Campus Club Collects Food For The Needy

Food, food and more food is the motto of the Campus Club today. This is the day set aside each year for collecting food for needy families.

The food will be collected this afternoon and tonight from markets, stores and private homes. The club will work in teams of two or three and canvass the entire town. Last year enough food was collected to make up 12 baskets.

If anyone on campus has anything to contribute to this project, please contact a member of the Campus Club sometime today. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

The food is to be distributed on Thanksgiving Day by Mr. Haggan, who has kindly consented to help the Club locate needy families. Mr. Haggan has helped the Campus Club greatly in the past with this annual project.

This is the initial project of the year in which the Club functions with its new members. Let's make this Thanksgiving Day a happy and memorable one for those who need help.

X-C'ers Defend Shamrock Title

Morehead State College's vaunted cross country team, headed by speedster Carl Deaton, will arrive in Louisville tomorrow evening to defend its championship in the Shamrock Cross Country Run Thursday.

The Eagles, who went undefeated last year, have lost to powerful Miami, O., and Hanover this year, while winning over Ohio University, Marshall College, the University of Cincinnati, Bellarmine College, Berea, Bryan and Sewanee.

Morehead is fresh from an overwhelming win in the William Jennings Bryan Invitational. The Eagle barriers scored 20 points to host Bryan's 53 and Sewanee's 64 as Deaton set a new record of 19:10 for the rugged 3 mile course.

Leading Coach Nolan Fowler's charges has been senior Carl Deaton, Kentucky's "Track man of the Year" in 1954. Deaton set a new record for the rugged 3-mile Morehead course last week as he ran the distance in 16:52.8. In doing so, he bested U.K.'s top carrier—E. G. Plummer and Press Whelan.

Teaming with Deaton in defense of the Shamrock crown are senior Kenny Daugherty, sensational sophomore P. Whiteley, Dick Wilson and Jerry Joe Lamm.

Running for the last time with the Morehead barriers, Deaton will be out to avenge his individual loss to the University of Tennessee's Ed Murphy in last year's Shamrock Run. Murphy edged past Deaton to take the number one spot, with the Tennessee team finishing second to Fowler's Morehead squad.

Noted Lecturer, Author To Speak Here On December 6

Mrs. Billie Davis, nationally known lecturer and writer, will speak at convocation here on Thursday, Dec. 6, at 9:45.

Mrs. Davis is best known for her article, "It was a Hobo Kid" which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and which was reprinted in the Reader's Digest.

The public is invited to hear Mrs. Davis whose lectures have proven to be inspirational and highly entertaining.

She is a nationally known speaker for educational organizations, schools, colleges, clubs, churches and Sunday School conventions. She has addressed the NEA convention in New York City's Madison Square Garden, state legislatures in Iowa, Tennessee, Oregon and Kentucky and has spoken at 33 state and divisional education conventions including a recent appearance at the annual Kentucky Education Association meeting.

Her Horatio Alger story can best be summed up in the following quote, "I've learned that just because someone is rich and well-clothed, there is no guarantee that he will be a success in life. A person who is ragged and poor can be just as much a success. Education is the thing behind success, and it should not be taken for granted."

NOTICE

The Thanksgiving holiday will officially begin tomorrow at 11:35.

The holiday ends Monday morning at 7:45.

Thanksgiving Holiday Begins Tomorrow—To Last 4 Days

It's holiday time again, and this vacation is slightly longer than the one just a week and a half ago.

The Thanksgiving holidays begin officially tomorrow and will be celebrating Thanksgiving at an International Student Retreat at Oak Ridge, Tennessee. The Baptist Union is sending Sunglin Hong, Kwang Chong Lee, and Byung Eun Min, all Korean students, and Horelos Peddos, from Greece, to this retreat.

The first session begins with the Thanksgiving dinner on Thursday and the students leave Oak Ridge for their campuses on Saturday afternoon.

Drive carefully going home, it means the loss of one-half credit hour. This applies to the all from The Trail Blazer staff.

Cosmopolitan Club Formed On Morehead Campus

The members presented a two-and-one-half hour discussion of present educational systems and philosophies of their respective countries in cooperation with Dr. Walters, head of the Education Department, Morehead State College.

Future plans of the club include the establishment of chapter organizations in Europe and the Far East. The club also hopes to sponsor a pen-pal program for interested people. Club members will make initial contact with pen-pals in any of the countries represented for these people. The official language of the club is English.

A dinner was given in the Dean's Office, Nov. 13, by Mrs. Adron Doran, the club's first sponsor. Mrs. Doran will also

WHAT ARE THEY?—They could be men from Mars. They could be Eastern students. They could be students studying for a big test. They could be book worms. Or they could be lovely seam (that's what their big brothers called them) who are going through the Campus Club initiation. At any rate, they certainly are cute, aren't they?

Turkey With All The Trimmings

Turkey, dressing, pumpkin pie and all the trimmings! It's Thanksgiving time again and the holiday has many different meanings. The family gathers around a big table so laden with good things to eat that it seems as if one toothpick were added, the table would crash to the floor. As we gather around the dinner table, we are reminded of another Thanksgiving—the one we have read about in history books. It was just 333 years ago that the Pilgrims set the stage for our present annual Thanksgiving Day, the fourth Thursday in November.

The settlers gathered that day many years ago to give thanks for a bountiful harvest which was produced from 26 acres of land. The forest was full of wild turkeys and the deer. The deer was the result of hard work and tireless efforts of the settlers in producing food for their families. They had guests for dinner, too. Indians were invited to share in the celebration.

Our Thanksgiving celebration has changed very little down through the years. We still have the big dinners, the friends and relatives visiting, but today we have so much more to be thankful for. We live in a land of opportunity, a nation of freedom and democracy. This should stand out first and foremost in our minds and we should strive to preserve that freedom.

Thanksgiving is also a time to share our good fortune with those who are less fortunate. We will enjoy our day so much more, knowing we had a part in making someone else happier.

One of the organizations here on campus has a part in making Thanksgiving more meaningful for some of the needy families in Rowan County.

The Campus Club members collect food from the townspeople, pack it in baskets and have them delivered to the families.

This is the fourth year the Campus Club has carried out this project. They will collect the food and pack it in the baskets this afternoon and it will be delivered tomorrow by Dean Mays, sponsor of the Club.

One last reason for being thankful this time of the year—we get a four-day holiday. Classes will be dismissed tomorrow and will resume again at 7:45 Monday morning, November 28. Be sure and attend the first meeting of all your classes after the holiday. If you don't the penalty is the loss of one-half credit hour.

Happy holiday everyone!

A Happy Medium Wanted: More Dances

Grades don't mean everything. We've heard this said many times, many times by a word of consolation from parents, professors and many others. It also makes a good excuse for those low grades made on mid-term exams.

No, grades don't mean everything but they certainly do help. Students need a well-rounded education and scholastic achievement is included. Membership in some of the campus organizations is based on scholastic standing, and it is considered when you are being nominated for club or class officers or when being chosen to represent the College in some way.

You'll meet these circumstances throughout your college career. It may not occur to you, but look around and see if many of those who are active in extra-curricular activities aren't also those with an above average scholastic rating.

The mid-term grades have already been turned in, but you have nine weeks left to work to better them.

Don't let yourself be labeled a poor student. Get in the middle of the road and strike a happy medium between letting grades mean everything and nothing.

Do you like to dance? How long has it been since you've been to a dance on campus?

Social life has practically come to a standstill from the standpoint of those who like to dance.

To date, there has been one dance other than Homecoming, which is traditional and formal. Why aren't there more informal dances on campus? The College has a dance band. The students want to dance.

It has been tested and proven that the Juke box dances aren't very successful. Now we have a chance to get live music which can give us only and nobody takes advantage of the situation. The clubs don't seem to want to get a date on the calendar or else it is impossible for them to do so. . . . a club does get a date and then forgets about it, leaving that date filled on the calendar, so no other organization can plan for that night, thus leaving us with another night to sit in the Grill or go to a movie.

Sure, we all like the Grill and the movies but they do get boring every week with no change. We have discussed this matter with many students on campus and all are of the opinion we need more dances.

We used to have an occasional Fun Night, but these have faded into the past. No wonder students go home on week ends. There is probably more activity in the smallest of country towns on Saturday night than there is on the Morehead campus.

It isn't possible for us to say how many students on campus like to dance, but we can take a guess and say there are more than can dance around the juke box in the Grill. It's almost impossible for juke box dance couples to be dancing there and if they move to the other side, the music can't be heard. So what do they do? They sit around and listen to the music and tap their toes.

This is another phase of our campus life in which there has been a "long dry spell." Come on clubs, get on the ball and give us dances!

Aspirin Department

(From the Louisville Courier-Journal)

Sometimes we suspect that the boys in the news department take a ghoulish sort of pleasure in finding these nice little pills with a lot of bad news. It's bad enough to have to wade through accounts of the trouble in Hungary and the crisis in Egypt without being informed that the number of women in the US is increasing.

Not only that but they would go to another news story, they're having more headaches. Put together, those two grisly little facts should make any male's hair stand on end.

Not only are more women than men being born, but we are told, but these little critters are outstripping us by a goodly margin, with the result that eligible women are starting to outnumber eligible men in practically every category.

Furthermore, these unattached females are the very ones who are getting headaches, according to a Louisiana doctor, and we suspect that there is a direct correlation between these two facts. The more marriageable women, the rougher the competition and the more stress, edginess, irritability and headache the competitors.

At this rate it won't be long before a single male will be unable to dash from home to office without being besieged by hordes of girdled, eye-shaded, migraine sufferers. And a guy like me who has awakened to a wife with a headache can imagine the horror of a world crawling with migraine sufferers.

But there may be a ray of hope here yet. The Louisville doctor who reports that the headache let up with marriage, which gives us men a choice between philanthropy or profit. We can all become bigamists or invest in aspirin stock.

What a title has Frank H. Vittetow. Constant, In-Service Teacher Training, Division of Teacher Education and Certification, who established his headquarters at Morehead State College in May of this year.

The position has been set up to promote the new working relationship that now exists between Morehead State College and the State Department of Education in the matter of In-Service Teacher Training.

Mr. Vittetow was graduated from Sebree High School in Webster County, Kentucky. He received an AB degree in Natural Sciences and Secondary Education from Murray State College and a MA in School Administration and Supervision from Peabody College.

After college he taught in the Louisville City Schools. Later, he taught math and chemistry in the Cloverport Independent School District, where he was served as superintendent. Not only has he devoted his time to education alone but he was a weekly newspaperman in Sebree for three years, sold insurance, and worked with the Adcock Energy Commission in Paducah as an engineer's assistant.

As a member of the U. S. Air Force, Mr. Vittetow attended Allegheny College in Meadville, Pennsylvania. While in the service he was an aviation cadet and later became a psychological assistant in the Aviation School of the Army. Most of this work consisted of interviewing and testing boys who desired to become bombardiers, pilots, or navigators.

He began his work with the Division of Teacher Education and Certification in the State Department in 1952.

Mr. Vittetow is married to the former Elizabeth Prather who is the college nurse. They and their two children, Diane, 8, and Frank, Jr., 28 months, reside in Fields, Ky.

A Rosy Future

Two wins and six losses certainly isn't an impressive record. Yet the past football season was a successful one.

First off, a 31-game losing streak was broken. Another loss or two and Morehead would have been the losingest football team in the annals of football history.

Secondly, Coach Paul Adams—in his first year as a college coach—uncovered and developed some fine freshmen who certainly are going to make opponents sit up and take notice in the next three years.

And lastly, Adams' young Eagles played highly creditable football this year as they narrowly missed upsetting several highly rated opponents.

The future does look rosy. Such boys as Tom Sliney, Barry Fields, Curt Cassell, Dick Walker, Bert Dixon, Tom Scott, and John Plybon are sure to fill spring practice and summer's aging.

The Trail Blazer predicts that Morehead will have a winning season as early as next year, with an OVC championship contender the following year.

Again we congratulate coaches Paul Adams and Si Prewitz and the young Eagles for their successful season.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:

It has come to my attention that Rowan County has a real deer hunter in Mr. Frank Netherly. In the last issue of the Rowan County News, we noticed that on a trip with several old pros, including Mr. Herb Hogan, Netherly—on his first hunt—bagged the only deer of the trip.

The story said, and I quote, "he made a clean kill with his 30-30 rifle. Caudill, Hogan and Reynolds returned empty-handed."

Now being one who has not had much experience hunting, I thought that possibly we could have Mr. Hogan arranged to bring Mr. Netherly around to the purpose of deer hunting instructions.

In all fairness to Mr. Hogan, I believe we should allow him to attend the instructive period.

As interested reader

Dear Editor:

I am puzzled over why the Thanksgiving vacation does not begin until 5:00 on Wednesday. Those students who have a ten or twelve hour drive home will get home just about breakfast time and will be so worn out they can't enjoy the Thanksgiving celebration.

If classes were dismissed at noon, they could be well on their way home before 5:00. They probably wouldn't drive so fast and wouldn't have to make coffee stops during the night to help them keep awake.

Is there any possibility classes will be dismissed at noon Wednesday? It would be so convenient for everyone concerned, both students and teachers.

A Student.

Prof. Banks At MSC Since 1936

By Judy Black

Gabriel Conklin Banks, Assistant Professor of English at Morehead State College has been on campus for 20 years and they've been very active ones.

A few weeks ago when his picture appeared in the Courier-Journal it only showed one phase of his life, that of an English teacher who brings apples to his students.

Gabriel Banks was born in Guilmore in Wolfe County, Kentucky. After finishing his first years of school he went to Transylvania College at Lexington, Kentucky where he received his B. A. degree in 1917.

In 1919 he enrolled in the College of the Bible in Lexington where he got his B. D. and in 1920 he got his M. A. from Yale University in New Haven, Conn. He has also attended George Peabody College in Nashville, Tennessee.

After going to so many colleges and getting so many degrees you might wonder where he got the time to serve in the Army for two years. His first service was in the Indian Church in Falmouth, Kentucky. From 1926 to 1936 he was a pastor in Mayville, Kentucky. Mr. Banks married Opal Burkhardt and they have three children, William Burkhardt Banks, Mrs. Betty Banks Schindel and Gabriella Banks.

Mr. Banks now resides on 48 Sun Street in Morehead.

Christmas Gift Ideas Suggested

By Ina Kay Adams

With Christmas just around the corner most everyone has started to rack his brain for ideas on just what the right gift would be for each person on his list. Many tiring hours are spent each year in efforts to select the perfect gift—one that will not have to be exchanged later for something more suitable.

What a problem, especially for college students who have to be choosy about their purchases. However, the value of the gift isn't so very important. Some little gift may be exchanged later for something more expensive one. Following are some suggestions which might help you in your effort to spread the spirit of Christmas:

Mom would be pleased with a pair of slippers or knit gloves, snug house slippers to slip into on a cold winter morning, or a silk scarf or scatter pins to dress up her suit.

Give Dad a corner of his brand of cigarettes or a tobacco pouch filled with his brand of pipe tobacco. Maybe a tie? Ties are so common but why not add a matching muffler?

Get Sis a piece of her favorite type of jewelry or that record album she has been wanting.

Nothing would please Brother more than to get a subscription to Sports Illustrated or Playboy, or why not just rip up one of his supply of shaving lotion and soap.

Fellows, that favorite girl will love you if you give her her favorite perfume or cologne. She would even be pleased with an 8 x 10 portrait of you for her dressing room.

For that favorite man in your life, girls, why not give him a personalized cuff link and the bar set. If you can't, please him with a pull-over sweater made with your own hands.

No business pushes itself; whenever you see a business getting you can let your life somebody is giving intelligent direction to its affairs.

From The Poetry Workshop

Poetry usually attempts to make use of the suggestive or connotative meanings of words as well as the direct or denotative meanings. One problem of the translator of poetry is the finding of words for the translation that have both of these meanings.

But since languages differ in grammatical structure and in idiom and, therefore, in attitude and point of view, translating one language meaning into meaning in another—in as far as regular or accepted grammatical structure and idiom is concerned—may seem to be too much of a loss.

What seems to be normal patterns in the language of the translation may have to be violated to keep some of the effect of the original. These were the problems that faced the writer of the poems below. Some words and structures were carried over literally; others were changed in an effort to arrive at the best compromise.

The following poem is being printed in both English and French, the native tongue of its author.

On the eve of leaving for America, Le Havre harbor.

This green light which palpitates
At the end of the jetty,
It is not my heart of twenty years.
It does not belong to me.
It is my heart of tonight.
Enriched with all the twenty years of the others.
It is the new heart, all warm,
Of the lovers of today.
Filled with juvenile blood.

Oh! You, first lovers of the world,
Do not know me!
I am a dead for you—
That much more living for myself.
What I was taught I will not teach you,
Nor how to gather the fruit of life,
Which I have tasted long ago.
You were unique and so were mine
And still would be tonight
To my mouth wet with savor.

Tomorrow the throbbing lighthouse will hail me
With a new salute.
Me! Inherited lover of the New World
And I shall dream under new stars . . .
Oh! Wishes of perpetuity,
You always lift us
Towards new skies and new destinies,
Just when our stars believe they are falling.
For him God waits in order to be astonished.
Arise! Sun! Youthful Odysseus is about to leave
On his first voyage.

Ce feu vert qui palpite au bout du môle,
Ce n'est pas mon cœur de vingt ans.
Il ne m'appartient plus.
C'est mon cœur de ce soir
Enrichi de tous les vingt ans des autres.
C'est le cœur nouveau, tout chaud,
Des amants d'aujourd'hui,
Gore d'un sang juvénile.

Oh! Vous, premiers amants du monde,
Je ne vous connais pas!
Je suis un mort pour vous.
D'autant plus vivant pour moi.
Ce qui me fut enseigné je ne vous l'enseignerai pas,
Ni à cueillir les fruits de lumière
Ou j'ai muré jadis:
Les vôtres sont à nos astres semblables,
Car les miens le furent et le seraient encore, ce soir,
A ma bouche mouillée de savor.

Demain les phares éblouissants me salueront
D'un nouveau salut.
Moi! Amoureux ivre du Nouveau Monde.
Et je vais rêver sous de nouvelles étoiles . . .
Oh! Vents de la perpétuité,
Qui toujours nous soulevez
Au sommet ou nos astres croient qu'ils s'inclinent
Vers de nouveaux cieux et de nouvelles destinées.
Demain je m'élancerai sur vos ailes.

Tous les matins il faut que la ferveur d'un homme
Recommence le monde.
Je l'appelle, pour survivre.
Dieu l'attend pour en être étone.
Leve-toi Soleil! Le jeune Ulysse va partir
Pour son premier voyage.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Open Forum Keeps Busy

By Audrey Ingram

There have been five meetings of the Open Forum Club since the club was started.

EKEA Pledges To Continue Campaign For Federal Aid In School Construction

TB Staffer Interviews Pat Shely

By Audrey Ingrah
When Pat Shely began college at the University of Kentucky as a pre-med student, little did she know that someday she would be women's physical education director at Morehead State College.

Miss Shely grinned when asked why she decided upon physical education instead of medicine as a career. "I just couldn't discipline myself," she said. "I was in so many extra-curricular activities that my time was gone before I got started."

How true this statement was for, at the time, she was flying for the Civil Air Patrol, writing for a fraternity magazine, taking active parts in other organizations, and playing French horn
in the college band and orchestra.
Naturally this all had to be squeezed in between classes and study hours.

In 1946, Miss Shely obtained
her degree from the University, which by the way is in her home town of Lexington. From there she went to Columbia to work on her master's degree.

After completing her work at Columbia, Miss Shely taught for two years at a college in Mississippi. Then she moved a little further south and taught for three years at a college for women in Troy, Ala.

For the past two years, she has been at Berea where she taught both in high school and college.
At the present time, Miss Shely finds her hands full teaching eight classes and conducting weekly meetings of WRA. However, her interests span a large area other than teaching and Miss Shely became the first woman in the history of Lexington to hold the city golf championship for two years consecutively.

She has also journeyed to the semi-finals of the state golf tournament.

Another field which Miss Shely is quite adept in is fencing.
After only a few weeks of fencing in college, she became so engrossed in the sport that she continued on her own to practice and develop her skill.

Eventually the hours of work paid off. She became a champion and progressed to the Midwest play-off. She has also held fencing schools during the summer months, giving lessons to those who were interested.

Miss Shely, as mentioned previously, is a musician and also a follower of modern dance. She hopes someday to organize a class for students on college who are also interested in modern dance.

"My knowledge of music has helped me a great deal in my work," she said. "It not only gives personal enjoyment, but also develops rhythm and helps one to get acquainted with people in various other departments.
I think that music, English, physical education, and all of the courses taught in college should lie in together. It makes for a better understanding between teachers and students."

After hearing all of these accomplishments, this writer was completely unprepared for the next bit of information. Miss Shely is also an author. Her book
"The Thorns Cut Deeply" contains 50 pages of poems and poetic prose.

Many compliments have been paid her for her contributions to literature, one being from Lawrence W. Neff, Book Editor of Banner Press, who said, "... It is truly timeless and poignantly appealing ..." If any one wants to buy a copy of the book, stop in at Miss Shely's office during a "spare moment."

How does she manage to do it?
Don't ask me!

After all, it is possible to get an education without playing football.

33rd Annual Convention Held At Ashland

The Eastern Kentucky Education Association pledged last week to continue its campaign for federal aid for school construction.

Winding up its 33rd annual convention Friday, the EKEA also voted to support a movement to initiate a state school building bond issue.

Robert R. Martin, Kentucky
superintendent of public instruction, urged a state bond issue to help meet the need for more classrooms.

Martin also reported on the Kentucky Minimum Foundation
Program. He said more teachers are staying in the state, better work is being done, and there are fewer unequalled teachers because of the program.

Other resolutions approved by the EKEA included a pledge to point up the need for additional funds to secure all benefits under the Minimum Foundation Program.

The association endorsed two proposed amendments to the state Constitution, one providing for appointment rather than election of the state superintendent of public instruction, and the other permitting submission of more amendments to the voters at one time than the one presently allowed.

Miss Dorothy Conley of Wheelwright was elected president of the EKEA, succeeding C. H. Harley of Pikeville.

Floyd Hall of Catlettsburg was elected first vice president and Paul Westerfield of Lewis County was unopposed for second vice president.

Ira T. Caudill of Pikeville was chosen delegate to the National Education Association convention, and Mrs. Mary L. Henson of Elliott County, the alternate.

James V. Powell of Elkhorn
City, Verne Horne of Johnson County, and Mrs. Esterella Cummings of Wheelwright were elected to the EKEA board of directors.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp of New York told the convention that the task of controlling atomic energy must be accomplished if humanity is to survive.

Dr. Lapp, director of the Nuclear Science Service and author of books and national magazine articles on nuclear weapons and national policy, said there can be no guarantee of what will happen to humanity if nuclear tests are broadened and continued.

COLDS:
Industry's stake in the cost of shuffles and colds in the nation for the coming fall and winter season is the loss of about 150-200,000 work days a year. Workers lose wages and pay medical bills. All of this, it is estimated, adds up to an estimated $5,000-6,000,000 cost each year.

Try to live your life so your neighbors will not consider you a goon.
