Big Food Stores Have New Policy

Saveway And Allen's Open On Sundays

It's been conclusive for a long time that any "blue laws" of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, or municipalities such as Morehead, are nothing more than the paper they're printed on.

Many, probably most, Morehead and Rowan County businesses have been "open for business as usual" on Sunday.

Exceptions have been Morehead's two largest food markets - Allen's IGA Foodliner, and Ray's Saveway Super Valu.

Last week Saveway Super Valu announced their store would be open from 8:00 a.m. until midnight, Monday through Saturday; and 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Today, Allen's IGA Foodliner advertised new hours - open from 8:00 a.m. until midnight seven days a week.

These two retail outlets do the bulk of the food business in Morehead and have been closing at 6:00 p.m. except Friday and Saturday when they remained open two hours later.

Most of Morehead's smaller food stores have been open late at night, and also certain hours on Sundays.

Small Stores May Suffer

There is speculation that an announcement may be forthcoming that one food store will be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. "Our doors are never locked."

The owner of one of the smaller food stores which has been open on Sundays called the

Blood Needed! You May Be A Donor Wednesday

The Red Cross blood bank remains "dangerously low" and an appeal for donors was made today by Mrs. C. C. Mayhall who has charge of this program.

The bloodmobile will visit Morehead next Wednesday (Oct. 7) from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., stationed at the Military Science Department in Button Hall at Morehead State University.

Mrs. Mayhall said that 85 percent of the blood will go to the Rowan blood bank; and 15 percent to the overseas armed forces. She added: "All you have to do is show up at Button Hall next Wednesday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., and you will be making a significant contribution to Rowan County and our men in the armed services."

Bribery Is Charged ...

Morehead Area Involved

Some important names, and companies, of the Morehead area appear in a $4 million lawsuit stemming from recent rejection of bids on $9 million in Eastern Kentucky Highway projects.

Bribery charges have also been made in Franklin Circuit court.

Figuring prominently in the alleged bribery, and law suit from this section are - Jack Ruth, whose address is listed as BLIGHT FIGHT . . . The corn blight has hit, and harshly and destructively so, in Rowan County, and almost all of Kentucky. Corn growers are wondering about next year's crop, and a story on page three analyzes their concern. Farmers James Rice compares two severely blighted hybrid ears with two healthy, unaffected ears of "old time" corn, the four ears coming from adjacent rows.

stockholder in East Kentucky Paving Company; Kentucky Road Oiling Company; one Kentucky's largest limestone quarries, and hot-mix plants at Clearfield, about two miles southwest of Morehead; and other construction companies which have done most of the highway work, both primary and secondary, in eastern Kentucky for several years.

+Harold Kelly, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, and partner in Kelly and Galloway, Ashland, one of Kentucky's largest CPA firms. Kelly is a frequent Morehead visitor, and his company has conducted, without charge, special classes in accounting at Morehead State University. The alleged $300,000 bribe offer was made to Kelly.

+Bizzak Brothers Construction Co., Frankfort, presently building the 2 1/2 mile, four-lane, connector road from Morehead to Interstate 64; and the company that has done much of the construction on I-64 through this part of Kentucky.

The first deposition in the case, filed by J.D. Barter Construction Co., Harrisburg, Ill., and Mattingly Bridge Co., Louisville, states that at least three contractors, unsuccessful bidders on the three Floyd County projects, offered $300,000 to officials of Barter and Mattingly if they would not oppose rejection of their bids.

The deposition also states that there was talk that rejection of the bids by the state Highway Department would be "worth $25,000."

The document, which is a sworn statement taken by attorneys before trial, was given by James C. Watson, executive assistant to Gov. Louie B. Nunn, and followed a request from attorneys for the plaintiffs.

Defendants in the case include Jack Ruth of Georgetown, president of the Kentucky Association of Highway Contractors; Victor E. Comley of Nicholasville, the association's executive director; the state Highway Department, and Highway Commissioner

B. E. King. King's name was substituted for former Highway Commissioner Eugene Gossett after the latter resigned Aug. 14.

Watson's deposition is primarily an account of events prior to, and during an Aug. 4 meeting called by Gov. Nunn in his office. It is not bound by stricter rules of evidence in force during a trial and portions may be thrown out as hearsay evidence.

The contractors allegedly involved in the $300,000 offer are Bizzak Brothers Construction, Frankfort; Eastern Kentucky Paving Corp., Grayson, and Adams

City Sticker Tax To Expire Today

Raid May Bring 3 Charges

Local option, gun law and stolen motor vehicle alleged violations all hit federal and state court records Thursday with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Morehead district barracks of the Kentucky State Police pooling forces.

Lt. Dale Fortner of the State Police said the FBI agents asked assistance of the Morehead barracks to arrest Zane Gray Wages on a charge of the theft of a large trailer truck in Michigan and its removal across state lines to Rowan County.

Lt. Fortner, Detective Paul Hicks and Trooper Carl Sluss accompanied the FBI agents to a place known as the "Bridge Drive-Around," often previously raided for "local option" violations.

Police said that Wages opened a rear door when advised they had a warrant for his arrest. . . . and when the door was opened they (State Police) saw considerable amounts of alcoholic beverages on the inside.

Whiskey, Beer Located

The FBI arrested Wages; and State Police then searched the Drive-Around.

According to the blotter at the district State Police office the following was confiscated: a full case of assorted whiskey; 10 cases of various kinds of beer; eight half-pints gin; four shotguns; and four pistols.

The FBI took Wages to the federal jail at Calhounburg, and he has specifically been charged in the Eastern District of the United States Court with the theft and interstate

Police Plan Street Blocks This Friday

Today (Thursday, Oct. 1) is the deadline to purchase the $10 Morehead automobile and truck stickers.

The old stickers expired Sept. 1, but Mayor William H. Layne, by executive order, extended the deadline to Oct. 1.

Chief of Police Collis Coyle said he had been instructed to set up street blocks tomorrow (Friday) and cite into city court all violators.

Heretofore, any person found guilty of violating the ordinance has: 1. Been forced to purchase the tag (a license); and 2. Fined $10 and $12.50 costs in city police court. And, through the years there have been no exceptions, probations or alleviations from this policy.

Summed up, if you haven't paid the $10 to the City Clerk by tomorrow morning, affected the new sticker to your windshield, and drive in Morehead, the odds are you will be stopped at a street block, and given a court citation, tantamount to a warrant of arrest.

Ordinance Strictly Enforced

It has also been past policy to intermittently conduct other street blocks at key intersections.

As one court official put it: "There's no way you can get out of paying this tax."

The sticker tax also applies to residents of Morehead, but to all persons residing outside the city limits, but working (drawing a pay check) in Morehead.

Most of the stickers was expected this group of 500 stickers was enacted last year by

In Rowan County ...

$1,775,000 Farm Income

By and large, the past year proved to be a better one for Rowan County's farm population than had appeared likely.

Although some local operators barely held their own, others, especially those with well-equipped commercial-size setups, ended up on the plus side.

Local crop and livestock production was at a high level, despite the fact that a considerable amount of land was kept out of use, in line with the government's reduction program.

More mechanized equipment and intensified use of fertilizers and pesticides spelled the difference.

According to the findings, part of a national survey released by the Standard Rate and Data Service, Rowan County farmers had a gross income in the year of $1,775,000.

This was gross, before deductions for taxes, interest, wages and other operating costs. Much of it was offset by the usual cost-price squeeze.

The better-than-expected level of income was due, to a great degree, to the fact that the prices of farm products, especially livestock, rose considerably during 1969. The ever-expanding appetite of Americans for fresh meat produced the best year since 1966 for ranchers.

The farmer's complaint was that he ended up with too small a share of the increase, that much of it went to the shippers, processors and other middlemen.

The $1,775,000 in gross income locally included the sale of farm products, government payments and "income in kind, which is the value of home grown items that are consumed on the farm."

An estimated 69 percent of the income from farm marketings came from the sale of crops, according to Department of Agriculture estimates, and the other 31 percent from the sale of poultry, livestock and dairy products.

For the farm population of Rowan County, the gross income was at the rate of $1,109 per farm resident. This compares with $998 per capita in 1968.

For the farm population as a whole, the past year produced a net income of about $16 billion, as against $15 billion in 1968, according to the Department of Agriculture.

The Morehead News was probably the first publication in Kentucky to portray in its news and editorial columns (several times) that the order had been issued to curb drunk driving, and enforcement was being expanded and expedited. This newspaper was also one of the first to publish each issue the names, ages, addresses of all in Rowan, and area, counties whose licenses had been suspended or revoked for drunk driving or other traffic violations. State Police say this publicity paying "handsome dividends" in saving lives, and pin-pointing the violators to make them think twice before driving while drinking. Jim Warren wrote the following story this week which properly gives credit to some insurance companies for their assistance. Regardless, as repeatedly portrayed in Morehead News headlines the "crackdown" or "heat" is on, and if you drive while drinking your name may be one that appears in the weekly suspension and revocation list of this newspaper, often printed on page one.

Gov. Louis B. Nunn recently thanked a representative of the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky (IIAK) for that organization's help and cooperation in his drunk driving campaign conducted from May through the middle of July.

The campaign, including completion of breathalyzer placement in all counties, consisted of radio and TV editorials, newspaper stories and cartoons.

Nunn told Jack Keyser, IIAK executive secretary, the campaign had been a success, with some 2201 drunken drivers removed from the state's roads. Convictions for drunken driving increased 35.8 percent over the same period last year.

The Christian Science Monitor recently called Governor Nunn's campaigning exceptional and said few governors had been as successful in curbing drunken driving and crime.

Keyser said his organization contributed 13000 to the Kentucky Press Assn. for publication of anti-drunk-driving messages which appeared in over 40 newspapers for three weeks in July.

Through its newsletter, IIAK also urged its members to encourage stricter traffic law enforcement in their local areas.

The twenty-fifth annual Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Governor's Tour will stop for lunch in Morehead this morning (Thursday, October 1).

Accompanying Governor Louis B. Nunn will be 125 business and industrial leaders from throughout the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

The group will arrive by bus around 11 a.m. and tour Morehead and the University, accompanied by Chamber of Commerce officials and University personnel. Following the 45 minute tour, the group will have lunch in the ballroom of the Adron Doran University Center.

Entertainment will be provided by the MSU Stage Band, directed by Gene Deaton. Speaking at the luncheon will be Governor Nunn and John T. Acree, Jr., Louisville, President of the Kentucky Chamber. Local officials will give short welcoming presentations.

Tickets for the 11:45 luncheon are $2.50 and may be purchased from members of the Chamber of Commerce or at the Bureau of University Affairs on the Morehead State University campus. All interested individuals are invited to attend.

The tour will leave Louisville on Tuesday morning, October 6, traveling east to Frankfort, Georgetown, Paris, and Carlisle will be stops before lunch at Cynthia.

Afternoon visits will include stops in Falmouth and Williamson before spending the evening in Erlanger.

Wednesday, Oct. 7 will find the Governor's tour in Covington, Newport, and Augusta before stopping for lunch at Maysville. The afternoon of the 7th will be spent en route to Ashland where the group will spend the evening.

The three bus entourage will depart for Morehead on the morning of the eighth with stops in Grayson and Olive Hill planned. Members of the Morehead Chamber of Commerce and university officials will board the buses on US 60 opposite the University Golf Course and will take the Governor and his touring group on a guided tour of Morehead and Morehead State University.

The cost of the tour is $92.50 for each participant, with the cost including transportation, meals, lodging, and entertainment.

Dale L. Smith of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce is tour manager. The local contacts are designated by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce to work with the state group in planning the Morehead stop are: Alpha Hutchinson, President of the Citizens Bank; Bill Layne, Mayor; W. E. Crutcher, Publisher of the Morehead News and affiliates; Paul Jackson, President, Morehead Chamber of Commerce; and Dr. Ray Hornback, Vice President for University Affairs, MSU.

"We are highly honored to have Governor Nunn and this distinguished group of business and professional leaders visit Morehead," said Hutchinson, "and we sincerely hope that a large group of Morehead business leaders will join us in welcoming the Governor and his tour."

Miss Claudia Louise Bowman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Bowman of Clearfield, has been selected the most outstanding student nurse at Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington. She will represent the school at the national nursing convention in Louisville the third week of October.

Miss Bowman will compete with other top-ranking student nurses during the convention.

DRUNK DRIVING CAMPAIGN DISCUSSED-Gov. Louie B. Nunn discusses the success of his recent drunk driving campaign with Arthur E. (Buzz) Beard, left, executive director of the Kentucky Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee, and Jack Keyser, executive secretary of the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky. The Independent Insurance Agents cooperated in the Governor's campaign by sponsoring anti-drunk-driving messages in 40 newspapers around the state. (Craig Clover Photo) transport of the big $20,000 to $30,000 truck. This truck, trailer type, has figured in the news since it was located in a garage or barn on Flemingsburg road, about three miles north of Morehead. Charges against the owner of the garage where the truck was located were dismissed by the courts because of an illegal search warrant and/or entrapment.

However, FBI agents who arrested Wages Thursday, said investigation into the truck, stolen in Michigan and transported to Morehead, has been continuous for several months. As a result of an investigation by the FBI a warrant was obtained for Wages, and served as above, State Police.

Friday morning, State Police appeared before the Bath County Judge, and Wages is charged there (Owingsville) with illegal possession of the alcoholic beverages found in Thursday's raid.

L. Fortner said that the State Police and the FBI are checking the eight guns found in the Drive-Around building to ascertain if there is any violation of the new federal gun law, or any State firearms statutes.

Drunk Driving Arrests Decrease

State Police also said -

→The bootlegging traffic has almost ceased in Rowan County. A few small places could be operating under cover, selling whiskey only to a few "known" customers. Police claim that Rowan is now the "driest" county in Kentucky. Two years ago, State Police issued a statement that Rowan was the "widest open local option violating county" in all the Commonwealth, and beer and whiskey was being sold openly to anybody, including youths and girls, through drive-around windows in places on main highways. Since then, more than 60 raids have been conducted by State Police.

→Investigation into an alleged "double murder" at Midland in the vicinity of the Drive-Around continues. (The Drive-Around is located on the west banks of Licking River, just over the Rowan County line).

→Arrests for drunken driving in Rowan County, and this area, are falling. Police attribute much of this favorable report to publicity listing the name, age, address, and cause for every driver's license that has been suspended or revoked... and said, the Morehead News had been the major factor in helping them combat highway violations, particularly drunk drivers. (About six months ago the Morehead News started publishing these names etc for Rowan and adjoining counties).

Food Stores -

Morehead News and said: "This means the end of us little fellows."

Announcement of the "until midnight" hours, and "open on Sundays" from the two large supermarkets came as no surprise. The large chain stores in Lexington, and in almost all parts of Kentucky, have recently announced the "until midnight and open on Sunday" policy. This includes such chains as Kroger, A&P, Winn-Dixie etc.

Announcement Not Unexpected

A retail food store magazine, (trade publication) to which the Morehead News is a subscriber has, in recent issues, predicted that most all large self-service food stores in the nation will turn to late weekday night closing hours; and would do business on Sunday.

The editorial observation has been that the smaller stores that are open at night and on Sunday are "draining" trade from the supermarkets... and the number of employed women is steadily increasing and they do not have sufficient time after working hours to shop at the stores which close early.

Because of lower volume, labor costs etc smaller food stores charge, probably without exception, more than the big self-service supermarkets. The trade magazine commented.

Meanwhile, Allen's has started construction of a new 10,500 foot building adjacent to the campus of Morehead State University on the north side of Main Street (U.S. 60). They have not announced the hours for their "second Morehead store" expected to open before Thanksgiving.

Circumstances Sketchy . . .

Rowan Soldier Killed

A Rowan County soldier, Specialist 4 Bruce Edward Thomas, 22, was killed in Vietnam Saturday, but official sources in Washington have not released further details other than the death was "non-hostile" or "while not in combat."

However, fragmentary information reaching Morehead is that Thomas was shot, but whether the bullet was fired by a fellow soldier, civilian, or any other pertinent facts are not available.

The parents, James E. and Lillian Sparks Thomas, RFD 3, have been notified the body is enroute to the states, probably by plane. It will be brought to Stucky Funeral Home at Morehead and burial will be in the New Hill cemetery near Haldeman. Date and time of funeral and other arrangements will be announced after the remains arrive in Morehead.

Bruce Edward, a graduate of Rowan County High and former employee of the Dairy-Cheer at Morehead, entered the armed forces Mar. 2, 1969.

He was scheduled to end his tour of duty and return to the States next Sunday, Oct. 4. He was with the 3rd Battalion 16th Infantry, working in the mailing room of the post.

Besides his parents, immediate survivors include - a brother, Michael Thomas, Morehead; two sisters, Mrs. Kay Williams in Germany with her husband, and Kathy Thomas, at home; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Frank Thomas, RFD 2, Morehead; maternal grandfather, Leburn Sparks, RFD 2; and a half-brother, Eddie Thomas, RFD 2.

Specialist Thomas was widely known in Morehead and the Hays Crossing and Haldeman areas of Rowan County, having lived here all his life before entering the army.

It has been ascertained that he met death at Chu Lai in Vietnam.

Last month the Army conferred on Thomas an award for meritorious service as a mail clerk in 3rd Battalion of the division's 16th Artillery, stationed at Chu Lai. This citation previously published in the Morehead News noted that he completed his basic training at Fort Knox, and advanced training at Ft. Sill, Okla., before being assigned to Vietnam.

Recurring Heart Attacks Take Life Of Bill Caskey, 67

A long and recurring illness claimed the life last Wednesday of William C. (Bill) Caskey, 67, of Lafayette, Ind.

Mr. Caskey formerly resided at Morehead where he was employed by the city.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon at the Free Will Baptist Church by Reverends Ted Green and Russell Reynolds. Burial followed at New Hill cemetery. Stucky Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Mr. Caskey had suffered several heart attacks before the massive seizure that took his life.

He was born in Morgan County June 1, 1902, son of the late Tom and Emma (McKenzie) Caskey.

He married Mary Alice Brown of Morehead who survives.

Other immediate survivors are a brother, Chester Caskey, Morehead; and two sisters, Mrs. Gerrie Kelley of Morehead, and Mrs. Minnie Burns of Harvey, Ill.; two stepsons, Elwood Williams of Kent, Wash., and Charles Williams of Schererville, Ind.; two stepdaughters - Mrs. Louvenia Wilson and Mrs. Ruth Reynolds, both of Morehead; 24 stepchildren; and 52 step great-grandchildren.

GRASS ROOTS

by Roy Stevens

Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation

Ecology, meaning the relation between organisms and their environment, is a word most people had never heard until recently. But now the word is tossed around like footballs in the autumn air, and it's become a rallying cry for many sincere—and more than a few insincere—crusaders for a cleaner, healthier environment.

As a mass movement, heavily supported by public sentiment, the effort to clean up the air and land and water is worthwhile and, to put it in the tongue of the young, "very meaningful."

However, like all mass movements, this one has been infiltrated by those who could care less about the environment, who simply want to be a part of a popular cause, or who see it as another reason to parade and picket and protest.

People who carry signs demanding a clean environment can't be judged as sincere when they leave their signs, along with other assorted garbage, littered all over the landscape.

Nor is it a mark of sincerity when individuals destroy an old automobile with a sledge hammer as a symbol of protest against auto exhaust pollution, and then hop in their shiny new sports cars and race off in a cloud of dust for another demonstration.

And the whole ecological movement becomes ludicrous when people start trying to outdo one another in offering suggestions for a cleaner environment. At such a point, we can only expect (a) shouting matches, (b) finger-pointing, (c) hand wringing, (d) ideas ranging from the quixotic to the absurd, and (e) very little constructive advice.

Farmers are now on the receiving end of some finger-pointing by those who claim modern agriculture contributes to the pollution problem through use of pesticides, disposal of animal wastes, airborne chemicals, etc. Some of the finger-pointing is justified, much of it goes beyond reason.

For example, there are people who favor banning the use of all agricultural pesticides, chemicals, and fertilizers. These folks, of course, would faint dead away if they found a worm in an apple and would stream bloody murder if they went to the grocery and found only a few, terrifically high-priced food items which had somehow escaped the bugs and reached the market. Even though the extent and nature of

Hard Luck, Winless Eagles Will Play Murray Here Saturday Night

"We played well enough to win but there were just too many lost scoring opportunities."

Morehead State University Football Coach Jake Hallum couldn't hide the disappointment in his voice as he talked of his Eagles' 14-6 loss at Middle Tennessee Saturday night.

The defeat dropped MSU to 0-2 overall and 0-1 in the Ohio Valley Conference.

After two losses on the road the Eagles are coming home for Saturday night's clash with Murray State, the squad Hallum picked in pre-season polls as the "team to beat," in the OVC this season.

Murray's Racers, 1-1 on the year after losing to Tennessee Tech, 21-7, last weekend, have "potentially the most explosive offense in the league," according to Hallum.

Coach Bill Ferguson's attack is built around All-OVC quarterback Matt Haug, receivers Billy Hess and Jack Wolf and running backs Rick Fisher, Jimmy Brown and Jonathan White.

"We had a fairly good overall effort but now we'll have to get ready for an even better football team," Hallum added. "Our scouts also were impressed with their defense. They have some very definite pro prospects."

The Eagle offense rolled up 294 yards against Middle Tennessee but the Blue Raider defense held four times inside the 10-

Poor Are Uneducated

In 1968, 25 percent of the families whose heads had completed less than 8 years of school were poor. For family heads with just 8 years of schooling, the incidence of poverty was cut in half to 13 percent. This downward trend continued - to a rate of 2 percent for families headed by a college graduate - with each rise in the level of education of the family head.

yard-line. Two drives were stopped on pass interceptions.

Hallum said he was "generally satisfied" with the performance of his freshman quarterback, Dave Schaefer. The Toledo rookie connected on four of 17 passes for 50 yards and rushed 16 times for 38 yards.

"Dave matured down there," Hallum said of Schaefer's game-long tenure. "I'm sure he will profit from his mistakes."

Hallum was pleased with the running of fullback Bill Cason who rushed 14 times for 114 yards and MSU's only touchdown. Cason, who carried the ball one time against Marshall, alternated with Doug Moore at fullback.

Louis Rogan, Morehead State's two-time All-OVC tailback, appeared for the first time and picked up 30 yards in 10 carries. Hallum said Rogan's timing was slightly off but that he expected the 200 pound speedster to "do another great job for us this season."

As for the Murray game Hallum said he expected Haug's passing to be the "first real test" of the MSU secondary.

"We also expect to work more on our passing game," Hallum added. "It probably will take a lot of scoring to stay with Murray."

Future Corn Blight Dangers Analyzed

By Gary G. Huddleston
 "We know how to control the blight, we just need a little time."
 This statement recently launched a discussion by Dr. A. S. Williams, extension plant pathologist for the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, on current scientific understanding of the southern corn leaf blight.

"The nature of the disease, its causes and cures, are fairly well understood by researchers, but the short-term economic effects constitute matters still classified as 'your guess is as good as mine.'"

"The fungus believed responsible for Kentucky's heavily damaged cornfields is so new, it has not, as yet, been given a name, according to Williams.

"We believe it got a buildup early this year in Florida," he said.

"Weather conditions, including high humidities, heavy dews and long periods of early-morning moisture on leaf surfaces, were perfect across the Gulf States for a substantial spore production."

"Prevailing southerly winds during June and July pulled in heavy spore showers across Kentucky and further north."

To understand the susceptibility of common hybrid field corn varieties to the fungus, it is necessary to examine production practices at seed-corn plots operated by major supply companies.

By using corn plants known as "male sterile," in combination with other inbred varieties, the cross-pollination process which produces hybrid seed was accomplished by the companies without detasseling the female plants, Williams explained.

The result was a big savings in labor expense for the seed companies.

However, the new blight fungus is extremely destructive to the "male sterile" corn, which makes up a large majority of popular hybrid varieties on the market today, he said.

"The seed companies now must get the 'male sterility' factor out of their corn."

"To do this, they will have to abandon the use of 'male sterile' plants and hire laborers to de-tassel the seed-bearing plants by hand."

"If the seed companies had known about the blight early in the current season, they would have had no problem producing an adequate supply of blight-resistant seed corn for the 1971 crop year."

"There are plenty of resistant varieties," he added, "it will just take time to develop enough seed."

Williams noted some companies have planted seed plots in Hawaii and South America, where the growing season has just begun, in an effort to boost seed supplies for next year.

He admitted, however, blight-resistant seed is likely to be in short supply for at least one year and the destructive fungus will probably be present in Kentucky in 1971.

Williams refused to speculate as to the effect of the blight on cattle and swine prices, or possible retail meat cost increases.

Dr. L.G. Northington, state veterinarian, said he anticipates "a small increase in the prices of meat," but that such a hike would be "figured in pennies, not a large amount."

Commissioner of Agriculture J. Robert Miller estimates an economic loss of 30 to 45 percent of Kentucky's corn crop, due to blight damage.

The national estimate is considerably lower, at six percent. This is due largely to vast Mid western corn-belt acreages still relatively untouched by the southern disease.

One Adair Co. corn grower believes he has another answer to the blight.

James Rice, a lifetime veteran of all aspects of farming, can boast near-normal production in much of his 100 acres of corn. Over the years, Rice has not been convinced by the promises of higher yields from modern hybrid varieties, and has continued to raise open-pollinated, or "old-time" corn.

In fact, he selects seed from his harvest each fall, as he and his family have for the past 30 years, for the following season's planting.

Wayne Livesay, Adair Co. extension agent, admits that Rice's "old-time" corn is by far the best corn crop he's seen this year.

Rice, who said he constantly tries new varieties of corn to compare them with his time-tested strains, planted some 20 acres of hybrid this year.

But, the hybrid is so blight-damaged—some in the same field with the unaffected open-pollinated variety—that he is unsure whether it will be worth harvesting.

Dr. Williams, when asked if the blight might signal a partial return to "old-time" corn, conceded that many non-hybrid varieties are extremely resistant to the blight, but said he would not recommend extensive planting.

"The farmer raising 'old-time' corn could suffer a 30 percent drop in yield potential, as compared to comparably-farmed blight-free hybrid varieties," he said.

"The average grower can't absorb that kind of loss."

Williams said as soon as statewide yield figures are computed, and blight resistance among hybrid varieties is determined, a list of strains recommended for 1971 planting will be published.

He cautioned that the list might not be ready until the first of the year, but that every effort would be made to hasten its publication.

COMMISSIONER MILLER on Kentucky Agriculture

By J. Robert (Bob) Miller

The role of state departments of agriculture is undergoing vast changes as is the scope of their responsibilities.

This was clearly evidenced by the agenda of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture which held its annual meeting last week. Various topics were considered from an entirely different approach than they would have been, say, 10 years ago.

For example, today we are looking at pesticides from the standpoint of registration, instead of only considering them for their effectiveness. In other words, we can no longer concern ourselves only with whether or not a particular chemical is effective—we must also be concerned whether it is a safe one to use.

As a major user of pesticides, I am pleased that agriculture is a leader in seeking to control those chemicals which might prove harmful to human health of welfare. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has acted to ban the use of questionable chemicals.

Restrictions on the uses of certain pesticides is related to the role which departments of agriculture must play in environmental controls. Our farmers and the industry of agriculture must concern itself with waste disposal, air and water pollution, and other activities which might relate to the environment in which we live.

Another area in which departments of agriculture must become more deeply involved is that of rural development. Today's concept of rural development is much broader than that which we knew

More Gardens And... Less Food Stamps

By Bill Sackett
 The Emergency Food and Medical program financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO), subsidizes food stamps; but that isn't the only way the money can be spent.

For example in the Licking Valley Community Action Agency headquartered in Flemingsburg the distributors of E.F. and M. vouchers aren't always waiting for a crisis before acting. Some of the money was used to buy $1700 worth of potential food in a manner that will reduce the possibility of a hunger crisis ever arising.

The Licking Valley CAA, which is conducting part of OEO's war on poverty purchased wholesale 15 different types of seeds and young plants. Naturally they were bought in bulk quantity; for example more than 30,000 tomato plants and 26,000 cabbage plants were distributed.

"We figure that more than 450 families were helped by this effort," said Martin Wiscup Licking Valley Director.

Wiscup estimates that of the families eligible to receive the materials less than one per cent actually didn't benefit.

Licking valley CAA serves eight counties in northeastern Kentucky: Bracken Robertson Fleming, Mason, Nicholas, Montgomery, Menifee and Bath Counties.

The cost was estimated to be less than $4.00 per family.

The project has been successful. "The people already know how to garden" explained Wiscup. "The older people particularly seemed to take a great deal of pride in their gardens."

Rowan Soldier Killed; Struck By Automobile

A Rowan County soldier, Pfc Kenneth L. Hunter, 22, was killed last Tuesday, when struck by an automobile on a highway adjacent to the Fort Leonard Wood Army Base, Missouri.

Fort Leonard Wood officials said that Hunter was returning, probably by bus, to the post. He was walking along the highway near the entrance gate to Fort Leonard Wood when hit by a car driven by a civilian.

The report said the car which struck Hunter and another automobile were passing each other at the time. The fatality happened at 11 p.m.

The remains were removed to Morehead and final services conducted at Lane Funeral Home Saturday morning at 10 o'clock by Elder R.A. Reynolds. Full military rites were conferred at graveside in Clearfield cemetery by a detachment from Fort Knox.

Pfc Hunter was born in Rowan County Oct. 1, 1948, son of Tandy Hunter, Jr., and the late Maggie (Donahue) Hunter. He resided here all his life before entering the armed forces. He was a member of the Church of God, and a graduate of Rowan County High.

Besides the father, he leaves four brothers — Billy of Florida, Jim of Indianapolis, Ind., and Tab and Winford, both of Morehead, and four sisters — Mrs. Connie Waggoner of Clearfield, Wanda Hunter of Louisville, Ginger Hunter at home, and Mrs. Geraldine Whitt, Paris, Ky.

Pfc Hunter was with the 515th Engineering Company, 5th Engineering Battalion. He earned several citations and honors including: expert pistol, expert sharpshooter, and the six star Combat Medal.

He served 17 months in Vietnam and was engaged in several front line skirmishes with the enemy.

Publisher's en... Day-by-day job-steps, and editorial calendar newspaper.

Last Friday and Saturday were long anticipated and carefully planned days for junior and senior girl scouts from Rowan County, and this part of Kentucky.

The annual "fall camp out" was scheduled at the University farm, near Morehead. In addition to troops from Morehead, the campers included girl scouts from many other places like Mt. Sterling, Lexington, Winchester, Bath County, etc.

Greatest anticipation was obvious among the junior scouts - 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th graders - but junior and senior high schoolers were included.

The University farm is big enough so that each troop could select its own tent erecting and camping spot, and still be isolated from other groups.

The Morehead State University ROTC Unit, and the Recreation Division of MSU (house and maintenance) were of great support, and had more than sufficient and qualified volunteers to help the girl scouts with any problem or emergency.

What happened can best be described from what one Morehead junior group did.

Shortly before the camp was to start Friday afternoon, and tents erected, heavy rain started falling. They, and several other troops, moved to the Laughton being awarded by the State for blacktopping on the University farm to be completed early next spring.

The ROTC and MSU Recreation Division arranged hikes, handicraft, classes such as lantern making, etc. and flower study identification, and many other individual and collective projects, plus games and sports.

On Saturday afternoon (after the many tents had been erected) a real big storm moved in, driving the girls inside their tents.

Most of the firewood, previously collected and stacked for outdoor cooking, became so wet it was useless.

Somehow, troops were able to find enough wood to start fires. Some chaparones or leaders were far-sighted enough to cover stacks of wood or place the wood inside tents.

The chaparones for the junior troop from which this account was related managed to start a fire, even though rain continued to fall. They had a large cooking kettle, and placed into this most of their food - pork and beans, hamburger, cabbage, carrots, tomatoes, etc. They called it girl's stew.

Before the stew was served over the open and sputtering fire, the girls were really, really hungry. So, the stew was served when edible, although the carrots etc were not fully cooked.

This troop had 13 present; and there were 13 little hungry-mouth heads grouped around that stew kettle as being served. Each gobbled up the stew; and all came back for seconds and thirds.

Rain fell through the night, and water seeped under the tents and into the girls sleeping bags, although water trenches had been dug around the tents.

The rain finally stopped, and this junior troop had a nice outdoor breakfast of juice, bacon, eggs and milk. But the skies remained ominous; and it was decided to move out.

It was then discovered that all the automobiles were mired in mud. The University farm furnished a tractor to pull the cars to the highway. Monday, the ROTC dismantled the tents and returned them to respective troops.

We asked one pretty junior scout if she enjoyed the camporee. Her reply: "Oh, it was wonderful... best camp we've ever had! I slept, though, in the tent most of the night when I got back home."

made a verbal deal with the New York Mets to trade or sell Seave; 2. The Yankees are a member of the American League; and the Mets in the National League.

Before such a league from league trade can be consummated the player must be put on $20,000 waivers. The Yankees either had assurance, or strongly felt, that no American League player would accept the waiver, and the deal with the National League Mets would then be announced.

the cellar-dwelling White Sox waived Hamilton, and he became their property. White Sox is back home in Morehead as the White Sox took many of their rookies to the west coast this week as the season closes.

Our guess is that Steve will play next year for the White Sox, and then retire, as he will have 10 years service in the major leagues, adding substantially to his pension or retirement pay in later life.

NOT ERASABLE - State Police and other local and area law enforcement agencies, including at least one Judge, say one of the greatest contributions the Morehead News has made was when it started publishing the names, ages, and addresses of those who operate in the drunk and driving, and other major highway violations.

Also, it could be that Morehead State University is interested in using the Seas Branch site.

POOR START - Perhaps the unhappiest maybe frustrated is the correct word in Morehead today is Head Coach Jake Hallum of the MSU season. Morehead was picked by four points to beat Marshall and lost by a touchdown.

GO VIKINGS - At the start of the high school football season the Litratings in the Courier-Journal had Rowan County High's team ranked 42nd in the region, but they're rated 42nd. That's mighty good, considering how many much bigger high schools there are in Kentucky; and the metropolitan centers like Louisville, Lexington and northern Kentucky.

THERMOMETER DIPS - Last week brought the first day of autumn. Tuesday night temperatures that were as hard.

FUTURE AT MSU - Recently this newspaper editorially analyzed why enrollment at Morehead State University dropped from 6,400 in this time last year to 6,000 this fall.

PHYSICAL STRUCTURES - The above leads to the fact that although the Church of Christ is about to move (maybe this week) into its expanded building. The new auditorium will seat about 250. The church is serious about making plans, percentage-wise, faster than any group of religious worship in Morehead or the area.

ANOTHER ASSET - While passing out the orchids, we shouldn't overlook the IOOP and Rebekahs who formally dedicated their new hall on Green Street Sunday afternoon.

WE HAVEN'T CHANGED - Those who read this column each week will likely say after all the orchid phrases above: "That Publisher's evidently got up on the right side of the street, and we haven't changed."

He's had a burning day of the races. Of course, that's not true, and we feel pretty good and then our blood pressure is around 150 or 90 which is acceptable, and could drop to 140 or 70, which is perfect, if we keep on this diet, and exercise on one or two other things that the preacher of our church sometimes condemns from the pulpit.

WELCOME - The Governor's Tor (story elsewhere in this issue) will visit and have lunch at Morehead on Thursday, Oct. 8 (Oct. 8). Could it be that whoever compiled the itinerary realized that it is the Publisher's birthday? We'll be over 50, but a shade short of three acres. Our doctor says we'll live 20 or 30 more years following certain advice.

and rules. Trouble is there's not much fun or excitement in any of the medical stipulations that are involved. It's just the usual love and lost than never to have loved at all.

CONCISELY - It is conclusive from former state that drug usage is growing, and the campus and community police, and university or college areas. Recognizing this, Gov. Dunn says he will meet in November (exact date to come) in Louisville with leaders and authorities for a conference on the use of dangerous drugs and narcotics.

And, if you live or work in Morehead and know that $10 city vehicle sticker you'll be fined $2.50 (including court costs) and $10 for the stickers.

PROTEST - Folks on Christy Creek, particularly in the Paddy's Lick area, are considerably wrought up. They say that many people, mostly from other rural sections, are bringing their garbage up the Christy Creek (Ky. 32) trying to find the new dump.

MORE GARBAGE - The unanswered question is whether people who live outside the city limits will be permitted to dispose of garbage at the Seas Branch site.

POOR START - Perhaps the unhappiest maybe frustrated is the correct word in Morehead today is Head Coach Jake Hallum of the MSU season.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION? - As most of our readers know, the Morehead News is only one facet of production in our new plant. Actually, 90 percent of the business is from metropolitan areas and on contract.

Now, we'll admit that we are what you would call "out of it" in many ways. We bore you with stories about the "good old days."

We're not claiming perfection nor do we want credit for all things good which have happened. We are ready to admit that we have been guilty of prejudice, hatred, and of taking advantage of our fellow human beings.

Health... for all - Life began in the salt water of the sea. And ever since the first critter crawled onto the shore to breathe air into his being, animals living on land-including humans-have been plagued by a host of lung diseases.

Now medical researchers are trying to treat one rare lung disease-alveolitis-proteinosis-by filling the lungs with that ancient substance that nourished our aquatic ancestors, salt water. The solution is administered through a tube in the patient's throat. The tube can allow oxygen into one lung, and at the same time force the solution into the other lung.

In this rare respiratory ailment, the lining cells of the lungs produce an abnormal protein which fills up the air spaces. This blocks air from entering and seriously interferes with breathing.

Until now, physicians have tried to relieve the congestion with inhalants, forced coughing, deep breathing, and other treatments. But by "washing out" the lungs with salt water, the doctor can reach every part of the patient's lungs-one lung at a time.

Unfortunately, the process of washing out lungs is an extraordinarily difficult business. Most of us who breathe in dirty particles in the air as well as smoke from others cigarettes cannot have lungs cleaned out.

Your tuberculosis and respiratory disease association is working for another solution. Cleaner air and no smoking. That is one way to keep lungs cleaner. And it's a lot less medically complicated than a salt water washout.

The Mature Woman

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice and help, write to Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 3 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Family Planning

Dear Miss Brookfield:

In September, our son, an only child, leaves for college. We have a small house and I am cramped for space. I had hoped to convert his room into a sitting room, adding a convertible sofa for his use when he returns on holidays. My son got upset when I told him about this plan. I can't see his room being wasted for four years when I can put it to better use. Any suggestions?

D. R., Cranston, R.I.

Dear D. R.:

None, except try again later and more tactfully, after he has been away at college for a while. Your son is obviously upset, not only because you wanted to "get rid" of his room, but because this plan represents something vastly more important: he is no longer part of the family.

Everyone requires a room or a corner of his own, for privacy. Your son needs a room, something to return to on holidays. Can't you use your decorating ingenuity to find the space you need elsewhere in the house? At least for the time being.

Bored and Blue

Dear Miss Brookfield:

I am 48, married with five children. The youngest is 11. I know I'm not useless but my life seems empty. I lack vim, vitality and motivation. Is it possible this is the change of life?

M. L., Oklahoma, Okla.

Dear M. L.:

It's possible, but only your doctor will know for sure. You might be interested in what Dr. Robert Greenblatt, chairman of the department of endocrinology at the Medical College of Georgia, wrote about the effects of menopause on many women:

"Because of her biologic constitution and the vicissitudes of her environment, the woman enters the climacteric with uneasy and uncertain tread. It is a time of introspection, of inventing, and of soul-searching; she analyzes her limitations, her frustrations, her secret sorrows."

It can also, he states, be a time of boredom, anxiety, phobias, fears and waning romance. He continues: "It is a period of emotional irritability, unstable and vulnerable and when her declining ovarian activity provokes a general glandular imbalance."

Dr. Greenblatt points out that physicians can "diagnose and alleviate the distressing symptoms of the menopause." If they are due to a hormonal imbalance, the woman's physical and mental health may be restored by replacing the hormone her ovaries are no longer producing, once they stop functioning at menopause.

Your physician, of course, can best diagnose your condition and help restore you to better health. So have a talk with him.

Cost-cutting tips on food

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Harold E. Neigh, extension consumer economics specialist at the Pennsylvania State University, gives the following hints for cost-conscious housewives trying to reduce food expenditures.

— You can buy cinnamon and sugar to put on your toast or homemade cinnamon rolls already mixed, but you will pay three times as much as you would by buying the cinnamon and sugar and mixing your own.

— Frozen orange juice usually costs less than buying oranges and squeezing fresh juice.

— Graham cracker crumbs are about the same price as rolling your own. But, if you buy a graham cracker crust in a pie pan, it is about double the price of crackers alone.

— The ingredients for homemade bread cost about the same as bread mix you buy. Both are lower than buying a loaf sliced and ready to eat, but you have to consider your time and cost of heating the oven.

As well as making cost comparisons, shoppers must decide on the basis of their family's tastes and cooking preferences.

Done With Polygraph . . .

Kentucky Using Lie Detector Tests

By Leonard Kimball

Double-dealing con artists, thieves, arsonists and cold-blooded killers aren't the sort of clientele most professional men are likely to welcome with open arms.

After all, consorting with criminals isn't the best way to win a good citizenship award. At least not most of the time. But, it doesn't happen to hold true for James Frederick Lord, a former career Army officer from Louisville whose own professional good name thrives on such associations.

Lord, who retired from the Army in 1968 after more than a quarter century spent in many of the world's more distant corners, including such hot spots as Korea in 1951-52, has found that his army-acquired talents were never in more demand than right now at Frankfort where he recently set up shop as a polygraph (lie detector) operator for the Kentucky State Police.

On the job less than a month, he already has tested eight murderers, three armed robbery suspects, six arsonists and 12 men accused of grand larceny. "That averages about four suspects a day," he said.

Although it was still early morning, the sparsely-furnished room already was filling with detectives, uniformed officers and a fidgity cluster of apprehensive suspects.

"Not much doubt about it," the one-time Provost Marshal investigator and veteran counter-intelligence agent whose credentials include some 2000 cases as a polygraph operator said, "the Army was never like this."

For one thing, he said, the Army has plenty of polygraph operators. But the State Police have only two, Jim Lord at Frankfort and Detective Sgt. Billy Gooch at Henderson. And local law enforcement officers are beating a path to their doors.

"We don't restrict our polygraph service to just State Police cases," he said. "Local police agencies and sheriff's offices also call upon us."

Lord, who is hopeful that State Police efforts to locate at least one more operator will be successful, said every suspect tested requires a considerable expenditure of time. "Sometimes, several hours," he added.

"We don't just hook him up, toss out a couple of questions and let it go at that," he said.

Each examination begins by going over the crime in careful detail with the investigating officer. Then, a list of pertinent questions must be formulated. One of the most successful techniques, Lord said, is the "Peak of Tension" test.

For example, he explained, "if we know the crime was committed with a knife, I might try asking the suspect: Was the weapon a gun? Was it a club, or was it a knife?"

"If he is the murderer, he knows which weapon was used. And, his blood pressure or pulse rate, or respiration or body temperature - maybe all three - will rise as we approach the crucial question. The polygraph records those changes. But, once the knife is mentioned, his relief at finally having answered that question will show up in the charts as a dramatic drop below the previously-rising line of tension. And, then we know we've found our man."

But, Lord's obvious talent at deciphering the mysterious, inked signals on a polygraph chart into understandable histories of honesty or deception doesn't end there.

An experienced interrogator whose ability to wheedle information from the enemy once

NO LYING-Retired army Provost Marshall investigator, James Frederick Lord, recently changed careers. He now is a polygraph (lie detector) operator for the Kentucky State Police. Local police agencies and sheriff's offices also call upon the KSP polygraph service, making Lord's talents much in demand.

helped him pry the location of a North Korean intelligence school out of a captured communist officer during the Korean War, Lord still uses those skills today, gently prodding admissions of guilt from suspects singled out by his silent partner, the Keeler Polygraph.

"Sometimes, that can be more difficult than you might think," he says, recalling a recent pre-test interview involving a tongue-tied murder suspect. "I just told him to keep talking. Sooner or later, I figured we would establish some rapport."

Asked how he happened to settle in Kentucky following his army retirement, Lord said he wouldn't live anywhere else. Born in Jefferson County and graduated from Anchorage High School in 1940, he briefly attended both the University of Kentucky and Centre College at Danville on football scholarships before entering the Army in 1942.

"I've been trying to get back to Louisville ever since," he said. Although the Army was sympathetic, and several times cut orders assigning him to the River City, he somehow always seemed to find himself being shunted, at the last minute, to Lexington, Fort Campbell or Evansville, Indiana, between trips to Italy, Japan, Korea and Hawaii.

Retirement hasn't changed things as much as he had hoped. "I did buy a home at St. Matthews on the eastern edge of Louisville and settle my family there, but now I'm commuting to Frankfort every day," he laughed.

This year's Neighborhood Youth Corps Summer program was the biggest ever with $181 million provided for 414,000 slots in all states and areas.

There's a holiday today somewhere in the world

By Encyclopaedia Britannica

UPI

Some people seek them out. Others try to avoid them. But somewhere today, in all probability, there is a holiday.

In the not-so-long-ago, holidays affected only the celebrants. But in this era of international travel, holidays often are pitfalls for the unwary tourist or businessman who gets told in several languages: "Sorry, everything closed."

For 299 out of 365 days of the year, somewhere on this globe a country is celebrating a holiday, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica Research Service. To further complicate matters, cities, states and provinces observe their own holidays.

Since many of these holidays occur on different calendar dates from one year to the next, it's doubly difficult for a determined traveler to avoid them entirely.

As a result, tourists and businessmen may spend a lot of time sitting around hotel lobbies - or joining the celebrations.

The traditional day of worship may provide a problem for the traveler. In the Western world it's Sunday. But in Afghanistan, Egypt, Iran, Iraq and the Somali Republic, Friday is the day commerce closes shop. In Israel and Nepal the weekly holiday is Saturday.

Any old day

But in Ceylon there is no specific day for the official weekly holiday. Instead, Ceylon has Poya Days, which may occur on any day of the week.

Because of the Poya Days, Ceylon ranks first among all nations in the holiday department. It celebrates 64 in all, not including an untitled holiday each November 29 just to avoid having a six-day week.

Second on the list of international celebrants is Switzerland. The Swiss have 25 holidays.

In third place is Spain with 23 legal holidays. Next is Andorra with 22. Australia, Canada and Colombia each have 20.

On the other side of the holiday coin are the Iron Curtain countries where life is mainly grim and earnest and people are supposedly better off working than enjoying a day of leisure.

The Socialist Republic of Romania is the saddest of all, celebrating only two legal holidays each year. Saudi Arabia also has only two holidays but each lasts a full week.

Bulgaria acknowledges only four days each year as legal holidays, Poland six and Russia five.

The United States has no national holidays - only legal ones determined by each state. Beginning in 1971 most states will celebrate Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Columbus Day and Veterans Day on fixed Mondays, granting three-day holidays.

There is no indication other nations will transfer holidays to the weekend. But a traveler can always hope.

Weekly Meditation

"Well, for Heaven's sake!" is a common expression indicating the entire gamut of human emotion from anger at the weather to the whole mess of the status quo. Have you used it? Another is, "What on earth are you doing?" (as if it could be done anywhere else) indication surprise, or chagrin, at a great discovery, or achievement, of course.

When you put these puns together you come up with a super-pun. See: "What on earth are you doing, for Heaven's sake?" Well, what are you doing? A farmer caught a thief in his watermelon patch with a hugh melon under each arm. The farmer shouted, "What are you doing in my melon patch?" The thief replied, "I don't know." Pretty sad, huh? Again, how many ways can you say "What am I doing? Well, I can say 'What am I doing?' or 'What am I doing?' again. 'What am I doing?' Answer: You're making a darned fool of yourself! That's what! Consider this: "Only one life, it will soon be past, only what's done for Christ will last."

UNITED PENTECOSTAL-The Morehead U. P. C. will celebrate its 11th year this weekend with a Homecoming and Anniversary Service. Speaking Saturday night will be Rev. Lonnie Wright pastor of the Raceland United Pentecostal Church and State Sunday School Director. Preaching Sunday night will be Rev. George Cumpston Editor of the Kentucky District News. Bro. and sister Ferguson, Bro. and sister Dean attended a state wide Sunday school workshop in Lexington last week. Brother Kermit Ferguson will serve as Director of the center's In-Home Teaching in the church. Since he became director last month, the church has already broken their attendance

Unbeaten Vikings Post Easy Win Over M.M.I.

By Bobby Smedley On a rainy, dreary, dark afternoon at Millersburg, the Rowan County Vikings romped to its fifth straight victory in spite of all the mud. The final score was 28-0.

The Vikings' defense gave up yardage very grudgingly to the M.M.I. offense. The Cadet's offense could manage only five first downs and a meager 96 yards total offense. The Viking pass defense allowed the Cadets' quarterback to complete only two passes for 16 yards.

Midway through the final period the Vikings went 84 yards in thirteen efforts. The big play was a 46 yard run by quarterback Billy Fouch. Fouch scored three plays later on a three-yard run. The Vikings took over the ball with 1:47 left in the game on the M.M.I. 16 yard line following a 40-yard punt return by Mike Carlson.

The Vikings picked up 278 yards rushing, 118 yards passing, for a total of 386 yards. On the season, the Vikings are averaging 39 points a game, 228 yards rushing, 115 yards passing, 343 total yards, 8-17 passes, 13 first downs, 57 offensive plays, and are averaging six yards a play.

From the State Capital Agree Or Not I Say What I Think by S. C. VanCuren

The most silent debate over the merits pro demerits of a primary next spring still ripples through the Republican Party as an underground river.

Gov. Louis B. Nunn has quietly taken a position against one on the grounds that it could become divisive at a time when the Republicans have shown their greatest strength in the last 50 years in the state. But he doesn't make a racket about his position.

Here are some of the points they make: Neither of the two remaining prospects has ever run a statewide race and therefore needs the public exposure to become known to the voters before either tangles with the Democrat nominee next fall.

Meanwhile the Democratic candidates, Judge Bert T. Combs and Lt. Gov. Wendell Ford are slowly cranking up their campaigns, putting organizations together, and preparing to hit the campaign hustings after the November election this year.

5 From Morgan County

Edwin R. Benton of Caney, Morgan County, may qualify as the most loyal alumnus of Morehead State University. The Morgan County High School math teacher is a graduate student at MSU and has his wife, two sons and a daughter also enrolled. Also, another daughter is returning to the campus next semester to make it a half-dozen Bentons on the books. Besides the senior Benton, who has a bachelor's and master's from Morehead State, there is his wife, Mrs. Hilda Benton, sons Phil, 19, and Joe, 18, and daughter Joyce, 21. Lois, 20, now married, is taking a semester off. She, like Joyce, is a senior. Phil is a sophomore majoring in elementary education. Joe, a freshman who rooms with his brother, is studying political science. Joyce is a sociology major. Mom and dad Benton commute to MSU for night classes but the others are full-time campus residents. Each child chose Morehead State University because of "dad's sales pitch," according to Phillip. "We all had a chance to go elsewhere but dad sold us on the idea of coming to MSU. He's a real recruiter."

The Benton offspring hold part-time jobs to help mom and dad foot the bills for a family in college. Phil and Joe also raise tobacco on the family farm during the summer to supplement the college fund. Mr. Benton commutes on Monday nights and usually sees Phil who has a class in the same building. Mrs. Benton comes on Tuesday nights and Joyce likes to visit with her.

"We've always been a close family so one of us makes it a point to see mom and dad when they come to school," Phil added. "They like to know we're all okay." Does having an entire family at the same college pose any problems? "None that I notice," says Phil. "We never have to argue about which school to go for in sports."

Wig Sellers Are Warned To Comply With New State Law

By Lewis Sharpley

Careless wig sellers are getting in the hair of the State Board of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists.

"Store employees who fit, adjust or otherwise handle a wig or wiglet on a customer's head must be licensed hairdressers," Mrs. Mary Lou Adkins, board administrator, warned today.

The board's 12 inspectors are delivering notices throughout Kentucky to department stores, wig shops and other places where hairpieces are sold that they must comply with the 1970 State law which set up the cosmetology board. The previous law already specified certain sanitary precautions.

"If a wig is merely sold across the counter, or if it is simply cleaned and blocked and then handed back to the customer, then there is no violation," Mrs. Adkins explained. "The law was written to protect the public, and so far most all of the stores we have notified have indicated they will cooperate."

Complaints from the public that in some instances unclean combs were observed in places selling wigs and that other sanitary rules were neglected resulted in the serving of the warnings.

The board's office is in Room 208, Republic Bldg., one floor distant from the State Board of Barbers. The last General Assembly placed hairdressers and cosmetologists under the separate board.

Boots will go great with the new mid-coats, as every woman knows. And men know it, too, says the American Footwear Institute. For the males this has led to a whole new category of calf-high boots that are meant to have trousers tucked inside. Some of these boots have cuffed tops in a contrasting color, like jockey boots. They come in smooth leather or branny finished types.

The newest Jacklyn hand-bag collection runs the gamut from colorful fabrics and glossy vinyls in many surface variations to sleek genuine leather, all in a galaxy of autumn colors and shapes. Shouldershine they are the ideal accessories for the long-length gaudies and skirts that will make the scene this fall.

It is only the fabric shoe that combines fresh elegance, sleek function, rhythmic grace and soft plant wearability necessary for today's total fashion look, says the president of the National Shoe Fabric Association. Fabric shoes range from sportive contemporary boots in crinkle-textured vinyls to broadheads, damask and velvet.

Kentucky Litter Laws

"Litter and Law Enforcement" will be Fayette County Judge R. F. Stephens' topic of discussion at the 1970 Environmental Conference in Lexington October 26 at the Phoenix Hotel.

Littering is a misdemeanor in Kentucky and "Litterbugs" are subject to a fine of $25 to $300.

The Division of Clean-Up and Beautification, Department of Natural Resources, says today's increased concern about conservation and pollution has prompted an increase in inquiries by citizens about enforcement of anti-litter laws.

Frequently asked questions about litter are:

Q. Does Kentucky have anti-litter laws?

A. Yes. Littering is prohibited by state law on any public or private road, on both public and private property, including waterways and their banks. This is stated in Kentucky Revised Statute 43.750, three sections which prohibit littering and indiscriminate dumping. A copy of the laws may be obtained free of charge from The Division of Clean-Up and Beautification, Department of Natural Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. In addition to state law, there are many local ordinances which prohibit littering.

Q. Who is responsible for the enforcement of anti-litter laws?

A. The Kentucky Statute says, "It shall be the duty of the Kentucky State Police, county sheriffs and police officers, city police officers, and all other law enforcement and peace officers within their respective jurisdictions to enforce provisions in the anti-litter sections."

Q. Where may litter and garbage be disposed of according to law?

A. Only on property designated as a public dump by the local governing body.

Q. How extensive is illegal dumping?

A. A survey of Kentucky's 120 counties indicates that every county has some illegal dumps. The number per county varies from a total of three in one county to eighty-three in another county. The complete elimination of open dumping requires long range local planning because in many areas disposal facilities for solid waste are inadequate.

Strickland Art Collection Being Displayed Here

Paintings based on the tribulations of an architecture professor are on display in the Claypool-Young Gallery at Morehead State University.

John Strickland, a faculty member in the College of Architecture, University of Kentucky and an artist in the Bauhaus tradition, describes his work as "color paintings that come partly out of problematic experiences with students in architecture school."

TESTS FOR SPACE STATION . . . Groups of four space engineers will spend from eight hours to seven days at last crewmen inside the gondola on this giant spinner at North American Rockwell's Space Division at Downey, Calif., to provide information for the construction of an Earth-orbiting space station planned for the 1970's. The spinning creates an artificial gravity similar to that of a rotating space station.

What's his future going to be like?

No doubt you're planning to save for your baby's financial future . . . but what are you doing about his future in our environment? Contamination of air, land and water endangers everyone, but most of all, we owe it to our children to do what we can now to end the dreadful menace of pollution. To stop pollution, clean up! Clean up your car and your home. Help keep streets, highways, parks clean. Dispose of rubbish and garbage cleanly. Everyday people, working together, can make a big difference!

KENTUCKY'S FIRST... The Kentucky Baptist Convention voted a "pilot project" costing $325,000 for a student union building adjacent to the campus of Morehead State University. It will be dedicated at 2:30 Saturday afternoon. The ceremony is open to the public and over 1,000 visitors are expected. MSU has 1,600 Baptist students.

1,000 Expected Saturday For Baptist Building Dedication

The new $325,000 Baptist Student Center, 342 University, will be formally dedicated Saturday, October 3, at 2:30 p.m.

The facility, the most modern of its kind in the state, was built by the Kentucky Baptist Convention to serve nearly 1,600 Baptist students on the campus of Morehead State University. It represents a pilot project for Kentucky Baptists and is a model for other Baptist Student Centers to be built in Kentucky.

The building contains 14,000 square feet of space including a large chapel which seats two hundred, a television lounge, a large recreation room equipped with billiards, ping pong and other table games, a library, a student kitchenette and a large banquet kitchen, a snack room, three conference rooms, a prayer room and office suite.

Patrick Gingles Nashville architect designed the building and Brown Brothers of Somerset, Kentucky did the construction.

The Baptist Student Center offers a diversified program aimed at ministry to the total person. Areas of concentration are enlistment, evangelism, worship, study, social action, fellowship, communications, and missions. David Book, a native of Henderson, Kentucky and recent graduate of Southern Baptist Theological Seminary serves as Baptist Campus Minister.

State May Switch Its Method To Buy Automobiles, Trucks

With more than $1 million of the taxpayers' money riding on the outcome, the State of Kentucky may go outside the automobile industry's "big three" this year in placing orders for perhaps 1500 vehicles.

State Purchasing Director N. B. McCubbin said American Motors' Ambassador series of sedans and station wagons will receive serious consideration in filling the State's need for some 600 units of this type.

Chevrolet and Ford recently indicated they would discontinue giving the State discount prices which amount to between $500 and $700 on each passenger car and up to $1500 on each heavy truck.

Last year the State bought 226 Plymouths for use as police cruisers and 242 Fords, including 51 station wagons, 173 sedans and eight other models.

Invitations will be mailed Oct. 1 to all four companies to submit bids on or about Oct. 25. McCubbin expects American Motors will offer the customary discount, and Chrysler already has said it "will meet competition."

CELEBRATION... Being the "charismatic," the Indian version of the ferris-wheel, is one of the most popular amusements at a fair held recently on the outskirts of New Delhi, India. The occasion is to celebrate the rainy season which will save the farmers' harvests and ease their struggle for survival.

Boating

By JACK WOLSTON

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don't get the idea that water pollution is a new problem for boatmen.

It was a factor as long as 50 years ago, for example, when the America's Cup races were held off Ambrose Lightship at the entrance to New York Harbor.

The situation then was recalled recently by Charles Francis Adams, board chairman of Raytheon Company and a member of the America's Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club. Adams' father was the first nonprofessional to skipper an America's Cup defender when he campaigned Resolute to victory over Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV in 1920.

From the mementos of his father, Adams produced a clipping from The New York Times of July 16, 1920, which gave this account of the pollution problem of half century ago under the heading: "Our Filthy Harbor."

"It is humiliating to read of the precautions which it was necessary to take in putting the America's Cup racers into the dirty water of New York Harbor. The reports say that there is so much 'oil' even as far out as Sandy Hook that it may be necessary to clean the yachts between the races. But what defiles the harbor more than oil is the untreated sewage. It is strong enough to eat the paint off a ship and taints the air as well as the water."

The sewage problem of the city grows with its population, and the difficulty of dealing with it grows faster. City planners know that a city should be symmetrically proportioned in all its parts, the houses to the population, the pavements to the walkers, the streets to the vehicles, the rail ways to the travelers, the water supply to the necessities of health, and so on.

But New York is just growing, with little attention paid to such details of city housekeeping. Engineers and others who have been agitating for an entirely new scheme of handling New York's sewage have got scant attention. The fouling of the yachts is a small matter, but it may help by advertising the bad conditions that ought to be remedied.

Obviously the city fathers of that and future days paid scant attention to the newspaper's warning. The situation is much the same and has spread like a cancer to adjoining waters. . . .

Chay Blyth, a former British paratrooper who rowed the Atlantic with Capt. John Ridge in 92 days in 1966, plans to leave Hamble, England, early in October on a "wrong way" solo voyage circumnavigating the globe.

Blyth will make the solo east to west voyage of 30,000 miles in his 59-foot steel yacht British Steel. He is expected to take up to a year to complete it.

One thousand Baptists and other guests from all across the state are expected to attend the dedication services. Among the leadership of the Kentucky Baptist Convention participating in the ceremony are Dr. Harold Sanders, Executive Secretary-Treasurer, Executive Board of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, Dr. Franklin Owen, former president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention and pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, Lexington, and

Accidental Shot Kills Boy, Age 13

The 13 year old son of native Rowan County parents was killed instantly Wednesday when struck in the center of the heart by a .38 caliber bullet accidentally fired by a playmate and neighbor boy, also 13 years of age.

Dayton O. authorities where the fatality occurred, reported that Derrick Ashley Smith, son of James D. and Mildred (Epperhart) Smith was playing with the other boy, a close companion.

They located in the house the pistol. The other boy was examining the gun when it accidentally discharged with the bullet penetrating young Smith's heart and passing through the body.

The remains were brought to Lane Funeral Home in Morehead, and final services conducted Saturday afternoon at Mt. Pisgah Christian Church by Reverends Delmore Cooper, Charles Riggs and R.A. Reynolds. Burial was in Mt. Pisgah cemetery.

The parents lived at Morehead until several years ago when they moved to Dayton where the father was employed.

Derrick Allen was born at Dayton Jan. 29, 1957.

Besides the parents, the boy leaves a brother, Jimmy Smith, at home; a sister, Wanda Smith, at home; the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Smith of Haldeman; and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler Epperhart, RFD 1, Morehead.

The bearers - Dan Koverman, J.B. Gibson, Tony Goodpaster, George Wornor, Chalmers Johnson and Luke Williams.

Kentucky Highway Week ...

Time To Say 'Thanks'

By Helen Price Stacy I had wanted to write a thank-you note to the Kentucky Department of Highways and tell them how much I appreciated their showing these beautiful flowers that all summer have bloomed like a border of blue lace along highways and roads throughout the Commonwealth but someone said the department didn't have a thing to do with it, and "blue lace, yet!"

"That being the case, I'll still say my 'thank you' to the department and the hundreds of highway employees and their machines for allowing the chicory, thistle and bright yellow daisy-like flowers to grow and bloom unmolested by the mowers, ditchers and graders and still keep roadsides neat and clipped and more beautiful than ever."

This is Kentucky Highway Week—Sept. 20-27 proclaimed so by Gov. Louie B. Nunn. It is also National Highway Week. It is a week to remember the many roads built through the years ... lots of wintry nights and workers with snowplows scraping snow and ice to make roads safe ... and lots of routine days in which men went about their tasks of building roads and bridges from state to state, county to county, town to town and country to city.

I should have said my "thank-you" last winter when I hesitated to leave West Liberty to travel to Carter Caves State Resort Park four counties away (ordinarily a heavy snow had fallen during the night and while I had every confidence in the Morgan County highway crew, I was not so familiar with Elliott County's roadmen so had decided to go via Morehead and part of Interstate-64. Determined to meet my new assignment at the park, I had traveled over Morgan's stretch of Ky 7 including treacherous Wrigley Hill on a clear, black highway. Elliott County's sector, taking in Routes 173 and 32, was even cleaner with hardly a trace of the snow and ice that was piled high along roadsides. It was the same in Rowan County and on into Carter County. Highway employees had left warm homes to work through the cold, snowy night. And I did not say so much as "thanks."

Kentucky's road history goes back to Indian days and well-beaten footpaths through deep forests. Some of the Red Man's paths and war traces were improved to make Kentucky's early roads as were old buffalo traces.

In 1775 Daniel Boone surveyed and marked one of these forest routes and today it is among the Commonwealth's best known - the Wilderness Road to Kentucky. From an Indian Trace to a horse and mule path to a wagon road - Wilderness Road made its way from Cumberland Gap to Crab Orchard with side roads to Harrodsburg and Boonesborough.

In 1787 travelers on the turnpike from Crab Orchard to Cumberland Gap began to pay a toll of 12 1/2 cents. Two-wheel carriages were charged 50 cents and four-wheelers $1. Except from payment were children under 10, women, expresses and mail carriers. Any profit could be pocketed by the keeper of the turnpike after he paid for repairs to maintain the road in good order. Assuredly, the repairs cost more than the receipts, and quite likely that is why roads today are not the financial responsibility of any individual. In historic Mason County between Maysville and Washington is the state's first macadam road. In early days a lottery was sanctioned for money to maintain the road. Roads and their upkeep have been a part of Kentucky's history from the beginning and a look at court order books in any county courthouse where records are intact will show that roads were allowed more space than any other topic.

In early court books at the Floyd County courthouse in Prestonsburg, Henry Scaff writing in his quarterly, The East Kentuckian, found that as early as 1808 Stephen Harper was appointed surveyor of the road from the courthouse to the "ford opposite the mouth of Prater Creek." Thomas C. Brown and Wm. J. Mayo were to draft a plan for a bridge at the "gap" between Prestonsburg and Abbott, and Solomon Ward in 1813 was appointed surveyor of a road from the mouth of Tom's Creek to the "pictured beech on Georges Creek."

Today, Floyd County and its environs are accessible by scenic Mountain Parkway in another section of the state. Bluegrass Parkway offers a similar advantage. Occasionally, I like to ponder travel in early days and the time required to get places. "I packed a trunk for myself and one for each child when I would go to Salysville to visit my folks," the late Mrs. Dorse Keeton once said. "But it took so long to travel the 21 miles we stayed a month after we got there."

Some day near the old one-room Licking River school in Morgan County I would like to see a marker. It is an ideal place for a small park in a scenic out of the way place, and the one-room school should be preserved, but its claim to history could be the two narrow roads paralleling each other down hill to Licking River.

So no one remembers who or why they were built they are one-way wagon roads and might possibly be Kentucky's first one-way road.

During Kentucky Highway Week each of the state's district highway offices will observe open house. A representative of Highway Commissioner B.E. King will be present to talk with individuals and groups about their road needs or problems.

Find out the date for the open house in your area and stop by to talk with the road builders and planners. It would be a great time to express appreciation for the work they do ... and for skyblue chicory that edges roadsides like "blue lace, yet!"

Advertising Ban Dropped . . .

ABC Enacts Four Regulations

The Kentucky Press Association won its point this week when the state Alcohol Control Board (ABC) abandoned and announced intention to enact a departmental (not statutory) regulation banning advertising of alcoholic beverages in publications originating in dry territory.

The KPA Executive Board took the position that: 1. Such a regulation is unconstitutional and would be carried to the courts; 2. Metropolitan newspapers magazines television etc advertising of such type freely enters local option counties; 3. The plan is premature since no alcoholic beverage advertising appears in dry county publications; and 4. No other state, so far as can be ascertained, has such a regulation.

Represented at the KPA executive meeting Friday from this area were President J.T. Norris, Jr., of the Ashland Daily Independent; and W. E. Crutcher Morehead, Publisher of community newspapers, and the district elected member of the Board. The meeting was at Lake Barkley Lodge.

Meeting at Frankfort Monday the ABC board dropped this proposal along with four others. Concisely, ABC shelved five of its nine proposed departmental proposals.

Of the four regulations that were adopted and are to be filed with the Legislative Research Commission (LRC) in a day or two, only one came under much attack.

That one which was adopted with no change in wording, describes in clinical detail parts of the body which cannot be exposed and actions which are forbidden for dancers and waitresses in bars.

Opponents of that regulation argued at the hearing that even the U.S. Supreme Court has not determined what is lewd or immoral conduct, the target of the regulation. They also said the regulation would lead to a "tangled thicket" of "endless litigation."

Other regulations adopted by the board will:

- Ban whisky and beer advertisements in publications of educational institutions.
- Prohibit the use of food coupons to buy alcoholic beverages. No position to this regulation was voiced.
- Allow the ABC Board to issue temporary licenses for emergency storage facilities to beer distributors. Again, no opposition to the proposal came up.

The regulations will go into effect 30 days after they are filed with the LRC, about Nov. 1.

Regulations that the board had proposed but decided not to adopt after the hearing would have:

- Prohibited any dealer from selling more than one case of whisky or three cases of beer to any one customer over a seven-day period. The regulation was aimed at bootleggers.
- Forbidden any establishment licensed to sell alcoholic beverages to have access from the store to another building or unlicensed enclosed area. The targets of the regulation were prostitution gambling operations and after-hours and Sunday sales.
- Required beer and whisky dealers to file with the ABC Board routes their trucks would travel in making deliveries again designed to help fight bootlegging.
- Prohibit retail liquor stores from installing new drive-in windows although existing ones could have continued to

Guidance Bulletin Now Being Issued At Rowan County High

A new R.C.H.S. Guidance News Bulletin has been started this year according to Lloyd Dean, Guidance Director. The stage of its development is now Volume I Number 4.

It will be printed every Friday morning and will include all news pertaining to the Rowan County High Guidance Department for that week. At the end of the year copies will be compiled into a booklet and presented to local libraries.

Rowan County personnel and counselors met Friday and adopted a proposed Constitution for the Rowan County Personnel and Guidance Association.

This will involve all personnel and counselors in Rowan County at the local county, and state levels operating here. Mrs. Mabel Barber was chosen as recording secretary until officers are chosen.

The purpose of the organization is to bring about a closer cooperation on part of counselors and personnel for a better guidance program in Rowan County.

operate. The main target was minors seeking to buy alcoholic beverages.

+ Required a new license for any operation which transferred 10 percent or more of its stock to a new location.

The main argument used against most of the regulations was that the ABC Board was exceeding its authority in trying to enact them and this should be decided by the Legislature whose members are elected and not appointed.

TEENAGERS AT WORK

Under Federal law, teenagers 16 or older may work at any job, and teenagers between 16 and 18 may work at most jobs, other than the few covered by Hazardous Occupations Orders. These Orders leave about 96 percent of all jobs open to teenagers.

Many a conscientious husband socks peace of mind by buying life insurance to protect his family in case he dies.

But he may also have a nagging worry: will the insurance company really pay off when the time comes, or will it find some flaw making the policy null and void?

To cut this worry to a minimum, most policies now contain what is known as an "incontestable clause." Under this clause, after a stated period (usually two years), the insurance company can no longer raise technical objections about the validity of the policy. It must generally pay off "with no questions asked."

Suppose, for example, that a man applying for insurance fails to mention the fact that he has a drinking problem. And suppose, after his death, the insurance company finds out about it. Under the incontestable clause, the company could not raise this point to escape paying the insurance to the widow.

In fact, the incontestable clause applies in most states even if the applicant told a deliberate lie. Take this case:

A man filling out an insurance application was asked if he was in good health. He said he was—even though he knew he had serious heart trouble.

After his death, the insurance company tried to cancel the policy on grounds of fraud. But a court ruled that, despite the fraud, the company would still have to pay off—because more than two years had gone by. As one judge explained:

"Even though dishonest people are given advantages under incontestable clauses, still the sense of security gives to the great majority of honest policyholders makes it worth the cost."

But not even an incontestable clause will help if the fraud involves the very existence of the policy. Thus:

A man suffering from tuberculosis managed to get life insurance by sending a healthy friend to take the medical examination for him. After the man died, the insurance company found out about the trick and denied liability.

The widow tried to rely on the incontestable clause, but a court ruled that there had never been an insurance contract in the first place. The court said that on one basic fact, the identity of the insured person, there was never a "meeting of the minds."

1971. Buick introduces a new set of values.

Value, not gimmicks or ornamentation, sells cars. More people have been coming to Buick each year for just that reason. Buick concentrates on value.

And this year, Buick introduces a new set of values. Features that will help make your new Buick perform better, last longer and get you more of a return on your investment at trade-in time.

Only a Buick dealer can offer you our new set of values. So, test your values against our new ones. Then ask yourself this simple question. Wouldn't you really rather have a Buick?

Something to believe in.

1971 Buick Riviera. A totally new design concept. And that's not all. Riviera offers MaxTrac, an exclusive power control system you can order with its own on-board computer. It helps you get securely over slick surfaces by reducing rear-wheel slipping. The new body features side-guard beam front protection, a bigger trunk, and a driver cockpit with a control center designed around the driver for new ease and convenience.

1971 Buick Electra 225. A new interpretation of quiet elegance. We've improved our Electra everywhere you look. There's more room in every direction, interiors that can be appreciated as much for their durability as for their beauty and comfort, even a new balanced braking system. A unique valve proportions braking force front to rear to help give you quick, smooth straight-line stops.

1971 Buick Centurion. This is our newest Buick, a city car with sleekness and grace as well as muscle. It features more nimble variable-ratio power steering, power front disc brakes, Full-Fla ventilation, and a vinyl floor on the Centurion Formal Coupe as standard equipment.

1971 Buick Skylark Custom. This is the car that has set the pace for value in its price class. Rocker panels that wash and dry themselves, big-Buick room and comfort inside, a cooling system that should never overheat, inner fenders that protect the outer fenders, and a modest price have put our Buick Skylark traditionally among the resale leaders in its class.

1971 Buick LeSabre. An incredible new offering of Buick value. The LeSabre, like the Riviera, Electra and Centurion, features Accu-Drive, a new version of the directional stability system we pioneered. It will help give you smooth handling.

GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

An important improvement. Every new Buick engine is now designed to run smoothly and efficiently, and with lower exhaust emissions, on low-lead and low-lead gasolines. And every Buick V-8 engine will have exclusive nickel-plated exhaust valves for smoother operation and longer valve life, and a new time-modulated choke to help give quicker warm-up and a more consistent fuel mixture.

Water booster NEW YORK (UPI) - Unfortunately, those who must watch calories have a limited choice of thirst quenching liquids, says nutritionist Jean Mayer. He suggests tomato juice, diluted lemon or lime juice, iced (light) tea with lemon - not sugar - and, of course, water, which is calorie-free.
