NOTICE

County of Rowan Before me, a Notary Public in and for the State and county aforesaid, personally appeared William J. Sample, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the owner of the Morehead Independent, and that the following is to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, as amended by the Act of March 3, 1933, embodied in section 537, Postal Laws and Regulations. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, manager, editor, and business managers are:

All men who enter the armed services of the United States are reminded that they must turn in their sugar ration books to the War Price and Rationing Board. Several men have not done this to date, which is in violation of the ration regulations.

THE MOREHEAD (KY.) INDEPENDENT

THE HOME FRONT

Several developments on the food front can be reported this week. In the first place, the OPA acted to end the grocers' cry of "Out of stock today!" A new price regulation permits a fair ceiling increase for those retail grocers who were caught with such low March price maximums that they had to remove certain food products from their shelves.

If the housewife wanted to buy these items, she had to stop at stores where the ceilings were high. This operated to protect the stores with the high ceilings, because they had no competition.

Tuna fish prices in Cleveland furnish a good illustration. A certain grade of canned tuna handled by five of the largest independents and chains in the city had ceilings of 23, 27, 29, 47, and 49 cents per can. The wholesale cost was about 31 cents per can. Obviously, the three large outlets with the lower ceiling prices wouldn't handle it at all so if the people bought it, they had to pay 47 and 49 cents a can, and go distances for it. The due higher regulation won't reduce the higher ceilings, but it will enable competing merchants to stock and sell the product at a lower price.

Also on the food front, the OPA created a food price division to take care of price research and analysis and care for the technical details of price regulation.

OPA's attempt to bring all prices into line will bring, as stated last week, possible mark-ups in 11 categories of foods which represent about 15 percent of all food purchases. These are, for the most part, seasonally-packed goods, and the present ceilings in some cases are considered unfair to the sellers. Therefore, OPA will allow the computation of new ceilings according to currently prescribed regulations on breakfast cereals, canned fish, hydrogenated shortenings, coffee, sugar, other shortenings, cooking and salad oils, canned vegetables, rice, dried fruit, and lard.

Everything that rolls on rubber-tired vehicles, excepted—is now under a 35-mile speed limit. Beating is likely to mean: No recaps or new tires for you.

The WPB has asked for development of more containers, which would not use critical materials.

War ration stamp No. 9 will be good for the purchase of three pounds of more containers, until Dec. 15. Stamp No. 8, which calls for five pounds, expires at midnight, Oct. 31.

In order to relieve the cordwood shortages wherever they may appear, the OPA has authorized all its state offices to make price adjustments in their areas whenever necessary to assure adequate supply.

Four motion pictures on subjects related to the government's fuel oil rationing and fuel conservation program are available for release to schools, industries, defense organizations, consumer committees and other groups. They are "Heat and Its Control," "The Story of Rock Wool Home Insulation," "The Story of Petroleum," and "Coal for Industry." All are available in 16-millimeter size in both sound and silent versions, except the coal film, which is in sound alone. For the first three, write to the Bureau of Mines Experiment Station, 4800 Forbes Street, Pittsburgh, Pa. For the other, write to the U. S. Bituminous Coal Consumers Council, Box 483, Washington, D. C.

Idle passenger car tires will go to work under the new gas rationing program. Car owners, to get gas cards, must register their tires by number and dispose of all over five. The government already is purchasing the extra new and used tires. The Railway Express Agency will collect the tires and at the warehouse an expert will appraise them and forward a check. The College of Agriculture and Home Economics will appraise tires, less cost of repairs.

Acting to encourage the substitution of cheaper containers to replace steel and other critical materials, the OPA has informed the chemical industry that, except in special cases, it will not permit producers to pass on to consumers increases in container costs.

About 5,500,000 pounds of fat could be saved for explosives if about 2,000 tons of brass could be saved for the war effort.

Collection of tin and steel scrap have doubled and redoubled in two months, the WPA reports. Eight thousand tons of tin cans were received for detinning in September.

Housewives: Please read that last item again and boost the collection of tin cans again and again. Your A-book for gasoline rationing will provide for 2,800 miles of driving per year at the rate of 15 miles per gallon.

The United States mint, seeking conserve war metal, has curtailed production of pennies by half in recent months. However, 59,000,000 were produced last month. Get the pennies out of your bank or your child's bank and into war stamps—and into circulation. If each of 33,000,000 families would put 10 pennies into circulation, the result would amount to one-third of last year's record production.

The coal-mining industry, with a shortage of manpower, has begun to hire women. The Union Pacific Coal Company has taken on 22. Half work in the shops and half pick slate on mine tips.

The first rent-enforcement suit in the Lorain-Elyria, O. defense rental area has been filed in U. S. Court.

Fifty-five retail merchants found by the OPA in the Cleveland region to have sold refrigerators at higher-than-legal prices, have been forced to refund $200,000 to customers a total of more than $6,900.

The ODT has sent a message to high school students: "When school's over, go home." Staggered systems of easing peak-hour transportation loads have failed in some places because students did not go home when school was let out.

A national salvage campaign is being planned for used silk and nylon hosiery. The materials are utilized in the manufacture of powder bags.

During the week beginning Oct. 21, the ODT will conduct a survey of inter-city rail and bus travel in 101 cities. The Census Bureau will interview a number of passengers on each train or bus to determine how and why travel habits have changed since Pearl Harbor. Names will not be asked. A number of the cities are in this area, and public cooperation is requested.

Rowan County Farm Notes
BY DAN BEAME
County Agent

Stalks from the present tobacco crop, properly preserved and spread on the land, would be worth $1,000,000 to Kentucky farmers, declares S. C. Jones of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

A ton of stalks which have not been exposed to the rain contain five or six tons of manure, according to Jones. Tobacco stalks are rich in nitrogen and potassium and contain phosphorus and lime. A ton of stalks contain 60 or 65 pounds each of nitrogen and potassium and about six pounds of phosphorus and 300 or 35 pounds of calcium, or the equivalent of about 100 pounds of ground limestone. These nutrients, if purchased in commercial fertilizers, would cost some $12 a ton, hence all farmers should carefully conserve and utilize their tobacco stalks, which might return twice this amount or more in crop increases, with present prices of farm crops.

A large part of these constituents are soluble and are readily leached out of tobacco stalks and lost, when the stalks are in the open during the fall and winter rains. They should either be piled in the barn over winter, spread thinly at once on winter cover crops or on pasture or meadow fields. Tobacco is being stripped early this fall and, with the splendid growth of cover crops and pastures prevailing, they might well be spread as stripping proceeds. If they cannot be spread now, they should be kept in the dry and spread when these crops begin growth in the spring. Rowan County farmers should either leave the stalks in the barn or spread them on their fall seeded cover crops.

Kentucky Politics

Kentuckians, noted for their fervor for politics and bitter political campaigns, are showing interest in the campaign now being waged for the November 3 election despite a lack of major issues and fiery speeches.

A United States Senator, nine Representatives in Congress, four appellate judges and one railroad commissioner will be voted into office.

Senator A. B. "Happy" Chandler, Democrat, who is seeking re-election, has been too busy in Washington to spend much time in Kentucky and has left most of his campaigning to friends.

Gov. Keen Johnson, who succeeded Chandler to the Governorship, has made several speeches urging that Chandler and Kentucky's eight Democratic Representatives in Congress, who also are seeking re-election, be returned to office because of their support of President Roosevelt's war program.

John M. Robson, Bourbonville, Kentucky's lone Republican representative, is without opposition in the general election.

Chandler is opposed by Richard J. Colbert, Lexington Republican, who has been making a quiet handshaking tour of the state. He has announced, however, that he would have a "riot to say" before the election. He has predicted a Republican victory.

The congressional race attracting the most attention is that in the Seventh District between A. J. May, Prestonsburg, Democratic incumbent, and Dr. Elmer E. Gabbard, Buckhorn, former Presbyterian minister and now president of Little Winterspoon college in Perry County.

May, chairman of the important House Military Affairs Committee, has won re-election every time since 1930, when he swung his Eastern Kentucky mountain district, which the Republicans ruled for many years.

Like Chandler, May also has been kept in Washington much of the time by the press or congressional business and has left most of his campaigning to friends.

Democratic leaders have expressed confidence that May's state and federal organization backing would overcome the support given Gabbard by the United Mine Workers of America.

Although interest is being shown in the campaign, a light vote is expected by political leaders who point out to the light August primary balloting and the fact that only 1,000 of Kentucky's 140,000 men in the armed forces have requested absentee ballots.

The total vote in both the Republican and Democratic primaries August 1 was only 230,976, compared to 815,538 in the 1930

Less than half of Kentucky's Democrats voted in August, although the primary attracted more interest than has the general election because of the bitter campaign waged against Chandler by John Young Brown, Lexington attorney.

Paul M. O'Leary Pre-dicts Rationing of Many Items

Paul M. O'Leary, the plain-spoken doctor of philosophy who runs rationing for Leon Henderson, warned that Americans are in for "a lot more rationing if the war lasts a couple of years longer."

He declined to discuss the current problem child, coffee, but made it clear that the Office of Price Administration, of which he is deputy administrator for rationing, if necessary, just because it might be considered a luxury or because it contained caffeine.

"We're not making semantical distinctions between necessary foods and so-called luxury foods," the former economics professor from Cornell said in an interview. "We don't feel that it's our business to tell people what they should eat and drink."

This philosophy of O'Leary's prevailed in sugar rationing. O. P. A. was under great pressure to curtail allotments to beverage bottlers and give more to bakers, but O'Leary pointed-out that the supply was not being cut "anywhere near the nutritional danger level—so we're not deciding whether a man should eat a cream puff or drink a bottle of soda pop."

Crippled Children Clinic To Be Held At Mt. Sterling

Previously Treated Cases Are Urged To Attend Clinic For Check-Up

A free clinic for crippled children in six counties will be held in the Baptist Church, corner of Howard and High Sts., Mt. Sterling, on Wednesday, November 14. The clinic will be conducted by the Kentucky Crippled Children's Commission, official state agency in charge of such service; examinations will be made by Dr. W. M. Brown, Lexington, orthopedic surgeon, assisted by field nurses on the Commission's staff.

Counties for whose benefit the clinic is planned are Bath, Menifee, Montgomery, Morgan, Powell, and Rowan. Notices are being mailed to all previously treated cases in this district urging them to come to Mt. Sterling on November 14 for a check-up on their physical condition. Many new cases are also expected to attend. A similar clinic was held in Mt. Sterling in September, 1941 when 93 physically handicapped boys and girls were examined. Many of these have received treatment during the past year.

"Like other agencies the Kentucky Crippled Commission is feeling the effects of the war," stated Miss Marian Williamson, director. "Several of our surgeons are now in the armed services and two of our nurses are in the Army Nursing Corps. Transportation difficulties are also making it difficult to carry on our work. We cannot plan as many clinics. The Mt. Sterling clinic this year is a special concession to the interest of people in this area and to the needs of the children. We urge every crippled child to take advantage of this opportunity for diagnosis as we cannot predict when we may be able to hold another clinic here."

Miss Williamson further stated that the splendid co-operation of public agencies, such as the county health departments, and private agencies, clubs and local committees undoubtedly would help the Commission in this war emergency so that the fine program of services to crippled children need not be curtailed too drastically.
