tax roll for Rowan County reveals that substantial amounts of personal property, particularly motor vehicles, was not entered, and

"WHEREAS, investigation by the department indicates that the valuations of business inventories were copied on the tax record cards for 1970 from the 1969 valuations prior to the January 1 assessment date without consideration of actual values, and

"WHEREAS, investigation by the department indicates that there is a substantial number of duplications and omissions of assessments on the Rowan County tax roll, and

"WHEREAS, the 1969 records of the United States Post Office Department returned one thousand three hundred fifty-four (1,354) tax notices, approximately nineteen percent of the total tax notices mailed, as undeliverable due to insufficient addresses on the tax rolls, and

"WHEREAS, review of the 1970 preliminary recapitulation of the Rowan County assessment submitted to the Department of Revenue reveals that no action has been taken to correct the inequity in the assessment, and no action has been taken to correct individual assessments to full value, as required by the Constitution, and the Court of Appeals Order in the case of Rumsman v. Luckett, 391 SW 2d 694 (Ky. 1965), and

"WHEREAS, the Rowan County Fiscal Court has expressed concern over the fiscal ineffectiveness of the 1970 assessment and requested by letter of the County Judge and County Attorney that the Department of Revenue take any action necessary to correct the assessment.

"WHEREFORE, the Department of Revenue, having made an investigation as to the facts and their fiscal implications and thereby being advised, finds that the Rowan County assessment for 1970 is grossly inequitable and fiscally infeasible and that such gross inequity and fiscal infeasibility of said assessment creates the existence of an emergency within the meaning of Kentucky Revised Statute 132.660.

"THEREFORE, in accordance with the provisions of said statute, the Department of Revenue hereby declares the 1970 ad valorem property assessment made by Mrs. Juanita Wilson, Rowan County Property Valuation Administrator, to be void, and orders an emergency assessment whereby all of the property in Rowan County subject to ad valorem tax shall be re-assessed and the cost of such assessment shall be paid out of the compensation due the Rowan County Property Valuation Administrator.

Seven Road Projects To Be Let In County

One Will Be Street Running Behind The Hospital

Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss today announced plans for construction of an access road to the St. Clair Medical Center in Morehead.

Construction of the road will require grade drain and surfacing operations. The road will extend from new KY 32 northeast to the hospital parking lot.

Completion of the road is expected in November, Commissioner Goss said.

The road (or street) to pass to the rear of the hospital became a necessity with construction of the I-64 connector at Morehead. The homes of some property owners were virtually cut-off by the 2.6 mile four-lane connector, now under construction.

This was a "big week" for announcement of road contracts in Rowan County.

The following six roads are scheduled for a June 5 letting:

- Sherwood Forest Drive from 1.23 miles northwest of Second Street in Morehead extending northwesterly 0.140 mile.
- Bituminous Surface Class C-1 or I.
- The Trent Ridge Road from 1.5 miles southeast of KY 32 extending southeasterly

Election Tuesday!

Here's some news it is wagered you don't know about.

Rowan County (and the 7th Congressional district) will have a primary election next Tuesday (May 26).

It will be for the republican nomination for Congress between Herbert E. Myers of Louisiana; and H.H. Wheeler, Lexington.

Although Wheeler doesn't live in the district, the law permits him to run for Congress in any Kentucky district.

Wheeler did not withdraw as had been anticipated. He is formerly from Paintsville and Ashland, and once a major stockholder in the Union Grocery Company at Morehead.

Incumbent democrat Carl D. Perkins has no primary opposition, but will face either Myers or Wheeler in November.

The polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 6 p.m.

Less than 200 ballots will likely be cast in Rowan County. Democrats cannot vote, and there is no interest in the republican party.

However, the election will cost the county and state many thousands of dollars.

The sample ballot and list of election officers appears elsewhere in this issue of the Morehead News.

Goal Exceeded In Recreation Telethon

Combs Will Be Speaker For Awards Banquet

U.S. Circuit Judge and former Governor Bert T. Combs will be the principal speaker for the annual Morehead State University Alumni Awards Banquet on Saturday, May 30.

The dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the ballroom of the Adron Doran University Center. Tickets are $2.50 and reservations are being handled by the MSU Office of Alumni Affairs.

Awards to be presented include outstanding alumnus, distinguished graduate and public service. Also, the Alumni Association will recognize graduating seniors and recipients of alumni and athletic scholarships.

The banquet is open to the public.

Rowan Countians Respond With Pledges Of Over $11,000

The people of Rowan County went "all out" Thursday evening during an almost five hour telethon for a new recreation center. Goal of the telethon was $10,000. The pledges rose to $11,212.36, or $112.36 more than had been hoped for.

The telethon was a cooperative arrangement with radio stations WMOR and WKMY, the Morehead Cable Company, and MSU educational television participating. The public responded beyond expectations.

Don Holloway of WKMY and Ron Kwoasala, WMOR, were the Masters of Ceremony.

Lonnie Gregory represented the Morehead T.V. Cable Company, and the "live" program was beamed over channels 2 and 11.

Dr. Norman Taint, Director of Educational Television at MSU, made all the mechanical and technical arrangements and the program in the atrium 7 p.m. to 11:45 p.m. originated in the studios of ETV at the University.

Director for the telethon was Len Watson. One of the features was an official meeting of the City Council, presided over by Mayor William H. Layne. The City has agreed to take over the planned recreation complex at south Bridge Street. The center is expected to cost around $300,000, and the City is applying for a $50 federal matching grant.

Patti Ras Smith, who handled the accounting, said that some pledges are still coming in. (They will all be printed in the next issue of the Morehead News.)

Three hundred Rowan families had previously subscribed $100 each to a recreation fund of which Woodrow Barber is President.

High Court Rules On . . .

Return Of Seized Truck

The battle between Kentucky State Police and the traffic in alcoholic beverages in Rowan County took a new angle over the week in the Court of Appeals.

This time the State Police lost a decision. The ruling of the high court evolved around the return by Troop Commander John Robey, Morehead, to prevent Judge John J. Winn from enforcing an order directing return of a seized vehicle to its owner.

The appellate court, in an order written by Commissioner Watson Clay, held that Robey had "failed to present any sufficient reason why he has failed to comply with the court order" to return the vehicle to its rightful owner.

State Police seized the vehicle - a 1963 Chevrolet van truck - owned by Don Michael Evans. The vehicle was seized by search warrant.

The accused was tried on a charge of unlawful possession of beverages and a verdict directed for him in Rowan Quarterly Court. In a proceeding against Frank Johnson, charged with a similar crime, Judge Winn directed the Commonwealth through the State Police, to return the truck to Evans.

The vehicle was placed by State Police in a garage and the garage was cleaned towing and storage charges of $450. Evans declined to accept the keys because he was unwilling to pay the $450 to the garageman.

Instead a contempt rule was obtained against Robey by Evans. Judge Winn directed the commander to return the truck to Evans clear of any charges, and upon failure to do so and purge himself of contempt was ordered to jail.

The commander appealed to the court for a writ of prohibition against Judge Winn.

"It would appear the garageman does not have such a lien since charges were incurred without authorization of the owner," Commissioner Clay observed.

"However that may be, the garageman is the agent of the Commonwealth or State

Police and whatever arrangement was made cannot impose liability on the owner nor impair his right to possession under the court order.

"The Commonwealth, acting through the police, took possession of this vehicle and the Commonwealth through the State Police is obligated to return it. The court's order must be enforceable against someone and petitioner (Robey) who admits possession of the keys, is the proper person to act on behalf of the Commonwealth.

"The difficulties of compliance, which were not created by the owner, are irrelevant."

The truck must be returned.

The truck was seized Jan. 30, 1969.

Two Lose Their Driver's License Under State Law

The driver's licenses of two in this area have been suspended or revoked, the Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee at Frankfort reported this week. They are:

- Oscar Allen Warner, 36, Bethel, driving under the influence of alcohol, revoked until Oct. 28.
- Dockie Murphy Halsey, 54, Mize, driving under the influence of alcohol, revoked to Oct. 28.

District Baseball Title Captured By Breck

The Morehead District baseball tournament was won Friday by the Eaglets of University Breckinridge School as they defeated their cross town rival Rowan County by a 9-7 score. Jim Tom Holbrook won the route for the winners and was credited with the win with Dane Greer absorbing the loss for Rowan County. Freshman Bobby Wells supplied the big bat for Breck with two triples and a walk in four times at bat. Rowan County was the tournament favorites with a season record of 17-2 having already beaten the Eaglets three times by scores of 4-3, 11-6, and 10-6.

Breckinridge advanced to the final by downing Grayson Prichard 5-1 as southpaw freshman Bobby Wells pitched a three hitter against the hard-hitting Yellow Jackets.

Hitchens paced but very little threat in the semi-finals as Terry Fugate shut them out until the last inning and then held on for a 13-2 victory. John Duff led the batters with a perfect day at the plate picking up four.

Publisher's Pen...

Day-by-day jot-tem-downs, and editorial observations, of the publisher of this newspaper.

During the next several months the Morehead News will probably print thousands of words of the item on the page one lead story in this issue - the stripping of all power or authority from Rowan County Tax Evaluator (Commissioner) Juanita Wilson by the Kentucky Department of Revenue.

Commissioner James E. Luckett made "strong" charges against Mrs. Wilson's conduct of the office. Revenue agents have already taken over the office, although Mrs. Wilson says she will go to her job in the courthouse each day.

The probabilities to come are:
1. All property in the county will be reassessed at what the Department of Revenue judges its fair cash value as of today, and not as given in by the owner, or what is now on the tax books. Example of how the fair cash value may be fixed: A home, or farm, sold for $30,000. Under the statutes the purchase price must be contained in the deed; or a notarized revenue form showing the $30,000 price registered. The home, or farm, may have previously been listed for state, county and school taxes for $5,000. So, the taxes the purchaser pays immediately is six times higher. The Department of Revenue contends that sales such as this, particularly if there are several in the area over the past few years, constitute the present market value for that neighborhood. Boiled down, your own taxes can be established on the basis of even much higher when this emergency re-assessment is finished. Don't ever doubt that the person paying on the $30,000 assessment, in the case cited above, will object if comparable real estate isn't placed on the books at the same rate.

2. A person owns a plot and sells one-fourth of it for $30,000, retaining the other three-fourths, all being of about the same value. It is entirely possible, even probable, that this emergency re-assessment could raise the assessment on the retained three-fourths to $90,000 when it may presently be only $10,000, or $5,000.

3. Several sub-divisions have sprung up near the Morehead city limits. In all cases the lots sell high. The purchaser is advised at what he paid for the lot, say $5,000. But, the sub-division owners retain a large portion of the development, and their taxes are perhaps less than $500 an acre. This emergency re-assessment could raise their assessment many fold.

4. The federal and/or state governments have been acquiring land (often by condemnation) for use as a highway. I-64 connector at Morehead etc. The owners of course, seek the highest remuneration. The State can contend that the price paid for these properties, either by condemnation (jury verdict) or by negotiated purchase, constitute the basis for a fair cash value of the area or neighborhood. In other words, all property not taken, now has a fixed cash market value, somewhat by the way, and there's no question but that in most cases the properties purchased by the state or for Cave Run etc. and condemned, were at the time listed on the tax records, at only a fraction of price of purchase, or condemnation.

The Department of Revenue has already moved several agents, trained in such emergency re-assessments, into Morehead. . . and you'll be hearing and reading plenty about this, the "most drastic" order that can be issued by Commissioner Luckett.

We could write on and on, but columns upon columns will be forthcoming, i.e. inventories of businesses, particularly in Morehead, being assessed at 10 to 20 percent of their actual value, etc.

Then, there is the "constitutional" question of an appointive state agency superseding, and taking over the offices of duly elected officials, in this case Mrs. Wilson. Also, we have presented practically followed by Mrs. Wilson about the same as in other Kentucky counties, particularly in this area?

This will be the "big and controversial" news in Rowan County for weeks to come, and much may end up in the courts.

"The tax rate is fixed by Fiscal Court . . . and if the emergency re-assessment is double, or more, the total 1970 assessment as submitted by Mrs. Wilson, the court could lower the tax rate.

Having written about taxes for 40 years this Publisher has "educated" guests you'll be paying more (sometimes much more) local taxes next year, most of which will revert to the school system.

Recently we wrote that the two most important words today in the dictionary are "tax" and "sex" . . . and our problem was that we had too much of the first and too little of the latter.

And, as this is written there lies on the desk such information or notations that President Nixon will increase taxes next year . . . and a City of Morehead occupational tax of perhaps one percent may be forthcoming.

Someone has to pay for the schools, operation of government, and all these services and programs, and the only answer is more taxes in one form or another.

MOVING TO SOMETHING MORE PLEASANT THAN TAXES
Sports were in the "favorable" news of the Morehead area during the week. Some of the highlights:

A good turnout of fans were obviously pleased at the Blue-Gold football game Tuesday at Morehead State University. Coach Jake Hallum is assembling the horses and the Eagles (as we predicted a year ago) are nearing the OVC championship and national recognition. The Blue Defenders are the Gold 74 in the annual intra-squad game as Lou Mains, a red-shirt quarterback (freshman) from Ironton tossed the winning pass. Don't be surprised if all home games aren't sold-out next season - watch the Morehead News for the advance ticket sale, and it is suggested you purchase early as the SRO (standing room only) sign may go up.

Steve Hamilton, of Morehead, has a record of 3-0 with the New York Yankees. The southpaw, also the Yankees players representative and one of the best liked by other players in the American League, is, having a great year.

About this time last year the regional high school baseball play-offs were held at Morehead. Six major leaguers were on hand. Cincinnati wanted a left-handed pitcher, Don Gullett, of McKell in Greenup County. The Reds' scout told this Publisher that Gullett had a fast ball almost as good as Jim Maloney. Well, the Reds got Gullett, and he has won two and lost none. Don, who is 19 years old, also drove in the winning run in Sunday's double-header with Atlanta. That came in the 15th inning. Gullett entered the game in relief in the 14th and was the winning pitcher. From high school to a highly rated major leaguer in less than a year is something that rarely happens.

Billy Pierce and John Duncan Jr., both of Morehead, drove to Cincinnati for Sunday's twin bill. They were able to buy standing room only tickets, as the biggest crowd since 1947 (22 years ago) turned out. They stood, along with the packed crowd, through the first game . . . obtained seats when somebody left in the 6th inning of the second game. . . . Atlanta scored three runs to lead 3 in the top of the 10th . . . Pierce and Duncan left thinking that Atlanta was a certain winner . . . Cincinnati came back with three runs in the bottom of the 10th . . . then in the 15th won the game above mentioned. "Everything we did was wrong," commented Pierce and Duncan.

Last year this Publisher waggled on Arts and Letters with the Kentucky Department of Public Works, but Arts and Letters went on to capture the Prekness etc. and horse of the year honors. This year we put our money on the horse named Personality. He tried to jump a couple mud puddles, but didn't win. Personality won the Prekness Saturday, soundly beating the Derby winner, Dust Commander. Naturally, we didn't have a horse on the horse. The Prekness, it just seems lately that this short-haired Publisher picks the right horse at the wrong time.

CONGRATULATIONS . . . Morehead and Rowan County displayed fine, all-out community spirit in Thursday's telephone for a community recreation center. Over $11,200 was subscribed during the almost five hour radio and cable TV program, exceeding the $10,000 goal. Many, many people worked hard, and successfully, on this; the page one story mentions only a few, and it is impossible to get a listing of all. We are real proud of them, and of the citizens in our city and county. It is spirit and effort like this that really is the backbone of a progressive community.

NEXT TUESDAY - Few know about it but Rowan County will have a primary election next Tuesday. It is for the republican candidates in the Congressional District of Myers of Louisa, and H.H. Wheeler, Lexington. Best guess is that fewer than 200 votes will be cast. However, the election will affect the county, and state, thousands of dollars. Whoever lives outside the district, but under law, is eligible. The democratic incumbent Carl D. Perkins is without primary opposition.

CONCLUDING - One of the "finest hours" in the life of Morehead State University. President Dr. Adron Doran has presided. Dr. Doran displayed remarkable tact and leadership in preventing campus riots, demonstrations etc. like at the University of Kentucky. The Congressmen, "incidents" at MSU than perhaps you realize, would not publicize them would only foment a situation skillfully handled and resolved . . . The seven road projects, including the street behind St. Claire Medical Center, is among the important news this week. All have been advertised for a June 5 letting . . . We fear the United States is beginning to become the land of the too-fare and the home of the rave.

Some say that President Nixon doesn't understand today's young people. If so, he's on a par with the overwhelming majority of our people, including a sizeable percentage of young people . . . What was seen at the faces of automobile manufacturers following the plane crash death of Walter Reuther - tears or gloating? . . . Concerning fast time-why get up in the morning, and spend the morning yawning? . . . In view (fill view) of the way the modern girl dresses it can scarcely be said she is guilty of deception in packaging.

HALDEMAN RESIDENT ENROLLS IN HIGH TECHNICAL FIELD

Daniel L. Hinton, who resides at Haldeaman, has enrolled in an electronics technology program at Ohio Technical College. One of the Bell & Howell Schools, Ohio Technical College is located in Columbus, Ohio.

Hinton attended Rowan County high school.

THE YOUNGER PEOPLE AT WORK

The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that 2.7 million young people will have entered the labor force between April and July of this year. About 2.7 million of these people will be students looking for summer jobs and one million will be high school and college graduates looking for permanent employment.

GIRL SCOUT DRIVE . . . These are some of the girls scouts who are promoting Rowan County Girl Scout Day Camp. Registration has been set for Monday, May 25 from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. in front of the Morehead Grade School. The fee of $3.50 is used for camp equipment, operating expenses, craft and first aid supplies, insurance and daily milk for each girl. Camp will be open from June 22 through June 27. Hours: Monday - Friday - 3:00 p.m., to 8:00 p.m.; Saturday - 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Brooks Field, Bridge Street. Directors are Mrs. Lee Casper and Dr. Nan Ward.

For Tuesday's Primary . . .

Election Officers

The cost of conducting Tuesday's primary election will be about the same the county and state as when there are many candidates.

Only a hand full of votes are expected to be cast as Herbert E. Myers, Louisa, opposes H.H. Wheeler, Lexington, for the GOP nomination for Congress.

County Court Clerk Ottis W. Elam said absentee ballots had to be printed although none were cast; the voting machines installed in the precincts although the lever will be pulled little; precinct officers notified; the election Commission meet and certify the returns; and the ballot advertised.

All of this adds into the thousands of dollars in costs.

Democrats cannot vote Tuesday as incumbent Congressman Carl D. Perkins has no opponent.

Officers to serve in Rowan County's precincts Tuesday are: Courthouse No. 1 - O.F. Patrick, Francis Laughlin, Hildreth Maggard and Elizabeth Martindale.

Lower Farmers No. 2 - F. E. Conley, Delmar Padgett, Arnold Perry and Buri Moore.

Upper Farmers No. 3 - Myrtle Alfrey, Virgil Thompson, Neal Armstrong and Kenneth Robinson.

Hogtown No. 4 - Ben Butcher, Mary Kidd, Frank Cornette and Russell Jones.

Rodburn No. 5 - Mrs. Sam Lewis, Leonard Pettit, Ruth Peltrey and Elijah Caudill.

Brusly No. 6 - Mrs. Ray Black, Wilbur Moore, Bernard Lee McDaniel, Nora Hardin, Mae Graham and Delmore Cooper.

West Morehead No. 7 - Gertrude Trent, Carl Switzer, Patty McIntosh and Glenna Jones.

Easton No. 8 - Della White, Tina Catron, Lillian Eldridge and Vernon May.

Clearfield No. 9 - Ossie Baldrige, Gertrude Hall, Clinton Wallace and Ethel Cooper, Tildon Hogge.

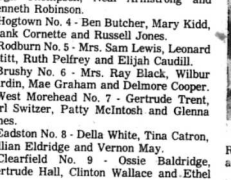

Above are girls who participated in the Rowan County 4-H Style Revue on Saturday at 4-H Rally Day.

Those selected to represent Rowan County in the Area event in June are:

Apron Division - Cheryl Tucker, Tildon Hogge; and Tana Donahue, Morehead Hogge.

Skirt Division - Vanessa Brown, Tildon Hogge; and Sharon Clark, Haldeaman.

Death Comes To Bob Moore, Former Manager, Of KU

One of Morehead's best known citizens, Robert A. (Bob) Moore, 61, former manager for Kentucky Utilities, and a participant in many progressive civic and community affairs, died Sunday at his RFD 4 residence.

The end was not unexpected as Mr. Moore had long been ill from a malignancy. He was "in and out" of the hospital several times.

Mr. Moore moved to Morehead nine years ago to be manager for KU.

He was a member of the Morehead Masonic Lodge; Kiwanis; and Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Moore held several offices in the Chamber of Commerce.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Stucky Funeral Home, after which the remains were taken to Sunset Memorial Park in Flemingsburg for burial.

Reverends Hubert Johnston, Scott Griffith and C. O. Leach conducted the final services.

Mr. Moore was born in Bracken County May 11, 1909, son of the late William and Mary Frances (Lucas) Moore.

His first wife the former Myrtle Booth, died in 1955. He married Corretta Hall on Feb. 24, 1959. She survives her husband.

Mr. Moore also leaves two sons - Billy Moore, Flemingsburg, and Bobby Moore, Lexington; two brothers - Albert Moore and James Moore, both of Augusta; four sisters - Mrs. Ella Thackston, Higginsport, O.; Mrs. Maude Thackston, Augusta, Mrs. Amy Teagarden, Cincinnati; and Mrs. Anna Woodard, Brooksville, Ky.

Other immediate survivors include a step-daughter, Mrs. Joan Bumgardner, Flemingsburg; and seven grandchildren. Stucky Funeral Home cared for arrangements.

University Lodge Open House

The public is invited to an open house at the newly renamed University Lodge on Sunday afternoon, May 24, from 2:00 to 6:00.

Marvin Franklin, general manager, said today that everyone is invited to the open house "to help celebrate the name change from the Bruce Motel to the University Lodge."

Refreshments will be served and guests will have the opportunity to tour the many improvements which have been made during the past four years.

"We have had a wonderful four years in Morehead," said Franklin, "and we wish to say thanks by inviting our many friends to stop by and give us the opportunity to say thanks for the wide acceptance which we have received."

Franklin came to Morehead in 1966 when Mid-City Motels, Inc. purchased the Bruce Motel and since then the motel has been increased from its original 28 units to 40 units and extensive remodeling and refurbishing of the original 28 units has been conducted.

The name change was brought about by the feeling that "We think such a fine facility as we have deserves a name more descriptive of its quality," said Franklin.

"We sincerely feel that the University and its dynamic president Adron Doran have contributed so greatly to this community and region," said Franklin, "that we wished to more clearly identify with this great institution."

Franklin added that "the friendly atmosphere of the community has been something my family and I have greatly enjoyed and we see almost unlimited possibilities for the future here."

THE GRADUATE—HAPPILY EVER AFTER

Today both individuals and institutions are in the throes of change. The graduate is no exception. Graduates once symbolized the end of one phase of schooling, sometimes followed by another, or the start of a career. Today it carries new meanings.

Whichever direction it takes, one thing is becoming increasingly clear—today, more than ever, people graduate many times in a lifetime.

For this reason, appropriate graduation gifts are changing too. More and more, smart gift-givers are seeking something that, like the graduate, can move easily from one activity to another. Typewriters have always been a popular choice but they also are different today. Where they were once confined to dorm rooms and typing pools, Hermes 3000 portable typewriters are now filling out government reports in Uganda on recent Peace Corps efforts, typing up new leaflets advocating conservation from a tiny room in a fifth floor walk-up and addressing envelopes to qualified voters from a makeshift office in the busy corner of a home.

Wherever it might be, the Hermes 3000 is one gift that indeed grows with the graduate. Built to last from the earliest graduation and recognized as the most complete portable on the market today (it's called "the office in a case"), the Hermes is available with a number of options. Specialized keyboards with symbols for the scientific professions are invaluable for medical and pharmaceutical students. Likewise, the 27 foreign language versions fill an important need.

Interested housewives are among a new group of graduates pursuing unusual careers.

Who is graduating in 1970? Many kinds of people. Beginning with elementary school, there are graduations to junior high school, to high school, to college, to ??? The college graduate of the Seventies is far more likely to move on to graduate school than his counterpart of the last 10 or 15 years. Or, instead of graduate school or an immediate career, he may take leave from the established route for a few years in Peace Corps work or some other branch of volunteer social service. Prior to pursuing his life career, he may channel his energies into one of the many popular courses among young people today.

There are other kinds of graduations happening too. The housewife and mother who used to stay at home now applies her years of education to a part time

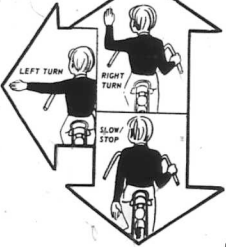

Monkey sees, monkey takes

BONN, Germany (UPI) — A man strolling near the monkey cage at the Zoo here saw a sign covered with print too small for him to read at a distance.

Leaning closer, he was about to focus his eyes on the lettering when a monkey reached through the bars, snatched the fellow's reading glasses from his head, and ran away chattering. A friend read the sign to the victim of the theft. According to the Hamburger Abendblatt, it said: "Do not lean over the barrier. The monkeys may steal objects, particularly spectacles."

May Is American Bike Month!

BICYCLISTS USE YOUR HAND SIGNALS

BICYCLE DRIVER SAFETY is the goal of American Bike Month this year. With more cars on the road than ever before, and with more than 63 million Americans riding bikes each year, a safe bike and a safe bike driver are more important than ever. According to the National Safety Council, most serious accidents occur to cyclists at intersections. Bike drivers should use recognized hand signals to signal turning or stopping, and use particular caution at intersections. To keep bikes safe, most bicycle retailers will be offering free bike inspections during American Bike Month in May.

More than 63 million Americans ride bikes every year, for fun, fitness, transportation, and outdoor recreation. Driving his bike safely is the responsibility of each cyclist. Here's a special American Bike Month Quiz to help test your Bike Safety IQ.

1. A bicycle is considered a vehicle and should be ridden on the right hand side of the street. T F
2. Bicycle riders should observe and obey all traffic signs, stop signs and signals and other traffic control devices. T F
3. Bike riders should try to crowd ahead between cars at a stop sign so they can be in front when the light changes. T F
4. Pedestrians do not have the right of way on side walks or crosswalks. T F
5. The signal for a right turn is extending the right arm straight out. T F
6. Night riding without a white headlight and red tail light or reflector is unsafe. T F
7. Bicycle riders hitching a ride on another vehicle can easily have an accident. T F
8. It is safe and proper for a bike rider to carry a passenger. T F
9. A bike in poor mechanical condition is safe if the rider is skilled. T F
10. It is safe to ride bikes three abreast when riding in a group. T F
11. The roadway is a safe place to park your bike. T F
12. Bikes should be inspected twice a year by a reliable service man. T F
13. The headlights of a bicycle should be seen from at least 500 ft. T F
14. Riding single file is the sensible thing to do. T F
15. The proper way to make a left turn is to cut the corner. T F
16. It is safe to enter the street from the sidewalk without first seeing whether a car is coming. T F
17. When passing a slow moving car going in the same direction, you should pass to the left. T F
18. Bicyclists should keep to the right while riding in the street. T F

ROYAL PAIR—Waiting in victory lane at the Indianapolis 500 Mile Race on Memorial Day will be 50 Festival Queens Ann Marie Bollei and the Borg-Warner Trophy, which she will present to the winning driver. Miss Bollei, a 20-year-old blonde, is a Junior at Indiana University, majoring in elementary education. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Bollei of Loansport, Ind. Ann is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 118 pounds.

Those wedding bells don't fascinate Ann

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ann B. Davis is only slightly less wacky than the character of Alice she plays weekly in "The Brady Bunch."

A survivor of three previous series, one a five-year stint with "The Robert Cummings Show," Ann is single and has no intention of changing her status. "When I come home from work," says she, "I can defrost a TV dinner without some man around the house nagging me not fixing him a four-course banquet."

The self-sufficient Miss Davis lives in a three-bedroom home in the Hollywood hills overlooking the San Fernando Valley. She has decorated the place with what she calls "Early Accumulative."

Actually, the living room and study are a mixture of soft greens, browns and bright orange. The furniture is overstuffed and comfortable. There are touches of Oriental art throughout the house, collected during her three tours of U.S. armed forces bases in Korea and Vietnam.

Most unusual among her treasures are some splendid examples of Eskimo soapstone sculpture.

Ann owns almost an acre of ground, including a swimming pool and garden. She backs around the latter all winter long, pulling weeds and planting flowers, leaving the lawn mowing to a gardener.

Sharing her quarters are two dogs, a small black poodle named Nit Noy (which, she explains, means "little" in Thai) and a watchdog mutt she bought from the animal shelter and named Opal.

Self-sufficient and self-sufficient as she appears in her roles. She works in the ABC series from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., warming a cup of coffee at home before she leaves for Paramount studios where "The Brady Bunch" is filmed.

The drive takes her 20 minutes by freeway. But then, will soon be over. Ann has ordered a German grand prix race car which should whisk her to the studio in 10 minutes.

Ann, who is still known as "Schultz" from her role with Cummings, is not a clothes horse. Away from the studio she is most often seen in blue jeans and sweatshirt.

When called upon for personal appearances, however, she can be as feminine as the next girl in pants suits.

Because her routine demands much of her time, Ann rarely entertains at home and is infrequently seen in restaurants, discotheques or other celebrity hangouts.

She is so devoted to her profession that during vacations and in the evenings she works with the Los Angeles Repertory company rehearsing and springing in plays.

"I have to have my foot on stage somewhere or I'm not happy," Ann explains.

It's been that way with Ann since she began her professional career at the Erie Playhouse in Erie, Pa., where she played dozens of different roles. She joined a road company that eventually led to Hollywood.

Her favorite relaxation is to light a log fire in her large brick fireplace on cool evenings and listen to soft music.

WHO'S A NUTRITION EXPERT?

It's a nutty world we live in. And one shouldn't, I suppose, be too serious all the time. Technologically, we probably ever communicate. So there's twice as much to despair about, or to enjoy.

As the risk of adding to the overcommunication problem, let's never the less be serious for a moment about this business of who is a nutrition "expert."

Heaven knows you cannot open a magazine, or hardly turn around, without hearing of some new diet.

We used to say an expert was a man from at least fifty miles away. With jets nowadays that would have to be raised, I suppose, to at least 500 miles. But people are inclined to believe that anyone who writes a book and gets it published, or who broadcasts on radio or TV, must be an expert.

Trouble is, "it ain't necessarily so."

Fad Books

Some publishers of books, in particular, are rather notorious for bringing our texts by both qualified and unqualified writers. One of the quickest signs of a "quack" is the guy who is first to admit how good he is. The real expert does not have to blow his own horn.

Then, too, so many people are "set-ups." They're scared silly about "poison" in our food, that they are missing vitamins, or they are convinced there have to be secret answers for losing weight without regular diet, exercise, or will power.

In comes the quack, or "food faddist." He may be a professional, or he may just be a friend or neighbor. He has to be either a naive person who believes almost anything he hears, or a professional sharpie out to make the quick dollar from everyone in sight.

The promoter must be sure to lead the lambs to slaughter. For these, he advertises free lectures. These usually are mere preludes to other lectures for a fat fee. These, in turn, give him an opportunity to sell his own books, which plug his own special foods.

Bildersleepe Scientists

The professional faddist ridicules legitimate scientists, or most of them, retaining only enough of their statements of findings to seem to ally him with respectable nutritionists and research investigators. He will often oppose proven public health measures such as milk pasteurization. He will try to scare people about the safety and nutritional quality of foods available at regular food outlets. He will claim some exclusive knowledge not shared by others.

The true nutrition scientist employs none of these tactics. He can then, by comparison, seem dull. But you had better trust him. He has a healthy skepticism about any "expert," especially his claims that seem too good to be true.

The True Recreation Facts ...

THIS IS A TRUE STORY written by C. B. Cornett, in order that the record can be made straight to the public on the Recreation Center in Morehead.

I started working on this recreation project over three years ago. I, of course, am not the only person who has worked and fought for this Morehead-Rowan County Recreation facility. One such person is Congressman Carl D. Perkins. Congressman Perkins fought, and I mean he fought hard, for this recreational facility to become a reality.

I have been in touch with the Department of Interior. This department has funds available for recreation projects such as the one at Morehead and is sending these available funds into the state of Kentucky for use as seen fit by the officials at Frankfort. I have also contacted H.U.D. (Housing Urban Development).

We met constantly with recreation groups and officials up to the point of forming a corporation. (The Rowan County Rec. Corp., Inc.) Our group elected officers, as is required of all corporations. All clubs and churches were represented at the meeting when officers of the corporation were elected. Woodrow Barber was elected president.

Rules and regulations were accepted by the Morehead-Rowan County Recreation Association, Inc., and these rules and regulations were accepted by the F.H.A. Russell Barker and I purchased the property which was to be the site of the facility from E.B. Sluss at a price of $60,000. It was to be paid as follows - $5,000 down and $5,000 each year until the debt was retired. At 5 percent interest.

Numerous ways were thought of to build the park but the soundest being the F.H.A. Loan. The present program that is being used is the current plan explored by the present Recreation Board. After lengthy questioning by the board, (Incidentally this was the same fellow that was in the Court House about three weeks ago.) The Recreation Board voted and it is in the minutes of the meeting not to go along with a Government Grant when it was learned that the Government controlled the project and no building could be built on the project that did have more than three sides. Also it was learned that it would be a free park and any one could roam in and out of it as they saw fit.

I went to the bank and borrowed $5,000 at six percent interest to make the down payment on the property.

I have made the payments since then out of my personal earnings and have paid Mr. Sluss five percent interest on the unpaid balance owed to him. Of the last payment made, $1,000 was interest.

If it had been pushed when the project was conceived the Farmers Home Administration told us that funds were available if plans were complete by the first of the year 1969.

After the federal administration changed in 1969 almost all funds of this type were frozen therefore Farmers Home Administration had no money to loan and the President of The Morehead-Rowan County Recreation Association was so informed.

Assuming that funds would be released Russell Barker and I gave the recreation association an option on the land and they in turn signed an agreement to pay seven percent interest on the unpaid balance for one year.

Since then I have had a very hard and trying time due to some "Johnny-come-latelies". They are accusing me of making a great amount of money from this project. These charges have been made lately and have been made often. These charges were made Thursday, May 14, 1970 at a meeting of the Morehead City Council.

Mr. Barker and myself signed the deed over to the recreation group for the amount of $60,000 plus interest of seven percent as set forth in the option held by the group. This option was drawn at their request and drawn by their attorney, Paul Blair. It was signed by Morehead-Rowan Recreation officials. I have actually received in interest up to now about $651.00 and the last interest payment on the property January 2, 1970 was $1,000.

Since the property was signed over to the recreation officers May 14, 1970, I have received not one dime yet they have a signed deed to the property. "Unless I met with the group's Att. Paul Blair Tuesday, May 19, 1970 and told him, "Unless I receive my money by Thursday, May 21, 1970 I am going to pick up my deed and cancel the plans for the facility on proposed site."

These are the facts of the recreation program in the county. We intended to build the finest facility the country has ever seen and to pay for it with membership dues as set forth in the corporation bylaws. There has never been any plans for a private park as it is PROHIBITED by the corporation bylaws. Bylaws also stated that no officer can secede himself in office and that all officers would be elected yearly by paid members with each having one vote.

A group of citizens came in three weeks ago and took the program over. They have carried a deed in their pockets since then, May 14 - a deed to property for which I owe money - a deed I signed and turned over to them in good faith. To this date I have not been paid ONE RED CENT!

C. B. Cornett

P. S. I did sign a $30,000 note and I did buy a $100 membership. I cannot total the expense of telephone calls, trips and time I have spent working on this thing. It seems that everyone wants the facility now, but as our good mayor stated during last week's telethon I was the only person to appear before the city council to ask for help to save this much-needed project. I also want to humbly thank the Mayor for mentioning my name on this program. I hope it all works out, and the words FREE PARK won't haunt the people. Some one has to pay for everything that is free, so don't be misled by the people that advocate a free ride to all. It just doesn't exist. Some one has to pay.

Rowan Has Nutrition Committee

County Judge Otis Caldwell, at the request and in the presence of Katharine Riddle, Janis Porter, Mildred Wightman and Mabel Reynolds, signed Thursday into existence the Rowan County Nutrition Committee. These four women made this request from the Nutrition Planning group which represents the women's organizations of Morehead.

Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health and to improve the nutrition of Rowan County citizens. Under the sponsorship of the Rowan County Home Economists in Homemaking Club they planned and carried out the Rowan County Nutrition Clearinghouse on March 7, 1970.

The outgrowths of the March 7 Clearinghouse are:

1. Increase of emergency loan fund of the M.S.U. Student Council.
2. Increased participation in school lunch program by those eligible for free school lunches.
3. The laying of plans to work with Head Start mothers in 6 county schools during the summer session. Volunteers are being solicited and trained. The first training session will be June 17th at the Extension Office from 9-11 a.m. For more information call Mrs. Wightman 784-5457.

Spring Football Practice At MSU Is Almost Over

Spring practice is almost over and Morehead State University Head Football Coach Jake Hallum still can't list his entire defensive unit.

He is trying to find replacements for an All-American tackle, an All-Ohio Valley Conference end and an All-OVC linebacker who doubled as defensive captain. Last year's Eagles finished 6-4 and Hallum knows the defense saved the day more than once.

"We've had some injuries and it's hard to tell who is first string," said the third-year head coach. "The defensive unit has been working hard and several new men are doing us a good job."

Elliott Named President Of Regional Mental Center

Bob Elliott, manager of the Baptist Pine Crest Children's Home at Morehead yesterday was re-elected President of the five-county Cave Run Regional Mental Health and Mental Retardation Board. Leslie Christy of South County was named Vice-President; Don Patrick, Mt. Sterling, Secretary; and W. E. Crutcher, Morehead, re-elected Treasurer.

The center is home-based at Morehead on East Main Street in quarters formerly occupied by the Morehead News.

The elected Board representatives from the five counties also discussed the probable employment of an Executive Director. Mr. Elliott said this is a strong probability.

The Executive Board is comprised of the following members by counties - Morgan - Mrs. John Oldfield, Jr., James Williams and Rev. Steve Bliffen.

Menifee - Rick Landon, Rev. Carl Baldrige and Red Henry. Montgomery - Don Patrick, Harold W. Ison, and one vacancy. Bath - Leslie Christy, Harold Orme, and one vacancy.

Rowan - Bob Elliott, Alpha M. Hutchinson and Rev. Larry Buskirk. Each of the five counties has its own operational base and mental health workers with supervision coming from the Morehead headquarters. The program is heavily funded by the federal government and the Commonwealth.

Ranger's Column

By Joe Mauk
U. S. Forest Service—Morehead, Ky.

Some time ago the Forest Service initiated a superior tree program or project. The idea is to locate superior trees of different species. The project is set up in two sections, one for yellow pines and one for hardwoods.

Currently, above average trees are located by foresters on the various National Forests of the southern region, foresters with the various state forestry agencies or other cooperators within the region, the tree is marked by plastic flagging or some similar method.

The diameter of the tree, the height overall, the height of the stem of the tree containing clear logs, as well as the height into the limbs that will produce merchantable logs and other data, are taken.

Type of soil and other pertinent information concerning the location of the growing site on which the tree is located is also recorded. This information is forwarded to the Regional Office for review and analysis, should it appear to be of superior size and quality for the region a record is made of its superior qualities. Then one of the foresters assigned to the project will make an on the ground examination of the tree. If it has sufficient superior qualities based on the growing site and area in which it is located, it will be set up as a superior tree. Then it will be determined as to how it will serve the superior tree projects. The specie of tree will determine its future use. It may be used as a seed source by collection of acorns, or seeds from the tree for direct planting to produce seedlings.

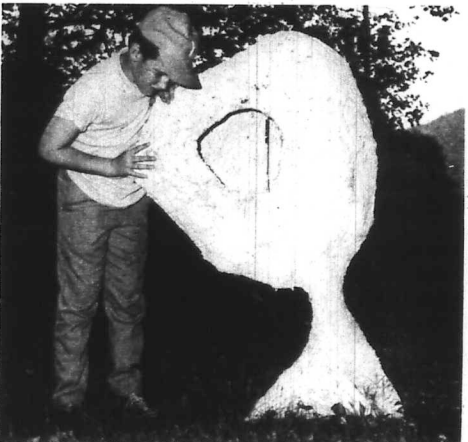

In some instances cuttings from the limbs or shoots will be used for grafting to existing trees now located at the Forest Service Beech Creek Seed orchard located near Murphy, North Carolina, to produce seed.

Last week Walter Smith, regional tree improvement forester, spent a day here on the Morehead District with District Ranger Richard Bonyata and Forester Ron Hevener. They spent most of the time in the field looking at prospective trees and discussing various phases of the project.

The period considered by state law as fire hazard period for the spring season (beginning March 1, ended on May 15) is the period during which burning of brush or other inflammable materials within 150 feet of any woodland or brushland, except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and midnight is prohibited by Kentucky state statute 149.400. Such burning may be done lawfully anytime during the day, provided he has complied with section 149.475 which requires the cutting and piling of such brush or inflammable material, and carefully cleared around same, to prevent the spread of such fires to lands other than those owned or leased by him. In other words, you may burn brush or other debris at any time, however, you are still responsible for keeping it under your control and preventing its spread to the property of another.

Inspection Law Being Enforced

By Leonard Kimball

Widespread arrests and stiff court penalties are becoming routine as more police and courts throw their weight behind enforcement of Kentucky's motor vehicle inspection program.

Discussing some of the changes he has witnessed since early last year when Public Safety Commissioner William O. Newman first ordered a crackdown by motor vehicle inspection officers on violators of the inspection laws, MVI Director John Parrott said, "at first, getting a conviction in local courts was almost unheard of. But, that isn't true any longer."

According to Parrott, strict enforcement is becoming an expensive reality for many violators as a steadily increasing number of courts report convictions often leading to heavy fines and, sometimes, even jail sentences.

"Only last month, more than 500 motorists were ticketed at state and city police roadblocks in Warren County for not having valid safety stickers on their cars," he said.

Although many later avoided fines by obtaining a valid sticker before their court date, Parrott said that both Warren County Judge Basil Griffin and Bowling Green Police Judge George B. Boston made it clear that times were changing. In the future, they were quoted as saying, fines will be levied.

And most recently, Louisville and Jefferson County authorities issued a warning that every motorist caught without a valid sticker will be ticketed, Parrott said.

But, by far the stiffest penalties being handed down are going to individuals charged with illegal possession of the stickers and inspectors caught issuing stickers without conducting a proper inspection.

"Most, if not all, are finding that the threat of heavy fines and, in some cases, even jail sentences is very real indeed," Parrott said.

Already this year, Parrott's field officers have reported about 25 convictions with sentences ranging from $10-$500 in fines and 90 days to three years imprisonment.

Only weeks ago, Campbell County Court fined two individuals $113.50 each for possession of stickers belonging to another automobile and levied an identical fine on a third person for affixing a sticker to a car without a proper inspection, he said.

And, currently at Newport, two Covington car dealers are free on $2500 bonds pending trial for illegal possession of stickers.

At Louisville another car salesman, Harvey Frank Fallon, an employee of Bob Ryan Auto Sales, pleaded guilty in Criminal Court to a crack down after the fact to illegal possession of a safety sticker.

Fallon, who came to the attention of the Department of Public Safety, following a complaint lodged by one of the firm's customers, was sentenced to three months in Jefferson County Jail with execution of the sentence being suspended for these years.

Parrott said that anyone having a complaint about improper inspections should contact him at the Motor Vehicle Inspection Division, Department of Public Safety, State Office Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Every complaint will be thoroughly investigated, he said. And, if the facts warrant, action will be taken.

Dr. Barnes Has Been Named As A Regional Judge

Dr. L.W. Barnes of Morehead has been appointed a regional judge for the National Council of Teachers of English Achievement Awards Program for 1970. Judging committees, composed of teachers of English from both college and high schools, will evaluate the writing skills and literary awareness of over 7,500 selected high school students.

The Achievement Awards Program attempts to grant recognition to high school seniors for excellence in English. Finalists are announced in November and are recommended for scholarship aid to all colleges and universities in the United States.

In Many Counties . . .

No Primary Election This Year

By Thornton Connell

What may be described as "a political rarity" will take place on this year's May 26 primary election day in Kentucky.

The rarity is that in a large chunk of the state, perhaps 10 of 120 counties, there will be no election because of the lack of a contest - and the polls will not be open.

The counties are in the Second Congressional District, where incumbent U.S. Rep. William H. Natcher, D-Bowling Green, has no opposition either in the primary or the Nov. 3 general election.

Unless there is a special election, there will be no primary elections in the Second District counties of Allen, Breckinridge, Daviess, Edmonson, Grayson, Hancock, Meade, Ohio, Simpson and Warren.

Warren County Clerk Charles W. Morehead said he knew of no special local elections in the district. Neither did Daviess County Clerk Robert Neal.

The reason the polls will be open, from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., local time, in the 10 other counties of the Second District is because those counties also are in the Third Appellate District which has contests in both parties for nomination for judge of the Court of Appeals.

The candidates in both the Republican and Democratic primaries, because of the cross-filing allowed, are incumbent Appellate Judge C. Homer Neikirk, R-Somerset, and Appellate Court Commissioner Bernard B. Davis, D-Shelbyville.

Second Congressional District counties which will have polls open to vote in the contests for the judicial nominations are Anderson, Barren, Bullitt, Hardin, Hart, Larue, Marion, Nelson, Spencer and Washington.

The primary is what politicians sometimes call an off-year election. It principally is for the selection of party nominees for Kentucky's seven seats in the U.S. House of Representatives.

There is no statewide contest, and Acting Secretary of State Mary R. Galvez says a light vote is expected.

All incumbent congressmen are seeking renomination and re-election. Besides Natcher, they are:

First District, Frank A. Stubblefield, D-Murray; Third, William O. Cowger, R-Louisville; Fourth, Gene Snyder, R-Jefferson; Fifth, Tim Lee Carter, R-

Tompkinsville; Sixth, John C. Watts, D-Nicholasville; Seventh, Carl D. Perkins, D-Hindman. Of this group, Cowger and Perkins have no primary opposition. No Republican filed in the First District; Lyle Leonard Willis, Corbin, Fifth District Democrat, is unopposed.

The first of ABC's new Monday night series of National Football League games will be the Cleveland-N.Y. Jets contest Sept. 21 in Cleveland.

"Bracken's World," the NBC Friday night drama series about a Hollywood movie studio, will have a Bracken next season. This tycoon character, owner of the aircraft, never was portrayed before. Leslie Nielsen, whose law enforcement segment of "The Bold Ones" is being discontinued, will play Bracken.

Playwright Neil Simon, currently represented on Broadway by three hit shows, will have his name among the credits of two new situation comedy series on ABC-TV in the fall, although he will not write the scripts. The shows are "Barfotee in the Park" and "The Odd Couple," based on earlier Simon stage successes.

Thousands of "sweet girl graduates" will be flocking out of schools and colleges during the next few weeks. Some have already planned their futures but countless others are still trying to decide whether to cast their lot in business, continue their education or possibly seek some of the more romantic occupations available to the nineteen-year-old-and-above group.

The adventurous, one of the more exciting careers offered is that of an airline stewardess.

This year, the airline industry will add more than 10,000 stewardesses. Many of these girls will fill new positions brought about by the increased number of jet aircraft flights and the larger airplanes being introduced. Many girls will replace the countless thousands who have been flying but are now giving up their wings for matrimony and home.

Forty years ago, when the first airline stewardess - a registered nurse - boarded a United flight, the trend was set. But today, the young ladies of the sky no longer must be registered nurses. And instead of one stewardess, some of today's jets are being flown with more than twenty girls on board. However, the real opportunity for those seeking a stewardess career is with the airlines using the more conventional jet aircraft; here stewardesses aboard number from two to six, depending on the aircraft and seating arrangement. Many stewardesses readily admit that they prefer smaller jet aircraft - the work is easier, there is more time to visit with the passengers and it is easier to schedule free time to be at the beach or home for a Friday night date.

Better Pay

An airline career offers more today than ever before. The pay is better, the hours shorter and the travel opportunities are ever increasing. Few people realize that stewardesses on many airlines have pass privileges, not only on their own airline but also on many others. And almost all airlines grant stewardesses - even their competitors - tickets at greatly reduced prices. Now, a stewardess need pay as little as one-fifth of the lowest rate fare for a ticket throughout Europe.

Some graduates will be hesitant about a stewardess career, not wanting to live away from the South, but at the same time wanting an opportunity to travel. Some of those who "have their cake and eat it too" are the girls who join one of the regional airlines, such as Southern Airways. The regionals confine their flights to more limited geographic areas. Southern, for example, operates primarily in the South but also has jet flights to New York, Chicago and St. Louis.

"On the Line"

Stewardess pay is good and it is steady. During the training period, usually lasting four to six weeks, the aspiring stewardess receives her lodging and a weekly allowance for meals and other personal needs. When she completes her training and "goes on the line" she will be earning about $400 a month or more but this increases rapidly with established rates. After three years, stewardess pay is in the $600 range - depending on the airline she chooses. But oftentimes, even more important than the pay received is the environment in which she will live, plus the fringe benefits provided.

After training, the new stewardess may be assigned to any crew base operated by the airline. Some airlines have stewardesses living in more than a dozen cities. Others, such as Southern, have as few as four bases - Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis and Ft. Walton Beach, Florida.

Fringe Benefits

A consideration of major importance is the fringe benefits. Most airlines offer excellent insurance and retirement plans although few aspiring stewardesses are concerned about retirement: most are interested in the immediate future (for the average stewardess flies only eighteen months). They are interested in where they may visit and whom they will meet. Another matter of real interest to the airline stewardess is her real interest to the airline stewardess is her pass privileges. Some carriers offer the stewardess free passes beginning on the first day of employment; others might require six months duty. Some airlines have reciprocal agreements with other airlines, some do not. A not-so-typical pass program is Southern's where the new stewardess has free transportation from her first day of employment for herself and her family and after six months she receives free transportation on another major airline. After one year she is entitled to one additional free pass on any domestic airline of her choice. And equally important, after just six months on the job, she is eligible for "reduced rate transportation" on any airline in the world. This enables her to fly at reductions of as much as 80 percent of regular fares. And, because some carriers promote their service as a means to attract personnel, stewardesses can now fly to and throughout Europe for as little as $60.00.

Specific Requirements

But there is more to being a stewardess than just fun and glamor. The requirements are specific: usually she must be between the ages of 19 and 26, be between 5'2" and 5'8" with proportional weight, have at least a high school education (with some college preferred), a pleasant personality, attractive looks, and, especially, a genuine desire to be a goodwill ambassador for her company.

A stewardess flies about twenty hours a week but to meet this requirement, a new stewardess may fly part of five or six days each week. Usually after only a few weeks (or months depending on the number of girls at her base), a new stewardess may find that she has earned a "line of time" and can select the days she works and the flights she flies. Then she might do all her flying in only 14 days - with the other days for fun! This assures plenty of free time for lounging around the pool or taking advantage of her travel benefits.

Hard Work

But during her work day, she works - and works hard. Today's twin jets usually carry from 75 to 100 passengers and oftentimes two stewardesses will serve a snack and beverages to 75 people during a twenty-five minute flight. On a longer flight - an hour! - these same two girls may serve beverages and a hot meal. It's not all glamor, but a lot of it is.

Unfortunately, the myth about the stewardess marrying the handsome pilot or a rich passenger does not come to pass too often. Most of the pilots she will fly with are already grand-fathers and most of her passengers are merely looking for a pleasant smile after a hard business day. Rather, a typical stewardess marries the boy back home who in her absence has realized his loss. But there is always the exception: a few lucky stewardesses have been swept to the altar by some budding young millionaire.

No other occupation offers more opportunity for a young lady than the airline business. Good pay, good working conditions - good fun - literally, the sky's the limit. If she wants to live in the South, she can work for a regional airline like Southern. If she speaks a foreign language and would consider living in Miami, New York or on the West Coast, an international carrier might interest her. If she just has an urge to fly, there is no particular about where she might be based, any airline in the country offers a possible chance to join the jet set.

Now, a note to the young ladies who feel qualified and have the urge to fly: just write a letter to the personnel department of an

The months of May and June are active months for Kentucky livestock exhibitors, particularly 4-H and FFA members.

During May, the Department of Agriculture will sponsor two shows for market hinds. The Central Kentucky Lamb Show and Sale will be held May 23 at the Bluegrass Stockyards in Lexington. On Saturday, May 30, the East Kentucky Lamb Show and Sale will be held in Flemingsburg at the Farmers Stockyards.

The new lamb show will be held June 27 at Georgetown and will emphasize mainly classes for purebred animals.

The annual Kentucky National Jersey Show and Sale will be held May 23 at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center. The Kentucky National Ayrshire Show and Sale will be June 20, also at the Fair and Exposition Center.

The Beef Breeding Shows for 4-H and FFA members with beef projects will open June 15 at Georgetown. The remaining four shows will be as follows: Elizabethtown, June 16; Glasgow, June 17; Madisonville, June 18 and Mayfield, June 19.

Each of these events is designed to be both educational and promotional. The youth shows have been planned to supplement the training which 4-H and FFA members receive through their regular programs of instruction. As to adult exhibitors, these shows and sales not only provide marketing outlets, but also serve to promote good breeding and management.

Washington Week Placed In Review By Educational TV

For a quick capsule of the national news of the week, Washington Week in Review at 8 p.m. Tuesday on Kentucky Educational Television Network has been called perhaps the best.

Four Washington newsmen summarize developments on their beats and give their interpretations of what has happened during the previous week - opening the way for questions and discussion.

The panelists are Charles Cordry, Baltimore Sun; Peter Lasgor, Chicago Daily Newsbureau Chief; Neil MacNeil, Time Magazine; and a rotating guest.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Rover Knows the Value of Burying His Bones!

Rover knows by instinct the value of saving for the future. If he could talk, he'd advise Junior to save his pennies.

All Rover will want in the future is a borie to chew... but Junior will want much more: a car, education, a family of his own. But all these things cost money! The sooner he knows the value of a Savings Account, the closer he will be to achieving those goals.

Right now is the time for him to establish the savings habit! Start him off a step ahead in life... open his account with us to help him towards the financial security needed later in life. Regular savings is the surest way... Come on in and talk about it!

County Government Costs Climbing

Although education is far and away the most costly item of local government in Rowan County, the other public expenditures add up to a sizeable figure. They include outlays for such services as roads and highways, police protection, health, public welfare, sewerage, water supply and general administration and education, among others. According to the latest figures, based on data compiled by the government, the annual cost of such services amounts to $19.85 per capita for residents of Rowan County. The average outlay in the rest of the United States for local services, other than education, came to $16.22 per capita. Local communities in the State of Kentucky spent an average of $72.48.

The study of local government finances, the first one undertaken since 1962, was made by the Department of Commerce. The law requires that it do so every five years. The results of the study, with comparable data for each of the 3,100 counties throughout the country, are contained in the latest Compendium of Government Finances.

It shows, for every area, the amount spent for each of the functions of government. In Rowan County, a basic expenditure is for the construction and maintenance of highways, roads, city streets, bridges and other transportation facilities. The outlay in the year was $2.01 exclusive of interest on debt related to highways.

The average is $23.06 per capita. It is more in smaller localities, rising to an average of $40.11 among those with populations under 10,000.

Local police and fire protection involved an expenditure of $3.66 per capita and governmental administration, maintenance and control, $3.68.

The remainder of the $19.85 spent per capita went for the multitude of other services provided for residents of the local area.

Cleveland homicides set record

By JOHN J. SPETZ

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Cleveland recorded 295 homicides in 1969—an average of about one every 30 hours.

It was the worst homicide record in the city's history and exceeded the previous year's total by 99. In 1967, the "Lag" Erie city recorded 166 killings and in 1966 there were 155. The city's homicide rate last year averaged one every 2.748 persons in Cleveland. Detroit, with twice the population of Cleveland, recorded 498 homicides, one killing for every 3,319 persons. New York City, with a population 10 times that of Cleveland, had one homicide for every 7,801.

Cuyahoga County Coroner Dr. Samuel R. Gerber said 236 of the victims last year were killed by guns. Police said the most popular weapon was a .310 pistol imported from West Germany. Ninety-eight of the homicides remained unsolved.

Police blamed the high homicide rate on easy access to weapons and U.S. Supreme Court rulings, which say block law enforcement efforts.

Guns are easily obtained at discount hardware stores in Cleveland, but in immediate areas, said police Sgt. Edward Manney, "I don't think guns can be obtained by a signature or driver's license and a little other identification."

An existing gun bill in Cleveland requires anyone purchasing a firearm within the city of Cleveland to have a permit. The permit must be obtained from the police chief and the applicant must have character references from two persons.

The seller must make a detailed report to the police chief. Getting a permit is so cumbersome, that many skirt the city law by going into the suburbs to buy weapons.

His Supreme Court. Police are unanimous in condemning the Supreme Court decision as contributing to the rising homicide rate. "We need to have what we called the pool room detail," said Sgt. Robert Delfantis. "We took all the rookies and we took them out of the pool room and we put them on the floor. We got to the door." Manney said police no longer can make "exploratory searches in bars as before." "Part of our duties were to search suspicious looking persons," Manney said, "But because of the court rulings, we cannot do so now." "The homicide rate came just after the Supreme Court ruling on search and seizure and exploratory searches. Now we have to tell the prisoner his rights. It has been my experience that he recites his rights to you. He knows how far he can go." Gerber agreed guns are "too easily available."

MEDALLIONS PRESENTED—Gov. Louie B. Nunn gets a set of silver and bronze Great River Road medallions from Kenneth F. Harper, commissioner of Public Information, and the state chairman of the Mississippi River Parkway Commission. The medallions promote the road that follows the Mississippi River through 10 states and two Canadian provinces. The Governors of all the states and the Prime Ministers of the Canadian provinces touched by the river will get the medallions. (Steve Mitchell Photo)

Profitable Pickles

For the past five years or so, University of Kentucky Extension Agents in various counties in the state have encouraged farmers to grow cucumbers for the pickle industry. Rowan, and area, counties are included.

There is, according to the Pickle Packers International, Inc., sound thinking behind this effort. Americans are profoundly addicted to cucumbers pickles and the demand isn't likely to decrease in the future. Therefore cucumber production can be a profitable sideline for most farmers, small or otherwise.

To give an idea of the importance of pickles, Americans consumed 18 billion of them last year, or about eight pounds each.

Also more pounds of pickles were picked and packed in the United States than canned peaches, corn, peas, apple sauce, or tomatoes. With all this being true as the PPI states, then growing a patch of cucumbers seems to be a sure-fire way of adding to the farm income.

Cucumber pickles are deeply rooted in American history. They arrived in the New World with Columbus and vitamin-packed. The pioneer family from those lacking fresh vegetables for long periods. For many generations, frontier farm families in America depended on their cucumber patches for the only green vegetable they could preserve through the long and seemingly endless winters.

Also down through the centuries, pickles have played an important role in world history. Julius Caesar claimed they made his legions fight better, and Emperor Tiberius attributed his long life—95 years—to them. It is also written that Queen Elizabeth I and King John were pickle fanatics, and American fans included George Washington, John Adams, and Dolly Madison. As had been told too, Calvin Coolidge's fondness for pickles was matched only by his love for politics.

An not to be left out of this roster of notable world figures who doted on pickles is Thomas Jefferson who wrote: "I know of nothing more comforting than a fine spiced pickle, brought up trout-like from a sparkling depth of that aromatic jar below stairs in Aunt Sally's cellar."

Besides being historic and mouth-watering, cucumber pickles are high in vitamins A, B-1, B-2 and C. Since the average 11 pickle contains only 11 calories, nutritionists say they are valuable in the weight-reducing diet.

There's no doubt about it, the cucumber pickle lies close to the American heart. It is a part of the good old American tradition for growing cucumbers for pickles can be a profitable enterprise down on the farm.

Drive Launched Against Drivers Who Are Drinking

At a meeting of Kentucky women leaders sponsored by the Kentucky Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee, Governor Louie B. Nunn announced that he is launching a two-month long campaign against drinking drivers.

The Governor made his announcement in a prepared speech sent to the meeting and read by the committee's chairman, A.D. Harriette. Nunn was unable to attend due to a court appearance in Lexington, in connection with the use of National Guardsmen during demonstrations at the University of Kentucky.

Governor Nunn said that he had asked for the cooperation of the state police, local law enforcement agencies, county judges, the mass media, trade associations, and the general public.

He went on to say that he had instructed police to strictly enforce the laws and for county judges to interpret them with the utmost stringency.

Safety Around The Pool

Rules and regulations from several national agencies governing safety procedures in and around swimming pools have helped save countless lives. There are still some areas of pool use and care to which private and public swimming pool owners and operators pay little—if any—attention. Foremost among these is storage handling and application of swimming pool chemicals.

Calcium hypochlorite, for example, is the most popular chlorine sanitizing agent in use today. It is an effective swimming pool bactericide and algicide. But, it is also a dangerous oxidizing agent followed by several fires in past years.

Recent development of flame-proofed calcium hypochlorite now dramatically reduces chances of fire during storage or handling of this widely used pool sanitizer. Called Sentry, the specially treated formulation has been tested by the Bureau of Explosives with results showing it to be safer than calcium hypochlorites now on the market. In addition to its flameproof qualities, Sentry resists fire caused by chemical contamination by such familiar household materials as cosmetics, sun lotions, beverages, fertilizers, dead vegetation, and other organic matter. Under certain conditions, however, such as intense heat or gross contamination, it may burn. Label precautions should always be followed. Fires caused by contamination of the untreated chemical have resulted in the violation of its storage and use in some local fire departments.

Sentry is available in a dust-lag, granular form in 5 lb. plastic bottles, 25 lb. and 30 lb. pails, and 100 lb. drums at pool supply dealers handling the Pennwalt product line of pool chemicals. It is a product of Pennwalt Corporation, world-wide producer of chemicals, specialized equipment, pharmaceuticals and dental health products with headquarters in Philadelphia.

Another Re-Discovery . . .

Drake's Carding Factory

By Helen Price Stacy

Drake's Mill and Carding factory was one of the places described to me by the late J. M. Gevedon, of Morgan County who gave me notebooks filled with regional history before his death in 1957.

He was a gentleman of the Old School of chivalry and courtesy and his remarks were a constant delight, starting before I was out of high school.

He would write, "I know where the oldest house in Eastern Kentucky is" or "I have a good story for you. It will mean a three-mile hike, but if I can get there I know you can." He was 86 when he died, his mother outlived him. She was 107.

Drake's Carding Factory was one of the places we never got to, but the notebook held an account of trips made by his father to get corn ground or wool carded.

After Gevedon's death some friends and I spent a day trying to locate the old mill site, but were unsuccessful. The site was found in March by a group of artists on a Saturday hike to Rock Bridge.

Tour leader, Dr. Carl Clark of the University of Kentucky who was aware of my interest in the mill, pointed to a spot a few feet from the trail. "There's an old well that must have been part of the mill," he said.

If the well was indeed the one that supplied water at Drake's cabin, then there would be a waterfall nearby.

I had merely to turn my head, look back into a cove of hemlocks and pines to see the beautiful waterfall.

I had been to this same spot in November and it seemed incredible that, though a deep snow lay on the ground and covered hemlock boughs, the waterfall was not discovered. A short distance around the stream's curve, and there was Rock Bridge. My elderly friend, Mr. Gevedon, had written that Drake's Mill and carding factory did a flourishing business for customers from many nearby counties.

Bridge paths had been built through the woods and a cabin put up to accommodate those who had to wait.

Once when Mr. Gevedon called on my parents in West Liberty, he mentioned the mill, the bridge across the creek and his father's many trips there.

On one occasion, he said, his father was attacked by a panther that jumped from the rock cliffs onto the horse.

"Though very small I can remember my father's last trip there," Mr. Gevedon said. "He would start before sunup and not return till dark."

After a tortuous trip through the wilderness he traversed a long ridge that finally dropped down through the gaps and benches of the Swift's Creek Canyon, and there crossing the famous Rock Bridge, reached the mill."

It would seem that Gevedon was stating that his father crossed Rock Bridge astride his horse. If such happened in that era, it could not happen today as anyone knows who has climbed atop the stone arch across Swift's Camp Creek.

"On my first trip there as a young man,

Agree Or Not

I Say What I Think by S. C. VanCuren

Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford, who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor next year, has given no indication that he will choose a running mate or try to slate a group for the other constitutional offices.

Following his announcement May 9, Ford told a newsmen that he had no announcement to make about a running mate or others he would like to see run with him for the other offices.

Although U.S. Circuit Judge and former Gov. Bert T. Combs has not made any official announcement, he is expected to make an official statement after his resignation from the judgeship becomes final June 5.

When House Speaker Julian Carroll made his announcement for lieutenant governor, he said he would be a running mate of Combs, indicating that Combs would become a candidate for governor after he leaves the judge's post.

Intimates of Ford here indicate that he may run in the primary without any ties. Many politicians have reasoned that this would alienate any candidates for the minor offices and probably would benefit the gubernatorial candidate.

While Combs is still an unannounced candidate his many friends are out there espousing his potential candidacy and trying to line up organizations in some of the counties.

Ford and his friends also are busy at this chore. Meanwhile, a spokesman for Gov. Louie B. Nunn's administration said the governor hoped to be in a position to make an announcement by June 1. This is expected to be the candidate that his administration will support next year for governor.

The spokesman also indicated that the governor is still trying to prevail upon U.S. Senator John Sherman Cooper to be the Republican Standard bearer. Many Republicans hold the belief that the Senator's popularity would sweep him into the governor's office, or at least be the most formidable candidate that the party could choose.

Some have mentioned Fourth District Congressman Eugene Snyder if Cooper will not concede to run. However, the administration spokesman said that Snyder has not given any indication whatever that he would like to run for governor. Many feel that he has a safe congressional district and he had rather stay there. He is very popular with the Democrats in Northern Kentucky.

There's one thing certain, Northern Kentucky will not be a stepchild in next year's races. Both Republicans and Democrats are seeking a candidate from that area for a statewide office. Right now, both seem to be hunting a candidate for Attorney General from that area.

County Judge Andrew Jolly has been mentioned frequently as a potential candidate for lieutenant governor or attorney general. Both Democrats and Republicans are looking for a candidate from that area. In case Senator Cooper doesn't run, Gov. Nunn has some good prospects here in Highway Commissioner Eugene Goss, Parks Commissioner Jim Host, Public Service Commissioner Tom Emberton, and former Parks Commissioner Robert Gable. Gable is getting plenty of support from Somerset.

As to the Democrats who are expected to seek state offices, they seem to be waiting until the political picture clears somewhat. State Treasurer Thelma Stovall will be a candidate, but she isn't making any firm statement as to which office. She at one time indicated she had some ambition to run for governor, but Carroll's announcement including Combs has apparently changed her mind. She also spoke about lieutenant governorship.

Most observers here expect her to run for Secretary of State, a post she has held twice before.

State Auditor Mary Louise Faust is expected to seek a full term in that office. Drexell Davis is making contacts with bankers across the state for support as a Democratic candidate for treasurer.

Today, there has been little speculation about most of the other minor offices.

Henderson County School Superintendent Lewis Johnson is likely to become a candidate for superintendent of public instruction.

STATE PLUMBING CODES BELOW FEDERAL STANDARDS

The State Plumbing Code Committee has scheduled a meeting for May 20 at the Kentucky Department of Health to consider revision of some 38 items in the state code which the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) regards as deficient.

At stake is a possible loss of millions of dollars in federal funds to Kentucky communities in low and medium income housing units unless HUD's recommendations are met.

Oddities in accidents tickle ribs

CHICAGO (UPI)—In its annual search for accidents with a freak twist, the National Safety Council has uncovered quite an assortment for 1969 of what it calls "humorous happenings."

The Red Boiling Springs, Tenn. wife who backed up the car when she wanted to go forward. Seems she backed right into an outhouse with enough force to knock it over. Her husband, unfortunately, was occupying it at the time.

Another male mishap occurred when Lloyd Adams of Jackson, Mich., was following his wife's car because she was having trouble with it. He wanted to be near it when her car acted up. But he followed too closely and crashed into his wife's car as she nudged him. Adams got a ticket for tailgating.

Then there was Glen M. Clark, of Dayton, Ohio, who decided to kiss his girl friend as they sat waiting for a red light to change. However, when he leaned over for the kiss, "the foot of the oscillator hit the accelerator." The car smashed into a police car. The policeman, who had observed the incident from a "kiss to crush" gave Clark a ticket for careless driving.

In Ferrara, Italy, a helicopter filming a documentary of traffic safety came down over the Ferrara-Padua highway and crashed onto a parked car.

A continent away in Victoria, South Africa, a car and airplane collided in a city street. Seems the plane was taxiing in on an exhibition showground.

Skyline is the most wanted mobile home in America. Why? Because it is the most livable mobile home built. You'll want what it offers. Prestige. Quality. Beauty. Comfort. Convenience. If you are looking for a way of life that is new and exciting, Skyline is it. Think about it.

Let's Go Fishing
After the Ball is Over

Newly created lakes and reservoirs quickly gain reputations as good places to fish. But — like Cinderella — they also eventually face a mid-night situation when glamour is lost and ordinary fishing becomes the rule.

Eventually the lake may again become a good fishing place, but in the meantime many anglers spend a lot of time fishing there without much success.

There is a way to bypass this slump, say the angling experts at Mercury outdoor experts at Mercury outdoor. To know what happens to fish as a lake matures is the key to continued success after the first few years of hot fishing are over.

If you fish a lake during its hot-activity stage, learn as much as possible about its deep-water area. This information will be important later when the lake has matured and fishing begins to slow down.

As a lake becomes older, its fish population hits a high and then levels off. The lake has reached its carrying capacity under present conditions. Fish populations may even decrease, but there usually are a good number of large fish left.

Knowing about the deep water now pays off, for that's where the big fish tend to stay. It's also in deep water that you'll find fish in schools. Another important change occurs in feeding habits. As fish grow larger and become less active, their routes to feeding places become firmly established and they're not likely to stray from these spots.

To have successful fishing in a maturing lake, the lads suggest you recognize the symptoms of fishing slowdown, remember that big fish move to deep water where they are less active, and that you know the physical features of the lake.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Excessive and careless use of hair spray, bleaches, permanent wave lotion and other hair cosmetics preparations contribute to scaling and dryness of the scalp, says Dr. I. Lubow, a New York dermatologist.

He recommends shampooing regularly, once a week if the scalp tends to be normal or dry, and twice a week if hair and scalp are oily, trying a medicated shampoo if the "popular brands" prove unsatisfactory.

Protection For Consumer

By Jim Warren

The Division of Rates and Services, Department of Motor Transportation is helping protect the consumer in the state's growing motor transport industry.

"Freight carriers covered 400 million miles in Kentucky last year," says Harold Bernard division director. "With this volume the transportation consumer may encounter problems such as improper charges, unnecessary delays, and inadequate services. We try to remedy the problems."

The Division regularly audits carrier's bills of lading and other freight documents. If overcharges are found, the carrier must reimburse the shipper.

Many shippers have received reimbursements never knowing they were the result of division audits. Although the Division's jurisdiction is limited to Kentucky, it recently filed a protest with the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) when interstate carriers proposed to raise shipping rates to some 40 small Kentucky towns.

The increase was denied on the Division's plea of discrimination.

"Here is a case of small businessmen, dependent on carriers, not knowing where to go with their problems," Bernard says. "We handled it for them."

Although most carriers make every effort to provide adequate service, they occasionally misplace or misroute a shipment. When unnecessary delays occur, the shipper may ask the Division for help. Usually a phone call from the Division will get the shipment moving.

The Division works to secure adequate service for the public from all types of motor carriers.

Citizens protested recently when a bus company proposed to drop a run in Central Kentucky. When the Division ordered a hearing on the proposal the bus company gave up its plan.

We make studies whenever schedule changes are protested by the public," Bernard says. "If there is little or no patronage on a run proposed to be changed, it would be in the public interest to approve the change. Reduction of unnecessary service often enables the carrier to lower rates."

While the Division's work is increasing, Bernard feels more could be done if the public were more aware of motor carrier regulations and the Division's services.

"Many small shippers and receivers are not familiar with motor carrier laws and regulations," Bernard says. "When they have problems they often do not know where to go for help."

Questions with shipping problems or questions to contact the Division in Frankfort.

Industrial Jobs In Commonwealth Higher Each Year

Statistics released by Gov. Louie B. Nunn show that non-agricultural jobs in Kentucky rose by 29,300 a year during the two years of his administration compared with 29,300 annually during the last 10 years.

The statistics also reveal that non-agricultural employment in the state hit a new high in March, as did the average wage of factory workers.

Some 898,500 persons had non-agricultural jobs in March, 23,900 above the corresponding month last year and the average weekly wage last year increased by $3.72 for a high of $126.72, the governor said.

He also reported "official statistics now have confirmed that our farm economy surpassed the billion-dollar mark in 1969 for the first time."

The governor said a recent economic analysis by the state Department of Commerce offers "conclusive evidence that Kentucky's record during the 1960's was truly spectacular and the outlook for the next 10 years is even brighter."

CHILDREN UNDER 14 CAN HOLD SPECIFIED JOBS

Kentucky Commissioner of Labor John W. Young approved after a public hearing a regulation that would relax Kentucky's child labor law by allowing children under 14 to work in programs approved by their schools.

The regulation implements a revision enacted by the 1970 General Assembly which also affects youths 14 to 18.

Along with the revision, the regulation will take effect June 18, filed with the Legislative Research Commission by May 18.

WEEKLY MEDITATION

The mother eagle uses branches of thorns when building her nest. She covers them with soft leaves and feathers. When the eaglets are hatched, a warm nest is ready. But when the eaglets are old enough, the mother pushes them to the side where the thorns are, and the birds cry out in pain. Mother eagle takes the eaglets on her wings and soars into the sky.

She sits that way for hours, she lets the birds fall. If they are strong enough to fly, they fly away. If they are weak and fall downward, the mother bird dives below them, catches the little ones on her wings again, and repeats the process.

Could it be that our Heavenly Father teaches his children in a similar manner? We experience the new birth. We are so happy, so content, that we hesitate to move on into fullness and growth. But life is not all feathers; it also has thorns to prod us out. Fluttering in the dark sky of trial and struggle, we can try our wings of faith in total dependence upon God. As we use the strength he gives, we soar above dark skies of doubt and fear.

THE LOAN FOR PEOPLE WHO DON'T NEED LOANS.

It's easy to "borrow" with revolving charge accounts, credit cards, and by financing purchases... but a good loan may save money.

No matter how you buy, if repayments are in monthly installments there will normally be a finance or "carrying" charge. And, while revolving charge and credit cards are an easy way to buy, they aren't always the lowest cost way to finance the purchase.

True, lending requires a full disclosure of all rates and charges-to help you compare the costs.

We suggest you do it. Here's what our Interest-Saver Loan costs:

Loan	Loan	Finance Charge	Annual Percentage Rate	Monthly Payment
12 mos.	$2,000	$128.42	15.20%	$180.70
24 mos.	2,000	270.94	14.25%	96.29
36 mos.	2,000	422.33	14.25%	62.22

If you're paying more, get a better loan and save the difference. It can be well worth the small amount of trouble.

Figure out. All the information you need is given on your monthly statements and finance contracts. Or, give us a call and we'll help you with the figuring.

Corpulent comedian had his lean years

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) - Tom Bosley, the round, funny man on "The Deliah Reynolds Show," is less humorous but equally rotund away from the television cameras.

A dedicated actor who suffered hunger pangs in New York for eight years before finding acting jobs, Bosley started in the title role of Broadway in "Fiorello" in November, 1959. From October, 1961 Bosley came west several years ago for a brief stay while he appeared in a movie. He is still here.

Bosley and his wife Jean, married eight years, are the parents of Amy Elizabeth, 3 1/2, who shares a two-bedroom apartment with her mother and father in Beverly Hills.

The actor, who plays Debbie's brother-in-law in the NBC series, discovered that Hollywood's apartments are larger but just as costly as those in Manhattan.

His apartment house is equipped with a swimming pool which Bosley splashes gleefully whenever possible.

Jean has furnished their quarters with a few pieces brought west from their old apartment. The couple currently is redecorating the living room with contemporary furniture.

A native of Chicago, Bosley is undergoing a difficult change of loyalty.

His childhood he has been an ardent fan of the Chicago Cubs and the Chicago Bears, both of which had less than triumphant seasons on the diamond and gridiron. The tickets for Los Angeles Rams football games and cheers for the Dodgers with misgiving.

HUNTING AND FISHING IN KENTUCKY

Often a person, upon returning from a fishing trip, spends a lot of time describing the wonderful countryside he saw on the way to his favorite lake, and about the beautiful scenery he viewed firsthand while on the lake itself.

Often the beauty of the palisades, the seeming purity of the acres of clear water in the lakes, the neatness of the docks and the roadside parks bring glowing praise and all but blot out the memory of fish that were or were not harvested.

At a time when alarms are sounded about the impurities of the air, water and soil, when Earth Day is suggested as a national holiday, when DDT has been banned, and when the population is warned that the world cannot long endure under such conditions, it is indeed refreshing to hear an individual talk about and reveal in the beauties of nature that are available in so many places in Kentucky.

This article, however, is in no way meant to indicate that the alarms sounded and the remedial measures undertaken should not be continued.

They should, and they must be intensified by not only the youth of the nation but by every man, woman and child.

The dangers of being overcome by poisoned air, impure water and infected soil should not in any way be minimized. We are 100 percent for restrictions put on a number of products, and the intense interest that has been generated to preserve this world of ours.

Nevertheless, it is refreshing, we believe, to note also those things of beauty that are apparent even to the casual observer during a fishing trip and we recommend that entertaining sidelight for each fishing trip. We believe that a person who is interested in these beauties will do naught to tamper with such God-given delights.

We believe those persons inspired by the greatness of nature will not despoil a landscape by tossing onto it the remnants of a meal to impair the beauty of the area and most assuredly contribute to the ugliness of a lake, a countryside, a rural road or a

To Feature Pop-Sound Stars

Another first is in the making for Fayette County. The "live" audience during the taping of the Oral Roberts' Youth Show scheduled to be aired nationally June 17 is a special youth show featuring the now-famous musical band of guest-star appearances are such outstanding personalities as "Mr. Soul" Lou Rawls, Harper Valley PPA's own Dennis C. Riley, Comedian Stu Gilliam, coach of the UCLA basketball team, Bob Fosteen, and 1969 Heisman Trophy Winner Willie Wilson.

The youth show fits the innovative programming for Reverend Roberts' Youth Show series aimed at the 150 million Americans who view television regularly. It follows closely on the heels of Reverend Roberts' Easter Special and should be one of the highlights of the summer season. The series is aired on over 225 stations in the United States, Canada and England.

The lineup for the Youth Show will include the television screen some of the top talent in the entertainment industry. Featured will be a former gospel singer in Chicago, vocalists from the No. 1 vocalists in the world by Downbeat Magazine. He was also the winner of Billboard Magazine's top-artist award. In 1968 he received the Grammy Award for the best rhythm and blues single of the year. "Dead End Street".

The sale of six million copies of "Harper Valley PPA," "The Super Sound of the Super C. Riley" and "Super C. Riley's Super Sound" has made her a household name. She was a "writing-to-be discovered" secretary in a Nashville publishing firm. In addition to her appearance on the Oral Roberts' Special,

Mr. Soul, Lou Rawls, captures the "live" audience during the taping of the Oral Roberts' Youth Show scheduled to be aired nationally June 17. Also appearing on the show are singer Jeanette C. Riley, Comedian Stu Gilliam, UCLA basketball coach, John Wooden and Heisman Trophy winner Steve Owens.

Miss Riley has performed on every major network TV show including the Bob Hope Special, the Ed Sullivan Show, and the Johnny Carson Show. Adding credence to the Youth Show is Stu Gilliam. A more immediate success, Gilliam has appeared on the special "Get Smart," and as a regular on "Dean Martin Presents the Goldiggers." The Oral Roberts' Youth Show should be of interest to the male audience as John Wooden and Steve Owens make special appearances. Wooden recently coached his UCLA basketball team to its fourth straight NCAA national championship.

Known as "Mr. Inside" at Oklahoma University, Owens broke almost every ground-keeping record at the school and many intercollegiate records on his way to All-American honors. As Heisman Trophy winner, Owens was considered the best collegiate football player in the country this past season. He has been named by the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Along with the outstanding guest list, also appearing will be show regulars Richard Roberts, the World Action Singers from Oral Roberts University, and the Ralph Carmichael Orchestra.

super-highway. Yes, it is great to live in a state where such unspoiled beauty remains; unspoiled by man who has in the past dosed pesticides and acids and litter and clutter in other areas. But unless protection for those places is forthcoming now, it will be but a few years before they, too, become defiled areas, covered with ugliness brought on by mankind in greed and selfishness.

Kentucky truly does have unspoiled areas. And they are becoming fewer. But Kentucky also has its areas of ugliness that must be abhorred by all persons—places of soil water and air laden with impurities and that is but an eyesore. Those areas should make it all the more necessary that areas not so affected be protected. And as simple as it seems, only you can prevent this transformation.

ZEST FOR LIVING AT ANY AGE

Hildegard, who has entertained U.S. presidents, royalty, VIPs, habitués of swank supper clubs, and plain Jews at political rallies, confesses that when the show is on she's a star, but when the lights dim she is as shy as anyone.

Distinguishing between the on-stage Hildegard with the legendary props consisting of long white gloves, ruses and a linen-lace handkerchief — and the off-stage woman, she admitted in an interview: "I get in front of the politicians at a rally and I'm just as persuasive as can be. But when I'm back in my apartment, I'm back in my shell again."

Her shyness, however, does not extend to subject that leaves most women male: her age. Hildegard's book (now available in paperback edition), in which she reveals her beauty secrets, is defiantly entitled: "Over-50 — So What!" Without hesitation she says: "I am well over 50... but I feel like 32. I just have a great zest for living."

Fashion Views The Wisconsin-born chanteuse is a great believer in good diet, exercise, grooming and fashion-sense. Simplicity is the basis of elegance, according to Hildegard. And she qualifies an expert, having made the "ten best-dressed" list three times in a row.

Her opinions on the new mid-level are mixed. While she has a few snails in the mid-length — which she calls "elegant and modest" — she firmly believes the shorter hemline will endure. "I'm not going to get rid of my short clothes because I think this longer length is just a fad. It may last a year or two."

The shorter length, she claims, is more attuned to today's emancipated women. "It makes you step light and feel young and vital. I think it will go out of style."

Food and Diet Hildegard, whose looks belie her age, follows the old maxim: "Make the most of what you've got." She claims that proper skin care is a matter of discipline and wanting to improve. "And the same goes for dieting. 'You've got to start in the mind. A lady will say to herself: 'I'm not bad looking — but my figure could be improved; my face could be improved.' After if she does something about it, it will improve."

Hildegard, who admits she "never misses a day" without developing a skin care, also believes in eating only organically grown foods and in drinking pure mountain water. "You are what you eat," she says.

Active even at the age of 50, one can be attractive. "As a matter of fact," she said, "a woman looks marvelous starting at 50. When I was 50, I looked in the mirror and thought: 'I don't look any different.' Life begins at that age. I think it's wonderful when a person gets to be 50. She has ceased growing up and a whole new life is in front of her. The children are grown so the woman now has a chance to pamper herself and live for herself." Life begins at 50.

State Helping Students To Find Jobs In Summer

By Alice Aiken

In a few weeks thousands of Kentucky teenagers will be job hunting. Merrill S. Deitz Jr., commissioner of Economic Service, said his department again will find summer jobs for young people when possible.

"We hope to improve our record of last year, when we placed 5500 out of 11,000 applicants between the ages of 16 and 21," Deitz said.

"I am urging employers throughout the state to cooperate by making jobs available," he added.

Deitz said employers would be helping themselves by hiring youths for summer work.

"These young people can be a definite economic asset. They are eager to work and learn," he said.

Many, according to Deitz, will be from hard-core poverty areas and must earn the money to return to school in the fall.

"Others will be seeking valuable on-the-job training experience that will help them determine lifetime vocations." Employers seeking more information should call their nearest State Employment Service Office, he said.

engagement at the St. Regis-Sheraton here in New York, Hildegard said that in addition to the nostalgic standbys — "Darling, Je Vous Aimé Beaucoup," "The Last Time I Saw Paris," and other numbers — her repertoire will also include rock-and-roll. "I love the music of today. There are some beautiful ballads."

One song she'll be singing is: "The Show Is Over. The show is on and I am it." "That's my favorite expression, especially when I have slow, restless audience. I stop and say, 'Uh-ah. The show is on and I am it.'"

But after the blue and lavender spotlights dim, the off-stage Hildegard returns, a woman once described as being "as shy as Alice Dinmore."

Female Doctor Leads Men

THURMAN SENSING
Sensing The News

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dr. Roberta Fenlon, who as the first woman president of the California Medical Association is the highest ranking American woman in organized medicine, counts the achievements of being one of many times of only "the first woman."

"So many girls fail to go into professional fields because they're afraid they can't make it," said Dr. Fenlon.

"I think anything any of us happen to achieve can be a great inspiration for young women."

Dr. Fenlon achieved her present status in the medical world over the objections of her father, also a doctor, who disapproved of women in medicine.

But she persevered and was graduated from the University of Iowa Medical School, served her internship at San Francisco General Hospital and her residency at the University of California Medical School.

She entered private practice in internal medicine in San Francisco in 1945.

In 1960, Dr. Fenlon became the first woman president of the San Francisco Medical Society and the following year was chosen Medical Woman of the year by the American Medical Women's Association.

In 1964, she was the first woman elected to the council of the California Medical Association and the first woman to chair local convocation arrangements for the American Medical Association.

Dr. Fenlon said she wasn't surprised about policy decisions made at the last CMA convention. One included advocating health insurance for all persons and lifting all restrictions on abortions.

"Medicine didn't raise its voice about anything in the past, but we've been working on these things right along," she said.

"I think a woman has the right to decide if she wants a child. The way our proposal is worded, people have a choice. It doesn't mean that anybody has to have an abortion — it's up to each individual."

Dr. Fenlon explained that the 30 years and started California Blue Shield in 1939.

"When I think of what we had 30 years ago and what we have now," she said, "I think around 80 per cent of the people are covered now."

"The question now is how best to implement our proposal so that everybody gets the same kind of medical care."

"People on welfare are afraid that doctors won't take care of them."

Once again there is serious talk in Congress of beginning impeachment proceedings against Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. This time, such proceedings may carry.

In 1953, impeachment proceedings were started because of Douglas' role in staying execution of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, but the attempt died in committee.

Now, many members of Congress—not to speak of the general public—are gravely concerned about Justice Douglas' endorsement of violence in his new book, "Points of Rebellion." He said in this volume that "violence may be the only effective response in dealing with an establishment." Such a statement would not be remarkable for a Black Panther or some New Left group marching on the Berkeley campus of the University of California. But it is shocking and scandalous for violence against our free society to receive endorsement from a member of the U.S. Supreme Court. This endorsement may well be regarded as coming under the constitutional grounds for impeachment.

The procedure is for the House of Representatives to propose impeachment and for the Senate to serve as jury. Demands for impeachment proceedings have circulated since 1969 when investigative reporting turned up the fact that Douglas was employed by a charitable foundation with links to Las Vegas gambling casinos. Many Americans also were outraged in 1969 when they learned that Douglas had written an article for a magazine whose publisher had been convicted of violating federal obscenity laws.

Whatever the fate of the moves in the Congress, the country has ample reason to be appalled at the way a member of the high court has abused the constitutional system and free society of the United States.

One of the most telling chastisements he has received came in mid-April from Dr. Sidney Hook, a retired professor of philosophy at New York University and a liberal Dr. Hook who has expressed alarm at the anarchist influences on many campuses, took Justice Douglas to task for gross irresponsibility. He declared in a Brooklyn Law School symposium that Douglas' book was a "sheer caricature" of the situation in the country today, saying it reflected a "profoundly disquieting" confusion between legitimate dissent and violence, which showed a willingness to sacrifice Justice's part "to sacrifice democratic due process" even though that might mean "opening the doors to anarchy."

The professor warned: "Those who resort to violence or write apologies for rebellion are preparing the way for the very police state they fear. Exaggeration, thy name is Justice Douglas!"

Perhaps the most disturbing aspect of the Douglas situation is that he wasn't removed from the Supreme Court years ago. Here is a man who opposes everything the United States stands for, who expresses contempt for its way of life, who abuses those who wear the uniform of their country, and who, finally, makes a blatant, open endorsement of violence-terrorization of the country. If our standards of belief and conduct had not been so terribly eroded by years of liberal permissiveness, Douglas would have been impeached long ago and stripped of his pension.

It is shocking to think that a man who endorses violence against the institutions of American life is still on the nation's highest court, still casting votes on vital constitutional and legislative matters. Douglas is in a position to interpret the Constitution which he regards as unjust. The shame of having Douglas on the Supreme Court is deepened when one realizes this is a jurist who, as Senator Strom Thurmond pointed out a year ago, was involved "in a mobster operation" in his former association with Las Vegas casino interests.

One of the most devastating indictments of Justice Douglas was made by Rep. William Scherle (R-Iowa), an influential member of the House Education and Labor Committee. "As a member of the highest tribunal of the land," he said, "his (Douglas) sworn duty is to uphold obedience of law. Instead, he openly advocates the flouting and breaking of law." Calling Douglas the "self-appointed messiah of the hippies and yippies," Congressman Scherle declared, "this is the kind of mentality and morality that is now sitting on the highest court of the land handing down decrees momentarily affecting the lives and affairs of tens of millions of citizens throughout the land."

Clearly, the time has come to remove a stain from the nation's court by impeaching Justice Douglas. This important task is long overdue.

From O'Clock Forward
 If the word "aperitif" keeps popping up in conversations lately and you feel a little out of it, a quick trip to the dictionary will help. But you won't find the whole story there.
 What is an aperitif?
 The dictionary says an "aperitif" (Fr.) or "aperitivo" (It) is an alcoholic drink taken to stimulate the appetite before a meal. Add to this that there are several categories of aperitif. Many are a light wine, or a drink with a wine base, but most have an important common attribute: they are low proof. The aperitif is an extremely popular drink in Europe. Americans who find them very refreshing and stimulating between sightseeing walks have created a demand for them in this country, adding a delightful category to our roster of pre-dinner drinks.
 Aperitifs are usually ordered by their brand names. Campari, for instance, is a special favorite in Paris and Rome. Ruby-red and only so proof, this Italian aperitivo has an intriguing quality which delights people who don't like hard liquor cocktails or sweet soft drinks.
 Some other types of aperitifs are sherry, shabbin, vermouth, and quinquinas, based on quinine.
 How to order or serve aperitifs?
 In many ways, according to your preference. Take them cold and straight in a small glass. Or poured over ice. With most aperitifs, including Campari, this is a popular method of enjoying them: put ice in a tall glass or goblet and a slice of lemon or a generous twist of citrus peel. Pour two ounces of the aperitif, add four ounces of soda and stir gently.
 You've probably heard of the American as the drink of the Riviera sophisticates, but did you know it is a mild quaff made only with aperitifs? Here's how: an oz. of Campari, an oz. of Italian vermouth, twist of lemon and stir well. Add a splash of soda if you'd like.
