It might be that "the live... easy" is the summer for many people, but this does not hold true for Albert Stewart, Mr. Stewart is the busy director of Morehead's Writer's Workshop which is scheduled August 6-17.

The workshop has a twofold purpose: to stimulate and provide direction for the writer, and to help interested persons understand the writer's form of the creative imagination. Enrollees are eligible to receive two semester hours for English 390, or 400 if they have attended a previous session for credit.

Mr. Stewart has gathered a very fine staff for this summer's workshop. They come from various parts of the country and are among the most demanded personalities.

ORIGINALITY SHOW

Final Lit Work Marked By Projects And Papers

Students studying the works of Shakespeare under Dr. George Boswell, chairman of the Languages and Literature Department, and Introduction to Literature under Mrs. Mona Combs are finishing the semester's work in a novel manner: they are working on projects or original papers.

Introduction to Literature students had a choice of doing a research project or a research paper. The response to the freedom of selection resulted in a burst of originality and hard work among the students.

Dr. Boswell looks favorably to the model projects in a recent statement: "It seems to some of us in literature that, if adequately documented, the construction of models is a legitimate and praiseworthy substitute occasionally for research papers. In addition, they are picturesque and educational for others to view." His class in Shakespeare has taped the play Twelfth Night as a class project.

Projects undertaken for Mrs. Combs' classes which are completed or near completion are as follows:

A model of the Globe Theater which required a total of 120 hours to complete and has an approximate value of $50.

Models and puppets of Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims dressed in costumes of the time.

Dolls dressed to represent Shakespeare's most famous characters: Various items representing the Vikings, including a Viking ship, a Viking, shields, and weapons.

Two models of Stonehenge—one for how it once was and the other in the process of building.

Various reproductions of coats of arms of the ancestors of the students or of the authors studied.

A model of Heort, a mead hall in Beowulf, which was undertaken by one student. Due to the large amount of work involved the student was allowed to ask the Doran's maid, who now, after long hours of work possesses quite an amount of knowledge of Beowulf.

Student who chose to write papers (and many did because they felt they wanted the writing experience) chose topics that are original. Some of the topics are as follows: The Taverns of English Literature, Furniture of the Middle Ages, The Nun (Chaucer's), Shakespeare, Bacon of Marlowe, Combs' classes which are completed or near completion are as follows:

A model of the Globe Theater which required a total of 120 hours to complete and has an approximate value of $50.

Models and puppets of Chaucer's Canterbury pilgrims dressed in costumes of the time.

MSC Offers Widely Diversified Program

EDITOR'S NOTE: Besides the major sports of football, basketball, baseball, track, and tennis Morehead State College students have a wide range of activities to enter while residing on campus. The Trail Blazer intends to show some of these various recreational facilities on this issue's Picture Page.

Whoever said that variety was the spice of life certainly must have been thinking about Morehead State College for students here are blessed with a wide variety of activities to engage in during their spare time.

The Doran Student House serves as a prime example as it provides a pleasant spot in the cafeteria to dine, a recreation room in the basement where students can bowl, play table tennis, shuffleboard, chess, checkers, or pool; and a grill where students and faculty alike can meet for a daily coffee break and listen to records and talk.

The Trail Theater and the Morehead Drive-In Theater provide students with the opportunity to see the best in movies and screen entertainment.

The Morehead Lanes bowling alley and the newly constructed skating rink also offer excellent diversions for students who desire some physical activity to other forms of relaxation from college studies. Both are modern and well equipped to handle the demands made on them by Morehead students.

Also a key factor in Morehead's several recreational areas is the college lake which is located above North Men's Residence Hall. The lake offers students a variety of activities including picnicking, fishing, hiking, and a playground for the lovers of the outdoors.

Intramural sports also play a key part in MSC's program as the college offers a year round schedule of sports including: touch football, basketball, volleyball, ball, softball, tennis, shuffleboard, chess, golf, badminton, track meet, swimming, table tennis, pool, and bridge. For students who don't desire to participate in intramurals, Button Auditorium houses indoor physical educational facilities which are essential to a modern program in this important field of education. Located in Button are facilities for: badminton, volleyball, trampoline, tumbling, stunts, basketball, conditioning, climbing ropes, handball, table tennis, shuffleboard, stall bar exercises, weight training, chess, bingo, golf, wrestling, darts, paddle ball, checkers, dancing, and cards.

For students who desire to write or work on student publications there are opportunities on the staffs of the Raconteur or the Trail Blazer. There are also chances to write for other student publications such as the Inkpot which is a magazine of freshman writings.

Each year the Celebrity Series presents to MSC students the opportunity of seeing and hearing great artists perform. Presented in this year's series were Eddie Condon and his Jazz All-Stars, the "I Musici" concert, and other star performances.

Students who wish to spend the spare time studying find the Johnson Camden Library a storehouse of information, and an invaluable part of their college life. Facilities open to students in the library are the following rooms: Periodicals Room, Bound Periodicals Room, Unbound Periodicals Room, a browsing room, the James Still Room, the Kentucky Room, the Reference Room, the Materials Center, the Reserve Book Room, the Stacks, and the Lobby.

Ward Publishes Second Book

By Thomas Almeida
The "Department of War 1781-1783" is the title of a book recently published by the University of Pittsburgh Press and the author is Harry M. Ward.

Ward is a teacher with the history department at Morehead State College and has written the book on the history of the first thirteen years of the United States Department of War.

He views the department's growth as part of the development of a central government. Ward points out in his book that during this period the Department of War was unique in that it was under the same administration from the time of the Confederation to government under the Constitution.

He writes of the numerous problems and conflicts confronted during this period.

The book should be on the market by July and is selling at four dollars and a half per copy. It is the second book that Ward has published.

FROM COPY ROOM TO LIVING ROOM

Today's Newspapers Are Masters Of Organization

Since the Eighteenth Century when Addison and Steele combined forces to write their famous periodical The Tatler, newsmen have been plagued with the problem of selecting stories and preparing them for print.

"No job on a newspaper is more important than the desk work," wrote Charles H. Brown in his book, News Editing And Display, and had he written for years he could not have stressed the importance of this enough.

Though it sells for only a few cents, a paper is an expensive object—the work of thousands of men and women all over the world, the result of fabulous expenditures of money for talent and equipment.

A fundamental cog in this vast business, the deskman's job is of primary importance. They must evaluate the news in conformance with the character of the paper, which is determined by the owner and by reader acceptance.

This process is a long and involved one which concerns matters as deciding what to print (for a newspaper does not have space to publish everything), how long a story should be, and how much prominence it should be given.

When the stories are selected, reporters are assigned their work, and they begin the long process of collecting the news and the information which goes into a modern day story.

After this information is gathered and evaluated, the story is written and turned over to the copywriters.

Then, the long drawn out work of the copywriter begins which involves trimming the story to fit the space allotted it, checking for errors, correcting grammatical errors and sentence structures, making the story conform to the paper's style, removing story material that is potentially libelous or in bad taste, and then, writing up the content of the story and that is interesting in itself so the reader will feel impelled to read the story.

The basic reason for the copy reader's job is that news stories whether they come from the paper's own reporters, from a press association or from a public office, are not ready for publication when they reach editorial rooms.

For, when this deluge of material arrives, it must be culled for its news value and for mistakes which even the best of reporters make in writing their stories.

These editing processes lead to the most important work of the copy desk, the preparation of material for display. This includes the trimming of the story to space, writing headlines, instructing the composing room about the size of type and the width of column to be used and scheduling stories to pages.

The work of the copyreader is finally complete, however, it is an often unappreciated work of few public rewards. No laurels are handed to these men, but they have their own drama, when quick decisions of mind are demanded and front-page stories are suddenly turned up and the art and science: both critical and creative, of the copyreader goes into effect.

Stanley Walker once wrote that no work was considered so important as the copyreader's, and he "... is the unsung hero of the Fourth Estate."

From Copyroom To Reader
After the copy is proofed it is sent to the printers where it is set up into type trays and proofs are run from this. After these proofs have been double checked, they are returned to the composing room where they are again checked for corrections and typographical errors. The final plates of print are then arranged for use in the paper by a veteran make-up man, with the advertisements being placed first and the stories next.

The stories are arranged in order of their importance on the page. When the plates arrive at the pressroom they are locked on to one of the giant rollers in the press.

From here the presses take over and print the finished paper. The paper is then mechanically folded and sent to the mail room where they are tied in bundles. These bundles are loaded onto trucks which take them to awaiting newsmen and to the several hundred paper boys for circulation throughout the country.

Residents of Morehead, with their educational level is general higher than in the United States generally, may look forward to better financial rewards, on that basis.

Home Ec Style Show Presented May 10

By Phyllis Maze

On Thursday night, May 10, the annual Home Economics Club Style Show was presented by the club girls in room 208 of the new classroom building.

After several rehearsal sessions the girls were all "dressed up" in their new spring outfits. There was something unique about each costume in that it was made by its proud owner and model.

The theme for the show was "Fashions Out of This World." The program was arranged in days of the week and the appropriate costume for each day was displayed. The types of ensembles ranged from the proper picnic attire to the perfect formal for a spring dance.

Barbara Allen and Nancy Horst were the co-chairmen for this event and did an excellent job of planning and overseeing the show. Molly Campbell was narrator and the lighting effects were provided by Tom Smith.

Several out of town guests were present including parents of the club girls and other visitors.

City Slicker Visits Pappy

By Thomas Almeida
My pappy was a good man and fairly well liked by most folks, however, he had a real mean streak in him and used to raise heck whenever he didn't understand what was said or if he'd heard a "muf" and didn't care to hear "no mor."

Well, one day this fella came to our house and asked to be in for the night cause it was raining and floodin going on hereabouts.

Ya could just tell he was some kind of sassy city feller and boy, was he soaked to the bone.

We, being kind folks, asked him in to sit a spell, and if we had only known what he was in for when we opened our mouths we'd throw him back in the rain. Anyway, we dried him out and fed him.

Then, after he'd eat everything in sight he started to talk. As, dear friend, I'm here to tell ya, there ain't nobody that can match this feller word for word and still make as little sense doing it unless it's some small time politician making promises.

As things progressed I could see that pappy was about to lose his little patience he had so I switched on the radio for some news on the storm. The radio did not help any; it was full of static, an whenever we could pick something up that crazy photographer, the city slicker who worked for a big city paper, would bring in tellin of the paper he worked for and how important he was to the world.

He was really wrapped up in himself and kept telling us that a great fellow he was and that his pictures were worth a million words.

About this time pappy pointed to the door and said, "Friend, since you're so valuable there's no sense in our wasting your time, and for my money ya better leave because we've been waiting a plenty of 'fim' here all night long. Now scatt!"

Vance's Slants

By DAVID VANCE
(Trail Blazer Sports Editor)

Jerry Lucas for President of the United States. There are many sentiments exactly after hearing the legendary athlete speak at the recent Athletic Dinner at Morehead State College. I heard and read so much about Lucas, that I was beginning to have doubts as to his existence. I now feel that after all I said and done, more is done than with this great athlete. I have been greatly impressed by his athletic ability, but seeing, and speaking to him in person brought about even more respect for him as an individual off the hardwood.

He is not only a good speaker, but a kind and considerate person who could acquire respect even if he were Jerry Lucas the Student. But he isn't, he's Jerry Lucas the great. Perhaps the greatest basketball player in the history of the game, and one of the finest persons I have ever met.

Maybe I sound a little corny but I'm very sincere. This person has contributed more to the youth of America than the average individual can in a lifetime.

He is a devoted perfectionist who deserves much credit. The publicity he received is daily relinquished.

So here's a sincere tip of the hat to Jerry Lucas from Vance's Slants.

Lucas said he plans to graduate next December and possibly go on to law school. There is no doubt, however, that he will be a success in whatever he attempts.

I could go on and on about Lucas but there's a sports column to be written.

INTRAMURALS

The intramural track meet was a real success. There was a great amount of enthusiasm by the students and this, along with the hard work of Max Benton and crew, made it one of the finer events of the year.

Quite a few of the times were quite respectable also. Bob Finn threw the shot farther than any member of Morehead's shot team has all year—how about that Coach Bentley?

Russ Campbell's 10.4 time for the 100 yard dash shows why he is such a great fine buster. Too bad Dennis Doyle is so good at baseball. His 20' 4 1/2" broad jump would be good for points in any track meet.

Considering that a lot of boys were out of shape I would say that the coaching staff just might find some talent on campus.

Speaking of intramurals, Arnold Harmon and that department must be working over time.

Besides the track meet, on schedule is a tennis meet, and a golf match which takes place this week. There have been 15 entrants in the golf tourney so if you are interested, contact Harmon at that intramural office. If you can't beat 123 don't get in it—that's what I shoot.

It's a four-man duel for the intramural trophy. The award, which is given according to points acquired over the year, should go to either Steve Stein, Gerald Woodard, John Jones, or Dick Robinson. Robinson won it last year. Stein picked up 20 points recently, however, in the pea-knuckle tourney—Go Stinky!

Morehead sure has a crack 400 relay team. They broke their own record Friday against Marshall as they ran it in 42.8 seconds. That's something like 9.2 seconds per man. Those fellows who comprise this team are: Howard Murphy (naturally), Jim Scoobe (naturally), Marshall Banks (naturally) and Steve Stein (naturally). They're just naturally good.

SPORTS WORLD

And now, around the sports world in 90 words (don't count 'em). I would like to print an apology or something like that to all fans of Steve Hamilton. Steve now plays for the Washington Baseball club, not Cleveland.

The former basketball great from Morehead made quite a debut for himself recently. The 6' 7" southpaw retired 14 men in a row last week before his opponents came out to him. But it's a fine performance and he's pretty cotton pickin' proud of him.

Now that Hamilton is in the spotlight, it seems to be coming a tad with Morehead athletes.

Granny Williams has reported that he will play with the Pittsburgh Rens of the American League. He will receive his contract in June and reports to the team on October 5.

I think he'll tear that league up with those long jets and unorthodox jumpers of his. Both of them are usually shot from 25 feet or better, and that's three points in that league!

Ed Nee reports to Detroit in September. I may be prejudice about these boys but I think Nee will acquire a name for himself in the big leagues also. He has all the essentials. A very deadly hook, and a tremendous jumper from the head of the key. He's also an adequate rebounder and has very quick moves for a man his size. However, the way those guys are growing these days, he just might have to play guard. And come to think of it, I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see 6' 8" guard in the near future.

Well, I think I've covered just about everything but the nightly checker games at North Men's Hall, so as my old idol would say—that's all for now chillun—Anyone interested in forming a Jerry Lucas Fan Club?

Islanders And 205's Van I-M Softball

By Max Benton

(Director of Intramurals)

With the season moving into the final week, the defending champs are struggling for a play-off berth and two dark horses appear headed for league titles.

The Islanders have put together great team balance in the hitting department and excellent defensive play for a 6.0 record to top the National League standings.

The defending champs, the Heads, at press time hold a one-half game lead over the Peewees and Red Devils in their struggle to gain a play-off berth. The Heads were upset by a determined Campus Club Colts team to help dim their hopes.

The Islanders have been pushed in only one of his six contests, that being a 8-4 victory over the Colts.

The Peewees, a farm club of the Heads, have made a good showing in their first season.

One of the biggest surprises this year have been the 205's. They have pulled past six teams to top the American league standings.

The 205's upset a strong Met team and have one tough contest remaining in their way to the march to a league title. This is with the defending champ Animals. Tied with the 205's in games won, but in second place on a percentage basis, is the strong Met team.

THE WINNERS!!!—Vaughn Caudill, anchor man for the Collegiate Knights bicycle team, streaks across the finish line to take home the "Little 200" bike held May 5. The Knights won the title in record-breaking time for the annual 40-lap event put on each year by the Campus Club.

Eagles Defeat Marshall 97-33

Morehead's progressing track team won all but three events last Friday to defeat Marshall University by a score of 97-33 at Jayne Stadium.

The Big Green managed victories in their way to the march to a league title. This is with the defending champ Animals. Tied with the 205's in games won, but in second place on a percentage basis, is the strong Met team.

The 400 relay team cracked another record, running the event in 42.8 seconds. They are Howard Murphy, Steve Stein, Jim Scoobe, and Marshall Banks.

Stein also won the 400 run with a very respectable 1:00.75. Scoobe won the 220 low hurdle, and placed third in the broad jump. Murphy and Banks combined to give Morehead first and second in the dashes. Murphy running the 100 in 9.85.

Mickey Wells wanted the "Rabbit" leaped 21' 10" in the broad jump and cleared 5' 10" in the high jump to tie with Bob Hoover for honors in that event.

The combination of Herbert Johnson, and Edmonds took all three distance runs as Johnson was able to manage a very good 2:02.9 timing in the 800.

Norm Peckey won the javelin throw with a toss of 140' 7 1/2". He was followed by Leston Stewart in that event.

Vic Cole, a freshman who has acquired quite a name for himself at Morehead and in the Ohio Valley Conference, won the 120 high hurdles in a time of 15.0.

The cotton-topped speedster from Detroit, Michigan broke a school record in that event recently with a clocking of 14.7 seconds.

Coach Earl Bentley's thinlins have shown steady improvement throughout the season and are expected to be in contention for the OVC crown this year.

Moose Stewart

Sports Shot Of The Week

Mantle, Maris, and "Moose".

That's what sports fans will be hearing and reading some day. Instead of M and M, it will be M, M, and M.

Any baseball fan at Morehead or in the Ohio Valley Conference knows who we're speaking of. It's none other than Leston "Moose" Stewart, possibly one of the major league prospects to ever don an Eagle uniform.

Moose has his name at the top of the list in several categories in the OVC this season and still has two more years left at Morehead, that is unless one of the big league ball clubs doesn't grab him first.

In the most recent OVC statistics released, Stewart was leading the league in batting average with a .417 average and has slugged five home runs.

He was also leading in RBI's and is in the running in several other categories.

Stewart is a Morehead native where he vanned the Breckinridge Training School during his high school days.

He was one of the leading hitters in the OVC last year as a freshman, and is also noted for his fine fielding at the first base position.

Moose has all the credentials to make the majors. He is big (6' 2", 210 pounds) and has a very good eye.

He has already been approached by various big league clubs but would like to get his education before considering anything definite.

The easy-speaking athlete could go far with the right breaks, so let's hope he gets them.

Maybe they won't call him Moose in the big leagues, but you can bet your bottom dollar we will read some day of Leston Stewart—Maybe they'll call him "Babe".

Jerry Lucas Describes 'Essentials Of Success' At Athletic Dinner

By David Vance

The annual Athletic Recognition Dinner was held Thursday, May 10, with Jerry Lucas, basketball great from Ohio State as its guest speaker.

A great crowd turned out for the event held to honor those athletes who have contributed so very much to Morehead over the past season.

Lucas, a three-time All-American himself, emphasized the importance of building character while entering his speech around the recognition of success.

He told of his great experiences during his basketball days and how he was especially pleased with his experiences representing the United States on the Olympic team in Rome, Italy and Russia.

Lucas said that the essentials of success could be acquired by team work, sacrifice, desire and motivation, leadership, and possibly most important, a correct mental attitude of both coach and team.

Lucas added touches of humor throughout his speech to prove his worth as a speaker as well as a great basketball player.

He told of his experiences with the Russian center of the Olympic Games. He referred to him as "Big John" because he stood 7' 5" and weighed 300 pounds. He said however that John was a friendly, gentle person for whom he gained much respect.

Lucas also spoke of his earlier days as a basketball player and how he made his introduction to the game. He played 15 seconds throughout the season in the fourth grade and committed a foul during that time.

After this he said he was determined to do good and told of his constant practice.

The following year, and for the next eight years, his teams lost only one game. That being the finals of the state tournament his senior year.

He said that the past four years at Ohio State have been the most wonderful in his life and stated "if I had it to do over again, I would not change a thing."

In closing his speech, the famous athlete used an allegory of the fable of the blind men and the elephant to tell of his life.

He simply put the man together on the back of the man, and the world went together easily.

GUEST SPEAKER—Jerry Lucas, guest speaker at the annual Athletic Recognition Dinner held Thursday night in the cafeteria, is shown being interviewed by Trail Blazer Sports Editor Dave Vance. Lucas, a three-time All-American basketball player, is a brother of Roy Lucas who plays on Morehead's football team.

Lucas said "If we could put all men together right, this world would be much better."

In introducing Lucas, Toastmaster Lloyd Cassity referred to him as "perhaps the greatest basketball player that ever lived."

The modest athlete then got up and provided himself as an equally qualified speaker.

Tribute was paid to many athletes during the night, and Morehead's three graduating basketball players, Ed Noel, Tom Hamilton, and Granville Williams received flowers which the school received by the football players who are leaving.

Lucas remained here for the week end with his younger brother, an athlete in his own right. Roy plays end on the MSU Gold football team.

English In The Home

Arthur and Peggy English had just finished pulling down all the shades and turning off the lights when the car drove up along the curb and pulled into the driveway. As the ten, tromping feet thudded across the porch, Peggy held her breath and sat very still. The bell pealed once . . . twice . . . no sound from within the house. "Maybe they will go home," Peggy hoped. But then, from the upstairs, the baby began to howl. It was obvious that there was no escape. Both Peggy and Arthur went into action, one to quiet the baby, the other, tripping over the coffee table in this process, to open the door.

"Cousin Arthur, you old sea dog, you're a sight for sore eyes," Clarence Cliche made a gurgling sound as he passed through the hall and collapsed into Arthur's favorite chair. Catherine Cliche whisked past Arthur in a flash and uttered her usual "How do you do?", an expression she greeted him with every time they met. The rest of the menagerie, the couple's children, three in number, made a direct beeline for the kitchen where they were sure to break at least four good dishes.

"Well Clarence," Arthur opened the conversation with a notable lack of spirit. "It has been almost a whole month since you the little family dropped in." The statement was backed up with the sound of a splintering cookie jar in the kitchen.

"A month o' Sundays, Arthur. A month o' Sundays," Clarence answered with the expression he always used when measuring time.

"Clarence was just dead on his feet, dead as a doornail, when he got home but we just had to drive around a spee and see our cousins and let them see us and . . ." Catherine babbled on for a few moments with no particular audience and then finally gave up the whole effort of holding up her end of the conversation.

By this time, Peggy was cleaning up the mess in the kitchen and saving the children their second evening meal. "How," inquired Arthur, "have the children been doing in school this month?"

"Well, the older two are slow as Christmas, slow as Christmas. But now you take the youngest, sharp as a tack, sharp as a tack," Clarence beamed as the baby of the family wiped his jelly-covered fingers on one of the curtains.

"No, you keep him," Peggy thought but kept the comment to herself. Instead, she asked if anyone would care for anything to eat. The children and Catherine, who, when wearing a red dress could be mistaken for a schoolhouse, were hungry as bears.

So it was that the Cliches chafed for almost three hours. By 11:00 p.m., the Cliches, having done (or overdone) their duty were on their way home.

It would seem that the Cliches, though well home, The Englishes, worn out, went to bed, versed in often-used expressions had never heard, "a little goes a long way." They wore out their welcome in the English household as cliches so frequently do in the English language. Ah well, to paraphrase Clarence, such is English, such is English.

Moreheadians Rank High In Education

Progress is being made in education in Morehead.

Young people are staying in school longer and getting more education, presumably, than the same age group got 10 years ago.

The fact that there are advantages that flow from more complete schooling is rapidly seeping through to the current student body. They have come to realize, as their parents already had, that education pays off — at least financially.

Figures gathered during the recent national census and just released show that the amount of formal education acquired by the average Morehead resident, by the time has reached age 25, is 12.2 years.

That is a greater amount of schooling than was reported in other parts of the United States, 10.6 years. In the East South Central States it is 8.8 years.

The tendency of the present generation of students to remain in school longer is evident in most sections of the country. Many of them, however, are continuing for reasons other than the mere desire for intellectual development, if appears.

They have become impressed by the many reports emanating from government and industry that education and job opportunities go hand-in-hand.

One recent study, by the University of Michigan, shows that over 33 percent of those who work for others and do not have a high school diploma found themselves unemployed at some time during the past five years. By contrast, only 16 percent of those with some training beyond high school were similarly affected.

Some specific figures on how a person's earning capacity varies with the amount of schooling he has under his belt are given by the U.S. Department of Labor.

In its report on the money value of an education, it lists $182,000 as the average lifetime income for a man who is an elementary school graduate, $258,000 for a high school graduate and $435,000 for a college graduate.

ANYONE FOR MARS?

Chances are there's more than one budding astronaut in this bright-eyed group. As in any other classroom in the land, there are probably several potential teachers, too . . . along with a sprinkling of doctors, scientists, linguists, engineers and poets.

Let's hope so.

Let's hope that all the bright-eyed youngsters in all the classrooms in this great country of ours will have opportunity to make the most of their God-given talents. Let's hope they go to first-rate colleges and universities, where they will be trained to be useful and productive citizens. We're going to need them all in the critical years that lie ahead.

Yet what are their chances?

Today the college classroom, the place where future brainpower is generated, is being seriously weakened by two alarming trends: (1) Low faculty salaries are driving great numbers of gifted teachers into other fields, and doing little to attract talented young people to the teaching profession. And (2) physical facilities, in some cases already inadequate, are not being expanded to take care of mushrooming enrollments. (College applications are expected to double within ten years!)

This is a serious situation, and we must do something about it now! Our future as a nation depends on it. Won't you help? Support the college of your choice. Help it to pay teachers decent salaries and the respect they so richly deserve. Help it to build the classrooms, laboratories and libraries that will be so desperately needed by 1970. The rewards will be greater than you think.

It's important for you to know what the college crisis means to you. Write for a free booklet to: HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, New York.

Doran Drew By Name

It has long been practiced that parents name their children for outstanding public names.

Our own President and First Lady have a score of little names and girls named after them by parents.

The most recent is Doran Drew Whisman, a baby boy born to Mr. and Mrs. John Whisman on April 29. His father is a key figure in the Governor's economic program.

Doran, Drew at birth weighed eight pounds and three ounces.

People who worry about the books that young people read might find a squirt at some of the magazines.

MSC Students Frolic In Spring Sunshine

By Carol Griaby

Apparently students are getting their books and worries aside and bringing out their big, wholesome smiles that somehow seem to show a contentment and a delight in living.

Pleasant as the weather is and as self-evident as the enchantment of park benches is, the present state can present some hair-raising experiences for all of us.

If you have tried to drive your car lately, planned to take a ride in someone's car, and a dashed frantically across the boulevard silently praying as you dodge the cars and incoming pedestrians, you no doubt realize that it is that time of year again.

You will probably assume (as many other disillusioned students like yourself have) that everyone is out for a drive and now you will have a chance to sit down in the grill.

As you make your way into the grill you will find a great crowd of students at least waiting at the counter, the tables will all be taken, students will be doubled up two in a chair. Other beady eyed students stand around hungrily awaiting the chance to seize the chair of some unsuspecting lady who has raised up momentarily to straighten her skirt.

Perhaps you are naive enough to secretly tell yourself that now is a good time to get the mail. If this is your expectation, you are in for a surprise.

Students in various stooping and stretching positions will be clutching on to the knobs of their mail boxes as other students, who have already got their mail, go rushing by. When this happens to you, firmness is in order—lest you be dragged past your box and out into the boulevard for another game of "dodge 'em".

Ladies who enjoy a deep tan will be sadly disappointed when they are unable to find space behind Fields Hall for a sun bath. If, however, you are very thin or pick bad hours or rainy days, your troubles are over.

Carefree students are all about us! Spring is here! All anti-social students who do not enjoy the sun or the rustle and bustle of spring are urged to attend all classes. News is going around that there is only one in a chair (which is scarcely ever jerked from under one), no loud laughing or talking, no large crowd to push to pass your class room, and wheeled vehicles with horns are not permitted.

Friends, Romans, Countrymen — The Latin Club of Morehead State College will hold its annual banquet this year in Elysian Fields of the underworld.

Members who plan to attend, along with their honored guests, will feast together at 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 19 in the basement of Fields Hall. From here they will journey through the use of the imagination to the fabled underworld of the Romans, Gods, and Goddesses. Imagination will be aided by the consuming of student choice. All members are urged to attend.

Girl Watcher's Guide

Presented by Pall Mall Famous Cigarettes

Girl watchers are honorable men

LESSON 6-Who may watch

Any male is eligible to become a girl watcher. There is no age limit, although most girl watchers are over ten and under one hundred and are male. There are no height or weight requirements, although taller men enjoy an obvious advantage at crowded parties. The only strict requirement is one of character. The girl watcher is a man of honor. Since he can't possibly take notes, as the bird watcher does, we must rely on his word. Therefore, when an experienced girl watcher tells you he saw nine beautiful girls while on his way to class, he saw nine beautiful girls. And when he tells you his Pall Mall is the cigarette of the century, believe him. It is.
