

It's Our Policy

The Trail Blazer has no flowery credo. We believe in honesty, decency, fair play and factuality.

We believe in good humor as no man can live happily without it.

We believe in independence, as freedom from all obligations except that of fidelity to the public interest is vital.

We believe in impartiality, with news stories free from opinion or bias of any kind.

We believe, as did Henry Watterson who

Traffic—A Problem

"Whew! Borely made it back from the grill. Thought I'd never make it across the boulevard. First, I waited for a caravan of cars to pass and just as I made a dash for it, here came a stream-lined convertible complete with air-brakes, dual horns, twin mufflers, and a souped up engine. Luckily I was near the traffic island and threw myself on it with fear and trembling.

Standing there, waiting for the smoke and dust to settle, I came to the conclusion that something drastic must BE DONE before something fatal happens. Looking around, I discovered that I wasn't the only one trying to quiet my qualms. There were four other students bravely attempting to get to the sidewalk. Banging together we pledged not to separate. Thirty minutes later a group of tired, dusty, trembling students arrived safely on the other side of the street. Friends and we were, for we had mastered a frightening situation together.

Trying to tell myself that it was all a bad dream, I again called upon my courage and prepared to spend an evening in the grill. Giving my roommate my parents' telephone number (just in case) and bidding her a warm farewell, I drew a deep breath and proceeded slowly. Darkness had fallen and all was peaceful on the boulevard. So I was right all along—it was just a horrible nightmare.

At that moment I prepared to step between two parked cars. Scree-ee-ee-ee-ee! Then I had leaped back to the sidewalk and began to tremble anew. Stillness pervaded once more. I looked in both directions, listened and looked again. For the second time in five minutes I started toward the grill. Reaching the traffic island intact, I began to let my guard down. Pausing to catch my breath I heard the faint hum of a motor.

Perhaps it will turn the other way I thought. No, there were the headlights beaming right on me. I'm safe, the driver sees me. Sure, there will not be any danger now. These thoughts hardly had time to run through my head before I was deflected by a loud blast of horns and profane language. Was I at fault simply because I wanted to get across the street? Apparently from the driver's point of view I was.

As I hovered in the darkness I heard opportunity knocking. There was not a car in sight nor a motor within earshot. Madly I bolted for the grill. Landing safely on the curb I stopped and looked back to see if I had deserted any fellow students on the island. Assured that I was alone in my frightened condition, I moved toward the student house.

Safely inside I made my way to the bar and bought a coke. Tranquilizing pills go down so much easier with liquid. I don't know how much longer my pills will hold out, nor do I expect to hold out very long. All I can do is hope—hope for an ENFORCED ten mile per hour speed limit.

It's A Fine New Building

New buildings are opened on campuses all over the nation each year, but none will ever compare with the unveiling of our new Student House at Morehead.

The Doran Student House is equipped to serve every whim and fancy, no matter what it might be. Built with you, and the future students of Morehead in mind, it should serve as a reminder of the progress and effort being made toward making your college education as well-rounded as possible.

It is up to you, the students, to insure its success. Both through your participation in the facilities it offers, and your own personal pride in its lasting beauty, will the Doran Student House remain the showplace it now is.

There are increasing indications that man may have eventually doomed his species when he learned how to make a wheel, and to start a fire.

Sooner or later, usually the former, most "wolves" are caught in the "tender trap" and are subsequently expertly defanged and domesticated.

said, "It has been my rule, aim and effort in my newspaper career to print nothing of a man which I would not say to his face; to print nothing of a man in malice and to look well and think twice before consigning a suspect to the ruin of a printer's ink."

And finally, we believe that beautifully decorated elevator shafts will be the rage in 1957-58, as reason costs will again be in style and Elva Presley will be replaced by Mr. John Carter.

There Are Things To Do

Well work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Realizing the truthfulness of this statement, Morehead State College provides a varied program of clubs and activities for its students.

If you are looking for an all-male, semi-fraternal organization, there's the Campus Club and the Les Courants.

Morehead also has a religious organization for almost every denomination on campus. For example, there is the Warner Fellowship, Baptist Student Union, Disciple Student Fellowship and the Wesley Club.

For lovers of fine arts, there's the Beaux Arts Club, and for those interested in drama, the Morehead Players. The Crescendo Club and the Music Educators National Conference are open to anyone interested in music.

For students who are planning a teaching career, we have the Future Teachers of America and the Kappa Delta Phi.

Future scientists, biologists, chemists, and math teachers will be interested in the American Chemical Society, Beta Chi Gamma, and Mu Phi.

Lovers of sports will feel at home in the Mystic Club and the Women's Recreation Association.

Then we have the Agriculture Club for would-be farmers, the Home Economics Club for hopeful homemakers, The Trail Blazer staff for roving reporters, and the Vets Club for ex-service men and women.

Our foreign students will be particularly interested in the newest club on campus, the Club Compositum. This club was organized last year to promote inter-group relations among the students.

Combine these clubs with the Open Forum Club, Student Council, YWCA, Kappa Mu, and class organizations and Jack will not be a dull boy for long. Of course, if Jack prefers other outlets for his excess energy, he can always find diversions in the Doran Student House or the movies.

Let's Vote

With the election of class officers to take place today, we should stop everything for just a moment and take stock of our candidates and their campaign promises.

As it too often happens, too much emphasis is usually placed upon popularity, with a complete disregard as to the qualifications of the individual seeking office.

Not to say that popularity is wrong. It is indeed a wonderful thing, and something which everyone should strive for. All too often, popularity is won in the Campus Sweet Shoppe and in many instances that is where it stays.

The officers you elect will be representing you. Will you vote for them, be certain that they will represent you. It is a definite honor to be selected for an office of importance on any campus, but it carries with it obligations of unbounded importance.

Keep in mind that the year has just begun. It won't be long going through the whole year bemoaning the mistakes you made in one day. And remember too, popularity contests will be taking place throughout the entire school year.

That an increasing number of people are beginning to save money causes many economists to fear this trend will bring on a depression. They should be sharply censured and told that thriftiness these days and times is virtually un-American.

Attempts to produce a birth-control pill seem to be meeting with some success. Maybe it will be possible for the human race to become extinct peacefully instead of committing suicide with atomic energy.

Now that son has turned the car back to father, and gone back to college, the old man is hard put to decide whether to have it completely overhauled or to tangle it in on a new car.

The international situation would be greatly improved if high level trouble-shooters would quit trying to settle things by shooting off their mouths, and set in shooting trouble-makers who need to be shot.

There are still a few poor families in the United States—those who have fewer than three bedrooms and two cars.

Members of FTA have an opportunity to study current problems of education and to become acquainted with the work of the state and national education associations.

The Epilon Theta Chapter of Kappa Delta Phi is an honor society in Education. Kappa Delta endeavors to promote a high degree of professional leadership among members and to quicken professional growth. Membership is open to all women students interested in participating in any form of physical activity. The purpose of WRA is to create better health and better physical being.

The Campus Club, the oldest club on the campus, was organized in 1933. It is composed of male upper-classmen who have excelled in scholastic or extracurricular activities. Members and achievement.

Because of the need of an organization wherein students could discuss various problems arising on the campus, or during question periods, the Open Forum Club was established in the fall of 1950. Anyone who wishes may join the club.

All of these various organizations sponsor many different varieties of entertaining events. There are Christmas parties, banquets, picnics, trips, hayrides, sponsor school sports, and speakers. Whatever type of club you wish to join, it can be found on Morehead State College campus and all the clubs are eager to have you.

Rasmah And My Education

By Mary Bookok

Rasmah was a good man for a Negro; at least that's what I heard the big folks say. To me he was a beloved man. He had known him the whole six months of my life. They tell me that on the day that I was born, Rasmah came to the door and asked if he might see me. I guess we were friends from that day on.

Several people, Aunt Bessie in particular, thought it wasn't proper for me to be so close to him. But mom and dad were so very lenient considering that he kept me out of the way and out of mischief. Aunt Bessie just didn't know Rasmah. He was really quite educated. He could even read a little.

Rasmah and I had our favorite "sitting" place. This was a big rock, high on a hill where we could go and look over most of the nearby town. Each day we would meet there for our favorite pastime (my mutual agreement) of "sitting."

It was on a perfectly beautiful day that Rasmah made the agonizing statement that I was to begin my education immediately. Rasmah was a great believer in education.

I thought that my very small head would never be able to contain all of the Bible verses that he tried to cram into it. And by future reference I have come to the conclusion that the Bible was also unable to contain a few of them.

Some people called Rasmah a heathen. I went immediately to Rasmah to find out what a heathen was. He told me that he supposed it was somebody who wouldn't go to church. He said that he did too much "tongue-wagging" and not enough "soul-searching" at the church. He said he wanted his soul to be still and quiet, not scared and shaky.

He said he would quote the 23rd Psalm (in his own mangled form of course) and tell me that he was a church ought to be like the "green pastures" and the "still waters." When I asked him if I could be a heathen too, he told me I was too young.

Rasmah taught me the most fascinating stories and the most beautiful songs I had ever heard. This was the part of my education which was supposed to develop my imagination. I don't know how much it did for my imagination but, as I recall, some of the stories nearly scared me.

At the time, my education seemed very well, at least Rasmah thought so. But my father was very obstinate and he insisted that I enter school come September.

Soon after school started I was faced with the greatest tragedy of my young life. Rasmah left me.

The last time I saw him he sang such sad songs that he made me cry. And when he saw me crying he just stopped singing and sat with a faraway look in his eyes. I guess he was just dreaming about that old place he was always telling me about—a place where everybody could be educated. We were there for a long time and then Rasmah got up slowly and looked down at me. With a sad smile he said "good-bye child. And he walked slowly down the hill.

Then I was not able to understand that his shoulders were stooped under the weight of generations of depression and persecution. His ragged coat and dirty shoes were a symbol of his poverty. His hands were worn and rough from doing work beyond his strength. Then I was not able to understand the empty place in my heart.

For many months I went each day to our "sitting" place and watched for Rasmah to come and continue my education. But he was gone. He never came again. No one ever spoke his name. And no one ever answered my question when I asked, "Where is Rasmah?"

Art Exhibits To Be Shown During Year

By Wilma Thacker

If you haven't visited the art gallery on the first floor of the Johnson Camden Library, you should make it a point to see the paintings on exhibit done by leading art students of Morehead State College.

Some of these paintings done by students have won prizes and many have held one-man shows in several large cities.

One of these students won first prize in water color painting at the Ohio Valley Art Exhibit, where professional artists competed from six states: Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, West Virginia and Kentucky. Henry Glover, Jr., the winner of this prize, has just recently been made a Kentucky Colonel.

Some interesting exhibits have been planned for the art gallery in the near future; a water color exhibit by Margaret Leighton, some children's art and possibly another sculptor exhibit. The dates of these exhibits will appear in a later issue of the Trail Blazer.

Right now in the art department, everyone is busily engaged in the process of making 200 favors for the District Women's Club meet which will meet at Morehead State College, Oct. 3. The favors, which are all different and unique, forecast the hat styles for 1937-38.

There is always something interesting going on in the art department and it is always open to visitors.

Buckles, Buttons, Stripes Highlight Fall Fashions

By Judie Wilson

"Buckles, buttons and stripes is the fashion note of the fall season."

Most skirts and slacks are plaid or striped today. The ever popular distinguishing ivy league buckle.

The blouses and skirts are worn in a great variety of combinations and styles, mainly striped and plaid with the buttoned down collar. Another popular blouse style is the "middy look" that covers the waist line and gives the long torso effect.

The girls are tending to borrow the "boyish look" by wearing bulky crew neck sweaters and blazers.

The fashionable colors reflect the colors of fall. Two of the favorites are bright red and cognac (brown).

The boys are not to be outdone by the girls. They too are keeping up with the latest ivy-league fashion—ever popular slacks, with cry and striped shirts. Don't forget among both the are the black an loafers and bunis. It is pretty students of M ing up with th thions. Who-eve can be sure that he out of style but like the rest of th

School Teachers Asked For $1 Each To Promote Passage Of Amendment

Billie Jo Treads Louise's Footsteps

By Patti Lee Guech
(Reprinted From Sept. 10 Issue Louisville Courier-Journal)

Being a doctor's shadow, visiting patients, seeing the shiny surgical instruments, watching a cut stitched up "and not even getting squeamish," decided Billie Jo Caudill of Morehead—8 or thereabouts—on being a doctor. Billie Jo is a freshman this year at the University of Louisville Medical School.

The doctor she shadowed, the late Dr. E. B. Houston of Murray, let her "help" him when Billie was in grade school. He was caring for her parents, the William Caudills, who had undergone surgery, and he "seemed to enjoy" having the young aide.

After she graduated with a science major from Murray State College in 1947, however, plans of going around with bulky black bag and stethoscope were unrealized.

"There were financial difficulties and I wasn't yet 21 (at that time students had to be 21 to enter medical school)," Billie Jo said.

Her hopes for medicine remained just hopes until this past year—nearly 10 years after that Murray graduation.

Her father had been ill with a cardiac ailment when his doctor (Billie's cousin, Dr. Louise Caudill), gave that extra bit of encouragement.

"Louise stopped for a minute while caring for Dad—there are few minutes like this—when she heard me say I had always wanted to go into medicine," Billie recalled.

"You mean you've wanted to be a doctor?" Louise said emphatically. "Well, for heaven's sake, be one."

Advancing years hadn't kept Dr. Louise from medicine. A story in the April 29 issue of The Courier-Journal said that she was head of women's physical education at Morehead State College for several years before studying medicine at the University of Louisville. She has been a rural doctor in Morehead since 1948.

With Dr. Louise's encouragement and the aid of a rural scholarship given by the Kentucky State Medical Association Billie started school last week. After one and a half weeks of classes, she is already convinced that "there aren't enough hours in the day."

Her weightiest problem this far, though, has been her anatomy textbooks. One's long and thin, the other short and thick, "both heavy."

After walking up four flights of stairs too many days I weighed the short and thick book—it weighed five pounds."

Thereafter, Billie carried the short-and-thick and inspired another woman medical student to cart the long-and-thin. They share the books at the fourth floor.

Anatomy is proving most interesting subject for Billie.

"The two boys and girl with whom I work are most agreeable," she said. So is their other companion, "Dead Ernest," their cadaver.

Other members of the Caudill clan have had patients—and patients. Besides Dr. Louise, who's really a third cousin of Billie's, there's Dr. Gene Combs, another cousin who is a radiologist at Pikeville.

And coming up are Etta Jane Caudill, 14, and Sandra Elam, 15, now in Morehead High School. Etta Jane, Dr. Louise's niece, worked in her office all summer for experience in the field. And Sandra "very calmly announced last year to the family that she, too, would be a doctor."

Post Office Has New Lobby And Window Hours

Morehead Postmaster Claude Clayton today announced new lobby and window service hours, effective immediately.

Hereafter the lobby will be open from 9 a. m. until 7:30 p. m. on weekdays and from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. Sundays.

Windows will open on Monday through Friday at 8:30 a. m. and close at 5 p. m. Window service is offered on Saturdays from 8:30 a. m. until noon.

By 1825 Lexington, then the cultural center of Kentucky and proudly known as the "Athens of the West," ranked with New Orleans as a center for portrait painters.

A nonpartisan group has asked school superintendent to seek financial support from Kentucky's 25,000 teachers for a proposed constitutional amendment revamping the Department of Education.

Under the proposal, to be voted upon in the Nov. 8 election, the state superintendent of public instruction would be appointed rather than elected.

The Non-Partisan Committee for the School Amendment, in a letter to the superintendent, suggested each teacher contribute $1 for promotional work.

Contributions would be sent to the Kentucky Education Association office at Louisville. It has no connection with the Non-Partisan Committee but is supporting the amendment.

J. Marvin Dodson, KEA executive secretary, said the letter, sent to approximately 220 superintendents, was signed by David McLellan, Horse Cave, district chairman of the state Parent Teachers Association.

Dodson said superintendents were urged to take up with their teachers the matter of financial support and suggest they make voluntary contributions of not more than $1 each to the campaign.

Dodson said if the amendment passed, a board of education, composed of nine persons and appointed by the governor, would have the job of appointing a state superintendent.

Dodson said, the governor would appoint members to staggered terms so that one would expire each year.

"This would mean that no governor would appoint more than four members to the committee during his administration," Dodson explained.

In the case of a resignation, the vacancy would be filled by the board.

Dodson said he has no connection with the Non-Partisan Committee but that KEA headquarters have agreed to act as a collection point for any contributions.

At Frankfort, James L. Sublett, assistant superintendent of public instruction, said the Department of Education "has no control or voice" in the committee's activities. Sublett said the committee was organized several months ago and was made up of lay citizens interested in education.

He said any fund raising activities "are their own."

Lucke's "Boys" Look Like Best In History

By George Stevens

Coach Ed Lucke's 1957 freshmen basketball squad has fine potential with a star-studded cast of high school standouts. This year the Eagle scouts have their scholarship boys on some of the finest cagers of the Tri-State basketball circuit. Six players were awarded scholarships.

From Cincinnati is 19-year-old James Harrison who was named to the All-City team in his senior year. Jim is unquestionably the tallest man on the team, standing at 6-9. He started for Robert A. Taft High School in the center slot.

Another Buckeye who is expected to have a good year with Morehead is Henderson "Heckie" Thompson. The 6-3 guard hauled from Stockdale High School where he had a fine senior season, averaging 22.6 points per game. He played varsity ball for four years.

From Camargo, Ky. is Arthur Cline, a 6-4 center. His voted game high as a senior was 66 points, the 2nd highest total in the state last year. He should be quite an asset to the freshmen squad.

From central Indiana comes an 18-year-old guard who was voted most valuable player on his Huntington High school. Scott Hooper, a 6-3 Hooper, hit for 31.5 points in his senior year and was awarded a slot on the Central Indiana All-Conference team. Scott started as guard for the major portion of his high school career.

Next is 6-5 Tom Hamilton who received his high school experience at Charlestown High School of Indiana. This 17-year-old was noted as a consistent ball player and was a forward. Tom is the younger brother of varsity star Steve Hamilton.

Finally, from Toledo Libbey High, we have 6-5 Ray Baker who started at the forward position in his senior year. Ray is known by many in that locale for his outstanding rebounding. He is a good competitor and should be a fine asset to the team.

Regular season practice begins Oct. 15.

Marshall moved quickly to the 35-yard line where freshman halfback Buford Crager intercepted a pass and was downed in his tracks.

Eagles Invade Tennessee Tech Saturday For 1st OVC Game

By Don Gladding

Morehead invades the nest of the Tennessee Tech Golden Eagles, Saturday, Oct. 5, in their third football outing of the season.

Coach Adams' charges will be meeting the Tennessee team for the 13th time, and hopes are built on the 13 being the unlucky number for Coach Wilburn Tucker's Eagles.

Last year, Tech defeated Morehead 26-19, after having trailed MSC 13-7 at halftime. Morehead continued to hold the lead going into the fourth period by a 19-14 score, before a bad pass from center dempened the Eagles spirit.

Tech dropped their opener to Florence (Ala.) State 20-0, and met Youngstown, O., Saturday.

Tech is led by All-OVC halfback Doug Caldwell, who averaged seven yards a carry as a junior last year.

Morehead Eagles, Off To Slow Start, Rally For 12-0 Win Over Maryville

Morehead's Eagles played listless ball for a half before coming to life in the third quarter to down Maryville College, 12-0, before 3,500 fans last Saturday night in Jayne Stadium.

The Eagles of Paul Adams, who outgained the Highlanders 253 to 24 yards on the ground, were superb on defense but had trouble getting their T-attack into high gear until the third period.

Only after four minutes of the third quarter had elapsed were the Eagles able to penetrate the Highlanders 25-yard line. At this point, halfback Buddy Fields intercepted a pass on the Maryville 35 and returned it to the 26.

Nine plays later, Tom Sims rammed over from the one for the score.

The extra point attempt was blocked.

Three minutes later, the Eagles received the ball on the Morehead 50-yard line after Maryville was forced to punt. Halfback Bobby Kincaid broke through on a quick option to the middle and raced 64 yards through the Maryville secondary for Morehead's second touchdown.

The extra point attempt was again missed.

Adams then substituted freely, using mostly second and third stringers throughout the final quarter.

Maryville was unable to get its running game underway as the Morehead defense held the Highlanders to five first downs while the Eagles were picking up 11.

Several Morehead threats were thwarted as the Eagles were assessed 125 yards in penalties. Maryville was penalized 55 in the rugged contest which saw one Highlander evicted on unsportsmanlike conduct charges.

Maryville outgained the Eagles in the air as the Tennesseans tried vainly to score in the last half. Maryville completed four of 11 passes for 50 yards while Morehead completed only two of eight for a net gain of 24 yards.

The Eagles intercepted a two Highlander passes while the Scottish lads picked off one Morehead aerial.

The Highlander's only serious threat was late in the fourth quarter when Highlander tackle John Hawkins recovered a Tom Sims fumble on the Morehead 30 yard line. Three plays moved the ball to the Morehead seven-yard line, but the Eagle defense tightened and Maryville was unable to score.

Curt Cassell was the leading ground gainer for the Eagles as the 5-8, 165-pounder picked up 69 yards in 16 carries for a 4.3 average. Bobby Kincaid ground out 68 yards in three carries for a 22.6 average while Buddy Fields picked up 62 yards in 14 carries for a 3.1 average.

Tom Inslee picked up 25 yards in four tries for a 6.5 average while his fellow fullback, Wayne Oward, ground out 13 yards in three carries for a 4.2 average.

Quarterback Tom Sims completed two of four passes for 24 yards while quarterback Alby Dawson was unable to connect on four attempts.

The win was Morehead's first of the young season while the loss now gives Maryville a 1-1 record.

OLD FACILITIES OUTGROWN—Until last week all Morehead State College numbers were individually listed in the phone book. But, the college, with increased enrollment, has outgrown the old system and installed its own PBX switch board. Operator Naomi Ely is shown at the controls when the conversion was made. Hereafter, when you want any number at the college call 145. After April the PBX number will be prefixed by State with five numerals as Morehead converts to a dial system.

Laugh - Stay Alive, Says New York Doc

Keeping a healthy sense of humor is the single most important tool for happiness, says a psychologist.

Dr. Murray Banks of New York City offered a six-point formula for chasing gloom and avoiding breakdown.

He told an Israel bond rally: "As long as you can laugh you won't break down."

He said five other recipes for happiness are:

- 1—Refuse to lie to yourself. Don't cover up your true wishes.
- 2—Give your old age a swift

MSC Band In New Uniforms

By Lois Cornett

Seventy Morehead State College band members are now sporting new uniforms of navy blue with gold trim.

In addition to the new uniforms the band has five new tubas, three new French horns, three new saxophones, five new clarinets and two new bass trombones.

Recently elected officers are President, Jan Fleck; Vice-President, Nelson Amos; Treasurer, Peter Strodel; and Secretary, Carol Babyak.

John Thomas is the new assistant director and John Hagans is business manager. Both have much experience in band work. Thomas was formerly a band leader for four years in Roanoke, Ala., while Hagans was assistant band director at Salversville High School.

One of the activities planned by the band is Band Day which will be Oct. 19. Approximately 1,000 band students from various Kentucky, Ohio and West Virginia high schools will meet at the football field to perform. This gives young band members an opportunity to participate in a mammoth show and also give them a chance to view the MSC campus.

Anyone who is interested in becoming a member of the band is advised to see the director, Mr. Marzan.

Two Books Sought By MSC Library

Morehead State College Librarian Ione M. Chapman issued a request today for two locally printed books. She said the college would either buy these publications or if the owner didn't want to sell the college would microfilm and return them.

The books are:

Elliott County—by Mary Vansant, published by Morehead Independent.

Vivid Memories of Rowan and Elliott Counties—by E. S. Montgomery, published by the Morehead Independent.

Both publications were printed in the 1930's, but Miss Chapman said research had failed to find a copy. Copies owned by the Independent were destroyed in the 1938 flash flood.

Miss Chapman urges that anyone having a copy or knowing where they can be located to contact her.
