For Auld Lang Syne
This issue of the Trail Blazer is given over to the spirit of the season. We believe in such things strongly and wish, here and now, to welcome back every good grad who reads this paper.

It would be too true to say that we were launched into a long discussion on "the merits and demerits of the season" and the heart-warming of returning once again home, etc., etc. And so, without more ado, we'll simply say, welcome back graduates, and have fun. It's your day.

Keep Them Here
Through the years at Morehead, the battle cry of the student body has been "Keep the students here on weekends." True, at times the campus sports the joyful atmosphere of a morgue during the long hours between Friday night and Monday morning.

A couple of weeks ago, we saw, for the first time in three years, a concrete example of a possibility for curing the suitcase complex around here. We saw something that would make students want to be here instead of somewhere else when Saturday night rolls around. This something just might be the answer to Morehead's weekly outgoing caravan of lost talent. The "something" was real live music played by the very everybody liked to hear.

That dance, held in the TV lounge, could easily have gone on into the wee hours of the night, had it not been for curfew.

It may be said that if live music keeps students here, why won't a juke box do just as well? Well, why couldn't the citizens have whistled the tune out of Hamelin without calling on the Pied Piper? There's a big difference in canned corn and roasting ears. Juke box just won't do the job.

The thing to do, obviously, is to encourage more of the same. Now we hear that the grill and lounge are forever more sealed and verboten as instruments to do the kind of job we have been trying to do for years.

And if this bit of editorializing ends up as nothing but filler for a waste can, well, thanks, you musicians, anyway, for a possibility.

Freshman Foibles . . .

By Marietta Crase

Freshmen! Do you have that unwelcome feeling that "I belong somewhere else"? That first few weeks of college have been pretty drastic for you if you haven't been away from home more before and if you live so far away from school that you can't breathe either way. You're just now getting to the point where you want to take a "home" trip, and you're just now getting to the point where you want to take a "home" trip, and you're just now getting to the point where you want to take a "home" trip.

One good thing about college, though, is roommates. I seem to half my summer worrying about it. I seem to half my summer worrying about it. I seem to half my summer worrying about it.

Music, Music, Music

Scuttlebutt has it that more than several people on the campus are backing a strong move to get a piano for the grill, to provide entertainment and comic relief from the juke and the soap-opera on TV. A recent petition which wended its way through the student body indicated that MSC students, conscious of a good thing, are solidly behind such a plan. So are we.

For many people, no other form of get-together can provide the relaxation and general good time experienced by those who gather, at an evening, around some kind of musical instrument, preferably a piano, and harmonize. There's really nothing quite like it.

Such a situation could not be considered as detrimental. Probably a piano could be secured up somewhere. So, why not have one?

Of course, a piano is a delicate instrument, and should not be accessible to every amateur who happens by. For this reason, a grill piano should be locked. It should be unlocked and played only by those who understand how to use it properly.

Again, such an arrangement would take some nicks out of the juke box. Probably not enough, though, to put the college in the hole, if the piano were used only in the evening.

"Dear Quota . . . we miss you."

The City of Morehead and Morehead State College made a poor showing this past October 6, when the Bloodmobile came to town. Schooling for a quota of 125 pints of blood, the Bloodmobile left town carrying only 69 pints from both the town and the college. However, the college still gave some consolation from the fact that college students and faculty contributed by far the major part of the donations. Nevertheless, neither can be proud.

A quota of 125 pints is so small as to be ridiculous. It is a town of Morehead's size, with a college through in. The college alone should easily contribute a quota. We boast an on-campus registration of almost 700, besides faculty and staff.

A project of this kind is made to order for the Student Council. They, and they alone, could make it successful. How about it, Council?

Good Grooming Lecture For Frosh Is Gala Event

The Orientation Class for freshmen, which heretofore consisted of lectures and speeches, will be the aspect of a gala event at the October 7 meeting. The subject will be "Good Grooming."

Mrs. Naomi Claypool, head of the college art department, introduced the subject by giving the three most important requisites for being well dressed. They are: neatness, attractiveness, not overdone. The illustrations of these points were carried out by the use of mannequins. The illustrations were carried out by the use of mannequins.

Some other favorite "gizmos" were turtle neck sweaters and "Hugie Kicks."

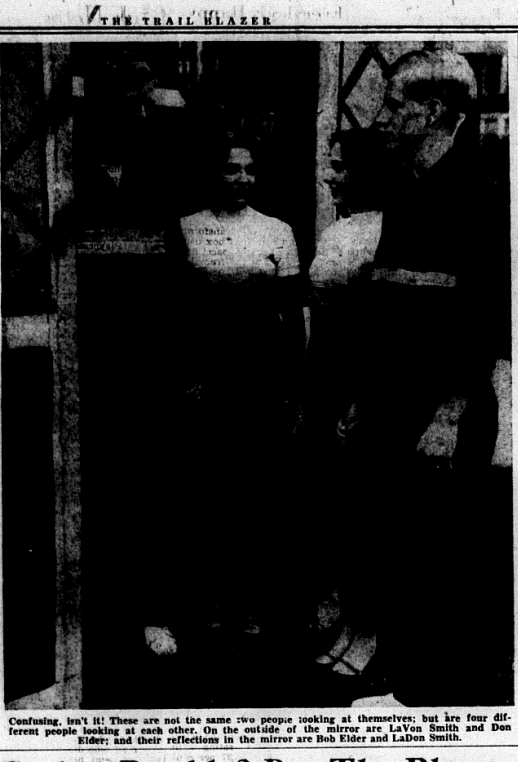

The stars of this performance were: Ann Felix, Mary Northcutt, Margaret Vinson, Emma White, Betty Crutcher, Jack Lockhart, Jane Graves, Bobby Meyers and Jean Ingram.

Recital Held By Johnson, Huffman

A violin and piano recital was given last Friday evening for the Grayson, Jr. Mothers Club by Miss Mary Johnson and Mr. Keith M. Huffman of the college music department. The program was the same as the one given at the University of Louisville.

Navy Recruiting Officer To Interview October 29

Lieutenant Commander N. R. Johnson, U.S. Naval Reserve, will visit the Morehead State campus October 29 to interview interested candidates for appointment to commissioned grade in the U.S. Navy. He will arrive at approximately 9:00 a.m. and remain until 5:00 p.m.

Seeing Double? Put The Blame On Two Sets of Frosh Twins

By Fredy Perlman

"Who's Who?" has become a popular question on the campus ever since the arrival of two pairs of freshmen twins, each of whom is constantly being addressed by someone who met the other twin on a previous day. LaVon and LaDon Smith, the girls who parade on the football field in front of the band at football games, are the red-headed majesties from Covington, Kentucky.

"Confusion" isn't the word to describe what the twins are doing on the campus, especially the redheads. They walked with her to school, and she walked with her to school. They walked with her to school, and she walked with her to school.

Girls, if one of the blond twin boys asks you to dance, you can safely call him Don. Bob doesn't care as much for dancing. The other boys, Bob and Don, like generally the same type of music. The blond twin boys, Bob and Don, like generally the same type of music.

While the redheads like to wear the same type of clothes as often as they can, the blond boys have got out of the habit of wearing the same clothes when they got out of high schools.

River Pilot Writes Of The Monongahela

By Margaret Sieve

The Monongahela, the author, gives episodes from his experiences as a pilot on the Monongahela and other rivers to enliven the informal history of the river and give it a romantic side of steamboating. This book is one of the series.

While the author writes a brisk, realistic, and highly readable account of the Monongahela, he also has an eye for the wild flowers and trees in bloom on the West Virginia hills. Frontiersmen, coal miners, steelworkers, and rivermen receive their share of attention, as do the towns and cities along the Monongahela banks. Thus this book is concerned with more than the smog and greasy water of the exciting, which during the King James time meant "let" Matthew 19: 14 illustrates this point. In King James version it reads: "But Jesus said, 'Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for such is the kingdom of heaven.'"

The Louisville Story is a report of the Sinking Fund Commission of Louisville, Kentucky, which was conceived as a means of developing an account of the inception, growth, and development of the Louisville Sinking Fund. The principal debt-service agencies in the nation. This book is written in a style that is both lively and the reader's interest.

The book is divided into four main headings with the following: The Early Struggle Through a Century; The Present Debt; and The Louisville Plan. This book contains several colored illustrations including a picture of the Louisville City Hall and Black and white illustrations, portraits, and charts are also included.

Late President Butler's Commencement Address

David Andrew Weaver is the author of the Louisville Sinking Fund. He is a member of the Louisville Sinking Fund. He is a member of the Louisville Sinking Fund.

Melvin Bailey, former MSC student is now with the 25th Infantry Division in Korea. Bailey entered the army in September 1951, and needed only a few hours to earn his B.S. degree from the University of Louisville. He is now a Captain in the 14th Regiment, Company B.

He has been participating in the 25th Infantry Division's training program designed to train new recruits in how to close the mark landing sites, indicate wind directions, mark hazards, and assist in the evacuation of the wounded. Helicopters in Korea have been invaluable in evacuating wounded directly to the hospital and transport, supplied to the land areas of the front lines.

Corporal Bailey's wife, Beulah, is a nurse in the 25th Infantry Division. Her husband, Mr. Bailey, is a nurse in the 25th Infantry Division.

Socially Speaking . . .

Weren't the decorations lovely that were up in the grill last Thursday? Maybe the Mystic Club is trying out ideas for decorations for the Homecoming dance.

They don't the freshmen really organize themselves and do something like all the sports that they have? Everyone knows that the freshmen class is the top, so why don't you freshmen show everyone what you really can do. Three cheers (rah! rah! rah!)

This is really swell but why can't it happen more often? Now for a little bit. Who is the good-looking boy that's who? Wilson has been hustling! Some of the old couples are left from last year—there's Ann Wright and Leo O'Brien, Billie Jo Miller and Bill Shelby, Bobbie Hodge and Tony Alton, Joyce Standford and Tony Romano . . . and lots of others. Of course, there are a lot of new couples here too.

Alice Williams and Bob Elder, Bobbie Meyers and Dave Hilton, Kenneth E. B. and Mary Spence, Sarah Young and Clinton Hickman and still more of these too. Well, we'll leave with this: "We'll leave with this."

Little Man On Campus

Joe: I met your sister on the street today. She is getting fat. Tom: She ought to. She's working in a photograph gallery. Joe: What has that got to do with her getting fat? Tom: She is developing.

I have a sister who is an artist's model. She is only making a bare living.

Q: Why does it take a girl longer to dress than a man? A: Because she has to look down for the curves.

"Watch for a pass, men."

Jim Ashton, 45, is shown gaining 9 yards against Western last Saturday. Frank Bloes, 52, and Izzy Porter, 62, are the only two Morehead players identifiable.

Hilltoppers, Led By Feix, Defeat Eagles

Quarterback Jimmy Feix, Western's ace passer, showed the Morehead fans why he is a top candidate for Little All-American honors last week by leading the Western team to a decisive 20-7 win over the undermanned Morehead Eagles.

Co-Captain Pitt Hoffman scored the lone Eagle touchdown with a nice catch of one of Izzy Porter's passes. Clarence Payne converted and that was the end of Morehead's scoring except for a threat late in the game.

The air filled literally with football as both quarterbacks tossed a total of 74 passes, Porter connecting with 18. The score might have been larger, except for Porter's fine punting. He kicked five times for a 42-yard average.

Jack Slattery and Clarence Payne were outstanding in the line while Sonny Adkins and Bill Goble were the leading ground gainers for the Big Blue.

Committee To Evaluate MSC Teacher Training

According to recent announcements from the office of Dr. Warren C. Lippin, Dean of the College, the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education will soon send a committee to Morehead to study and evaluate the college as a teacher-training institution. This committee will operate under the direction of Dr. F. D. Macomber of Miami University and President G. M. Smith of Middle Tennessee State College.

The membership of A.A.C.T.E. consists of institutions in this country that prepare students for teaching. It accepts into its membership those institutions which make application and which are able to meet A.A.C.T.E. standards.

Several members of the college faculty are now making a study of the training program here. They will present the committee with a report which the committee will study. Interviews with faculty members and students will constitute part of the committee's activities.

A more detailed story concerning this program will appear in the next issue of the Trail Blazer.

enemy. Morehead's only score came on a 33-yard run by Adkins after catching one of Porter's passes.

Raiders Win Over Eagles

In a bitterly fought contest Saturday at Murfreesboro, Tenn., the Morehead Eagles lost their third OVC contest of the season to the Middle Tennessee State College Raiders, 27-6.

The two teams were evenly matched for two periods only to see the Raiders roll over a tired and undermanned Morehead eleven. Quarterback Charlie Porter scored Morehead's touchdown on a sneak from the one-yard line.

Once again co-captain Jack Slattery was outstanding on defense along with Gardner Bates and Harold Barker. Slattery and Bates played the entire 60 minutes. Little Jimmy Gose and fullback Johnny Kline gained most of the Eagles yardage through their fine running.

Ross Anderson Publishes Story

Mr. Ross C. Anderson, head of the Department of Commerce and Business Administration, had published in the October, 1952, issue of the Kentucky School Journal an article called "Business Experience and Business Teachers." The article is mainly concerned with the difficulties, principles, values, plans and products of business experience.

 The volley ball season for WRAA With a rip-roaring tournament under way.

If you don't believe me, just drop in this Monday night and see the present project of the Women's Recreational Association.

This tournament, consisting of three gunbored teams, three group teams, one town team, and an out-of-state team, will begin Monday night, with Team one and an out-of-town group opening the series at 7 o'clock. Jimmie Scott has been elected manager of this event.

High-spirited Freshman Show Pep

Many great race horses have become famous because of their "gallant spirit." If this is the true case, then the freshman fillets from Allie Young must be direct descendants of Man O' War. Their spirit and alertness is equal to the excitement of Derby Day, and just to prove my point, let's check the freshman bulletin board at Allie Young. Here is a list asking for volley ball recruits, with 57 freshmen signatures at the bottom. This is a quick example of keenness, but freshman eagerness is not limited to Allie Young occupants. A group of commuting students entered the race by hustling up nine more thoroughbreds to form a town team. Of course, one stimulant for this sudden burst of interest is the WRAA volley ball tournament starting Monday. Whether or not a freshman squad comes out owner of the winner's circle, we can still say, "Keep up the pep, high-spirited fillets of '52."
