Do not make things comfortable for yourself in such a way as to make them uncomfortable for others.

Chinese proverb.

Authorities at the Morehead State Teachers College are considerably alarmed over the possibility of losing a number of students this next school year, beginning in September, because of a local shortage of living quarters for married people.

The college administration knows that there will be a considerably high number of returning GI's that will come to Morehead next fall. They expect this to be the beginning of a rapid return to the institution's pre-war enrollment. But, most of these returning veterans, as well as a large number of other persons who have advised Morehead that they intend to come to school here, are married.

They try to bring their wives with them; in many instances both the husband and wife plan to attend college. But, the institution has no apartments or other housing facilities, where they might live. President Vaughan is calling on the people of Morehead to make available any space they might have for light housekeeping rooms and apartments.

He makes the drastic statement that unless such living quarters can be obtained that Morehead's enrollment will suffer considerably more than anyone may realize."

As we all know Morehead's prosperity depends, to a large degree, upon the enrollment at the college. The providing of light housekeeping rooms or other suitable living accommodations for these students, will not only prove a good investment for citizens and property owners, but will constitute a community and civic service.

The time to think about this is now. It is time to act to close up the doors of your home to a space in your home that could be converted into such quarters, you may be assured that you will have no trouble renting it. We can hardly make this plea stronger if we could have the need is vital. The future growth and prosperity of Morehead College depends, to a considerable extent, on what Morehead people do in this matter.

It stands to reason that if such quarters are not available these students are going elsewhere.

"Only the mind cannot be sent into exile." Though Ovid wrote that centuries ago, like all truths...

A PLACE OF REFUGE

A genuine history of our nation, it has been proven to us. Wave after wave of exiles from the strife, the hatreds, the discriminations and the strife of overcluttered Europe, have helped to settle and to build the nation which we hold to be the finest on earth.

Those who have come recently we call "refugees." However, the phrase wrongly sets them apart. Perhaps some among them are but refugee-seekers. Perhaps the minds of some are still overseas in their erstwhile homes. But these are but few among the great numbers who come here in the same spirit as our own ancestors, because America is the land of promise, the land where a man might still be free before his conscience and his God. Their bodies may have gone into exile, but their minds have enriched the country to which they have come.

Expressive of these Americans by choice, Earl Harrison, formerly United States Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, once told an impressive story.

"A few weeks ago a leading attorney in one of our large cities was addressing a group of foreign-born petitioners who were about to be sworn in as American citizens. The speaker opened his address by saying that he was going to read several lines from the Preamble to the Constitution. As soon as he started, almost the entire group of petitioners—more than two hundred strong—recited in unison and from memory the lines he was reading. Incidentally, the man who reported the incident said that the speaker was about the center of the room who had to "read" that part of the Preamble."

In commenting on his story, Mr. Harrison continued. "The days of unrestricted immigration history have gone forever. But in the light of our history and the fine record made here by those who have come from other lands, we will undoubtedly keep our gates reasonably open. From the humanitarian point of view, we cannot do otherwise from the point of self interest, new immigrants will be giving our country the strength that the infusion of new blood of fighting for a democratic way of life; always brings to it, geared to the necessity new Americans who, thanks to the colossal stupidity of the Nazi regime are rapidly enriching our nation with the fruits of their skills and their brains. There can be no doubt about the goals these people share in common with the rest of our population."

"Only the mind cannot be sent into exile." Let us rejoice that through our history America has been the refuge of the best from all nations and from all peoples."

Now, it seems there has just ended a fine season and the Club is on the go. Enthusiasm is so rife there is nothing to do but get in line and pay up the dues. Here is my dollar!

But still, there are principles involved, a philosophy in any club, this one is no exception, the membership stands for things, battles for them, sometimes against better opposition. Unless you stand back of these things you don't get on in the club.

As a beginner in the club I know it will take the same time to master the principles of conservation of wildlife, but in the meantime I am picking up many useful facts around the sidelines from casual talk with members. Even before joining and paying my dollar I found by buttonholing a member I could get nice tips on location of coveys, number in covey, roosting places, habits of game warden, dangerous land owners, et them he needs.

 Space doesn't permit mentioning traditions, but some members trace back to Old England when their lineage in a direct line were poachers on the estate preserves. At least one relative had a horse shot under him by the keeper's boar and other quarry, the horse incidentally belonging to the estate.

Of course these are only first impressions gained from the outside of the Club's conservation program. But I can't help feel that the members expect too quick a turnover in the production of wildlife—nature, it appears, requires more time than they anticipate.

Premium On Beef Production Is Announced Here

The War Food Administration has announced a beef production payment of 50¢ per hundred weight on all sales beginning May 19, according to information received by Mr. C. B. Turner, chairman of the Rowan County AAA Committee. The payment will be on good and choice cattle owned and fed by the applicant at least 90 days which are sold to a licensed slaughterer and which weigh 800 pounds or more. "All farmers should be advised," Mr. Turner added, "to retain evidence of sales."

CAPT. CROSTHWAITE MADE EDUCATION OFFICER

Mrs. Stella Crosthwaite has received a letter from her son, Captain Ted Crosthwaite. We publish the letter below:

Dear Mom, we've finished this part of the war and are relaxing before starting on the other part. Our V-E Day celebration was rather calm for several reasons—one—we knew the war was practically over for several days before the official end. Too, we were too close to the horror of war and our own dead, to celebrate without a serious note in our rejoicing.

Three—in Germany there isn't much opportunity for celebrating. Actually, our only formal program was a short church service.

My job doesn't amount to much now, so I am helping with the Group Educational program. I have been made advisement officer of the group, which is about the same as county superintendent. I am going to Paris for a short instructor training course for a week.

I must close, Love, Ted.

ROBERT SKAGGS LIEKREATH WAS PRISONER 27 MONTHS

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Leach received a letter this week from their nephew, Sgt. Hobart Skaggs, stating that he was free and in American hands after being held by the Germans for 27 months. Sgt. Skaggs is well-known in Morehead, having made his home at the Leach home for several months. He was captured in Carratene, Africa, and has been transferred from several different camps. He was one of those who was forced to march through deep snow to a camp in Germany, during February. He wrote on May 22, and stated that he was waiting for a plane to take him to Le Home, France, from which place he would take a ship to the states.

He should be home in a very short time.

MURVEL HOGGE, BUDDY WRITE FROM PACIFIC

Pfc. Murvel Hogge and his buddy, Pfc. Freddie Schoner, have written Murvel's mother, Mrs. Ivan Hogge. The boys have been in the thick of the fighting in the Pacific. They are members of the Fifth Marine Division. Murvel has been in service about a year and a half and has been overseas about six months.

The letter follows: May 2, 1945

Dear Mom: Just a few lines to let you know that I am well and getting along okay. I would certainly feel a lot better if I were home eating some good home-cooked meals of yours. Some day soon, I hope this mess will be over and we will all be home for good. Well, we have one job done, now all that remains are the Japs. I just hope they don't last much longer or I will be an old man when I get back.

Mom, they say the battle of Iwo Jima was the toughest battle the Marines have ever had. I am inclined to believe it. The casualties on that island were higher than on any other island in the Pacific. I don't think the people back home could actually realize what the boys went through of that island. It was like a nightmare or as a bad dream when all of the action was going on. They threw everything at us but the kitchen sink, but that didn't stop us, for we didn't quit till the island was secured. It was a long, hard grind, but we won and that is all that counts. The lives that were lost on Iwo Jima will always be remembered throughout the Marine Corps history.

My buddy and I are writing this letter together; his name is Freddie Schoner and he is from Pennsylvania. He is going to write a few lines now.

Hello, Mrs. Hogge. I am a very good friend of your son, and I just hope that the day won't be too far away. Your son is the best buddy I have here and we get along swell. I just hope we can stay in the same outfit until this thing is over, for having a good friend, especially when you are away from home, helps out a lot.

So far we both have been very lucky and I just hope our luck holds out. I will sign off and let Bob finish this letter. Here's wishing lots of good luck to you all, Freddie.

Well, Mom, there isn't much more I can write about, so I will close for now. Hoping to hear from you real soon. May God bless you until we are together again.

Your loving son, Murvel, USMC

NORMAN SPENCER SUFFERS LEG INJURY IN PACIFIC

Mr. and Mrs. Verner Spencer of this city were notified that their son, Pvt. Norman Spencer, was injured in action on April 22, at Okinawa Island. Pvt. Spencer is in a hospital on the Marianas, from which place he has written his parents. He entered the Marines about a year ago and has been overseas since last November. Mr. and Mrs. Spencer received a letter from Major D. Routh, Commander of the Division of which Pvt. Spencer is a member, as well as the Purple Heart awarded to their son.

The letter follows: My dear Mr. and Mrs. Spencer: A brief report has just been received that your son, Private Norman D. Spencer, USMC(R), sustained a fracture of the leg in action against the enemy on April 22, 1945 at Okinawa Island, Ryukyu Islands. The report further states that he was removed for medical treatment.

Your anxiety is realized, and you may be sure that any additional details or information received will be forwarded to you at the earliest possible moment. Please notify this office of any change in your address.

Sincerely yours, D. ROUTH, Major, U. S. Marine Corps.

Norman writes: Dear Family:

Well, here I am again. I will write a few lines if I can think of anything to say. I hope now soon I get some mail—that might make it easier to write. Boy, it is tiresome lying here all the time. I'd give ten dollars just to walk across the floor. It won't be too long before they take me out of this rig they have me in, and then I can at least lie on my side.

I'd give ten dollars just to walk across the floor. It won't be too long before they take me out of this rig they have me in, and then I can at least lie on my side.

Confidentially don't be surprised if I'm home by early fall, because I think they are sending me state-side as soon as I can stand the trip.

I will close now, but remember, I am fine. Don't forget to write every day.

Love always, Norman.

THE BRIGHTEST POST-WAR PICTURE. Illustration showing a map of Kentucky with labels for FARMER, MANUFACTURER, MERCHANT, WAGE-EARNER, and INVESTOR.

WHEN a new factory opens in a Kentucky town or city, it means a great deal more than new jobs and an added payroll for that community. The benefits spread in an ever-widening circle. The merchant who sells more goods to the factory's workers buys more from the wholesaler or manufacturer. All contribute more taxes with which to improve schools, build roads and pay for the necessary services of government. The farmers benefit, too. No farmer wants to be merely self-sufficient, to grow and process enough crops so that he and his family may live. He expects to sell a large part of what he produces and use the cash to buy the merchandise and implements he needs. When there are jobs for towns-people, he can sell at a good profit. When jobs are scarce, the farmer suffers along with the wage-earner. An adequate, dependable source of electric power plays an important part in getting new industry. Electricity is not an important cost factor in most production. That is one reason why the so-called "cheap" power of the subsidized TVA offers no special attraction to business men seeking new locations. The other reason is their instinctive dislike for a government corporation that does not pay its fair share of the war taxes or interest on its borrowed funds. Manufacturing concerns regard Kentucky as one of the bright spots of the nation, as they decentralize and seek smaller communities in which to locate their plants. Last year ten new plants began operation in communities served by this company. Already this year that many more have chosen locations as the map indicates. To the leaders in these enterprising communities goes the principal credit for this upsurge of industrial development. Our engineering staff has been glad to participate in the discussions. These engineers are at the call of the towns and cities we serve in working out such plans. One fact is especially gratifying. ★ There is no record of any industry rejecting a location in Kentucky because it considered electric rates unfair or the service unsatisfactory.

Commander Says Ora Richardson A "Real Soldier"

PVT. ORA RICHARDSON

Mrs. Carolyn Richardson, of Clearfield, has received the following letter concerning the death of her son, Pfc. Ora Richardson, who fell on the field of battle on March 23:

Dear Mrs. Richardson: As the commanding officer of your son, Pvt. Ora Richardson, I wish at this time to inform you of the circumstances pertaining to his death.

On the 23rd of March, 1945, our company was ordered to attack the enemy who was holding a hill. As we were advancing, a Jap machine gun fired on our son. The wounds, according to the medical reports, was machine gun fire perforating the chest. He was removed from all danger immediately and given prompt first aid treatment, but it was impossible to save him as he lived but a few minutes.

Ora was given a Protestant burial service by our chaplain. He was buried in the United States Army Forces Cemetery number Manila, Luzon, P. I., in grave number 100, row number 10, plot number 1.

Ora has been known and soldiered with your son for two years and I can assure you, Mrs. Richardson, that he was a fine soldier and gentleman in all respects. Ora was one who had many friends here in Morehead. It has been a great shock to you as a mother, giving a son for a cause that is seldom understood by very many people. God only knows why such things must happen. I trust that you may carry this burden which has been bestowed upon you, while you bravely tried to help finish.

Sincerely yours, Arbie W. Allen, Captain, Infantry Commanding

S. T. Branham Enters Race For County Judge

S. T. Branham today officially announced his candidacy for Judge of Rowan County on the Democratic ticket.

Mr. Branham was born on Lexington River in Rowan County in 1877. His parents moved to Morehead in 1880 and he was reared there, receiving his education in the common schools. Mr. Branham later returned to make his home in this county.

Mr. Branham has had extensive business experience, having been in business for himself for forty years. I believe that my business experience, plus my association and dealing with the public all my life, fit me for the office I seek; he said.

"If elected as your County Judge, it shall be my aim to operate the affairs of the county in a business way, treating all people in a courteous manner. I invite anyone to ascertain my honesty and integrity from the people whom I have done business through. Branham will shortly issue through these columns a complete statement to the voters."

CARTER ANNOUNCES FOR COUNTY JUDGE

BILL CARTER

Announcement is made in this issue of the Rowan County News of the candidacy of Bill Carter for the office of Judge of Rowan County.

Mr. Carter, a Democrat, is the present sheriff of Rowan County, expiring this office four years ago.

"I am seeking the County Judge's office at the request of many friends," Mr. Carter said. "If nominated and elected it shall be my purpose to deal fairly with everyone, and to operate the county as economically as possible."

A complete statement to the voters will be made in a later issue of The News by Mr. Carter.

Grand Jury Returns Six True Bills

These places of business are regulated we believe that the county will be in good shape. There may be others matters that should be investigated and looked into, but due to the fact that this is a busy time of the year and many jurors being needed so badly on their farms, we think it best to adjourn on this day.

"We have visited all the public buildings of the county and find them in fair condition. We do, however, find that the office of the County Attorney is in need of repair by either painting or papering and the plastering in this office should be repaired. We also think that the front hall of the courthouse needs repair by either papering or painting and the wood work done over."

"We further report that the vault of the County Clerk's office needs to be enlarged. We find that the Clerk does not have room to store his records and it is very important that these records be made secure."

"We find that the jail is in fairly poor condition and it appears that the paint on the outside of the jail has worn off and for the preservation of same, we recommend that the jail be repainted and such other repairs be done as are apparent."

"We visited the office of the Superintendent of Schools and find this office neat and in good condition. We also find that the front steps are rather high and there is no roadway to prevent persons from walking off these steps and we recommend that a railing be put at the front steps in order that accidents may be prevented. Had we visited the City Hall and inspected this building and find it kept in a very unsanitary condition. The odor of this building is very obnoxious and the building itself is in a very unsanitary condition. The jail part of the building needs repairs and replacements. The condition that is now in is unfit for habitation or for the purpose for which it is being used, on account of the filth that has accumulated in same."

WITHOUT YOUR PULPWOOD These war supplies could not be shipped!

Before the war is over thousands of ships will cross the vast Pacific, packed with all the hundreds of thousands of different items needed to fight a modern war.

MORE PULPWOOD NEEDED

Into the manufacture and packaging of all these supplies must go millions of cords of pulpwood. The new wartime uses of pulpwood have increased so fast that demand always runs far ahead of supply.

BIG JOB STILL AHEAD

The pulpwood shortage won't end with victory in Europe—it may become even more acute. Victory in the Pacific will cost incredible quantities of equipment and supplies—different types of equipment and differently packaged. So keep the ax swinging! We're going to need all the pulpwood you can cut for a long time to come.

Typewriter Production: Restrictions on production and delivery of typewriters have been removed through revocation of the governing order (L-54-a). Because all manufacturers have been heavily engaged in war production, they have been unable to produce enough typewriters to meet essential military and industrial requirements. This necessitated regulation of distribution of the typewriters that could be made.

World Supply: Despite general easing of some materials, it is very likely that natural rubber, hides and leather, cordage fibers, jute, lead, lumber and pulp and paper will remain tight during post V-E Day period. The Combined Raw Materials Board, an Anglo-American agency, announced these facts in its third annual report which was recently issued.

Experimental Models: Experimental models may now be produced and distributed for the purpose of promoting sales of greater consumer demand. The war agency which recently relaxed, also removes the restriction on exhibition of models to the trade or to the public. Previously, authorization had to be given by WPB to spend more than $5,000 in a single plant in any calendar month in making models.

Brown-Out: The brown-out order (U-9) which resulted in the saving of a half-million tons of coal during the period of the nation's most critical fuel shortage, has been revoked. Although restrictions on this order have been relaxed, all-out conservation of fuel in homes, offices and stores will continue to be necessary during the war with Japan.

Many Restrictions Will Be Relaxed, W.P.B. Sets Out: Specific actions have been taken by the War Production Board to adjust war controls to a one-front basis. Although regulations must and will be retained to protect war production and the essential war supporting activities during the war against Japan, controls will be relaxed wherever that can be safely done.

Action Taken To Adjust War Controls

Construction Of Lines By REA Gets Green Light

Construction of rural power lines by the Fleming-Mason REA, which includes Rowan County, has been given the green light by the War Production Board. The Electric Information Administration headquarters at St. Louis, J. K. Smith, manager of the cooperative program, REA loan funds, have already been allotted to the cooperative for this construction, and the funds can be drawn as rapidly as needed to pay for materials and construction costs. About 5,000 rural homes are scheduled to receive service from lines of the Fleming-Mason REA. The present method of fixing priorities will be the easiest way for the cooperative to conform with the new WPB order liberalizing the wartime restrictions on line construction. The WPB order authorizes REA systems to complete line extensions which will require not in excess of $25,000 worth of materials each.

Mr. J. K. Smith urged all persons interested in obtaining electric service to sign up at the Fleming-Mason REA office without delay, if they have not already done so. The present supply of materials for rural power line construction is limited and the number of signed consumers will be an important consideration in determining which lines are to be built first.

At REA headquarters in St. Louis, according to manager Smith, Acting Administrator William J. Neal told the agency's staff that REA faces "the biggest line construction job in history." Under the new WPB order, Neal declared, much of the construction which REA loan funds have already been allotted, but which has been held up because of the war, can proceed as rapidly as manufacturers can deliver materials and the REA systems can let contracts or hire the necessary labor for construction.

The authorized REA construction will create 50,000 man-years of employment nationally, according to Mr. Smith. Projects in this program already have been approved by REA and more than $100,000,000 in federal loan funds is available to finance them. This money is the difference between $22,000,000 allotted by REA as loans for specific projects from funds authorized by Congress, and the $78,000,000 actually advanced to the REA by the federal government.

Mr. Smith said that the new lines will make electric power available to farms to help them produce the food needed to win the war against Japan and the peace in Europe. In the last 28 months, the Fleming-Mason has extended service to approximately 800 farms under the WPB's wartime regulations authorizing the electrification of farms able to use electrical equipment in livestock, dairy, and poultry production. "Farms electrified by the Fleming-Mason REA under these regulations were able to make an important contribution toward the defeat of Germany because they had electric power to help save labor and produce food," Mr. Smith said. "The program we are starting now will help finish Japan and win the peace. It will provide jobs for boys coming home from the European war and help the farmers to live better and farm more efficiently."

"AT YOUR SERVICE"

INFORMATION ON G-I MATTERS

Below are Questions and Answers on G-I Matters furnishing such information many desire.

Question: I served honorably in the army for 22 months, and received a disability discharge. Am I eligible for compensation, and for the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights? How do I apply?
 Answer: You may be eligible for either a service-connected or non-service connected disability, and may file a claim with the nearest office of the Veterans' Administration. The service officer of any recognized veterans' organization, or the authorities of the local Red Cross chapter will gladly assist you in preparing and filing the claim, free of charge. If you had active service between September 16, 1940, and the conclusion of the present conflict, you may be eligible for the benefits of the GI Bill of Rights.

 Question: My son received an honorable discharge from the navy. While he was in service, I received an allowance. Should this allowance stop when he is discharged? Have I any rights as the dependent mother of a veteran?

 Answer: The dependency allowance automatically ceases when the serviceman is discharged. You are not eligible for any government benefit based on his service now that he is discharged. He may of course now as a civilian contribute to your support if he wishes. If your son should die at some future time as the result of a disability incurred in service for which he is eligible for compensation, you may be entitled to a death compensation amounting to $45 monthly, upon application to the Veterans' Administration.

Question: If a mother is receiving a family allowance from her son and then marries and the allowance stops because her dependency ceases, would she be entitled to it again when she separates from her second husband who does not contribute towards her support?
 Answer: If the son consents to a deduction of $22 from his service pay, and the mother submits acceptable proof of dependency, the family allowance would be resumed.

Question: A friend of mine is receiving a family allowance from her son, but son will receive a small social security pension when she reaches age 65. Would that affect her entitlement to the family allowance?
 Answer: Probably not if the parent has no other income. The regulations provide that the parent must be dependent upon the serviceman at least for substantial support. The case must be judged entirely on its own individual merits by the appropriate authority.

Question: If an aviator cadet was eliminated in his last month of advanced training and was then sent overseas as a gunner and completed his 35 missions, on his return to the States can he go back to school and try again for his commission?

 Answer: That is a matter for the military authorities to determine. The man should seek the advice of his commanding officer.
 Question: Is a dependency discharge an honor discharge? If not, what is it considered to be? If a man discharged for dependency eligible for the veterans' benefits?
 Answer: A man discharged for dependency would receive an honorable discharge and he would be eligible for veterans' benefits.

Question: Can the mother of a child that is in the custody of her first husband get a family allowance for that child as well as for one by her second husband who is in the armed forces?
 Answer: No, since the stepchild must reside in the household of the serviceman. The fact that the child resides in the household of the first husband makes the child ineligible to receive the family allowance.

Question: My husband is in the navy and before he married his insurance policy was sent to his mother in her name. He has just been released from a naval prison for several months, but is an A.W.O.L. and is returning to overseas duty. We have one child. Did the insurance stop while in prison and will he be able to duty start again? If so, who is entitled to the insurance now?
 Answer: If your husband's pay was stopped while he was in prison, then the premiums were not paid and the insurance would have lapsed. However, if some of his pay was still going to him the premiums would probably have been paid and the insurance would not have lapsed. The beneficiary would still be his mother unless he has since changed the beneficiary by notifying the Veterans' Administration to do so.

Question: I am a discharged soldier and I am not able to work steady. Would I be eligible for the business loan under the GI Bill of Rights to start a business in the community?
 Answer: To be eligible for the loan benefits of the GI Bill of Rights, a veteran must have active service on or after September 16, 1940, and the termination of the present war; have a discharge under conditions not less than dishonorable; and have had active service of at least 90 days (some part of it on or after September 16, 1940). If the veteran has a service-incurred disability, if he served less than 90 days. A man still in the service cannot apply for his wife or anyone else apply for him. In all types of loans the Veterans Administration will check to see that the veteran does not overpay any property he buys. In making farm and business loans there must be a showing that the veteran has ability and experience which assure a reasonable likelihood of success.

The procedure for all loans under the GI Bill is for the veteran to apply at any bank, building and loan association, farm credit association, or other approved lending agency, which will have all the necessary blanks and information and will, if it decides to make the loan, make the necessary application to the Veterans Administration for the government guarantee of 50 percent of such loan as it decides to make. The Veterans Administration must approve the terms which must protect the veteran as well as the lending agency.

Question: I have just received my first Class E allotment check made to me about three months ago by my son who was killed in action February 6. Would I be permitted to cash it now?
 Answer: Any checks which have not been deposited or cashed at time of death are null and void. They should be returned to the department that issued them. The amount of such checks will be credited to the pay of the allottee, and becomes part of the deceased allottee's estate.
