Board Seeks Repairs On Highway 32

Say West Liberty, Sandy Hook Roads Almost Impassable

Terminating the roads between Morehead and Sandy Hook and Morehead and West Liberty all but impassable, the Morehead Board of Trade started action at its meeting Monday morning to determine what could be done. A committee was appointed, which will contact groups from West Liberty and Sandy Hook, to go to Frankfort and ask the State Highway Department to take some steps toward the repair of this road. J. C. Wells, owner of the bus line that bears his name and travels this route, has agreed to furnish transportation for the group.

The Board of Trade heard a report by E. E. Curtis, district manager of the Kentucky Utilities regarding an electrical interference survey of Morehead, conducted by Sanford Hill, Technical Supervisor and Chief Engineer of the Nunn road station. Subsequent to Mr. Hill's report was a report by E. E. Curtis, district manager of the Kentucky Utilities regarding an electrical interference survey of Morehead, conducted by Sanford Hill, Technical Supervisor and Chief Engineer of the Nunn road station. Subsequent to Mr. Hill's report was a report by E. E. Curtis, district manager of the Kentucky Utilities regarding an electrical interference survey of Morehead, conducted by Sanford Hill, Technical Supervisor and Chief Engineer of the Nunn road station.

The Board of Trade named a group to ascertain whether there was a marked increase in tax assessments in other counties as there has been in this county.

Eaglets Meets Male High Here This Saturday

By DON MILLER
Sports fans from this section of the state will all be in one direction Saturday night, February 24, to witness what will probably be the best game played in Eastern Kentucky.

Male has four of last year's starting five back this year: Rhoads, Beard, Powell, and Mudd. Beard, a guard, was an all-state player last year, and will probably be a repeater this year. Rhoads is a very effective player and has made more than his share of Male's points this year. The Redmen also have a 6' 4" center named Powell who will be stepped by Banks. Their other starting player is Martin, who is a very promising new-comer. Break will probably start their rotation of Battson, Scroggins, Banks, Allen, and Hutchinson.

Including last Friday's 31-28 defeat by Moyville, Break has a record of 17 wins and 3 losses while Male has won 19, and lost 4.

Everything points to an excellent display of basketball, so you'd better be there early to get a seat. There will be on game starting at 8:30 p. m. This is Break's last game before the district tournament next Tuesday.

Here is the starting line-up:
BRECK LITTLE MALE
Allen Rhoads
Hutchinson Mudd
Banks Powell
Scroggins Beard
Battson Martin

Three Murder Cases Set For Hearing

Grand and Petit Jury Lists Have Been Made For March Term

With the exception of three cases, the criminal docket for the March term of Rowan County Court is no heavier than usual.

The trial of Matthew Fyffe, charged with slaying Ida Mason is set for the seventh day. A jury was unable to agree in a previous hearing of this case, and it was continued at the last term at the request of the Commonwealth.

Ray Gostineau is awaiting grand jury action in the slaying of Delmore Curtis, which happened after an all-night New Year's party.

The grand jury list for this term includes the following:

Miss McBrayer, Ira Fisher, O. D. Melvin, Smedley J. Harris, Lester Casky, Nola Davis, Mrs. Erna Brown, Claude Ramsey, Roscoe Hutchinson, Noah Lewis, Russell Casky, W. A. Berry, T. H. Caudill, Henry Shuber, Berry Branham, Mrs. R. M. White, John Kelly, Grover White, Herb Russell, Russell Reynolds, John Barker, Russel Becker, and Benie Baldrige.

The following have been summoned for petit jury service: Floyd Hill, Jim Nickell, Ray Hogue, Howard Lewis, Isaac Moore, Tolt Corneet, Doris Harlin, G. M. (George) Hill, Mrs. Lewis, Fred Casky, P. Tax Boost Draws Fire; Equalizers Say Raises 'Just'

Increases Have Not Been Unfair, Ellington Declares

Refuting published reports that assessments were being increased on most of the property in Rowan County, Dr. A. F. Ellington, chairman of the Board of Equalizers, said today that raises had been effected on only 500 of the county's 3,700 taxpayers.

He said that many of these were on cars only, and stated that the Board had no control over this, as these are figured on a "blue-book" issued by the Department

"The trouble with the people who are making objections to increased assessments is that they have the highest property in the city when you try to buy a lot of goods and about ten percent of that when they give it in for taxes," Dr. A. F. Ellington, Chairman of the Board of Equalizers, declared today in a statement concerning the assessment increases which have caused so much furor.

F. Ellington, Chairman of the Board of Equalizers, declared today in a statement concerning the assessment increases which have caused so much furor.

Formation of a taxpayers league to battle increased assessments on Morehead property is being planned by a group of business-men. Protesting what they term as "ridiculous increases in assessments" they plan to carry their case to quarterly county court if no relief is found there on to Circuit Court, a spokesman for the group says.

They contend that the assessments are out of line because: (1) Morehead is being used to carry the tax burden for practically all the county; (2) There has been no marked increase in any adjoining counties, and (3) That their

A spokesman for the Board of Trade said this morning that an investigation showed that there had been no increase in tax assessments in any adjoining counties, and that their representatives to ascertain if the taxpayers in Morehead aren't being asked to carry the principal burden for Rowan County, and that farmers are being under-assessed.

assessments are higher than they should be, in many cases being greater than the value of the property.

The Board of Trade appointed representatives to ascertain if there had been any marked increases in other counties as there has been in this county.

It is contended that rural taxpayers have only paid on a small part of the actual value of farms, and that Morehead property owners are being asked to make up the difference.

The taxpayers group set out that they should not be held liable because some $100 worth of land has been put on the tax-books year after year, when actually no such land existed. This "wild-cat property" which was supposed to have been owned by Eastern holders, has been looted off in recent years.

Another contention of this group is that the land purchased by the United States Forest Service, although removed from the tax books, still pays dividends to the owners, who are actually more than would have been received by the county through taxes. The United States Forest Service does not have to pay for the land, and other form a percentage of money collected on rentals or timber taken from the forest land.

They have termed the tax increase set out that this has been properly explained to the proper departments at Frankfort, who have termed Rowan one of the "lowest assessed counties in Kentucky."

Red Cross Has Been Of Great Help To Phileman Hardin, Of Rowan County, German Prisoner

One Morehead soldier who owes a great deal to the American Red Cross is Sergeant Phileman Hardin, a German prisoner of war. His home is indicated by the record of the Red Cross office, which called at the Red Cross office to make a contribution, and showed that the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, since the Red Cross office seeks is for the treatment of all crippled children of Kentucky regardless of whether their disabilities are the result of polio. The society works in close cooperation with the infantile fund, but each raises its own funds.

This Sounds Like A Political Deal

There is a strong possibility that the 16th Regional basketball tournament, which has been held in Morehead for the last 13 years will be conducted elsewhere this March.

Ever since the schools moved the tournament from Ashland, the sports-minded citizens of that community have protested. All their efforts have gone for naught as the principals and coaches have voted, year after year, and appear in a position to move it from Morehead this year, although they are not counting on conducting it in Ashland.

Here is the deal that the Ashland group have finally hit upon. They will take the votes, they have in their neighborhood, pool them together, and cast them all for Kentucky Wesleyan to hold the tournament at Winchester. In that way they hope to get Winchester's vote, which they no doubt will.

They have made this appeal on the ground that the Wesleyan floor will be neutral, while Breckinridge, the outstanding team, uses Morehead College's floor, and it is therefore not a neutral floor.

But, the fly in the ointment is this—what the Ashland group really wants is to move the tournament back to this city. They'll come up next year with this kind of proposition to Winchester and the teams in the western end of the region. We voted for you last year, now you vote for us. And, you can lay your last dollar that if Ashland once gets the tournament they'll move heaven and earth to keep it.

They have accused Morehead of using politics to get the tournament each year. We have never known of politics being used by Morehead, but we do know that Ashland has used every known scheme to take it from here to Ashland.

Morehead is located right in the center of the region. It is accessible from every city in the region by good roads. Ashland will have to travel 125 miles to get to Winchester, and if Ashland held the tournament the following year, which is really their idea, the western end of the region would have to go the same distance.

Although we do not have the exact figures we feel safe in saying that such a proposition as Ashland now proposes would put the competing teams further apart than in any other region in Kentucky.

The deal is one like politicians often hit upon. It may be a good thing for Morehead if the tournament is moved a year or two. We're satisfied that will settle the situation once and for all and then it will be back. There is no question but that Morehead is in a better position to handle it than any other place. The teams have been treated well, always with the aim of doing everything possible for them. There has been no hint of a scandal in the 13 years it has been conducted here. And, Morehead has been convenient for fans from all over the region to come to.

Two Strikes Against Us

The report of a radio expert, employed by The Kentucky Utilities Company, released elsewhere in this issue of The News, convinces us that so far as favorable reception is concerned in Morehead, we already have two strikes against us.

We are located in a valley, completely surrounded by hills, which makes for broadcasting stations than most cities and towns, which is a second strike against us. As Mr. Helt puts it: "... Even the dominant stations do not provide dependable service to this section under all conditions. It is unfortunate that the distance from Morehead to these stations and the nature of the topography of the vicinity is such that the city is not provided with good primary service from ANY radio broadcast station."

The net result is that Moreheadians must turn the power higher on their radios or as Mr. Helt words it: "It is necessary to raise the volume of the average broadcast receiver in this location in order for a particular station to be heard satisfactorily."

Make Survey Of Morehead's Radio Reception Complaints

(Editor's Note: The following is the report of Morehead's radio reception troubles as released by Stanford Helt, electrical engineer, Mr. Helt was employed by The Kentucky Utilities Company to make this survey).

The purpose of this survey was to determine the extent or values of electrical interference to radio reception as might be experienced from the facilities of the Kentucky

Utilities equipment, transmission lines, distribution system and other electrical apparatus normally operated by them in the vicinity of Morehead, Kentucky.

This survey was made on February 11th, 1945 and also included observations and measurements along the Kentucky Utilities transmission lines, Washington, D. C., Kentucky to Morehead, Kentucky. A complete survey was made over the entire distribution system at that "noises which do not result in objectionable interference in most cases, and in most areas, do become a source of annoyance to listeners in and about the City of Morehead."

The request of the Board of Trade for the Kentucky Utilities to provide a detector so that these objectionable noises could be located, was met by Mr. Curtis, the district manager, with a statement that this would be placed here.

The Utility Company is going to considerable trouble and expense to help the people here remedy the situation so far as possible. It remains, however for the citizens of this community to install the proper filters to correct the trouble.

These filters can be purchased at a small cost. Anyone desiring such a filter can secure full information at the Kentucky Utilities office. The cost is very nominal.

It may be that you know of an appliance in your home that is causing you or your neighbors trouble. If you do have such a condition, it is your duty as a good citizen to rectify it. It may be that interference, as you do not know it exists. It is the purpose of those interested in alleviating the poor radio reception, to detect this, and advise you accordingly.

Message To Remember

Not many weeks ago Americans were preparing to celebrate the defeat of Germany. The celebration threatened to become a disruptive orgy. Congress and Maine Railroad to provide support of the war effort after V-Day in a message that should not be forgotten, although at present victory in Europe seems farther away than it did last summer. The message says:

"We don't know when V-Day over Germany will be, but when it does come, we know how we're going to celebrate."

"On V-Day we'll be working — full time, full speed. There aren't going to be any parties. Our men aren't going to spike the switches and get together for any champagne. There won't be any empty desks in our office, or freight trains standing idle in our yards. We ask you not to ride our trains that day to go celebrating."

"Most of us will go to church. We shall thank God, and pray for speedy victory over Japan. We urge you to do the same."

"Probably it isn't any of our business, what you do on V-Day. But complete victory is everybody's business. The time you might be tempted to take off from your job puts every one of us that many hours further away from the victorious end. That's why you might bring to partying would fall pretty flat when you bumped into Bob Jones, or Mrs. Smith, or anyone of a million other Americans with boys in the Pacific."

"We make this plea now, so you'll have plenty of time to think it over. And we make it in the solemn conviction that only on the day of total victory and not before, can any of us afford to let down."

The Strength of Brotherhood

By RUTH TAYLOR

"Eternal God, in whose perfect kingdom no sword is drawn but the sword of righteousness and no strength known but the strength of love."

When I read that line in a soldiers prayer book, I thought, "Who can defend an army that is fighting for that end?"

"No sword but the sword of righteousness"—a people fighting, not one for the right, not for personal preferment, not for group privileges, not motivated by hatred or prejudice, but that justice may prevail.

"No strength but the strength of love"—the power that can destroy all tyranny and good will binds together men in brotherhood and good will — for love is the strongest thing in the world, stronger than hate, stronger than evil, stronger than death.

Lately when I've been called upon to speak, I've used for my theme the common sense of democracy. I've chosen this because one thing that is ever more apparent to me is that all the people to whom I talk want the same things. They have the same ideas, the same desires, the same ambitions. They only express their thoughts in different phrases.

And when I have spoken of the unity of understanding, I've taken to turning to the soldiers in the audience for corroboration. Never have I found them unready to back me up. They have all been seen with me and able to say that the men they have met from other homes, other faiths, other backgrounds, are not only their brothers-in-arms, but also their brothers-in-spirit, that in the army they have learned to understand what brotherhood means. Often they have added that they intended to keep this spirit alive after the war.

The spirit of brotherhood is a force that can weld together any people, whether they be of a community, or a state or a nation. It is the only safe strength, the only safe defense against aggression from without or from within.

When we can put this spirit into effect in our peace time lives we will win our victory over the pestilences of peace—discrimination, group prejudice, hatred—even over the arch monster, selfishness.

A nation whose strength is love or brotherhood and who only draws its sword for the right—the sword of righteousness—is unconquerable both in war and peace.

THE ROWAN COUNTY NEWS, MOREHEAD, KENTUCKY

for electrical interference location work.

After traveling, and carefully checking the transmission circuits between Lexington, Kentucky, and Morehead, Kentucky, it is my opinion that the electrical interference or noise levels along these lines are not above the normal values. In fact, these values of interference were a bit lower than usually experienced about lines of this type.

In the City of Morehead, Kentucky given me for investigation:

- 1. Mr. LeGrand Jayne, Wilson Avenue.
2. Mr. Rosecoe Hutchison.
3. Mr. Ralph Miller—Court Avenue.

Upon checking case No. 11 found no indication of external electrical interference of any kind. I did find a noisy receiver. This noise was attributed to dirty switch contacts, and electric tuning control contacts.

Case No. 2 had already been eliminated, the source of interference having been charged to a defective electric sign in front of the Mills Theater.

Case No. 3 was determined to have been apparently caused by a customer vacuum cleaner motor noise on radio when this sweeper was in use on the premises.

A general check of electric signs about the City of Morehead disclosed the following:

- 1. Greyhound Bus Station sign was found to be defective and was the source of some considerable interference.
2. It was determined that the window lighting and signs of the Amos n Andy Restaurant had been causing some objectionable interference in the vicinity but this establishment had discontinued business, thereby eliminating this source.
3. The Caskey Hotel sign was found to be in need of service and did cause some trouble to radio receivers in the area about this location.
4. Interference was checked at the I.G.A. Grocery Company and a grounded circuit on the soft Mv. drink cooler was found to result in some considerable noise. This could be reversed at the socket to reduce the noise.
5. The complete street lighting system of the City of Morehead was turned on, and after a complete check of the distribution system it was found to be free of objectionable interference. In the course of the investigation a half dozen pieces of equipment in the Johnson Beauty Shop was found to cause interference over a radius of several hundred feet from the source. Noises of this nature can be eliminated through the use of an inexpensive filter across the motor line. Catalog sheet covering such devices and explaining their use is attached hereto.

An electrical noise of considerable intensity was checked in the vicinity of the Frozen Food Locker plant. Time did not permit a definite isolation of this particular case of trouble, but it was definitely not being radiated from the facilities of the Kentucky Utilities. Further investigation in this particular case was found to be necessary.

The sub-station of Kentucky Utilities, adjacent to the old plant building was thoroughly checked and found to be free of any electrical interference.

In connection with this survey measurement were made in and about Morehead, Kentucky to determine the values of signal intensities received there from all radio stations regularly received in Morehead, Kentucky. These measurements indicated that the following stations were furnishing the maximum signal values and the signal intensity for each is shown in millivolts per meter as measured on the Federal Field Intensity Meter described elsewhere in this report:

- WLV Cincinnati, Ohio 335
CWTV—257Mv m.
WHAS Louisville, Kentucky 340PM CWTV—489Mv m
WKRC Cincinnati, Ohio 400
PM CWTV—174 Mv m.

The Standards of Good Engineering Practice of the Federal Communications Commission sets forth that the following signal values are required for good service:

- City Business or Factory Areas 10 to 50 Mv m.
City Residential Areas 2 to 10 Mv m.
Rural Southern Areas (Winter) 0.1 to 0.5 Mv m.
Rural Southern Areas (summer) 0.25 to 1.0 Mv m.

From the above it is shown that 6.15 Mv m. or more over the dominant stations for the area do not provide dependable service to this section under all conditions. It is unfortunate that the distance from Morehead, Kentucky, to these above radio stations, and others, and the nature of the topography in the vicinity is not provided with good primary service from any radio broadcast station.

It is necessary to raise the gain of the average broadcast receiver in this location in order that a particular station may be heard satisfactorily. This means that the volume control of the receiver must be increased to provide good reception. When the volume control is increased any noise at all which is present in the vicinity of the receiver is pulled up with the broadcast station signal.

Therefore, noises which do not result in objectionable interference in most cases, and in most areas, do become a source of annoyance to listeners in and about the City of Morehead, Kentucky. In order that noise and electrical interference be not objectionable, a high signal to noise ratio must exist at the receiving point. This condition does not permit itself in Morehead due to the low broadcast signal values there.

Important Notice to PULPWOOD EMPLOYERS DO THIS NOW TO HOLD THE DRAFT STATUS OF YOUR WORKERS THE new draft regulations have raised pulpwood production from "essential" to "critical", giving workers in this industry the highest deferment preference. In order to protect the deferred status of your workers, make sure that you file the correct form - 42A for workers between 26 and 29; 42B if they are between 30 and 38. A self-employed worker engaged chiefly in production of pulpwood must file the necessary certification himself. IF IN DOUBT, CHECK WITH YOUR DRAFT BOARD BE sure your Draft Board has the necessary information to insure proper classification. You are only making extra trouble for everybody if you wait till your Board reclassifies a worker as 1-A for lack of proper information or affidavits. These new regulations apply equally to mills, contractors, dealers and the independent operator with a single helper. WEST VIRGINIA PULP & PAPER CO. COVINGTON, VIRGINIA

HELPS EVACUATE 50,000 WOUNDED AMERICANS

Pvt. Ernest A. Tackett is a member of the 109th Medical Battalion, which is credited with having evacuated 50,000 wounded Americans, infantrymen from the battles in Tunisia and Italy. Pvt. Tackett, Bangor, Kentucky, is the 109th's.

The 109th is a supporting unit of the 34th "Red Bull" Division, the American division which has been in action on the Italian front in Italy longer than any other.

Participating recently in the breach of the Gothic Line, the 109th added to a record of nearly three years in overseas service and a combat record that began more than two years ago in North Africa.

The 109th landed at Salerno, Italy, September 21, 1943, and its men swam across the Volturno River with the 34th Division, spearhead and floated casualties back across the river in a rubber raft, guided in its course by laut ropes. The Volturno was the only river ford in the face of German shellfire.

The outfit's litter bearers carried the wounded down rocky six-mile trail during the fight for Mount Pantano.

Organization of 500 volunteers as stretcher squad saved the lives of many wounded during the fight for Cassino.

Ambulances of the 109th took a beating on the Anzio beachhead, where some of them were captured by the Germans and litter squads sometimes came face to face with German patrols. The battalion's bivouac area was hit by 40 German bombs in one night.

The medics campaigned through the Lanuvio-Velletri Line, through Rome and Cecina and on to the Arno River.

INFORMATION ON G-I MATTERS

Below are Questions and Answers on G-I Matters furnishing such information many desire.

Question: My fiancé has been court-martialed because he violated the 75th Article of War. He is on non-pay status. Does that mean that he has been dishonorably discharged?

Answer: That is a serious offense and the penalty may range from death to such other punishment as a court martial may dictate. Whether your fiancé has been dishonorably discharged cannot be determined by us, but his commanding officer can tell you the findings of the court martial.

Question: I am the wife of a serviceman and have been receiving a family allowance, but recently it was stopped. Can my husband have it stopped? For what reason would an allowance be stopped?

Answer: The family allowance for a wife of a serviceman is paid to her as long as the soldier is in the status of an enlisted man and as long as his wife remains as his legal wife. The enlisted man cannot be terminated without being discharged as long as the wife is eligible to receive it.

Question: I understand that the government may or may not pay an infant baby's medical care till the child is a year old if the father is in the service. What procedure should the mother follow if she has her baby to a doctor and he refuses to deal with government cases? My baby is five months old and my husband is overseas.

Answer: Care of the infant during its first year is available to wives of servicemen of the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades and aviation cadets. Application should be made by the mother, and her physician or hospital must complete and sign the application and forward it to the State director of maternal and child welfare.

Question: I have a son in the merchant marine. Am I supposed to hang a flag in my door for him? If he gets wounded will I be notified?

Answer: The government will endeavor to collect any overpayment. If the veteran is destitute, the government cannot collect unless and until the veteran acquires assets sufficient to satisfy the government claim.

ASK YOUR GROCER!

Question: I received a $50 a month compensation for disability and I am married. Is there an increase in his pension by reason of his acquiring a dependent? If he dies does his widow receive any compensation after his death?

Answer: The veteran does not receive increased compensation by reason of his marriage. His widow may be entitled to a pension after his death.

Question: I am a Class B dependent of a son in the air force. I would like to know if I would be entitled to any kind of financial aid if my son were killed in action?

Answer: You would have to furnish satisfactory proof of actual dependency to the Veterans Administration to qualify for that compensation of $45 per month as a dependent mother.

Question: If I obtained my release from essential war work in November 1943, and was transferred to the E.R.C., am I entitled to mustering-out pay?

Answer: Since you were released from active service on your own initiative to accept employment in war industry, you are not entitled to mustering-out pay, unless you had service outside continental United States or in Alaska.

Question: My son has been in the army for 28 months and has never had a furlough. Almost 20 of the 28 months of his service has been overseas. Will he get a furlough?

Answer: Men are being furnished more or less in rotation to the extent that shipping facilities are possible. The rate of about 30,000 a month, but the granting of a furlough to any particular case depends upon the decision of the commanding officer and absolute subject to the exigencies of war.

Question: My brother an officer in the navy, took out a $5,000 insurance policy and designated me as the beneficiary. How can I find out if he is still keeping this insurance up and if he is not could I renew the policy?

Answer: There is no way that you may find out if your brother still has the insurance, unless you ask him. He has a right to change the beneficiary at any time without the knowledge or consent of the beneficiary. If he does not seek to continue the insurance policy you may not renew it.

Question: My son enlisted in the army in June, 1942, when he made allotment for me. I filled out the papers and sent them in, but have not heard from them. What should I do?

Answer: Write to the Office of Dependency Benefits, 213 Washington Street, Newark 2, New Jersey, stating all the facts in the case. Give your husband's full name, serial number if possible, rank, date of application as well as any other pertinent facts.

Question: I was in the army for seven months and was discharged with a Section VIII Blue discharge. I filed an application for mustering-out pay but was turned down. My discharge doesn't have honorable or dishonorable, just says discharged under Section VIII. Is there any reason I shouldn't have drawn mustering-out pay?

Answer: You are not eligible for mustering-out pay by reason of your Blue Section VIII discharge. A serviceman to be eligible for mustering-out pay must have been discharged under honorable conditions on or after December 7, 1941.

Question: When my husband went into the army he had his insurance made out to his sister. Then when we were married he had it changed over to me. I have never received a notice or insurance policy from the government. Should they send me something to show that the policy has been changed to me? If so, to whom should I write for information?

Answer: No notice will be sent to the beneficiary of a National Service Life Insurance Policy unless the insured serviceman re-

MEET RADIO'S MUSIC MASTER

His arrangements strike vibrant chords in WHAS listeners

BOB HUTSELL... WHAS' Director of Music, is radio's all round harmony boy... spending his days adapting original compositions to the instruments and voices in his "band." Heard daily at 5:30-5:45 and Fridays in a full orchestra performance at 6:30-7:00 with featured soloists, his musicians dedicate their music to army camps and hospitals. For Friday's 30-minute program (as you hear it), ten musical arrangements are needed, requiring 60 hours of pencil and piano work, plus 60 hours of copying... and five hours' rehearsal with the orchestra. A transcription is kept of each program.

A Hoosier from Georgetown, Bob studied music under Karl Schmidt lycer, and learned orchestration techniques under Frank Skinner in New York. He rambled about the country with bands before joining us ten years ago. Our maestro also plays saxophone, clarinet and flute. His current problem is to keep a versatile staff to please a varied listening audience.

Hutsell, a great favorite with his 22 musicians, works harder than any of them. His hobbies are flying (privately), fishing, collecting old side arms, and Doberman pinschers.

For the best in music... tune in harmonious Mutual

Timber Out- Put Best In '44

Timber production for war and essential civilian needs from national forests in 1944 totaled 3,300,000,000 board feet, the largest cut on record since the founding of the forest service forty years ago, Lyle F. Watts, chief of the Forest Service, said in his annual report (released January 21), to the Secretary of Agriculture. The cut in Kentucky's National Forest was nearly 19,000,000 bd. ft.

Timber from federal forests supplied approximately 10 percent of all lumber cut in the United States and was valued at $14,300,000. The production increase was 4 percent over the previous fiscal year. The unusual, wartime demand for national-forest timber was attributed by Mr. Watts to a cumulative shortage of timber on private lands. He warned against possible "local pressures," particularly in the post-war period, to exceed sustained-yield cutting budgets in the future on public forest lands and added: "There must be no yielding to such pressures."

He expressed concern over "wholesale liquidation" of the young timber which should be the source of sawlogs for decades to come" and said the practice is prevalent on privately owned forest lands in the Northeast, South and the Lake states, and is becoming apparent in California and the Northwest where recent analysis show a rapid exhaustion of virgin timber supplies.

Of course the forest exploitation in this country shows that the public must act in a far more comprehensive manner than heretofore to stop destructive cutting, to facilitate good practices on private forest lands and to acquire such lands as may not otherwise be given the management dictated by the public interest, Mr. Watts said.

His report lists varied contributions made to the war by the Forest Service. In connection with post-war projects, he said, "home building may easily rise to 800,000 new units per year in the five post-war years—a constructive boom that alone would require 8,000,000,000 board feet of lumber annually." He warned against "unwise attempts in post-war adjustment to colonize for agricultural use lands that are primarily suited for forestry," as was the case after the last war.

From the Forest Products Laboratory, Mr. Watts cited work done on the development of industrial alcohol from wood waste, improvement of physical characteristics of wood by chemical treatment known as acetylation which reduces shrinkage and swelling; development of "stay-pak," a form of compressed wood of high density and strength now being studied for possible use in making propellers; and research on container and developments from the Forest Products Laboratory which has resulted in saving cargo space to were several technological developments from the Forest Products Laboratory which has resulted in saving cargo space to were several technological developments from the Forest Products Laboratory which has resulted in saving cargo space to

Special Gasoline Ration Period

Special gasoline rations to aid in the reemployment of discharged war veterans and displaced civilian workers have been provided for by the Office of Price Administration, the Lexington District Office announced this week.

These rations will be allowed to war veterans and civilian employees who must use a passenger automobile to travel to a job interview arranged for them by the United States Employment Service. Employment Service, the Railroad Retirement Board, Employment Service, a county agricultural agent, an Agricultural Extension Labor Office, or by a union designated by the War Manpower Commission to recruit labor. The amount of mileage that will be allowed is limited to 400 miles in any 30-day period, and it must be shown that there are no adequate alternative means of transportation.

A person applying for the ration at his local War Price and Rationing Board must present a referral card obtained from the agency which arranged the interview.

Ceilings Set For Rubber Bands

Dollar-and-cent ceiling prices have been established for buna-S synthetic rubber bands, OPA announced this week.

The ceilings, effective February 17, 1945, are at the general levels prevailing during the first quarter of 1942, but lower than the prices of some sellers who raised their prices when production of rubber bands was stopped and keen demand developed for inventory supplies prior to March 1942, OPA said.

"SMALL" BUDGET

A 1946 budget of $83,000,000, smallest in three years, was proposed by President Roosevelt in a speech to Congress. The figure compared with a $100,000,000 budget in 1945 and $90,000,000 in 1944.

SUNSHINE SKETCHES

By REX HOKE

One thing we laugh at most is stupidity. When we do something stupid, we are making us supersensitive to being called stupid. Because a joke is usually "on" someone, humor, not just wisecracks, is usually destructive.

The reason we laugh at the man who says, "Aw, shut up, this is a free country," is that the remark is a misstatement; the speaker is too stupid to see.

HOKE For its absurdity we laugh when it is said that psychologists have found out most people are below average in intelligence. That is both impossible and absurd.

Assigning intelligence ratings to one's intimates is a delightful pastime, if some of them happen to be in the lower brackets. If their act didn't just take care of the situation we put them down as dumb.

Here is a quick ready test which will classify anyone in a jiffy as an intellectual have or have not: "A bucket partly filled with water weighing ten pounds is placed on a scale. A fish weighing three pounds is put into the bucket. What will the whole thing weigh?" The test comes when you say, "How can that be when the water holds the fish up?" A switch of answers indicates failure.

We know the percentage of people of all ages who can pass this test. Such testing has led to some interesting discoveries. For instance, that you can't tell a thing about one's intelligence by looking in his face, by feeling bumps or taking measurements. Small head, low forehead, or narrowness between the eyes tell nothing.

Branny people have large vocabularies, use long sentences, and are preoccupied with the remote in place, and time, not the here and now. They look beneath the surface, have ideas, are unopinionated, misunderstood, and have a yen for breaking conventions.

Conversation gives plenty clues for appraising the other fellow's mentality, provided you lead him over unfamiliar ground.

Bill Nye once said, "Everybody is stupid, only on different subjects." It is a statement that has meant consolation to thousands.

Closer the truth is the adage, "Nothing will take the place of brains; for what a man will do in a situation depends upon the meaning he gets from that situation—brains is what we get meaning out of."

Another fact is at or near age sixteen we are as intelligent as we will ever be. The common notion that practice on "brain teasers" will make one smarter is likewise fallacious.

It is a curious fact that children use intelligence more than adults. As children we size at attention up and do just what is required without let or hindrance, but as adults we are restrained from doing this by habits, customs, conventions, and what others might say.

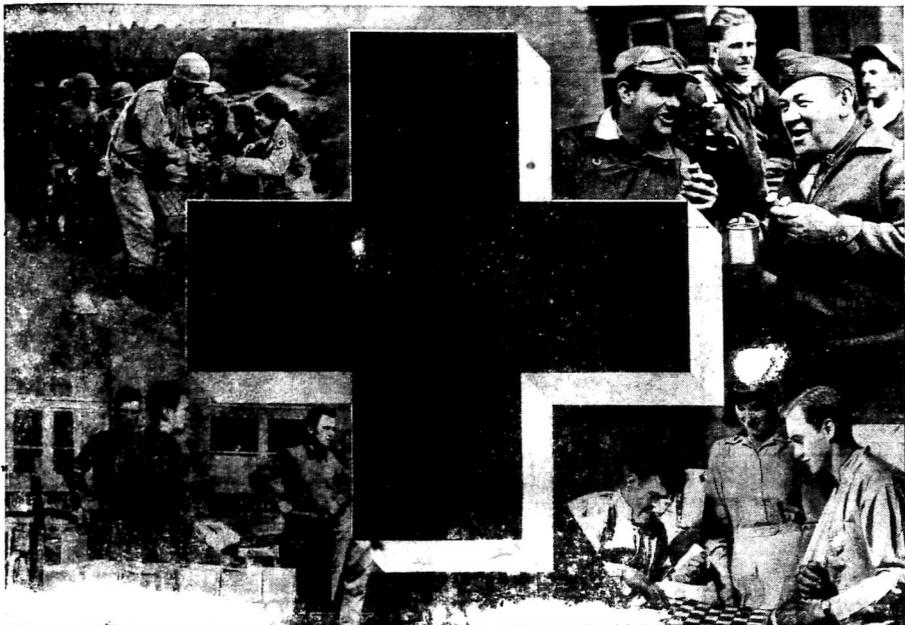

Owing to modern life's increasing complexity, making life precarious for us all, many are turning to intelligence as a way out. Enlightened people everywhere are recognizing the changes are so sudden and so great that custom habit, on which we successfully relied for centuries, can't now save us. We can either learn to use intelligence or else. But then, what would humorists have to talk about?

Car Buyers Interviewed

The Office of Price Administration has reported the completion of interviews with more than 21,000 used car buyers during the recent national drive designed to uncover and correct canceled violations of used car ceiling prices.

These interviews revealed approximately 4,400 violations by both dealers and private individuals. As of January 10, 1945, enforcement action had already been instituted in 963 cases, including 527 court actions and 438 license-waiting notices sent to dealers. In addition, refunds for overcharges have been ordered for buyers in 364 cases. OPA said.

Your Red Cross faces the greatest task in its long history

This is the most important appeal for funds in the history of the American Red Cross.

After three years of war the work of your Red Cross is greater than ever. It must serve millions of our fighting men abroad. Lonely men. Homesick men. Wounded men. The Red Cross, always at their side, helps to bring them cheer and comfort wherever they may be.

It lends a helping hand to the thousands of returning service men—sick, wounded—desperately in need of friendly guidance.

And remember, YOU... and you alone... keep the Red Cross alive. For without your help there could be no Red Cross. There are no special funds to keep up this great humanitarian work. The money must come, as always, from the heart of America—you!

Our duty is clear... we must keep the Red Cross at the side of our fighting men and our wounded heroes. We must help the Red Cross in its vital job of sending food and medicine to war prisoners... aiding the ill and lonely overseas... collecting life-giving plasma. The scope of the Red Cross is almost limitless. Every Red Cross worker is your messenger of sympathy and comfort to your men in uniform.

GOODS BY CO-PILO Col. Robert L. Scoff

The story thus far: After graduating from West Point, Robert Scoff was assigned to Kelly Field and takes up combat flying. He has been an instructor for some years when the war breaks out, and he is told he is now too old for combat flying. He appears several times to get into the fight. After flying a bomber to get into a fight he is shot down and is rescued by a Japanese plane. He is taken to a Japanese camp and is treated as a prisoner of war. He escapes and returns to the United States.

8,000-ton freighter surrounded by many fighters, there to the river. The smoke from the single stack was lazily going straight up. Morgan's bombardier was bending forward over his bombight now, keeping the cross-hairs on the target. I knew the A.P.C.E. was flying lead bomber and we went on our straight bombing run, towards our target.

CHAPTER XXVI

We figured that some important announcement was about to be made, and out there in the hosted area everything was quiet. The amber liquid was divided among some forty men, and we got a few drops in a Chinese teacup—but it was enough for the ceremony.

Then, under the lead flight of bombers, I saw the enemy fighters coming up and I knew we had them. The enemy planes were below us, climbing steeply for the bellies of the bombers. They had waited the ground too long, but they had for us to pass Canton and go on to Hongkong. Now we had every advantage. General Chenmaw had called them again, and I had in idea that we were in for a profitable day.

On November 27 the largest force of bombers we had ever used in China, escorted by the largest force of fighters, rolled down the runway at Kweilin. There were fourteen bombers, with twenty-two P-40's for escort. We had also led a strong force on the ground at Kweilin, just in case the Jap tried something when we were away. I led the headquarters section of the fighter escort and made up the reserve. My position in the escort would be the second feet above the bombers.

Turning low, I came back for a better shot at the ack-ack. I turned back. After all, that which I could see had already exploded, and I wasn't hit yet. I was well out of place as another. My burst caught the engines of the transport, which I could see in the ack-ack. Two other bombers were jumping out of the door. I turned steeply and fired on the door, then into the fuselage and the engines had either been shot up or had been cut off, for they had stopped.

Cooper had been so anxious to accompany our raids and to seem to have no duties interfered. He was threatening today to take over one of the turbines in the bomber. I joked with Cooper on the way to our fighters that morning, and told him that I was glad to have him along that we were going to let him jump down, just so he could shoot it down and get the credit for it. He laughed as we separated.

The large formation—large for the time. Far ahead of the air-drome and took a course North in the direction of Hankow. We wanted reports from other pilots as well as from the ground. This mission was planned mainly to get the Jap Air Force into the air where we could get at it. We usually started when we began our attacks, but today we went low over Kweilin, and then to the North.

The Flying Tiger of the AVG jumped over the Chinese Sun and tears Jap flag.

When we climbed above the high overcast to twenty-thousand feet, and settled down for the three hundred miles ahead. In fifty-five minutes the clouds began to break and scatter, and we approached enemy territory with a cloudless sky and perfect visibility. Over to the right now in Kowloon, on Sanying Island, at the junction of the three rivers that meet near Canton in a figure like a trident, and the East River, the present top banks out in the Pacific.

As we carried out the long missions into Burma in the days that followed, I thought about how the spirit of our air warfare had changed from what I had heard about and read of the last World War in the East. There had been an element of roughness depicted in that first mission.

When we climbed above the high overcast to twenty-thousand feet, and settled down for the three hundred miles ahead. In fifty-five minutes the clouds began to break and scatter, and we approached enemy territory with a cloudless sky and perfect visibility. Over to the right now in Kowloon, on Sanying Island, at the junction of the three rivers that meet near Canton in a figure like a trident, and the East River, the present top banks out in the Pacific.

My wing man stayed with me and we tried on the second Zero together. I could see his tracer coming from my right. I closed in with a full-deflection shot and he spun in a circle. He climbed on up towards the bombers and flew right through my tracer. His ship turned in a slow, stilled too deliberate half-loop, almost out, then dove straight down. At first I thought that I had fired too low in front of him and had turned to evade the fire; then, as I watched the speeding ship go straight into the hills between the two hills, I knew I had shot the pilot. The ship did not burn until it crashed.

We crossed the East River, that flows to Canton, and the bombers turned ninety degrees to the right, away from Hongkong—and we swept towards Canton. The Zero's were going where the enemy were not expecting us. The General was about to outguess the Japanese as always. The small aerial screen over Hongkong watching and waiting, while on the ground at Canton, the enemy Zeros were waiting to take off after we had passed Hongkong or to intercept us on the way home. We bored in towards our targets—slipping on the East River at Canton and at Whanpoo Docks. We had special reports that two freighter ships were being loaded with spare airplane engines at Canton that morning.

When we climbed above the high overcast to twenty-thousand feet, and settled down for the three hundred miles ahead. In fifty-five minutes the clouds began to break and scatter, and we approached enemy territory with a cloudless sky and perfect visibility. Over to the right now in Kowloon, on Sanying Island, at the junction of the three rivers that meet near Canton in a figure like a trident, and the East River, the present top banks out in the Pacific.

JESUS, THE SON OF GOD

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 16:13-17; 17:1-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father, who is in heaven—Matthew 10:32.

"What think ye of Christ?" There is a question that every human being must answer. He asked it of Peter, Paul, and each of us makes some kind of reply. It is the touchstone that tries men, churches, organizations, and movements. The answer to it is of deep importance, for it determines character, condition, and destiny for this life, and hereafter.

Jesus, the Christ, the Son of the living God, is the center of the entire lesson. (16:13-17). With His crucifixion now only six months away, our Lord in preparation for it is about to make a more definite claim to Messiahship, and thus to establish the truth in the minds of His hearers.

Turning low, I came back for a better shot at the ack-ack. I turned back. After all, that which I could see had already exploded, and I wasn't hit yet. I was well out of place as another. My burst caught the engines of the transport, which I could see in the ack-ack. Two other bombers were jumping out of the door. I turned steeply and fired on the door, then into the fuselage and the engines had either been shot up or had been cut off, for they had stopped.

As I have missed several times, as it had done from some poor gasoline earlier in the flight, and I decided to let the ack-ack alone. I got away from White Cloud. Keeping just about down in the rice, I went straight North to the river. With Zero's trailing every few minutes, and then, I spent a miserable few minutes that seemed like a year until I got out of Jap territory.

KEEP

At His Side

" HE Red Cross is great because it reflects and is sustained by an idea that is lodged in the emotions and in the consciousness of all the people. That idea is the dignity of man, and the responsibility of all society toward its individual members."

— BASIL O'CONNOR, Chairman
The American National Red Cross

A busy girl hands Red Cross girl a newspaper, and a signpost in a busy way to some wounded soldier's post in a field hospital in France.

They are waiting to bring to the Red Cross girls' club in front of Berlin. Here, search — even bombings haven't destroyed order of these American Red Cross girls.

All Over the WORLD

TO the battle fronts, to enemy prison camps, to hospitals for the wounded, and to lonely outposts—there your Red Cross goes in its great humanitarian work!

A cheering word, a cup of American coffee, assistance in time of trouble. These things your Red Cross gifts bring to your sons in distant lands!

Blood plasma to retain life in a badly wounded boy; surgical dressings to bind his hurts. These too go from your Red Cross to world battlefields.

Keeping the Red Cross at HIS side is the personal responsibility of each American—
American people are the Red Cross!

A strong heart and plenty of brains are needed by Red Cross field directors in tropical heat of the Southwest Pacific, for supplies must reach boys in the foxholes.

Red Cross units rolled into Germany right behind troops. Here a clubmobile dispenses snacks and coffee before a building which housed German railroad workers.

Hot coffee and doughnuts to Negro anti-aircraft gunners brings touch of home to a distant battle area. The arm of the Red Cross is extended to every American wearing his government's uniform.

Plumes from patients of badly wounded York troops.

Dirty bags passed by Red Cross workers at home hearken back in Italian hospital. Containing pocket-size books, chewing gum, a comb and toilet articles, bags are passed out by hospital workers.

After a tough engagement on Saipan Island in distant Pacific, a Red Cross field director was on hand to pass out many blades, toothbrushes, toilet articles for marines who lost them in battle.

Welcome supplies in bleak German war prison camp! Red Cross food and clothing parcels arrive from U. S. in Geneva, Switzerland, for boys who will know freedom only after armistice.

Cigarettes from the folks at home! Millions of American Cigarettes are distributed by Red Cross workers to weary, battle-worn fighters on world battlefronts.

Killing boredom and awakening latent creative skills is job of Red Cross Arts and Skills workers in military hospitals back home. Here a wounded soldier learns to make trout and bass flies.

Red Cross Canteen Corps serves coffee and snacks on air strips to flyers crossing continent with military planes. In some places snack bars are set up.

The Red Cross Gray Lady is a familiar figure in every military hospital. One of her many tasks is to keep wounded Yanks happy. Here one gets a checker game going.

Red Cross Home Nursing courses taken by American housewives help to free professional nurses for the armed forces. This mother has kept a bed chart which she shows to the family doctor.

Assistance to disaster victims is a primary Red Cross responsibility. Red Cross workers like this volunteer nurse's aide feeding an injured child, are trained in the care of homeless or injured.

Making supplemental items to fill Army and Navy requests in wartime is a service of the Junior Red Cross. Here Junior Red Cross members assemble crutches which will go to military hospitals.
