

Carroll's Budget: Its Impact On MSU And Morehead Community

Judging from inquiries a page one story in the last issue of the Morehead News concerning Gov. Julian Carroll's state budget and the probable appropriation in operating funds and capital construction money for Morehead State University proved a little confusing.

The questions surround the "appropriation" and the "budget" for MSU and the difference between the two terms.

Following are some of the answers -
 + For the current fiscal year (July 1, 1975 through June 30, 1976) the operating appropriation from the state to MSU is $11,855,403.

+ The operating budget at the University exceeds $15 million because added to the $11,855,403 are student fees, income from cafeterias, concessions, ticket sales etc. Additionally, the University is amortizing indebtedness on buildings financed through its own revenue bonds).

 + The Morehead News reported it had learned that Gov. Carroll will recommend an increase of $2,821,741 in MSU's appropriation for the 1976-77 fiscal year. This would mean a total appropriation for fiscal 1976-77 of $14,668,144. MSU President Adron Doran said if the appropriation is $14,668,144 he would recommend to the Board of Regents a 10 percent over-the-board pay increase for personnel at the University, effective this July 1. Dr. Doran said this sum would also permit an eight percent increase for operating expenses, exclusive of the payroll.

+ Gov. Carroll's budget, according to Morehead News sources, calls for an additional operating appropriation to MSU for fiscal 1977-78 of $1,073,941. If the General Assembly approves this increase then the total operational appropriation for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1977 would be $15,742,085. Dr. Doran told the Morehead News this would permit a further salary hike of five percent, plus four percent more for operating expenses.

+ The appropriation of $14,668,144 for fiscal 1976-77 and $15,742,085 for fiscal 1977-78 should not be confused with the University's budget as adopted by the Board of Regents for the biennium. The budget includes all receipts from the cafeteria etc. as set out above. (It is on this premise of "appropriations" and "budgets" that apparently confused some Morehead News readers of last week's story).

Two years ago then Governor Wendell Ford initially placed in his budget $1,600,000 for remodeling and renovation of Allie Young Hall, oldest building on the campus and formerly a girl's dormitory. Into office space. This was later deleted from the Governor's budget, but given "number one" priority if revenue should exceed estimates and the budget. Revenues did surpass estimates, primarily because of the coal severance tax, and Gov. Carroll has approved the $1,600,000 for the Allie Young Hall project on which work is expected to soon begin.

A survey at MSU three or four years ago revealed that in addition to the present administration building, it is overcrowded, and recommended that some facilities in that building be transferred.

Frankfort sources advised the Morehead News that in addition to the $1,068,144 and $15,742,085 operational appropriations as above detailed, Gov. Carroll's budget proposes to the Legislature provides $3,400,000 in capital construction funds for expansion of MSU library facilities, and $4 million, also capital construction money, for upgrading the physical education program, primarily in the women's division, at Laughlin Health Building; and expansion of Wetherby gymnasium including an olympic type, enclosed swimming pool.

Meanwhile at the state capital something of a hassle has developed over the Governor's budget, expected to be submitted to the Legislature in two or three weeks. Representative Joe Clarke, D., Danville, Chairman of the House Appropriations and Revenue committee, which studies and votes whether to bring the Governor's proposed budget to the floor, said he had an alternative budget.

Clarke's position is unusual in Kentucky in that a "legislative budget" has never before been proposed. Gov.

Carroll said Monday: "I can't find any constitutional or statutory basis for a legislative budget. The statutory law clearly makes this (preparation of the budget) a responsibility of the

Courthouse Insurance Extended To Feb. 5

Insurance on the Rowan County Courthouse has been extended until Feb. 5 and possibly beyond that date according to information from Rowan County Attorney Harvey Pennington.

Fiscal Court advised last week that the insurance policy was cancelled effective Friday, Jan. 16, met in special session Monday in an effort to get insurance on the structure or an extension on the policy which was being terminated.

The facility is insured through the General Accident Group of which Harold Bellamy of Morehead serves as the local agent. Bellamy was contacted Monday by the County Attorney and later advised the attorney that the policy would be good until Feb. 5. The insurance firm has indicated to the County Attorney that the policy may be continued until its normal expiration at the end of June 1976 if necessary corrections are made at the courthouse.

Apparently, the deficiencies that caused the cancellation of the policy were regarding the interior steps leading to the courtroom.
 Rowan Judge Ott Caldwell had said last week that he might have to close the courthouse if insurance could not be obtained. Magistrate Ray Martin questioned, during Monday session, whether the Judge had the authority to close the courthouse. Judge Caldwell said, "I don't know about that, but I don't think the people should stay here with no insurance."

Concern Over Heating System

County Attorney Pennington advised the court that there has been a lot of concern by some of the officeholders regarding the safety of the boiler in the heating system. He said some of the pipes are leaking and that water the thickness of a pencil is spurting out from one of the pipes on the boiler. The attorney advised the court that an inspector from the State Boiler Bureau would be in Morehead this week to inspect the heating system.

The boiler inspector, Charlie Brown of the State Fire Marshal's office arrived in Morehead just at the conclusion of the Fiscal Court meeting. He, with magistrates observing, inspected the heating system.

Brown made certain suggestions, but did not indicate there was any great amount of repair work needed. Attorney Pennington reported that the boiler inspector found nothing critically wrong with the furnace and that he did not indicate there is any immediate danger of anything going wrong with the boiler.

The County Attorney said the inspector found one valve that apparently was not operating and some that were leaking, indicated more air vents are needed and that certain pipes should be replaced because they are rusted out and beginning to leak.

Attorney Pennington said efforts are being made to have the heating system repaired.

Insurance Available

Steve Lewis of the C. Roger Lewis Insurance Agency of Morehead was on hand for the Fiscal Court meeting Monday. He advised the Court that insurance could be obtained on the building through the Kentucky Fair Plan which he said would have to write up a policy if no insurance firm would. He explained that the plan is similar to the State-Signed Risk Plan for automobiles through which vehicles are insured when all other firms decline insurance. He also indicated, however, that the price would be greater through the State Plan.

Fiscal Court authorized Magistrate Ray Martin to secure a structural engineer to inspect the courthouse and make a report regarding the structural condition of the building with the cost not to exceed $1,000.

At a meeting on Jan. 6, Fiscal Court employed Donald B. Shelton, Lexington architect, as architect for a new Rowan County Courthouse complex. The court requested that Shelton present ideas at the next regular meeting.

On Monday, the County Attorney discussed the proposed new courthouse with Fiscal Court. He said, "We have

Taylor, Pryor Enter Pleas Of 'Not Guilty'

Pleas of "not guilty" were entered by H. K. Taylor, Morehead, and Charles Pryor, Sturgis, when arraigned in federal court last week on charges of conspiracy and kickbacks from appraisers on U.S. highways in which federal dollars are involved.

Judge Bernard T. Moynahan gave attorneys for Pryor and Taylor until Jan. 30 to file any pretrial motions and Feb. 3 as the hearing date on the motions.

The district attorney requested that bail be set at $2,500 each; but Judge

Moynahan overruled this and allowed both men to remain free on their own recognizance.

The indictments were returned last month by a federal jury in Lexington on recommendation of then U.S. Attorney Eugene Siler. Since then Siler has been sworn in as a Judge of the Eastern District of Kentucky.

Pryor was highway commissioner and finance director during the administration of Gov. Wendell Ford. At the same time, Taylor was executive director of the democratic party in Kentucky.

The true bills charge that Pryor gave Taylor a list of the people who were receiving contracts to do highway appraisal work . . . and that Taylor, in turn, approached these appraisers and asked for contributions or kickbacks, up to 10 percent of the appraisal contract, to the democratic party.

Pryor is a banker, Taylor, former part-owner of Rowan Motor Sales at Morehead, is now an executive assistant to Lt.-Governor Thelma Stovall.

Blair Seeks Opinion On Council Seat

Paul Blair (City Attorney of Morehead until Monday night when a new attorney was elected by City Council) wrote to the State Attorney General's Office on Monday requesting a written opinion on a matter concerning a city council seat.

In the letter, Blair stated, "On behalf of the City of Morehead, I request your written opinion on whether Mr. Wells (referring to Randall L. Wells) should serve the entire two-year term for which Mrs. Needham (JoAnn Needham was elected or whether this seat on City Council should be on the ballot in November, 1976. If it is your opinion that this seat should be on the November ballot, I will appreciate receiving your opinion on how candidates for this office should file for the position on the November, 1976, ballot, and the correct procedure for certification of the winner of this election."

The former City Attorney explained in his letter that Mrs. Needham, who was elected in the Nov. 19 general election as a member of Morehead City Council for a term of two years, submitted to the Mayor her resignation as a member of Council on Nov. 22, 1975, and that the resignation was accepted by the new council on Jan. 5.

Randall L. Wells was elected by Council to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. Needham "until his successor shall be duly elected and qualify pursuant to Section 152 of the Constitution of Kentucky"; the Council motion stated.

Special Session Of Council Set

A special session of Morehead City Council will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Heritage Place.

Morehead Mayor C. B. Cornett has requested that all City department heads, including the City Judge, be on hand for the meeting at which time they will receive their assignments.

M'head Council Hires A New City Attorney

By a vote of 4-2 Morehead City Council employed Buddy Salyer to serve as City Attorney for a two year term and fixed his salary at $14,000 per year.

A Morehead attorney, Salyer teaches part-time at Morehead State University and resides on Clear Fork Road near Cranston. He came to Morehead about three years ago and affiliated himself with Attorney George I. Cline. Salyer is a native of Magoffin County.

The new city attorney succeeds Paul Blair who had served as the city's legal adviser for the past five years. Blair and Salyer were the only persons who made application for the position with the City Councilmen Marvin Moore and Lee Casper voted in favor of Blair, while the other four Council members, Hezia McDaniel, Keith Kappes, Roy Anderson and Randall Wells cast their votes for Salyer.

Contrary to a report in another newspaper that the new $14,000 city attorney salary was a decrease by about $2,000, the City Attorney's salary heretofore had been only $1,500 per year plus a percentage of fines collected.

According to figures from the office of City Clerk Corene Castle, the City Attorney was paid a salary of $1,500 for 1973 and $1,500 for 1974. His combined salary (including set salary and fees) in 1973 was $8,735.36 and for 1974 it was $13,068.28 with salary and fees.

In 1975 the City Attorney was paid a total of $16,022. That amount included a salary of $11,572.48, with the remainder being his percentage of fines from fines. The City Clerk said the higher amounts in 1974 and 1975 were due to heavier case loads in court. Clerk Corene Castle advised the News that many of the cases stemmed from persons who had made long distance telephone calls and denied them and were then brought to court and given large fines.

The new City Attorney's salary will be $14,000 per year, but he will receive no percentage whatsoever of fines or any other type fees. The former City Attorney received no portion of the court costs collected, but rather a percentage of the fines.

During the meeting Monday night, Councilman Marvin Moore was selected as Mayor Pro Tem of the City of Morehead. His appointment by Mayor C. B. Cornett to the Morehead Utility

Plant Board was approved by Council (Council also approved Mayor Cornett's appointment of City Administrator Don Evans as the city's representative on the Gateway Board of Directors for a term of one year.)

Council members received their appointments as heads of various legislative bodies. They are - Roy Anderson-Planning and Zoning

+ Lee Casper-Streets

+ Keith Kappes-Budget

+ Randall L. Wells-Recreation

+ Marvin Moore-Utility Plant Board

+ Hezia McDaniel-Health

City Judge Austin Alfrey was appointed by Council in January of 1974 for a four-year term.

Request of Civil Defense Director Don Young Council authorized the City Administrator or the City Clerk to order installation of a telephone at the Civil Defense organization headquarters and allocated funds for the monthly payment of the bill for local service.

Council also authorized the City Administrator to proceed with acquisition of three used Kentucky State Police cruisers expending a maximum total of $2,000 for the purchase.

The resignation of Winfred Scott Barker as a City Patrolman in the Morehead Police Department was accepted by Council and the governing body voted to advertise the vacancy in the Police Department. The applications are to be filed with the City Administrator prior to the first Thursday in February.

Prior to the close of the meeting Monday night, City Attorney Paul Blair expressed his appreciation to Council. He said, "I have appreciated and enjoyed my services as City Attorney during the past five years." He explained that there was a matter in Rowan Circuit Court which he desired to finish, that being the suit in regard to the bond issue for the nursing home (Daniel Boone Convalescent Center).

Blair also said he would like to complete his work on the Industrial Bond Issue for Browning Manufacturing. He said, "I would like to continue to represent the City on both of these matters without fee. I have done considerable work and background on Browning and the nursing home and would like to volunteer to continue to represent the City on these matters." Council voted unanimously to retain Blair with compensation of expenses for the duration of the City's legal involvement with Browning Manufacturing and the nursing home suit.

A FUN TIME . . . Daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Ruffin Hood of Pine Hills Subdivision were among hundreds of local youngsters who found delight in the snow which blanketed the area last week. Melly, age 2½ (left), and Amy, age 4 (right), were snuggled by a Morehead News photographer while throwing snowballs at their mother. The snow forced the closing of schools Thursday and Friday in Rowan and surrounding counties. Morehead Mayor C. B. Cornett was highly critical of the State Highway Department's handling of the snow and ice on roads in the county. He filed a protest with Gov. Julian Carroll regarding the matter. Mayor Cornett told the News, "The state was ill-prepared for the snow and was not motivated to do any work on Ky. 32 and U. S. 60 in Morehead and Rowan County."

Rowan Schools Assigned 22 MSU Student Teachers

Twenty-two seniors at Morehead State University have been assigned as student teachers in elementary schools in Rowan County during the spring semester.

Included are:

Proudfoot, White Elected Officers Of School Board

Dr. Warren Proudfoot has been re-elected as chairman of the Rowan County Board of Education to serve the 1976 term and Eugene White vice chairman for the term. White succeeds Ben Lowe who served the vice-chairmanship last year.

They were elected by the Board at its meeting Saturday which time a policy on corporal punishment for students was adopted.

The Board also reviewed a lengthy report made by the State Fire Marshal's Office which listed various deficiencies in the Rowan school buildings.

After review and discussion of the report, the Board authorized Superintendent Bill Francis to meet with an architect, OSHA representative and a representative from the State Department of Education in an effort to obtain prices and set priorities toward improving and correcting the deficiencies.

One City Police Officer Demoted

Two Morehead Police officers were promoted and another demoted Monday night when Morehead City Council hired new employees for the year.

Sgt. William Paul Bowman was re-hired as a patrolman with a decrease in pay from $3.43 per hour to $3.35 per hour. Promoted to the rank of sergeant were Sgt. Alvin Stinson and Paul Rayburn Stevens whose salaries were increased from $3.35 hourly to $3.43 per hour.

Station contacted the Morehead News on Tuesday morning and advised that he was not accepting the position as sergeant. He said, "I don't feel it's right after Bill Bowman was demoted."

Stinson continued, "Bowman has been on the force about 27 years and I've been on it only about seven years." No reason was given by Council during open session as to why Bowman was demoted.

Others employed in the Police Department and their salaries include James E. Pelfrey, chief of police, $4.43 per hour; Richard Alderman, assistant chief of police, $3.74 per hour; Winford Scott Barker, patrolman, $3.35 per hour.

Resignation was read and accepted by council, Gary Keith Gardner, Michael D. Hall, Tillman McBrayer, Robert L. Wright, all hired as patrolman at $3.35 per hour; Don Lewis, extra traffic police, $3.35 per hour.

Floyd Bruce was employed as dog warden and night watchman at the Morehead Recreation Park at a salary of $3.46 hourly. He was not rehired as a traffic officer.

Danny Blevins was re-employed as director of Public Works at $3.46 per hour plus $38.46 bi-weekly for building inspector Isom Adkins was hired as an equipment operator at $2.43 hourly and Coy Moore at the same capacity and at a salary of $2.35 hourly.

Subsequent to the bid for $2.30 per hour were Roy Moore, Jack Smith, Roy Smith, Ora Thomas Wagoner, Derwood Caullid, with Grace Story hired as a laborer for one-half day a week at $2.30. Don Evans was employed as City Administrator at a bi-weekly salary of $461.54. He was hired for a two-year period.

Margaret E. Ferguson, police court clerk at $2.94 per hour.

Rufus Dean, chief road operator at $2.30 hourly, and Kenneth Trent, Bobby A. Smith, Hiram Ritchie, Timmy C. James and Devlyn Scott Barker as radio operators at $2.30 hourly.

Earl Woods, radio technician at $12.85 bi-weekly.

Joe Maulk, fire chief and fire inspector at $303.84 bi-weekly.

John D. Northcutt, assistant fire chief at $30.30 bi-weekly.

Executive Budget Includes Legislative Issues Document

A "legislative issues document" will be attached to the executive budget Gov. Julian Carroll will present to the General Assembly, making it different than any budget ever submitted to the state legislature by a chief executive.

The document resulted after numerous hours, Carroll said, spent putting together the executive budget. It soon came clear to me that the hard decisions I was making were decisions I needed to share with the General Assembly about the issues," Gov. Carroll and dozens of analysts and advisors have devoted nearly 400 hours to budget review and decision-making in recent weeks.

Carroll said the new document is expected to be completed in about 10 days to two weeks.

Originally, the governor presents a preliminary document with an associated bill draft and then delivers his budget message personally to the General Assembly.

Another position, approved recently by the state personnel board, that of an overall "comptroller" of education department finances, has yet to be filled. Melton and Baker assumed their new duties Jan. 12.

Dr. Melton said this is just part of other possible changes to be made in the Department of Education. He indicated an unofficial and continuing review of the structure of the department will be undertaken to determine if other changes are necessary.

Changes In Ky. Education Department Announced

Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. James Graham has announced administrative changes in the Department of Education. James Melton of Frankfort and James Baker of Middlesboro have been named associate superintendents. Each will oversee the operation of three regional bureaus. Melton will assume responsibilities for the divisions of administration and finance, pupil personnel services and rehabilitation.

Baker, former superintendent of the eight-state largest, will coordinate the bureau of instruction, exceptional children and vocational education. Both Melton and Baker will report directly to Raymond Barber, chief assistant to Superintendent Graham.

National Debt Costs $1,838,000 Locally

How much do Rowan County residents owe as their share of the national debt? How much is it costing them in taxes each year to meet their portion of the interest charges on that debt?

According to the latest figures, about $1 out of every $10 collected locally by the Federal government goes toward paying the interest, which has reached a record of nearly $34 billion a year.

In the current fiscal year local people will be turning in, via their taxes, approximately $1,838,000 as their share of the interest costs.

That will take care only of the carrying charges. It will have no effect on the debt itself, which is now well over $500 billion.

Translating that debt into more comprehensible terms, it is of such size that it would take more than a century to wipe it out, paying it off at the rate of $5 billion a year.

If it had to be eliminated immediately, with everyone in Rowan County and in the rest of the country chipping in an equal share, it would require $2,358 from every man, woman and child, according to the U.S.

Morehead Leads State Leaf Avg.

The burley tobacco farmer who withheld his crop from the auction pool, and warehousemen believe there may be a better price appears to have acted wisely for the first time in decades.

Kentucky markets averaged $110.48 Monday, a season's high. The previous high average was Dec. 1 during the second week of sales.

Morehead warehouses led the state with an average of $113.90. And, another nearby market, Mt. Sterling, was second as sales there averaged $113.85. Maysville, the other selling place in this vicinity had a final average Monday of $111.90.

The Morehead market sold 649,992 pounds Monday, far above the volume of any sale in past years after the holiday recess.

The market all over Kentucky and the eight-state burley belt has been higher, day by day, since the Christmas recess.

For the season the average in Kentucky is $106.34 a hundredweight. This is $8 less than the average for the entire selling season last year.

Veteran burley observers say the higher prices resulted because the industry overestimated this year's burley crop. The United States Department of Agriculture had forecast the eight-state harvest at 630 million pounds. Cigarette manufacturers, particularly the "Big Five," submitted unofficial estimates of over 700 million pounds. Hereafter, USDA has had a tendency to underestimate the total volume, and the industry evidently acted on this theory.

It appears now that the USDA estimate of 639 million pounds may have been correct. The overestimate, believed to be the reason for the higher prices paid after the holidays, USDA is in the process of making another survey of how much tobacco remains to be sold. But, without realistic estimates, prices will remain higher until the end of sales.

Insurance - Budget

been thinking in terms of a $1 million and if we payed down $450,000, there still would be considerable debt." The attorney continued, "Fiscal court has stated repeatedly they didn't want to raise taxes, but if you do accept any figure over $450,000 there will have to be a referendum."

Would Require Tax Levy
The attorney went on to explain that even if the county could make all the payments required to pay off the indebtedness, the voters still would have to authorize the levy of a tax to take care of the indebtedness. This, the attorney explained, would be necessary should something happen the county could not meet the burden of indebtedness. "It would give us something to fall back on," he said.

Pennington said, "We don't want to spend time with an architect realizing it will be necessary for the voters to give authority to levy a tax." He said, "Do you (Fiscal Court) think we should go ahead with the concept of a new jail and courthouse at this time?"

Following the county attorney's remarks, the court decided a structural engineer should be employed to make a final determination as to whether the present building can be remodeled feasibly.

In other action, the court authorized the County Treasurer to invest $130,000 of federal revenue sharing money into U.S. Treasury Bills for 90 days.

In Capitol halls, supporters of the administration, said that Representative Clarke is "nit-picking," and his proposal is statutory illegal. However, the House Appropriations and Revenue committee can recommend changes in Gov. Carroll's budget, but on this point the committee is obviously stacked in the Governor's favor. Clarke said he considered resigning the chairmanship, but later changed his mind.

Clarke said he wanted to cut the Governor's budget by around $50 million. Insofar as Morehead State University is concerned, Clarke apparently favored the appropriation of $14,668,144 operational funds for fiscal 1976-77 and $15,742,085 for fiscal 1977-78, and also the $3,400,000 for expansion of (Johnson Camden) library; but opposed the $4 million for expansion and services at Laughlin Health Building and Wetherby gymnasium.

The operating appropriations, above recited, are the highest in MSU's history. Enrollment at the University is also a record this year of over 7,200.

Also directly affecting the Morehead area since this is the site of a district state police barracks - Gov. Carroll's budget calls for adding 200 new state patrolmen for each of the next two years. Clarke said the number should be 50 each year during the biennium.

Gov. Carroll Opposes Separate Budget By The General Assembly

Gov. Julian Carroll has come out firmly against the submission of a separate budget by the General Assembly, and has reaffirmed his definition of the term "legislative independence."

"I am in total and strong opposition to the introduction or preparation of a legislative budget," said Carroll in response to a news conference question here this week.

The governor said his best search of constitutional and statutory laws finds no basis for a legislative budget.

"The statutory law clearly makes it (drafting of the budget) a responsibility of the executive branch," the governor stressed. "That in no way detracts from what I think should be a full review of the executive budget by the legislature, to make whatever changes the Committee desires in the executive budget."

Carroll was apparently responding to the motion first circulated at last month's pre-legislative conference and then at the opening of the General Assembly last week that the legislature might write its own budget and introduce it alongside the one the Constitution requires the governor to propose.

Carroll said the people of Kentucky have been misled by press reports that the Appropriations and Revenue Committee is already evaluating some of the governor's budget. The truth is, he added, that the committee is only reviewing agency fund requests and not executive budget recommendations.

Gov. Carroll said the executive budget is still being printed and should be ready for the legislature's review within three weeks at the latest.

Carroll said he is "disappointed in the process that it seemingly is so important to propose a legislative budget" and unhappy that members of the House Committee have not started their work with what he called "open minds."

They have made decisions in a number of specific areas of budget review "without all the facts," said the governor. "Without all the facts, that I, at least, used in making my executive decisions," Gov. Carroll continued. "Yet I am fully prepared to give them all the facts I have. It's not easy to get those facts out of the agencies even for a governor, but I suggested that it is a little easier for me to get those facts out of the agencies than it is for the General Assembly to get them."

The governor said he stands "ready to defend the right of the General Assembly" to get those facts, and has instructed his Cabinet officers to provide every piece of information the Legislature needs to prepare its recommendations.

The governor said he fears "too much time is being consumed by the Legislature" talking about the technique and mechanism of review of a budget and "overshadowing more important questions."

At this point in the news conference Carroll paused to reemphasize what he believes the term "legislative independence" means. He described it as "a spirit of cooperation and partnership between the executive and legislative branches, the common denominator of which is the public interest."

But he stressed "Legislative independence does not mean executive abrogation." The term doesn't mean, he said, what "seems to be coming out of the pens of some of the writers describing the legislature."

Carroll said he has made "a point of the fact that I think the General Assembly has the right to appropriate funds. And as long as I am governor that is the way it is going to be. They have the right of review of anything the governor recommends, including his budget. But the governor has the responsibility of recommendation and I have no intention of evading that responsibility."

He also has no intention, Carroll said, of using what he called "arm-twisting, intimidation or what has often been called the governor's patronage powers" to get members to vote for his proposals.

"But I do intend to be the governor of Kentucky. I intend to be a strong governor. I have no intention of sending a recommendation of spoken message to the General Assembly and then go sit in a rocking chair and hope it comes out right. I do not consider that a proper relationship between the executive and legislative branch of government. I do intend to be an advocate of what I consider a position in the best interest of the people of Kentucky."

Our Fragile Earth

Soil erosion affects everyone. It is not just a problem for the agricultural community, even though they can be responsible for both controlling it and creating it.

All sediment in our lakes, rivers and harbors has its source in erosion of one type or another. Sediment comes from indiscriminately cut forests, plowed fields, or misused land. The misused land category includes contributions from unseeded roadbeds, house and other construction sites, and mine and industrial slag erosion.

Farmland erosion is the source of much sediment. This type of erosion usually results from growing row crops on steep land, from straight row farming on slopes that should be contour farmed or terraced, and from too frequent cultivation of land that needs alternating row crops and grass crops. However, pasture and rangeland overgrazing and overcutting on farm woodlots also contributes to the stream erosion load.

Sediment causes much environmental damage. It annually fills thousands of ponds and reservoirs; it destroys crops and fills up drainage ditches; it clogs stream channels which in turn promotes flooding, and it fills ditches and culverts along roadsides. One of the major problems with sediment is that it reduces the attractiveness of recreational areas. All these detrimental results can be economically described, but it is very difficult to monetarily evaluate the biological damage wrought by sediment. Soil in suspension or deposited on aquatic bottoms destroys the spawning beds of game and other fish, ruins their eggs by excluding oxygen from them, and reduces their food supply. Kentucky's First Governor Took Office At Age 41

This bicentennial year marks the 226th anniversary of the birth of one of Kentucky's more important but less celebrated heroes, Isaac Shelby. Indian fighter, politician, statesman and farmer, Shelby helped carve Kentucky out of a wilderness and served as the Commonwealth's first governor.

Shelby gained fame in the battle at King's Mountain in South Carolina when he defeated British troops led by Major Patrick Ferguson. On Oct. 7, 1780, when the battle smoke had cleared, Ferguson was dead along with approximately 200 British. Sixty of the patriots were dead or wounded. As a result of the victory, Shelby was dubbed "Old King's Mountain"—a nickname that followed him the rest of his life.

Shelby's fondness for Kentucky began in his 25th year when, as a surveyor with the Transylvania Land Co., he crossed the mountains on the trail blazed by Daniel Boone. One day while hunting, Shelby came upon a buffalo and followed the animal to a spot that was to become his future home. The spot was Knob Lick near Dix River in what is now Lincoln County. Shelby claimed 1,400 acres for himself and 1,400 acres in the name of his servant Richard Baber who was traveling with him. Shelby cleared the land according to the land

Lamps Defective

The Department for Human Resources (DHR) cautions consumers to beware of a potentially dangerous lamp that may still be on the market.

The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission announced that 304,400 clamp-on lamps with metal reflectors, manufactured by Woods Wire Products, Inc., Carmel, Ind. are defective.

When the lamp is plugged in, the metal spring protecting the strain at the base of the bulb socket cap may become electrically "hot" and create a shock hazard.

Most of the lamps were sold in retail stores between April, 1970, and December, 1971, for approximately $3 each.

The lamp consists of a bulb socket attached to a bowl-shaped metal reflector and to a clamp capable of gripping the edge of a door, table-top or other item of furniture. These lamps are similar to the type used in photographic studios or where extra illumination is required.

The lamps in question have a metal spring at the base of the socket, surrounding the power cord and extending into the base of the bulb socket cap. The wire usually has a black vinyl covering, with the trademark "INDUSTROB B R" and "300 Volts" printed in white letters. These two characteristics will identify the product, but consumers should be aware that the metal spring is the primary cure, a department spokesman said.

After disconnecting and identifying the lamp, consumers should separate the socket cap from the assembly and examine the inside of the socket.

If there is a cardboard disc between the spring and the socket assembly, the lamp does not present the potential hazard. However, if there is no such insulator disc, the consumer should call the manufacturer toll-free at 1-800-425-3511 in Indiana call collect at 1-317-944-7292 to receive instructions on how to return it.

For further information, consumers may also call the Consumer Product Safety Commission Hotline at 1-800-638-2666 or DHE Office of Pesticides and Consumer Safety, Frankfort at 564-4537.

claim regulations of the day and built rough log structures. Before leaving the area, he planted corn and left Burke to take care of the property. Shelby also claimed 2,000 acres near Lexington for his father, who had received a military warrant from Virginia.

It was eight years before Shelby was able to return to his claim at Knob Lick. During those years, Shelby fought Indians in Virginia and in the Carolinas.

In 1782, Shelby returned to Knob Lick and built a cabin there. In April, 1783, Shelby married Susannah Hart, daughter of Nathaniel Hart, of Fort Boonesborough. Shelby was 32 years old and Susannah was 19.

Shelby completed a two-story stone house at Knob Lick in 1786 and named it Traveler's Rest. Shelby loved his house and family and on those occasions he had to leave there, he left reluctantly.

Shelby took an active role in the conventions held at Danville which led to Kentucky's admission to the 15th state in the union. The state constitution that resulted from the conventions was the first to allow every man over 21 (excluding criminals) the right to vote. When the people of the newly formed Commonwealth began thinking about who should be their governor, Isaac Shelby stood above all other potential candidates. He was elected on the day of $100,000 year. Kentucky joined the union June 1, 1792. Three days later in Lexington, at the age of 41, Shelby was sworn in as the first governor of Kentucky.

Under Shelby's guidance as governor, a system of courts was established, a military act was enacted that made all free males between the age of 18 and 45 eligible for military duty, a state seal was approved, Frankfort was chosen as capital of the State; construction of a capital building was begun, Indian attacks on Kentucky settlers diminished, and the Wilderness Trail was improved and opened.

After his term in office, Shelby retired from politics to return to Traveler's Rest, where he thought he would live out his remaining years. Later, he was again elected governor, but he took the office reluctantly.

At the onset of the War of 1812, Shelby found himself at the age of 62 leading 3,300 Kentucky soldiers to Canada to fight the British and the Indians. The Battle of the Thames was victorious for the Americans.

When Shelby left office in 1816, a national salute was fired with a cannon taken from the British at the Battles of the Thames. Shelby was glad to get home to Traveler's Rest once again and dove into his remaining years. Later, he was again elected governor, but he took the office reluctantly.

At the onset of the War of 1812, Shelby found himself at the age of 62 leading 3,300 Kentucky soldiers to Canada to fight the British and the Indians. The Battle of the Thames was victorious for the Americans.

When Shelby left office in 1816, a national salute was fired with a cannon taken from the British at the Battles of the Thames. Shelby was glad to get home to Traveler's Rest once again and dove into his remaining years. Later, he was again elected governor, but he took the office reluctantly.

Letters . . .

This newspaper welcomes letters, particularly on subject of general, local, or area interest. Right is reserved to condense. No letters will be printed without author's signature and address.

The Editor:
The "Perils of Pauline" continue. It is high time that the obstructive and deceptive practices on the part of about two or three Rowan County officials stopped. The positive, forward steps steadfastly recommended and voted for by Magistrates Ray Martin, Arthur Mabury and Eddie Thomas should be put into operation without further delay.

The Citizens Committee members have discussed the fire insurance policy "emergency." There are two or three strange "coincidences" in this matter. There seems to be enough evidence piling up so that the next Grand Jury should ask some penetrating questions of three or four Rowan County officials concerning the details of the purchase of the insurance policy now in question and about the maintenance and repair of the Rowan County Courthouse and furnace during the past six years. The taxpayers have a right to know whether nonfeasance, malfeasance and/or conflict of interest can be ascertained.

We have a right to know whether ignorance and benign neglect or malignant greed and deliberate neglect caused the present furnace problems. Other interesting possibilities the Grand Jury should look into are collusion and/or conspiracy.

If the Commonwealth Attorney is short of staff or time, the Citizens Committee for the Courthouse will be happy to employ special counsel to assist him in the investigation and, if indictments result, the prosecution. In any case, the greedy games which have been played in the past at the taxpayers' expense must come to an end. Proceed to plan the facilities actually needed by Rowan County sufficient for the present and reasonably foreseeable future. If some of the county officials and employees are actively unhappy with their jobs, a simple letter of resignation would make both of us happy. The time is drawing near when we the taxpayers and voters will have an opportunity to sit in judgment at the polls. How many will be weighed in the balance and found wanting?

The Editor:

The Communications Workers of America are being forced to remain on strike by General Telephone. Repeatedly during the course of negotiations they have insisted that to get an agreement we had to accept all five of their retrogressive proposals. We have told them that these issues are keeping us from getting close to a settlement. During the recent meetings we have reaffirmed our position on these proposals, but with their irresponsible attitude about trying to reach an agreement with the Communications Workers we are forced to remain on strike in protest.

It is unfortunate that a public servant can take this attitude towards the Public and its employees. We realize with all 1154 CWA represented employees on the job it is difficult to maintain the service levels that the public deserves with our members withholding their services it is apparent that General Telephone cannot be providing satisfactory service to all their customers.

With regret we must continue to take this course of action. Previous experience has shown that this is the only way that General Telephone will listen to its employees. We appreciate your continued support and understanding.

Burley Growers Await 1976 Quotas, Due Feb. 1

Pool consignments of burley tobacco are continuing at the highest rate in recent years, though slightly slower than before Christmas.

At the completion of the first week of post-holiday sales of the 1975 crop, total receipts were 28,788,637 pounds, or 7.21 per cent, it was reported by Alvin R. Beckley, executive secretary-treasurer of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association.

The tabulation is reported by January 8, and includes the five-state area served by the Association—Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Missouri. For the eight-state burley belt adding Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia, the pool consignments total 47,512,169 pounds, or 8.35 per cent.

Growers and the burley industry generally are awaiting word on the 1976 crop quotas, which by law must be fixed by February 1. Recommendations from all segments of the industry were heard January 9 at the USDA sponsored quota hearing at Sessy Auditorium, U.K. College of Agriculture, Lexington. The meeting, attended by growers, government officials and tobacco leaders, serves as the principal fact finding assembly for burley interests.

Preliminary to the USDA quota fixing and announcement of 1976 production limits.

The Burley Association, which administers the price-support program in the five states it serves, recommended a reduction "greater than 5 per cent," without stating a definite limit. Other growers and individuals at the meeting asked for specific cuts, ranging from 5 to 15 per cent.

David J. Williams, president of the Burley Association, said letters received from growers over the five-state belt asked for cuts mainly in the 5, 10, 12 and 15 per cent range. One grower asked that no reduction be made, and another asked for 25 per cent.

The contrast between the situation now and this time last year was pointed out by Mr. Williams in addressing the quota meeting. He said:

"A year ago the talk was the there was an acute shortage in the supply of American grown burley. Influenced by that talk the Department of Agriculture set the 1975 crop quota at 667.1 million pounds, based upon its projected disappearance of 680 million pounds. The previous year's disappearance had been 619 million pounds. This past year's disappearance is now set at 586 million pounds.

"Sixty days later the tradespeople's consensus was that there was not an acute shortage of American grown burley. Indeed, the supply was 2,749 years—almost 'normal' by statutory definition.

"What this form will finally net we cannot approximate at this time, due to the presence of indeterminate factors. If the price of burley tobacco, disregarding quality, is an accurate reflection of supply and consequent demand, then comparison of current market prices averages with those of a year ago denotes a larger supply than estimated, or at least a larger supply than is desirable.

Figured at 95 percent of the 1975 quota the 1976 crop would be 733.7 million pounds, and, he added, "This would result in an excessively long supply, a very substantial part of which production, at the projected support level of $1.08 per pound, would be placed under loan with the association.

"Thus the loan program would be jeopardized by losses that would not be indulged by the taxpayers and the Congress. Hence, a reduction in the 1976 crop quota greater than 5 per cent is advisable, if it can be achieved by pending legislation."

The report included announcement that the Association has sold all of the old stock tobaccos up to and including the 21973 crop.

Total receipts taken under loan of the 1974 crop were 2,266,714 pounds green weight. This was processed and put in strips for a total packed weight of 1,789,916 pounds Mr. Williams said, and added: "From the 1974 crop we have sold 62,234 pounds, leaving on hand to sell 1,727,259 pounds."

Fifty-six For Freedom

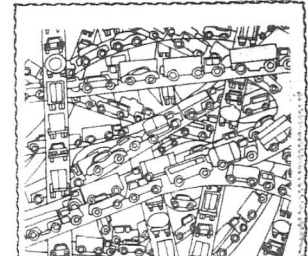

Often called the "Father of the Revolution," Sam Adams was one of the first to clamor for independence from the British through revolution. A Harvard graduate at 18 and a leader of the anti-British secretive group, "Boston Sons of Liberty," Adams was a hardy, muscular man of medium height with clear, steel-grey eyes and a prominent nose. Sam tried his hand at his father's business as a brewer and merchant, but found it uninteresting. Money was of little concern to him and he was in a constant state of indebtedness—a fact that led the British to attempt unsuccessfully to buy his loyalty. His friends outfitted him with a new set of clothes when he left to attend the Continental Congress. Failing at bribery, the British offered 500 pounds for his capture on charges of treason. British soldiers were hunting Sam Adams and fellow patriot John Hancock, when they clashed with American Minutemen at Lexington and Concord on April 19, 1775. He helped incite and probably participated in the "Boston Tea Party." His work in state government, including serving as governor of Massachusetts, following the Revolution, was for him anticlimactic as his goals had been reached with the Revolution. He was a local politician and stayed in the background of national politics. He died in "honorable poverty" in 1803.

Morehead Physician Charged With Failure To Feed Her Horses

A Morehead physician - Dr. Billie Jo Caudill - beset with many civil actions in Rowan Circuit Court for failure to pay debts, faced even further problems this week.

Dr. Caudill, who is employed by the Cave Run Mental Health and Mental Retardation Center at Morehead, has been ordered to appear today (Thursday) in Fleming County court at Flemingsburg to ascertain whether she has complied with a court order to feed and properly care for registered Tennessee walking horses or owners.

The chronological circumstances - Dr. Caudill owns a dozen or more walking horses and has often shown them in horse shows

She rented 13 stalls from Bruce Harris, owner of the Stepping Stone Farm in Fleming County. Harris said that last November he told Dr. Caudill and her stable boy that the horses weren't being fed, were dying of starvation, and he would need some lumber to replace several stable doors and walls that had been chewed through by her starving horses.

One of the horses died of starvation in mid-December and Harris registered a complaint with the Rowan County Board of Health. Harris said the Rowan Health Department put him in touch with the state veterinarian in Frankfort.

The state veterinarian sent Robert Hickman, a state livestock inspector to Harris farm after an inspection he filed a complaint with Fleming County Judge William Owens.

Owens issued a warrant Dec. 21 for Dr. Caudill's arrest, and when she was arraigned Dec. 29 ordered her to feed and care for the remaining horses "every day" and be back in court last Thursday.

Another horse died in December and all are "thin and emaciated," a Flemingsburg veterinarian, Dr. Emery Clark, advised the court. Judge Owens said he would not set a trial date "until I'm sure the other horses are now receiving proper care." Judge Owens appointed last Thursday a tenant on the Harris farm to care for and feed the 11 remaining horses. He also sent a deputy sheriff to make an investigation.

Acres Permitted For Strip-Mining Dropped Slightly

The total number of acres permitted for strip mining in Kentucky during 1975 dropped slightly from that recorded in 1974.

According to the division of Reclamation in the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, more than 4,600 acres were permitted for strip mining in 1975. The total number for 1974 was about 57,000 acres.

Despite the drop in total acres permitted for strip mining, the number of permits issued in 1975 was slightly greater than in 1974, showing a trend toward permits involving fewer acres. In 1975, 1,522 permits to strip mine were issued. The total for 1974 was 1,370.

According to Ken Ratliff, of the division of reclamation, the decline in the total number of acres permitted in 1975 was probably the result of a gradual decline in the coal boom market.

Other statistics show that bond releases on a total of 10,182 acres of strip mined land were made during 1975. Also during the year, 1,636 permit applications were received. There were 17,116 mine inspections and 1,502 compliance investigations made by the division.

Rowan Heart Fund Appointments Made

Three appointments to leadership positions in the 1976 Rowan County Heart Fund drive have been announced by the state campaign chairman, poet-novelist Jesse Stuart of Greenup. All of Morehead, they are Mrs. John Kittle, County Heart Fund Chairman, John Will Holbrook Sr., County Business Gifts Chairman, and Mrs. Ovada Messer, County Heart Fund Treasurer.

The month-long Heart Fund appeal will be launched Tuesday, Feb. 3 with Coffee Day. The house-to-house solicitation will be conducted on Heart Sunday, Feb. 29. Jesse Stuart, himself a heart attack victim, urged full support of the 1976 appeal, noting that 492,000 Kentuckians suffer from heart disease and that 57 percent of all known causes of death in the Commonwealth are due to heart and blood vessel diseases.

He also announced that Mrs. Oscar Calvert, Morehead, will continue to serve as the year-round Memorial Gifts Chairman for Heart in Rowan County.

A new high total of $726,000 was contributed last year to the Heart Fund in Kentucky, Stuart said.

Cooking Tip
For cooking and baking use dry milk or evaporated milk mixed with water. If your family doesn't like to drink this milk, try mixing it half-and-half with fresh milk. Reconstituted dry milk or diluted evaporated milk can be used with almost any recipe which includes milk.

an apple a day

... makes a lot of apples by the end of the year. Trouble with keeping apples... they spoil. Not so with dollars. They're just as fresh at year's end as when you put them there. In fact, a little fresher. You see, Peoples Bank, Sandy Hook, adds a little interest to improve the flavor.

Saving an apple a day might not be such a great idea. Saving a dollar (or two, or three, or more) a day is.

And that's no applesauce.

Starting now.. we'll rent you a new Ford.

That's right. We've expanded our Ford business to include rentals. Now you can rent a new Ford from us whenever you need it - for any length of time. And naturally, since we're in the new car sales business, the Fords we rent will be in tip-top condition. So an extra car for you or your family is always close... quick... convenient.

We're now a part of the Ford Rent-A-Car System. A nationwide rental service which is located close to where people live and work.

Ford Rent-A-Car is for everybody. It's for wives whose husbands take the family car out on business. It's for businessmen whose wives take the family car for fun. It's for families who have to be two places at the same time. Or, simply, it's for whenever you need an extra car - for a day, a week or a month.

Rates will vary, of course, with the model you select, but all are surprisingly low. And complete insurance coverage - collision, liability, fire, theft - is included, too.

So next time you need an extra car, remember your neighbor. Remember... and call us.

Need an extra car today? See us... we're close to home.

Workers Keep Jobs As CETA Program Extended

The Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection recently received $145,000 to extend its CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) program through June 30.

Forty persons are employed under the CETA program as conservation aides in the department's division of conservation and four persons are working as environmental control inspectors for the division of water quality.

The CETA program, which began last May, is funded by a grant through the Bureau for Manpower Services in the Kentucky Department for Human Resources.

"I'm very pleased to have this program extended for another six months," said Stanley Head, director of the division of conservation. "It's helped us provide aids to the state's conservation districts and it has eased the state's unemployment situation by opening up new job slots."

Head noted that a few of the conservation aides have found other jobs. "We're glad to see these people gain the training necessary to enter other jobs outside the CETA program," he said.

The 40 aides plan farm ponds, waterways, terraces and other conservation measures throughout Kentucky. Working out of conservation district offices, the CETA aides operate survey levels and survey equipment, design permanent conservation practices and assist with the layout and installation of many of those conservation measures.

Environmental control inspectors in the division of water quality observe and assist the division's field staff in making inspections and maintaining records.

1040 Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. I am 65 years old and have just sold my home. I've heard that because of my age, I may not have to pay tax on some of the profit made from the sale. Is this true?

A. Yes, if you were 65 or older before the date of the sale or exchange of your house, you may be able to exclude from your income all or part of the gain from the sale. However, you are allowed to do this only once in your life, and you must have owned and used the property as your principal residence for at least five of the eight years immediately before the date of the sale.

If you meet these requirements, and if the adjusted sales price of your home is $20,000 or less, you may elect to exclude the entire gain from your income. This election must be made by both taxpayer if the property is jointly owned. If the adjusted sales price is more than $20,000, you may still be able to exclude part of the profit. For more information, see IRS Publication 523 Tax Information on Selling Your Home. It's available free from your IRS Office.

Q. I have a full-time job in one city, but I live with my family in a city 100 miles away, and I must travel back and forth each week. Are any of the travel and living expenses deductible?

A. No. In a case like yours, your home, for tax purposes, is considered to be your principal place of business, employment or post of duty, regardless of where you maintain your family residence. Your food and lodging while at your job and your travel expenses are considered personal expenses, and are not deductible. For more information, see IRS Publication 463, Travel, Entertainment, and Gift Expenses, available free at your IRS Office.

Q. I made a down payment on a house I wanted to have built, but the construction company has just declared bankruptcy. I am told I have no chance of recovering my money. Is there some kind of loss which I can declare on my tax return?

A. When a construction company becomes insolvent and fails to perform under the terms of a contract, the unrecoverable deposit made for the construction of a residence is considered a non-business bad debt. The deposit must be treated as a short-term capital loss, and is subject to the limitations on deductions for capital losses. Report the loss on Schedule D, Form 1040. For more details, see IRS Publication 548, Tax Information on Deduction for Bad Debts.

Many Will Seek History Of Ancestors This Year

By Helen Price Stacy

In the years following the war for independence, settlers cleared land for homesteads in lush Kentucky valleys, alongside navigable streams and when the view from mountaintops was too beautiful to resist, they stopped there.

One of the adventurous soldiers was Archibald Prater. He and his brother Jonathan, both veterans of the Continental Army, together with Ebenezer Hanna and others came through Cumberland Gap in 1791 looking for home sites. They found what they wanted at the head of Licking River near the present Salversville and made camp. Their stay was brief due to Indians, but four years later after settling in Bourbon (now Nicholas) County, they returned to build permanent homes in the area that was known as Meadows of Licking, Lick Station and finally Salversville.

The log house built by Prater was destined to stand until 1974 and today the logs are in a wing of the handsome David Prater house in Westmoreland Estates, Lexington.

Among veterans who used the Ohio River to reach home sites was Capt. John Wilson, son of Col. George Wilson of Fayette County, Pa. Wilson, born in about 1733, was 23 when he married Drucilla Swearingin and died at Cabin Creek near Maysville in 1789. He built the first blockhouse in what is known as Wilson's Bottom. The blockhouse was a necessary defense against Indian attack.

The Amburgey family traveled from Wilkes County, N. C. to Russell County, Va. in about 1814 and settled in what now is Perry County a few years later. Indicating great determination, an ancestor, (John) (John) Amberger, and a group of Germans came to America in 1717 and settled in Virginia. Conrad financed his passage to America by indenturing himself as a servant to Governor Spotswood of Virginia for seven years.

It was in 1835 that Elizabeth Hamons Amburgey applied for a war pension and to prove that her husband John Amburgey II had served in the Revolution, she tore pages from the family Bible and sent them along with her application. Her husband was born in Orange County, Va. in 1758 and they were married in 1787. She received her pension and the pages she tore from the Bible remain in the files in the National Archives.

A veteran who built his cabin on Grapevine Creek of the North Fork of the Kentucky River made his name as a marksman in the Revolution. Daniel Davidson, who was born in Virginia in about 1732, was an ensign in Morgan's Riflemen in the Revolutionary War. Records indicate that he was a brother of John Goodman Davidson who was killed by Indians in Virginia and of George Davidson who married Mary Woods and were ancestors of William Jennings Bryan.

Capt. Andrew Hatfield, who served in the Revolution, is buried in Roach, Va. His brother, Joseph Hatfield, served as a spy in the company of Capt. William Campbell. Joseph's wife, Rachel Smith Hatfield, died in 1856 at the age of 103 and is buried in Campbell County, Tenn. The first of the Hatfield family to reach America was Joseph Hatfield, who bought land in Virginia as early as 1632. Others of the family settled on Tug River in West Virginia and the Big Sandy. It was Ephraim, son of Valentine, who was father of the noted feudist Anderson "Devil Anse" Hatfield. The father was known as a quiet, peace-loving man and served as justice of the peace. The son had to learn the battle of feuding and, following in the steps of his Revolutionary War ancestor Capt. Andrew Hatfield, served in the Confederate Army as a first lieutenant in the 45th Virginia Infantry.

In this Bicentennial year of America many families will become interested in their ancestors. They will travel from county to county, state to state, searching courthouse records and family Bibles for names and dates. They will find some were heroes of the Revolution and some were not. In Morgan County a man was disturbed when he discovered his Revolutionary War ancestor had been hanged as a traitor, but regained his family pride when his research took him to another region and here the same ancestor was listed not as a traitor, but as a hero. There are, he noted, two sides to everything.

(Note: Most names and dates in this article were supplied by noted historian Henry P. Sealf of Stanville, Ky., who edits a genealogical quarterly that is a help to many families seeking information of their ancestors.)

PSC GRANTS RATE INCREASE TO WISER OIL COMPANY

The Kentucky Public Service Commission (PSC) has granted a $12,129 rate adjustment increase to the Wiser Oil Co. due to an increase in the wholesale cost of gas from the firm's supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp.

The order affects gas supplied by the Sistersville, W. Va.-based company on and after Jan. 15, 1976.

Commission Secretary Richard D. Heman, Jr. said the PSC had previously provided for such rate adjustments through a "purchased gas adjustment clause," which outlines conditions for rate adjustments due to an increase or decrease in the wholesale cost of gas.

Plank-Whitt Vows Solemnized In Church Ceremony

The wedding vows of Kathy Ann Plank and Mr. Larry Whitt were solemnized Wednesday, Dec. 24, at 2:30 p.m. at the Cranston Church of God.

The Rev. John Thornsberry officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Escorted by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of white Chantilly lace over taffeta petticoat. The gown featured long tapered sleeves with a caplet over the shoulders. The bodice was a chapel-length mantilla of tiered, intricate veiling and lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and red carnations with red streamers.

Mrs. Patsy A. Stephens, matron of honor and cousin of the bride, wore a gown of red velvet fashioned with an empire waistline and long puffed sleeves. Roger Sloan, close friend of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The groom, wearing the wedding band held in the basement of the church. Assisting were Mrs. Sue Moore, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Julia Anderson, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Nancy A. Stephens, cousin of the bride.

The couple resides in Morehead

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Dewayne Mabry wed New Year's Day

Miss Maze, Mr. Mabry Exchange Marriage Vows

Miss Valerie Susan Maze became the bride of Mr. Randy Dewayne Mabry in a double-ring ceremony on New Year's Day performed at 2 p.m. at First Church of God of Morehead.

The Rev. H. G. Pratt performed the ceremony and read a poem "I Love You" by Carl Sandburg which was selected by the bride and bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maze of Rt. 4, Morehead. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Netta Wilson, also of Morehead.

The bridegroom is the grandson of Ethel and Dewey Mabry of Morehead. Miss Leslie Ann Clark, organist, played "I Honestly Love You" prior to the ceremony.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Michael Maze. She wore a gown of white satin with an overlay of white chantilly lace fashioned with a natural waistline. The skirt was edged with a border of silver-blue sequins. The long sleeves of lace were accented with tiny pearl buttons at the cuffs. The V-necked bodice was trimmed with sequins. The over-the-face double shoulder length veil was of white lace matching that of the dress. She carried a bouquet of peach and blue flowers.

Miss Pamela Dianne Maze, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a blue A-line halter gown with matching jacket and headpiece comb with a bow and blue streamers which matched her dress. She carried a white rose with blue ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Miss Debbie Mardis, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Karen Sue Black. They wore gowns of pastel peach with empire waistlines accented with a rose at the bodice. They carried white roses with peach ribbons to match their dresses.

Mr. Roy Lee Wilson served as best man. Other attendants were Jerry Perry and Kathy Cooper who kept the guest book and served at the reception, which was held at the church. The couple is residing in Morehead.

Historical Society Increases Dues For Membership

The Kentucky Historical Society has hiked its membership dues from $5 to $10 yearly and has increased lifetime membership dues from $50 to $100.

In a letter to Historical Society members, Director William R. Buster explained that "inflationary pressures" had forced the executive committee of the society to raise dues.

Gen. Buster said the society's services to its membership "involves the publication and distribution of The Register, Kentucky Ancestors and The Bulletin. State funds are not provided for this function, he explained, "hence the cost of these functions must come from membership fees."

"The inflationary pressures" cited by the letter were "the greatly increased cost of paper, printing and postage (which have) pushed our expenses far beyond the break-even point."

In fact, the letter continues, "in the last fiscal year, each individual membership cost in excess of $3 over the regular dues assessment." The added expense was borne by the Historical Society.

The Kentucky Historical Society receives funds from the General Assembly for the maintenance of the Old State Capitol, the Old State Capitol Annex and the Old State Arsenal which have now been converted into museums.

Southern Christian Leadership Confab Honors Lt. Gov.

Lt. Gov. Thelma L. Stovall has been named the recipient of the first annual Martin Luther King Jr. Woman of the Year Award, sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Mrs. Stovall will receive the award at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 15, at the Galt House, during ceremonies commemorating the birthday of the slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

According to spokesmen for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Lt. Gov. Stovall was chosen for the award because of her efforts in the fight for the rights of all women in her enthusiastic and active support of the Equal Rights Amendment.

A Lot of Fun, Too... Growing Ginseng ...for Profit!

Reprinted From Rural Kentucky Magazine

Ginseng has been used by the Chinese for medical purposes for many centuries. In America, the principal source has been from wild plants. But, because of high prices and energetic hunting for the roots, the native supply of this plant has been severely reduced. As a result, there now seems to be considerable interest in the production of ginseng as a cultivated crop. It could be a new and different hobby for the home gardener.

American and Chinese Ginseng
The ginseng which was first used medically in China was native to that country, but the variety that is grown in the United States is of American origin. It was discovered by a missionary near Montreal, Canada, in 1716. However, it is similar in appearance and aromatic properties to the Chinese ginseng.

The scientific name of ginseng is Panax quinquefolium. The genus name, Panax, means it is a remedy for ills of the flesh. The species name, quinquefolium, refers to the five leaflets or segments of each leaf.

The ginseng root has a mild aromatic property which is credited with having general healthful, stimulating, restorative values and it is supposed to be beneficial in the relief of stomach gas. Its principal use in the U.S. is as a medication to counteract skin irritation.

Growing Ginseng
Ginseng needs a well-drained, light loam soil with a high organic matter content. It must have an adequate supply of moisture at all times. In addition, the plants should be protected from the hot sun by tall trees or a slatted-shade covering.

The seeds of ginseng mature in September and should be planted immediately. If you do this, a good percentage of the seed will germinate next spring. If you allow the seeds to dry, they will take a year longer to germinate.

Ginseng Beds
Space ginseng plants about two inches apart in rows six inches apart in a seedling bed where they must grow for one or two years. Then transplant them to a permanent bed with plants four inches apart in rows 12 to 15 inches apart.

Keep ginseng beds free from grass and weeds. Apply one pound of bone meal per square yard each spring about a month before the average date of the last frost. Scratch this into the surface soil and water thoroughly. A light organic mulch will help conserve soil moisture and keep the soil cool.

How to Ready for Market
Ginseng reaches marketable size when it is about five or six years old. The larger roots with dense texture from plants 10 to 15 years old usually bring a higher price on the market.

Dig the roots carefully because the trade accepts only whole roots. Then dry them in a well-ventilated room at 80°F to 90°F. Large roots dry slowly and should be turned to avoid molding.

Ginseng can be sold to wholesale drug dealers to supply both the U.S. market and the Chinese market. Check your drug routes before you start production.

INSECTS RUIN TREES
ATLANTA — Insect infestations, fire and tree diseases destroy as much timber as is being harvested annually to meet America's lumber and paper needs, the Southern Forest Institute reports.

JAPAN CULTIVATES LESS
TOKYO — As of August 1974 the amount of land under cultivation in Japan was 13,869,500 acres, down 185,250 acres, or 1.3 per cent, from a year earlier, according to a recent government report.

Portable Billboards May Not Be Such A Bargain

It seems like a real bargain. Your advertising message is seen by a large number of people because it's eye-catching and yet doesn't cost much. But those trailer-mounted and power-lifted billboards which can be parked at locations along Kentucky highways and city streets to ballyhoo a local business sometimes prove to be less of a bargain than the businessman expected.

According to the Kentucky Department of Transportation, the state has had to have a number of those trailers towed away during the past year because they were parked on a state right-of-way. State law does not permit the parking of any object on a right-of-way which might obstruct or cause a sight-distance problem for motorists.

For the businessman who rented the sign from one of several commercial outlets in the state, that can mean losing an advertising service for which he already has paid. And for the firm who rented the sign to him, it also can lead to some unexpected expense.

"If the sign must be removed, the owner-company (not the businessman who rented it) is notified first," said state Transportation Secretary John C. Roberts. "But if the warning is ignored and that sometimes happens—we then arrange for the sign to be towed away."

When that occurs, the owner-company is billed for the towing cost, he said.

"I would urge that the companies offering these signs for rental, and the merchants who rent them, become thoroughly familiar with the legal restriction on their use," Roberts said. That information can be obtained by calling the nearest state highway district office or by contacting A.R. Romine, state engineer for highway maintenance at the Kentucky Department of Transportation in Frankfort, he said.

In addition to the restriction against parking the portable units on a state right-of-way, the law also forbids the use of certain attention-getting gimmicks on the portable units such as flashing, intermittent or moving lights. "Any lighting of such glare or intensity as might be construed to present a hazard to traffic is also forbidden," said Romine.

The law also states that the device may not have any moving or animated parts, unless it is located in a commercial or industrially-zoned area, and the wheels must be removed.

There also are some provisions against using certain types of broad advertising messages, although that is not our primary concern," Romine said.

Thus far, most of the violations reported occurred in the more urban areas of the state such as Ashland, Covington, Bowling Green and Louisville, although, said Romine, "most of the misunderstandings seem to be something out now."

One highway district office spokesman said that while actual instances of encroachment on a state right-of-way no longer are considered a problem in his area, his district still is encountering difficulties over the lighting restrictions.

"We know of some cases where even the owner-company's warning to a merchant against using the lights has been ignored," he said. "After the owner-company parks the sign for them and departs, the merchant then slips out and turns the lights on himself," the spokesman said.

In Lexington, the use of portable advertising devices is probably being more effectively controlled than anywhere else in the state, said Romine.

Under local zoning ordinances enacted there, the units may be used only by a newly opened business and then only on a temporary basis until the merchant has time to install permanent signs and advertising equipment. The city of Paducah also sends out warning notices where the advertising signs are found to be in violation of the law and, after 72 hours, has them hauled away if the violation has not yet been corrected.

Disasters In State During Past Year Cost $6 Million

Individuals and units of government in Kentucky received nearly $6 million in disaster assistance through the state Division of Disaster and Emergency Services (DES), in 1975, according to Robert L. McFerren, deputy director of the agency.

The funds, provided by both federal and state governments, are administered by DES. The 1975 payments covered two major flooding incidents during the year, as well as more losses incurred during the 1974 tornadoes and earlier disasters.

McFerren explained that funds to units of government are normally disbursed as reconstruction work progresses.

Ronn Padgett, disaster assistance coordinator for DES, said that of the $5,839,705.98 distributed, nearly $2.6 million went through the Individual and Family Grant Program. Individuals and families who do not have the resources to recover from a disaster can receive grants of as much as $5,000 through the program.

Thirty-six counties received disaster funds during the year, as did 21 individual cities. Pike, Monroe and Jefferson counties were among the principal beneficiaries.

AIR TRAFFIC UP 5 PCT.
MONTREAL — The International Civil Aviation Organization reports that the world's airlines carried more passengers and freight in 1974 than ever before, but the year's rate of growth for total traffic was the lowest since 1958.

Total traffic last year was about 64,000 million ton-miles, only 5 per cent above 1973.

Court System Bills Receive Quick Action

A speech by Gov. Julian M. Carroll promising a "prudent fiscal posture" for the coming two years highlighted the first week of the 1976 Kentucky General Assembly session.

Carroll, breaking with tradition by delivering his state of the Commonwealth address on the second night of the session rather than the first, promised:

- + No tax increases, but tax relief for some of Kentucky's citizens
- + Opposition to across-the-board increases in funds for state programs;
- + Immediate improvements in elementary, secondary and vocational education programs; and
- + Careful review of federal programs for "hidden pitfalls," which often leave states with costly programs to be financed after federal funds are withdrawn.

Carroll also promised to return to the legislature the power to appropriate state surplus funds.

Meanwhile, the Senate moved quickly on two bills last week, one of which is designed to clear up confusion resulting from a new state constitutional amendment restructuring Kentucky's court system.

Senate Bill 69, passed unanimously and sent to the House, would require fiscal courts in each county to continue to furnish circuit courts and circuit court clerks the same space, facilities and financial support they had received from the fiscal courts prior to Jan. 1.

The amendment, which took effect Jan. 1, makes the state totally responsible for financing the circuit courts. The courts previously received partial funding from the fiscal courts in many counties.

The bill seeks to rectify a situation which would designate a political candidate as his own campaign treasurer until he designated a treasurer on his filing papers.

The bill also passed 34-1 a bill which would designate a political candidate as his own campaign treasurer until he designated a treasurer on his filing papers.

The bill seeks to rectify a situation that existed during the 1974 Republican senatorial primary, when it was unclear, for a time, if former U.S. Senator Marlow W. Cook's name could appear on the ballot because he had not named a campaign treasurer.

Among bills introduced during the first week was House Bill 200, by Representative Raymond Overstreet, R-Liberty, to require surface owners to give written consent to reclamation plans before the state may grant a permit to strip mine.

The bill is designed to prevent abuses to the land such as have occurred throughout the coal regions of eastern Kentucky as a result of the so-called "broad form" deed.

The deeds, many dating back to the turn of the century, permit a mineral rights owner to mine without the consent of those who own the land above which the minerals are deposited.

A bill by Overstreet and others was passed during the 1974 session to prohibit strip mining which did not have written approval of a surface owner.

The bill was declared unconstitutional, however, by the Court of Appeals.

Other bills introduced last week included:

- + HB 188, to allow persons between the ages of 16 and 18 to marry with parental consent
- + HB 195, to hold an open primary in Kentucky in August, rather than May, and to abolish the so-called "party lever" on voting machines
- + HB 198, to give a tax credit to utility companies for expenditures which reduce the cost of service to their customers.

Mrs. Roberts, 80, Dies Following Extended Illness

Mrs. Lula Ethel Lambert Roberts, 80, Dry Creek, Clearfield, died Saturday at her residence following a long illness.

A native of Floyd County, she was born Nov. 6, 1895, the daughter of the late Benjamin and Orlena Frazier Baldrige. A member of the United Baptist Church, she had resided all of her lifetime in Floyd and Rowan Counties. She was preceded in death by her first husband, Andy Lambert, and her second husband, Caleb Roberts.

Surviving are six sons, Lester and James Lambert, both of Clearfield, Leo Lambert of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Frank Lambert of Wabash, Ind., Guy Lambert of Mansfield, Ohio, and Bobby Lambert of Anderson, Ind., three daughters, Mrs. Viola Black of Beech Grove, Ind., Mrs. Jeanetta Wallace of Clearfield, and Mrs. Naomi Campbell of Taylor, Mich., three brothers, Johnny and Merlin Baldrige, both of Clearfield, and Murvel Baldrige of Ironton, Ohio, three sisters, Mrs. Lola Smedley of Morehead, Mrs. Goldie Foster of Martin, Tenn., and Mrs. Coney Dillon of Clearfield, 35 grandchildren and 39 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Stucky Funeral Home by Elders Wallace Webb and Aley Nichols. Burial was in Clearfield Cemetery. Grandsons served as pallbearers.

BEHIND THE EIGHT BALL... Kent Nickell, West Liberty freshman at Morehead State University, found himself in this classic position during a game of pocket billiards in the recreation room of MSU's Adron Doran University Center. He made the shot and won the game, incidentally.

For the State Capitol
Agree Or Not
I Say What I Think
by S.C. VanCuren

At least two state senators are making a strong effort to get input from their constituents.

Senators Joe Graves, R-Lexington, and Frank Miller, D-Bowling Green, have run paid advertisements in their area newspapers asking the people to tell them how they stand on important legislation. They go so far as to list a number of questions and ask the people to voice their positions on them.

Miller has done more on the subject than Graves. Miller has run advertisements in four of his area newspapers. He didn't stop there.

He also has printed a large number of placement questionnaires and is furnishing them to restaurants in his area. He also has placed the same questions on handbills and leaves them in banks and other business establishments.

His first question is, "Do you favor or oppose a law that would provide collective bargaining for public employees?" He provides a place to check "favor" or "oppose." He lists 13 measures in his printed material.

At the bottom he has this message: "I appreciate your taking time to inform me of your position on these legislative matters and feel that your opinions will be of great help to me during the legislative session. If there are other areas of concern or ideas you would like to convey, please use the reverse side to express them."

Miller said in an interview that he has received more than 1,100 replies to his questions about specific legislation and many volunteer viewpoints on other legislative matters. He says this is the best method he has found to get viewpoint from his constituents.

"It's important to me what the people in my district are thinking on proposed legislation," he said. "Legislators talk a lot about the legislature being more independent of the executive branch. If you vote for what the majority of people in your district favor, I think you are being just about as independent as possible."

This was in answer to a question if Miller thought this legislature would be more independent than under past governors, or would Governor Carroll have the tight control that many past governors have had.

Opening day, the House put in a new rule that requires a cost analysis with every bill introduced. There is a bill now before the legislature, but it wouldn't become effective if passed, until after this session. The rule would put the idea in effect immediately. The Senate may follow suit.

Among the questions to Miller's constituents is another toughie that has been around for years and will come up this session. He wants to know how his people feel about a law providing for a uniform automobile title law to replace the present certificate of registration.

State law enforcement officials, particularly State Police, have wanted a title law. They say the theft rate of automobiles is high in Kentucky and that it is a dumping ground for automobiles stolen in other states because it is so easy to procure a certificate for a car in Kentucky.

County Court Judges have opposed this law in many past sessions for fear it might take some business away from their offices.

Another question he asks is should municipal-owned utilities be regulated by the Public Service Commission. At present they are not.

Miller is Chairman of the Senate Committee on State Government and also is a member of the Public Utilities and Transportation Committee and is vice chairman of the Business Organizations and Professions committee.

Graves is not chairman of any committee since he is a Republican but he is a member of the Cities Committee, Elections and Constitutional Amendments. He is minority whip in the Senate.

In speaking of leadership positions, Freshman Senator John D. Rogers, R-Somersel, the only freshman Republican, says he was named freshman floor leader for the Republican freshmen... by one vote. His own.

DISCUSSES ROSES... Ms. Sharon Bale, University of Kentucky horticulturist, discussed the art of growing roses with the Rowan County Homemakers last Tuesday night. Also attending the lecture were guests from the Painted Hills Garden Club and other visitors.

WHAT A GRAIN BELT! UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — About 1.2 billion metric tons of grain are consumed yearly throughout the world. Piled 6 feet deep on a road 4 1/2 feet wide, this amount of grain would stretch around the world at the equator.

ESKIMO ART Praised NOME, Alaska — Eskimos have produced carved and engraved ivories that have been favorably compared with Bushman paintings and the paleolithic art of eastern Spain.

PATIENTS VIEWED PAGE LUND, Sweden—A new hospital aid that can increase the visual range of patients forced to be completely still for many weeks has been constructed by a Lund doctor, Ake Kjalilquist. It employs a movable twin-mirror arrangement whereby the patient can watch people across the room, look out a window or watch TV instead of just seeing a small area of ceiling.

Officials From HEW Tour Facilities Here

Three leading officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare visited Morehead on Tuesday during a tour of communities cooperating in the Kentucky January Program (KJP), an innovative health manpower education project developed and sponsored by the University of Kentucky College of Allied Health Professions.

The visitors, Dr. Kenneth Endicott, chief administrator, Health Resources Administration; Dr. Daniel Whiteside, director, Bureau of Health Manpower; and Thomas Hatch, director, Division of Associated Health Manpower, met with students from KJP observational and clinical teams based in Morehead. On Tuesday morning they toured the offices of the Health Development Association, the Cave Run Clinic and the St. Claire Medical Center.

Morehead was the first stop for the officials as they made a two-day site inspection of the Kentucky January Program. The visitors were scheduled to tour KJP locations in Pikeville and Harlan, and to meet with University of Kentucky and state health officials on the UK campus.

The Kentucky January Program (KJP), now in its fourth year, was initiated by the College of Allied Health Professions to bring students out of the classroom and into health care settings throughout the state for one month each year.

Students from the various allied health specialties, along with students from the Colleges of Nursing, Social Professions, Home Economics and Education, and from the Lexington Technical Institute, are grouped into interdisciplinary teams and assigned to health care environments in Kentucky. Sites are selected with care so that students are assured access to a wide range of agencies and institutions providing health care and related services in each locality.

Twenty observational teams of health students have been prepared for the annual field experience this month. Participants in these groups will spend a prescribed amount of time observing activities in selected agencies and institutions, learning what the various health professionals do, and gaining an appreciation of each specialty's contributions to health care delivery.

In addition, five clinical teams are assigned to sites, both urban and rural, throughout the state. Students in these groups will provide clinical care under the strict supervision of a practicing professional. Only qualified senior students are eligible to participate in clinical care teams.

The Kentucky January Program, which aims to give students the opportunity to receive part of their education in real life settings and to obtain a better grasp of their chosen profession, also benefits for the communities where teams are based. It has been shown in recent studies that students are more likely to practice their professions in areas where they have received part of their training. Through the involvement of the Kentucky January Program, communities, particularly those in rural areas where health professionals are in short supply, are provided with a new potential source of practicing health professionals.

Approximately 200 students, representing 16 academic disciplines, are participating in this year's program. Seven students taking part in the current KJP experience are from institutions in other states, including the University of Connecticut, the Medical College of South Carolina and Washington University, St. Louis.

The student teams will be working in 26 sites around the Commonwealth with varying tasks, including teaching hospitals, nursing homes, health departments, physician clinics, mental health centers, home health agencies and private physicians.

The Kentucky January Program is supported in part by the State Council on Public Higher Education's Area Health Education System program and by the Bureau of Health Manpower, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Ann Landers

Copyright - Field Enterprises, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: Millions more people read your column than read the news stories. Will you please do a tremendous favor for the men in this country who would like to enjoy sexual intercourse but are impotent?

Two Chicago hospitals have developed totally different techniques for these unfortunate males and they both work. The surgery permits men to have erections despite physical and emotional difficulties which previously had made sex impossible. One of the fantastic aspects of these two surgical procedures is that the female partner need not know that anything was done to the male. There are no tell-tale signs.

One of the patients described his cure as "so amazing it changed my entire outlook on life." He was a victim of hardening of the arteries. For ten years his affliction had deprived him of his ability to function sexually. Another patient suffered from diabetes. Hospital stays for either of these operation are brief. The cost for the simpler surgery is only $150. The more complicated operation costs approximately $1500.

Please, Ann, tell your readers which two hospitals to call. And since the names of the doctors were published in the paper it would be ethical if you identified them in your column. Thank you in behalf of - Those Who Need But Can't.

Dear Friend: I am aware of the hospitals, the names of the physicians and also the techniques developed to make intercourse possible for formerly impotent males. I feel it would be most inappropriate, however, to give such specific information in this column for a variety of reasons - not the least of which is that the hospital switchboards would light up like Christmas trees and the two physicians would be inundated with requests.

I shall print your letter and leave it to the readers who are interested to contact their own physicians and ask how to go about getting on the list. In advance, I request that my readers NOT query me further as I shall give no additional information on this subject.

Dear Ann Landers: Our youngest son married an adorable girl three months ago. We met her for the first time last New Year's Eve when he invited her here to be his date. (She lived in a distant city.)

Shortly after they were married, she called me "Mrs. X." I asked her not to be so formal. She misunderstood, and said, "I'd love to call you Alice." That same evening she began to call my husband "Phillip."

I would like for her to call me "Mother" the same as my other daughter-in-law. My husband says he doesn't care what she calls him, but it irritates me terribly when she addresses me by my first name.

Should I mention this to my son or should I speak to his wife about it? - Advice Wanted

Dear A.W.: Don't mention it to her OR to him. Let her call you "Alice" and get used to it.

I loved my mother-in-law dearly but I could never call her "Mother" because that name was reserved for my own mother. Perhaps your daughter-in-law feels the same way.

You'd be happy to settle for "Alice" if you knew what some girls call their mothers-in-law.

January 16, 1776-France recognizes the independence of the United States.
 January 17, 1786-Birthday of Benjamin Franklin.
 January 18, 1782-Daniel Webster, famed lawyer and statesman, was born on this date.
 January 19, 1808-Robert E. Lee's birthday. Lee is recognized by many historians as the Civil War's most able general.
 January 20, ...United States Presidents take office on this date, as a result of the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution, adopted in 1933.

your week ahead
BY DR. A.W. DAMIS

Forecast Period: January 15 to January 21
ARIES Mar. 21-Apr. 19: Stop looking for the "easy way," this week. You're prone to being lazy. Remember, the cost of failure is nothing!
TAURUS Apr. 20-May 20: You're going to give some serious thought to what a member of the opposite sex is costing you. Also, aid will come from an unexpected source.
GEMINI May 21-June 20: An unexpected, unplanned financial situation might stagger many members under your sign. Don't gamble; not even a nookie's worth!
MOONCHILD July 21-Aug. 22: Gossip seems to play a big role in your chart. Remember, now! Any decision based on hearsay, can get you into real trouble.
LEO Aug. 23-Sept. 22: Keep your long term plans to yourself! Apparently, an associate is out to undermine your job, task or project.
VIRGO Sept. 23-Oct. 22: You are entering a phase when a member of the opposite sex might notice your personality flaws. So, keep on your best behavior.
LIBRA Oct. 23-Nov. 21: Stellar patterns indicate an emotional carryover from last week's problems. So, you'll duplicate a few mistakes, if you aren't careful.
SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21: Don't permit a new project to lag. It seems as though you're in the mood to put a very important task aside.
SCORPIO Dec. 22-Jan. 19: Avoid being influenced by so called "friends." According to your chart, you're in for a big, big load of poor advice.
CAPRICORN Jan. 20-Feb. 18: The planet Saturn warns against your being pessimistic about a pending project. Good fortune will come in a strange package!
AQUARIUS Feb. 19-Mar. 20: There is such a thing as feeling "too good" and being "too confident." Apparently, you'll be tempted to challenge the wrong person. Take care!
PISCES Mar. 21-Apr. 19: At last, it seems as though the good deeds you've performed in the past--will now begin to pay off!

Dye In Streams May Be From Monitoring Work

If you see dye in a Kentucky stream, it could be part of a special monitoring project by state water quality agents. Regular daily monitoring of streams, lakes and sewage treatment plants by the water quality division on the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection sometimes does not give all the information needed. Then the state has to do special monitoring to get specific information for legal actions, research, in-depth studies, and to fill in gaps. Shelby Jett, chief engineer with the division, said each special monitoring project is tailored to answer a specific question.

In Scott County, the division is conducting a special biological study to obtain background information on the stream that will receive effluent from the proposed Stamping Ground sewage treatment plant. After the plant begins releasing its effluent, another study will show whether the plant and animal life in the stream has been harmed. Discharge studies can last anywhere from one day to a year depending on the nature of the waste. A pre-strip-mining study is being done on Greasy Creek in Eastern Kentucky. The results will be compared with a study done after stripmining begins to determine its effect on the creek's biological life.

One common type of special study is waste load allocation, which determines the oxygen-utilization and regeneration in a stream. A controlled amount of radioactive materials along with a fluorescent dye identifier, are placed in a stream above a waste water discharge point to determine the amount of oxygen transferred out of and into the water. Samples are taken at location downstream from the discharge point and used in determining the level of treatment required for a sewage treatment plant. Bio-assays, another common type of special monitoring, subjects aquatic life to different dilution of treated waste to determine effects in specific streams and lakes. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is conducting bio-assays--which take about two weeks to complete--on some industries in Kentucky. Jett said an important use of special monitoring is as a back-up for regular in-stream and discharge monitoring. For instance, Jett said, special studies are performed in conjunction with routine discharge monitoring to identify problems associated with a portion of a sewage treatment plant.

Special studies are also done to locate sites for routine monitoring. "Special studies," said Jett, "help us define the character of a monitoring location and help us determine where the most representative sampling point is."

"Another type of special study that we do in conjunction with the regular in-stream monitoring," said Jett, "is that of the biological study. This type of information can't be obtained at our regular monitoring sites because it must be performed on an entire stretch of a stream--not just at a few selected areas."

Mrs. Opal Banks Dies Thursday; Rites Saturday

Mrs. Opal Banks, 79, of 310 Sun Street, Morehead, died Thursday at St. Claire Medical Center following an illness of several days. She suffered an apparent stroke.
 Born June 23, 1896, in Indianapolis, Ind., she was a member of the Christian Church and served as a missionary to India. Her husband, Gabriel C. Banks, preceded her in death. She was the daughter of the late James Burkhardt and Elizabeth McCauley Burkhardt.
 Surviving are a son, William Banks of Chapel Hill, Tex., two daughters, Betty Schudel of Mt. Urab, Ohio, and Gay Hedrick of Newport, N.Y., one brother, Fenis Burkhardt of Crawfordsville, Ind., 14 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.
 Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Saturday at First Christian Church by Dr. Roy Roberson. Burial was in Hazel Green Cemetery.
 Pallbearers were John Collis, Hobert Williams, Russell McClure, William Mahaney, George I. Cline and Creed Patrick.
 Stucky Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Publisher's Pen

Day-by-day jot-tem-downs, and editorial observations of the publisher of this newspaper.

The four to six degrees above zero last week was the coldest it has been in our community since 1968.

During this extremely cold spell the sinuses in our big head seemed to be repeating, "Florida is a playing field. If it wasn't for some previously scheduled business meetings we would have been in the Sunshine State before the New Year.

The earliest we could possibly get away is next Wednesday, Jan. 21... and received our plane tickets for that date.

We're holding to our prediction made in December that this will be the 8th straight mild winter in the Morehead area with probably two more cold waves of short duration.

Maybe it's just not right for the Publisher to be lounging on them bikini best Florida beaches... playing golf, going to the races, and enjoying a few other pastimes which it's better not to mention in print... while you dear paid-up readers shiver.

We do hope it's a mild winter both in Kentucky and on Florida's gold coast.

A SURVEY by the Institute of Life Insurance shows that 48 percent of the men and 54 percent of the women believe that a "woman's place" is in the home.

ANOTHER SURVEY by the Institute reveals that eight out of every 10 people believe that a "happy home life" is the most important goal. Only three percent rated "making lots of money" as most important.

It is our conclusion that "lots of money" goes a heck of a long way towards a happy home life.

TACT is the art of building a fire under people without making their blood boil.

"WHY DID the foreman fire you?" "Well, you know the foreman is the man who stands around and watches the others work."

"Yes, anyone knows that. But, why did he fire you?" "He was jealous of me. A lot of fellows thought I was the foreman."

HEAD BASKETBALL Coach Jack Schalow at Morehead State University must think he's been bitten by a viper, Bernie Stampler, one of the best free-throwers in the nation, missed on a one, plus one, with eight seconds to play at Richmond, and the MSU Eagles lost by a point; and one of the best teams Marshall has had in years, beat our Eagles by a single point Saturday evening.

Jack, don't be discouraged! Things have a habit of running in cycles. You'd be amazed how many photo finishes the author of this column has lost at Keeneland, Churchill Downs, Hialeah and Gulfstream.

Anytime, when the Eagles were pined to finish last in this year's OVC race, the Publisher "laughed out loud" and we held to our New Year's forecast that MSU will be very much in the thick of the battle for the OVC title.

We'll wait and see whether them "experts" were right; or whether the author of this column is seldom wrong, except when it comes to picking the Kentucky Derby Winner.

IN FAIRNESS to our readers we should be in Florida right now looking over the three year old colts to provide you with information on the winner of the 1976 Kentucky Derby.

ELIZABETH Spalding, editor of the Kentucky Standard, thinks that bourbon whiskey received its name from E. C. Booz, a successful distiller in Nelson County during the middle years of the 18th century.

Joe Aaron, columnist for the Evansville Press, says bourbon got its name from a Baptist preacher by the name of Elijah Craig, who lived in Bourbon County and made the first whiskey.

(We darsay that Baptists in our area wouldn't be happy with the conclusion that a preacher of their faith made whiskey.)

The Barton Museum of Whiskey History has the story of bootlegging: in stagecoach days a bottle of whiskey was stuffed down into the top of the boot for the relief and stimulation of the passenger who owned the leg, boot, and, of course, the bottle. In between stops, he could take therapeutic draughts from the bottle and thus become less aware of the discomforts of the bumpy, swaying, dusty ride.

It was that practice that coined the word to "bootleg."

We really don't give a hoot who first made bourbon; but do know, from sorrowful experience, that it imbued in quantity it'll make you plenty "smart" today and plenty sick tomorrow.

STAGE STRUCK young ladies who want to break into show business should change their hairstyle, learn how to walk, buy a sexy wardrobe and before you know it, they'll be married, have six kids, and forget all about that nonsense...

ORCHIDS this week to employees of the City of Morehead who cleaned the streets and spread the salt that made our thoroughfares safe during all this recent snow and ice. On Interstate 64 no poorer it is in Montgomery county.

BEAUTY CONTESTS did not start in Hollywood, Atlantic City or Miami. They began when the second woman arrived on earth.

IT WAS an innocent "personal" letter from a downtown Chicago hotel to some 4000 former guests throughout the United States and Canada apologizing for building renovations.

It began, "Being privileged in having you as our recent guest..."

Trouble was, the letter was sent to the wrong people, some 4000 Chicago residents who don't normally spend their nights in the hotel.

Jerome Belanger, vice president and general manager of the Oxford House Motor Hotel, admitted sheepishly, "They were quite a few broken homes to judge from the calls coming in."

Belanger explained that the computer-letter firm that handled the mailings used the mailing list of another firm.

GEORGE WASHINGTON arrested Richard Nixon on a drug charge in Pittsburgh.

Officer Washington said he arrested Nixon, 19, on a theft charge and found four packets of suspected marijuana on the suspect.

A deskman at No. 5 Police Station said it was a shame Washington's partner was not in on the arrest. "His partner's name is Benjamin Franklin."

A SAN FERNANDO, Calif. church, in an unusual fund-raising drive has offered funeral services for pet rocks.

"We found out a number of our members had these rocks so we proposed a five-dollar funeral for them," said David Mencher, a fund raiser for the Emerson Unitarian Church.

"One or two of our members have expressed interest."

He said funeral services would be accompanied by the hymn "Rock of Ages" and rock music.

Seaside and roadside burials were also being offered for an additional fee. "I'm sorry about it but we can't do cremations," Mencher added.

WE HAVE an idea that if the Man Above starts spreading fire and brimstone of this earth the first target will be Washington, D. C.

There's no way of telling how much corruption exists at our nation's capital. For example, the five members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff pay no state income taxes from their very high military pay. All five have listed their legal addresses in states that do not levy an income tax, although none live in those states.

The biggest crooks in the U.S.A. are not in jail or on the "wanted" list.

They're in Washington.

PREDICTION - The session of the Kentucky General Assembly, now underway, will be mild compared to the special session to establish the guidelines for the judiciary because of that average citizen standstill of the November election. Lawyers are already talking in terms of $50,000 and up for judgeships; and clerks are thinking of getting pay raises up to $20,000. Public reaction could be vicious!

We think the amendment passed because most people thought of it as a "reform"; and if there's anything that the average citizen stands for it is "reform" in existing government.

THE EAGLE cheerleaders sure looked good in their new uniforms Saturday evening as MSU dropped that one-point, overtime decision to invading Marshall. Incidentally, the fans were the most orderly of any Marshall-Morehead game we have ever witnessed.

THE ECONOMISTS and CPA's are delving into the financial affairs of New York to ascertain why our largest city went bankrupt.

It has been established that New York City has more municipal employees per 10,000 population of any city in the nation or perhaps the world. New York City has over 517 employees for each 10,000 residents, and wardleader Aldermen were demanding even more. Sounds like New York City was running its affairs like most of these bureaus created by Congress which have likewise bankrupted the U.S.A. as we (half-heartedly) observe the nation's 20th birthday.

IT IS no longer denied that the Social Security fund is broke, and funds are being drawn from the general fund. Oh, well. SS became a tax instead of a retirement reserve a long time back.

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS are conjecturing about the federal court indictments of Charles Pryor of Sturgis and H. K. Taylor of Morehead. Pryor was high commissioner and Taylor the executive director of the democratic party during the administration of Gov. Wendell Ford.

The allegations were much publicized and then lay dormant for over a year in the files of United States Attorney Eugene Siler.

President Gerald Ford nominated Siler for a coveted judgeship in the eastern district of Kentucky.

In the meantime, Gov. Wendell Ford went to the United States Senate to get his campaign manager Walter "Dee" Huddleston.

All that it took to block Siler's confirmation for the judgeship was to lord up Huddleston, or both to inform the democratic leadership not to bring Siler's nomination before the Senate. It's that easy, and the procedure has been used thousands of times by both democratic and republican Senators. Senators Huddleston and Ford permitted Siler's nomination to be cleared the U.S. Senate floor, and he was confirmed without objection. But, just before leaving the post of United States Attorney, Siler pulled out the Pryor-Taylor file and had both men indicted by a federal grand jury.

The conclusion in political circles is that Siler was most unappreciative of the fact that Senators Ford and Huddleston didn't block his appointment to the judgeship.

The true bill charged that Pryor furnished Taylor with a list of persons chosen to appraise land for highway rights-of-way acquisition; and Taylor would then ask those persons for kickbacks to the democratic party.

Democratic political leaders seem confused because: 1. The lists of special service contracts, including highway appraisals, are open to the public and Pryor didn't have to "slip" them to Taylor; and 2. Taylor at the time did not hold any state position, but his place was with the state democratic party.

Taylor, formerly in the automobile business at Morehead, is now a member of the staff of Lt. Governor Thelma Stovall.

Maybe it'll all come out in court... if the case comes to trial!

THE HORSE has nosed out the bald eagle in the race for recognition as America's "bicentennial animal."

In an election sponsored by the National Humane Society's junior division, children across the country put the horse atop a list of 14 "candidates."

The bald eagle came in a close second, with 28.2 per cent of almost 75,000 votes cast, compared with 27.47 for the horse.

In third, fourth and fifth places were the white-tailed deer, buffalo and grizzly bear, respectively.

They were followed by whales, wolves, cattle, coyotes and beavers. The mule came in 13th and the salmon was last.

A spokesman for the Humane Society said there also were write-in votes for all kinds of "animals" - including dogs, cats, fleas and sharks.

THERE ARE more than 6,000 shades of color in the world - and nearly half of them are blues and browns.

So says the British Color Council, which has cataloged an astonishing 1,400 shades of blue, 1,375 browns, 1,000 reds, 820 greens, 550 oranges, 500 greys, 360 violets - and 12 whites.

THE HUMAN BODY is perhaps the most incredible machine in existence. Here are some amazing, but little-known facts about the human body, as gathered by the National Geographic Society:

+ Blinking causes your eyes to be closed half an hour a day.

+ In normal breathing, the body takes in about 14 pints of air a minute.

+ The body perspires constantly, between one and two pints a day.

+ The fingertips have 2,000 pores per square inch.

+ Blood journeys endlessly through 60,000 miles of vessels, going out from the heart and back to it in less than a minute.

+ The heart pumps 2,000 gallons of blood a day.

+ In normal digestion, the stomach produces hydrochloric acid strong enough to burn a hole in a rug.

THE NEW 13-cent postage stamp has sent Morehead postal clerks back to school to learn their multiplication facts. What if you asked for 13 13-cent stamps?

HARRY TRUMAN was never a man to mince words. A constituent once wrote him about the post office motto, "Neither snow, nor rain, or gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed round," and asked what it meant.

"It means," replied Truman, "they deliver the mail in the wintertime."

The U.S. Postal Service, under strong criticism, doesn't display the motto these days. Instead, they spend most of the time trying to raise their own pay and fringe benefits.

THE FIRST Adam-splitting gave us Eve, a force which ingenious men in all ages have never gotten under control.

Program Offers Scholarships

Kentuckians from 16 to 21 years of age are eligible to participate in the 1976 Earthwatch Scholarship Program, a competition whose winners take part in scientific field research projects.

The scholarship winners will be assigned next summer to various kinds of scientific projects in this country or overseas.

The national program, now in its fourth year, is open to any young person interested in Scholarship competitors are asked to answer questions about their academic interests and educational goals. Applicants need not be enrolled in school.

Earthwatch materials and scholarship applications are available from Ms. Charman Sperring, Coordinator for Gifted/Talented Programs, Department of Education, 1827 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

The deadline for the 1976 competition is Feb. 18, 1976. State scholarship winners will be announced in March; national winners will be named in April.

Consumer Comments

This column is written by Robert F. Stephens, Attorney General of Kentucky. Any reader having questions (or complaints) should write to Mr. Stephens at Frankfort, Ky.

Many consumers have been attracted or persuaded by advertisements which declare, "Thousands of fabulous jobs are opening up!!... all you need is ambition to secure the job of your dreams... and only $10 down... sign here."

Unfortunately advertisements of this type often misled consumers into investing in an illegitimate private vocational or trade school that results in a great loss of both money and time.

If you are considering enrolling in a private vocational or trade school, consider the following:

First, obtain official catalogs or brochures. Study these carefully, noting the following items:

+ Look for clearly stated educational objectives with accurate, up-to-date educational instructional methods.

+ Consider the competency and qualifications of the faculty.

+ Consider the advertising. The school should be honest in its advertising and promotional activities, including "honest" salesmen. Remember, an honest school does not pressure its clients into signing the contract.

+ Check for a reasonable tuition collection and refund policy.

+ Second, obtain further evaluation of the school's courses and services through visiting the school and contacting present and former students.

Third, secure information concerning job opportunities available through state employment agencies, prospective employers and professional counselors. Beware of schools that guarantee employment. Some schools fail to keep their "promise."

Fourth, analyze your own capabilities and values.

+ Consider the value and the necessity of the course.

+ Consider the course content and decide how difficult it might be for you.

+ Check the length of courses.

+ Check the time involved in preparation of the lessons and determine your ability to meet "deadlines" for assignments.

+ Seek the aid of a school or career guidance counselor.

Last, carefully read and understand the contract before you sign. Never sign any contract unless you intend and expect to live up to its obligations. Avoid oral promises suggesting that you can break the contract.

WHEN WAS THE LAST TIME YOU AND YOUR WIFE HAD A HEART TO HEART TALK ABOUT THE INSULATION IN YOUR HOME?

She'd probably give you a funny look because it's a subject that doesn't come up too often. But if you're planning to build a new home and heat it electrically, it deserves attention.

Proper insulation at the time of construction will save you a surprising amount of money. Every year for the life of your home. In fact, a properly insulated home can save you one-third or more on your electric heating bill. At today's prices, that's a substantial sum of money.

With proper insulation, you'll be able to enjoy all of the comforts of electric heat. And a lower heating bill.

We will help you and your contractor plan your electric heating system. Recommend proper insulation and give you a free operating cost estimate. Contact our local office.

1040 US Individual Income Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

- Q. I pay an annual fee plus monthly finance charges on my credit card. Are these deductible?
- A. The annual fee is not deductible because it is not interest. But a charge for maintaining and servicing your account.
- However, the separately stated monthly finance charges you pay are interest and may be deducted. For more information, see IRS Publication 545, Income Tax Deductions for Interest Expense available free at your nearest IRS office.
- Q. I maintain a foreign student in my home under the auspices of a national charity. Am I entitled to any deductions for the expense of maintaining the student?
- A. Assuming the student is your dependent and is a full time student in the twelfth or any lower grade, you may be able to deduct some of the expenses. However, you must have a written agreement between you and the charitable organization stating that educational opportunities are provided for the student. You may receive no reimbursement toward your expenses.
- You may deduct up to $50 of your expenses for the student for each school month the student stays with you more than 15 days. The deduction is considered a charitable deduction, and is itemized on Schedule A of Form 1040.
- Q. My medical insurance reimbursed me for some of my medical expenses this year. Will this affect the tax I pay?
- A. Yes, if you itemize your deductions. You must reduce your medical expenses by the amount of the reimbursement you receive from insurance, including Medicare benefits (Medicare A) and supplementary Medicare benefits (Medicare B), paid to you or the provider of the service.
- The expenses must be reduced by the amount of the reimbursement before you apply the one and three percent limitations for medical expense deductions. However, you do not have to include any reimbursement for loss of earnings or damages for personal injury.

Young Woman Named Stovall's Press Secretary

Lt. Gov. Theima L. Stovall has announced the appointment of Jean Severs to serve as her press secretary. Ms. Severs' appointment becomes effective immediately.

An Owensboro native, the 26-year-old veteran newswoman comes to the lieutenant governor's office from the staff of the Frankfort State Journal.

Ms. Severs' journalism career includes positions in news reporting and broadcasting with the Louisville Summer's Broadcasting Co., Owensboro-On-The-Air, Inc., a radio and television firm, and the Owensboro Messenger and Inquirer.

Ms. Severs' duties included serving as Lt. Gov. Stovall's chief speech writer and traveling companion.

Economy, Common Sense Main Themes Of Carroll's Address

Economy and common sense were the main themes of Gov. Julian Carroll's address to a joint session of the Kentucky General Assembly, signaling the start of the 1976 state legislative session.

Charging the legislators to make "a new start," and to challenge the form and structure of Kentucky's institutions, the governor proposed a theme for the legislators of "common sense for the common good."

"No institution is too entrenched, no structure too powerful and no document too sacred to escape the scrutiny required by tomorrow's needs and plain common sense. And that includes Kentucky's Constitution," Gov. Carroll announced to the legislators in a speech dotted by bipartisan applause 16 times.

Following his address to the legislature, however, the governor told newsmen in his office that he had no specific constitutional changes in mind at this time. "But you cannot look at the mechanisms of government without looking at the Constitution," he explained.

Protesters in Crowd

While the Commonwealth's 50th chief executive was explaining his goals to the legislators, about 200 anti-busing protesters crowded in the halls outside the legislative chambers chanting, "Hell no, we won't bus," through most of the governor's speech.

Gov. Carroll specifically criticized the practice of forced busing twice in his 30-minute speech and later said that he was "disappointed" in the demonstrators' actions, since he was speaking in their interests. Protest leaders later apologized to the governor and the legislators through Lt. Gov. Theima Stovall, when the lieutenant governor told them that if they had listened to the speech they would have known that Gov. Carroll was speaking in their behalf.

Often speaking in generalities, the governor promised specifics when he soon delivers his executive budget to the legislature. Stating that "We have been in a course which appears to commit everything to everybody," the governor drew one of the largest rounds of applause when he told the legislators, "I will ask for no new taxes and no law increases on the consumers in Kentucky. I will recommend changes that will ease the burden on citizens who most need relief."

Assembly could override the federally ordered busing itself.

Critical of Programs

Gov. Carroll was also critical of federal programs which become "discontinued, leaving the state with a costly and unwanted bureaucratic structure as well as additional employes we cannot afford and do not need."

Stressing responsibility to the public and to the future of Kentucky, the governor briefly and generally outlined four major areas that he said, "demand our special attention." He told the legislators that he believes attention must be directed to Kentucky's economy and the related areas of the environment and energy.

He mentioned the educational requirements of Kentuckians, educational financing, curriculum, and the state's role in these matters. He promised his budget would recommend "immediate and long-term improvements in elementary, secondary and vocational educational programs," to the applause of the legislators.

The third area Gov. Carroll mentioned was welfare and human needs, and he concluded with the problem of effectiveness of government and the relationships of governments with each other and with the people they serve.

Mentioning "public involvement" several times throughout his speech, the governor stressed that his goal is to administer state government responsibly, responding to both immediate and long range goals.

Some Of State's Pilots Have Had Unusual, Hair-Raising Experiences

In 1943, Dave Holder of Frankfort, now 65 and a retired Air Force colonel, spent 15 nerve-wracking days and nights picking his way through enemy lines in China after his B-24 was shot out of the sky by Japanese fighters over the Yangtze River.

At about that same time, Boyd McDaniel, an Air Corps instructor-pilot, found himself making an unscheduled "dead stick" landing in the middle of a cactus patch in a desolate section of the southwestern United States.

Dave Austin, although much younger than the other two, has a few hair-raising stories of his own to tell.

During the Vietnam conflict, he was piloting a Cobra gunship near Quan Loi when enemy gunfire crippled his aircraft, forcing him to set down in the middle of a firefight.

Fly Safe Missions

Today, all three men fly regularly out of Frankfort's Capital City Airport on what they consider to be relatively safe missions for the Office of Flight Operations, an agency of the Kentucky Department of Transportation

(KYDOT).

Holder, who retired from the Air Force in 1965, now captains one of the state's twin-engine craft used by the governor and his executive staff.

McDaniel, 63, has been flying for the state since 1957, primarily as an aerial photographer for the KYDOT division of Photogrammetry, while Austin, 32, ferries strip mine inspectors around the state in a helicopter.

Holder learned to fly in 1942 when he joined the Army Air Corps. Besides flying in China during WW II, his military career also included assignments piloting B-29s in Korea and B-47 jet bombers for the Strategic Air Command.

His odyssey in China began when the bomber he was flying was attacked by Japanese fighters over Hang Kow, the site of a large Japanese base on the Yangtze River.

"We were expecting an easy mission," he said. "Then the fighters swarmed all over us and shot five of our seven B-24s out of the sky."

Holder, who had taken shrapnel in his lap, said that after he and his men had parachuted out and landed in the mountains, "we joined up with Chinese guerrillas who hid us in the daytime and carried us on rickshaws at night."

"They carried us for about 100 miles before we met up with a rescue group headed by a Chinese second lieutenant born and raised in Philadelphia," he said.

Ordeal In Vietnam

Austin's ordeal in Vietnam did not last as long as Holder's trek through China, but the element of danger was just as great.

"I was flying in support of a Medivac (Medical Evacuation) mission and all three of our aircraft were taking fire, but mine was the one that quit," he said, laughing a little now about the experience.

"I set down beside a road, and waited for the Medivac to come and get me," Austin continued.

It took about 15 minutes for the Medivac aircraft to find Austin and, all the while, the ground troops "were arguing about who owned the area," he said.

Although McDaniel didn't get into combat during WW II, his assignment had its own kind of "thrills." After getting his wings in 1941, McDaniel was assigned to train pilots desperately needed overseas.

He especially remembers the unscheduled cactus patch landing which occurred while he was teaching forced landing procedures to a group of artillery officers being trained to fly small spotter aircraft.

"I wasn't watching very close and came down about a half-mile short of the field in the cactus," he said. Except for cutting down a row of cactus, no serious damage was done.

Landing Difficult

All three pilots agreed that flying over Kentucky's varied terrain, is not especially hazardous, although landing in some eastern parts of the state can be difficult.

"The airports there are small, either down in valleys between mountains or on top of one, some are not paved and you can't always get lined up with the wind," Holder said.

Frank Stanfield, the state's chief pilot, said. "I've seen a lot of pilots in other flying services whom I wouldn't begin to send to some of our mountain airports."

"In this job, we need someone who's mature and can experience the sort of judgment that separates the good from the bad pilots. Not all pilots have that ability, but ours do," Stanfield said.

The minimum requirement for employment as a state pilot is 3,000 flight hours. "That usually comes with about 10 years experience," Stanfield said. Currently, the state has 13 pilots and 14 aircraft.

"We have several pilots who fly fire patrols; Boyd (McDaniels) handles most of the aerial photography; we have one pilot who is an agricultural sprayer, six captains for the executive twins, and two helicopter pilots," he explained.

On the average, "most state pilots fly somewhere between 400 and 500 hours per year, of which about 350 total hours per month is executive travel."

Last October alone, the 13 pilots logged a total of 371 hours in the air.

"Generally speaking, our flying time has been continually increasing over

KENTUCKY NATIONAL GUARD PLAN RECRUITING DRIVE

Nearly 150 National Guard commanders and senior officials from all Kentucky units met Saturday in Frankfort to learn the details of "Operation Spirit of '76," a two-month recruiting drive.

Major General Richard L. Frymire, the adjutant general, said that "troop strength is of great concern" and set a goal of 1,000 new enlistments before Feb. 29.

Frymire explained that Kentucky is far behind other states of comparable size and that immediate progress must be made if the state is to retain the units already established. Current strength is slightly under 6,000.

BICENTENNIAL BYPATHS
On January 16, 1776, at Cambridge, Pa., General Washington requested that Massachusetts provide 7 regiments to fill the gaps in his army. He asked they be equipped, armed, and clothed to serve until April 11 "on the same order as the continental establishment."
Connecticut and New Hampshire's quotas were assessed two regiments each. Washington also asked the province to forward any surplus weapons in their magazines.
