

COURTHOUSES BURNED.—The Maysville Eagle states that on Saturday, the 21st ult., the Rowan county courthouse was entirely destroyed by fire. It was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary, who at the same time endeavored to destroy the records by firing the clerk's office. Happily he succeeded in only scorching the weatherboarding of the latter building. Judge Andrews held the court in a schoolhouse near by. On the same day the courthouse at Owingsville, Bath county, was also accidentally burned. Some Federal soldiers, on their way to protect the Rowan court at Morehead, had taken the courthouse as a sleeping place for the night, and the fire built by them was in some way communicated to the building.
