

CRAIG TOLLIVER'S SLAYER.

Hiram Pigman Tackles a Railroad Train With Di-astrous Results.

Morehead, Ky., Nov. 27.—(Special)—Hiram Pigman, who was run over by a train yesterday, was barely alive this morning, and his death may occur at any moment. His legs were both amputated. Pigman was intoxicated at the time of the accident, and is said to have taken his place in the middle of the track in front of the engine and walked directly toward it. The engineer did all in his power to prevent the accident, but was too close on the man to reverse his engine before it struck him. Pigman is said to have been a sober man before his implication in the Rowan war, since when he has been addicted to drinking heavily. He is credited with having fired the shot which sent the noted Craig Tolliver to his happy hunting grounds.
