Eagles Play In December 27-28 Holiday Basketball Tourney

Christmas Holiday Begins Next Week

By Audrey Ingram

Christmas vacation will begin officially on Wednesday, Dec. 18 at 5 p. m.

On that day, students will be kinder than Santa's helpers on Christmas Eve.

When the last class bell rings, the students will swarm out of the doors like bees. They will rush madly to their dormitories and throw a few last minute articles in a suitcase that has been packed for a week. After a last look in the closet and dresser the door is closed until the festivities are over.

The lobby of the dormitories is the Grand Central Station of the college. Luggage, coats and dresses on hangers, books, boys, girls, and laughter are everywhere. One by one they trickle out. Cars are loaded and a wave and a "Merry Christmas" the students relax and look forward to Christmas at home, a big turkey dinner and New Year.

Jack Ellis Gets $1,000 Scholarship

Jack D. Ellis, Bookmobile Librarian in Rowan County schools for the past six years, has been awarded a $1,000 scholarship for graduate study in Library Science and will enroll at George C. Peabody College, Nashville, Dec. 30.

Mr. Ellis, one of the pioneer bookmobile librarians in the state, is a native of Morehead, and a graduate of Morehead State College.

Half of the award was made by the "Friends of Kentucky Libraries," while $500 was given by an anonymous lady connected with Belknap family in Louisville.

Mr. Ellis has been granted a leave of absence from his Rowan County position so that he can enroll at Peabody.

MSC Students To Hold A Christmas Party

By William Randolph Wurst

The Morehead State College faculty will hold a Christmas party in the Doran Student House on Monday, Dec. 16, at 8:00 p. m.

Mrs. Violet Severy of the music department has been elected chairman of the faculty steering committee whose job will be to keep the organization as informal and loosely knit as possible.

Serving on the steering committee are: Ethel Moore, Frank Vittelov, Carl Woods and Dr. William Owley.

Committees for the Christmas party are:

Decorations—Betty Marzan and Alice Fauffman, co-chairmen; Mr. and Mrs. John Carter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry

Kenneth Thompson, from Stockdale, O. Ken is a member of the Campus Club and the Mystic Club, has been a member of the basketball team for four years and is the Ohio Valley Conference high jump champion.

Morehead's much-traveled Eagle will fly to Starkville, Miss., the day after Christmas to compete in the Mississippi State Holiday Invitational basketball tourney.

Competing with the Eagles in the tourney are Mississippi State, the University of Mississippi and the University of Alabama.

Bob Laughlin's charges will be the Mississippi State in the opening game with Mississippi and Alabama meeting in the second round. The winners of first night play will meet for the championship the following night with the losers playing a consolation game.

The tourney will feature four of the top 15 scorers in the nation last year. Mississippi's Gibson was second in the nation scoring with a 30 point average. Howell of Mississippi State was ninth with 22.5 average. Kuylen of Alabama was 12th with 24.6 average and Morehead's Steve Hamilton was 15th with a 24.2 average.

Mississippi State defeated Kentucky last year and ended the season with a 19-1 record. Alabama posted a 15-11 mark and Mississippi had a 9-12 record. The Eagles ended with a very commendable 19-8 record.

The tournament should be a high scoring affair as Morehead ranked fifth with an 84.5 mark. Alabama was 26th with a 79.5 average and Mississippi ranked 43rd with 77.2 average.

Bob Hartley, Mississippi State publicity director, said recently over the telephone, "We expect to have overtime crowds in our 5,000 seat gymnasium. Ole Miss and Mississippi State are old rivals and Morehead with its tremendous height, scoring punch and color, should be a terrific drawing card."

Local Ordinance Helps To Relieve Traffic Problem

By Gordon Saunders

The new city ordinance banning parking on the V-shaped curve in front of the Doran Student House is now in full effect with the completion of the painting of crosswalks on College Boulevard and the posting of a 15 mph speed limit.

The last act of parking on the V-shaped curve in front of the Doran Student House, was No. 43rd was to be towed away, and the owner of the car will have to pay $10 to get the car out of storage.

The Police explained this restriction by saying that they were getting complaints from motorists. The cars parked on the curve were blocking all traffic and were a hazard to College Street, and if a fire was to break out there would be no way to get past the cars.

Also, a new ordinance has been adopted by the City Board of Commissioners to be carried out and executed. It states that no vehicle shall travel upon College Boulevard at a rate of speed greater than 15 miles per hour.

Drivers should stop, before crossing all crosswalks on College Boulevard. If there is any one about to enter a crosswalk they are to be allowed to go first. If there is no one about to enter the crosswalk a driver may proceed.

If the following places are located in the following places: two are in front of Breckinridge Training Hotel, one in front of Thompson Hall; one in front of the Doran Student House, and one on the west side of the Student House.

Also, no person shall be allowed to cross the Boulevard within 50 feet of these crosswalks, without crossing the designated lane.

Anybody violating the first two laws may be fined not less than $5 nor more than $10. The third law is punishable by fining not less than $1 nor more than $10. The local police are sure that the laws previously mentioned will be carried out and executed to the fullest extent.

Speech Clinic Held Here Last Week

The second annual speech clinic for teachers in the Morehead region was held at Morehead State College last Thursday.

The all day meeting was held in the Breckinridge Training School auditorium and got underway at 9 a. m.

Guest consultants included Dr. Denver Sloan, Chloe Gifford and Carlton Hayward from the University of Kentucky and John Lawton and W. P. Covington, Morehead State College.

Dr. Adron Doran delivered a welcoming address to open the morning session which was followed by a luncheon in the beautiful new Doran Student House and an afternoon session including an evaluation, and planning period.

Students from Fleming County High School, Morehead High School and Breckinridge Training School gave readings during the morning session.

Serving on the speech clinic committee were Leroy Doran, Pearl Haggan, Merle Howard, W. P. Covington, Frank Vittelov and Maurice Wicker.

Christmas Ball Saturday Night To Feature Dixieland Band

THE HEIRESS—Discussing their parts in "The Heiress" which opens tonight in the basement of Thompson Hall, Carolyn Brooks and Jim Rowland. Reading over her part is Betty Donaldson. The curtain goes up at 7:30.

"Heiress" Opens In T'son Hall Tonight

By Pat Combs

The curtain will rise tonight at 7:30 in the Studio Theatre, Thompson Hall, as the Morehead Players present "The Heiress".

Just what kind of a play is "The Heiress"? Well, it is a psychological drama; that is, a drama dealing with human behavior.

What is "The Heiress" about? It is the story of a girl dominated by father. Girl, overcoming dominance for a short while, falls in love with boy. Girl plans marriage to boy but must take a trip to Europe before the marriage can take place.

Why doesn't father dominate girl? Why doesn't boy stand up for his own rights and marry girl? Just why all this involvement?

Answers to these questions can only be found out by attending "The Heiress" tonight or any of the four other nights it will be presented, Dec. 10 through 14.

Who is in the cast? Playing the dominated girl is Joyce Brown. The dominating father is Dick Arrowood, and playing the part of boy (Man or Mouse) is Jim Rowland. Other cast members include Rudy Eisdwin, Leonora Thomas, Lavina Swan, and Gary Eldridge.

Where can you buy tickets? Tickets are priced at 75 cents and may be bought through M.S.C. Box 724, E. Bishop Drug Store; or by phoning 145, exchange 45. All tickets guarantee a reservation. Tickets will not be sold at the door so don't delay, buy your ticket today!

Alumni Reception To Be Held In Louisville Tomorrow Night

By William R. Wurst

A reception for alumni, students and friends of Morehead State College will be held in Louisville in conjunction with the Morehead-Bellarmine basketball game tomorrow night.

The reception, to be held on the mezzanine floor of the Kentucky Hotel, will be open from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. and for two hours following the game.

The Morehead State College Boosters Club is sponsoring the event. Around 200 persons are expected to participate in the reception.

Ray Adams, Fred Caudill and Earl Duncan are serving as co-chairmen in the Louisville area.

Carl Woods, executive secretary of the alumni association, and Ray Hornback, Director of Publicity and Publications, both worked with the Boosters Club contacting Louisville alumni and friends.

Morehead plays Bellarmine in the Louisville Armory, which is located only one block from the Kentucky Hotel.

Tomorrow night's appearance will be Morehead's only appearance in Louisville this year.

Fokey Hotel, will be open from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m. and for two hours following the game.

The Eagles are then idle until Dec. 27 when they travel to the South to participate in the Mississippi Invitational Tourney.

Saturday night's game is the Eagles' first OVC encounter. Morehead and Western split last year with Western winning at home and the Eagles winning on the Morehead floor.

A Christmas Ball, sponsored by the freshmen class and featuring Joe Bondurant's Dixieland "B", will be held Saturday night Dec. 14 in the Doran Student House.

The Christmas Ball will be held in the cafeteria of the Student House and will get underway at 8:30 p. m. and continue until 12 p. m.

The dance will be a semi-formal affair and admission will be provided for two bands. Bondurant will provide music for dancing throughout the evening and Morehead's own combo, the Imperials, will give a 30 minute floor show.

Bondurant, hails from Lexington and is a noted musician in the field of Dixieland music. He has played in New Orleans and night clubs, for banquets and country clubs.

The Dixieland "B" has toured over Kentucky and provides enjoyable evening dance variety.

Bondurant is now a student in the University of Kentucky School Pharmacy and is a member of the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity.

The Imperials will be on hand to provide a half hour show for intermission. They were received at their first appearance and provide enjoyable entertainment featuring acts such as Gary Link's imitation of Liberace.

Devotionals Held In Allie Young

By Pat Spencer

Each Thursday evening at 9:30 a short devotional program consisting of group singing, readings, and prayer is held in the lobby of Allie Young Hall.

This type of program is a continuation of the Thanksgiving Devotional which was held in the lobby of the Student House before the year left.

NOW LANDSCAPED—The beautiful new Doran Student House at Morehead State College, one of the finest in the South, has now been landscaped. The Student House is open from 7:30 a. m. until 9:30 p. m. and provides lounge and study areas for students as well as recreational and eating facilities.

Drive Carefully Over Christmas

A week from tomorrow we will again be on the highway, making our mad dash for home and our Christmas vacation.

For some students, leaving and returning to the campus will comprise only a part of the traveling which they will be doing over the holidays. A large majority will spend most of their Christmas days at home, and another in an effort to visit all their old friends during this brief respite from college life.

We have spent many weeks in meeting and making new friends, and it seems a shame to lose them only because they tried to make it to the "old home town" just a few minutes earlier.

Drive carefully faculty! Teachers are hard to find.

Drive carefully seniors! It won't be long until you graduate.

Drive carefully juniors! We look forward to have a senior class next year.

Drive carefully sophomores! You will soon be half through.

Drive carefully freshmen! You just got here.

Intramural Programs Are Needed

The athletic program at many colleges and universities in the United States could benefit by more attention to an intramural sports program. This thought was brought to mind by a recent newspaper story concerning Emory University.

Emory University is one of the largest and leading academic colleges in the Southeastern part of the United States. Located in Atlanta, Ga., it has an enrollment of about 4,000 students. It is not a poor school, comparatively—in its area—and a lack of funds is not the reason for its "different" athletic program.

Athletic director Tom McDonough does admit that Emory is against some of the practices that go with college football and other college sports. But he thinks that students at Emory get to choose from many sports, participate more widely, and that his program works in the best interest of all concerned.

It is interesting to note that the intramural sports program was inaugurated at Emory far back as 1897 and was singled out only a few years ago by the American Academy of Physical Education for a national citation.

While not criticizing any college or university, or any certain program, we think more emphasis should be placed on intramural sports in colleges and universities in the United States. If the good of the majority is to be considered, there seems to be conclusive proof that a properly organized intramural sports program benefits a greater number than over-emphasis on intercollegiate sports, particularly football.

Peace On Earth

The words of the song "Silver Bells" pretty nearly sum up the feeling most of us have during the Christmas season.

The hustle and bustle of the shoppers hurrying through the gaily decorated streets, the excited but somewhat doubtful expressions of children standing in line to talk to Santa, the Salvation Army carolers on the street corners, the manger scene in the churches—all a part of the busy activities. Then, too, there is a feeling of peace and brotherly love at Christmas.

As Christmas approaches this year, we are all wondering if it will be one of peace on earth; or if it will be the last peaceful Christmas for awhile.

The strife that is going on among the nations of the world is of vital interest to all; because whatever the outcome, it will affect each of us in some way.

In our Christmas celebrations this year, let's try to remember and visualize that night in Bethlehem nearly 2,000 years ago. Because of that night we have a Christmas to celebrate.

Because of the birth of a child that night, we have a free world in which to live.

The cradle, the Babe, the stable, the shepherds, the wise men, are not just fragments of a beautiful dream, but solid historical facts about people who once lived on the same earth as we do now.

So, as we enter into the Christmas season of 1957, let's remember that Christmas started with a cradle, not a tree and Santa Claus. And when we say, "Merry Christmas," say it as though we really mean it, keeping in mind that this is a season of "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

The staff of The Trail Blazer wishes each and everyone of you a joyous Christmas season and the best of wishes for a happy new year.

Remember, the highways will be crowded this holiday season so if you are going to be driving, make that one for the road a cup of coffee.

Some believe that in the very first engagement in its fight against segregation in public schools in the South, the Government licked itself—with its own bayonets.

"To save the U. S. from Communist domination, we must make heroes of our so-called eggheads instead of star football players," says a radio commentator. For 97.8 per cent of the people, that would entail an enormous sacrifice.

There isn't anything that will cure a flu hangover, either.

Local Stores Best Shopping Place

The Christmas shopping season has been open here for several weeks and business houses have in stock almost everything that local buyers will need or desire for the holiday season, with its flood of giving.

We would suggest to our readers that they make an effort to do their Christmas shopping at home this year. Surely, every time one of us buys from a local merchant, we add to the possibility of broadening the base of supply for future needs. Gradually, larger and larger stocks will be available to offer wider selections in connection with buying needs.

We have never attempted to persuade any reader of this newspaper to pay two, or three, times what anything is worth to buy it here. Now, do we know of reputable merchants who suggest as much. All that we ask is that we give our local merchants a fair chance to serve our needs. To this they are surely entitled.

Smoking Can Be Fatal To You

Dr. Clarence W. Lieb, who served for many years and is a famed adviser to one of America's large tobacco corporations, has written a new book concerning smoking. The profits of the book will be allocated to a fund for sending copies of it to libraries, schools and colleges.

Dr. Lieb earned his medical degree at Harvard Medical School in 1941. He has practiced in New York for many years and is famous for many medical achievements.

The message in his latest book is blunt. He admits that, heretofore, he had felt that it was advisable for cigarette smokers to adopt habits of moderation in smoking, as an answer to medical facts recently unveiled. Now he is convinced that this is a futile approach.

Smokers may as well face the facts, he says, that abstinence from tobacco is the only sensible reaction to the medical facts of the day and that even if you are a moderate smoker, smoking can kill you.

We are not attempting to sell books for anyone, not that Dr. Lieb needs any financial support, and he is not trying to tell any reader how to live his life. However, if he would like to read a frank discussion of the facts surrounding cigarette smoking—as Dr. Lieb, a noted medical authority, sees them—he might read this new booklet, entitled, "Don't Let Smoking Kill You."

Responsibility Lies In The Home

A recent article in one of our major newspaper weekly supplements, by Philip Wylie, gets our vote for the booby prize award of 1957. The article, which is well written and will convince many, puts the blame for teen-age crime and misbehavior on adults.

With that part of the article we agree, but we cannot agree with much else contained in it. The article claims adults have set teen-agers apart in a separate world, are insulting them and treating them with great indignity.

Further down in the article the author reports how he, as a teen-ager, carried some highly ill-remembered capers which amounted to juvenile delinquency, 1957-style.

We are not being priggish, for every American boy is guilty of having played some pranks on someone, but there is a difference between pranks and the problem of sadistic juvenile delinquency faced by America, especially in the big cities, today. It does little good to tell overly-soft teen-agers of his help. But the burden of responsibility lies in the home.

It is true that if parents would take the necessary time and care with their children, in training them, juvenile delinquency might be solved. The schools and churches can also help. But the burden of responsibility lies in the home.

MAIN STREET, U.S.A.

XMAS DESCRIBED

Christmas Is A Wonderful Season

By Ariene Shadrach

And the Angel said to her: Fear not, Mary, for thou shalt have grace with God. Behold thou shalt bring forth a son; and thou shalt call his name Jesus.

Christmas . . . what does it mean to you? Does it bring thoughts of hectic shopping, decorations, parties, a t-d family festivities? It should, because it is a joyful season. But at the same time, it is much more so. It should arouse in your mind and heart something deeply sincere, something strong, something very warm and very meaningful. Does it?

Take stock of yourself, and as you do, remember this: Christmas is the time to enrich your soul by being a better person to those around you, and by being unselfish. Forget about what you will receive and concentrate on giving to others. Give to the needy, the crippled, the poor. Give to those you love; give with joy, with thought, with meaning. Give to radiate the feeling of Christmas. Become enveloped, not only in festivities and merry-making, but in sincerity as well.

Attend your church and pray . . . lift your mind to the wonder of the church. Permit your heart to be opened and filled to overflowing with the music of the soul, for the joy of the Christ Child's birth. Believe in all that Christmas stands for; make a vow to protect your religion . . . have faith and trust. Pray, this Christmas season, for yourself and for peace throughout the world.

We feel that along with our religious part of Christmas each student should have a special prayer. We feel the following poem is an ideal students prayer:

A Students Prayer
By James E. Sweeney
Lord, grant me now an open mind,
Receptive, eager, quick to learn
The truths my teachers would impart;
Give me the wisdom to discern the truth that part of the article we agree, but we cannot agree with much else contained in it. The article claims adults have set teen-agers apart in a separate world, are insulting them and treating them with great indignity.

Further down in the article the author reports how he, as a teen-ager, carried some highly ill-remembered capers which amounted to juvenile delinquency, 1957-style.

We are not being priggish, for every American boy is guilty of having played some pranks on someone, but there is a difference between pranks and the problem of sadistic juvenile delinquency faced by America, especially in the big cities, today. It does little good to tell overly-soft teen-agers of his help. But the burden of responsibility lies in the home.

It is true that if parents would take the necessary time and care with their children, in training them, juvenile delinquency might be solved. The schools and churches can also help. But the burden of responsibility lies in the home.

There isn't anything that will cure a flu hangover, either.

The right way; give me the power
To concentrate; give me Your Strong light of Truth to guide me.

Through passages that seem obscure;
And let me know that You are near
When I must go to face a test;
Brace my every thought of fear;
Help me, Lord, to do my best.

Bless my teachers, Speak through them
In clear and loving words and give Them the selfless joy that comes From having helped a soul to live.

Help me retain what I have learned
And use the wisdom I possess
To reach my goal, to build a life
Of service and of happiness by catching a small fish.

Christmas is a time of year for fun and laughter, the tradition of receiving and giving, music in the air and love for our fellowman . . . last but not least the time of year for that very special food. We found a recipe we hope you will enjoy digesting:

A Seasonal Recipe
First, to the pudding add a cup of good will.
Beat until fluffy and ready to spill.
Next add a dash of gay Christmas decorations,
Together with oodles of children's aspirations.
Blend in the wonder of the great
Christmas Story.
Heat to expel all the bubbles of Chill with a blast of that brisk winter air.

Let it sit to thicken with
homage and prayer.
Then to maintain all that's happy and joyful, add a dash of green holly.
Garnish and serve with a sprig
of green holly.
Now since it's done and is ready
to make a house a home,
The recipe ends with a holiday greeting.

"Merry Christmas And A Happy
New Year To All!"

Spicer Delights Audience

By Lois Cornett

Earle Spicer, a popular American ballad singer, presented the chapel program Thursday.

Spicer opened the program with a short talk explaining the ballad. He said, "The ballad was written by the people of the people."

The first ballad which he presented was, "A Rich Old Lady who loved her husband dearly but another man twice as well."

The moral contained in this ballad was "crime doesn't pay." Spicer's introduction to his next selection was by Mr. Jones who realized that success by catching a small fish.

Following was an old English ballad, Barbara Allen. This concerned a young man who grieved himself to death for the love of Barbara Allen.

Janice Moore played the accompaniment for the next ballad, "Because I Were Shy."

An American ballad, "The Little Mohee" was Mr. Spicer's next choice. For his final number, Mr. Spicer was assisted by five boys from the Morehead State College concert choir. The song was from Glen Miller's U. S. S. Pinafire.

Chill with a blast of that brisk
winter air.

Let it sit to thicken with
homage and prayer.
Then to maintain all that's

Now since it's done and is ready
to make a house a home,
The recipe ends with a holiday

Chill with a blast of that brisk

Let it sit to thicken with

Then to maintain all that's

Garnish and serve with a sprig

Gladding's Tidings

By Don Gladding

It's rough all over this year, and the newspaper business isn't any different. Therefore, I had to add a column on the side. But what are you going to do? I hope to make a living at this someday. When your four years are over you can go out and get a job. I'll just have to go.

Word has it, that one of the headlines in the last issue of The Trail Blazer created quite a stir on campus. The headline went like this, "City Board Puts Ban On Parking." We were talking about automobiles.

On the serious side, have you noticed the numerous announcements which adorn the doors and walls of the Student House? They would be almost impossible to miss since they are hanging from everything but the ceiling. And I for one expect to see them posted there every time I walk into the building. A very interesting club program and something which would certainly improve the appearance of the building would be a Bulletin Board . . .

Another Christmas is upon us, and only 14 more days in which to complete our shopping. We almost everything else, we go down to the wire before we even start thinking about the way for the family and our friends. I suppose it is only human nature which makes us act this way. I imagine that all of us hope that the other one won't. From Bennett Cerf's "Good For A Laugh" comes this pun. As Noah remarks while the animals were boarding the Ark, "Now I herd everything."

Seems to be the only thing that can grab the headlines these days and coupled with the offers which our government is receiving from persons wanting to give up their space ship, I find it hard to part with a nickel in order to read about it. It isn't that I'm not anxious to visit our friends in outer space, but who knows, I may want to come back. And for the life of me, I don't recall seeing anything which will guarantee it . . .

Initial interest in Campus Dress-Up Week is being shown by the freshmen class in their forthcoming dance. The dance, which has been timely titled the Christmas "Dance," is a semi-formal affair and will be held in the Student House cafeteria on Dec. 14. By semi-formal, we mean that the freshmen men will be required to wear a coat and tie, and women will be required to dress accordingly. All others will be denied admission to the dance.

A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to you all. May your wishes be both safe and pleasant.

Letters To The Editor

4 December 1957

To The Editor,
We were informed tonight that the bowling alley would have to be closed during the broadcast of the basketball games in the Student Union Building this season.

It was my mistake in asking an individual, "Why this should be," that the bowling alley should be closed? This individual does as he is told, and a fine job of it.

The Recreation Room is closed on Sunday. Should this be? As any watcher of television can tell you that bowling has become a competitive sport, even on the day of the week, and the prize for the winner is money.

If the game of billiards is so wrong to be played on Sunday, why it should be, why should it be allowed during the week? This to many people is a game of skill.

Some church organizations have bowling teams. Sunday is the only day of the week that these people can find enough time to join in the game of skill and fun, and to be with their friends, that they are too busy to be with during the week.

Why, if the activities must be closed now for the broadcasting of the basketball games, why were they not closed for the football games that were broadcasted? Should one sport receive more favoritism than another sport?

"I REMEMBER"

From Mrs. W. F. Meyer, Milwaukee, Kansas: I remember almost as far back as the turn of the century, when it took 10 yards of calico to make a house dress and women, children, and teenagers, boys and girls alike, wore long black cotton stockings.

over the knees. Boys as tall as men were dressed in knee pants with black cotton stockings covering the rest of the legs. It was always a time for teasing and joking when the young man of the hour had a large mesh cloth, called a mosquito bar, to put over the baby to keep the flies away. We didn't need them to keep the flies away after fly swatters came in.

I was just a little girl, pre-school age, when the first ice cream social came to town. They were advertised: "Come in for ice cream, eat the dish and get a new excited we were to get down there and do just that."

In many homes, a large crock of old clabber milk brought up from the cave was a big treat for children as ice cream is today. We were so fresh vegetables in stores, but items as crackers, may beans, sugar and coffee—in large wooden barrels.

I can remember when the only ice was made up on the river during the winter time and the ice man and his wife delivered it all summer long.

I remember when the only fresh vegetables were raised by truck gardens near the river and peddled around the town every day. There were no fresh vegetables in stores, but items as crackers, may beans, sugar and coffee—in large wooden barrels.

on this campus respect and admire the effort made by our organization to give recognition to those who are worthy of it. A few, who are exceptions—not the rule, we admit—persist in ignoring this effort.

We are referring to the disrespect shown to the person selected last year as most worthy of the citizenship award given by the Open Forum Club. It has been noticed that there have been no inscriptions written on any part of the Doran Student House by any of the persons who wish everyone to know that they have been there. The tables in the grill are clean; why shouldn't such respect be shown to our citizenship award plaque hung in the lobby of the Doran Student House?

We wish to stress the point that we aren't insinuating that the person whose name is scratched on one of the brass name plates on the plaque committed this act. It could have been done only by someone who was acting as a so-called "big man" urged by several admirers of stupidity.

The purpose of this letter is to remind those students who feel the urge to do such a thing as we have mentioned here, that if a person is worthy of the honor of having his name inscribed on one of the name plates or of being honored in any other way, the fact should be brought to the attention of the proper authorities.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Former Citizen Recalls 1st Sports Teams At Morehead

Editor, the Trail Blazer:
I have read in your paper, as in all papers, that the football season has ended. The first football and basketball brought to Morehead—or at least the first I ever saw, came by your hand, of the old M.N.S. Put and Leonard Mounds from West Virginia owned the balls, along with baseball gloves, bats, mask, chest protector and boxing gloves; however boxing and baseball gloves were not new around town.

The first ball player I can identify was Albie Benfield who stands out from the rest of the old (and what I believe the first) because he wore a uniform and was the pitcher; this was before 1900.

The team had won on this particular day and some good sportsmen were setting up the drinks. This was a long time before Coca Cola had invaded Morehead, and the team was in the Mark and McDowney store drinking Wainwright pop (correct me quick). This pop was made with hops. The container was sealed with a rubber plug from inside the bottle. The plug was fastened on a twisted wire which extended about one and a half inches above the bottle neck; to open, you simply hit the end of the wire curley cue with the palm of your hand, thus knocking the plug down out of the back of the bottle. Simple, was it not? Sanitary, no! The drink, however, was delicious; three flavors to choose from. The team consumed many bottles of this brew.

Shortly after 1900 came the Morehead Reds, a teen-age team; Marion Pignam, catcher (face mask but no breast protector), Leary Trumbo, pitcher, little boy Robinson, relief pitcher, Walden Clayton, short stop, Charlie Shoemaker, first base and Conbie Anglin, second baseman and home run king. Later this became a men's team with a few players carried over. Mr. Peers, Cartwright, and Jack Tucker were added. Cartwright and Peers were experienced players before coming to Morehead. Tom Kentner, well known C&O Railroad conductor, once managed this team. Arthur Blair, Walter and Homer Nickels pitched for this team, taking turns according to who was available. Some players from Clearfield were used against still competing teams.

The best game played was on the diamond directly west across the road from Pine Hill Cemetery in the year 1909. Mt. Sterling was the opposition—Morehead won by a shut-out. On this occasion the team was treated to Cokes, all they could drink.

Clearfield had its own team: the Bloomer Girls traveling team. At Morehead every visit Morehead and Olive Hill games generally ended in a quarrel. Farmers had a good team, all men, save one—a boy named Frank Hagerman. What a player! He played in his "Sunday go to school" trousers. The first all came out with a team, all of whom were derby bats. This ball game was near the Mt. Goshart place by the creek, close to the dry oil well where Rowan County citizens sunk the first oil. The Ramsey Creek team was tough competition. The reason—a small man named Ramsey, a champion who pitched a fast ball. When he was named he was good; Batters could not hit him. Look off of him!

Boxing was done on a small scale around town for fun. Walden Clayton was a fast hard hitting slugger. Printess Boyd had some science in boxing, but the only really scientific boxer in the early days was Chris Swift. I believe he did do some professional boxing away from Morehead.

There was ice skating at the old baptismal house one block west of the swinging bridge. Before 1900, several young people had skates. Boys skated on their "never wear out Buster Brown shoes".

For young ladies only, there was roller skating on the new sawed stone sidewalk about 1900, maybe a little later. Ruby Powers fell and fractured her limb; she was the daughter of J. H. Powers whose store was on the west corner of Bishop and Railroad Street. Oh, yes: a city ordinance was passed the next day or two, prohibiting skating on the sidewalks.

Bicycle riding was probably the first track sport in the village. The bicycle club made a round cinder race track just for bicycles, west of the old Brinkley home, about where the Academy was later built. I can't name all the members, but some of them were Carl Vinton, Milton Mark, Frank Button, Jim Simmons. Jim Morgan was champion despite the handicap of a crippled foot. No old timer could forget Jim Morgan's photo shop or his bicycle riding. In those days there was no coaster brake. The bicycle riders would get a good start coming west on Main from toward the court house, put their feet on the handle bar just east of the Baptist Church, and coast west for at least two blocks; quite a feat back in 1897 or 1898.

So I have rambled on about sports until time is called, and that means cease play.

(Mr. Mark, remembered by most elderly citizens of Rowan County, is unable to get out of his bed at his home in Portland, Ore.)

FAIR AND WARMER

By Allen Wishart

OLD JED THOMAS grazed into the skies and informed the villagers what to expect. As far back as any old-timer could remember, Jed had forecast weather conditions, and once only had he miscalculated; that reckoning was in his favor.

On that morning, as usual, he gazed into the firmament overhead and predicted: Clear and slightly warmer; so, he went ahead with his plan, which plan was to call a-courtin' on Matilda Wainwright.

He hitched old Nancy to the buggy that would take him the three miles to the side of his ladylove. She would be sitting in the old rocker on her front porch awaiting his arrival.

Jed and Matilda had been a-courtin' for twenty three years. Jed was now 60, Matilda 63. Neither had ever married and the villagers couldn't imagine why they hadn't taken each other for "bestest or worstest".

Old Nancy with a dragging left hind foot kicked up a powerful lot of dust in the road. Matilda could see that swivel long before Jed drove into the front yard.

Jed climbed the first two steps without effort, but always he had to grasp the railing to mount the third and last one. With a wheeze he plumped into the rocker.

Matilda never failed with her first question:

"What's the weather like, Jed?"

"Clear and continued warm," he replied.

"Your prediction and my rheumatism ain't workin' in cahoots," said Matilda, allowing a slight twitch as pains shot through her knee-joints. "That dark cloud over there in the Southwest is causin' me misery."

"I hadn't noticed that 'un," said Jed, he was looking and examining it closely.

"It 'pears to be gettin' bigger and bigger, wouldn't doubt it ain't!" to pass right overhead.

"Humph!" grunted Jed. "It's beginnin' to roll. Ain't that a tall hangin' onto 'im?"

"It is," replied Matilda, "nervousness assertin' itself."

A blinding flash of lightning caused them to blink, followed by a thunderous roar that shook the countryside. Forgetting her rheumatism, Matilda bounded to her feet, Jed doing likewise.

"I got time to put Nancy in your barn afore it hits," running like a hobbled animal, he united Nancy from the hitching post, then led her and the buggy into the out-building. The stillness was oppressive as he closed the barn door. The latch had barely caught, and started running toward the house when the blow struck.

He opened the door and entered the kitchen. Matilda was standing beside the water hand-pump at the sink. Neither spoke. It would have been useless, the roar of the cyclone would have drowned any outcry.

There came a sudden s-w-o-o-s-h, the house shuddered, the roof lifted clear and crashed into the yard.

Ten minutes later, the roar of wind abated, horrific silence prevailed as two old souls huddled wide trembling arms around each other.

"Matilda," said Jed, scarcely above a whisper, drawing her a mile closer. "Reckon the Lord was takin' care of His own."

"Yes, Jed," replied Matilda, she also, clinched tighter.

There was a moment's pause. "Reckon He always has a purpose," spoke Jed.

"I reckon," replied Matilda. "The barn is still standin'," helping Matilda to her feet. "Wainwright nor the buggy wasn't hurt. It ain't far to the Bramble-Briar meetin' house. The preacher's home is right beside it. I predict that we—"

The prediction that Jed had predicted for years was coming to pass.

Methodists Hike Their Membership

Membership in The Methodist Church in the United States and its possessions has passed the 912 million mark.

The Rev. Albert C. Hoover of Chicago, director of the statistical office of The Methodist Church, reported that during the past year church membership increased from 9,444,820 to 9,566,629. This figure includes the denomination's 26,972 clergymen, but does not include 1,382,207 baptized children listed as preparatory members.

While the church gained, the Methodist Kentucky Conference suffered a net loss of 269 members, reducing total membership to 74,975. The conference includes churches in 60 Eastern and Central Kentucky counties.

The statistical report shows 30,359 organized churches with an estimated value of church buildings, equipment and land of $2,217,026,518.

The Kentucky Conference includes 492 organized churches with estimated total assets of $206,204,147 according to official conference statistics.

The Woman's Society of Christian Service now has 31,259 local groups and Methodist men now have 10,195 chartered clubs, according to the national figures.

TRAFFIC DEATHS

Officials of the National Safety Council have estimated that the 1957 death toll may be 1,000 less than last year's total of 38,600 if present figures continue. During the first ten months of this year, about 31,350 persons died on the nation's highways—about 800 less than during the same period of 1956.

RECORD REVIEW

Record Entitled "Raunchy" Now On The "Big Box"

By Julie Wilson
Real "Raunchy" that's the title of the newest of the new. It and several other records are the arrivals on the "big box" on the grill. This record has been tagged already as one of the hottest disks of the year, even more so than any of Elvis' or Pat's. It has been selling faster than any record that has come out this year.

It is a great favorite of the jukeboxers because the tempo isn't fast and yet it is not too slow, just right to cut loose and dance. Bill Justice, playing a mean sax, together with the rest of the boys, has come around with a real dandy.

Now that Jerry Lee Lewis' big hit, "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On," has moved down the list a bit, it looks as if he's made another one that is going to take off and go places. The title of this little disc is "Great Balls of Fire." It doesn't exactly remind one of a ditty but, ditty or not, he's got another one that is fast becoming a favorite of the jukeboxers.

Several other new records that seem to be taking top positions in the grill are "You Bug Me Baby," "Bony Morony," "Fitty Bitty Pretty One," which incidentally is not real new but it has just been put on the jukebox, and "You Send Me." Odd names? Yes, but who cares about the name, just so it's got what it takes (and these have) nobody's worried about "the"itty bitty bony morony, who bugs me?"

A couple of other records that have been on the top for several weeks and are still going strong are, "Melody Amour," "Daddy Cool," "Twelfth of Nove," "Wonderful, Wonderful," and "Hear My Plea."

Music is the only language in which you cannot say a mean or sarcastic thing. This holds especially true during the Christmas holiday. Every song brings to us the spirit of the season. Here are the songs that are becoming popular again and the new ones that are becoming favorites. Of course the traditional songs should be mentioned first.

Songs such as "Santa Claus is Coming to Town," "White Christmas," "Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer," "Winter Wonderland" and all of the ever popular Christmas carols. "Blue Christmas" and "Silver Bells" are favorites again as is "Mary's Boy Child" by Harry Belafonte. Lawrence Walk has a new X-mas album using his whole program. Of course Perry Como as usual has a top selling album of Christmas carols.

The biggest Christmas disk to hit this season is "Have a Merry Christmas" written by TV personality Ruth Lyons of Cincinnati and sung by Ruby Wright. "Rudolph" written by the traditional carols will be popular and help to add to the feeling of Christmas as only music can do.

Poems, Poems, Poems

Arlene Shadrach and Judie Wilson
Twice The Night before Xmas
(with apologies to Clement C. Moore)
Twice the night before exams and all through the house,
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The young folks were strewn by the fire with books
In hopes that 'twasn't as bad as it looks;
The teachers were snuggled all snug in their beds,
While visions of failing grades danced in their heads,
And the 'teens in their jeans with coils in their laps
Had just settled their brains with no thinking caps;
When out on the porch there arose such a clatter,
They sprang from the couch to see what the matter.
When what to their wondering eyes should appear,
But a great big machine to make their minds clear,
More rapid than eagles, the kids, they all came,
And it whistled and shouted and called them by name.
Now, Patsy! Now, Joe! Now, Alice and Harry!
No, Constan! On, Sally! On, Donna and Larry!
And then in a twinkling I heard in the hall,
And I drew the door shut and was turning a ball;
Down the stairway, the teachers came with a bound.
A bundle of nerves, they said they were,
And they looked quite angry, but did not stir.
Their droil little mouths were starting to ask,
What is this noise and have you finished your task?
The stamp of their feet soon gave one to know,
The "kids" and their friends were all in tow,
It made not a sound but went straight to its work,
And filled in the answers: then turned with a jerk,
It pointed a lever toward the door;
They knew right away they'd see it no more;
And all of a sudden there was a great roar,
This great machine went straight out the door,
But I heard it exclaim, as it rolled out of sight,
"Happy Xmas to all, and to all a Good Night."
In this modern age of scientific marvels, we thought you might enjoy reading this poem we came across.

He signals the training on his face,
But his entrails grimace.
The cash register clears its throat
And shows its sovereign banner in eyes.

In mocking thanks,
Thus he sits, this man
Whose soul is in a box
Whose bottle has belched rude wisdom
On a million frozen heads;
And circled by their abandoned
leaves
He sits alone
This movement master of his cells.

Staffer Gives Advice On Xmas Shopping

By Pat Combs
As the Christmas season rolls around, the major problem that threatens our usual comeliness is shopping! Since you didn't do your shopping last spring, I am here to offer you some suggestions on how to beat the crowds and keep your head.

The first suggestion I have to offer is in the way of attire. The perfect outfit would be a suite of armor and a sword to fight your way through. Since this is out of date, a football outfit with helmet, knee pads, shoulder pads, and so forth is simply perfect.
The best way to come about such an outfit is to beg, borrow, or steal.

Well, now that you are dressed,
you are ready to venture forth.
You are comfortably dressed to beat the crowds. The old saying of "When in Rome, do as Romans do," applies but definitely here-you are dressed like a football player so you can act like one. You run through the crowd as a pro would and reach your destination. Or, another way would be to make like a football and roll down the street.

Whew! Well you are in the store now, that is if you followed my advice. Your next and last problem is to get waited on. The old quote will apply here, too.
So when you get what you want after probably knocking over a few dozen people, just tackle a clerk.

Ah yes, just follow these three steps and you will have Christmas shopping in the bag, or you will be in the bag!

MARCH of DIMES

YOUNGSTERS HELP—January is when Teens Against Polio show their fund-raising talents for the March of Dimes in Kentucky. Talking tactics and strategy are leading TAP figures: Patty Hicks, National Chairman, Bill Mowry, Kentucky Teen Chairman, Louisville, and Joe Waterfall, Anchorage, Jefferson County TAP head. Bill is a senior at Eastern High School and is working with teens from all over the state on coming special events for Polio. Last year Kentucky's teens raised $30,000 for the March of Dimes.

Book Store Offers Variety To The Christmas Shopper

By Patti Murphy
The Book Store has much to offer Morehead Christmas shoppers. Various selections of games, stuffed animals, and clothing are available.

The stuffed animals and the sweat shirts have Morehead elements making nice gifts for MSC students and for friends at home. New games now at the Book Store help build knowledge as well as providing fun. The atmosphere of the Book Store will put you in high Christmas spirits. In the window is a complete toy train set. The locomotive continually circles a cozy little town covered with snow.

Hot-Shooting Marshall Dumps Eagles 85-77; Byrd Tallies 36

By William Randolph Ward
After failing to snare a single victory in six previous meetings with Morehead, Marshall clipped the Eagles 85-77 at Huntington last Wednesday night with an amazing shooting performance. Especially amazing was the firing of Leo Byrd, who pumped in 38 points on 13 field goals and ten free throws. However, he was ably supported by Jack Freeman, who collected 17, and Hal Greer, with 16.

Taking the lead at the outset and never relinquishing it, Marshall hit a whopping 55 per cent of its field-goal attempts. In the second half, it connected on a hard-to-believe 63 per cent.

Meanwhile, Morehead was having a cold night as Marshall bottled up its three big men—8-7 Steve Hamilton, 6-7 Dave Keleher, and 6-8 Bernie Shimmfessel. The Eagles' shooting percentage from the field was just 37.

Morehead, however, outbounded Marshall 50-34 after Hamilton, an All-American candidate, scored 21 points and did Keleher. Both did it on eight field goals and five free throws. Shimmfessel tallied 17.

Playing a slow, deliberate game, Marshall led 7-1 after four minutes had elapsed but Morehead closed the gap to one point at 12-14 with 11 minutes left. Here, Marshall started hitting and built a 44-35 half-time lead.

Morehead, however, rallied twice in the second half but never was able to catch up.

With three minutes gone, the Eagles snatched their first lead with two points at 48-46 but Marshall perked up again and led 76-60 midway of the second half. Once again, Morehead made a run at Marshall and narrowed the gap to three points at 78-74 with three minutes left on the clock. Marshall, however, quickly retaliated and pulled away.

It was Marshall's opening game of the season. It was Morehead's second. Last Monday night, the Eagles beat Villa Madonna 92-77.

Byrd's shot of her two and a half day holiday. "It was interesting for me and I really enjoyed it."

Smiling, she said that she would like to go again sometime.

A total of 203 people representing 49 different countries were present for this annual occasion. Students originally from another country and who are now attending Tennessee and Kentucky colleges were invited to attend the Retreat.

Included in each day programs were discussions on religion and their relationship to Communism. Fifty minutes of each day were devoted to "A View of the World Today." Friday evening featured a program of International talent. At the end of the week, students were presented to people of the Hindu, Moslem, Zoroastrian and many other faiths.

Adding to the gaiety of the occasion were those students from India, China and the Philippine Islands who were dressed in their native costume.

This Retreat is sponsored by Baptist Student Union organizations in Kentucky and Tennessee colleges.

Morehead Downs Villa Madonna In Sluggish Opener, 92-77

By George Stevens
(Trail Blazer Sports Editor)
The Morehead Eagles got off to a sluggish start in their season opener as they defeated Villa Madonna 92-77 in the fieldhouse. The highly favored Eagles played listless ball with their fast break failing to work against the Rebels. Unable to break through the Villa Madonna offense, the players turned to sophomore guards Herb Triplett and Ken Meyer. The "Gold-dust Twins" came through with amazing form as they poured through long shots with phenomenal accuracy.

The Rebels also played a listless first half scoring a total of 30 points. The second period was a different story. The Villa Madonna offense exploded closing the 21 point gap to four points by tying the well-publicized Eagles.

Center Larry Staverman was the big gun for the Rebels as he snatched the nets with a total of 30 points making him top scorer for the evening. The big Rebel was highly outstanding in the rebounding department as he cleared the boards of a majority of the 41 rebounds for Villa Madonna.

Rebel captain Jim Meyer was another star in the Eagles side with his fine playmaking. Between the fine play of these two, the Rebels made a strong comeback in the second period.

With two minutes remaining the Eagles offense swung into high gear over powering the Rebels by a 15 point margin.

The loss of two regular starters was probably an important factor to consider when evaluating the Eagles offense. Guard Ken Thompson and forward Dave Keleher were unable to play because of injuries.

Morehead's outstanding forward Steve Hamilton turned in a fine game leading the team in rebounds with a total of 21. He was second highest scorer for the Eagles scoring 21 points. Center Bernie Shimmfessel was high man with a total of 22 points for the evening.

Sports Rumbblings

By George Stevens

Trail Blazer Sports Editor
The men's volleyball tournament got off to a fine start last Tuesday night with eight teams participating.

The turn out and enthusiasm shown by the players and fans of the great need for more activities such as this in the future. The success of the volleyball intramural program is due to the efforts of coach Jerry Winger who recruited the players for the team.

It is our hope that this program will carry over into other popular sports.

On December 11 the Eagles travel to Louisville to play Bellarmine at the Army.

A reception sponsored by the Boosters Club will be held in the Kentucky Hotel for all students, alumni and friends of Morehead. The reception is to be held on the mezzanine floor.

Bellarmine Foe of Eagles In Louisville Tomorrow Evening

By William Randolph Ward
Morehead's highly rated Eagles, with a current record of two wins and one loss, go after their third win of the young season tomorrow night in Louisville against Bellarmine College.

Bob Laughlin's Eagles are fresh from a 78-60 win over Ohio University last week.

Morehead looked like anything but a champion for a half against Ohio University Saturday night but caught fire in the second half to break the game wide open.

The Eagles hit on 27 of 56 attempts from the floor Saturday night for a fine 48 per cent shooting average and once again showed their rebounding strength as they recovered 41 rebounds while limiting Ohio University to 35.

The Eagles' 6-7 All-American, Steve Hamilton, led in all departments as he poured through 18 points and collected 24 rebounds.

Ken Thompson, a scrappy 6-1 guard who holds the Ohio Valley Conference high jump championship, came into his own with 18 points and a fine all-around performance after missing most of Morehead's first two games with a leg injury.

Laughlin is a little leary of the good-sized Bellarmine quintet as the Louisville school has made great strides in the past few years and is one of the rising basketball powers in Kentucky.

"We beat Bellarmine 95-72 at Morehead last year," said Laughlin, "but not before they had given us a real run for our money. They have good size and shooting ability and we're not selling them short."

Laughlin is expected to start Hamilton and 6-7 Dave Keleher at the forwards, 6-8 Bernie Shimmfessel at center and Thompson and 6-8 Ken Meyer at guard.

Hamilton is currently the Eagles' top scorer after the first three games with a 20.3 average. Christensen, Ind. product, Steve has hit 48 per cent of his shots and is averaging 21.3 rebounds a game.

Keleher, who teams with Hamilton to give Morehead one of the finest forward combinations in the nation, is currently hitting at an 18 point a game clip with an average of 10 rebounds a game.

The third member of Morehead's towering trio, Bernie Shimmfessel, has an average of 16.6 points a game as he has hit 52 per cent of his shots and collected 11.6 rebounds a game.

Sophomore guard Ken Meyer from Mt. Sterling is the Eagles' fourth highest scorer with an even 13 point average. A deadly set shot artist and fast driver, Ken has hit on 58 per cent of his shots from the floor.

Rounding out the five Eagles hitting in double figures is Thompson with an average of 10.5 points a game. Ken has hit 46 per cent of his shots from the floor.

The Morehead Booster's Club is sponsoring a reception for all alumni and friends of Morehead State College at the Kentucky Hotel before and after the game. Refreshments will be served.

10 Teams Compete In Intramural V'ball

By George Stevens
(Trail Blazer Sports Editor)
The men's volleyball tournament got underway last Tuesday, Dec. 3, with 10 teams competing.

The teams participating in this year are the Morps, Draftes, Rinkydinks, Campus Club, Outlaws, Steamrollers, No Name, the Newman Club, the Veteran's Club, and the Faculty.

In the first game of the evening, the Morps defeated the steamrollers 13-3, 13-15 and 15-13. The rest of the play went as follows: Draftes over Outlaws 15-11, 15-10; Rinkydinks over No Name 15-3, 15-7; and the Campus Club defeated the Newman Club 15-11, 15-10.

The competition was quite keen and much interest was shown in Tuesday night's play. "I was well pleased with the interest and sportsmanship expressed by our first tournament play," said Jerry Winger, intramural director.

The second night of play was just as interesting as the first, with all ten teams participating. The schedule was: Newman Club vs. Draftes, Rinkydinks vs. Steamrollers, Vets vs. Campus Club, Morps vs. Outlaws and the Faculty vs. No Name. Because the Trail Blazer went to press previous to play Newman 15-3, 15-7; and the Campus Club defeated the Newman Club 15-11, 15-10.

Society Co-Editors Are Serious As Yuletide Season Grows Near

By Arlene Shadrach and Judie Wilson

At the present time everyone is thinking about the long Christmas vacation not too far away. Of course we hope everyone will have an enjoyable holiday but we don't want you to forget entirely about the school activities. It appears that everybody at Morehead State has gone basketball crazy. But, how many of us are really supporting the team? Now is the time to exercise our vocal chords and cheer up 'OUR team.

Remember, we can't have a winning team without support. In order to have that winning spirit the team must know that the entire student body and faculty is behind them. The "eagles" are proved to be a winning team last year and with our support they can win again.

Come on, fans! Let's show our true Morehead spirit and help the fellows and coach reach their goal. Basketball season is just getting underway and if you haven't gone to a game yet, be sure to attend the next one. Get together with your favorite friends and cheer the team on. Remember, we have a home game the day after we come back from vacation. Meet you at the game!

Speaking of Christmas, we know many of the fellows and gals have a difficult time in deciding what to buy each other for Christmas. We hope we can help you along by offering a few suggestions.

First of all to give or not to give is the question. However, only you can determine what to do in this case. We can only suggest what to give.

Secondly, we have the question as to mind of what to give. Both the fellows and gals, in this case, can use a little strategy on each other and talk about things they like. Maybe someone has a hobby you can help add to. Single records and record albums are always a favorite gift in this category.

Girls, you can please the fellows with a "cool" tie or set of cuff-links for casual or dress wear. Also on the "masculine" gift list

WHAT FORM?—Or maybe we should say... what? form? But at any rate, John Hargis is utilizing the fine facilities offered in the Doran Student Union recreation room at Morehead State College. The bowling alleys shown here are open from 2:30 p. m. until 5:30 p. m. every week day.

gift list" are the following suggestions: a set of after shave cologne, the popular stretch belt with initials, a brush set in a leather kit, a travel kit, gloves, wallets, a matching tie and socks set, casual sweaters and sport shirts with that ivy league look, if he plays cards, a set of good playing cards would please him. However, no matter what the gift is that you give him, he'll be pleased to know you did remember him with something on this special day. Just to know it's from you will make him feel "mighty proud".

Fellows, the gals are really as hard to please as you may think. They are just as satisfied with something small than something that is quite expensive. In fact, an expensive gift may tend to embarrass them a little. On the feminine list of gift ideas are the following suggestions: A bottle of her favorite perfume, lipstick in a jewel case, a pretty scarf to wear on her head, a collar for her sweater, a piece of jewelry... all girls like jewelry, a pair of gloves, wallets, a set of handkerchiefs, a pretty sweater or blouse... she likes the ivy league look too, last but not least, we know many of the girls collect stuffed animals and nothing would please a girl more than to receive a "cute" animal from her favorite "beau". You know fellows, if you're lucky, she might name that little stuffed animal after you!

We hope these gift suggestions have helped you in some way and that we may have helped you solve a problem.

The true Christmas spirit came early for Phyllis "Hoot" VanHoose. Some weeks ago when Karl Oscar Gren, author of "Destination: America", visited our campus "Hoot" was in the lobby and we feel she should be recognized for her kindness. We know you will enjoy hearing about the incident one of your fellow classmates experienced.

Mr. Gren stayed in the guest room of Field's Hall. Seeing that he had no soap he asked "Hoot" in the hall and asked her if she knew where he could buy some. Displaying her best "Morehead hospitality", she gave him a bar of soap and he in turn thanked her.

A short time ago "Hoot" received the following letter from Mr. Gren showing his appreciation for her kindness:

November 28, 1957
Miss Phyllis Van Hoose
Student Morehead State College
Morehead, Kentucky

Dear Miss Van Hoose:
I am today sending you a copy of my book "Destination: America" as a token of appreciation for helping to "keep me clean." But while I was a guest speaker at your college you very kindly loaned me some soap. Again, many thanks and hope you enjoy my story.

Sincerely,
Karl Oscar Gren

P.S. You will find the book which I am sending to you at the library.

Fashion—
Bad, red everywhere we turn. What could be more colorful and cheerful than the color red for this joyous holiday season. It's gayest than black, more versatile than pink, and easier to wear than white. Yes, red will be seen everywhere: sweaters, skirts, blouses, coats, and of course we can't forget red shoes.

Also popular for social functions this holiday season will be the new hi-fi plaids, keyed-up colors for the very gayest occasions.

Girls Dorms To Celebrate With Parties

By Jerry Ball

Allie Young Hall will celebrate Christmas with a party for the girls Tuesday, Dec. 17th after dorm hours. Three girls have been nominated to be Santa Claus and the girls will vote and decide which one is to be the "giver of the gifts."

The girls have already drawn names and naturally it is supposed to be kept a secret until that night whose name they drew. They set a limit of one dollar as the amount to be spent for the gift.

Entertainment will be furnished by dormitory talent and refreshments will be served. The lobby will be decorated and each girl is requested to decorate her door. There is to be a prize given for the best door decoration.

Fields Hall is also having a Christmas party but the giving of gifts is of a different nature. Each girl is to bring a gift for a small child which will be given to a child from a needy family.

The gifts are going to be wrapped with only the name of girl or boy on the outside and perhaps an age if the gift is for a child of a specific age.

The Christmas tree and all the decorations will be in the lobby and each girl is decorating her door. The entertainment will consist of telling of tales and spinning of yarns.

Refreshments will be served, compliments of Mrs. Hill.

French Club Meets And Sees Film

By Janice Moore

The French Club held its second monthly meeting on Nov. 21 in the basement of Thompson Hall.

The members of the club learned a French song, En Roulant Ma Boule, from a short film shown by Mr. Leachfield, and following the film "The Morehead Players" were invited to join the French Club in a social hour.

After the social hour, both clubs enjoyed a movie based on the French novel, Les Misérables, by Victor Hugo, which tells of the common man's plight in an elite society. Charles Lawton and Fredrick March played the leading roles.

The next club meeting will be held on Jan. 9.

ADAPTED FROM THE BEST-SELLING NOVEL
"THE MAN IN THE GRAY FLANNEL BURNOUSE"

YOU ARE INVITED—The Morehead Methodist Church, which has completed an $85,000 building and expansion program, will show their new quarters at open house Sunday from 1 p. m. until 5 p. m. The public has been invited. The open house includes tours of the completely renovated sanctuary, educational building and basement. This picture was taken in a new Sunday School class room. Mary Northcutt is the teacher.

Methodists Are Proud Of Their New Building

The Morehead Methodist Church will hold "Open House" for all members, former members and friends Sunday afternoon from 1 until 5 o'clock. A tour of the newly finished $85,000 educational plant and the remodeled sanctuary will feature the day.

Morehead Methodists began an extensive renovation and remodeling almost two years ago under the leadership of Rev. Donald Durham. An educational plant for the church offices, Sunday school rooms, nursery and choir practice rooms were added. The sanctuary was enlarged, air conditioned and redecorated.

The contractor recently completed his work and the men of the church, under the leadership of J. Roger Caudill, chairman of the building committee, and William Owsley, chairman of the official board, cleaned, papered, laid tile and painted in order to make the church a modern house of worship.

The ladies of the church will start a busy weekend with a bazaar Saturday afternoon in the basement of the church. Homemade candy, hand painted trays and various handicrafts will be offered for sale.

Five members of the Frank C. Button Future Teachers of America Club, Clyde Carter, Sharon Pennington, Helen Thomas, Glenda Thomas and Ina Clo Trent, and the sponsor, Mrs. Luster E. Black, attended a workshop held at Eastern State College Nov. 22.

Fifty hundred high school and college club members were present. The meeting was very inspirational and educational. There were consultants from both the NEA and KEA present to help with the workshop. There were also guest speakers from other states.

An Ideal Christmas Given By Student

By Nadine Carver

There's no place like home for the holidays.

Every student will return home to celebrate Christmas in his own way. But, if he could be granted an ideal Christmas, there are some basic traditions that he could not omit.

What would Christmas be without... glowing candles sending out a friendly warmth... youngsters hanging their stockings from the mantle, anxiously awaiting Santa's arrival... opening gifts on Christmas morning and watching the delight and pleasure of others as they open their gifts... grandparents, grandchildren, aunts, uncles and cousins gathering in for Christmas dinner and leaving only a skeleton of a once huge and tasty turkey.

A combination of these traditions would indeed make up an ideal Christmas.

Christmas story read once again... attending a Christmas pageant, candlelight service, or midnight mass at the church of your choice... wrapping gifts and leaving them under the tree on Christmas Eve... an abundance of mistletoe hanging at every strategic point... holly wreaths hung in windows and on doors... glowing candles sending out a friendly warmth... youngsters hanging their stockings from the mantle, anxiously awaiting Santa's arrival... opening gifts on Christmas morning and watching the delight and pleasure of others as they open their gifts... grandparents, grandchildren, aunts, uncles and cousins gathering in for Christmas dinner and leaving only a skeleton of a once huge and tasty turkey.

A combination of these traditions would indeed make up an ideal Christmas.

POLL KATT

By Jenny Ball

This week's question: What do you want Santa Claus to bring you?

This week's answers:

Garry Walker—"A Rock and Roll Mama!"

Betty Johnson—"A man about 17" tall, blonde hair, blue eyes, and heavy eyebrows!"

Everett (Moose) Stafford—"A trip to Bluefield, Virginia!"

Why-Who will be there Moose? Jim Ed Wyatt—"Some one to Send Me!"

Katie Atkins—"A ticket to Tampa!"

Joe P. Tackett—"36-34-38!"

Carol Hillis—"A Sputnik all of my own—By the way what is a Sputnik?"

Bill McMichael—"I want a tiny tears baby doll that takes a bottle and wets its pants!"

Mary Janis Halsey—"To be a year older and a sophomoric!"

David Spurlock—"A woman with nothing on her mind but a lota love!"

Phyllis Fannin—"U.S.S. Forestal!"

Peggy Vanderpool—"I already have a Santa Claus... (but Don has been called worse.)"

Bruce Howard—"Two new room mates who don't go steady!"

Jeannette Perry—"A boy with blue eyes and the prettiest smile you have ever seen this side of heaven!"

Charles (Birdseed) Rice—"I wanna lota lovin'!"

Karen McCurdy—"A big teddy bear like 'Trudy' to keep me warm."

Pete Gray—"A little bittie pretty cnel!"

Skip Jamerson—"Stan Kenton's trombone player"—Himmmmm.

Jimmy Vance—"Some black dye so they won't be able to call me Blonde!"

Men of Mens Hall—"We want to be able to clap our hands twice and have wine and dancing girls appear." (They sure are dreamers aren't they!)

Betty Sizemore—"A whole lot of everything but not much of anything!"

Sue Ann Plummer—"Why—just tell Santa Baby that a baby blue Cadillac will do!"

Most after-dinner addresses represent nothing but good practice for the speaker.
