

Issue Warrant For Inmate Of Pendleton

Records Confusing As To Whereabouts Of Accused On March 16

A warrant charging Harlan Riley, 21, an inmate of the Indiana Reformatory at Pendleton, Ind., with murder was issued this week by Rowan County Judge Luther Bradley. The warrant was sent to Governor Simeon Willis, with a request that extradition papers be issued.

Although records at the Pendleton Reformatory show that Riley was an inmate there on March 16, the date that the body of Clister Hinton, of the North Fork section, was found on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad tracks in Morehead, County Attorney Elijah M. Hodge said he was confident that the prison records had added the dates of Riley's escape and capture.

Local officials pointed out that Riley had been in the reformatory since he was 18, but that he was not in the 18th that he was captured at Jackson, and according to officials there they had word of his escape on the 16th.

Riley said he confessed Hinton's murder because "I couldn't get it off my conscience."

According to the story he told Sheriff Sam Green and Morehead Chief of Police Ed Hall, he escaped from Pendleton, where he was serving a five year sentence for grand larceny, on March 15, and headed for Breathitt County.

The freight train he was riding carried him past Winchester and he got off at Morehead.

Riley said he met a man (Ben) who he believed to be Hinton, on the railroad tracks in Morehead and asked him for money "to get something to eat." He said that Hinton called him a "son of a bitch" and started to hit him. Riley said he told Hinton that he was a "son of a bitch" and hit him back. Riley said he hit him and in a few minutes a passenger train came and he and I watched it run over him.

Hinton was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hinton. It was believed at first that he had died by accident, but members of the family claimed "foul play" at the time.

The ordinance levying a tax on taxi cabs was passed at the last meeting of the Morehead City Council.

The ordinance providing that there shall be a tax of $100 for the first taxi licensed by each owner and $25 for each additional cab.

Morehead probably has more taxi-cabs than any city its size in Kentucky. Four taxicab companies operate here, but it is often difficult to secure a taxi.

The council also passed an ordinance governing parking regulations. One member of the council said this ordinance was passed to clarify the "situation" that has existed here, but it is often difficult to secure a taxi.

Is This to Happen to Morehead Again?

An Editorial

The Morehead State Teachers College, weakened and retarded through many years by political maneuvering and unfavorable publicity, faces another crisis, probably the greatest in its history. The gathering storm threatens to sweep over one of Kentucky's greatest institutions with repercussions that will injure Morehead and all of Rowan County for years to come.

It is no longer a question but a fact that a movement has been launched to oust Dr. William H. Vaughan as President of the institution. For many months it has been handled quietly, but it has now broken into public view. The students and the people of the community are again asking themselves, "What is wrong at Morehead?"

In the last 18 years Morehead has had four Presidents. The three Presidents preceding Dr. Vaughan were either disgraced or resigned by request. No other state college in Kentucky has fired a president in 25 years or longer. Is it any wonder that the taxpayers of Kentucky are asking their eyes at Morehead wanting to know, "What is the matter?"

Dr. Vaughan has been President of Morehead through the trying war period when the enrollment has been curtailed and operating expenditures at a minimum. He has risked his faith and honesty for Morehead and he is now put in the position of the post-war plans which were formulated to make this a greater institution. No one would be rash enough to prefer any other President to Dr. Vaughan.

It is almost inconceivable that Morehead, of all state colleges, would throw its President, without very, very substantial reasons. Morehead is the one institution in the Commonwealth that can ill afford change, and this is the one term after the unfortunate incident at Morehead and the dismissal of Dr. Babb and the lamentable circumstances that existed in the school.

Dr. Babb left as the head of the school. Of all state colleges Morehead is the most vulnerable to adverse criticism would be injured more severely than if any like incident occurred at another state supported institution of higher learning.

Should Morehead lose its President, without some substantial change, the Democrats will naturally seize upon the incident as a political issue, and will, no doubt, inject it in next year's election, and especially in the next Governor's campaign. All of which will be detrimental to Morehead, even though it might be a political campaigning victory for the Democrats.

It seems to be agreed between both thinking Democrats and Republicans, that barring some unforeseen circumstance, Kentucky will go Democratic and that party will name the next Governor and legislature. Then, the Democrats will, as a matter of course, use the ousting of Dr. Vaughan as the lever to change the President and Morehead will go through the same unsavory situation again. It is a vicious cycle which has caught Morehead in its voracious jaws and is halted now by the institution that is the very lifeblood of this community faces disaster.

It is true that Dr. Vaughan is registered as a Democrat. But, a record of his appointment to Morehead shows, in no cases, where politics have entered the decision. As a matter of fact and record he has attempted to steer completely from politics, and has needed some Democrat leaders and been refused to accept their proposals. Whether a man is a Democrat or Republican has never entered into Dr. Vaughan's recommendations. If ever a man has tried to divorce politics from all institution—where politics should be eradicated—that man has been President Vaughan.

Bringing the situation closer to home—what is in Morehead itself where the college's troubles seem to always start—is almost unbelievable that the two local members of the Board of Regents, with a first hand knowledge of Morehead's past troubles, would now seek or desire a change in the Presidency.

Supt. of Schools Roy Cornette has been a moving factor in education in Eastern Kentucky for many years. He rightfully weathered the initial controversies that came in the Superintendent's office when he took charge. By doing the right thing and working toward a betterment of the schools of Rowan County he has gained support for himself and for his program.

We commend Supt. Cornette's school program, and we fully realize that he had to overcome many obstacles, prejudices and political interference to accomplish his aims. Mr. Cornette has been a good Superintendent.

The other local member of the Board of Regents is Mrs. Allie W. Young. Morehead proudly refers to Allie Young as the founder of Morehead College. Certainly, she has been a factor for many years in the building of Morehead and to give this city and eastern Kentucky a fine college.

The record of Mrs. Young as a member of the Board of Regents has been good. Her votes have apparently been cast for the best interests of the institution that her husband loved.

Mrs. Young has seen Morehead State College come through some perilous times. She, better than anyone else, knows that Morehead is in no position to know anything about the future of the college, and she is in a large measure, by her vote on May 21.

The public opinion of the student body of Morehead's faculty—and of the business men and leaders of this community is now crystallizing. The preponderant weight of that public opinion wants no change at Morehead—they know that if the college is left alone it will continue to grow—it will continue to be the pillar of education in Eastern Kentucky.

That the same situation at the college is so dangerous and fraught with so much dynamite that business men, property owners and citizens of Morehead, all vitally and personally interested in this institution, should avail themselves of all the facts. All of us have a personal and a financial stake in Morehead College.

There exists the possibility of Morehead being discredited by the Southern Association and the American Association of Teachers Colleges. That is exactly what happened in Georgia and Oklahoma in cases very much similar to Morehead's. To oust a President without charges calls for investigation by the accrediting associations. It's hard to think that this could happen here—but, it can.

Board of Regents Defers Action On Vaughan's Contract

"Politely" Requested To Leave

In a session filled with "tension" the Morehead College Board of Regents decided Tuesday to defer action on the renewal of the contract of Dr. William H. Vaughan as President of the institution until May 21.

No mention was made of Dr. Vaughan's contract at the closed session, according to Supt. of Instruction John Fred Williams, ex officio chairman. The Regents met down town prior to the regularly scheduled session and decided to take no action, and to adjourn the meeting until the third Tuesday of next month.

Weed Growers Discuss Ways Of Marketing

D. C. Caudill Is Named Temporary
Chairman of Group

Thirty-five Rowan County tobacco growers met at the Court House Saturday afternoon, April 20 to discuss possible improvements in methods of marketing tobacco.

D. C. Caudill acted as temporary chairman until the chairman and secretary could be elected for the meeting. Dave Caudill was elected chairman of the tobacco growers meeting and Leonard Hall was elected secretary. Mr. Caudill explained the purpose of the meeting and asked the suggestions of the other committees.

There was a great deal of discussion and finally the chairman appointed a committee which would make recommendations which would be brought up by the different groups. This committee was made up of Bill Garey, Joe McBrayer, Dan Brane, J. C. Eldridge, and Leonard Hall.

The committee's recommendations were: first, that arrangements be made so that the burley growers association could handle the burley crop at parity plus labor cost. This would guarantee that the same grade of tobacco would be marketed through out the marketing season.

Second, that foreign markets be developed for burley tobacco. These recommendations were adopted and Mr. Dave Caudill was elected to represent the Rowan County burley growers at a meeting at Lexington, May 7th. Mr. Johnson was elected alternate. Mr. Butler promised to attend the meeting but only one from each county has the power of voting.

Warning Issued To Watch Tobacco Beds At This Time

Rowan County tobacco growers are finding that the plants in some of the beds have stopped growing and that insects are causing some damage. Small tobacco plants have very shallow roots and even a brief dry spell will stunt their growth. Since the plants are not growing any damage that the bugs and insects cause seems to be of little importance. The plants do not have a chance to outgrow this damage.

Farmers who have beds on dry ground should water their beds if it does not rain by the last of the week. It is very important that the beds be watered. At least 100 gallons of water should be put on a bed 100 feet long and 8 feet wide. A light application of water every day more than makes up for the lack of rain. It is important to remember that once you start watering it is necessary to continue watering until it rains.

The Regents met down town prior to the regularly scheduled session and decided to take no action, and to adjourn the meeting until the third Tuesday of next month.

Soon after going in session the Board made it known, according to the Louisville Courier-Journal, that they wanted no reporters present. Joe Reister, staff writer for the Courier-Journal who was present at the meeting, after asking Williams to be allowed to attend, left the room after about five minutes. Reister reported in his newspaper that the Regents didn't want him present.

The Courier-Journal took a poll, at random, of Morehead College students in an effort to ascertain "What the trouble at Morehead is." Reister reported that the student body wanted Vaughan retained. "The student body is behind the President," he reported.

All the members of the Board were present, including Dr. J. M. Rose of Olive Hill, who was appointed last week, to succeed Donald H. Fulton.

The Board appointed Dr. Hugh Shaffer as head of the Department of Education at Ashland. Dr. Shaffer was recently discharged from the Navy, is a native of Morgantown, W. Va. and was director of the state teaching school at the University of Oregon. He will assume his duties immediately.

Miss Ione Chapman was named head librarian at Ashland, effective September 1. She is, at present, the head librarian at Western State College in Gunnison, Colorado.

The appointment of Stanley Radjans as Assistant Coach was approved unanimously. Duell Williams of Johnson County was named field man for the college on recommendation of Dr. Vaughan.

Dr. Vaughan recommended that lights be installed at Jayne Memorial Stadium for night football and other athletic activities, but the Board deferred action on this until the May 21st meeting. This means that the lighting for Morehead's horse show scheduled for July 11, but that the Board has announced they could arrange temporary lighting for that exhibition.

The seven candidates for May Queen, nominated in Morehead College chapel on Thursday, April 18, are: Dorothy McKinney, Maxine O'Brien, Marie Phillips, Lena Henry, Aleene Hopkins, Betty Wilson, and Verda L. Watson.

The final election will be held in chapel on May 2. The candidate with the highest number of votes will be Queen, with the other six as Queen's attendants.

The election committee is composed of Mildred Durham, Jack Carson, and Garbo Page.

May 18, 1946 is designated as the official May Day for Morehead College. The program committee for the day includes Mr. Mays, Mrs. Howard, Miss Henderson, Dorsey Wilson, Evelyn Durham, Verda L. Watson, Henry Bailey, Sam Prather, Joan Cecil, Jimmy Bogges, and Sue Wood.

Horse Show and Harvest Festival

Efforts to combine the Horse show, sponsored by the Morehead Board of Trade and the Rowan County Harvest Festival, an annual performance staged by the Rowan County Farmers Club and other groups, failed to materialize this year.

Sponsors of the Horse show felt that they should hold their exhibition in July because they would be in a position to get better horses here at that time. The Morehead Horse Show will precede the nation's best, and the July 11 date selected is not in conflict with like performances elsewhere. July is a little early for the Harvest Festival—the name itself implying that it is a fall show.

However, there is food for thought in the proposal. If the Morehead Horse Show has a successful inaugural, and at this stage there seems no reason why it shouldn't, it might be possible to consolidate the two as an annual affair, and conduct it along the lines of the Germantown Fair.

For the first year the show will be held at the nation's best, and the July 11 date selected is not in conflict with like performances elsewhere. July is a little early for the Harvest Festival—the name itself implying that it is a fall show.

By raising the prize list over two thousand dollars the Horse Show should attract thousands of spectators. Sponsors of the show further benefitted by having the Jayne Memorial Stadium as the place for their performance. Very few towns—in fact none in Eastern Kentucky—will have such facilities.

The Kentucky Derby

After a lapse of four years Churchill Downs, home of the Kentucky Derby, is issuing its annual souvenir book about this great sporting event.

The four year suspension on publication, probably caused by the paper shortage, does not appear to have lessened the readability and content of a book that finds its way to the homes of thousands of thoroughbred fans.

Bill Corum, Sports columnist for the New York Journal-American, sums the Kentucky Derby up in the following words:

"Every now and then we hear somebody say: 'Isn't it a shame that the Kentucky Derby is not run near a big city where a hundred and fifty thousand people could go to see it in comfort.'"

"It would be easy to give this foolish remark the horse laugh. But to horse laugh always comes hard with the writer, because his horse often run out of the money."

"Still, a compliment of sorts goes with the unforfeitable insult. For the speaker is saying that everybody wants to see the Derby and you only have one day all around you today at Churchill Downs to know how right he is about that."

"But to talk about a setting for the Derby outside of Kentucky is to talk about trying to hatch a 'settin' of eggs' and to settle on or in an incident. It would be against Nature. A bad and monstrous joke and surely no circumstance could ever arise to cause anybody to be foolish enough to try it. Our country has had the only Civil War it's ever going to have."

"For this is what the Derby is: The expression and, in a sense, the story of the people of Kentucky, of the sad and sunny State of 'My Old Kentucky Home,' of a great horse race heard around the world, and of its latter day history of a national celebration in a country that needs more light-headed celebrations, more great get-togethers where men can rub shoulders, and do it with their anxieties and troubles temporarily forgotten."

"Where the part of a historically happy land binds us to the responsibilities of the future. For surely the Derby will roll on through the years. If it doesn't, it won't be because it hasn't got a running start through more than seventy years of American history."

In an article headed: "The Kentucky Derby—America's Greatest Sports Event" Ed Danforth, Sports Editor of the Atlanta Journal says:

"Deep in the oaken recesses of the grandstand at Churchill Downs is a chamber as secluded as the tomb of a Pharaoh. It may be reached only by threading labyrinthine steps and ramps and passages. If one is favored by the guards, he will find in that sequestered cell the greatest showman of the American race."

"Colonel Matt J. Winn, 84-going-on-85, sits there these May afternoons while the race meeting roars, insulated from the sound and fury of the crowd, waiting for another Derby Day to be added to his storied string."

"Don't try to tell me that 'Old Man' Rickard was a predominant showman or that Mike Jacobs, of Jacobs Beach, is 'master promoter'! These two acts in the presentation of grand productions should ask all the Ringling Brothers of history, not to mention both Barnum and Bailey, to help them carry the Colonel's flag glassed."

"The Colonel has taken a spoonful of loam, a horsehair nail, an old silk necktie and a can of Stermo, and produced an atomic bomb."

"The Colonel himself has been no promoter would touch and created the most prodigious outdoor spectacle in the American scene. The Rickards and the Jacobs and the Ringlings never showed in their chips until they held a full house or better. The Colonel glanced at his pair of fives, and ran 'em all out."

The Understanding of Service

By Ruth Taylor

One night we were talking to a man who served in the last war. He was on his favorite subject, service, and said, "You know, I really think I learned more in the army than I did any other way. I believe it was because I met so many men from all walks of life. I learned how to be a good lawyer. I learned to have understanding for other people."

When I talk in Service Clubs, I bring this up. Some proud father always has his son in uniform with him and when I talk on the common bases of democracy, I turn to the boy and ask if he hasn't learned in service what I mean. All but one these boys have said, "Yes—I've learned to know other people. I'll never be the same again."

One blushing youngster in his teens added, "I found out they're just like me underneath."

The exception—oh, he didn't like singing or anybody. Fortunately, that day there were two servicemen—and the other expressed himself very forcibly on what he'd learned of understanding.

They learned not toleration—but tolerance. I'm not one of those who is afraid of the veteran. I think they've learned—no matter what group they've come from—to understand each other. And that understanding will be carried with them into peace time pursuits. The world will never be as small to them again.

There is a very fine series of advertisements put out by the Arrow Manufacturing Company containing actual letters from men who were in service. I quote from one by Lt. Johnny Hayden, Jr.

"Tolerance is finding out that the fellow from Iowa has been a hunter on the Broadway boy; that the fellow from the South can fight just as well as the lad from Minnesota; seeing a Catholic chaplain handle the spiritual needs for Moe Goldberg from Brooklyn and hearing the slight Irish brogue whispering words of condolence in Hebrew."

There is a chaplain of the Baptist faith singing a Hail Mary on Sunday because the priest was unable to arrive in time for Mass—that's not talking tolerance, that's living it!

Our boys have learned to understand each other fighting together. Can we do less working together?

Strategic Farming

Every successful farmer is a sound strategist. He plans his annual farming program in very much the same way in which a general plans a military campaign.

Just as a general deploys his troops to give himself the greatest advantage in battle, so a farmer plants his crops in such a way as to get the greatest benefits out of his particular past experience, his soil and his climate.

A successful farmer knows the importance of rotating some of his crops each year because he realizes that different kinds of growing plants take totally different types of chemicals out of the earth, and by practicing crop rotation he breaks up the soil chemicals and restores that have been drained from the soil by previous crops.

This modern type of farmer also knows that there are practically no two acres in his farm that are exactly alike. Some of his land may be high, hilly and dry. Other parts of his farm may be low, lush and marshy.

He knows that in places his top soil is deep while in other areas this top soil may narrow to less than an inch in thickness. The soil may be as varied as the land itself, and he knows that the way to farm is to adapt to the land.

Then, again, there are certain types of soil in which a good farmer always grows a different type of crop—trees. His farm woodland usually grows in those areas as that do not lend themselves readily to food crops, and he knows that a well-kept farm woodland helps to keep fertility in his land.

To the successful farmer his woodland is one of his important crops. He knows he can depend on it for a regular harvest of pulpwood that brings cash returns. He is aware of the stable demand that exists for his top quality pulpwood. He realizes that there can be no total crop failure if he has diversified his crops by maintaining a woodland on his farm.

Farm products, along with most everything else, cost more than they used to—and little wonder. When a farmer is supposed to know the botanical name of what he is raising, the zoological name of the insect that eats it, and the chemical name of what will kill it, somebody has to pay.

Men of Affluence

That is why I love poetry.

Ruth Gans Willett

Thank you Ruth Gans Willett. In our heart of hearts we have been waiting for you. I deeply appreciate your letter and your interest in humanity of which I consider myself a member.

Although our streams might be infested with crawfish and water moccasins, and there might be horned toads surrounded by poison ivy, hills with thorn trees, and county seats with crooked politicians, I still have a soft spot in my heart for poets and humanity. If you, Ruth Gans Willett, ever decide to do any missionary work come to Morehead—the field is wide open.

The entire county is infested with "mud-suckin'" horn-blowers and bound dogs that bark and moan all night.

Our county is out of bounds as yet but I had a letter from a lady which I am passing on to you, as this poem seems to have affected her in much the same manner as it did me. If anyone knows the whereabouts of a copy of this poem, I would appreciate it if they would write to me.

Woody Creek, Ky.

Thank you for your interest in the lovely poem, "The Beautiful Snow". I too have appreciated the sentiments of it in many ways that I can express. If you receive a copy I would greatly appreciate your passing it on to me.

Pardon me if I seem tentatively in my notes, but I will tell you in detail what I know of its origin.

First, I treasure these lines more than any I ever read because of my interest in humanity. I used to be a nurse in a City Hospital and while at the bedside of a young woman in the City Hospital in Detroit this poem was brought vividly to my attention that I shall never forget it.

As this young woman tossed on her sick bed she said: "Nurse, do me a favor. Write me a poem. The 'Beautiful Snow'." Incoherently she repeated some lines from three verses. I was touched very deeply and I longed to hear more of these lines. But, because I changed living quarters at the time I neglected to investigate further.

By chance a few years later I saw a copy of the poem—along with data concerning its origin. During the early part of the Civil War on one winter night there died in a Cincinnati hotel a young woman, twenty-two years old. She was highly educated and had accomplished manners. She might have shone in the best of the paths that led to fame and disgrace.

In the end, poor and friendless, she died of a broken heart. Among her effects there was found in manuscript, this poem, "The Beautiful Snow". The poem was written by Enos S. Reed, editor of the National Union. When his poem appeared in his paper the next morning, the body of the poem had been buried.

The attention of Thomas Buchanan Reed, one of the first American poets, was attracted by it and he was so taken with it that he followed the corpse to its final resting place.

Some authorities credit the poem to James W. Watson. It seems that great inspired poets have a language all their own. It appears to be something that draws from the treasure of experience. It is a deep joy that fills us with harmony—it is often the desire to enter this. It is a joy transmitted into joy where self has risen out of self.

A dead rat got in and at reading time he was smelling just about right. I used 11,000 gallons last month to wash my teeth and I only have four loaves and six upper. Improved Uniform International SCHOOL LESSON

DECEIVE NOBODIES IN PETER'S LIFE

LESSON TEXT: John 1:47; Mark 1:12-17; Luke 9:54-57; Mt. 5:20; 23:17-18

MEMORY LESSON: We ought to be glad rather than sad—Acts 5:12

Men are of primary interest to God. Our Lord Jesus has always been concerned about men, that they should be filled with the fullness of His love and the beauty of His grace. He is who stands before us in a stubborn struggle in the school of experience—but he came out into a glorious and triumphant faith in Christ.

I. A New Name and a Great Commission (John 1:42; Mark 9:37-38). When a man comes to Jesus in true faith and devotion he becomes a changed man. The Bible speaks of it as a new birth, a radical change from darkness to light, a going from death to life.

A name is important in the bearing on the inner man. Jesus in true faith and devotion he becomes a changed man. The Bible speaks of it as a new birth, a radical change from darkness to light, a going from death to life.

The life of Peter runs the gamut of human feelings from the height of joy and assurance to the depth of despair. He learned many of the things that Jesus taught in the public eye, but lacking real "hearing" he was unable to understand the meaning "rock," a token of the change of direction of life.

The Lord gave it to him, and he knew about the human heart, present and future, the longings of his heart which were to be fulfilled in service for Him.

The great confession of Christ (Mark 8), which became the foundation of the church, was made by this spiritually changed man. He knew what the Lord had done for him and knew the work of God, not the influence of some philosophy of man, nor the result of following a great teacher.

"Thus art the Christ!" Such is the exclamation which the reformer makes when he comes to the end of his journey.

II. An Awful Failure and a Deep Regret (Luke 22:54-61, 62). Peter had been so sure of himself in declaring his everlasting loyalty to the Lord. His old self-satisfaction and boastfulness had overcome him and he even came to the place where he felt capable of telling the Lord that He was mistaken.

He had not known the meaning of following the Lord "afar off" (v. 54). He did not intend to deny the Lord, but he had allowed himself to get into a position where it was hard to stand up for Him.

The lesson for us is evident. If we trust our faith to be steady and true in the hour of the enemy's attack we must not get far from the Lord, nor may we do so far from Him that we are unable to stand up for Him.

Peter's strong denial of our Lord, his use of language unbecomingly harsh, his use of falsehoods—all these mark the thing he did for what he knew it to be when he was in the presence of a terrible sin against the Christ.

The look of Jesus doubtless carried conviction, but Peter had a look of tenderness and of assurance of the Lord's promised prayers for him.

The thing which brought the tears of repentance was the remembrance of the Lord's own words (v. 61). It is the recollection of the Word of God which brings a man to his senses spiritually.

Peter's repentance was real. So we find that Peter was restored and reinstated in his place of service for the Lord.

III. Complete Restoration and an Obedient Service (John 21:15-17). Jesus met Peter on the first Easter morning, and he was assured of the power of the Lord and the others had returned to their old life as fishermen. They seem to have been forgiven, or had become disciples.

But the Lord had not forgotten them. He appeared and told them where to go. He had the love of the ones that he had forgiven and the others had returned to their old life as fishermen. They seem to have been forgiven, or had become disciples.

The man who thus declared his readiness to serve Christ to the end had many an opportunity to prove the sincerity of that profession. He met persecution and imprisonment, but to every effort of man to close his eyes to the cross of Christ he had the simple reply of absolute obedience to the Lord.

Tradition tells us that this faithful man really died to a martyr's death. So we see a life made over, made powerful, made glorious for God's service. This is the life of our Lord Jesus Christ. He can do it for you, too. Will you let Him?

WLW Show Will Be Here On May 1

Johnson Twins One
Of Features of Radio Performance

Although at this writing there is quite a bit of difference in their weights — two pounds, to be exact — the Johnson Twins otherwise are identical, as they so well demonstrate in their numerous appearances before Mid-west audiences, and on Station WLW in Cincinnati. The twins are one of the features of the Mid-Western Hayride which will appear at the Morehead College Auditorium Wednesday, May 1st.

These brown-eyed, brown-haired beauties claim Williamsburg, Ohio, as their birthplace, just 20 years ago, and they've been having identity troubles ever since. They can't even tell each other apart as, for instance, when Fern awoke one morning and started talking to her sister, only to discover that it was her own reflection in a mirror. Then there was the time LaVerne greeted her sister in a store, only to find it was another mirror trick.

The girls come from a large family, all of whom are musicians, and with Mother at the piano and Father at the drums, they've been entertaining pleased audiences these many years.

Now the twins are "on their own" over WLW in "Midwestern Hayride," Boone County Caravan" and other shows originating at the nation's Station. And doing extremely well by themselves, if audience applause and fan mail are any criterion—which they are definitely!

The Morehead College Campus Club is sponsoring the Mid-Western Hayride.

Maytag Announces Special Features In Home Freezer

Announcement of special features and specifications of the new Maytag home freezer have been received by Woody Hanson, Maytag dealer in Morehead, Ky.

The new product, which is described as "Not just another freezer but a complete kitchen unit," has 6 cubic feet net capacity of locker space with an operating temperature of zero Fahrenheit in all climates. It will hold 30 lbs. of meat or 130 lbs. of fruit and vegetables, or average of 240 lbs. of mixed packages, including meat, fruit and vegetables. Finished in beautiful gleaming white, high baked, synthetic enamel with stainless steel trim, the cabinet of the freezer is 47 1/2 inches long, 29 inches wide and 32 inches tall. It is fitted with an acid-resisting, porcelain enameled table top, with an adjustable drop-leaf which can be used as a breakfast or dinette unit.

A convenient defrosting pan is located on top of the unit so that heat from the compressor speeds defrosting of foods and keeps this operating out of the kitchen sink.

The lid is counter-balanced for ease in operation and stays in position when up. The underneath section of the lid is covered with easy-to-clean stainless steel. The inside of the container is smooth with rounded corners providing sanitation and ease of cleaning. A stainless steel, rust proof breaker strip remains free.

A double gasket on the lid prevents leakage of cold air and the steel, piano-type hinge operates the frost-proof lid keeping operating costs at a minimum. A hermetically sealed compressor is operated by a one-sixth horsepower motor, providing a quiet, smooth-operating, dependable refrigeration unit. The unit is easily accessible for service when necessary, either through a large grill in the back of the cabinet, or through the opening for the defroster pan. The condenser is cooled by a fan.

The Maytag freezer makes an attractive addition to the family kitchen. It has rounded corners outside as well as in, with no handles or projections to catch clothes. The level of the cabinet top is easily adapted to desired height, for installation in a row of kitchen cabinets, by building an adapting base beneath the locker. Construction of the unit provides convenient toe room for the housewife.

The dinette leaf can be attached on either end or the front of the cabinet to suit any kitchen or breakfast room arrangement.

Watkins Says Additional Rural Road Money Will Go Long Way In Getting State Out of Mud

By CLAY W. BAILEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

Frankfort, Ky. — The 1946 General Assembly action in providing a $5,000,000 (m) outlay for rural road improvement took a long step forward in a policy designed ultimately to "pull rural Kentucky out of the mud," J. Stephen Watkins, State Highway Commissioner, said this week.

"In fact, rural road improvements — long a sort of stepchild of the Highway Department — has become the number one problem," he added.

Watkins said there were three "countdown bottlenecks" threatening to prevent the department from spending all the funds allocated for rural road improvement and these gradually are being eliminated.

He listed lack of adequate equipment, lack of stone for road improvement and the labor situation as contributing to the delay in carrying forward the program.

Watkins said that some equipment had been procured from the federal government surplus that could be used for county road improvement. He expressed confidence that road repair materials soon would be made available and that the labor situation would be showing improvement.

The $5,000,000 allocation to counties which is spent under a revised formula that gives rural counties more than their urban counterparts — also is two and one-half times as much as any previous annual appropriation for this purpose, he said.

The change in formula tends to deprive the larger and more populous centers of funds, but this ment," Watkins said. "The larger counties will reap increased benefits from the general road construction program that is being matched by federal funds — particularly that portion set aside for secondary and feeder roads, as well as urban projects."

Watkins explained that through a method devised by George H. Hailey, director of the rural highway division, the department planned to allocate where practicable a minimum of 25 per cent up to 66 and two-thirds per cent of new construction of the funds made available for rural highway improvement.

"This leaves a minimum of 33 and one-third and up to 75 per cent for maintenance of already or previously - improved roads," Hailey said.

LETTERS To The Editor

Editor, Rowan County News,

Dear Sir:

I have read with much interest the splendid letter of our County Health officer relative to the status of Kentucky and how important it is to bring to the people the truth about existing conditions in the way of sanitation and the progressive measures to protect the health of our people. I admire him for his courage and the splendid things he has said.

It is true that any city or community is just what the citizens make of it. Morehead is a town that can be made into a most beautiful little city by the concerted action of the various civic organizations.

The doctor mentioned the fact of the unsanitary condition of the outside toilets and the dogs running at large with their fleas and flies into every residence in town. He also mentioned the fact that backyards are used for dumping in cans and other waste we cannot expect to have anything other than rats and sickness.

I want to call to his attention and to the attention of the general public, and the Board of Health, of chicken houses and lots in their own and their neighbors' back yard, which is not only dangerous but infested with rats, flies and the most offensive odor, and yet the County Health Board and the State Health Inspector ignores this very lamentable condition.

What steps shall we take when the health of various families are endangered and yet nothing is done about it? This is happening within our town with the knowledge of the doctors on the Health Board and the County Health Doctor, and the State Health Inspector and yet no relief can be had. I regret to say that one of the members of the County Health Board is an offender.

Respectfully,
A Citizen

Record Output Of Synthetic Rubber Scored Last Year

The largest synthetic rubber output ever produced by a single company in a 12-months period was turned out in 1945 in the three government plants operated by the B. F. Goodrich Chemical Company in Louisville, Ky., and Port Neches and Burger, Texas, the Monarch Supply Store B. F. Goodrich dealer in Morehead announced today.

Last year's production in the three plants totaled 388,577,000 pounds—enough rubber to manufacture nearly 39 million passenger car tires of the most popular size now in use — and it represented an increase of nearly 58 million pounds over the 1944 production of the same plants, the Monarch Company set out.

A substantial percentage of the company's 1945 output was GR-I letters and numbers to be at least six inches high.

S-10 rubber. This is a special variation of GR-S rubber developed by B. F. Goodrich chemists, and is an important factor in enabling the company's "first postwar tires" to actually outpace pre-war natural rubber tires.

In addition to the three government plants, B. F. Goodrich Chemical company operates a privately-owned unit in Akron for the manufacture of special purpose synthetic rubber. "Monarch" pointed out. It was in this plant that the first commercial butadiene-type synthetic rubber was made in this country the "Ameripol" rubber the company used in making the first passenger-car tires of synthetic rubber ever sold in the United States, the tire that was introduced 18 months before Peral Harbar.

The truck reportedly was carrying approximately a dozen persons back to their homes after attending Easter Sunday services at Dan when the vehicle, owned by Isaac and Craft of Menifee County, skidded and overturned on a gravel road, throwing the passengers to the ground.

In addition to those treated at the local hospital, several other persons suffered minor cuts, bruises and sprains but did not require hospital attention.

THE RANGERS COLUMN

By JACK HICKS

Forest fires continue a menace to our peace of mind while the dry weather persists.

Jack Hicks of people in the woods still added risk from fire. A fire once started on these dry days spreads rapidly, its under the accumulated leaf litter dried out by spring sunshine and spring winds. And the newly-rejuvenated ed trees die easily in the heat of a forest fire.

Whether two or three weeks and the leaves will reach full-size, casting a shade on the forest floor that will minimize the evaporation from the blanket of old leaves and retain the moisture from each little shower. But that is the prospect for the future; right now we have our worries, and I guess the average Forest Officer could rightfully be classified anti-social. He frowns on picnics in the woods, lovely Easter Sundays, fox hunters, and people in general. It's an annual occurrence; like a toothache, it's soon over but bad while it lasts.

Down in Lee and Estill Counties along the Kentucky River the season looks fully two weeks ahead of the Morehead area, though it is only about 75 miles south of here. The poplar leaves are two-thirds grown and even the oak leaves are somewhat larger than squirrels' ears. I am reminded of the saying of an old Forest Ranger with whom I worked in Virginia. His springtime observation, sure antidote for my over-exuberance at the coming of the new green, was "When the white-oak leaves get as big as squirrels' ears, watch out." Meaning that I needn't think the fire season was any means over.

Each day marks the embarkation of another sawmill venture round these parts. Every little hollow that contains a sawlog or two is invitation to one more portable mill. It can't last; there is not that much timber left, but meanwhile more and more mills start up. The demand for lumber, quality unquestioned, remains brisk, and while it does more pole-sized trees will be felled for the one or two-by-fours they can yield. And the houses that are built of this green, often poorly-sawn lumber - not much prospect for the future. Certainly we need the housing, but how much better to wait just a little longer and build from seasoned, well-manufactured material.

Recently had the pleasure of escorting three charming ladies from Ashland, representing the Girl Scout camping committee for several eastern Kentucky counties, on a tour of prospective campsites here in Rowan County. They were Mesdames Paul Blazer, Alec Chamberlain, and J. Howard Marshall, all of officials of the Ashland Oil and Refining Company. Rowan County forest scenery seemed to meet with their enthusiastic approval, particularly the Triangle tower section.

Speaking of veterans and jobs, we are proud to number five new ex-G. I.s among our townsmen this spring. Some have had previous experience on the lookout towers, others have not, but they are, one and all, welcome additions to our personnel. One of them, George Martin, is a Morehead resident, and he has been manning Triangle, doing a good job. He joined us with the understanding that when his new truck arrived he would ask for separation to start in the trucking business, and now that the truck has been delivered I'm afraid we will lose him. He has been a big help through the fire season. George was a prisoner of the Germans not over a year ago, and so was our tower man, Delmont Lewis, down in Powell County. You might expect to find a couple of boys who had suffered so much would now be found among the "unemployed," taking a needed rest, but not so with these fellows. More power to them.

Congressman Fogarty of Rhode Island: "Working together for the common good will set us on a path toward a richer and happier life—toward the enjoyment by all of us of the many great blessings the future holds in store."

HOLLY

Mr. and Mrs. White held his regular party at Holly Sunday. A nice crowd attended the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Dailey of Ridge Mills were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Doris Gregory.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson had as their guests Easter Sunday Miss Bonnie Fraley, Miss Joan Fraley, Miss Janet Hall, Miss Frances Hall of Little Ferry, Miss Dorothy and Oleta Fultz of Soldier, Mrs. Grace Radcliff and daughter, Joyce, Misses Ruth and Rebecca White and Shirley Green of Morehead.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb Stanford and Allene Gregory of Yorktown, Ind., were the week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gregory.

The hope for America, and for the world, does not lie along the road of secret methods of destruction or more and bigger armaments. — Senator Fulbright.

JOHNNY'S IN BUSINESS TOO

MEET the President, Treasurer, and personnel of a one boy-power lawn mowing company. He has no labor-management troubles, and no wages-hours problems. He's working toward something, too. A chocolate soda, an air-rifle, and a bicycle. That's going to take lots of lawns, and very likely, numerous sodas, but Johnny's going to be a hard man to stop. He has vision, energy, and a private enterprise.

Let's look at Johnny twenty-five years later. He worked his way through school, and became a successful engineer. After eight years on a salary he went into business for himself. He borrowed money to get started; he went in up to his collar button, and then worked himself out.

Johnny's now a successful American business man. By successful business management he's produced a product and a service all of us need and want, and he's produced it at a price that all can afford to pay. He supports his town, county, state, and nation with taxes. He works for thousands of people.

What's Johnny today? To the Communist he's a dirty capitalist and a tool of the interests, whatever that is. To his competitors, he's the man who built a fire under them, and who keeps them on their toes to hold production up, and prices down. To the Democrats he's a liberal; to the Republicans, "he's sensible." To his friends and associates, "he's a good guy, and a hard worker."

To his mother, he's "My Johnny!" His wife loves him, his children adore him, especially the oldest boy who makes and sells model planes—he wants to take flying lessons.

Johnny is a typical American. He's your neighbor and your friend. He runs factories and stores and he's a dozen different men in Kentucky Utilities Company.

Yes, the Company is made up of a lot of Johnnies who have spent most of their lives trying to serve you better at continuously lowering cost for electricity.
