No. 17

To Vote In November . . .

Re-Registration Mandatory

Re-registration of all voters in Rowan County by Sept. 25 is one of many necessities created by Kentucky's new election law which became effective December 1 of last year. Rowan County Clerk Ottis Elam has emphasized that all voters must register or re-register before midnight Sept. 24 if they plan to vote in the November election. By date less than half of Rowan County's approximately 8,000 voters have re-registered, according to Clerk Elam.

The re-alignment of Rowan's voting precincts was completed in February and became effective on March 1 with publication in the Morehead News of maps showing the new precinct boundaries and the magisterial district boundaries.

Board Of Elections Task

The tedious and complicated task of re-aligning the boundary lines was done by the Rowan County board of elections. The board originally, when set up in December, was composed by Sheriff Carl Jones, Clerk Ottis Elam, May Williams and Chester Kiser. The election law provides that every Kentucky county have a four-member county election board. The members, according to law, are the county court clerk, the sheriff and two persons appointed by the State Board of Elections. Clerk Elam and Sheriff Jones automatically became members of the Rowan board. Mrs. Williams and Kiser were named by the state board of elections.

After Sheriff Carl Jones filed for political office, he became disqualified to serve on the board and was succeeded by his wife, Annabelle Jones. Mrs. Jones was since relinquished her position on the board and was succeeded on April 3 by the appointment of Erna Thompson. Mrs. Elam, after filing for office, was succeeded by Jean Bailey. Thus, the board currently is composed of Thompson, Kiser, Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Williams.

The county board of elections is required by law to review precinct boundaries annually and make sure no more than 700 voters are in a precinct. The board also will supervise elections and removal of voters' names from the registration records, a job previously handled by a purgation board.

New Precinct Created

In re-aligning the Rowan County precincts to meet the legal requirements, a new precinct was created, known as No. 14, Bluestone.

Also, through the revisions, two precincts in the northwest section of the county (No. 2, Lower Farmers and No. 14, Bluestone) were placed in the 70th legislative district, along with Mason, Fleming and Bracken counties. The balance (other 12) of Rowan's precincts are in the 71st legislative district which includes Elliott, Morgan, Menifee and a part of Wolfe counties.

Also, as the result of the new election law and the re-registration requirements, the name of every registered eligible Kentucky voter will be a part of a computer memory bank when the re-registration deadline of Sept. 24 is reached.

Problems Anticipated

"There may be errors and problems this year, but this year it will be the greatest thing that ever happened in Kentucky," Mrs. Thelma Stovall, secretary of state, commented as she explained the operations in the new Board of Elections.

Re-registering of the state's estimated one and one-half million voters begins in the clerk's office with registrations entered on new cards. The cards are then forwarded to

Annexation Hearing Set Wednesday

The City of Morehead's annexation hearing has been set for trial at 9 a.m. Wednesday, May 2, by Rowan Circuit Judge Caswell P. Lane.

The Circuit Judge overruled the motion filed in December by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Cecil and Billy L. Patrick which requested that the annexation petition be dismissed. The City seeks through its annexation plan to take within its boundaries all property south of Divide Hill to the hill between Morehead and Clearfield from below Brady Curve east to Kodurn; and all of Divide Hill, and everything south of Interstate 64, including the interstate itself for a distance of about three miles.

Included in the areas sought to be annexed are Sherwood Forest, North Wilson Avenue, Ed Mabry Development, Forest Hills, Pine Crest, Holiday Inn, and parts of the Daniel Boone National Forest.

Currently the municipality is three square miles and with annexation it would become nine square miles or three times its present size in area.

Intruders Enter Reynolds Home Over Weekend

Thieves entered the Paul J. Reynolds residence at 438 Knapp Avenue sometime over the weekend and stole a General Electric 12 inch television set, a stereo and speakers.

Morehead Police Chief, Callis Coyle, said the intruders gained entry into the home through a bedroom window after breaking the glass.

Chief Coyle reported that the family was gone from Friday through Sunday and it was difficult to determine when the home was entered.

No estimate as to the value of the stolen merchandise was made by the Police Chief; however, he did report that the stereo and speakers were brought here from Japan by Reynolds' son and were right valuable monetarily and also had sentimental value.

There have been no arrests made in connection with the breaking and entering.

Time Is Changing

EFFECTIVE SUNDAY . . . The pretty twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Cook, Rt. 2, Morehead, remind all Morehead News readers to move their time pieces up one hour at midnight Saturday when Daylight Savings Time goes into effect and comes until midnight Saturday, Oct. 27. Rhonda and Regina, left and right respectively, will celebrate their fourth birthday on Sept. 18.

Building Plans In Status Quo

A definite decision on building the proposed city-county governmental complex, which was anticipated at the meeting last Thursday night of the Morgantown-Rowan County Fiscal Improvement Association, was not reached.

The corporation meeting jointly with members of City Council and Rowan Fiscal Court, was hampered in some of its discussion since only one magistrate attended the meeting.

Magistrate Larry Breeze, chairman of the Improvement Corporation who presided at the meeting, said he did not know why the other magistrates were absent.

In absence of the Fiscal Court members, the corporation voted unanimously to recommend to Fiscal Court and City Council that each governmental body set aside 50 percent of present and future revenue-sharing funds for construction of the building.

The recommendation will be made at the Fiscal Court meeting on Thursday, May 3. Five of the six City Council members were in attendance Thursday night, as were County Attorney Harvey Pennington, County Judge Ott Caldwell, City Attorney Paul Blair and a good representation of the corporation members.

Authorization Detailed

Chuck Burton of Dupree and Company of Lexington, fiscal agent, advised the group of the financing alternatives and gave a yearly cost breakdown based on projected use by the city and the county. He explained that the cost to the county per year, without utilities, would run about $65,946, with the county's share of utilities being about $9,224 per year for a total of $75,170. The figures were based on a total project cost of $1,400,000 financed at 6 1/2 percent for 25 years.

The annual debt service for the city would be about $37,426 without utility cost of $5,316 or a total of $42,742. The Rowan County School Board's expense would run about $11,400 per year, including utilities. The school board has said it would be interested in renting space in the structure on a year-to-year basis, but probably would occupy the building no more than four to five years since it plans to erect its own central office building in the future.

The fiscal adviser discussed bond issue financing and sources of revenue which the city and the county might utilize in connection with the debt service.

Burton presented a broad plan which would require a two-thirds majority vote in a General Election.

Note Sidetracked This Year

After discussing the pros and cons of a bond issue during an election year when city and county office holders will be elected, the corporation concluded that the issue could become clouded in politics and should not be put to a vote this year.

It was pointed out by the fiscal adviser that waiting another year would result in an increase in construction that would amount to $100,000 or more. By the same token, he said a bond issue that is defeated this year would be difficult to get passed in another election and gets a program off to a bad beginning.

The fiscal agent explained that voting or authorizing a tax sufficient to cover the debt would not necessarily mean an increase in taxes. He said if revenue-sharing continues and the city and county will receive sufficient revenue funds during the next five years to more than cover the cost of the project for five years by using only half of the revenue-sharing; the bonds would just be retired and no tax levied.

City Attorney Blair said a two-third majority would be hard to get, but if voters were assured they would not be taxed as long as revenue-sharing lasts, the issue might pass. "If the county is not willing to pledge all of its revenue-sharing, then it will not work," Blair explained.

County Judge Ott Caldwell and Mayor William Lane have stated they are strongly in favor of a new governmental complex and think revenue-sharing should be considered as a source of helping finance the project.

Perkins Speaks On Air, Water At Banquet Here

The outstanding conservationists and promoters of conservation in Rowan County were honored and Congressmen Carl Perkins spoke at the annual awards dinner of the Rowan County Conservation District held Friday night at the Farm Bureau Building.

Perkins congratulated the award recipients and the District Board of Supervisors for the accomplishments they are making in the conservation of the county's natural resources. He told those attending of the recent efforts by Congress to stimulate conservation programs that were cancelled recently.

The Congressman said, "It is no mistake to say that doing something about the environment is the most important task of our lifetime here on this earth. If we don't effectively end the pollution of our water and our air, we are condemning the human race to death. Modern society has developed an almost unbridled desire for power to pollute."

Perkins explained that a number of people who holler loud about environmental protection and ending pollution often change their tone of voice when the process of ending pollution begins to cost them something extra. "They aren't sure it is such a good idea," the Congressman said. "I believe that the nation's outlay for conservation is the best money we spend and it is certainly deserving of high priority in our fiscal plans," Perkins said.

Perkins further explained that for the upcoming Fiscal Year 1974, the President of the United States has recommended a budget of $287.7 billion. "Despite the fact that the Vietnam War is allegedly over, there is a $4.7 billion increase in defense spending," he pointed out. He also stated that there is a $10 billion cut in domestic programs for education, agriculture, health facilities, manpower training and the like.

"Among those things to fall by the wayside is the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP)," he continued. "You are all familiar with the REAP program, and with the good that has been accomplished over the 37 years it has been in operation. REAP and its predecessor, the Agricultural Conservation Assistance Program, has been known as 'The Cave Run Wilderness.'"

"We are asking each of you 350 affiliated clubs and over 400 members to support the proposal of Senator Cook by interceding with their Congress members," Reid Love, Vanceburg, LKS president, asserted.

Thrust of the legislation, Senator Cook says, is to establish the unique eastern Kentucky area permanently, and thus

Joe McBrayer Enters Race For Magistrate

Joe McBrayer, a lifelong resident of Rowan County, today announced he will seek election in the May Primary as Magistrate of District No. 3 composed of precincts 4, Stogtown, 9, Clearfield, and 13, City Hall.

Running on the Republican ticket, McBrayer resides at Rt. 3, Morehead, with his wife, the former Ola Pettit. They have reared six children.

In announcing his candidacy for Magistrate, McBrayer issued the following written statement:

"I have filed and announced for this office on the Republican ticket. Although I have no opinion, I do want the people to know that I seek this office."

"The office of Magistrate is becoming increasingly important. The public and taxpayers are entitled to the efficient administration of their money. This is not a time for waste or mismanagement of the affairs of the people."

"It is my desire to talk with each of you before the General Election and discuss some of the pressing problems facing the County."

"I shall make every effort to contact each of you. Your vote and influence will be deeply appreciated."

Sportsmen Endorse . . .

Weapons Ground Preservation

The League of Kentucky Sportsmen today endorsed legislation by U.S. Senator Marlow Cook (R-Louisville) to designate the Commonwealth's first wilderness area.

The area is the 200-acre Pioneer Weapons Hunting Area in Daniel Boone National Forest in Bath and Menifee Counties and is known as "The Cave Run Wilderness."

"We are asking each of our 350 affiliated clubs and over 400 members to support the proposal of Senator Cook by interceding with their Congress members," Reid Love, Vanceburg, LKS president, asserted.

Thrust of the legislation, Senator Cook says, is to establish the unique eastern Kentucky area permanently, and thus prevent its bisecting by a vehicular highway. "The League of Kentucky Sportsmen has opposed construction of the bisecting road which will endanger wild turkey, deer and other wildlife species," Love declared.

An alternate route to the future Cave Run Reservoir Zip Point Recreation Area has been proposed by the LKS and will skirt the PWA.

The bisecting road and the skirting road are included in the Army Corps of Engineers Environmental Impact Statement soon to be released for public review.

In preparing the legislation, Senator Cook challenged Corps figures that its proposed bisecting road is $65,000 less than the cost of the alternate route proposed by Kentucky's largest and oldest sportsman-conservation organization.

"The benefit to maintaining the Pioneer Weapons Hunting Area in a natural state to preserve the remoteness and leave the wildlife habitat undisturbed clearly outweighs any rationalization for not spending $65,000," Cook said.

Colonel Charles Fiala, district engineer of the Corps at Louisville, said no decision has been made on the location of the Zip Point access road.

"Senator Cook's pending legislation could delay, and perhaps modify ultimate decision," Colonel Fiala added.

The schedules must specify dates the action will be taken. Copies of the schedules will be available in the office of Boyd County Court Clerk Ray L. Stone.

Anyone planning to testify at the hearing must submit notification by May 12 with the department of health. Oral statements will be heard and oral summarizations of lengthy texts, submitted in writing, may be made.

However, the U.S. Department of Environmental Protection says any person wishing to comment at the hearing will be heard. Wells Lumber Co., Morehead; Ray L. White and Sons, Inc., Morehead; and White Lumber Co., Morehead.

"This is a far cry from the estimated one and one-half million Kentucky voters that must re-register this year," Mrs. Stovall said.

Unless re-registered by the deadline, Kentuckians will be deprived of the right to vote in the November election when most state legislators and county officials are to be elected.

"This is a difficult process now, but once completed, with clerks receiving monthly updates on voter changing, it will bring a new look to Kentucky's election process."

It's Official: Morehead Site Of Area SS Office

A month ago the Morehead News said that Kentucky Selective Service Director Taylor Davidson was setting his sights on high in forecasting about 40 area draft offices, and the total would be nearer 20 because of insufficient funds.

It was officially announced in Frankfort this week that Kentucky would have 20 regional SS offices, and one would be at Morehead.

Davidson said the new organization was in accordance with the abolition of the draft. No one has been called up in the draft since last December when the authority to conscript expires June 30.

The regional offices, Davidson said, will be in Paducah, Hopkinsville, Madisonville, Owensboro, Bowling Green, Elizabethtown, Louisville, Frankfort, Daviessville, Columbia, Somerset, Covington, Lexington, London, Morehead, Jackson, Hazard, Harlan, Ashland and Prestonsburg.

The local draft board will be retained for 12 of Kentucky's 120 counties, Davidson said, but the county offices will be closed and their records transferred to the nearest regional office.

Along with that move, the number of persons employed in the state selective service system will drop from 139 as of last March to 110 by June 30, 91 by Sept. 1 and 70 by Dec. 15.

Men Still Must Register

Unpaid registrars also are being appointed in each county to make it more convenient for young men to register for the draft when they turn 18, which Davidson stressed they still must do. These registrars will be located in high schools, Job Corps centers, certain colleges and agricultural stabilization and conservation service offices, he said.

In addition, he continued, a young man may register for the draft at any Selective Service office in the country.

Davidson said the major considerations in deciding where to locate regional offices were accessibility where they would be the least expensive to maintain. Records for each county are to be kept separate when they are moved to the regional offices, Davidson said, so the Selective Service System can move quickly from a standby to active status if necessary.

Beef Cattle

The Beef Cattle research personnel at the College of Agriculture has advised there is a possibility that Kentucky will run short of grazing crops in 1973. The expansion of beef cattle numbers has grown at an annual 5 percent to 8 percent rate since 1960, bringing our present number to 1.25-1.3 million. We presently have more cows and yearlings than ever before. These additional animals will require 750 thousand more tons of forage this year, mostly grazing, to fulfill their meeting.

Feed For Cattle

Do you have enough feed to carry your cattle through the year? These suggestions may help —

- + Make use of electric fences and go restricted grazing — much of our grass is lost by trampling and letting grow to maturity.
- + Get idle fields back into production.
- + Make use of corn silage — where possible — you don't have to have a silo. Many farmers in the state are getting good results from stack silage covered with plastic and other materials, and use of bunkers and pits.
- + Small grains seeded in late summer make good winter grazing.
- + Sudan and Sudan Sorghum hybrids make good summer grazing.
- + Soil test in order to know that you have supplied the necessary plant foods for highest yields.

2 Area Students State 4-H Champs

Kentucky 1973 state champions in 39 4-H projects and activities were announced this week by the Extension 4-H staff of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Among state winners were Pam Byron of Owingsville, in the Bicycle category; and Kirkie Ash of Tollesboro in the Entomology division.

The Junior Town and Country 4-H Club in Bath County was first place winner in the Kentucky Utilities program which honors clubs in the KU coverage area for outstanding community development, citizenship and leadership activities.

The state champions were chosen from area champions who, in turn, were selected from county winners. Selections in each project were based mainly on the work and accomplishments in a particular project and on what the project work had done for the boy or girl.

Publisher's Pen...

Tourists in foreign countries from the second largest (in area) state of the nation are usually embarrassed when asked where they're from and they proudly reply "Texas."

Almost invariably the foreigner inquires: "Where is Texas?"

But, if you are traveling abroad and your answer is, "I'm from Kentucky," the eyes of the affable foreigner will light up with "Oh, yes, that's where they run the Kentucky Derby," and make that good Kentucky fried chicken."

He might also burn a few bars of My Old Kentucky Home. If you visit a night club in most countries and the emcee wants to recognize you as being from the U.S.A., the orchestra, as a matter of proved record, will usually play "My Old Kentucky Home."

The foregoing is leading up to the main topic discussion in this version of the Publisher's Pen—an event that will come to pass on Saturday next week—the running of the 99th Kentucky Derby.

The ears of millions of people all over the world, even in the communist countries, will be tuned, even in Louisville, Kentucky, to the Derby. Kentuckians probably don't fully recognize the favorable publicity and international image that this horse race brings to our Commonwealth.

Business virtuoso headlines major cities of the nation during the running of the Derby. There is no way of computing how many thousands of office parties will be held, and the pools whereby everybody puts up a dollar and draws the name of a Derby entry.

Decades ago Irvin S. Cobb wrote "Until you go to Kentucky and with your own eyes behold the Derby, you ain't never been no whippersnapper and you ain't never been no man."

As hunted above, Kentucky is the best known (perhaps) of any of our 50 states because of 1) The Kentucky Derby, 2) Kentucky Fried Chicken, and 3) The strains of My Old Kentucky Home.

More people in the world know of, and about, Col. Harland Sanders than they do President Nixon. However, if that Watergate exhaust continues, Nixon's name could well become the best known on this planet Earth.

Incidentally, you may have noted that in modern history democratic Presidents have been known by their initials, probably because of newspaper headline writers, but republican Presidents have not. For example there was FDR, HST, LBJ and JFK, but you never hear of DDE (Eisenhower) or RMX (Nixon).

Getting back to the milk in the coconut, and the subject at hand—the 99th Kentucky Derby.

All during the winter and early spring the metropolitan sports writers who are self-acclaimed "experts" have been saying that Secretariat is unbeatable in this year's Derby; that the colt may be better than the great Man O'War.

During all this build-up, the Publisher of this newspaper has been dubious. We have pointed out that Secretariat is a son of Bold Ruler and the offspring of Bold Ruler are rarely successful in races over a mile and falter in that last quarter of heartbreak highway at Churchill Downs. Last Saturday this great horse, Secretariat, was entered in the mile and one-eighth Wood Memorial. He finished a badly beaten third.

The Kentucky Derby picture today is wide open the way we predicted all winter long.

The winner? We won't get that today. But, in the very next issue of the Morehead News this Publisher will print the name of a horse right here in this column—and that name will be the winner of the 99th Derby. We'll also print the selections of our 20 members of the Morehead Derby panel, all self-appointed experts.

We ought to increase the price for the next edition to a dollar on newstands, same price as the Racing Form. The next issue will be 15 cents, same as always, biggest bargain since Ed Mahry bought (but later lost) the General Refractories Railroad on Christy Creek.

Ecology and environment, about which this and almost every newspaper have editorially used thousands of words in print, was brought into local focus during the week.

A representative of student government at Morehead State University visited the Publisher with a plan that called for: 1. Placing over 600 green painted barrels on the streets of Morehead and the campus; 2. Daily, every-day, collection of these barrels; 3. Installation of re-cycling and bundling equipment; and 4. Operating trucks to Lexington where the re-cycled waste could be sold for $8 a ton.

The League of Women Voters announced it would meet this (Thursday) evening with the entire program devoted to discussions on re-cycling.

We're for any community re-cycling program because it is like being for motherhood and against sin. But, ideas and performance are poles apart.

In other words, our oft-used expression applies here: The glittering generalities that we see in the going to carry through with the hard work, expense, and gruesome details?

We do think that Morehead is ready for a community re-cycling program. The idea is not new, but the "gruesome details" becomes a horse of another color, and the pit-fall that has wrecked so many good, and well-meaning civic undertakings. Another way of saying it is that talk and advice are plentiful, but money and dedicated work are difficult to recruit.

The Morehead area will have many Kentucky Derby parties, and everybody wants to serve mint juleps, the traditional Derby drink. Unfortunately, few people know how to make a "real" Kentucky mint julep, or RMX (Nixon).

Brockman, for the following information which you might clip and save so that your party will serve the best juleps in town.

The julep, reminiscent of bluegrass, harkens back to sunny spring days, is a true Kentucky tradition. But true Kentuckians just can't settle their differences on how to make the frothy drink. About the only thing they can agree on is that it should be made with Kentucky bourbon.

Some Kentuckians will bet their last blade of bluegrass that a julep is really a mint-flavored variation of a "toddy," a mixture of lemon and orange spring rays. These folks merely make a toddy, garnish it with a sprig of mint and have enough time to watch all the pre-Derby shows on television.

Other julep connoisseurs are infuriated by the toddy enthusiasts. They argue that the concoction of a mint julep requires a maximum of time and energy. They would probably tend to follow statesman Henry Clay's detailed recipe:

"The mint leaves, fresh and tender, should be pressed against a coin-silver goblet with the back of a silver spoon. Only bruise the leaves gently and then remove them from the goblet. Half fill with cracked ice. Mellow bourbon, aged in oak barrels, is poured from the jigger and allowed to slide slowly through the cracked ice.

"In another receptacle, granulated sugar is slowly mixed into chilled limestone water, then poured on top of the ice. While beads of moisture gather on the burnished exterior of the goblet, garnish the frosted brim with choicest sprigs of mint. Then sip."

"Put 12 sprigs fresh mint in bowl, covered with powdered sugar and just enough water to dissolve the sugar, and crush with wooden pestle. Place half the crushed mint and liquid in the bottom of a cracked glass tumbler, or in sterling silver or pewter tankard. Fill glass half full of finely crushed ice. Add rest of crushed-mint and liquid remainder of glass with crushed ice. Pour in whiskey until glass is brimming. Place in ice-box at least an hour (preferably two or three hours—so if you can wait that long). Decorate with sprigs of mint covered with powdered sugar when ready to serve."

If none of these instructions sounds appealing, there are still some recipes from a more moderate julep school. Its followers swear by this Derby Day quickie, guaranteed to get even the worst klutz out of the kitchen in time for the race:

"— Mash three or four leaves of mint with one teaspoon of powdered sugar in the bottom of a traditional silver julep cup or an old-fashioned glass. Add one teaspoon of water and stir until the sugar is completely dissolved. Fill the glass with finely crushed ice and stir well."

Now's the time for the Kentucky bourbon put in a jigger or two, depending upon personal preference. Stir enough to mix the bourbon, pour a fresh mint sprig into the ice near the top of the glass and serve.

One last alternative remains for those on the more radical side. Forget about the mint sprigs and sugar—just drink the bourbon straight.

Getting the record straight — The Morehead News in recent issues printed columns about the forthcoming county elections. But, somehow we failed to mention that there would be no race for Circuit Court Clerk. Wathan Armstrong was elected last year by an overwhelming majority, to serve the remainder of the six year term in the office which became vacant because of the untimely death of Ralph Early. The next election for Circuit Court Clerk will be in 1975 as Mr. Armstrong has been elected until January 1, 1976. Sorry, Wathan, we hadn't mentioned this in all our recent stories and observations on local politics and city and county government.

Probably nobody is more aware of "red herrings" than members of the Fourth Estate.

A meeting was held last week on the proposed city-county building. And, lo and behold, what was the discussion mostly about — a bond referendum that requires a two-thirds majority vote.

Through the years we have learned quite a bit about fiscal agencies, bonds, commissions, sales below par, and tax-free indentures.

We are also cognizant of the enviable fact that the credit rating of Rowan County and the City of Morehead is excellent, a far cry from what it was some 30 or 40 years ago.

It is our confirmed belief that a referendum is not necessary, and the money needed can be borrowed by a majority vote of Fiscal Court and Council. Further, there is no question but that the county, and city can erect the building without raising taxes.

We are also knowledgeable that Fiscal Court has already received $115,318 in federal revenue sharing funds, and will, within the year, receive another $100,000 or more. The City has already received $91,850 of these funds.

Is the proposal for a new city-county building being sabotaged from within?

We repeat an emphasis that any thinking citizen of this county should vote for no candidate for County Judge, Magistrate, Mayor or City Council, unless that candidate has made it plain, and in writing on the printed word, what his position is on this city-county building. Also, any member of the planning committee for the city-county seat of government should resign if he is opposed to what he was appointed to be working for.

The time for "fence straddling" has passed. We expect to further editorialize this before the primary election, and let the chips fall where the voters decide.

It is our intention to factually correct some of the misrepresentation that has this week come across the newspaper.

The late Allie W. Young said: "The people, properly informed, will vote right."

This newspaper is strong in the editorial belief that it is our duty to properly inform the people on a subject of such importance.

In the meantime Fiscal Court and Council should carefully board — invest at interest — the revenue sharing funds already received and soon to come. The worst thing they could do is to start on a spending spree near election time and dissipate the federal revenue sharing money if they start throwing the revenue sharing money they will be dottle lurking in the background.

Knowledgeable and thinking voters who comprise the majority and are not so gullible as some of the candidates might believe.

Much has, and will be written (but, a repetitious phrase is sound advice — don't cast your ballot for any candidate who does not clearly state his position on this city-county building, which is the most important business that Rowan County and the City of Morehead have or necessarily face at our 117 year history. It is almost an axiom that fence straddlers make inept public officials.

Easter has passed, but we thought you might enjoy the following observations from Frank Weikel of the Cincinnati Enquirer —

"The fact that this is Easter week and readers' minds are on church may have been what inspired one Kentucky reader to supply us with a collection of messages that reportedly have appeared in church bulletins. Here are some examples —

"This afternoon there will be a meeting in the north and south ends of the church. Children will be baptized at both ends.

"Tuesday at 4 p.m. there will be an ice cream social. All ladies giving milk please come early.

"Wednesday the ladies literary society will meet. Mrs. Johnson will sing "Put Me in My Little Bed," accompanied by the reverend."

"Thursday at 5 p.m. there will be a meeting of the Little Mothers club. All

Rowan Outstanding Young Educator Nominees Named

Tom Martin, Outstanding Young Educator chairman for the Morehead Jaycees, announced today that four educators in Morehead-Rowan County have been nominated for the coveted Outstanding Young Educator Award given annually by the Jaycees. Nominated are Mrs. Linda Coyle, Dan Thomas, Diemzel Dennis and Terry Hoffman.

The 1973 recipient will be announced at the annual Jaycee Awards Banquet on May 3 at 6:30 p.m. at the Mountaineer House on East Main.

Mrs. Coyle teaches the second grade at Tildon Hogg Elementary. A graduate of Morehead State University, she expresses concern that enough time is not being given the individual child and his learning abilities and strives to put instruction on an individual basis.

Thomas is guidance counselor at University Breckinridge and has been instrumental in developing a counseling-testing program that is receiving state wide attention. He has instituted the flexible-modular scheduling approach to offer a wider range of learning opportunities and help establish a career education center for students enrolled in the laboratory school as well as practicum students enrolled in the teacher education program at Morehead State.

Dennis is instructor of health, physical education and recreation at Breckinridge and serves as head basketball coach and Athletic Director. His basketball teams have won four consecutive EKC championships, three consecutive District championships, and have been a twenty-game winner for the past four years. As a classroom instructor he has been active in committee assignments that have seen a model HPER program developed for Breckinridge.

Hoffman, chemistry and physics instructor at Breckinridge, has instructed new approaches in the teaching of science that includes project activity and investigative approaches to learning. While a graduate student, he received a grant from the Atomic Energy Commission, Oak Ridge, Tenn., to present a program "This Atomic World" to high schools throughout the region.

The Outstanding Young Educator program is a state wide program for the Jaycees and is a search for that young educator, male or female, between the ages of 21-35 who best exemplifies the teaching profession. It is our attempt to recognize those people who are developing the minds of our youth. Martin said.

MRS. PURNELL SURVIVOR OF MRS. SUNDAY'S SERMON

The Sunday After Easter, once again, is gone for another year. But will the great message of Easter remain in your life, cause a change, or help you set new goals? Or will Easter just be forgotten until it's time to bring out the Easter bunnies, color the eggs, and distribute candy?

The message of Easter is one of hope, life, and vitality. It reminds us of our obligations to our spiritual life. Easter is a time of great joy, but that joy should last longer than a few days or a week. The joy of Easter should guide us in our every move and help us to be mindful of the will of God.

How many of us will let God show us the meaning of our lives? And how many of us will accept and do what He wants us to? For Easter is proof that God loves us and it is up to each of us to show our love for Him and all our throbbing hearts on this small planet in a very large universe. Why not keep the message of Easter alive all year long?

GETTING IT ALL TOGETHER

The use of one key color is what makes stripes "sit home" with the medallions there are bond-looking blades. Analogous shades of orange run rampant through the room, and tanger is the "stone" floor.

Area Council Given Month's Lease On Life

Directors of the Northeast Kentucky Area Development Council which serves Rowan and area counties, learned this week their organization has at least a month's new lease on life, plus the possibility of extension or resurrection by courts which have denied presidential power to cut off the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The five-county agency was supposed to have breathed its last in August, but an additional month's funding has come, according to Eugene Binion, executive director.

The body voted in March to keep its organization together as a non-profit agency, in some way to keep directing and soliciting programs for aid of the poor. Tuesday night, meeting in regular session, directors voted to notify the Department of Labor, Health, Education and Welfare of intent to continue as an organized body. Many of the programs for poor people which survive could be assigned Labor and HEW for direction and placement.

Directors discussed the court case which denies phase-out of the national OEO, but even though orders have been handed down to close Northeast, "people in Atlanta or Washington don't know what direction to go," Binion said.

Binion explained there may be some summer youth programs this year through PEO, though he advised waiting for more information before announcing. Headstart will continue at least another year, though there will be no NYC nor college work-study program this summer.

He said the council would try to come up with a plan for continuation of Mainstream programs, either through county financing or some other means, with county judges in places of leadership.

President Lonnie M. Clik said he would appoint a committee to help develop a phase-out plan, if and when the final order to dismantle comes.

High School Students Hear Education Needs

Kentucky's most pressing public school needs are expansion of special education and vocational education, State School Supt. Lyman V. Ginger said here Tuesday.

He told the first of four Kentucky Youth Symposia that additional federal aid, especially direct help for students, is a "critical" need in vocational education. Dr. Ginger said he favored programs similar to the grants, loans and work study jobs funded federally for college students. The state's present level of public instruction was questioned for two hours by about 20 high school students representing districts in Northeastern Kentucky.

He opened the half-day session at Morehead State University with a plea for voter support of a proposed state constitutional amendment to make the State Board of Education elective rather than appointive.

Dr. Ginger described the amendment as "a means of taking public education out of partisan politics so that needs of the people will always be the first consideration."

The symposium, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education, also are scheduled Thursday at Western Kentucky University, May 1 at Murray State University and May 3 at Eastern Kentucky University.

Library Receives 5 New Volumes

Winston Churchill is a truly American author. At least the Winston Churchill who wrote "The Crossing" which is now available at the Rowan County Public Library.

The author of "The Crossing" was born in St. Louis, Mo. in 1871. Both sides of his family bear distinguished names in American history, but they are no relation to the famous English author and politician. Churchill's more famous works besides "The Crossing" include "Richard Carvel" and "The Crisis."

"The Crossing" was originally published in 1904 and is set on the Kentucky frontier and celebrates the pioneer spirit and the heroism of the pioneers.

Also presented to the library by the Columbia Gulf Transmission Company as part of its 11th annual Library Assistance Program were two books on genealogy: "Kentucky Court and Other Records" and "First Census of Kentucky: 1790". In addition, the library has received Julius Fast's "Body Language" and "The Evolution of the Machine." The books were presented by Barney Carr, Superintendent of the Morehead Pipeline Maintenance Section, during National Library Week.

The library program has grown from 13 to 46 libraries since it began in 1963. The Rowan County Public Library is one of 13 in Kentucky to receive books from Columbia Gulf this year. The books were selected by Librarian Frankie Calvert in response to a request by the company asking for the library's most desired books. The volumes were presented to the local library on April 18 by Lavant Utterback.

Help Available Free To Youths With Problems

"I think it's important that young people in Kentucky know they have someone to contact when they have a problem, regardless of its nature," said Bob Arnold, co-director of the Office of Youth Affairs. Arnold was speaking to the Kentucky Youth Assembly, gathered in Frankfort recently to learn more of governmental procedures.

If you pick up your phone and dial 1-800-372-2873, on the other end will be the Office of Youth Affairs (OYA), an agency Gov. Wendell Ford created last July by executive order.

The OYA was established to serve Kentucky's young people and their needs, a broad responsibility assigned to the office's co-directors, Ken Foree and Bob Arnold.

The office primarily acts as an informational learning house for the many opportunities federal, state, and local governments offer Kentucky's youth.

"If you need information but don't know where to receive it, you can call us toll-free and we'll put you in contact with the proper agency or program if we can't answer your questions," Arnold said.

Arnold, Foree and administrative assistant John Schlick have been visiting schools and colleges across the state to publicize the services of OYA.

Arnold stressed the fact that the legislature would determine next year whether to continue OYA and it could be continued only if Kentucky's youth made use of this service.

The office has moved to its new home at 84 East Main Street and young people are invited to drop in, call, or mail in their problems to Box 123, Frankfort, Ky., 40601.

Families In Rowan County Save $1 1/2 Million In 1972

From a financial standpoint, residents of Rowan County are in better shape today than for some time.

As a whole, they have been living well within their means, spending much less than they have been earning.

Some of their surplus cash has been used to reduce their consumer debt. As for the remainder, most of it has been going into savings.

The extent to which they have been putting money aside is evidenced by the increase in their bank deposits, in their savings and fund accounts and in their purchases of U.S. savings bonds.

In the past year alone, Rowan County families stashed away some $1,348,000 in liquid assets of this type, it is estimated.

Although this was well above their normal rate of saving, it was less than in the previous year, when uncertainty about jobs and economic conditions in general led them to postpone most non-essential spending. As a result, their savings rose to record proportions.

The figures are based upon national findings reported by the Federal Reserve Board and the Commerce Department and upon the latest income and spending figures for the local area.

As would be expected, they show that the amount a family saves is directly related, in most cases, to how much it has left after paying its bills for necessities.

Those with very small incomes are able to save little or nothing, of course. They are hard pressed to get along at all, the way prices are rising.

Families with net incomes of $6,000, after taxes, saved about 3.9 percent of it, on average, and those at the $12,000 level, approximately 6.9 percent. Beyond that, the proportion was considerably greater.

In Rowan County, where the latest annual figures show average disposable income per household in the $7,000 to $8,000 range, the overall rate of savings is around 5.0 percent. It amounts to $380 per household.

For the entire local population it adds up to approximately $1,548,000.

Assumed is that families in each income bracket, throughout the county, save at the same rate as those in other areas with similar incomes.

Kentucky's Toll Receipts Show Increase In March

Kentucky's toll receipts for March 1973, showed an overall increase compared to the same period in 1972.

The total cash received on the parkway system last month was $1,605,910.90. This compares with $1,460,627.46 collected in March, 1972.

Environmental Program Established

In an effort to help students become more aware of the relationship between man and nature, Morehead State University has established a multi-disciplinary program in environmental science.

A 22-semester-hour minor in environmental science was approved recently by the MSU Board of Regents. The minor incorporates courses in geoscience, biology, science, political science, philosophy, mathematics, agriculture, and geography.

"The program is designed to increase students' overall knowledge of the world around them," said Dr. Jerry Howell, MSU's director of environmental studies.

"Since today's society is placing more emphasis on ecology and the environment, the minor can benefit students from any major field," Dr. Howell added.

"The environmental science minor is not a typical one because it unifies several departments into one program," he said. "Students are exposed to various aspects besides the sciences."

Dr. Howell said that interest in the program has been "excellent." The program already has 30 minors and Dr. Howell expects the number to increase rapidly.

Students obtaining the minor must take courses concerning oceans, environmental biology, environmental geology, the politics of ecology, a seminar in environmental science and population, resources and environment. They may choose six hours from a group of five other courses.

A native of Breathitt County, Dr. Howell joined the MSU faculty in January, 1972. He received a doctoral degree in ecology from the University of Tennessee, bachelor's degrees in forestry and wildlife management from North Carolina State University and a master's degree in biology from Eastern Kentucky University.

Dr. Howell, who worked with the U.S. Forest Service for three years in the Black Hills of South Dakota, is working on a grant from the Office of Environmental Education to distribute inexpensive and free materials about the environment throughout Eastern Kentucky.

He coordinated a recent MSU high school leadership conference on ecology and the energy crisis.

"I feel we have an interesting and unique environmental science program," Dr. Howell said. "To our knowledge, it is the only one of its type in the state."

Weekly Meditation

One Holy Week morning a little boy was intently observing van der Weyden's "Descent From The Cross," which was on display in a downtown store window. A man approached and also stood looking. The boy began to explain to the interested person: "That's Jesus on the Cross. Wicked men crucified him. Those good men and women are taking him down and are going to bury him in a rich man's tomb." The man answered, "That's right, my boy," and left. But before he got out of sight the lad ran after him shouting, "Mister! Mister! I forgot to tell you that He rose from the dead and is now alive forever."

Perhaps sometimes some of us are so busy telling the world about the dead Jesus on the Cross that we forget that we are followers of a living Lord! The Christian has a living Redeemer. He has all power in Heaven and earth and has promised to go with us even to the end of the world. What a story to tell to a needy world. What a joy to serve a Risen Savior.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

"Two A Penny," a dramatic and challenging motion picture filmed entirely on location in London, will be shown on Sunday, April 29, at First Baptist Church. The showing is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m.

The movie, produced by World Wide Pictures, the film ministry of the Billy Graham organization, is a 65 minute package of fast action, absorbing drama, and a significant challenge to our society. It has been newly edited specifically for church showings.

"Two A Penny" stars Cliff Richard, one of England's top singers and actors, as Jamie Hopkins, self-centered opportunist who believes the world owes him everything, and he's out to collect. His interest in his girlfriend, Cassa, played by Ann Holloway, goes no further than her paycheck. The film co-stars Dora Bryan and Avril Angers, and includes a brief appearance by Dr. Billy Graham.

"The challenge Jamie ultimately faces," says the film's director, Jim Collier, "is one of honesty with himself. He must realize that a vital part of life is giving of himself. I think our film deals with the most logical ground rules for achieving the ends of love, peace, and justice."

The Reverend Hugh Brooks, pastor of the church, extends an invitation to all members of the community, stressing that the film is a film for the entire family.

Governor Expressed Need For Ambulance Regulations

Gov. Wendell Ford, feeling the deep concern of every Kentuckian for emergency health services and particularly ambulance regulations, has expressed his personal concern that action not be taken to place undue hardship on current providers of ambulance services.

At the same time, Ford expressed his conviction that regulations are needed.

"State government is deeply committed to the solution of this problem and is currently involved in three major areas," Governor

Ford said. These areas are training and technical assistance, purchases of services equipment, and licensure and regulation.

Over 400 emergency medical technicians were trained during 1972 in a cooperative program involving the State Health Department, Department of Public Safety, colleges, universities, vocational schools and health resources throughout the state.

"Our goal is to train over 400 additional technicians this year, with 24 courses offered at 16 locations throughout Kentucky," the Governor said.

Utilizing various Federal grant programs, Kentucky has secured funds and assisted local government and other groups in the purchase of 42 modern, fully equipped ambulances to serve 26 counties. Approximately 15 additional ambulances will be purchased this year.

The state has utilized numerous Federal funding sources to develop area-wide communication systems that are in place in 16 counties, with an additional 22 counties to be completed in late summer, the Governor reported.

With regard to licensure and regulation, the Governor said, "I will not debate whether or not the regulations adopted by the board are appropriate, but I will defend state government's responsibility to assure to the citizens of the Commonwealth that ambulance services meet the necessary minimum standards to assure an acceptable quality of care."

The Governor terms the regulations established by the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board "realistic goals — representing the quality of emergency medical transportation services that every Kentuckian deserves to have available."

"It would be unwise and inappropriate, however, if in pursuit of this goal, we disrupted existing services to the people or caused undue hardships on current providers that have rendered invaluable services for many years and under most circumstances at no charge to the patient," the Governor said.

Ford has instructed the secretary of human resources to meet with the Certificate of Need and Licensure Board at its regular meeting in early April to study the feasibility of developing a phased plan that provides for levels of services.

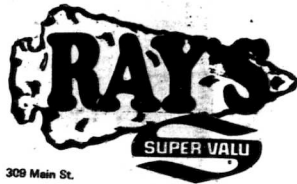

"This will continue to move us toward our ultimate goal of quality emergency medical services, but will also maintain the availability of existing resources," the Governor said.

College Enrollment Down

Close to three million persons were graduated from high school in 1972, about the same number as in 1971. However, the proportion enrolled in college the following October was 4 percent lower in 1972.

Airline Ticket Costs
The dollars you pay for your airline ticket, where do they go? First thing to be said is that they stretch farther than they do for almost anything else you buy these days. Over the past 10 years the cost of living index has gone up 35 percent. But the fare index, as measured by yield to airlines, has actually gone down 3 percent. Many individual fares have risen, of course, especially those for short trips. But when you're talking average fares for all the 200 million passengers who fly 1.5 scheduled airlines this year, the largest single item of expense is employment costs. 30 percent of the price of an airline ticket covers those costs. Next comes depreciation and amortization of aircraft and equipment, taking 13 percent of the ticket price. Fuel and oil accounts for 10 percent. Taxes and other expenses take 9 1/2 percent. The Federal tax on airline tickets is another 8 percent. Materials, supplies and maintenance cost 7 1/2 percent of the ticket price. Sales commission and advertising expenses account for another 4 percent. Interest and profit each take 2 1/2 percent. Landing fees charged by airports take another 2 percent. The final 1/2 percent of your airline ticket goes for communication and utilities.

Future Power
By the year 2000, 75 percent of the total energy consumed in the United States and half of the electric power will still come from whatever fossil fuel reserves have not been exhausted.

Some In Caskets . . .

Famous Horses Buried As Royalty

By Bonnie Brackman
A pauper's burial is rare when it comes to a famous race horse. The horses who are successful in the Sport of Kings die as kings and are buried as royalty. Take Man o' War, for instance. Recognized by many as the greatest thoroughbred ever, a statue was erected as a memorial to his legend at a cost of $50,000. His funeral in 1947 attracted the attention of thousands; he was embalmed and lay in state in a casket lined with Faraway Farm's yellow and black racing colors. Most famous horses in Fayette County, center of the Bluegrass region, are buried in cemeteries on their owner's horse farms, although the use of caskets is rare.

Casket Made To Order
"Man o' War is the only horse I know of who was buried in a casket," said Mrs. L.L.

Hunt, whose late husband, owner of the former Lexington Casket Company, made Man o' War's casket. "My husband didn't mind making the horse's casket at all. He was used to answering a lot of unusual requests. A lot of people used baby caskets when their dogs died."

Man o' War is buried beneath his statue at a public park on Huffman Mill Road in Fayette County. A moat surrounds the grave site.

Erecting a statue when a horse dies is much more common than providing the deceased with a casket. A large statue of Bull Lea towers above the tombstones at Calumet Farm's cemetery. Bull Lea, who died in 1964 at the age of 29, sired three Kentucky Derby winners and nine champions. The statue, cast several years before his death, was moved from the front of the Calumet office to his grave site when he died.

The flowers in the cemetery, scarlet sage and blue ageratum are symbolic of the devil's red and blue racing colors of the farm.

A stone pillar topped with a replica of the Kentucky Derby trophy marks the names of Calumet's seven Derby victors: Whirlaway, Pensive, Citation, Ponder, Hill Gail, Iron Leige and Tim Tam. All but Tim Tam, who is still stud, are no longer alive.

Statuette Became Souvenirs

A white wrought iron fence surrounds the gravesites at the C.V. Whitney Farm. A statuette of Equipoise, who retired with 29 victories and died in 1938, was placed in a niche of his gravestone. But souvenir seekers carried off the statuette bit by bit - first the tail, next a leg, then an ear disappeared and finally nothing remained.

The cemetery at the Whitney Farm began in 1928 with the death of Whisk Broom II. Other horses buried there include Regret, the only filly ever to win the Derby.

A statue of Fair Play, sire of Man o' War, was erected on Elmendorf Farm by the late Joseph E. Widener when the horse died in 1929. The section of land where Fair Play is buried now is part of Normandy Farm.

Many tombstones are inscribed with noteworthy epitaphs. The monument at the grave of Domino, who held the money-winning crown for about 25 years, reads: "Here lies the fleetest runner the American turf has ever known and one of the gamest and most generous of horses." Domino is buried on Huffman Mill Road.

First Horse Graveyard

Part of Longfellow's tombstone reads: "The King of the Turf. King of Racers and King of Stallions." Longfellow, a famous horse, was buried in 1893 at Woodford County's Harper Cemetery, thought to be the first race horse graveyard in Kentucky. Ten Broeck, a great thoroughbred who came in fifth in the first Kentucky Derby, was buried there in 1867.

Guy Axworthy, a famous harness racer, is buried at Walnut Hall Farm. All the horses at this graveyard have identical headstones

Canoe Slalom Course On Ohio Being Studied

By Sue Weller

Whitewater canoeing, one of the fastest growing sports in the United States, may be given added impetus with the possible construction of a man-made whitewater slalom course between Cincinnati and Maysville.

The course would be located on the Ohio side of the river at Meidahl Navigation Dam, about 30 miles east of Cincinnati. Kentuckians would have access from bridges at Cincinnati or Maysville.

The idea for the facility was suggested by the Olympic whitewater course in Augsburg, West Germany. "State and local support for the project is needed as funding for recreational projects is generally shared jointly between federal and non-federal governments," said T.K. Wiling, a Cincinnati member of a group of canoeists promoting the slalom.

Would Be Mile Long

The mile-long course would be twice the length of the olympic facility. According to Wiling, the first 1,000 feet of the course would be the "expert" section and would have the hardest flow of water. The second 1,000 feet would have the same quantity of water, but would be wider, deeper, less swift, and have slightly less drop over it's carved from Georgia marble.

Twenty Grand, winner of the 1931 Kentucky Derby, is buried at the cemetery at Greentree Stud. Others buried there include Cherry Pie, winner of six stakes, Jolly Roger, a champion steeplechaser, Cherry Malotte, winner of the 1919 Meadow Brook Steeplechase, and LaTroiene, one of the most famous brood mares of the 20th century.

The Hamburg Place cemetery, a horseshoe-shaped graveyard on Winchester Road, is the final resting place of Flauditt, the 1896 Kentucky Derby winner. Also buried there are Nancy Hanks, the first mare to trot a mile in 2:04 (1892); Hamburg Belle, who held a world's racing record for 16 years and Silico and Siliko, Kentucky Futurity winners.

Veterinary Pathology Benefits

Not all horses are lucky enough to be buried at their farm's graveyard. Each year horse farms donate about 100 not-so-famous horses to the Veterinary Science Department of the University of Kentucky. And that's before the horses are even dead.

"Close to 1,000 dead horses are sent to us for diagnostic purposes," said T.W. Swerczek, veterinary pathologist at UK. "If the horse is valuable, he usually is not sent to us at all. However, in the case of a valuable horse whose owners want the cause of death diagnosed, the owners usually want some of the organs returned to the farm for burial purposes."

Some horses are even less fortunate. Hanover, a well-known thoroughbred who raced in the late 1890's is now a skeleton stored in a basement at UK.

length. This section could be run in open canoes.

The third and last section of the course would be wider, deeper and less swift, and would be ideal for beginners learning the intricacies of paddling whitewater.

"We must convince the Army Corps of Engineers that there are many dedicated enthusiasts throughout the United States who are pursuing this ever-growing sport," said Joe Medley, Kentucky's representative to the United States Canoe Association. "There are a lot of people who love their water wild and white."

The coach of the U.S. Olympic Slalom Team, Jay Evans of Hanover, New Hampshire, has expressed enthusiasm about the proposed construction. "We could hold development and training camps for boaters throughout the entire country," he said. "Because of Cincinnati's central location, travel to the facility from any part of the country would be less expensive and time consuming than a coastal location."

Estimated At $2.5 Million

Major General W.L. Starnes, chief of the Corps of Engineers Ohio River Division, stated in a preliminary report that the cost would be a minimum of $2.5 million.

Environmental impact has been carefully studied. Dr. Stanley Heelen, biologist and ecologist with Xavier University in Cincinnati, stated that a canoe slalom would not have a detrimental effect on the environment if built in its proposed location.

"Operating costs would be no more than the cost of operating a park, and the canoe slalom would have all of the benefits of a park plus some more," said A.R. McLain, Chairman of the Miami Group of the Sierra Club.

The Corps of Engineers have further studies to make before a final decision can be made, but according to McLain their initial response has been enthusiastic.

Drivers Licenses Revoked From 2 In M'head Area

Drivers licenses of two area residents were revoked during the week ending April 13, according to the Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee in Franklin that compiles the list of revocations for the eight-county Morehead area.

Losing licenses were Robert Earl Highley, 40, Owsingsville, on a charge of failure to appear for an interview, and James Carl Line, 19, Rt. 3, Grayson, charged with speeding in excess of 26 miles per hour over posted speed limit.

The eight counties for which license revocations are released to the Morehead News are Rowan, Lewis, Fleming, Bath, Menifee, Morgan, Elliott, and Carter.

Fishing for rainbow trout in Kentucky has been growing in popularity by leaps and bounds. In fact, some 16,000 bona fide trout anglers attest to the excellent fishing opportunities in the stocked creeks, lakes and tailwaters in the Commonwealth.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife will stock 26 streams, five lakes and seven tailwaters. The Daniel Boone National Forest offers 11 streams with catchable trout, and seven remote streams which are stocked in the fall with sub-adults.

Even though the trout stocking program, conducted by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and by the U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, is on a "put-and-take" basis, monster rainbows are harvested annually.

Trout fishing, to many, is simply using whole kernel corn, flavored cheeses or worms. However, trout fishing is also for the pros who use fly rods or spinning rigs and artificial lures.
