

GOLDIE CANTRELL RESUMES STUDIES

PEOPLE AT MOREHEAD COLLEGE APPEALED TO HER TO RETURN AND FINISH COURSE

After a brief vacation, which followed the discovery by the authorities of Morehead college that she was in reality Miss Goldie Cantrell instead of Mr. Murray, in which latter personality she masqueraded, the adventurous Ceredo lassie has returned to the institution to school. After she had been identified as a masquerader she was returned to her home, but she had not spent many days there before the people at the school, who had grown fond of her companionship, began to long for her to return. Perhaps it was the instructors who wanted her to return and take her place in the classes in which she had established such a reputation for scholarship, and on the other hand it may have been some of the young ladies whose hearts were smitten by the gallantry of the disguised Goldie. It may have been a combination of these influences, but at any rate the people at the school wrote to her urgently appealing for her to return to Morehead and finish the course.

So strongly did they appeal that Miss Cantrell's family consented for her to return, and she herself consented to go in the garments prescribed by convention for the members of her sex, and to observe the limitations which have been set for women by society.

She is now back at Morehead, no doubt readily and easily recovering any ground which she lost during her vacation and, it is not unlikely again leading her classes. She will have the advantage of the friendship and counsel of the teachers at the college and the girls whose friendship she won during her masquerade, and it is quite probable that she will remain quietly at the institution until her education is completed. She will be watched closely for symptoms of a return of the wanderlust, in order that these may be overcome by prompt treatment.
