Bills have been introduced for the creation of two more new counties. One of them is to be formed from parts of Johnson and Lawrence and called Hindman and the other by dividing Ballard, the new county to be named Carlisle. In the meantime the disintegration of Rowan county is being seriously considered by the Legislature. There are already too many counties and several of them should be consolidated in the pauper sections until the number is materially reduced. Christian is a very large county, but we manage to get along as well as any county in the state one half its size. It is nonsense to organize every neighborhood into a pauper county.
