

Prof. Henry Haggan, 80, Dies Unexpectedly

Prof. Henry C. Haggan, 80, one of the most widely and favorably known men in all of eastern Kentucky, died early Tuesday morning at Baptist Hospital in Louisville.

Prof. Haggan suffered an apparent heart attack and was rushed to the intensive care section of the Louisville hospital but failed to rally. He was attending a State Farm Bureau convention in Louisville when he became ill Monday night.

The end was unexpected as Prof. Haggan was in apparent excellent health, and active in community affairs in Louisville when he became ill Monday night.

He was best known as the pioneer in restoring and cleaning cemeteries throughout eastern Kentucky. About 40 years ago, Prof. Haggan, noting his own varied travels that many cemeteries were grown up in weeds, headstones fallen etc., decided to correct these burial place neglects.

Starting in Rowan County, he organized cemetery improvement associations, mostly composed of survivors of people buried in the many rural cemeteries. Much of the restoration and beauty of the cemeteries was restored by volunteer labor and contributions.

The cemetery improvement plan spread to other counties and eventually to over 100 eastern Kentucky areas. Prof. Haggan went into those sections at his own time and expense, and helped organize virtually hundreds of the cemetery improvement groups.

Prof. Haggan was also available, without compensation, to area farmers in planning their crops, fertilization and reclamation of land, and other progressive agricultural programs. He made many trips to counties in this respect.

Besides formation of cemetery associations, and his work in agriculture, Prof. Haggan had another strong dedication. This was to the American Red Cross. He believed that most emergency disaster programs should be directed by the Red Cross, and made many speeches in this respect. He served for 10 years as Chairman of the Rowan County chapter of the Red Cross, and helped formulate the regional blood bank programs.

Alert and civic minded until being stricken late Monday night, Prof. Haggan took an interest in progressive movements of Morehead and Rowan County. He also furnished considerable material to a Morehead Publisher for incorporation in a planned book, "Characters in Rowan County's History."

Prof. Haggan and this was the name nearly everybody knew him by was born July 5, 1893 in Nicholasville, Ky. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees at the University of Kentucky. Prof. Haggan served as Principal of Perryville High School from 1919 until 1923.

When Morehead State University (then Morehead State Normal School and Teachers College) was founded by the 1922 General Assembly, its first President Dr. Frank C. Button, hearing of the outstanding job that Haggan was doing at Perryville, persuaded him to join the Morehead staff. He has since lived at Morehead, his residence being at 358 University Boulevard.

MSU records show that Prof. Haggan served as Acting Dean in 1930 and 1931; and a period as overseer of Thompson Hall, then a men's dormitory.

He was best known among Moreheadians as a cheerful and learned person; always willing to volunteer his services for his fellow man and a knowledgeable conversationalist. He was most often seen with one or the other of his grandchildren who were among his greatest loves.

In the 1930s Prof. Haggan formed the Morehead Agriculture Club composed of students studying agriculture at the University. This group, at a nominal cost to the club members, through college, landscaped most of the lawns and gardens in the Morehead area. The club remained active until Prof. Haggan's retirement.

Prof. Haggan was an active member of World War I and served several months overseas. He received numerous awards during his lifetime for outstanding service in the agricultural field on campus. After retirement, he continued his work with various organizations.

He was active in 4-H Club work for more than 40 years and in 1955 the State Department of Agriculture honored him with the "Service to agriculture" award. He also was honored for distinguished service to soil conservation.

In 1964 the Morehead Kiwanis Club recognized him for outstanding community service as a citizen and teacher, and in 1964, he received a comparable award from the Morehead Lions Club.

The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce selected him as "Teacher of the Year" in 1957 and the National Red Cross honored him in 1959 for 10 years of service as Red Cross Chairman.

Prof. Haggan married Pearl Harmon, who survives at the Morehead home on University Boulevard. Other immediate survivors are his daughter, Mrs. Mary Caldwell (Haggan) Phillips, whose husband is a professor at MSU; a grandson, Nelson Phillips, and a granddaughter, Cynthia Phillips, who reside in Morehead.

Funeral services are scheduled for 10 a.m. Thursday (today) at Lane Funeral Home with Rev. David Cook officiating. Burial will be in Perryville Cemetery at Perryville in Boyle County.

Pallbearers are Roy Corneite, William Whitaker, Adrian Razer, Paul Mills, Robert Bishop and Kenneth Vencil.

The family requests that expressions of sympathy take the form of contributions to the Henry Haggan Scholarship Fund at Morehead State University.

FUNDS FOR LIBRARY... A check in the amount of $2,115 from the Kentucky Department of Libraries was received last week by the Rowan County Public Library. Mary Dawkins of Carlisle, regional librarian for the Buffalo Trace Area, is pictured presenting the check to Ollie Barker, member of the Rowan Library Board, while Mrs. Frankie Calvert, librarian, looks on. The funds will be used for purchase of books, periodicals and library materials.

Grist & Grits

By Olin Miller

"How are people taking the necessity of reducing their standard of living because of increasing shortages and rising inflation?" - asks a commentator Grumblingly.

There's no question whatever about it now. President Nixon should resign or he should be impeached! Jane Fonda says so.

It is said "the baggy look" is the coming style for woman. No gentleman would remark this will be no new style for some women.

"A Tree Hurts" - Pamphlet issued by the Department of Documents. A tree doctor would likely tell you many trees that complain of pain don't really hurt - K they just imagine they do.

Now that the shortage of fuel has suddenly overtaken us, medical science should get busy at once to develop a cure for the peculiarly American affliction, namely, itching feet.

A 109-year-old Fresno, California man says he is determined to live to be 165. An addiction to living becomes more compulsive as the years pile up.

Undoubtedly President Nixon has stated so many times that he positively will not resign that by now he has fully convinced himself.

A sociologist outrageously low-rates the human race by saying people are naturally violent. Why, the misanthropic so-and-so? He should be publicly horsewhipped!

Another hazard in marrying is that the long run a person is risking being murdered. Statistics show that about 60 percent of murders result from marital quarrels.

Whether something a person says or does is politically motivated depends upon whether it is a politician. If he is.

A fool almost always takes a decided and usually pugnacious stand on any controversial matter. It is extremely rare that he sits on a neutral fence.

If Mother Nature gave birth to the sun and the moon at the same time, as most scientists believe, an all-time record must have been set in the birth of a twin, as the moon is only one-fiftieth as large as the earth.

Two Acquitted Of Wilful Murder

After deliberating for about one hour Tuesday, the jury returned a not guilty verdict in the murder trial that began Monday morning in Rowan Circuit Court and concluded shortly after noon Tuesday.

Freud of the wilful murder charge were Eugene Strode, 28, Winchester; and Wendell McCarty, 20, Olympia. They were indicted in connection with the shooting death Jan. 27 of Arthur Moore, 65, Rowan County. The shooting took place behind Moore's home on Arthur Creek off Ky. 32 and stemmed from an argument among the three men.

In testimony, the defendants claimed the shooting took place in self-defense.

Henry Rosenblat and Michael Rowady of Winchester represented the defendants in the case. A total of 18 defense witnesses were called to the stand during the trial.

Seven persons were called to testify for the prosecution, with Commonwealth Attorney James E. Gray representing that side.

Also, during court this week, charges against seven persons were filed away. Those named in true bills and the charges were:

- Carl Riser, grand larceny
- Billy Crouch Jr., failure to comply
- Hayward Johnson, failure to comply
- Billy G. Muse, uttering worthless checks
- Jackie Adkins, storehouse breaking
- Glennis Lacy, forgery

Lake, a 1970 graduate of University Breckinridge School, is a member of the ROTC Ranger Company and the Pershing Rifles Drill Team. He received a two-year ROTC grant and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen L. Lake of Flemingsburg Road.

+ Eldon Kilgore, failure to comply.

The R.L. Wells Lumber Company, Inc. case set for this term of court has been continued to the March term. The firm was named in an indictment of March 1972 on a charge of maintaining a common nuisance.

In other Court action, Wayne Wilson pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct and was fined $250 and costs. The charge was amended from detaining a woman to disorderly conduct.

Butch Lowery was sentenced to one year after pleading guilty to trafficking in a controlled substance. Motion was made for probation.

William Keith Burkhardt, charged with grand larceny, entered an innocent plea and the trial set for March 13.

Robert Cunningham and David Allen Thompson pleaded guilty to charges of trafficking in a controlled substance. Cunningham was fined $3,000 and Thompson was sentenced to one year. He made motion for probation.

Five additional petit jurors were selected last Wednesday to hear cases during the November term which concludes Friday. They are Mrs. Jacqueline Goldberg, Cleo Hale, Ross Porter, Mrs. Elizabeth Martindale and Arvid Jennings.

OBSERVING... Steve Bruno, a senior at Transylvania University where he is majoring in pre-med, is observing under Dr. Andrew Moore, a plastic surgeon, at St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington. He will complete his pre-med requirements in January. Steve is married to the former Jackie White, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Watt White of 106 Lyons Avenue, Morehead.

New Drivers Licensing Program Is Planned

Rowan Circuit Court Clerk Wathan Armstrong and Deputy Clerk Kathy Williams will attend a meeting from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday (tomorrow) at Carter Caves State Park to familiarize themselves with a new computerized renewal program that soon will affect every licensed driver in Kentucky.

Circuit court clerks and their deputies from throughout the district are expected to be on hand to receive instructions from state officials regarding procedures to follow in establishing the program.

The system, which will eliminate temporary licenses, will begin to operate in January of 1974.

The computerized system will send a pre-renewal notice by mail to each Kentucky driver license holder. Sent in the month prior to the person's birthday, the notice will inform the license holder that his license has been reprinted and will be available at the circuit court clerk's office on the first day of his birthday.

The license holder will be instructed to keep the pre-renewal notice and present it to the circuit court clerk for his license. This preprinted license will be the permanent license until it expires. The waiting period and temporary licenses, part of the old system, have been eliminated by the computerized system.

Starting in January 1974, new applicants who successfully pass the written and road tests will receive a preprinted permanent license.

Governor Acts On Behalf Of Aged, Blind, Disabled

Gov. Wendell H. Ford has taken action to assure that some 13,000 aged, blind and disabled Kentuckians will not suffer a decrease in income.

The Governor has approved state supplementing of income to those persons whose monthly payments would have been decreased in January, 1974, under a program known as Supplemental Security Income.

Under the new Federal program a flat fee would be payable to all eligible recipients.

Kentucky's program has been based on individually determined needs.

The majority of those persons who would lose income under the new program, without state assistance, are those in personal care homes and other special living arrangement situations.

Governor Ford noted that to refuse to provide these persons with the same level of income they had been receiving would result in forced institutionalization for most.

Applications will also be accepted from aged, blind or disabled persons not currently in the program who require special living arrangements.
'It is my goal to assure every Kentuckian an ability to remain self-sufficient in their own homes wherever it is humanly possible,' the Governor said. He noted that his reorganization of the Department for Human Resources had this as its high priority objective. 'Not only are we allowing our aged, blind and disabled to retain a sense of human dignity, but we are also reducing the overall state costs at mental health and geriatric facilities,' the Governor said.

State supplemental cost will total $7.4 million of which almost $6.0 million or 81 percent is attributable to recipients in personal care facilities.

Family Insurance Coverage At All-Time High In Rowan

Compared with people in many other parts of the country, residents of Rowan County are relatively well protected, financially, in the form of life insurance. Per family, their coverage is at an all-time high. They have also been safeguarding themselves in other directions by increasing their health insurance, household insurance, automobile insurance and the like. Of particular note, however, is the extent to which they have been adding to their life insurance holdings in recent years. The total amount held by local residents, as of the beginning of this year, is estimated at $75 million. Details on the number of policy holders and their participation are given for each of the states and for the United States as a whole by the Department of Commerce and the Institute of Life Insurance. They show that overall ownership of such insurance, nationally, has passed the $1.6 trillion (yes, trillion) mark. That is $122 million more than in the previous year. The total in force in the state of Kentucky alone, according to the reports, is $19,574 million. This compares with $9,162 million in 1963. In general, it is found, the amount of insurance carried by a family is directly proportional to its income. The total held by the average family in the state, according to the latest figures, is equivalent to 22.6 months income, after taxes. Related to Rowan County and to the average income in the community, life insurance holdings are estimated at 106,050 per family. That is about double the amount that most families had ten years ago and is considerably more than in many sections of the country. It adds up to a grand total of $75 million for the local population as a whole. The major part of it is in ordinary life insurance. Next in point of volume is group insurance, which is usually issued to business firms for the benefit of their employees. Adding to their insurance coverage is but one way that local people have been moving to protect themselves financially. They have also been adding to their cash savings and keeping closer control on their expenditures and debt.

Portable Replica Of Fort Harrod Will Travel State

A log cabin-like, portable Ford Harrod will soon take the story of Kentucky to Kentuckians. The Exhibition is sponsored by three corporations, the Harrodsburg Board of City Commissioners and the Mercer County Fiscal Court.

The mobile educational unit "will be a permanent facility to inform people about Harrodsburg and its historical heritage," said Gene Royalty, Mercer County Bicentennial chairman.

"Corning Foundation, Hall Mack Division of Texton Corp., and the Esalon Corp. each contributed $4,000 to make construction of the 30 x eight foot unit possible," he said.

The exterior of the unit will be built of Michigan pine logs to give it a rustic log cabin appearance. "A mobile home chassis and its realistic Ford Harrod make it a natural for parades," said Royalty.

The interior of the unit will feature six educational areas of Kentucky heritage. With the touch of a button, a coded relief map will depict each stage of Kentucky settlement, development and industrial progress.

A replica layout of Harrodsburg will highlight points of historical interest.

A replica Shaker town layout, pioneer tools and cooking utensils, Indian artifacts and Shaker items will in separate display cases.

For And About Teenagers

your week ahead by DR. A.W. DAMIS

Forecast, Period: December 9 to December 15, 1973

ARIES Mar. 21 - Apr. 19
"Things were different in the 'good old days.' Your sign will be touched by the 'ever so beautiful past' so, look for an event that takes you into the long ago!"

TAURUS Apr. 20 - May 20
If you don't touch the rope you won't ring the bell. It's all that simple! During this week's cosmic cycle — temptation will play a major role.

GEMINI May 21 - June 20
A person's greatest strength is shown by simply having to stand still. And you, Gemini, must resist the urge to make a snap decision concerning the opposite sex.

MOONCHILD June 21 - July 22
You must avoid being dominated by a personality stronger than yourself. Actually, you are entering a period when you might be deceived, easily.

LEO July 23 - Aug. 22
Errors and miscalculations crimson your chart. The point? Avoid taking shortcuts and the boredom that's part of repetition. Over now, come home to roost.

VIRGO Aug. 23 - Sept. 22
Being over generous is one thing; robbing Peter to save Paul is something again. Apparently, you'll be carried away in an attempt to please one person . . . at the expense of another.

LIBRA Sept. 23 - Oct. 22
Watch what you say at large! Apparently, in an unguarded moment, you might betray a loyal friend's confidence. So, control the way you talk.

SCORPIO Oct. 23 - Nov. 21
Self-centered associates will oppose your plans. Menus' settle for half, if you can't get the whole. In other words, placate! Tack with the wind!

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22 - Dec. 21
For the wait of better words, you might be caught in a conflict of interests. Your chart shows: A possible clandestine meeting or activities shaded with intrigue.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22 - Jan. 19
Don't ponder about plans that are now underway. Keep the fire going in your boilers. It's "Damn the torpedoes — full speed ahead!"

AQUARIUS Jan. 20 - Feb. 18
It's no big thing, but a large organization, in one form or another, will dominate this week's activities. Oh, yes! Don't lose the Holiday spirit!

PISCES Feb. 19 - Mar. 20
Stellar patterns tell it like it is! You are prone to inaugurate a personality clash among your associates. Curt the urge to provoke trouble.

The Rev. J. Hubert Johnston, minister of Faith Presbyterian church, has resigned as pastor to accept a position with the General Executive Board of the Presbyterian Church, effective Jan. 1, 1974.

The congregation of the church, at a meeting Sunday, agreed to concur with Rev. Johnston in his resignation and named a committee to look for a new pastor.

Members of the Pastor Search Committee elected by the congregation at its Dec. 2 meeting are Dr. William Bigham, Miss Linda Houts, Allen Lake, Dr. and Mrs. Warren H. Proudfoot and Dr. Richard Jeser.

Rev. Johnston will serve the Presbyterian Church, U.S., as its Regional Communication Executive in the Synod of the Mid-South, which includes Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi. The Johnstons will move sometime next year to a community more central to the territory he will serve, possibly a city in Alabama or Tennessee.

Rev. Johnston came to Morehead in 1966 as the first resident pastor of the newly-organized Presbyterian congregation here. Since 1971 he also has served as an associate executive of the Presbytery of Transylvania, with responsibility for the direction of the Christian Service Ministry in eastern Kentucky.

MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1973

No. 49

HOT CAR . . . This car exploded into billowing flames outside Frankfort recently when hit from behind at only 5 mph. The burning car carried a small can of gasoline in the trunk. No one was killed because the cars were empty. The explosion was a demonstration set up by state Fire Marshal Warren Southworth to show the dangers of carrying spare gas cans in car trunks. "The plastic gas cans many are putting in their trunks," Southworth said "are illegal in Kentucky and have been for years. Moreover, it's just very, very dangerous."

Transporting Extra Gas Hazard To Motorist

By Marty L. Adkins
 The energy crisis may blow up in our faces this winter — quite literally.
 That is the warning of state Fire Marshal Warren Southworth.
 Carrying and storing gasoline in unsuitable containers, Southworth said, is not only dangerous but illegal. He pointed out that "there is no safe way to transport extra gas in a private vehicle. Kentucky statutes say that delivery of gasoline or diesel fuel shall not be made into portable containers of five-gallon capacity or less, unless the container is of sound metal construction and has a tight closure with a spring-loaded or screw cover, and is so designed that the contents can be poured without spilling." This requirement alone will almost eliminate the transportation of flammable liquids in a private car.
 Storage, he added, also comes under stringent rules. "The only instance in which storage of gas inside a building is legal is when it's being used in industry, and then the limit is one day's supply in one-gallon containers. The penalty involved is a $10 to $500 fine and up to 60 days in jail, on each count, and both the buyer and the seller are liable."

Dangers Pointed Out

Southworth pointed out that flammable liquids expand and if your car gets hot from the sun, and you have a couple of five-gallon cans of gas in the trunk, it'll put vapors in your car. Lighting a cigarette or even turning on the lights can ignite the vapors and cause an explosion.
 "The danger of fire or explosion is also great, he warned, if a car carrying spare gas in the trunk is hit from the rear. "You're endangering two vehicles, not just one — yours and the one that hits you." The car's own gas tank, he said, is safe because it is vented to the outside, filled from the outside, and shielded by layers of metal. Few fires result from the car's tank.

 According to Southworth, gas hoarding isn't the only dangerous practice going on in Kentucky because of various fuel shortages. Keeping the home fires burning can mean death and destruction if it involves the use of dangerous heating devices or safe ones improperly installed.

Proper Venting Needed

Charcoal burned indoors without proper venting, for instance, can give off enough carbon monoxide to result in death, he says. Six such deaths have occurred already, because a family in Quebec brought an outdoor charcoal burner indoors for extra warmth but added.

Improper venting and faulty pilot lights are also dangerous — and illegal — for gas and fuel oil heaters. Among other things, the fire marshal noted, a gas heater must not be vented through a brick chimney that does not have a tile liner.

Gas fumes deteriorate brick-and-mortar structures and can cause the chimney to collapse. Accidents have also resulted when people whose fireplaces are purely for decoration try to build real fires in them, he said.
 Southworth warned that wiring should be checked before using electric space heaters. Many houses are not wired to accommodate them.
 And if there are small children around, he stressed, be especially careful with any heating device. "Kids today have been raised in central heating. They're likely to turn heaters on or get too close. And remember, those little dresses and nightgowns can catch fire."

Elliott Sheriff Ousted

The venture of County Judge David Blair of Elliott county into politics as an official bidder, has been unusual and almost immediately decisive. The events —

+ Judge Blair was elected Nov. 6 for a full four year term as Judge.

+ On Nov. 15 County Judge Neeshy Adkins, Jr. resigned to enter private business.

+ Gov. Wendell Ford appointed Blair to serve the remaining seven weeks of Adkins' term, after which Blair will be sworn in for a four year term.

+ On Monday of this week Judge Blair ousted Herpal Ison as Sheriff. Ison had been the Elliott county Sheriff for the past six years.

Judge Blair issued the order Monday forfeiting the office of Sheriff Ison; and then appointed Glen Joe Simmons as Sheriff. Simmons was elected Nov. 6 as the democratic nominee and without opposition, and was scheduled to be sworn in for a four year term on Jan. 1.

"This may be the most important decision I'll make during my term as County Judge," Blair told newspaper reporters.

No Bond Since 1971

Ousting of Sheriff Ison came as a shock at Sandy Hook, the county seat. Citizens, including Elliott politicians, contacted by this newspaper, said "no politics was involved."

Ousted Sheriff Ison made no comment. Judge Blair said he searched the records and "found that Ison had been serving as Sheriff and collecting taxes since at least May, 1971 without being under bond."

The Judge made no allegation about any money shortages in the Sheriff's office but pointed out that the law requires the Sheriff, as custodian of taxes, "to always be under an acceptable bond."

"I looked over several audits and all available records," Judge Blair said, "I then told Ison about the matter and he didn't have anything to say."

Judge Acted Promptly

When Elliott Fiscal Court met Saturday, Judge Blair called to the attention of the Magistrates that the "Sheriff hasn't been under bond until at least from 1971" and indicated the forfeiture of office order would be issued.

"In conformity with the oath I took as County Judge, I had to make the move," Judge Blair told newsmen.

Ison was appointed Sheriff in 1967 when the former Sheriff resigned. Ison was then elected to a four year term as Sheriff, and this term would have expired Dec. 31. But, Judge Blair didn't wait after he said he found that Ison had been collecting taxes without posting the mandatory bond.

She is a member of the Beta Club, Theaspians and has been on the Student Council for four years. Teresa is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown of Rt. 2, Morehead.

Holidays Bring Fire Horrors

By Marva Gay
 Christmas holidays bring cheer to most everyone but horror stories to State Fire Marshal Warren Southworth.

"We're headed into the worst part of the danger season — the Christmas holidays," said Southworth. "Most wrapping paper, electric lights, candles and Christmas trees are extremely flammable. Add to that the winter heating hazards already present and you've got a ripe situation for disaster."
 "November, December and January are the most dangerous months because they're the coldest and the holidays pose hazards at a time when many people become more careless," he said.

Last year, during those three months, 46 persons died in 1,164 fires in Kentucky with reported damages of $6 1/2 million. Last December, the most dangerous month, 21 persons died in Kentucky fires, Southworth said.

"Many persons are planning to use flame retardants on their Christmas trees which work on fabrics, paper and even dry grass but which probably will not work on the Christmas trees. Most trees just won absorb the solution," he added.

"Some chemicals which may be mixed with water are recommended for flameproofing but some of these mixtures don't work," said Southworth.

He pointed out that the only foolproof method involves totally immersing the trees in a chemical solution and then allowing them to drain and dry indoors.

"I'm recommending extreme caution and no live Christmas trees unless you're absolutely sure they're flameproof and that's rare," added Southworth. "I suggest flame resistant artificial trees instead."

SAFER TURNPIKE — The Kentucky Turnpike, which will become a part of the federal highway system in 1975, will undergo extensive resurfacing and repairs to eliminate hazards. Safety improvements on the road include the elimination of blunt guardrail ends and installation of less hazardous sign and utility poles.

Lewis County Paradise Sold To World's Fair

By Helen Price Stacy
 "A 500-acre garden paradise was once a part of Lewis County during the lifetime of Alexander Shaw Jr., a 19th century horticulturist."

Shaw was born in Pennsylvania in 1814, but settled in Lewis County near Quincy while still a young man. He then devoted his entire life to the growing of flowers, plants and tropical fruits.

His farm, which became known as Shaw's Paradise, contained acres of exotic flowers and plants including a 20-year old fig tree. Rare vines covered the house in which he lived.

Shaw lived the life of a monk — surrounded only by bees, birds and flowers. He never married and even dressed in medieval-style robes.

Shaw as a man of family means, but he did not profit monetarily from his experiments and work. He was a mind and heart with a single track — that of laboring with his hands to see what he could grow.

"He delights in multiplying curious growths and combining nature and art in wonderful forms," stated a newspaper clipping of 1878.

"He calls his large colony of bees his children and the birds that feed from his table his little angels. The birds follow him through the walks and take the berries from his hand," it continued.

Mrs. Eliza Davis Gash, who was born on Shaw's land, is one of the few remaining Kentuckians who remembers Shaw's Paradise.

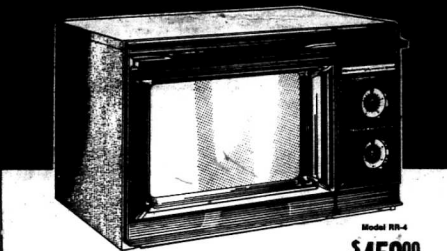

"At Christmas time when all around was dull and drab, he had all kinds of flowers and pretty bushes," she said. "In winter he covered his fig tree with boards and dirt."

Mrs. Gash said the 500-acre paradise was sold after Shaw's death in 1888. The new owners cut away all the bushes and flowers and sent the bulk of the garden to St. Louis

Carter Citizens Will Restore Sellers' Home

By Sue Anne Salmon

Pigeons will no longer roost on the third floor of the once stately Carter County home of Matthew Sellers; Kentucky's aerodynamics pioneer.

Local citizens, with help from the Kentucky Heritage Commission and Sellers' two sons, plan to restore the now vacant house designed by Sellers and built in 1894, near Grahn.

At a recent meeting at Carter Caves State Park, citizens met with members of the Kentucky Heritage Commission and aviation historian Edward Peck to discuss the fate of the rapidly dilapidating house.

Peck advised the group of 25 persons about plans of Sellers' sons to give the house and five acres of wooded ground to the community if the residents would restore and maintain the estate.

Peck, who is writing a biography of Sellers, also discussed the scientist's early studies of arched surfaces, wings, propellers, wind tunnels, gyroscopic forces, lateral balance and aerodynamic resistance of solid bodies.

Studied in Europe

Sellers, born in 1869, in Baltimore, Md., studied aerodynamics in Europe, returned to the United States and earned a law degree from Harvard and took special courses at the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard and at Drexel Institute in Philadelphia.

He prospected and mined for industrial grade diamonds in Carter County and built several large hydrogen balloons and homemade kites before 1902, when he began to devote all his time to air research.

In a shed now used to store hay, Sellers built a full-sized wind tunnel which Peck describes as the most advanced such laboratory of the time. He also designed and flew a quadroplane glider which he later equipped with a 10-horse power engine.

Although the Wright brothers were airborne before Sellers, his quadroplane design indicated a completely different approach to flying. Therefore, Peck noted, he used none of the Wright's ideas.

In 1908, Sellers constructed and used the first retractable wheel for an airplane. He also designed his own efficient propellers using materials from the wooded hillsides surrounding Grahn.

In 1912, President Howard Taft appointed Sellers to the Aerodynamical Laboratory Commission, and in 1915, President Woodrow Wilson appointed him to the Naval Consulting Board as a representative of the Aeronautical Society of America.

Injured in Crash

Until his death in 1932, Sellers continued with aerodynamics research. He built a completely new airplane in 1925, but three years later, his plane crashed in New York, and he was badly hurt.

Carter County residents have now formed a committee, headed by Lorraine Woods and Ralph Lewis, to determine how to best develop and maintain the historic Sellers estate.

Milton Thompson, chairman of the Kentucky Heritage Commission, suggested that the committee form a foundation to receive the gift of the estate from the Sellers brothers and to apply for restoration funds from the commission.

Thompson, an architect, described the house and its site as "impressive." Restoration could be achieved easily and economically with local labor, he said.

If the state Department of Finance okayes the project, Thompson added, matching funds can be obtained from the federal government under the 1966 Historic Restoration Project.

And Peck assured the group that artifacts and furniture of sellers could be borrowed from the Smithsonian Institute if the house is restored and maintained.

Mrs. Simen Willis, executive director of the commission, stressed the importance of preserving "not only ideas of the past, but physical remains as well."

Weekly Meditation

There was a European monarch who worried his court by walking incognito among his people. When he was asked not to do this for his own safety he answered, "I can not rule my people unless I know how they live."

We have a God who knows the life we live because He lived it too. In the first Christmas morning God became man. He lived a real flesh and blood life, no different from our own. Jesus went through everything we must go through. By personal experience He knows the sufferings, sorrows and struggles of life. And He came through that ordeal unstained by any blemish or blunder.

The best person to guide you on a journey is one who has traveled the road before you. The best person to help you through a trial is one who has come through it triumphantly. Jesus can help you because He knows it all. He went through our experiences.

This is the true meaning of Christmas. Because Jesus knows our life He can give us sympathy, mercy and power. He brought God to us. Now we can go to God through Him and find grace to help in our times of need.

Morehead Girl Scouts will carol on the steps of the Post Office at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 11. After caroling, the scouts will walk to the Methodist Church for refreshments.

They are urged to note the change of meeting place.

SHOP AND SAVE ALL-WAYS

Diary-by-day job-embeds, and editorial observations of the publisher of this newspaper.

In this newspaper business there are some arguments that can result in some difficult, embarrassing and difficult to retract reporting miscues. One happened in this over-worked Publisher in these difficult times when if you operate a successful business the Interstate Commerce and Department of Revenue are knocking at your door with "Gimme, Gimme all you got."

The Monday morning before the last general election we wrote about how attractive and good looking two of the women aspirants for Mayor were. Specifically referring to Barbara Barker and Lola Belle Blair. That statement was not incorrect because both are just as pretty and talented as we wrote that they were.

Although the article was before election day it did not appear in this column until after the election so nobody could claim that this female oriented Publisher was providing free advertising or playing favorites in a race that had 13 candidates.

In our haste to meet deadlines we failed to mention the other lady who was a candidate for Council — one of our most favorite persons ever. That was, or is, Eleanor (Ellie) Holloway And, Mrs. Holloway was elected, almost leading the ticket.

We had not recognized the oversight until Friday evening. If Holloway was the emcee at the 10 year award dinner for St. Claire Medical Center (picture elsewhere in this issue) at which this apologetic Publisher was a speaker, intruding this Publisher, Ellie referred, with some emphasis, but without bitterness, to the column in which we had said so many nice things about Christine Barker and Lola Belle Blair, without mentioning her.

We were so flustered that it darn near messed up our speech. This was a fox pass (fox pass) we'll never be able to live down or soon forget. And, that was it to one of our very favorite people. Today, we want to put in print, and hope that Ellie hasn't canceled her subscription, that we think she's just as pretty and everything else as Christine and Lola Belle. Further, Ellie was elected.

Maybe you'll think we're trying to save wounds when we say that Mrs. Holloway made a fine master of ceremonies at the 10 year award dinner. You don't have to take our word for this, just ask a hospital employee, or anybody at the dinner.

In introducing every speaker and conferring the 10 awards, Ellie mixed charm and wit with grace in a fashion that only a good looking and learned lady can. She had some nice things to say about this Publisher besides mentioning our unpurposely biased story about Christine and Lola Belle Blair.

We thought perhaps Ellie's best emcee recitation concerned Dr. George Barber. Mrs. Holloway said that in her capacity as the head of the following patients and services offered at St. Claire that she recently visited Crockett in adjoining Morgan County.

During the visit her patient, and elderly farmer, said "And, you're from Morehead. Do you know Little George Barber there?" Ellie thought and replied: "I don't know any little George Barber in Morehead, but we do have a Dr. George Barber. She (the time recognizing Dr. Barber as the Ivy League type.

"Oh, I heard he went away to one of them medicine schools," the elderly patient said. "I'll tell you, though, where he really got his education. It was in that school there (Crockett) across the road when you see Little George tell him I said hello."

Because of the energy crisis, Morehead State University has placed in force all kinds of regulations: thermometers at 68 degrees, sharp curtailment of travel, turning off lights etc. A feature story about the regulations is scheduled to appear elsewhere in this issue, but the newspaper shortage is forcing our marketing department to delete all kinds of good news so it might get left out. Last issue they darn near whacked this column to the death.

Through all the years that Lums Fair was Registrar, the one office always open on Saturday at MSU was that of the Registrar. This was sort of a religion with Mr. Fair. The energy cutback closed the Registrar's office last Saturday. A MSU PHD friend remarked "If Lums (now retired in Florida) hears about this he'll think the whole institution has gone straight to hell."

The movement in Washington is to put us on daylight (last) time the year round. Heck, it doesn't get daylight these days until after most of us have had breakfast. Morehead has been able to show us how daylight time will save energy or fuel. We can make a strong argument that it'll require more electricity and gasoline.

Shoplifting imposes a "hidden tax" of $150 a year on the average American family. A study made by the Mass Retailing Institute of New York disclosed that last year, 148,525 persons were arrested in 1188 stores (one sixth of the nation's total; on shoplifting charges. Another 3000 store employees were arrested for theft.

The reported loss in discount stores alone amounted to $845 million or 2.56 percent of sales. Retailing experts say this is much more than the stores can absorb, and so is reflected in higher retail prices. More juveniles than adults were apprehended, but the proportion of adult shoplifters is much greater than previously believed.

In all regions except the south and the Pacific coast, far more women and girls were apprehended for shoplifting than men and boys.

The nation's tax for processing checks and money runs about $10 billion a year. Since the mid-1960s, the number of checks processed has jumped from 16 to 23 billion and the amount of currency in the economy has grown nearly $20 billion, the American Bankers Assn. says.

It takes 10 "hands on" steps to process the average check and the processing costs about 16 cents a check. By 1980, total check volume is expected to top $1 billion. More than 72 percent of all checks handled are written for less than $100 and represent 2 percent of total dollar volume. Five percent of all checks handled are written for more than $1,000 and account for 92 percent of all dollar volume.

The fingerprint is taking its place alongside the signature as a means of positive identification and this is of substantial importance to business. A Trenton, N.J. firm, Base Ten Systems, Inc., whose main business is telemetry, has just gone into making voiceprint equipment in association with Lawrence G. Kersta, of Somerville, N.J., who led in the development of the voiceprint while working for Bell Laboratories. Myles Kranzler, president of Base Ten, sees a big long-range market for the system in law enforcement, medical diagnosis (particularly in psychiatry), industrial security, political security and bank robbery prevention.

The most celebrated business use of the TV telephone was in connection with the TV-telephone interview in which Howard Hughes denounced as a fake author Clifford Irving's "autobiography" of the reclusive billionaire Kersta was called in and his sound spectrograph supported the interviewing reporters' contention that the TV-telephone voice really was that of Hughes.

Other business uses of the voiceprint have been to identify persons who make bombing or extortion threats against companies. Use of the phone and, occasionally, to identify voices under other circumstances important to the company management. Ninety percent or more of bomb threat and extortion phone calls come either from disgruntled ex-employees or crackpots known to the police," Kersta said. "In either case, it's not hard to make a list of the suspects and acquire their voiceprints for comparison with the threatening calls. This is much the case that sometimes a mere announcement that the company has called on a voice-print expert is enough to stop the threats.

A Swedish psychiatrist says that false teeth may harm your sex life. Dr. Arne Melgren told a dentists conference that especially women feel that they grow less attractive with a set of false teeth and even find kissing a problem. "To many people, the loss of their natural teeth signifies that they have grown old. Many also fear that they will be ridiculed, and they will suddenly drop their artificial dentures in public," Melgren said.

Daylight Saving Time (DST) may ease the energy crisis, but it has produced at least one shortage of its own — a scarcity of information about its total impact on the nation.

In June, five months before President Nixon asked Congress for power to put the United States on year-round DST, the transportation department said it was not certain about how effective the change would be.

But it did take a survey in hopes of finding out. The survey included "consultations" with the department's own experts, the Federal Power Commission, the Office of Emergency Preparedness, and "private organizations."

The results indicated that year-round DST "would reduce nationwide demand for electricity by not more than 1 to 2 percent." Part of the problem of assessing year-round DST is that there has been no information collected on the subject since World War II when the nation last made use of the "fast clock."

Given the great boom in electrical appliances in the 25 years since the end of the war, the transportation department says it is uncertain as to the effect of DST on today's world and that the department's estimate may not be accurate.

Britain is the only nation which has used year-round DST in recent years. The law was in effect from 1968 to 1971, but was dropped in the face of strenuous objections from residents of Scotland and Northern Ireland, who, living farther north than the residents of England, objected to the late sunrise in winter, caused by all-year DST.

Proponents of the idea argue that it could cut the highway death toll. Under the present system of six months of standard time and six months of daylight time, much homebound-bound commuting is done in darkness. Drivers need the added daylight at night because they tend to be more fatigued and also drunk more often at night than they are in the morning.

Obviously, DST in winter would mean that more of the morning rush hour would take place in the dark, and could increase the morning rush hour fatality rate. But the proponents say this increase would be offset by the much greater decrease in night-time accidents.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration said the auto accident death rate in Britain dropped during the 24-hour daylight time experiment by more than 10 percent. But it says there is not enough

SUNDAY'S SERMON

The Happy Habit For a new lease on life, try waking up happy each morning. It works and lasts all day. So many of us wish we could be more cheerful and happier. Many of us envy people who seem to have "happy habit" about their lives. Too many of us waste our time worrying about unimportant things and getting angry over small matters.

What's the best way to stop worrying and stop getting mad? Well, it isn't too hard, but it requires some discipline. Decide that you see life from a different angle. You may not see the joyous and cheerful side — the side that makes you glad to go to work and neither will the ex-penses and the bills disappear, but with the "happy habit" you will be easier to live with, and other people will discover you are easier to live and work with.

Come on, try to be happy — you'll be surprised how many you won't have to try anymore, because it will come naturally — as God intended it.

DIETS ARE FOR PEOPLE THICK AND TIKED OF IT.

The November issue of The Kentucky Press (Voice of the Kentucky Press Association) had these two gems — "The government must be thankful that taxpayers have what it takes." "If you don't like your job, don't worry. Somebody else will."

Back in early September this column hinted that this year's burley crop could be about the poorest quality in history. With the first sale Monday everybody seems in agreement. The average grower harvested about 2,100 pounds to the acre which is 500 pounds less than last year which was considered an "off" season.

The Publisher's orchids this week are conveyed to District Conservation Officer Marland Crawford. He has done everything possible to stop the virtual destruction of the deer herd in the Cave Run reservoir area, being on duty around the clock. Mr. Crawford is one of them good public officials. Dedicated officers are becoming scarce.

Poor man's misery, rich man's delight! That's our confirmed conclusion about all these shortages. The big petroleum companies will make a financial killing with all the price increases.

There's a growing feeling in thinking and informed circles that many of these shortages are industry inspired, sort of like that alleged meat shortage when it was all designed for the packers to get big price increases.

It is correctly computed that almost all motorists could cut their gasoline consumption by one-third without materially curtailing their business or pleasure. But they won't do it, and we question whether voluntary controls or requests will do much good.

Everything today is a rat race and as we've often said the rats are winning. Cooperation from the community, the state and the status is, "I'll get mine and to hell with everybody else."

Which is another way of saying that there are few patriots left.

Lying in bed the other evening we reached for a magazine. We thought it was Playboy but it turned out to be Good Housekeeping. We noted a quiz in which you might be interested as this Yule season approaches — The town of Christmas is in Florida. Santa statistical data available to prove conclusively that the credit for the decrease should be given to DST, and not improved auto safety devices, highways.

The other major argument listed by DST supporters is that it will cut crime. They reason that the longer daylight period in the evening should cut muggings, and robberies because the criminals depend on darkness for cover.

But the justice department says it may not be that simple. Persons intent upon committing those crimes prevalent in darkness would accommodate themselves to the later darkness resulting from DST. But the department conceded it really was "difficult to assess" what effect the time change would have on crime.

Controversy over DST has existed since Benjamin Franklin first proposed the idea. Undersecretary of Transportation John W. Barnum, who suggested a nationwide survey to determine what Americans thought of the idea, put it this way:

"We expect this to be a very contentious issue."

(Bet you didn't know that Ben Franklin was the first to advocate fast time. Ben courted many women besides his wife, and mostly after dark.)

The American Trucking Assn. has a dictionary of truck drivers' slang and here are a few examples:

"Aviator" - a speeding driver. "Dog" - a truck with little power. "Hundred mile, coffee" - extreme fatigue. "Kick the donuts" - check the tires. "Kidney buster" - a hard riding truck. "Big hat" - a state trooper.

A Louisville woman has lost her suit challenging the Kentucky law that bars mothers from signing their children's applications for driver's licenses. The law states that a father is the guardian except in families where the father is dead or the mother has sole custody of the child.

A three-judge federal panel overruled the challenge to the law saying that the state has broad powers to set the laws governing driver's licenses because the possession of a driver's license is a privilege not a civil or property right.

Since the author of this column lost 74 percent of his eyesight in a 1947 automobile accident, we've been driving a car. And, our transportation problems increased when passenger trains ceased service through Morehead, and the number of Greyhound buses was reduced.

But, there is some indication that you may soon hear - "Out of gas? Take a train!" That may be a familiar comment in days to come if the energy shortage leads to massive rationing of such things as America's railroads are beginning to think the shortage may be the salvation of one of the nation's oldest transport systems.

"In the end, I think the railroads are the only salvation," a spokesman for the Frisco Railroad said. "We can take the trucks off the highways, helping them and everybody else, as long as we get coal."

The railroads say a 100-car train, pulled by four engines, can haul the same amount of cargo as 200 trucks, but would require fuel equivalent to only about 70 trucks.

In fact, the railroads are looking into an idea to haul the trucks themselves, a proposal brought up by an East Coast trucking firm.

"I think the answer is to place trucks on flatcars and haul them piggyback," the Frisco spokesman said. "We've done a lot of that. One truck line has asked the railroad to run strictly truck traffic along the East Coast. This would save the trucks considerable fuel."

"The railroad, of course, has always been the most economical as far as fuel is concerned. The railroads are the answer to our consumption in our favor over trucks."

The Daniel Boone National Forest this week announced that "free firewood" will be available. But, rangers at the district station in Morehead don't expect many takers because there's a little matter of work - cutting your own wood.

Applications for, and full information about, the free firewood can be obtained from the Daniel Boone forest offices at Hodgson Park, just east of Morehead. The district offices are:

scheduled until after January 1. Incidentally, Christmas vacation at MSU starts Dec. 15. This is also the end of the first semester.

We keep hearing about Morehead's enviable (low) residential fire insurance rates. But, how about the commercial/business rates, and that is where the money is. Many Morehead businesses carry no fire insurance because of the commercial rate structure.

Housemaids now will be known to the government as "lodging-quarters cleaners," and (foremen as "blue-collar-worker") replacing the old term of "domestic" and eliminating sex designations from job titles.

Fifty-two titles are being changed by the census bureau for its record-keeping, at the request of the labor department. Women's Bureau and Manpower Administration, and the federal interagency Committee on Occupation Classification.

Kentucky Ast. Atty. Gen. Carl Miller ruled students may be required to submit to a blood test without their consent to make positive investigation as to use of drugs.

Miller advised Phillip R. Dillon, Liberty, a Carter County Vocational School coordinator, that in such cases "school authorities in a general way stand in place of parents to their pupils."

A three-judge federal court has held a portion of the 1971 Campaign Act unconstitutional because it requires a newspaper to make sure the cost of a political advertisement it accepts would not boost a candidate's expenses above the legal limit.

In a decision written by Judge Barrington D. Parker, the court said this part of the law places a "chilling effect" on freedom of the press.

The suit was filed by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) after the New York Times refused to publish a September 1972 ACLU ad criticizing President Nixon's policies on Vietnam.

Readers of this column may have detected this year that the author's thinking has turned somewhat from the vein of "everybody is jolly and prosperous" to a pessimistic comments and forecasts of the future.

Randolph E. Schmid of the Associated Press wrote the following from Washington:

"The nation will have to change the habits of order to avert a recession while limiting energy use, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz says."

"I believe we should place top priority on jobs. We ought to try to stimulate our industries from too great an impact," Shultz said of cutbacks which may be required by the energy crisis.

Speaking at a hearing of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Shultz said limits will have to be made in consumer use of energy.

"The nation will have to get over the habits of an era of easier use of energy," he said. And in order to avert a recession, the action taken must be "sharp and relentless and tough," he said.

"If we recognize the problem as a significant crisis, as it is, both in the short term and in the long term, and are willing to take tough decisions, I think we have the ability to manage the problem without undue disruption of our economy," Shultz said.

He said the nation needs to protect the aluminum and petrochemical industries, which use large amounts of energy, while "taking very sharp action" to curtail other uses through allocation programs.

Shultz said he hoped gasoline rationing will not be necessary. "My instinct is against it," he said. Shultz noted that he had been reading a summary of rationing problems during World War II, and mentioned the nationwide black market in gasoline, stolen coupons, counterfeit coupons and over applications by users.

The Office of Price Administration had to hire 5,000 to 6,000 investigators and there were 30,000 violations of which 25,000 were brought to trial, he said.

"Rationing sounds like an easy answer, but experience raises the question whether it is an answer at all," Shultz said.

Morehead's John Collins, a person we respect as much as anybody we have ever known, has given seven gallons of blood to the Rowan County Red Cross through the monthly visits of the bloodmobile. This may be a state or national record. Collins' blood may have saved your life, and we expect to soon do a feature story about him and his maximum contribution to community and area health care.

The blood bank used to prick your finger to obtain a blood sample. Now, they prick the lobe of your ear. We don't know which is best or worse.

Airplane reservations to Florida have about been sold out for weeks to come, especially the non-stoppers. Since we have some important business in Florida after Christmas we bought our plane tickets weeks ago, and expect to partake of the six S's insofar as our financial and physical condition permits.

Why did so many shortages happen with much all-at-onceness? The fuel shortage may have a future blessing. It may become so acute we'll have to migrate south with the birds.

If you have a tiger in your gas tank get that thing out of there right now and replace it with a bulldog. A physician says music during meals is an aid to digestion. No doubt, if it isn't chin music.

We can't understand why Morehead's Frank Laughlin isn't crossed over and sprains his wrist. He talks to people all the same time three or four football games every Saturday by television and radio.

We end this column by reminding you there's only 15 more shopping days in Morehead and we'll have to migrate south with the birds.

Ann Landers

Copyright - Field Enterprises, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: A close friend of mine's getting married next month and I am at the wedding. I think she is making a terrible mistake. She is having a sizzling affair with a guy, and it's not the one she is marrying. I've tried to talk sense to her but she keeps saying, "This is my last fling. I must get it out of my system before I settle down."

In the meantime she talks about "Mr. Fling" constantly, and rarely says one word about her fiance. I think she is marrying the wrong guy or, more to the point, she isn't ready to get married at all.

My problem is, I'm the only one who knows about this mess and I feel like a hypocrite being in the wedding.

I am a good Christian, Ann, and I believe in Divine Guidance. I've been praying every night, but so far — no answer. Can you help?

Artificial Calla Lilies
Dear Lili: It's not easy to pinch-hit for "Divine Guidance," but I'll do my best.

For openers, the problem isn't yours. It's your nifty girlfriend's. Keep your mouth shut and continue to pray.

Dear Ann Landers: My parents and I get along pretty well. The only serious arguments we have are about my friends. My mom and dad are on my back a lot because the kids I have over to the house don't stand up and say hello when they come into the room. My dad especially freaks out if a guy just sits.

This morning I caught holy halitones. Last night there were about eight kids here when they left, not one of them went out to the patio to say goodnight to my parents. At breakfast this morning, Mom said, "I certainly hope you have better manners when you are in THEIR homes."

What's the matter with these kids? I agree that my folks have a point. Should I tell them? — Ft. Lauderdale

Dear Ft. Laud.: Unfortunately, your friends were not taught manners when they were younger. It's still not too late to learn, however, and I think you should mention it. When an adult comes into the room, teenagers, both boys and girls, should stand. And before they leave a house they should say goodnight to the parents of the host or hostess, if they are available.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 22-year-old daughter is being married soon. Marcia lived at home and agreed to pay room and board (a modest sum) but somehow she was always "a little short." For the past five months she hasn't paid anything.

I happen to know that Marcia has several hundred dollars worth of unpaid bills. She can't resist a "bargain." The girl could open up a costume jewelry store and a sport shop. Her closets were so full last spring she gave ten outfits to a girlfriend.

I asked her if her fiance knows about her bills. She said yes, but I don't believe her. I'm afraid she's going to be in for trouble when she springs these bills on him.

Should I tell him and spare Marcia the trouble later? — Worried Mom
Dear Mom: No. This is not your department. But explain to Marcia that if she doesn't level with her fiance in advance, it could get the marriage off to a very poor start.

The Comet Is Coming

Sweeping through the Solar System at 70,000 mph, a comet called Kohoutek is heading for a Christmas-week rendezvous with the Sun.

Right now, it's just a faint glow in the early morning sky—if you can see it at all—but astronomers are predicting that over the next two months it will grow into a spectacular object in the heavens, rivaling the moon in brightness.

As comets go, Kohoutek is a giant. Its icy head will be surrounded by glowing masses of gas stretching out perhaps 100,000 miles into space.

Trailing the comet will be a fiery tail that could reach 100 million miles in length.

Kohoutek is still almost 200 million miles from earth but it's getting closer all the time.

"Some of our boys have already seen it," said Charles Baldwin, publicity director of the Cincinnati Astronomical Society.

"They're gonna try and get a picture of it this weekend," he added.

But Kohoutek-watching won't be a pastime restricted to astronomers.

Kohoutek's size will ensure that it will be a very public spectacle. Within weeks it will become a "naked eye object," visible without the help of telescopes or binoculars.

In anticipation, observatories and planetariums are reporting extraordinary numbers of inquiries from the public.

The most popular question: Where to see it?

Well, at the moment Kohoutek is visible before dawn as a fuzzy glow just to the west and below the star Spica in the constellation Virgo, low on the horizon in the southeastern sky.

But don't try gazing out of the window before you leave for work tomorrow morning. Kohoutek is not yet bright enough to cut its way through the city haze and smog.

If you seriously want to see it, take a drive out to the countryside and take a pair of binoculars with you.

Or, if you want to see it during the day, book a seat at the Museum of Natural History planetarium show.

Planetarium director Bert Avera has made up a special Kohoutek program, complete with a representation of what Kohoutek might look like when it reaches the peak of its splendor sometime in January.

Avera isn't guaranteeing his program. Nobody knows just what a comet will look like until it is there to be seen.

But if it will be a very bright comet, it just hope the public appreciates it," said Avera.

Comet Kohoutek, officially dubbed Comet 1973F, was discovered March 7 by Czech astronomer Lubos Kohoutek.

It was the sixth comet discovered this year (thus 1973F—F being the sixth letter of the alphabet) and among hundreds found this century. But it was no ordinary comet.

Observations quickly showed that Kohoutek was a comet of extraordinary size and its approach to the Sun would give it a great potential for astronomical fireworks.

The nucleus, or "head" of the comet is estimated to be anywhere from 10 to 25 miles in diameter, perhaps 100 times bigger than less distinguished comets.

It was calculated that Kohoutek would pass within 13.2 million miles of the Sun that's close by astronomical standards) and come within a mere 78 million miles of Earth.

Excited astronomers started predicting the sky-show of the century.

Even though the estimates of how bright Kohoutek will become have been slightly revised downward since then, astronomers are still predicting Kohoutek will be one of the most spectacular comets in decades.

Caution Still Needed

Although a federal law has been passed requiring children's nightwear to be flame retardant, parents would still be wise to remain vigilant when shopping for their youngsters.

The law only covers children's pajamas, nightgowns and robes up to size six and only those manufactured or imported after July 29, 1973. Nightwear manufactured before that date can still be sold legally in stores. So it's up to parents to realize that the great majority of children's clothing still isn't flame retardant.

Care must be taken to keep fabrics away from sources of fire or heat.

Close fitting, lightly woven, smooth-surfaced, heavy fabrics are the best safety buy. Wool is comparatively flame resistant. And synthetics are usually less flammable than cotton, linen or rayon. But if ignited, synthetics may melt, forming a sticky substance which can produce deep burns.

THE DELIBERATE, MALICIOUS CUTTING OF TELEPHONE CABLES BY UNKNOWN PERSONS IS INCREASING.

THIS INTENTIONAL DISRUPTION OF COMMUNICATIONS TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND TO VITAL EMERGENCY COMMUNICATION FACILITIES IS A SERIOUS CRIME, AND CAN SUBJECT ANYONE FOUND GUILTY TO 10 YEARS IMPRISONMENT OR $10,000 FINE OR BOTH UNDER FEDERAL LAW; OR, ONE YEAR IMPRISONMENT OR $500 FINE OR BOTH UNDER STATE LAW.

THEREFORE GENERAL TELEPHONE OF KENTUCKY IS OFFERING A

$5,000

REWARD

FOR ANY INFORMATION LEADING TO THE ARREST AND CONVICTION OF ANY PERSON OR PERSONS DELIBERATELY DESTROYING, CUTTING OR OTHERWISE DAMAGING GENERAL TELEPHONE CO. EQUIPMENT WITH THE INTENT TO DISRUPT TELEPHONE SERVICE. ONLY ONE REWARD WILL BE PAID FOR EACH INCIDENT OF DAMAGE.

Providing rapid, continuous telephone communications is a serious, vital trust. Dependable telephone service is essential. In some instances, it can mark the difference between life and death.

Telephone cable for instance has been subject to accidental damage since the first one was placed in the ground — construction crews working, a car hitting a pole or simply a person digging up his garden in the back yard. These are truly accidents and, although undesirable, are understandable.

We are disturbed by willful acts of vandalism.

We appeal to those most affected, you — our customers, to help us stop this activity. Not only is it an inconvenience to you, but equipment destruction can sever communication links with police and fire departments, doctors and hospitals and other vital services.

Further, when telephone equipment is purposely destroyed, it takes many man-hours to restore service. This costs money. Ultimately, you must pay for it.

If two or more persons furnish information leading to the same arrest and conviction, the reward will be equitably divided between such persons.

To be eligible for a reward, information on any known or suspected damage must be reported to the local law enforcement agency and to General Telephone. To notify the phone company, call this special number — Fayette, Jessamine and Woodford counties 277-6119. All other locations 800-432-9519.
