EUROPE: Clearing France

With swift Allied columns backing at their hard-pressed tanks in the north, remnants of German Marshal von Kluge's Seventh army straggled across the Seine toward the borders of their homeland, while to the south, other Allied mechanized forces swept forward beyond weak resistance.

Having pulled the bulk of his Seventh army out of the Palaise-Ardenne trap in Normandy, von Kluge confronted another immediate threat when dashed Lt. Gen. George S. Patton raced his armored columns to the retreating Germans rear along the Seine river and harassed their crossing.

With Patton's men slashing the enemy's flanks, rearguard units of the British and Canadian troops pressed against the Nazis from the north of this pocket, and as the swarms of Allied planes roared overhead, bombing the Germans' frantic withdrawal efforts.

As the Allies bypassed Paris to concentrate on the crumbling German defenses in the north, that city's French capital fell to Patton forces after a brief skirmishing.

Aided by mobile surgery and reconstructive treatment, 80 percent of the wounded American soldiers have recovered, with only two-thirds returning to do their year-long duty.

Inside the city with Nazi rear-guards. Armed patriots also were rising through all of southern France, as Allied armies drove northward from beachhead positions along the Riviera and around Bordeaux.

The French political picture took another quick turn, with Gen. Charles de Gaulle established firmly on home soil, and the Collaborator government of Pierre Laval in exile. Having refused to leave France, he now, 85-year-old, chief of State Marshal Petain reportedly was taken prisoner by the Germans.

With the Germans standing their ground and beginning to fight back after they withdrew from the rest of Europe, the war increased in intensity on the eastern front, with the Russians still knocking hard at the door to East Prussia.

While bitter fighting raged on the East Prussian border, Nazi troops to the north cleared a corridor to their Baltic armies, provocatively shut off by a quick Russian thrust to the Gulf of Riga.

On the flanking fight for Warsaw, Russian troops gained ground to the northeast of the city in bitter tank and infantry battles, while south of the city the Red brought up additional forces west of the Vistula river to menace the flat, plains country leading to the border of the Silesian industrial province of Germany.

Equally stubborn fighting flared on the eastern Romanian border, where the Russians drove off the rich Ploesti oil fields. Early fighting was marked by the Germans' abandonment of the industrial city of Iasi, hub of the Nazis' successful defense of the region last spring.

MISCELLANY

BLOOD BY AIR: Transport of whole blood to combat zones by airplane has been inaugurated. For some purposes it has been found that whole blood is more effective than plasma. The Red Cross often donates 1,000 more pints of blood from donors with a normal daily as a result of the new shipments.

COTTON: Wants Parity

Advising cotton growers to keep their product off the market to boost prices, Sen. John H. Bankhead (Ala.) Christmas to bring returns up to parity.

Sponsoring an amendment to the price control bill ordering increases in textile prices to reflect parity. Bankhead conferred with manufacturers, shippers and government officials on means of raising cotton returns, with consideration of loans from 95 to 97% per cent of parity as a last resort for other methods.

In advocating withholding of cotton from the market, Bankhead clashed with famed Georgian Agronomer Tom Lindey, who said such action would result in the government dumping its stocks to further aggravate the price situation. Countering Lindey's statement, Bankhead said that with prices now depressed because of insufficient demand, farmers should put their cotton in loan until a profitable marketing program was developed.

FUEL: Supplies Cut

With demands exceeding production, civilian stocks of industrial fuel, heating oils and gasoline declined 22 per cent from the fall of 1941. Detroit Automobile Administrator Ralph K. Davies reported. Next to industrial fuel, stocks of gas showed the biggest decrease, with July 1 to August 5, Davies said, shipments exceeded production by 95,000 barrels a day, with stock falling 43,036,000 barrels as of the latter date. Reserves of heating oils also showed a decline, with 88 per cent of the 1941 figure.

VETERINARIANS: Report Progress

Approximately 100,000 dairy cows in the New York and Wisconsin received artificial insemination in 1943. Dr. C. S. Bryan of East Lansing, Mich., told the American Veterinary Medical association convention in Chicago.

Delegates also were told of plans provide for equal distribution of veterinarians throughout the country after the war, and of the current practice of promoting preventive medicine through proper nutrition, breeding, management and sanitation.

Speaking of artificial insemination, Dr. Lewis B. Hersey declared, "The advances of the method, such as tending the usefulness of outstanding sires and providing thousands of what is known as 'top grade' prize bulls which would otherwise not be available to them, are obvious."

News Briefs

As a product of Japan's current de-liberations on postwar reparations, Tokyo radio said, Japanese statesmen have advocated the development of a co-prosperity sphere, "a new basis of co-operation of the world into three spheres of interest, namely, North and South American, and East Asia."

Back to the Soviet Union, Soviet Union, declared, "In my view, the rediscovered American, never before did I realize the importance of our freedom, our standard of living, our right of habeas corpus, our bill of rights."

If plans materialize, the Erie railroad, a 4 per cent first mortgage bond issued in 1941, will be retired. Due in 1947, the bonds will be the oldest railroad bonds in the country.

JAP RELOCATION: Seek Return to Coast

Three American citizens of Japanese descent now in the West Coast Japanese-American soldier killed in action, and another discharged. U. S. vet.-filed a writ in federal court in San Francisco, Calif., seeking the right to reestablish residence on the Pacific coast.

Although the complainants did not challenge the validity of the original exclusion order, they said that grounds for its further enforcement were no longer existed, in view of the fact that there was no apparent danger of a Japanese invasion and the army itself has recognized this by taking steps to cancel the original regulations on the west coast.

Of 112,000 Japanese-Americans evacuated from the West Coast, some 70,000 of loyal character scattered throughout relocation camps of the west coast which were affected by the relocation. Another 27,000 have been relocated in jobs elsewhere in the country, while 18,000 disloyal Japanese-Americans have been segregated at Tule Lake, Calif.

LIVING COSTS

A slight rise in the cost of living took place in July, the National Industrial Conference board reports. For the country as a whole the index was 108.6, up from 108.5 reported with June. Sixty-three industrial cities are included in the monthly survey. In all but six the cost items advanced. The largest rise was in Trenton, N. J., where a jump of 2.2 per cent was noted. Declines were few and small, the greatest being only .04 per cent in Spokane, Wash.

The Washington MERRY GO-ROUND BY DREW PEARSON

JAPANESE BLOW-UP

Don't be surprised if there is a blow-up brewing in Japan now like that which nearly bumped off Mr. Hiro recently. This columnist is a reason to believe that things are seething inside Japan right now and that the die is cast against the Fascist military clique at the top. It was groups of pro-Fascist officers back in the days when that was not yet definitely decided that Japan should conquer Asia. Now the moderates are able to say "I told you so," and are beginning to feel a little better.

The Emperor probably will not be a victim of the revolutionary turmoil, for two reasons (1) He is as far as the cutthroat young fascists was kept more or less a peace prisoner by them; (2) he is better guarded than any other man in the world. High walls, moats, trained, trusted bodyguards surround him. Not even his personal tail is permitted to desert.

Unrest inside Japan has not had time to be communicated to Jap troops at the front. The Emperor's army is in areas much. The Jap soldier away from home can be counted on to fight to the very end, because he cannot desert. He has less to lose than the American soldier.

HOOPER'S CHILDREN Bachelor Hoover, who has jailed more desperate criminals than any man in history, has a secret weakness which not many people know. He has two children. On many an afternoon you will find a group of boys going through FBI headquarters, getting points on crime records. Hoover is not too busy, Hoover himself will take time to say hello.

Hoover is not much time studying children. He feels that a healthy younger generation is the best insurance against crime, one of the FBI's magazines article, "If I Had a Son."

Here is some of the advice he gave: "If I had a son, I'd like to be frightened. I've never feared criminals, but if I were a husband and father I might be afraid. So much would depend on the child. I'd tell him the truth, I'd never let a child be lied to. And in return I'd insist that he tell the truth. When children go astray it isn't the fault of the children but of their parents. As a spoiled child grows into a spoiled man, I'd try to make a pal to my boy. I'd encourage him to join the Boy Scouts and to be a citizen before he is a soldier. I'd make it a point of getting acquainted with the leader of the group. I'd save my son, I'd go with him. What's more, I'd go with him. But above everything else, I'd try to understand my son. If I didn't, I'd be a failure as a dad."

STALIN-CHURCHILL CORDIALITY

Those who have watched the diplomatic wheels go round from the Stalin-Churchill report that Stalin and Churchill are now getting along famously.

This is important because it was not the winter that Roosevelt and Stalin did the getting along and Churchill didn't. That was when the present Second Front in France was the topic of considerable argument and when Churchill, bidding farewell to Stalin, said: "Well, goodbye, Marshall. I'll see you to Berlin."

"Yes," replied Stalin, "I in a tank and you in a Pullman car."

Churchill, the demagogue, said that at Tcheran he was in the early stages of a very severe illness and definitely not himself.

Since the Stalin-Churchill seems to have got over any complex regarding Stalin, and Stalin takes a big position toward Churchill. There has been complete teamwork between the two for some time.

Both British and American diplomats also put their backs to the order the department of agriculture was the result of the insistence by farmers that agriculture be recognized as a part of the national economy since 1903, was created a separate unit in 1913. Bingham, was the technical revolution, another name for industrial revolution which has made mass production and all the wonders of the machine possible. Billion-dollar corporations require some government control, various industries, notably those producing the automobile and the airplane called for highway and skyway encouragement, regulation and guidance. The huge department of government has many activities conducted to aid business become a separate entity in 1903 and has grown steadily since.

And right here we might assert that the common man, and if you will, the less common man, worker, farmer, artisan, executive or entrepreneur, but first as a citizen in the chorus denouncing the bureaucracy in general, doesn't want the particular bureaucrat who is ready to help his particular interest, disturbed. If he does not actually demand the services of a bureaucrat, he may create a situation which his competitor, or those who may become his victim, must must be controlled by the government.

Of course, Mr. Bingham's answer to all this is that a growing expanse of governmental powers is all right, as long as it is self-governing. Without debating that question let us see exactly how badly the bureaucracy really has done the axe threatened to fall.

It is upon this little inconsistency that President Roosevelt always hangs his rebuttal whenever Senator Byrd and other critics of his lawless government spending call for a reduction of the government payroll.

Of course, the war badly disturbed the traditional democratic institution of checks and balances and denied private enterprise right out by the hair and set down by its place with the brutal indifference which is associated with Marx. The federal government finds itself doing business on a scale larger than all peacetime enterprise put together. Some of these activities are bound to stick when normal times return, but the trend toward bureaucracy altered even before that.

According to Alfred Bingham who has written a book called "The Practice of Idealism," which you will find as well as you can agree with or not, the trend toward bureaucracy is due largely to two things.

Bingham says that "revolutionary relief from the pent-up pressure of delayed social change." He believes that the demand for doing business on a scale larger than all peacetime enterprise put together, or can be controlled and turned to beneficial use.

"Retool of Common Man" Encourages Bureaucracy The first of the revolutions he names, and one of those which has encouraged bureaucracy and increased the demands of the state government's manpower, is the "revolt of the common man." Of course, that revolt has been going on since the days of the barbed wire and the events which occurred between Lexington and Yorktown, but the depression of 1929 moved it ahead quite a peg in this country, to say nothing of what happened after World War I all over the world, including the birth of communism, fascism, and all their freak off-shoots.

Bingham says it was the call of the common man for social and economic security which was one of the two chief causes of the growing centralization of government. He cites as two examples the payments plan which demanded that their interests be looked after, and the farmers. The labor department, which had been a part of the department of commerce since 1903, was created a separate unit in 1913. Bingham also put his back to the order the department of agriculture was the result of the insistence by farmers that agriculture be recognized as a part of the national economy since 1903, was created a separate unit in 1913.

The second revolution, the demands of which brought about additional federal activity, according to

With Ernie Pyle at the Front
Brave Medics Carry On
Under Heavy Nazi Shelling
While Hundreds Are Hit, Ernie
Has Charming Life and Escapes

By Ernie Pyle

ON THE WESTERN FRONT—The afternoon was tense, and full of caution and dire little might-have-beens. I was wandering up a dirt lane where the infantrymen were squatting alongside in a ditch, waiting their turn to advance. They always squat like that when they're close to the front.

Suddenly German shells started banging around us. I jumped into a ditch between a couple of soldiers and squatted. Shells were clipping over our heads and crashing into the new pattern.

Then suddenly one exploded, not with a crash, but with a bang. I was hit in the chest. I felt a sharp pain and then I was lying on my back. I was looking at the sky and I was thinking about my home.

The shell had struck behind us, 30 feet away. We had been saved by the earthen bank of the ditch. It was the next day before my ear returned to normal.

A minute later a soldier crouching next to me, a couple of feet away, turned to me and asked, "Are you a war correspondent?" I said I was, and he said I was to shake my hand. And he reached around the bush and we shook hands.

That's all either of us said. It didn't occur to me until later that I was a sort of unusual experience. And I was so added by the close explosions that I forgot to put down his name.

A few minutes later a friend of mine, Lieut. Col. Ome Bates of Gloucester, came past and said he was heading our new battalion command post. It was supposed to be in a farmhouse about a hundred yards from us.

I got up and went with him. We could find it at first. We lost about five minutes, walking through the orchards and fields. It was a blessed five minutes. For when we got within ten yards of the farmhouse, a direct shell hit which killed the officer and wounded several men.

The Germans now rained shells around our little area. You couldn't walk 10 feet without hitting the ground. They came past our heads so quickly you didn't take time to fall forward—I found the quickest way down was to flop back and sideways.

In a little while the seat of my pants was plastered with wet red clay, and my hands were scratched from hitting rocks and brambles to break quick falls.

Nobody ever fastened the chin straps on his helmet in the front lines. For the blasts from nearby bursts have been known to catch helmets and break people's chins.

Consequently, when you squat quickly you descend faster than your helmet and you leave it in mid-air above you. Of course in a fraction of a second it follows you down and hits you on the head, and settles sideways over your forehead and over your eyes. It makes you feel silly.

Once more shells drove me into a roadside ditch. I squatted there, just a bewildered guy in brown, part of the thin line of other brown guys as far as up and down the ditch as you could see.

It was really frightening. Our own shells were whanging overhead and hitting just beyond. The German shells tore through the orchards around us. There was machine gunfire all around, and bullets ripped through the trees above us.

I could tell by their shoulder patches that the soldiers near me were from a division to our right, and I wondered what they were doing there. Then I heard one of them say:

"This is a foul-up for you! I knew that lieutenant was getting lost. Hell, we're service troops, and here we are right in the front line. Grim as the moment was, I had to laugh to myself at their pitiful plight."

I left a command post in a farmhouse and started to another about 18 minutes away. When I got there, they said the

Two shock cases came staggering down the road toward me. They were not wounded but were completely broken—the kind that stab into your heart.

Home Sewers Turning Attention
To Smart Apparel for Autumn

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

TO BE able to sew and to design a pretty blouse for yourself is a real asset in one's life. Enthusiasm for "making your own" is spreading among women everywhere these days. It was fun and really a happy pastime to sew with dainty wash materials during midsummer. Even the amateur covered herself with glory in fashioning the easy-to-sew summer cottens and rayon weaves that seemed to be lovelier this year than ever before.

The ingenious sewer is given something new to think about in way of decorative button and buttonhole technique that is enhancing so many of the newest costumes. You can achieve smart individuality for the garment you are making if you avail yourself of the button-making and fabric-covered button service and plastic button collections offered at the notions counters of local sewing centers. The pen-and-ink sketches of the left illustrate some of the new and fascinating button and buttonhole buttons, and a decorative touch to the jacket extending to the top. A most exciting touch of individuality that sewing center experts recommend is made-to-order monogrammed buttons. You can make each button a standout by centering with a diamond-shaped piece of fabric as shown in the center sketch. The fabric diamond-shaped motifs are easy to apply on the jacket closing if you use the zipper attachment on your sewing machine. The tiny fabric squares with pinked edges dot on the sewing machine pin attachment are centered with clever buttons for the jacket pictured last in the panel.

Pink Chiffon Blouse

This stunning dinner blouse is of blue pink chiffon with black, green and rose colored paillettes worked in star motifs. Emphasis on the luxury blouse is noted throughout the fall showings. Either they are handsome embroidered, glitter-glamoured or hand-painted, or they are made of handsome rich fabrics such as brocade, lame or satin-striped materials. Very smart are the new blouses of gleaming slipper satin.

Gold-Color Fleece Coats

Style trend in knit gold coats is the popular fleece coats that are being shown for fall. Merchants regard it as the number one color and say a marked preference is being shown for this radiant autumn hue. Camel tan is still a favorite. Brown and green are the next in choice.

Blimp Makes Air
History in Rescue

Lands in Desert to Pick Up Navy Flier.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF. — In an unprecedented mercy rescue, a navy blimp landed in the treacherous sand hills of the Imperial Valley Desert, 20 miles northwest of Yuma, Ariz., to pick up a navy flier who had parachuted from his plane. The rescue of the pilot, whose name was withheld, was completed when the blimp, which had been refueled at a desert air station and a ground crew far below the usually required minimum, the navy said in reporting the feat.

Reaching the area, the blimp swooped to within 20 feet of the ground, dropped two crew members—Ensign Herman Callahan and Despair Craig of Pico, Calif.—to aid the stricken flier. The blimp was landed safely by the three men—one third of the normal ground crew and the body of the pilot was placed aboard. Also taken aboard were Porter, Callahan and Craig party.

ASK ME
ANOTHER?

- 1. What is the meaning of the word "concomitancy"?
2. Which country names its capital after an American president?
3. Why is it wrong to say that a ship "travels 20 knots an hour"?
4. What is a plant which sheds its leaves periodically called?
5. What price was paid to Russia for Alaska and the Aleutians?
6. Who always "has the last word" in the navy, the senior or the junior officer?
7. How many articles has the bill of rights?
8. How many tracer bullets does a gunner in a Flying Fortress throw, and how do they help him?
9. Who was the hero of the former army and navy officers who served in World War I and who have now been recommissioned for service in World War II?

The Answers

- 1. Skillfully put together.
2. Liberia (Monrovia).
3. A knot is a rate of speed, not a trail of fire. A nautical mile per hour. One should say the ship travels "20 knots."
4. Deciduous.
5. The United States paid $7,200,000.
6. The junior officer, with his "Aye, sir."
7. Ten.
8. Every fifth cartridge is a "tracer" bullet which leaves a trail of fire, mainly visible day and night. The tracers help the gunner correct his aim and they also start fires in the enemy's rear.
9. Philip Nolan.

Clear Insight Into Type Of People We Are Fighting In the Jap Race Given By Lt. Cmdr. Burgess In Address At College

To the American mind, the name of Japan has always been associated with a certain amount of mysticism. The veil of self-imposed isolation which had sheltered this quaint land was thrust aside by the American Navy in 1853 when Commodore Perry persuaded that country to open trade relations with the United States. The mask of Japan, oddly enough, was dropped in another American incident which occurred on December 7, 1941.

For several generations we have viewed the Japanese with mingled ideas. We associated with them the belief that most of their lives were occupied in the cultivation of rice, and the farming of odd-shaped little plots of ground, and we regarded them as a strange people who excelled in the making of delicate and artistic bric-a-brac, the growing of beautiful flowers, living amid lovely cherry blossoms and devoted to picturesque Reprinted herewith is the complete text of the address delivered by F. L. Burgess, Commander of the Morehead Naval Training School in the college auditorium August 17.

The News is carrying this article in its entirety because of its timeliness in that the eyes of the American people are now turning toward the Far East as the War in Europe nears its end and because it is a concise portrayal of the Japanese race.

tea drinking customs. It has only been in recent years, or perhaps we should say at the turn of the century, that some of the more foresighted people of the world, and particularly in America, viewed with some apprehension and concern the rising power of the Nipponese. It is a greater East Asia, and of the absolute necessity of the Japanese to seize the Philippines and to destroy the United States if they were to carry out their plan. Strange to relate, the predictions of Lea, based upon a misunderstanding of Japan and of military strategy, have been followed almost to the letter by the Japanese warlords of our time. It is to be regretted that the advice of this scholar, which was studied carefully in the United States but which was studied carefully in Japan and Europe, was not highly regarded in our own country.

who are interested in a study of the military ambitions of the Jap, examine Lea's revealing book, written about 1900 and entitled "The Valor of Ignorance." For it was this man, Lea who wrote so fluently of the desires and ambitions of the Japanese toward America, of their plans for a greater East Asia, and of the absolute necessity of the Japanese to seize the Philippines and to destroy the United States if they were to carry out their plan. Strange to relate, the predictions of Lea, based upon a misunderstanding of Japan and of military strategy, have been followed almost to the letter by the Japanese warlords of our time. It is to be regretted that the advice of this scholar, which was studied carefully in the United States but which was studied carefully in Japan and Europe, was not highly regarded in our own country.

Strange, interesting country. The country which Commodore Perry opened up to us is a strange and interesting place in many respects. The geography of a nation has much to do with its characteristics, the habits and the lives of its people. Four islands comprise Japan proper. Those islands are called: Kyushu, Shikoku, Honshu and Hokkaido.

The islands have an area of only about 145,000 square miles, slightly larger than the state of California, or to bring the comparison closer to home, they represent an area about the size of the combined states of Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri. The contrast in population is striking, however, in these same three states there are only about 10,000,000 people, whereas in Japan there are 72,000,000 people. From this it will easily be realized that the density of population is many times that of the United States. The islands comprising Japan proper are mountainous more than 80 percent of the area being classified as mountainous country. Every person living in Japan dwells within the sight of a mountain, and it is an unique circumstance of climate and geography that in many places it is possible to walk within a half day, from an orange grove to a snow-banked mountain ravine. There are more than 17,000 miles of coast line providing many excellent harbors and consequently exceptional national defense barriers. It will readily be appreciated that 72,000 people living in such a small area, many of which is entirely incapable of being cultivated, must by necessity be exceptionally industrious and thrifty to provide their own living. However, Japan and its people have done better than that. Not only have they provided for their own well-being but they have managed in the past ninety years, to become one of the leading industrial and commercial powers in the world. At the time of Commodore Perry's visit to Japan the island was in a state of feudalism, compared to that which existed in Europe several hundred years ago. In the short space of time which has intervened since 1853, they have emerged to the position where they are today, one of the commercial, industrial and economic life of Great Britain and the United States, but they have dared to challenge the superiority of these two countries. The American people and many people who will ridicule and regard with contempt, who can point to such a record of accomplishment, only show a complete lack of understanding and an ignorance which cannot produce a feeling of national over-confidence to the extent that our own ruin might be fostered by it. It is interesting to note that in 1904, Japan, then regarded as a quaint little country of odd looking creatures and having a national language about the size as that of the City of Chicago, rose up and beat the great Russian Empire, regarded then as now, as the most powerful countries in all the world. From that moment forward Japan's position as a rising power has been lightly regarded by the thoughtful and foresighted students of war affairs.

Have Homogeneous Population. The third factor which the people, some of which can be attributed to their geographical situation, deserve our attention. Presently there are about 72,000,000 homogeneous population than any country among the great powers. Almost all of the population are of Japanese physical Japanese. We know them physically as a sturdy, short, single-faced, dark-eyed, light-skinned people, and we generally associate with them peculiar characteristics of protruding teeth and weaselly eyes. In fact, many of our conceptions have been results of caricature and cartoons, but in the main, the sturdy short type and similar "facial expressions" and characteristics. We know, too, that the Japanese have from necessity existed on shorter rations than most of the other peoples of the world. And doubtless this has accounted for the under-nourished appearance of many of them. It is interesting to know that when the Japanese people live under American standards within two generations the average becomes taller and stronger and we can assume that the conditions of privation under which they live in their own country have largely accounted for their small stature. We may well infer also, that a nation which has been schooled in little better than starvation living may endure, easier than we, the privations and sufferings of war.

Devoted to Emperor. Some students of the Japanese have pointed out that there are six basic conceptions with which the individual Jap is peculiarly endowed. These are: unity, a characteristic which perhaps is symbolized in the close family relationship and devotion to the Emperor; the ability to compromise or to practice intrigue and cover of a cloak of courtesy; the characteristic of indirection which is symbolized in the language apparently designed to be equivocal rather than direct, patience which has come about as a result of centuries of enforced privation, and persistence which has been marked in that country by the ability of Japanese labor to plug for hours on end where the American worker would become restless; and the characteristic of ruthlessness which seems peculiarly a part of their makeup. It is an interesting fact that the Japanese often despise their adversaries for a lack of ruthlessness for the Japanese regard this as a fundamental weakness of the character. There fore the quality of mercy and kindness to a fallen adversary is often misinterpreted by the Japanese as being first and foremost the sign of a weakling.

Hence the great difficulty of conducting warfare against a people whose basic conceptions do not permit an understanding of humanitarian principles and respect for the laws of war, to say nothing of ordinary fair play.

Religion Peculiar. A certain amount of this strangeness of the Japanese can be traced to their religious belief. There are two premises on which the belief seems to be founded. The first is based on the belief that the Mikado is descended from a sacred strain and that all the Japanese are related by being heaven descended people. This belief of being born of superior beings is impressed upon the Japanese from infancy. The second fundamental religion is that the Japanese have acquired sanctity by the divinity of the Mikado. On these premises the Shinto religion, as it is called, has no moral code. It may be inferred from other foreigners who are born outside the pale of divine sanctity are born in sin, since in the origin of the ruler of the divine people. The religion of the Japanese is hard for us to understand. We were not born to that philosophy and it is difficult for us to conceive that intelligent human beings can be so warped in their thinking. When you consider however, that the Japanese boast of a civilization at a time when Europe was filled with barbarians, perhaps there is some way of understanding their peculiar viewpoint.

That we must not underestimate our enemy lies in the estimate that they have been a dangerous competitor in any line of endeavor which they have pursued. Emerging from backward ages less than a century ago they have developed in whirlwind fashion to challenge all the powers of the Pacific. Their conquest on which the Japanese Empire has been built. In 1895 she launched a war against China and seized the valuable island of Formosa. In 1905 she had subdued Russia and obtained Japanese Saghalin. In 1910 she had obtained Korea. In 1915 she took over, as a result of World War I, mandate of the German islands in the Pacific. By mandate we mean the establishment of a government of law and order. It was the intention of the powers at the conclusion of World War I that Japan should supervise certain territories in the Mariannes and the Marshalls. These islands were not to be forced.

Violated Agreements. We know today how Japan kept her word, for to say the least, the magnificent cement and steel fortifications which have been perpetrated by the Navy guns throughout the islands I have mentioned, indicate that Japan at least placed a very loose construction on the words "not to fortify" meant in 1931 she seized Manchukuo. In 1938 she annexed part of China and the international world not only she built herself commercially and economically, but politically as well, entered force into the international affairs. And so today instead of regard Japan as a land of four small islands we would be better to consider what she has done and what she seeks to do and look realistically at a nation of military and economic realists.

We are all familiar with the problem she is having in obtaining the iron, lead and aluminum her position would be better to be critical. From an examination of these facts it would appear that the Japanese are in a bad way. But we have only to recall that in the first six months of World War II Japan had rolled along through the valuable island territories of the Southwest Pacific and had seized from them these resources which she needs so badly. It is no exaggeration to say that probably Japan controls the richest lands in all the world from which to obtain an abundance of oil, rubber, zinc, iron and all the other products vital to her warfare with the United States, China and Great Britain.

Lead In Fishing. In the fishing industry Japan leads all countries, and exports a tremendous amount of fish. The Japanese are engaged in fishing accounts for the fact that the Japanese are natural sailors. The stories are widely circulated, and many of them are true, that so-called Japanese expert men in the fact, been expert naval officers who gathered valuable navigation information from the decks of their innocent looking quitted the Pacific Much of the "fishing" was for information and for the fact that world power in military affairs must be strong in minerals. Coal is the most valuable mineral product and is found throughout Japan. However, the supply is not great and the quality is not good. The coal is mostly a soft bituminous type but the product in many cases has been aided by government subsidies and could not compete in a free economy. Copper, so necessary in modern warfare is found in all of the Japanese islands, but the country has imported copper when the demands of the military increased with the occupation of Manchuria. It is doubtful if copper mining is profitable in a system of free competition. Gold is found on the Japanese islands but here, again, it is not economical to produce it without help in the form of military iron pyrites and iron sulphates are fourth in value in the Japanese mineral production scale. It is recognized that Japan is very stricken if she must rely on her own supply to fight a quantity of iron to carry on a modern war.

Need Petroleum. Petroleum is a serious question in Japan. She only has one sixteenth of the domestic requirements. It is easy to understand why Japan had to seize the rich islands of the South Pacific. Sulphur is one of the minerals of which Japan has an ample supply but in the valuable minerals of zinc, lead and aluminum her position would be better to be critical. From an examination of these facts it would appear that the Japanese are in a bad way. But we have only to recall that in the first six months of World War II Japan had rolled along through the valuable island territories of the Southwest Pacific and had seized from them these resources which she needs so badly. raw materials of warfare can be shipped over an all-land route to Manchuria and Korea to supply the Japanese military.

Statistics Won't Win. It is impossible to win this war with Japan by looking at statistics and charts and graphs. There are some things in an economic war which are not in favor and there are some very vulnerable points in the armor of Japan.

The seizing of Guam and its adjacent islands, 1,500 miles from Tokyo is important. The importance is emphasized when we remember that there is no spot in Japan more than 70 miles from the sea. There are 45 cities in Japan of more than 100,000 people. The air raid is a terrible thing to contemplate in a country so completely and closely built up territory. All but three of these cities are in the Japanese hands. The Japanese are now bombing the British in Europe. There is no telling ourselves that bombing Japan will win the war. A merchant ship was hit in London did not weaken the British, it strengthened them.

The destruction of one German city after another did not stop the German army or their fight on. There is nothing about the Japanese to indicate he is likely to defeat than anyone else. In fact the opposite. The Japanese have never known anything but a hard life of sacrifice. It is not likely that the hardships of war will find him unwilling to go forward. Individual thinking and individual action is not a part of his schooling.

Aaron Crosthwait Has Missed Voting Only One Time Since 1881; Although A Republican, He Leans Toward Re-Election Of President Roosevelt

By Frances Young Peink

Piercy precinct, one of the smaller voting places in Rowan County, leaped into some prominence recently, with a published account of the voting record of Daniel Boone Smedley, "the hottest Democrat in forty-eight states" who has voted under the rooster for 64 years.

In casting about for one of the older and consistent Republican voters in Rowan County, it is found that the same precinct boasts the added prestige of having Aaron Crosthwait, a Republican, as one of its ballot casters.

Despite the little interest in the August primary Mr. Crosthwait was another "old-time" who made his way to the Piercy voting house. His ballot was cast for Jim Park for United States Senator and Tom Yates for Congress.

Aaron Crosthwait has missed only one election since he reached his majority, in 1881, and that was when James G. Elaine ran for president and he was too sick to leave his bed. When asked if he had ever crossed his ballot his eyes twinkled with a knowledge born of age and calm thinking and replied, "Lord, yes, I've always tried to vote for the better man, no matter what his politics." Usually though, Mr. Crosthwait stated, he voted a straight Republican national ticket if all the men on it seemed good, but that she certainly accomplished a lot with her work."

Aaron Crosthwait has voted for the past 63 years in Piercy Precinct.

Concerning the presidential election this fall Mr. Crosthwait said, "It looks very uncertain although definitely favorable for Roosevelt. And I don't know but what he is the best man for the job. After all, he's taken us through the war and should be allowed to finish. When asked how he would vote, he stated that he was not sure just yet. "One thing certain," he concluded, "I stand behind him if he is elected."

BLUE GRASS FARM ?

Any one of these farms listed below is one of the best buys ever offered in Fleming County. They are six miles from Flemingsburg with new paved road. If you want a good farm priced at a bargain you can't refuse to look these over.

Here's a Farm That the Tobacco Alone Will Pay For In TWO YEARS:

Eighty-six and one-half acre bluegrass farm, good 6-room house, 40x50 tobacco barn, smoke house, garage, crib, brooder house and other outbuildings. Five-acre tobacco base, school bus, milk route, RFD mail delivery. This land is all tillable with tractor. One of the best stands of tobacco in the state. Excellent water supply defying any drought. Good church. This farm represents one of the best buys ever offered. Any man can take this farm and make a comfortable living without investing another cent. Priced at $4,000.

A Farm With One of the BEST STORE LOCATIONS IN FLEMING COUNTY:

Eighty acres bluegrass, all tillable land. Ten-room house and 5-room house on farm. Large store building, new feed barn 40x48, double corn crib with wagon shed, double garage, smoke house, wash house, chicken and brooder houses, plenty of water all over farm. Church, RFD, school bus, paved highway. Store building sets at crossroads of two paved roads. Four-acre tobacco base. For a man that wants a business or someone that wants a home for himself and a home for some other member of the family, this is ideal. This, like the farm above, is priced to sell.

BLUEGRASS FARM and WOODLAND:

One hundred-six acres. Fifty acres excellent bluegrass land. Balance in woodland that can be cleared and farmed if desired. Two-acre tobacco base. Paved road, school bus, RFD, milk route. Plenty of good farming land and pasture. This farm can be bought at $22 an acre, which is only a fraction of its real value. Will make a good living for anyone.

These 3 farms are owned by the same person. They are divided to sell in 3 tracts but all can be purchased as a whole. An excellent investment because the owner desires to move to Ohio where his relations live. No matter where you go, you simply can't beat these farms for value. A real honest-to-goodness first rate investment for anyone.

Yes, Electric Rates Have Been Cut—Yet Your Electric Bill May Be More Today Than It Was 10 Years Ago . . . Here's Why

THE longer you have electric service in your home the more ways you use it for comforts and conveniences and for saving time and work. Yet you don't often stop to think how many more ways you use electricity now than you did ten years ago.

But you're just like everybody else. Government figures show that the use of electric service has almost doubled in the homes of the nation since 1934. How is it in this State with you customers? Well—

In 1934, the average residential customer used 37 kilowatt-hours a month and paid an average bill of $2.65. Today this same customer uses 73 kilowatt-hours a month and his average bill is $2.91.

Assuming that you are an average customer, this means you get about twice as much electricity for only 26 cents more than you paid in 1934.

In the last ten years our rate reductions have saved you customers a total of $2,500,000 in the cost of electricity you have used. The latest rate cut occurred in 1943, when war pressures had raised the cost of almost everything you bought.

How could we do it? By careful management, by improvements in operation and service . . . also because of increased use of electricity by you customers—for the more you use the lower the price per kilowatt-hour.

You're probably wondering about the future cost of electricity. The answer is fairly simple. We will follow the same plans and policy in the future as in the past . . . As you use more electricity we will sell it at a lower price, with constant improvements in service.

your electrical servant

AMERICANS ALL

Due to space limitations The News has been unable to carry very many letters from our men in the service. However, we will have hereafter ample space to print a number of letters each week. If you have an interesting letter or other material from a man or woman in the armed services please mail it to "Americans-All" Rowan County News, Morehead, Ky.

On July 31, Private First Class Rollie Poston wrote the letter below. It was the last one received by his mother, Mrs. Mary Poston, of Route 1. Four days after this letter was written Rollie Hensley fell in battle on the Field of France, killed in action—the terse words that every American Mother dreads, Rollie was her only son. Her husband died two years ago. Here is Rollie's last letter to his mother—

Dear Mother: I will answer your letter. Sure was glad to hear from you. Glad you are all well. As for myself, I am OK. Tell all at home hello for me.

I would like to be there to help eat your green beans. Mother, you don't need to send me any more cigarettes. We can get plenty of them over here. Well, I guess you have got plenty of blackberries. I was sure glad to hear you had a good crop. Is Bobby and Sammie going to school? I hope you will soon have some pictures made of you and all the family. When you have my watch fixed send it to me. Have the other one fixed and give it to Charlie. Send the other one back that you have to me. Well, I am glad that you are praying for me. Yes, I go to Church. Just don't worry about me. Love—Ray.

The most treasured possession that Mrs. Poston has is the following V-Mail letter from her son she received for Mother's Day. This letter is carried next to her heart. She has read it a thousand times but the paper is sparkling clean—the folds are as neat as the day she received it.

Dear Mother— I will write you a poem for Mother's Day. As I am now so far away. But still I haven't forgotten my dear old Mother's Day. I am so glad that I can say, My dear old Mother, she is saved. On this blessed Mother's Day.

Teach her God to pray. And keep her safe every day. I am so glad that I can say I can pray.

For my dear old Mother on Mother's Day. Teach me God how to pray. For my dear old Mother every day. God bless my mother as I pray. On this blessed Mother's Day. God bless every Mother on this Mother's Day.

This is all I know to say on this blessed Mother's Day. (Read this poem to all the Mother's you know back there.)

The following is an excerpt from a letter received by Mr. and Mrs. Groves Hodge from their son, Ernest, who is stationed in London, England:

Dear Mother: I am still in London and I like it here all right. We have been having lovely weather late but I haven't been able to get off to enjoy it much as I work during the night and sleep during the day. I get three days off during the week, during which time there is always something to do, like washing, etc. It looks like the war will be over in a week or two. I mean, it will be all over France. It seems to happen that way every time. The people get too confident for a quick victory. The papers tell about the big drives and it is true that we are doing well. But some of the people back in the states can't realize that lots of boys over there are still fighting and still being killed. Our fighting men were being caused the war isn't over yet and they are trying like everything to get it over. Yet we pick up a paper almost any day and read about strikes. Somebody doesn't like it because three or four men were fired or someone refused to pay a man for a couple of hours overtime. The man over here don't get paid for overtime. They can't wait to get back home so they want to get it over with as fast as possible. They don't want to live in fox holes forever! Our fighting men want the people back home to have confidence in us. In addition to the realization of certain facts. One is that we are still fighting hard and that our drives can be slowed down and stopped. I think that there is no need to stop before it is over. I shall leave the rest to Congress. There is a lot for them to iron out and if I know them, they had better get to work.

Write soon. Love, Ernest.

This letter is one received by Mrs. Grace Ford from Technical Sgt. Emerson L. Vaughan, who is somewhere in England.

Hello, Mrs. Ford: Have been intending to write to you before this time to let you know how much I enjoy the letters that you publish in your column, "Americans All." It is really a treat to read the activities of the people that I know and seeing as how I have only been able to spend twelve days at home since I got to the States, my only contact outside of letters and they usually leave out something or other that would be an enviable record.

I have been very busy and working hard and you are no doubt aware of what the Eighth Air Force has been doing. The group with which I am associated is really one of the outstanding ones and has really set up a reputation for themselves and I am lucky to be with them and at the same time very proud of the fact that I am doing my part to keep up the high standards which they have set.

I have just received my copy of the "Rowan County News" for March 30th, and I especially liked the letter from Frank Banks. I suppose by this time my brother Harold has written to him and if he hasn't I'll remind him when I next write to him. He will no doubt be surprised to find that Frank did get home and that he received a promotion to sergeant, which is really going places in the Marines for they don't hand out ratings as fast as the other branches of the service. Frank seems to be doing a swell job and I guess he is seeing plenty of action.

As for that draft-dodging business, I don't think that this is any time for petty bickering or back biting. We all have a job to do and have to do it at the time and place that the government decides. Sometimes it does seem that the other fellow is getting a better break but let's not try to decide that for ourselves. Rather should we be concerned with getting the whole thing over with so that

The following is an excerpt from a letter received by William J. Nickell from his son, G. William Nickell, who is somewhere in the South Pacific.

Dear Father and All: Just a few lines to let you know I am still well and in good health. Hope you are the same and not working too hard. Dad, you keep asking why I am never allowed to come home. The answer is that the unit is only allowed to come home. Then they have to draw you to name out of a hat. Mine just hasn't been drawn yet. But I guess it will be soon. Don't worry so much. I am in a safe place.

I was on Guadalcanal for some time. The Ferguson boy who ran the funeral home was here. Will you get me his complete address? You can get it from his parents in Morehead.

Dad, I am still in the Mechanized Artillery now. I got out of the Pack Artillery I sure would like to go home for the Fourth of July but I guess that will be impossible. It will be three years on the 8th since I was home. I sure has seemed a long time.

Will close with all my love to you. Answer soon. Your son, Bill.

We may all return to our normal way of living. You may not remember me so well because I was away from home even before I entered the army, owing to the fact that my employment as a construction worker necessitated it. As to my plans for after the war, I am not sure I will live in Kentucky. But, being born and reared in Kentucky, you may be very sure that I hold it very dear to my heart and I count my friends there as being closer to me than anyone I might meet. I would like to see the Blue Moon Cafe and Battson's Drug Store again and the "gangs" at the pool room, although I guess it's pretty well thinned out.

For this time I am just about run down and will sign off. Sincerely Yours, Emerson L. Vaughan.

H. HAROLD DAVIS, major dome of The Courier-Journal's rare and difficult color photography, is a scholarly young man whose home town was Corydon, Indiana. Attracted to the newspaper as steel to a magnet, the association has, for nine years, proved to be a mutually happy one. Davis has trained far afield, wherever new techniques in color photography were being developed. He has traveled from coast to coast, caught color shots on land, sea and air. At the Graphic Arts Institute in New York, Harold became friend and protégé of Carlton Dunn, pioneer and foremost authority on tri-color work in this country. Dunn, author of many textbooks on the subject, is a frequent visitor in our studios. Dark hair falling across a serious brow, Harold talks about the 40-pound lens Levtathan which simultaneously filters basic colors on three planes. "It's deep with mirrors," and while it's the best available now, great strides will be made in this field after the war. Perhaps then Harold will find a color lens capable of catching the exquisite beauty of his wife... who is remarkably photogenic. So far, none has done her justice. Like his fellow technicians, Davis worships at the tripod feet of the "one-shot" color-camera, and becomes slave to its artistic temperament... which is notably allergic to vibration, temperature and humidity. Between the kluge-operations of the camera and Harold's currently changing vistas with the Dead Wood (over 1-A again), life is never static.

H. Harold Davis and his color photography make readers loath to miss the Photo Journalist

(Industrial News Review)

ELECTRIC power development has been made such a political issue by the Federal government's great hydro-electric dams, that the people lose sight of the real principle involved. It is common practice for administrators of tax-exempt Federal projects to argue that they furnish power cheaper than can highly-taxed private enterprise.

If it is important for the government to go into the generation of electricity in order to save the private householder a few cents a month on his electric bill, why should it not go the rest of the way and furnish food, clothing and rent "at cost," which items constitute the bulk of his financial worries?

The people should get this issue straight and decide whether they want to change our country from a nation of private enterprise to one of state socialism. Public ownership of power is socialism, any way you look at it. When you eliminate profit, you eliminate private opportunity.

If we favor putting the government into the power business to save a dime, we should be a hundred times more anxious to put it into farm production, clothes production and housing production. Already these ideas are being advanced as the next logical step from socialized power to other socialized industry.

If the average American wants to work for the government instead of for himself, then vote for... industry. But don't be fooled with the idea that half the business of the nation can run without profit, while the other half is allowed to operate as private enterprise, with a profit.

As government takes profit out of business, it must secure its taxes to operate by heavier and heavier assessments against the wages of individuals.

History Of Tussey Family, Pioneers In County, Is Related

PART I

By C. C. Tussey
Now take out the history of the Tussey family. In the early day there were two brothers who came to Tennessee from Scotland. I do not know whether one of these brothers was our grandfather or not. Our grandfather's name was Jonathan. He was married in Tennessee to Miss Annie Buckner and to their union were born fourteen children, grandmother Tussey told me. I will name all the children that I can remember. The boys first, Jacob, John, Jonathan, and Caleb Ball, our father. I never knew what the B. in father's name stood for until grandmother Tussey told me after father's death. She said she named him after an old man in Tennessee.

She married George Nelson and had a large family of children. I have seen some of the children they had. One son by the name of Jake Nelson lived up the hollow about our house in Floyd County. He was in the Union Army. He lived in Greenup County.

Sister Ann and Brother R used to play with Cousin Jake's oldest girl, Sarah Frances. She is still living, a little older than I am. There was one called Mahaley. She married Ben Hackworth and had a large family. The oldest's name was Jerry, next came Annie, and they had a Caleb. I have seen these three girls, Hettie, Sarah, and Catharine. Hettie married Silvester Watkins, who was an old man when she married him. They had several children. The oldest was Jonathan. He used to come to our house when Father was living. There are a lot of our cousins living in Lewis and Greenup counties.

Sarah married Andy Dean. They went West before I was born. I think they had some children. I don't know how many I do remember father's getting letters from them. They wrote us about one of their little children, saying more it died it saw its Uncle Cale in Heaven. I think this child was born after they went to the territory.

Catherine married George Brown and they had a large family. I have seen some of Aunt Catherine's children. Cousin Ann used to be at Sister Belle's often. She is dead now but there are some of her brothers and sisters still living in Greenup County. There were two of the girls who died and died in Tennessee. They never came to Kentucky. One of their names was Rachel. I will leave the others off awhile; their names may come to me. I can't remember like I could once, but I am thankful I have good recollection as I have now. I haven't given you near the number of names. There must have been a lot of them. I was in infancy for I know grandmother told me there were fourteen.

Grandfather was in the War of 1812. Grandmother said there were two or three children when he went to war. I have often thought why she couldn't remember whether or not there were two or three children she could tell all the ages of her grandchildren and there were two of us and a lot of Uncle Crage's, and Nelson's, Brown's, Hackworth's and Watkins'. If I am not mistaken, I have heard her give dates of all their births.

Grandmother was buried in Greenup County and also was her daughter, Catherine Brown.

I have been at their graves. I can give you all of Uncle Crage's Tussey's children. The girls' names were Juristie, Parthena, and Mary Kanses. Mary died when a little girl. The other two went west and are dead, I guess. The boys names were William, Solomon, Elias, Jim and Green.

Another one of our Aunt's names was Polly. She and Rachel were the two that stayed back in Tennessee.

I will tell you a little story Cousin Jake told me when he was old and blind. I am sure it was true. Cousin Jake said his mother sent him back to the woods near home in Tennessee to get some bark. He said it came to his mind to go to Uncle Cale's (our father's). He had his dog with him and they took over the hills. There was plenty of wood in the hills, he said, but the dog walked right before him, so nothing bothered him and he landed at father's all right.

Father wrote to his family at once, knowing how uneasy they were, but it took days to get mail. In a short time Uncle George and Aunt Nancy moved to Floyd County and they never returned to Tennessee.

Now our Uncle Jake Tussey, when he left the mountains, was on what is called a Push Boat. His family was with him so they stopped at Greenup and his wife had a son called Bill. They stayed there awhile and Bill decided he wouldn't go any further, so he stayed in Greenup, married, and had three children. He and two of the children, they said, died of "milk sick," a poison milk. The child that lived was named Bill. He stayed there in Greenup and grew up to be a nice man, so I have been told by three or four persons. Once I was at Port's while Bill was there. Bill later went to Tussey Area, where there were a lot of Tussey's living. Tussey was named after our people. If you will look up in your post office directory, you can see Tussey. I have seen and talked to folks from there and several years ago I used to write to them and often think I will write to them again.

My brother Bill told me when he was here last summer that he visited a Tussey at Chicago, Ill., and a Tussey came and visited him.

There are a lot of Tussey's who live in Madison County. They are our same set. There was one who drowned there about forty years ago. It may be if I had this I could give you a more complete history of our set of Tussey's, but you can say when you see a Tussey, that he is one of our same set. I have heard father say our set of Tussey's was the only set of Tussey's in the U.S.A. But there are as many as there are a set who believe in the Bible to multiply the earth. ## It's Our Duty To Plan Ahead This LABOR DAY To Make Jobs After the War!

As we pay tribute on Labor Day to a great War production record on the home front, let's think about tomorrow. When Peace comes and our fighting boys return home, will there be JOBS FOR ALL to make their Victory complete?

Business men can help by planning ahead for expansion to create post-war jobs. Every dollar saved, whether in War Bonds or cash, will provide extra purchasing power that will help to provide needed jobs. Let's all resolve to work, plan and save and thereby do our full share to make jobs for War veterans when they come home from overseas.

Absentee voting applications are available at the Rowan County News office without charge.

Anyone having a member of the family in the armed services or working in a defense plant or who will be unable to be here to vote in the November election, should mail them one of these applications.

The absentee voter does not have to be registered if he is 21 years of age, since the application itself constitutes registration.

Persons writing for absentee applications should enclose a stamped addressed envelope.

SEND THIS TO YOUR ABSENTEE VOTER

Mail this coupon to a voter in your family, whether in the armed services or not, who expects to be away from his home precinct during the general election November 7, 1944. Ask the absentee voting to fill out the form and mail it to the Secretary of State, Frankfort, Ky. That will start procedure for absentee voting under authority of House Bill 255 by the 1944 General Assembly.

Section 3 of the bill follows:

"Application for such ballot shall be signed and sworn to by the absent voter before a civil officer authorized by law to administer an oath, provided that if such absent voter is in the military or naval service of the Commonwealth of Kentucky or in the United States, or serving in or attached to any branch of said services, he may swear to said application before any commissioned military or naval officer of the Commonwealth of Kentucky or of the United States, or any branch of the Armed Forces. Said application shall be substantially in the following form:

Secretary of State, Frankfort, Ky.

I, _____, state that I am a resident of the State of Kentucky and have been such for at least one year prior to the date hereof. I am a resident of _____ County and have been such for more than six months prior to said date, and am a resident of _____ Precinct of said County (or _____ Ward of the City of _____ County) of _____ State.

I am at least 60 days prior to said date; that I am a duly qualified voter of said precinct (or said ward); that in the course of my business or duties I expect to be absent from said precinct or ward on the election to be held in said ward or precinct on the 7th day of November, 1944, and I will not vote elsewhere at said election. I request that an official ballot be mailed to me at the following address:

(Name and Address)
(Voter must sign here and oath must be administered and attested.)

Subscribed and sworn to before me this _____ day of _____, 1944.

(Name and official title.)

DO IT WITH WAR BONDS!

DID you ever see a blast of TNT stump and wish you had Hitler and Tojo tied on top of one?

Well, you are giving this pair of varmints approximately the same treatment when you buy a War Bond. Because the money from that Bond is what enables our boys to work their way ever nearer and nearer to Berlin and Tokyo, smashing up a lot of Nazis and Japs on the way.

And here's a thing to think of: those Bonds will enable you to buy new equipment and machinery, repair and rebuild buildings, refurbish your home. For you get back all that you put in, plus substantial interest at maturity.

So let's obey that impulse to blast Tojo and Adolph to the skies... where we've already sent the Duce. Let's buy the Bonds that will help do it!

5 REASONS FOR INCREASING YOUR WAR BOND PURCHASES

1. The money of this war is being spent at highest point. Government expenditures for war are at the peak. YOUR MONEY IS NEEDED.
2. In proportion to WAR BOND PURCHASES, individuals are not buying their share of War Bonds. America must increase this situation.
3. War Bonds provide the farmer and rancher with the financial means he must have to service and ordinary ups and downs of farming as a business.
4. Money will be needed especially as a farmer due to repairs and repair farm equipment, machinery, and buildings. War Bonds will provide it.
5. War Bonds are the safest investment in the world, return a good rate of interest, are easy and convenient to buy — from bank, post office, post mail center or Postoffice Civilian Association.

For America's Future, for your Future, for your children's Future

The story this far: In 1920 young Robert Scott was 16 years of age...

CHAPTER II Scott just six months of study there, for there were some eight hundred...

One day, some weeks after the annual competition...

Thus, in July of 1923, I walked through the early part of the case and began the routine that is familiar to nearly everyone...

At that instant the professor stood up and said he would wait five seconds...

The zero I received dropped me to the first section in the last. Furthermore, I was ordered to sit down...

A person with my imagination and initiative I reasoned, would simply waste his talents on such a small feat...

Well, even with right ideas the men in that quarter had the wrong idea...

General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Forces, to whom this story is dedicated...

I thought the planes flying over and try as I would, I could concentrate on nothing but the Air Corps...

There was, as usual, many a slip before I was able to write the story...

Going to the blackboard with an air of confidence, I stood at attention with pointer in hand...

Moral failure is a direct result of disobedience to God's law. He established the moral great the universe...

After a brief period of success, Saul sinned by intruding into the private affairs of Goliath...

"I turned back from following" God's word just one thing that I turned back to sell will. These two principles, which are mutually exclusive...

Nothing turns the cause of Christ more than the merry hypocrites who come by their lives before the community...

Claudia Morgan had quite a dilemma to make when told that she must give up either her role as a hit play...

Butterfat Can Be Increased by Water

Proper Methods Will Give Better Returns

Dairymen whose cows can have a drink of water whenever they want it—night or day—will get more milk and butterfat from the same amount of feed and care than the dairymen who water their cows only a couple of times a day. This has been proven by extensive tests conducted at Iowa state college.

The cows while being watered by means of water bowls drank approximately 18 per cent more water and yielded 2 per cent more milk and 10.7 per cent more butterfat than while being watered twice a day at the outdoor tank.

Conclusions reached from the tests also showed that the temperature of the water was not nearly so important as the temperature of the air. In other words, if the cow had to stand outside in near zero weather, she was likely to drink relatively less regardless of the temperature of the water. As might be expected, the cows drank more as the weather became warmer.

The experiments were made with water bowls, which are almost impossible to obtain during the war. However, many dairymen can include watering inside their barns where the cows would have access at regular intervals. If some method can be devised so that the cow will not have to sip her needed water out of an icy tank she will drink suits a lot of moisture in it, the cow will drink proportionately less than she will if she is fed entirely on dry feed. There is a tendency to balance up the total amount of water in the feed and that drunk. If the feed has more moisture in it, then the cow drinks that much less.

If the cow is getting silage or green feed with a lot of moisture in it, the cow will drink proportionately less than she will if she is fed entirely on dry feed. There is a tendency to balance up the total amount of water in the feed and that drunk. If the feed has more moisture in it, then the cow drinks that much less.

The seeds of the milkweed furnishes an edible oil, chemically similar to soybean oil. From 100 pounds of the seed at least 30 pounds of oil may be extracted.

In Canada, the leaves have grown an excellent source of natural rubber.

Perhaps the greatest war use is the floss of milkweed as a substitute for kapok, from which life preservers and floats for aviators' flying suits may be made. Early September is the proper time to pick the pods, after the seeds have started to turn brown. Call has been sent out for farmers, Boy Scouts and war workers to gather the floss to fill urgent need of the navy and war departments.

A utility egg package, containing the dehydrated equivalent of two dozen fresh ones, is an expected popular application of a wartime development.

A soldier requires 40 times as much wool as a civilian and it takes 30 sheep to provide that wool for one year.

Fifteen ounces of snap beans, garden weight, are needed to make 19 ounces canned weight.

It takes a year's food from 155 acres to feed a bomber-building crew for ten times it takes to build a single bomber.
