Hogge Mentioned For New Judgeship

The name of a Morehead attorney, Elijah M. Hogge, has been interjected as a "possible appointee" as Judge of the "now being formed" 7th Appellate district.

Hogge, now serving as a legal aide to Gov. Julian Carroll and former-head of the state transportation and public protective and regulation agencies, said that he is "interested" in the $37,000 a year job.

Harris Howard, 47, Prestonsburg attorney, a democrat, also wants the appointment, as may several other lawyers who have not made outspoken bids.

Whoever accepts one of 14 judgeships is in political jeopardy because the appointments by Gov. Carroll are for only the duration of this year, and they must win in the November general election for full eight year terms.

Frankfort source reported scores of aspirants for the 14 judgeships, some of whom haven't surfaced.

The judgeships result from a referendum approved by the voters last year changing Kentucky's judicial system.

The judicial changes will be effective on the intermediate level. The seven judges on the Old Court, of Appeals will comprise the Kentucky Supreme Court.

The new court of appeals will handle most appeals from circuit courts. Seven of these judges are to be named by Carroll.

Seven appellate districts were created. Carroll will name interim judges in these districts, and they must also be elected in November (The November ballot will be non-partisan).

Thus, Gov. Carroll has 14 judgeship appointments.

A seven-member nominating commission, controlled by the Governor, has been named. This commission must nominate 42 for the 14 judgeships.

Hogge's name is being mentioned in Frankfort circles for one of the seven members of the new Court of Appeals, to be for the judgeship in the 7th appellate district.

Rowan County is at the extreme west end of the 7th appellate district. Most of the district is in the eastern Kentucky coal fields, extending to the Virginia line and as far south as Harlan county.

March Of Dimes Walkathon Will Be Held Saturday

The annual March of Dimes Walkathon, sponsored by the Morehead-Rowan County Jaycees, will be held this Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m. at Rowan County School.

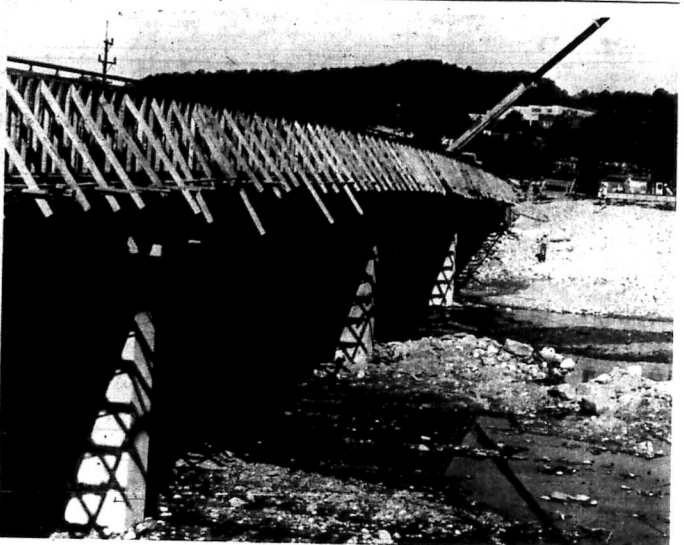

The 15-mile trek will go from Morehead west on U.S. 60 through Blountone. The path will continue through Forest Hills to Ky. 32 and back into Morehead.

The walk is being conducted by the Jaycees to help raise money for the March of Dimes in an effort to reduce and eliminate birth defects.

Prizes and trophies again will be awarded this year. Trophies will be awarded this year. Trophies will be awarded this year.

The decision was based on the right of the City of Frankfort to collect the tax from federal workers.

Bridge Leading To Park Well Under Construction

The new Triplett Creek bridge on the access road to the Morehead Recreation Park is well under construction and should be in use by late summer or early fall. Construction began in January by Martin and Judy, Inc., a Cynthiana firm which submitted the low bid of $29,283.24 for the project. The new structure will replace the outdated one-lane bridge which has been in use for many years. That bridge has eroded and engineers have reported that a major flood could destroy it. The new structure will be two-lane with a walkway for pedestrians. The project is being funded by the State.

General Telephone Strike Nears End

Tentative agreement was reached in contract talks between General Telephone Company of Kentucky and the Communications Workers of America at 11:30 Saturday morning following all-night bargaining sessions.

The negotiated settlement was made in Washington, D.C. with the assistance of representatives of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and CWA International. It followed four days of intensive talks between members of the Company and Local Union 10371 and 10372 bargaining committees.

Washington was selected as the site for the discussions since it is a neutral site for both the Company and Union committees.

E.L. Langley, Company, president, complimented both bargaining committees for their objectivity during the past few days in searching for avenues that led to the mutually beneficial agreement.

"This is a time to look forward using the word 'only' as a reference to guide us around old pitfalls," he said. "I'm truly grateful and humble that our strong management team and working craft employees were able to maintain service levels."

The three year settlement includes a 34.35 per cent increase in wages over the life of the contract, fringe benefit improvements, and Company proposals for contract language changes that will assist in its customer service improvement program.

Because of the complexities of the items involved, each party will issue separate statements on the details at a later date.

The Communications Workers of America are making arrangements for the ratification vote.

Negotiations began September 23, 1975, and a representative of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service entered talks on November 5.

Service entered talks on November 5. Union members had been on strike against the Company since November 12. Member ratification of the agreement will end the 202-day-old strike.

The settlement covers approximately 1,200 employees in the CWA bargaining unit in Central and Eastern Kentucky.

Pool Opens, Despite Cool, Damp Weather

Patronage at the swimming pool at the Morehead Recreation Park has not been as good the first few days this season, as compared with last year.

The pool opened Sunday when about 100 children and 75 adults used the pool. This compared with 265 persons who were on hand last year for the opening day.

Mike Miller, pool director, said the weather is the result of the smaller crowds the first few days this year.

Monday 100 children and 55 adults patronized the pool and only 40 children and 30 adults were on hand Tuesday.

However, a class of about 60 from Tildon Hogge School used the pool Tuesday morning.

Director Miller said the pool heater was put into operation Wednesday (yesterday) and noted that the water temperature should be about 78 to 82 degrees by today (Thursday). Prior to that time, according to Miller, who said it was in the low 60s.

Only 160 season passes have been sold thus far this season, as compared with 314 sold at this time a year ago. This, too, has been the result of few patrons at the pool. Pool workers anticipate a bigger and better swimming season this year, but say it's just getting off to a slow start because of the weather. Also, schools in the Rowan County system were not dismissed until yesterday (Wednesday).

Swimming lessons will begin June 14. The fee for a three-week session is $2 (this is for the entire period of instruction). Adult classes also will begin June 14 with eight lessons being taught at a total cost of $12.

Adult lessons will be held from 6 to 7 p.m. Other swimming lessons will be taught each Monday, Wednesday and Friday for three weeks, or Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday for three weeks. The Monday, Wednesday and Friday sessions can accommodate 45 to 60 children. The Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday sessions can accommodate up to 45 children. Classes will be taught from 10 to 11 a.m. and from 11 a.m. to 12 noon each day. Each child will take one hour-long lesson every other day.

Registration for all persons desiring to take swimming instructions will be held June 14. Persons desiring additional information should contact Mike Miller at the pool.

Twin Knobs Camp Fees Increased

Overnight camping fees at Twin Knobs Recreation Area on Cave Run Lake and at the Koomer Ridge campground at the Red River Gorge Geographical Area, both major recreational areas of the Daniel Boone National Forest, have been raised.

Robert K. Stronsieder, the forest's recreation staff officer, said portions of the fees are used to operate and maintain the recreational areas.

Twin Knobs Recreation Area on Cave Run Lake will cost $4 per night for a single unit, the same rate charged last year; and $7 for a double, up $2 from last year. The 120-unit campground is south of Morehead, off Kentucky 801.

The nightly fee at Koomer Ridge campground, adjacent to the Red River Gorge Geographical Area, was raised by a dollar to $3 per unit. It is off Kentucky 15, near Slade, and can accommodate 54 tents or trailers.

Visitors are advised to arrive early on Fridays, according to Stronsieder, since the campground is filled to accommodate a large number of weekenders.

At Twin Knobs, campers have free use of the adjoining beach and bathhouse, but a $1 per carload fee will be charged for day visitors who want to use the beach facilities.

Rockcastle, the forest's only other fee camping area, will retain its $2 per night cost. The 38-unit site is southwest of London.

Most of the forest's other camping and picnic areas, which do not charge a fee, are open for the recreation season. Visitors should contact the local district ranger's office, or the supervisor's office in Winchester, for information about specific areas.

Veterans Of Five Wars Observe Memorial Day

Memorial Day each year is marked by a wreath being placed before the Doughboy statue on the Rowan County courthouse lawn.

In this Bicentennial year of the nation, veterans from five wars came together to note the special significance of the observance.

Norman Wells, 100 years old and veteran of the 19th century war with Spain (Spanish-American War); Frank Miles, 85 and veteran of World War I; Dr. Norman Tant, World War II and the dark Bataan Death March; Ollie W. Barker, who served in the Marine Corps in World War II; Wilburn Baidridge, U.S. Army in the Korean War; and SFC William H. Chapman, U.S. Army in Vietnam and now an instructor in the Military Science Department at Morehead State University, participated in the brief ceremony Saturday afternoon as the Memorial Day weekend began.

The Doughboy statue, long a landmark on the corner of the courthouse lawn, was built in 1929 by the efforts of the local American Legion and Morehead Woman's Club. A plankster broke off the bayonet and it was missing for several years. Through the help of the Morehead News, the missing piece was located and returned a few years ago.

The Doughboy monument was rebuilt and refurbished in 1968 through the efforts of the local American Legion post which raised money through donations.

Included in the rebuilding of the statue was a commemorative bronze plaque on the base of the monument listing all Rowan County Veterans who gave their lives in World War I and II, the Korean War and the War in Vietnam. The list includes 15 from World War I and 76 from World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

The annual March of Dimes Walkathon, sponsored by the Morehead-Rowan County Jaycees, will be held this Saturday, beginning at 9 a.m. at Rowan County School.

More Adults Receiving High School Diplomas

Pick any Kentucky high school during this time of graduations and you'll find an audience of proud parents, a speech about setting forth in the world and a group of giggling graduates in their black gowns.

Or will you? Some high school graduations — including the one at the Newport Alternative High School Adult Learning Center — are quite different. Their relatives were just as proud, but in this case, many of the relatives were husbands, wives and children instead of parents. These graduates had already set forth in the world and are no longer giggling teenagers.

They ranged in age from 17 to 56 and all for one reason or another, had been high school drop-outs. But in May, 125 of them received their high school diplomas. The school they attended was designed to meet the needs of adults, both in terms of time and finances. The atmosphere is relaxed and free, according to the coordinator, Ed Lindsey and the academic program is prescribed on the basis of a diagnostic test the student takes.

Revised Strip Mine Laws Become Operative June 19

Revised state laws affecting strip mining reclamation will become operative June 19. According to officials of the Kentucky Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, two new laws will require a maximum reclamation bond from $1,500 to $3,000 and increase the number of days allowed to issue or deny a permit from 30 to 90.

Officials said the bond increase was needed to more accurately cover the cost of reclaiming disturbed areas. The minimum bond of $500 was retained.

The law also increases the fine for unpermitted strip mining from $1,000 to $5,000 per day. According to a department official, the old maximum of $1,000 a day didn't cover the amount of environmental damage that could be caused by an unpermitted operator in a day or two.

Other legislation gives the department's legal staff the authority to initiate legal action without prior approval from the Attorney General's office.

The staff of the Attorney General's office retains the right to initiate or intervene in litigation.

reading teacher, a special education teacher and optional classes in typing and shorthand and garment-making and alteration.

The students attend for various reasons, Lindsey said. Sometimes they need the diploma for a job and sometimes they just want the satisfaction of getting it. "Those who drop out and come to us looking for an easier way through school usually don't stay very long," he added. "It usually takes a year of bumming the streets before they're ready to do what it takes."

Lindsey is obviously proud of all his graduates, many of whom go on to college or vocational school. And the graduates are proud of themselves — with justification. Lindsey said he saw one man with tears in his eyes as he clutched his diploma.

Lindsey also pointed out that the number of adult students is increasing. In 1974 only 26 graduated as compared to 47 in 1975 and the 125 in this year's class.

This program, which is offered through the state Department of Education's adult education unit, is extremely important in offering adults a second chance, he said.

Anti-theft bike system is effective after year's operation, says maker

About a year ago, a national bicycle manufacturer, concerned about the increase in bicycle thefts, devised a new and unique owner identification and reference system to help minimize this frustrating problem.

The system is set up like this: Every new top-line bicycle carries a special owner reply report form. It documents type of bicycle, dealer's name and address, date purchased, serial number, owner's name, initials and address.

When returned, this registration and verification form, entered into a central cross index, owner identification file.

The owner's initials are die embossed on a special metal identification plate which is immediately shipped to the owner. The plate is then permanently mounted on the back of a specialized adaptation on the bike frame.

This patented device by Mosberg Bicycles, boldly displaying the owner's initials, can only be removed by fully recutting or damaging to the frame of the bicycle.

At the outset of the program, police departments, bicycle dealers and owners across the U.S. were notified of this added protection. Also, all were encouraged to check with Mosberg on a lost, stolen or recovered unit. It couldn't fail.

Now with anticipated confidence, the Mosberg bicycle owners have been unfortunate enough to have their bikes stolen are nodding affirmatively at what could have only been a pre-ordained success. The incoming reports to the manufacturer have confirmed the security of this system.

Full-Range selectivity also means that "Mr. and Mrs." bicycle units for pleasure and touring are available, providing the identical look and performance — fit to size.

Proper fit is important for comfort and fun. To check for yourself, follow these steps: the proper seat and frame height let you ride with your leg slightly bent at the knee when the pedal is at the bottom of the downstroke. Straddle the frame flatfooted. If the bar doesn't make you stand on top, you have selected the proper frame size. You should clear the top bar by 1".

Other precautions: The use of this system while nearly fool proof, does not preclude the use of lock and chain. Make sure that the chain is long enough to pass through the frame and front wheel and wrap around a lamp post, rack or other-securement fixture. It will be wise to use this advice at home as well as a number of bicycles are stolen from yards and open garages.

One Minute Sermon

By Michael A. Guido

Many have a wrong idea of Christianity. They think of it as a kiljoy. For the Christian life, as it is generally lived, is not a happy life.

A keen observer once said, "There are some Christians who seem to have a religion that makes them miserable. They're like a man with a headache. He doesn't want to get rid of his head, but it hurts him to keep it. You can't expect outsiders to seek very earnestly for anything so uncomfortable."

But the Christian life ought to be, not something to make one miserable, but to make him happy.

Long ago one said from experience in Psalm 144:15, "Happy is that people whose God is the Lord."

But some who profess to be people of God have no happiness because they try to live the Christian life. But half a coperson is no more good than half a lifeboat.

Happiness does not come through a discipline that is half-hearted but whole-hearted. Caleb's secret of happiness is found in his testimony, "I wholly followed the Lord. Why not try it?"

There's no place like home for barbeque entertaining

Once recognized as the travelers of the world, Americans now add to stay much closer to home. The current state of the economy coupled with concerns about energy have combined to change our lifestyles.

Home owners and apartment dwellers alike are creating and using home recreation centers for their leisure time regardless of their actual living space. It is centered on a tiny apartment balcony or in a spacious backyard. The focal point is the patio area, totally equipped for outdoor living and entertaining.

The patio scene. With increasing frequency gas and electric barbeques are an important element in the patio scene. Outdoor gas and electric grills are both clean and more dependable than charcoal models. Any backyard barbecue chef can cook with gas or electric-controlled heat without the problems associated with charcoal. Also gas and electric grills are self-cleaning — another popular feature with consumers.

Automotive enjoyment. To make outdoor cooking even more enjoyable, Charmin, the leading marketer of outdoor gas and electric barbeques, has introduced "Charmitie," the industry's first self-contained electronic ignition system.

Designed to eliminate lighting problems associated with matches and uncooperative weather conditions, the Charmitie can be adapted to upgrade virtually any existing full size Charmin gas barbeque.

It permits you to light your grill without matches without any trouble," says Stat Stoddard, Charmin's vice president of marketing services. "Just turn a knob to 'Start' or 'Median,' push a button and your grill automatically ignites."

The electronic ignition unit is pilotless and should operate for up to a full year on one "D" cell alkaline battery.

Another feature — one that saves energy — on all Charmin's natural and LP gas models is stainless steel twin burners, which are at least 10 percent more efficient than the older cast iron burners.

The outdoor barbeque is just one lifestyle — from the most frenetic to the most sedentary — and can be permanent or portable to suit your needs.

So if you're concerned about ever-increasing meal costs and energy conservation, then the casual mood and simplicity of the backyard barbeque should suit your lifestyle to a "T."

Baubles, bangles wedding bands

Before you and your fiancée set out to buy your wedding rings, there are some timely tips that will save you lots of leg work and help you to make a wise choice.

It is important to go to a jeweler who is a professional. He will show you a selection of name brand wedding rings in white and yellow gold.

Fine quality and expert craftsmanship will last a lifetime. The precious gleam mellowing with time and loving wear. It is a matter of taste. Both offer strength, hardness and resistance to wear. Both are equally precious.

Wedding rings should be ordered four to six weeks before the happy event, insuring plenty of time for accurate sizing.

A narrow band will be about half a size smaller than a wide one, since it will slip over the knuckle with more ease.

The design should appear in a continuous flow, showing no break, finish must be smooth and smooth to your touch.

Who are brides carried over the threshold? The custom goes back to the Roman bride, who was reluctant to leave her father's house and had to be lifted over the threshold of her new home. It was also believed that evil spirits hovered at the threshold, so the bride was carried over to assure her protection against them.

And while newlyweds are sure that their honeymoon will never end and they might not leave the honeymoon, tradition started it was like this: The early Teutonic couples drank a honey drink for 30 days after their wedding, so until the moon had waxed. Hence, the honeymoon.

It takes a man and a woman and a platinum ring with all the trimmings — to make a wedding, but only two loving hearts are needed to make a marriage.

Circle your preference

FASHIONS — High-fashion, Continental, flow-through, day-and-date, calendar, color-aid, bracelet or strap watches for brides are dramatized by the electronic lady Accutron line. Each is powered by a tiny aspirin-sized power cell that operates the watch continuously for at least 12 months — so that the young bride can change watches any time without having to worry about winding any of them.

History Of Weddings And Wedding Rings

The bridal customs so dear to a young girl's heart have their origins far back in time. For example, the prospective bride sat before her camp displaying the circles of riches she had, her crest or anklet as proudly as today's young women show off their jewelry.

Each season the wife got married, the maximum number of diamonds was decided by the time her mate, deciding the union was going to last, replaced it with a kind of iron to signify the permanence of the relationship. So much for Neanderthal newlyweds!

In those times when marriage by purchase was customary, a prospective bridegroom began with a pledge and part payment to prove his worthiness and good intentions. Gifts of cattle, food or jewelry to the bride-to-be and her father were called "brideprice" or "dowry."

The betrothal ring used by the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans was adopted by early Christians in the second century and later became the wedding ring. The engagement ring set with a precious gem came into use in the Middle Ages. The diamond attained popularity in the 16th century and became customary around 1800.

Today many brides are selecting platinum for their wedding bands and their diamond engagement rings because it is superior in wear resistance and in retaining its original appearance. It not only protects and enhances a precious stone, its own value as an extremely rare, precious metal becomes an integral part of the investment.

Although white gold is popular, platinum is appreciated because of its harder, more durable qualities. It resists nicks and scratches, it's tarnish-proof and never needs polishing.

The trend to precious white metals is relatively recent, but white has been the favored color for bridal garb of the Western world for a long time. Notable in the Far East, for example, the Chinese bride used to be married in a red silk gown symbolic of happiness and permanence. Instead of a bouquet she carried a purchased shawl like a lotus as protection against her mother-in-law's slander!

Some European brides still court luck by keeping their wedding bands and their diamond engagement rings because it is superior in wear resistance and in retaining its original appearance. It not only protects and enhances a precious stone, its own value as an extremely rare, precious metal becomes an integral part of the investment.

Popular 'no-problem' doors will delight do-it-yourselfers

One of the "stickiest" problems do-it-yourselfers have faced is that of interior sliding and bi-fold doors. For years they've been limited to wood, which often warps, splinters, rots, swells, cracks or peels; or metal, which rattles, dents, bends, sizzles and shakes.

Until now, the only antidote has been to purchase expensive hardwood doors; yet for most consumers the price is out of line with their budget. As a result, rather than fine remodeling projects have been finished with less than desirable doors.

happy alternative has been provided with the introduction of pre-finished Grandor's "natural al wood" bi-fold and sliding door doors.

Until Grandor is taking the country by storm because it totally eliminates the problems of wood and metal. It combines high density moulded polyurethane with a rigid steel reinforcement system to exactly duplicate the high quality look and feel of the most expensive hardwood.

In fact, Grandor's wood-grain is so authentic that even the experts constantly mistake it for real oak one-hour do-it-yourself project for any member of the family who can use basic tools.

Grandor's "natural al" includes all hardware and pictorial step-by-step installation instructions.

Hand-finished by factory craftsmen in a choice of deep, rich walnut or neutral white, Grandor requires no preparation, sanding, staining or painting.

High quality and moderate price make it an ideal way to create a harmonious decorating theme for every room in the home. It is widely used for closet and storage areas in bedrooms, baths, foyers, kitchens, dining rooms and wherever else the homeowner desires.

Two popular and basic styles, all panel and half louver/half panel, are offered in a variety of sizes which fit virtually all bi-fold and sliding door widths.

A four color brochure which illustrates the doors and suggests room applications is available by writing Grandor Corp., Do-It-Yourself Dept., 35 Market St., Elmwood Park, N.J. 07407.

Mini-gardening savvy produces mighty results

You don't need the "wide open spaces" to grow your own fresh vegetables. And, you don't need to be a vegetable gardening expert to have a succession of good crops.

What you do need is a sound plan and a good source of reference to help you decide exactly what to do, and when to do it, explains the Ortho "best seller," "All about Vegetables."

When you know what you're doing, the Ortho book states, even a small box garden can supply a continuous yield of fresh vegetables. If, for example, you only have 24"x30" to work with, plan three plantings—your first can be in March, the second in April, and a third in May.

Continuous harvest. To get a continuous harvest of a vegetable, however, the second planting must go in before the first is harvested. Consequently, the limited-space gardener, obviously, has a more difficult problem than the gardener with "wide open spaces."

But again, when you know what and how to do it, you can get all the produce you need.

There are several areas in and around your home where you can raise a small but productive home garden. These are areas you probably never even thought of.

Plant a mini-garden on the balcony, terrace, deck, patio, or even in a window box. And you can use a variety of containers in all shapes and sizes—boxes, tubs, bushel baskets, cans, etc.

Avoid overabundance. Keep in mind, though, that some vegetables, such as lettuce, must be harvested all at once. So, in your first planting, put in only what you'll need, or you could end up with 10 of year and storage conditions. Leaf lettuce and Swiss chard also have long harvest periods, since they can be picked a leaf at a time.

GROWING A LIMITED-SPACE vegetable garden can be extremely rewarding and a lot of fun — as long as you know what to do and make a plan.

What's best for very limited-space gardens are those you like—taking into consideration those which will give the highest return per square foot—or the vegetables with the closest spacing per row.

But, make sure you like what you're planting and are not selecting only the vegetables that will do well and take up little space, or you could end up with some fantastic yields—to throw away.

Succession of harvest. Favorite vegetables which offer a long harvest return in the soil include carrots, beets, parsnips, asilay and Florence fennel. Of these, carrots and beets provide a wonderful succession of harvest from baby carrots and beets to the mature size, with a storage period of weeks or months depending upon the time

Sen. Ford Seeking Help For Coal-Haul Road Upkeep

Kentucky Senator Wendell Ford today told a Senate Subcommittee that federal assistance is essential if major coal-producing states are to maintain safe and efficient coal-haul road networks.

Ford's remarks came in testimony before the Public Works Subcommittee on Transportation as hearings began to study the impact of transporting bulk energy resources over the nation's highway systems.

"A critical situation exists in Kentucky," Ford said, "because of unprecedented increases in production of the state's coal-haul roads have been subjected to excessive demands. The roads were not adequate to sustain these burdens and inordinate problems were created for the communities and residents of Kentucky's 60 coal-producing counties."

"We have the coal and the nation needs it. But it is not right to ask the people of Kentucky, or any coal-producing state, to assume the responsibility of an entire nation," Ford urged the Committee to closely examine a study prepared by the state Department of Transportation which examines the current needs and impact of coal transportation in Kentucky. The study was initiated in 1974 while Ford was Governor.

"This study is now complete," Ford said. "To my knowledge it is the first and only of its kind in the nation."

Ford predicted the Subcommittee would find the report beneficial as it undertook a similar assessment on a national basis. "I expect that many of the same facts and conclusions will be reached," Ford said. "It is evident that the demands on coal production are going to increase, not decrease. The nation will continue to turn more and more to coal as a major source of energy. And, as this happens, the road systems of coal-producing states will continue to realize new and additional burdens."

Consumer Comments

This column is written by Robert F. Stephens, Attorney General of Kentucky. Any reader having questions or complaints should write to Mr. Stephens at Frankfort, Ky.

"This is your lucky day, you have won absolutely free . . ."

Many Kentuckians have received certificates through the mail informing them that they have won a "free" sewing machine. Others have received "checks" for a portion of the purchase price. The prize is described, including its value at a retail store. Frequently, the winner is requested to come into a store to see the merchandise and either accept or reject the offer. The trick to this scheme is that the prize can end up costing YOU money.

Those who read further and examine the very fine print discover that the consumer who won a "free" sewing machine must pay 10 dollars a month for three years on a service contract. This means that the "free" sewing machine will cost the consumer over $300. This amount may be higher than the retail cost of the machine.

To be a contest, there must be losers as well as winners. Did other people in your area receive this offer? Why must the coupon be redeemed so quickly? How long has the company been in business? What service agreement or warranty is included? Who does repair work for the company?

You can protect yourself against fraudulent business practices by remembering to be skeptical. If an offer sounds "too good to be true" it is usually neither good nor true.

If you have consumer complaint, write to the Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection, Room 34, the Capitol, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601. The office has found that it can most effectively deal with written complaints and encourages you to write when you have a complaint. However, if you have an emergency situation, call the consumer hotline. The number is 1-800-372-2960.

Bar Association Releases Report

Kentucky Bar Association President, Ben L. Kessinger, Jr., has directed the release of the report by the Kentucky Bar Association Long-Range Planning Committee. This report is the culmination of two Bar-sponsored Long-Range Planning Conferences, one held in July and one in September of 1975.

The July meeting was notable in that this was the first non-lawyer participation in a vital Association function since the unification of the Kentucky Bar in 1934 by an Act of the Kentucky General Assembly. "The fundamental purpose achieved by the Long-Range Planning Report is to provide a record of the committee's evaluation of current problem areas and its recommendations." The Long-Range Planning Report will be available to the public, the Bar membership and its officers. Hopefully, the Long-Range Planning Report will provide a source of greater continuity to the Bar Association's efforts to meet both public and membership expectations.

Perkins Wins By Over 30,000

Final, but unofficial, results show that incumbent democratic congressman Carl D. Perkins defeated Ray "I am a Democrat" Adkins by 30,192 in the May primary.

The final, in a light voting primary —
Carl D. Perkins . . . . . 34,146
Ray Adkins . . . . . 3,954

Perkins apparently carried all 558 precincts in the 27 counties of the district, a feat he has accomplished many times in past years.

Thomas has run many times for public office, and is considered a perennial candidate, meaning that Perkins should have no problem being reelected. Perkins is the dean of the Kentucky delegation on Capitol Hill.

Here's how to picture it

Once, only special interest groups — the Boy Scouts, nature photographers and archeologists — set off for the Great Outdoors. Times have changed.

This year alone millions of adventurers are headed that way. Whether you're a veteran nature lover, sports enthusiast or novice hiker, taking a pocket-size camera wherever you go lets you savor the scenery even when you're not in the picture.

Stopping to snap this world brimming with activity behind its tranquil surface can send you on frequent "double takes."

Record double-take discoveries with a camera — ideally one that's light, compact and easy to use. If it's a Kodak Tele-Instantatic camera, you can take your double takes two ways with two built-in lenses.

The normal lens (25mm) lets you take pictures from five feet and beyond. Switch to the telephoto lens (43mm) and you magnify your subject 1.72 times and you get a close-up without moving an inch.

Distractions near your subject, such as a muddy marsh or limp foliage, can often be eliminated as you crop and magnify with your camera.

For good snapshots, couple that camera with some basic know-how.

Experiment with different times of day, weather conditions, lighting and position.

Use flip-flash in situations where light is too low. Move around your subject and snap enough so you can select the best shot later.

Vary your angle and camera-subject distance.

Hold the camera steady.

Squeeze the shutter button gently to avoid blur.

Let nature frame your photos . . . tree branches or natural vines arching across the foreground add depth and interest.

Include family and/or friends to personalize your pictures.

Shoot into the night with flash to capture more party goers around the campfire. With the flip-flash, a thin portable, eight bulb unit that can be attached to a Kodak Tele-Instantatic camera, you can shoot four pictures, flip the flash and shoot four more.

Cloning in on the good times with your compact camera can help you relive your outdoor adventures.

Record sights, sounds at sundown

No matter the season, you won't find a night that ain't fit for man nor camera. Taking after-dark movies helps you become acquainted with the night and enhances your movie shooting. For that matter, that aren't silent, adding sound to your movies will bring added pleasure to your audience.

You can record the sights and sounds of things that go bump in the night easily. An existing light camera will keep on recording the night scenes after the sun goes down. The electric eye tells you when there is not enough light for fully exposed scenes. With a model that couples the existing light feature with sound, such as a Kodak Ekta-sound movie camera, you can capture the full range of motion as well as accompanying sounds.

Light conditions
For dim light conditions, Kodak Ektachrome 160 sound movie film enables you to take movies in dim as well as bright light situations. For finer grain, Kodachrome 40 sound movie film is recommended.

Compose scenes uncluttered with distracting objects and noise. The camera lens and microphone have no mind; everything they see and hear is recorded. It's up to the movie-maker to eliminate unwanted clutter . . . telephone lines, litter, poorly placed trees or poles.

From beach blanket jamborees to countless county fairs you'll find sights and sounds worth saving . . . with a Kodak Ekta-sound movie camera. Even spontaneous family jam sessions will make your sound movies sing!

to eliminate noise . . . such as barking dogs, radios, motors and irrelevant conversation. Place your microphone close — one to five feet from your primary sound source — for a strong pickup.

Full of sound
Your movies should be interesting, action-packed and full of sound. Focus on your family members laughing and talking as they mount the brightly lit Ferris wheel.

Plan your story sequence. Focus on everyone assembling around the campfire. Zoom in on the campers sipping marshmallows with twigs and sticks.

near the singers, guitar or harmonica and capture the harmony of spontaneous song filling the summer evening.

Vary distance. Vary distance, viewpoint and length of the scenes to keep your after-dark movies interesting.

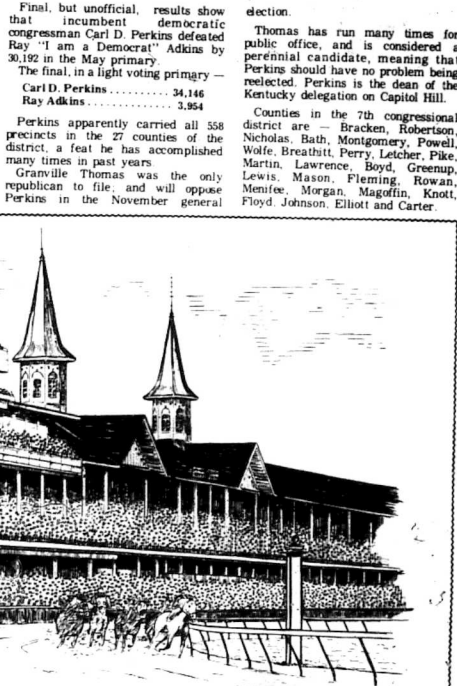

Set the scene with a long shot from 20 feet away and move in for medium distance and close-up shots at different angles. Make your scene only long enough to show and tell what you intend.

Nighttime in the country is full of exciting picture and sound possibilities. The night has a thousand eyes — bring your camera to make it 1,001.

Churchill Downs
Jefferson County

Churchill Downs, the 180-acre park-like track of the Kentucky Jockey Club, provides one of the fastest tracks in the world for the 19-day spring and 10-day fall race meets and the Kentucky Derby, which is raced the first Saturday in May.

The Derby has run every year since 1875, when ten thousand people watched Aristides win the first Derby. Celebrities, horse-lovers and thousands of excited spectators come from coast to coast to see, or be seen, or simply to join all the gala festivities surrounding the most spectacular two minutes in the world of sports.

Churchill Downs itself opened in 1875, instigated by Col. M. Lewis Clark, who was inspired by the race tracks in England. With interested friends, he formed the Kentucky Jockey Club and built the now world-famous course.

Twenty years later a new grandstand was built with the twin towers that have been incorporated into the more recent enlargements and have become an identifying feature of Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Derby.

The Derby, America's supreme racing event and first leg of the ultra-prestigious Triple Crown, is open to 3-year-olds.

When established, the track was known as the Louisville Jockey Club. The name Churchill Downs was given to the course by a writer some years later because it stands on ground purchased from the Churchill family.

The seating capacity at the Downs is about 42,000; however, between 150,000 and 200,000 spectators crowd into the park for the Derby and millions more view the complete activities on national television.

In 1898 the distance of the Derby was shortened from 1 1/2 to 1 1/4 miles, and a floral wreath was presented to winner Ben Brush. Since 1904 the Derby winner has been honored with a blanket of American Beauty roses. The racing classic was dubbed Run for the Roses in 1925 by the late Bill Corum, a New York sports columnist.

Mysteries of Mars Prompt Viking Mission

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is another in a series of articles about the exciting search for life on Mars which will begin this summer when two Viking spacecraft, now nearing the end of a 460-million mile journey, land on the surface of the Red Planet.

"How can we say with absolute certainty that there isn't a different form of life on Mars a kind of life that we know nothing about? We can't. There's only one way to find out for sure what is on Mars and that's to go there."

This comment from a Colliers magazine article 22 years ago by Dr. Fred I. Whipple reflects man's centuries of fascination and frustration with Mars.

In 1976, the world may learn the answers when two Viking spacecraft land on the planet. Scientists will search for life and the answers to many other unknowns about Mars, the planet most like Earth in our solar system.

Venus, the next most likely candidate, is shrouded in dense clouds of carbon dioxide and temperatures exceed 200 degrees F. at its surface. Night is more than half the size of Earth and 50 million miles farther away from the sun. Mars has a relatively mild climate ranging from 80 in the afternoon to 135 degrees F. below zero at night. Small white clouds have been seen on its surface and its white polar caps expand and shrink with the seasons.

But then at times giant dust storms driven by 200 mile-per-hour winds fill the atmosphere and engulf the planet in an impenetrable cloud, only to later settle back to the surface.

While scientists have abandoned the concept of constructed canals on the Martian surface, they still see dry river beds, plateaus and other features which could mean Mars once had an atmosphere as dense as Earth. If so, perhaps life developed there as on Earth only to disappear as the atmosphere disappeared.

The last decade has seen more rapid scientific progress in the study of Mars than have the hundreds of years preceding.

This is primarily because of the unmanned Mariner fly-by series of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

which, with Mariner IV's pass within 6,140 miles of the planet in 1965, erased many of the old and long-held theories, beliefs and wild speculations about Mars, and provided the first real glimpse of the Earth's intriguing neighbor.

The first recorded reference to Mars dates to Babylonian times, 1500 years or more B.C. Visible to the eye as a red star, astronomers through Egyptian, Greek and Roman times were drawn to it by its unusual color.

Copernicus, the 15th and 16th century astronomer, was the first to correctly identify the Sun as the center of the solar system and correctly place Mars and Earth within it. His concepts were revolutionary and ridiculed, but they were basically correct. The 17th and 18th centuries closely coincided with advancing knowledge about the Red Planet.

In 1784, Sir William Herschel suggested that the polar caps of Mars were definitely ice and snow. He went further to show seasonal changes on the planet.

confirming the existence of atmosphere and clouds. The first topographic maps of Mars came about around 1840. From that point on, the planet became an object of study for nearly everyone with a telescope.

In 1863, Italian scientist Giovanni Schiaparelli, who discounted the theory of Martian oceans and seas, gave the world instead the "discover" of the canals of Mars. The canals entrapped the minds of millions and finally "confirmed" life on the planet, because canals had to be constructed by someone.

The American author, lecturer and diplomat Percival Lowell picked up on Schiaparelli's theory of the canals around 1890 and dominated the scientific world with it for 30 years.

As late as 1956, while many had long discarded the practicality of advanced inhabitants on Mars, the canals remained a very live subject. In 1963, they still were considered "controversial."

Finally in 1965, Mariner IV's cameras didn't see the canals. The surface near the moon it was cratered, and equally lonely and desolate.

Mariner VII, in 1969, came closer to the surface than Mariner IV by more than 4,000 miles and the "canals" became more distinct. Large mountains appeared, and the atmosphere, composed mainly of carbon dioxide, was much thinner than imagined. There were no lakes, no rivers, no seas, no forests, and definitely no canals.

Even more startling and revealing photos came back from Mariner IX in 1971 when it achieved Mars orbit.

Much more definitive information was obtained concerning surface temperature ranges, surface wind velocities, and details of cloud structure. While winds were clocked on Mars as high as 200 miles an hour, the atmosphere is only one percent as dense as Earth's and this was equivalent in force to a 20-mile-per-hour wind on Earth.

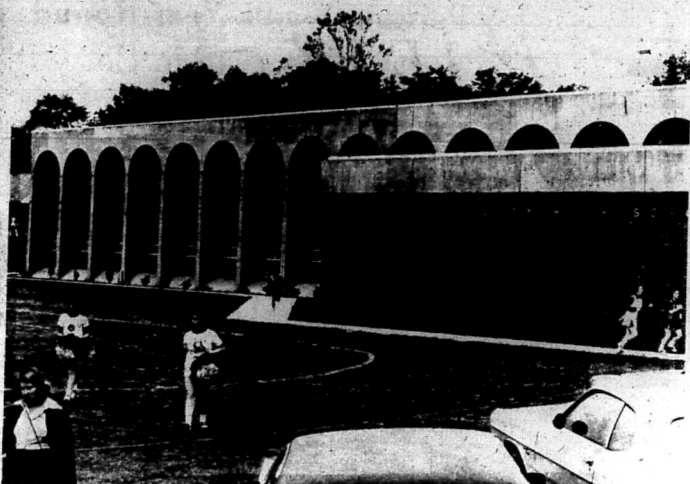

Mariner IX also gave us a clearer picture of seasonal changes on Mars by recording evidence of expansion and shrinkage of the polar caps.

Perhaps the most remarkable feat of Mariner IX was unrefuted evidence of volcanic and extensive ancient rivers that are apparently dry river beds formed by massive flows of water. The planet apparently is far from dead, and interest in further exploration was rekindled by Mariner IX like never before.

Today, two more unmanned spacecraft are nearing Mars for scheduled landings this summer to seek the answers. This important search is called Project Viking by NASA and its principal industrial partner, Martin Marietta Aerospace of Denver, Colo.

MARS GRAND CANYON—Taken during the 1971 Mariner IX Marsian fly-by, this photograph reveals the promised topography of Mars. Olympus Mons (top left corner) is the largest Mars volcano—13 miles high and more than 250 miles across. The great rift, Valles Marineris—sometimes called Mars' Grand Canyon—averages 2,500 miles long, reaches a width up to 150 miles and depths of 4 miles.

DEDICATED . . . Sandy Hook had a parade and festivities Friday as Elliott County dedicated its new high school building. Merchants conducted sidewalk sales and youngsters participated in fun and games. Don C. Bowles, assistant superintendent of public instruction in Kentucky, was the featured speaker. The new high school will be in full use at the beginning of the fall term. The Elliott County high school band led the dedication parade.

High Blood Pressure Deadly Disease

"Almost two million Americans will die this year and the death certificate will record the cause of death: stroke, heart attack or hardening of the arteries," according to Dr. William P. McElwain, commissioner of the Bureau for Health Services, Department for Human Resources. "Not recorded is the real cause of death — the 'silent disease,' high blood pressure."

According to national statistics, high blood pressure affects 23 million Americans and is called the "Silent disease" because it usually has no symptoms. In addition, high blood pressure of hypertension strikes persons of all races and ages.

"The majority of people are either unaware of the disease or confused about it," says Commissioner McElwain. "High blood pressure or hypertension is not just a case of nerves nor can it be cured by taking a vacation."

Most high blood pressure cannot be cured, but it can be controlled by medication, diet modification, weight control and exercise.

Gov. Carroll has proclaimed May as High Blood Pressure Month in Kentucky. The Department for Human Resources joins other health agencies throughout the state in a campaign to make Kentuckians more aware of the "silent disease" and urges all Kentuckians to have their blood pressure checked.

Last year the department's Bureau for Health Services received reports from 120 local health units that 169,186 blood pressures were taken. That figure represents an increase of more than 130,000 or almost four times the screenings conducted in 1973 when only 39,000 were reported. Human Resources urges all Kentuckians to have regular blood pressure checks and know what the numbers mean. One with high blood pressure should:

- + Begin, maintain or resume treatment prescribed by a physician.
- + Take an active role in treatment.
- + Ask questions to be sure of understanding the doctor's advice, follow treatment instructions, keep appointments and report any side effects.

THE BICENTENNIAL KITCHEN

Old-Fashioned Yeast Rolls A Southern Favorite

On holidays throughout the year most everyone reverts to customs and menus from the past. However, a look into the homes throughout the country reveals that many family treasured recipes are prepared and served often, any time of year.

American cooking, a composite of pioneer traditions and ethnic innovations, is still very regional with many old-fashioned favorites. For instance, there are many breads and rolls which originated in colonial times still served today—hot corn bread, corn dodgers, beaten biscuits, crack-lin' bread.

Whatever the region and ethnic background, every family has traditional family favorites which they integrate into their daily meals.

Here's an old-fashioned southern-style yeast roll recipe. It is traditionally flavored with lemon and mace and has been modernized with that buttery taste of Blue Bonnet Margarine.

SOUTHERN-STYLE YEAST BUNS

4 to 5 cups unbleached flour
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
1/4 teaspoon ground mace
1 package active dry yeast
3/4 cup milk
1/4 cup water
1/8 cup Blue Bonnet Margarine (at room temperature)

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 1/4 cups flour, sugar, salt, lemon peel, and mace and undissolved active dry yeast.

Combine milk, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until bubbled in bulk, about 1 hour. Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half. Form each half into a 12-inch roll and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, pieces. Form into smooth scrapping bowl occasionally. Add eggs and 1/2 cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 3 minutes, scrapping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth. Muffin cups and cool on wire racks. Make two dozen bowls, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place. ## Arts And Crafts Festival Scheduled In Harrodsburg

The Third Annual Ann Poague McGinty Arts and Crafts Festival will be held in Harrodsburg's Old Fort Harrod State Park Saturday and Sunday, June 12-13, until 6 p.m. (EDT) both days. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

The festival is named for one of the first women to settle in the original Fort Harrod, around 1776. William Poague, her husband at the time, made the first loom used at the fort and Ann Poague was the first spinning wheel in Kentucky.

Sponsored by the Harrodsburg Bicentennial Committee, the festival is a celebration of the arts and crafts which have been developed from pioneer days to the present.

Demonstrations and exhibits will include, making and displaying patchwork quilts and other patchwork items, cherry and walnut footstools and hand-painted china jewelry.

Dulcimer-maker Homer Ledford will be exhibiting and playing various types of the American folk instrument all day Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon, dancers from "The Legend of Daniel Boone" will give costumed performances of two of the settlers' dances featured in the outdoor drama, which plays in the park's amphitheater during the summer months.

The McLain Family Band (which consists of father McLain, two daughters and a son) will give two performances of their exciting brand of bluegrass and folk music, Sunday afternoon. This entertaining group is well known throughout central Kentucky and in neighboring states; they play at many bluegrass festivals and appeared recently on NBC Television's "Today" Show.

Old Fort Harrod State Park will itself be open for tours. It contains a full-scale reproduction of the fort, the Lincoln marriage temple, a red brick church which enshrines the original log cabin in which Abraham Lincoln's parents were wed), a Federal monument to the early pioneers and the Manston Museum which contains many Kentucky historical relics.

Additionally, open-house tours of interesting Harrodsburg homes, representative of styles spanning the last 200 years, are being sponsored by the Harrodsburg Historical Society.

Further information about the Ann Poague McGinty Arts and Crafts Festival may be obtained from Mrs. Kay Anness, Mercer County Chamber of Commerce, Harrodsburg, phone (606) 734-2364.

You should have the dial gauge on your steam-pressure canner tested each season before using it. If the reading on the dial is off 5 pounds or more, buy a new gauge.

If your gauge is off 4 pounds or less, you can safely compensate for it. For instance, if the dial reads 1 pound low after this service.

If you do a great deal of canning have your pressure gauge retested partway through the food-preservation season. Safe processing of foods depends on the accuracy of your gauge.

Weighted pressure gauges do not need to be tested - only the dial gauges.

Before using your pressure canner, check it for steam leaks and replace the gasket if it has stretched. Dry out no longer fits snugly. Pull a string through the petcock hole to keep it working properly. Also scrub the canner thoroughly with hot, soapy water and do this each time you use it.

Make sure the rack is still within. This keeps jars off the bottom of the canner otherwise they will overheat and could even break. If rack is missing, order a replacement from the manufacturer. In the meantime, substitute a heavy towel, suitable rack from another pan, or a round cake rack.

For Safe Canning.
How Hot Is Hot?

Water is your boiling-water-bath canner never gets hotter than 212 degrees F. It's impossible to make it any hotter - it just boils away. That's why it's not safe to process meat and most vegetables by the boiling-water-bath canning method. To prevent possible spoilage and the growth of poisonous Botulism toxin in these low-acid foods, they must be processed at 240 degrees F. for the recommended length of time. It takes the artificial environment of a pressure cooker to get water that hot.

UK Extension foods specialists recommend Only Pressure Canning for meats, chickens, fish and most vegetables. Fruits, pickled vegetables and tomatoes may be safely processed in a boiling-water-bath canner.

Next week in this column: instructions for canning tomatoes.

For more information and for copies of free food-preservation manuals visit the Rowan County Extension office, located in the basement of the courthouse.

A pickle's proof is in its pucker!

The next time your sweetheart says "pucker up!" don't be surprised if you get a shrivel instead of a kiss! Pickles are in fact, pickles probably have the longest popularity in the history of the art of pickling predates recorded history.

Cleopatra loved them. It is believed that the pickle was a source of beauty and health. The pickle has won the hearts of countless thousands over the ages, and even though pickling is considered necessary as a major method of food preservation, the pickle reigns supreme.

But what exactly is a pickle? It covers a much broader range than most of us would suspect!

A pickle is any fruit, vegetable, or combination thereof that has been preserved primarily by the use of vinegar and/or salt. But after that, the possibilities are endless!

Pickles may be sugared, honeyed, sugarcured, dilled, peppered, spiced, scoured, fermented, brined or wined. They may be whole, chopped, sliced, minced, stripped, or sliced.

In essence, the only limiting factor is your own imagination!

Pickling is really a very simple process. You need only follow a few basic rules regarding the type of ingredients you use, along with basic hygienic procedures for all canning.

Whatever you choose to make, the results will be positively, pickeringly picklulous!

The most significant individual Flag Day event in the nation might well be the unusual Flag Day observance by the NFCA at a one-room schoolhouse in Wisconsin.

Name of the event is "6' 14" Day To Remember." As it is that day, several thousand leaders of some 100 non-profit fraternal benefit societies, representing some 10 million members in all 50 states, will assemble in a meadow beside the tiny school building at Fredonia, 30 miles north of Milwaukee.

As a roll call of states, in the order in which each state entered the union, is boomed over the microphone, a representative of that state will answer and the flag of that state will be raised on a flag pole—30 feet in length—forming an avenue of state flags, focusing on the 40-foot pole upon which the Flag of

Kentucky Afield

By Hope Carlson
Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

What's the most under-harvested game fish in Kentucky waters?

"The walleye," Charlie Bowers, director of the department of fish and wildlife's fisheries division, will answer without hesitation.

Bowers says there are three lakes in the Commonwealth — Rough River, Barren and Clumberland — with good walleye populations but with almost no fishing pressure for this species, except perhaps for a short burst of activity during the spring spawning runs.

The problem seems to be that walleyes, while fairly easy to catch are often difficult to locate. Unlike black bass, walleyes won't be found along shoreline cover, nor do they announce their presence by chattering sid on the surface, as white bass do when they're "in the jumps."

Instead, the walleye is a bottom fish who prefers not to chase its dinner but to wait for it to come to him.

These characteristics necessitate slow, deep fishing — usually by trolling — and some rather specialized techniques and tackle designed to keep the lure as near the bottom as possible.

This is a style of fishing that most bass or crappie anglers just aren't used to, but there are persistent reports from Rough River and Barren of fishermen from northern states where walleye fishing is popular doing very well indeed.

So if you'd like to try your hand at walleye fishing this summer, a good bet would be to find a transplanted angler with some experience with this fish and offer to take him fishing with you.

But if all you/buddies are bass or crappie fishermen, it's still possible to learn how to catch walleyes. Most of the major outdoor magazines offer good articles on walleye fishing from time to time, and many libraries have back issues of these publications. Or you can do your own research and work out your own techniques for catching these fish in Kentucky.

Later in the year, the fisheries division, which put those walleyes in the lakes in the first place, may have some good advice on how fishermen can pull them out. Bowers says. Fisheries biologists will undertake a study this summer to determine just what areas of our lakes walleye prefer. They plan to use depth finders to locate schools of fish, then send down scuba divers to see what kind of fish are showing up as blips on the recorder's screen.

Bowers hopes some specific advice for walleye anglers will come out of this study. And in the meantime, the fisheries division would also like to know about any legal-sized walleye, rockfish, musky or black bass of five pounds or more you catch.

In return for a few scales from these fish, the department of fish and wildlife will send you a certificate of achievement and a lapel pin. The scales submitted are examined microscopically to determine the growth rate, stocking success and other biological characteristics of the fish. Information and envelopes for mailing in the scales are available at most docks.

The walleye are here, and more are on the way with at least 600,000 scheduled for stocking this year in Nolichucky and Clumberland lakes. Laurel River Lake also has walleye, but most are still under the 15 inch legal size limit (the daily limit on walleye is ten and the possession limit, 20). So there's no need to envy fishermen up north who enjoy this fine game fish — you've got them right here in Kentucky.

Carson Gives Address

Johnny Carson went home to Norfolk, Neb., Sunday, May 23, and an audience of more than 2,000 heard the entertainer deliver a Commencement Day address at Norfolk Senior High School, from which Carson was graduated in 1943.

"It was tremendously received," said school principal Jeff Burkink, "and what I think impressed us all was Johnny's comment that he was glad he was asked to be present — that it was an honor for him to be there."

Carson arrived in Norfolk in mid-afternoon, and was met by his wife, Joanna, his parents Mr. and Mrs. "Slater" Carson, and his brother and sister-in-law Dick and Pat Carson. They rode in a motorcade accompanied by Norfolk Mayor Jim Miller.

Burkink said: "Johnny's speech, which lasted about 15 minutes was a combination of humor, reminiscing and a touch of the serious. After that, he opened the talk to questions from the 300 graduates.

"He told them you must have sense of humor, that you get your mind to do something, it's not to be static. Even if you're married and settled, don't be afraid to move on to the next step. And that's stressed how important it is to be happy in what you're doing."

OVC Tournament To Have 4 Teams

The Ohio Valley Conference will hereafter have a four team basketball championship playoff, instead of eight participants.

The winner will receive an automatic bid to the NCAA eliminations.

Bob Vanatta, OVC commissioner, interjected a "warning" note in a meeting of presidents and athletic directors held at Clarksville, Tenn. He said there is "some danger" the automatic basketball bid from the NCAA may be withdrawn after this year.

In the basketball playoffs the four teams with the best season records would participate.

The presidents and athletic directors voted to continue an upgrading of women's athletics; increased football travel squads from 48 to 50; set up a plan to study an in indoor conference track meet and tabled a request that basketball games be played on Thursdays and Saturdays instead of Saturdays and Mondays.

Two Rowan Firms Licensed For Dealerships

Seventy-seven applications to establish dealerships with new used vehicles were approved last week in Frankfort, including two in Rowan County.

Licensing approval for the applicant agencies was announced by the Kentucky Department of Transportation following the last regular meeting of the state's Division of Vehicle Inspections and the eight-member Kentucky Motor Vehicle Dealers Board (MVBDB) headed by Ernie Bates, an Elizabethtown businessman.

Agencies approved in Rowan included Clearfield Auto Sales, Clearfield; and Paul's Used Cars, Morehead.

Applications to establish a motor vehicle dealership in Kentucky must be made to the vehicle inspections division in the state's bureau of vehicle regulation, along with affidavits describing the intended operation. Applicants also may be asked to appear before the division on the MVBDB.

The MVBDB members are appointed by the governor from the membership of the Motor Vehicle Dealer Association, a private organization of automobile dealers which seeks to regulate Kentucky dealerships in an effort to maintain ethical standards in the industry.

Help Heal Your Headache

You may be giving yourself a pain in the neck... and the head... the most common kind of headache is caused by tension... in two ways.

When a person is confronted with a difficult situation his natural reaction is to tense up the muscles in the neck and head... as if to fight. This tension causes the blood vessels to constrict... more tightening and more pain. Pretty soon you have a full blown tension headache.

To get rid of it, there are generally two things you can do. One is to relax, getting rid of the tension and so the pain for easier relief. You can take a pain killer, but you have to be careful what you take. The wrong pill can lead to more problems. Even something usually considered harmless, such as aspirin, can carry certain risks. For people with asthma, allergies, troubles, or those taking anticoagulants or uncoupling drugs, aspirin can cause unwanted effects. An alternative source of relief is Tylenol's analgesic products.

State High School Baseball Tournament Opens Here Today

Elizabethtown's Panthers will open defense of their state high school baseball crown Thursday, as the Kentucky High School Athletic Association's State Tournament opens at Morehead State University.

Coach Ronnie Myers club will carry the best record in the tournament into Thursday's 4 p.m. first round game against Newport Catholic.

Elizabethtown, 37-3, is expected to start senior lefthander Tim Brandenburg against the Thoroughbreds. Brandenburg is 14-0 this season and won two games in last year's tournament.

Newport Catholic, 25-12, is expected to counter with righthander Ken Wilfong (10-0) who also won in last year's tourney. Both pitchers were named to the all-state team last year.

In Thursday's opener at 2 p.m., Laurel County (27-3) and Owensboro (29-14) meet at MSU's Allen Field. Laurel County entered the state tournament by defeating Ashland and Owensboro beat the '75 runner-up, Paducah Tighman.

LCHS is expected to pitch either righty Larry Overby (6-1) or southpaw Eddie Reams (10-0). The Red Devils probably will open with righthander Mark King (10-0).

Thursday's winners will meet for the state title Friday at 2 p.m. at Allen Field.

This is the third straight year that the state playoffs have been held at MSU.

Morehead Swim Club Begins Practice Friday

The Morehead Swim Club will begin regular swim practice Friday (tomorrow) from 7 to 10 a.m. at the Morehead Recreation Center swimming pool.

The club is open to all boys and girls, ages 18 and under. Swim Club membership costs $10 per month for the first child in a family, and $5 for each additional child.

There also is a yearly AAU membership fee of $4, which includes swim insurance. In addition, all Swim Club members are required to have pool passes or pay the daily admittance charge.

Mike Miller, swim coach, is assisted by Robby McGrath. The members are divided into two groups: 10 and under; and 11 and over. Each group will swim 1 1/2 hours daily on Monday through Friday. Diving instruction also will be given.

A Swim Club meeting will be held at 7:30 tonight (Thursday) in Room 101 of Lappin Building on the Morehead State University campus. The meeting is open to parents of all swimmers and interested swimmers.

Swimming lessons also are planned at the pool with the cost being $2 per three weeks session.

Legion Baseball Opening Tonight

Don Hardin's 1976 Morehead American Legion baseball team will be out to improve on last season's 35-14 record as it opens the season Thursday night (tonight).

Hardin returns 12 from last season's squad, but only four starters. Among the six players lost from last season are college standouts Danny Kiser, Crocky Prater, John Sniegier and Brad LeMaster.

In Kiser, Prater and LeMaster, Hardin lost a great deal of power. Also with Kiser went a good glove at first base.

Therein lie the biggest challenges to this year's team, offense and first base defense.

The left side of the infield returns with Roy Wright at third base, and Mark Clifford at short-stop. A newcomer at short, Jerry Long, has been impressive in practice.

Jim Blumfield will inherit the second base position vacated by LeMaster. First base belongs to David Gaunce and Brian Johnson, a pair of youngsters who are more at home behind the plate.

Centerfielder Don Davison anchors the outfield. He will be flanked by Billy May in right and David Means in left. Tom Queen has apparently won the starting catchers job with ample bench strength in Gaunce and Johnson.

The pitching staff may well be the strength of the club. Right-handers Mark Clifford and Henry Mack anchor the starters. They will probably be joined in the rotation by Eddie Warner, Carl Parker, and Eugene Ferguson.

In the bullpen there is right-hander Jerry Bloomfield and lefty David Rhodes.

"Our pitching should be very good," said Hardin. "We have good balance with three lefties on the staff. We're strong at catcher and this may be the best defensive outfield I've cooed."

"We're not going to have the power we had last season," said Hardin. "Probably our major question marks are offense and defense at first base where we have no one returning."

Events At Recreation Park Now Underway

The men's softball league at the City Park got underway with a pre-season tournament. The double elimination tourney ran Saturday through Monday.

When the tournament moved to Monday's activities only one unbenched team was left, Texaco, but the Carter Countians were denied the championship. Don Rons came on strong winning all four Monday games.

The Morgan Countians defeated Martins and Lex. Concrete to win the losers bracket. Then took on winners bracket chump Texaco, and won two-one-run thrillers to claim the championship.

Little League action continued through its second week. The Division A leaders, the Giants, picked up two more victories to keep their perfect record intact. They lead the second place Dodgers by a game and a half.

In Division B the Reds ran their record to 4-1 and lead the second place Cards and Yankees by one game.

Babe Ruth action finds the Reds leading the Suns by 1/2 game. The Reds tagged the Stars with their lone defeat 4-3 in the season opener.

The Morehead City Pool at the Recreation Park opened Sunday with a good crowd on hand. Registration for swimming lessons is June 14.

There will be two classes taught. One on Monday-Wednesday-Friday and another on Tuesday-Thursday-Saturday. The cost is only $2 for an entire three week session.

There is a special package for fathers on Father's Day at the Morehead Pool. All fathers can swim free when accompanied by their children, pictures of their children, or proof of an expectant arrival.

Registration is now underway from Morehead City Park's summer basketball league. There will be leagues for all ages. Register at the City Park with Ted Trent.

MAJOR LEAGUE PROSPECT . . .

Six major league scouts have made reservations to be in Morehead this week for the Kentucky High School baseball championship playoffs. Probably the player they'll be watching (and clocking) the most is Tim Brandenburg, left-handed Elizabethtown pitcher. In 2 1/2 years he has won 63 and lost 3, and it's not rare for Tim to strike out 15 opponents in a seven inning game. Elizabethtown is favored to repeat as state champs.

Congressman Perkins Virtually Unbeatable

The Morehead News, or any publication in this area, could compose headline: Carl Perkins Wins By Landslide... and place it in the morgue for future use.

That headline would have been appropriate and useable in every congressional primary and general election for the past 27 years, or since 1949.

Perkins' primary majorities usually run 10 to 1 or better, and in the general election by five to one.

The Congressman from Hindman in Knott county is considered the "most unbeatable" man in Kentucky, or in the entire Congress.

Why? Perkins' strength is so great that no politician with vote-getting stature ever runs against him. In the primary last week his democratic opponent was Roy "I am a Democrat" Adkins.

Nobody ever heard in these parts of Ray "I am a Democrat" Adkins. The republican nominee in November, Granville Thomas, is a perennial office seeker. His name has been on the ballot for Congress and state offices many times, but it is not established that he has ever carried a precinct.

2 Despite his large following, Congressman Perkins comes from Washington to visit his district about 35 times every year, including years in which he is not a candidate. His aides are quick to point out that Perkins doesn't charge travel expense for these visits. He campaigns with the use of the sun, and calls it a day after people have gone to bed.

3 No congressman is more devoted to his constituents, or better acquainted with their needs and poverty. Most of the 7th district lies in the mountain coal fields where poverty abounded until the coal boom. As dean of the Kentucky delegation on Capitol Hill and chairman of the powerful Health,

Carl D. Perkins heads powerful committee.

Education and Labor committee, Perkins has the "knuckle" to get into any Washington federal office and take the matter up with the Secretary and the top dogs. He gets results.

4 Because of the poverty in the mountains, and the people's personal and acquaintance with the Congressman, more mail is received and dispatched from Perkins' office than from that of any Senator or Representative on Capitol Hill. One can walk along the corridors of the Rayburn Building early in the morning and there'll be many bags of mail beside Perkins' door, and only one or two mail bags by the entrance to the offices of other Congressmen.

Perkins is insistent that every letter be answered and every possible thing done to help the constituent with his problem.

5 Perkins was a great admirer of the late President John F. Kennedy. It was not uncommon to see Perkins' old Chevrolet with Kentucky mud on it parked at the main entrance of the White House. Kennedy was President. Other Congressmen and White House visitors use the designated parking lots, but Perkins drove through the main gate and parked in front of the white columns of the President's home because Kennedy wanted and ooked it that way. Many class Kennedy's "California Speech" as the greatest he ever made. In that address the President said "the future of the United States lays in the impoundment and preservation of its water resources."

Perkins believe in impounding every stream in his district and can talk by the hour that these reservoirs will, given time, elevate the economy and attract all kinds of industry. Perkins' stand on building dams has met some criticism such as Red River Gorge, and Paint Creek in Morgan and Johnson counties. That doesn't deter Perkins the least bit, and he says both will be built. Perkins thinks that after the coal is gone "all we can hope for is industry and tourism because of many mountain-pure lakes."

The late Senator Key of Oklahoma had the same philosophy and that state has more man-made water impoundments than any other... and they are industrially and economically paying off.

6 Perkins is not a fluent speaker, although he makes a good impression on television. But, he more than makes up for speeches with personal visits and hand calls. He can call thousands upon thousands of his constituents by their first names, and manages to visit every district and almost every precinct, periodically, despite a heavy Washington work load. He is all forthright and adroit in chairing meetings of a committee.

7 Because of his success in securing appropriations for high dams on the Ohio river from Cairo, Ill., to Pittsburgh, a major corporation offered to pay all Perkins' campaign expenses "every time you run." Perkins refused, and says he has never accepted a campaign contribution "in my life."

8 Many mail contributions, large and small. The Congressman always returns the donations, with a letter of thanks but firm refusal.

9 Custodians of the Rayburn Building will tell you that Carl Perkins is the first to report for work and the last to leave. He generally gets to his office by 4 a.m. and remains until well after dark. Perkins sleeps only two to three hours a night. He's a "go, go, go" individual.

10 Perkins participates in few primary elections other than his own. But, if the Congressman supports a man in the primary for Governor or any office you can expect that candidate will substantially carry the 7th district. Perkins dislikes "closed door" political gatherings. He is one of the few politicians remaining who seldom appear on television, but believes in "going straight to the people."

11 Probably no congressional district has received so much from the federal government as has Kentucky's 7th. The New York Times once said editorially: "Carl Perkins believes in dividing the national budget in half—one half for his district and the other half for the rest of the United States."

12 The "investigative media" trying to pin down a scandal like Watergate are never seen at Perkins' office. The truth is he spread and they know that Perkins is a Congressman from Kentucky's 7th district is "tily white." His wife teaches school at Arlington, Va., to add to the family income. Perkins owns some "home place" hillside in Knott county, and a small but not costly farm in Scott county. He won't retire from Congress with much money or property of his own, or leave much of an estate. Probably his greatest expense is taking his constituents to lunch when they visit the nation's capitol.

13 Perkins grew up in a humble home and surroundings and worked his way through law school. He doesn't care for big automobiles, fine clothes or putting on the dog. Some newspapermen joked about his white socks, but added in fairness that Perkins was considered the "one honest" man in federal government.

Congressman Perkins is 60 years old. He says he hopes to stay in Congress "so long as my health permits and I can constructively serve the people of my district." He has no aspirations for any office except the one he holds, and never has had.

A "behind the scenes" plus for Perkins is his ability to get along with his colleagues in the House and also the Senate. They admire Perkins for his honesty, integrity and devotion, traits that are uncommon in Washington these days. Perkins' colleagues know that Perkins' word is his bond. As chairman of one of the most powerful committees he helps other congressmen and they, in turn, side with Perkins on key votes and issues.

When Perkins was first elected to Congress in 1949, Rowan and most area counties were not in his district, but in the 6th Bluegrass district. In the 1964 redistricting Rowan and adjoining Fleming and Bath counties were placed in the 7th.

Another redistricting was mandatory in 1972, following the 1970 census report, and every county in the eastern Bluegrass tried to get in Perkins' district, obviously because they could receive more from Washington. Mason, Robertson, Nicholas and Montgomery counties were placed in the 7th, out of the delight of democratic politicians in those counties. And, Perkins always receives landslide majorities in the Knobs and Bluegrass counties as from the mountains.

Perkins is active for the democratic party in every general election. In 1962, years ago he supported Bert Combs for Governor in the democratic primary, explaining that Combs was from his district. When Wendell Ford defeated Combs, the Congressman probably worked harder for Ford in the general election than any man in the Commonwealth.

Although a staunch democrat, Perkins is popular with republicans. This is probably because he doesn't distinguish between a democrat and a republican if a constituent asks a favor. Perkins truly believes and lives that he was elected to serve all the people of his district regardless of their politics or stature in life. In fact he prefers meeting with an average citizen farmer or cold miner than with the "wheels" in the county.

In the immediate Morehead area, the Congressman's greatest contributions have probably been to Morehead State University, Cave Run reservoir, and St. Claire Medical Center.

MSU's President Adron Duran has been able to "get all that can be got" in federal funds and programs because of Perkins' bulldog support; Cave Run dam wouldn't have been built except for Perkins and President Kennedy; and last week he expedited a government loan of over $5 million for the hospital at Morehead.

If there's one thing the 7th district congressman doesn't like it is "personal praise." He is as modest as he is honest. Perkins teaches a Sunday school class at Arlington, and spends a great deal of time preparing the lesson. He also likes Tennessee walking horses and enjoys riding them. Perkins doesn't have any expensive horses on his Scott county farm, but admits he gets relaxation from riding.

One of the reasons Perkins can do all the things at his office and return home most weekends is because he isn't much bothered with professional lobbyists and self-interest groups. They know there's no way that Carl Perkins can be bought, influenced beyond his beliefs. Yes, Carl Perkins is unbeatable, and what this nation needs is more honest and dedicated servants of the people such as Congressman Perkins has proved himself to be.

PERKINS' DOMAIN... Kentucky's 7th district Congressman Carl D. Perkins must be rated as perhaps the most unbeatable man in the nation. Almost every weekend he can be found roaming his district of 27 counties as pictured. Some of the district lies in rich soil bluegrass counties, some in the knobs, and the balance in the mountains where coal is king. Perkins always carries every county by landslide majorities.

THE ROAD TO ROMANCE

Visit the ancient walled town of Rothenburg (left), full of timbered towers, flowering window boxes, iron Gothic spires, noble houses unchanged by centuries, charming shops half-timbered in Renaissance style and quaint cobble streets. Then the medieval multi-towered Emperor's "Old Town" (above) as you drive through Germany's famous Romantic Road.

There's good news for everyone who has ever longed to return to the days of walled towns and cobbled streets, window boxes on gabled buildings, bustling market squares and peaceful pastures. It's now possible to see all that, without losing out on modern conveniences, by taking the Romantic Road through Germany.

This 180 mile route encompasses an extraordinary collection of towns and villages whose medieval character has been carefully preserved.

The "time" traveler can stop, for instance, at Rothenburg ob der Tauber. Thirteenth century walls surround it, opening at turret gates for access to timbered buildings clustered within.

An annual festival called Der Meislertrunk (the master drink) commemorates the capacity of a 16th century Burgersmaster who averted the city's conquest by accepting a challenge to drink a 3 1/2 quart goblet of wine in one draught. His achievement is also celebrated on the town clock that shows, when it chimes, the burgermeister quaffing and would-be conqueror looking amazed.

Another stop Augsburg, founded 2,000 years ago by the Roman emperor Augustus. It has the world's oldest housing project, a complex built in the 16th century by a wealthy banking family for the deserving poor. It is still occupied, and the tenants pay the same annual rent they have for 150 years: 72 cents.

Slightly to the east of the Romantic Road, is Nuremberg, with its Altstadt, or old town, a cluster of houses and municipal buildings dating from the Middle Ages. In spring and fall, the market square becomes a flea market and a month before Christmas it's the Christkindlmarkt, appropriately set in a city famous for its toys.

A Nuremberg inspired Wagner's opera "Die Meistersinger" and a modern Meistersinger presents music from classic to pop.

Anyone who wishes to visit these romantic spots will find it easy to do so with the help of Luftansa German Airlines, which can arrange for flight arrangements, as well as spread accommodations, and an Avisa self-drive car with unlimited mileage. All of these are included on the Medieval German Countryside Tour of the Romantische Strasse. They can set you on the right road to another spot.

HOME BUYER

CLINIC

By William J. McAuliffe, Jr. Executive Vice President American Land Title Association

HAUNTING MISTAKES

Attractive as it may seem, the home you document to purchase could be haunted by land title problems from the past. The time for precautions against such hazards is before you buy.

One of many types of title difficulties that make safeguards necessary is the purchase of a home with poor records. If a mistake occurs, a problem may remain hidden from the eyes of the buyer, and a title searcher, it can prove costly to uncover.

McAuliffe buyer after a transaction is completed. Two recent examples will show how mistakes can bring trouble.

In New York, a home buyer learned after completing title purchase that a past deed to the property contained an erroneous description of the land - which meant his property overlapped onto the adjoining tract. An attorney was retained to correct the deed, which cost the buyer $1,000. Related fees were paid by the title company issuing owner's title insurance, and for protection of the buyer, which was obtained before completion of his real estate purchase.

In Michigan, a home buyer completed his transaction and was notified that a paving assessment confirmed before the date of his purchase. He was protesting against the property. A title search before completion of his purchase would have revealed the assessment because it was inaccurately made to withhold the information. This Michigan buyer also was protected by owner's title insurance, under which the title company paid the assessment to save the insured from financial loss.

It's an excellent idea to learn the facts on selection, financing, closing and land title protection before purchasing a home. For free information on the subject, write American Land Title Association, Box 566, Washington, D.C.

Our Fragile Earth

By Dr. Jerry Howell
Director of Environmental Studies
Morehead State University

The last article discussed some hunter contributions, in the face of prevalent anti-hunting sentiment, to the perpetuation of fish and wildlife. But there are other serious accusations based on ecological principles that hunters must defend and try to rectify.

One of the basic contentions of wildlife management is that hunters only harvest excess animals and if the populations are left unchecked, they reproduce to excess, bringing mass starvation and disease to the species. Deer, elk, mountain goat, antelope and similar mammals are used as examples of this principle and the facts are well documented in these cases. If not controlled in some fashion, deer and their relatives overpopulate areas to the point of near complete species decimation and almost total habitat destruction. In addition, survivors specimens. Anti-hunting advocates claim, though, that this would never happen if natural predators were allowed to coexist with their prey, instead of being killed off for bounties or other reasons. The mountain lion and wolf are examples of natural deer predators; they have been extirpated from their ranges in most of North America by bounty hunters and ranchers who, with little basis in fact, consider them mortal enemies.

Anti-hunters have a valid point in this instance because the breakdown of a natural balance is easy to effect, but the results are generally chaotic or result in artificial situations where man takes over as the major predator. Hunters now act as the major deer predator because deer have few natural enemies and would overpopulate if left alone. So the hunter is correct in his contention at the present time, but he must admit that it is an artificial situation, brought about by hunting itself.

The arguments do not end there. Critics of hunting claim that there are better methods of riding an area of excess animals and advocate trapping and transporting these animals to other areas, instead of killing them. Hunters sometimes agree with this, but contend that it is expensive and simply postpones the problem. Many anti-hunters also claim that hunters, in their harvest methods, are not as selective as natural predators. There is evidence for this contention in some instances, especially in the case of trophy hunters whose target is the biggest, healthiest specimen available, not the weakest specimen or the one less able to escape. Animals in the latter group are typical mountain or wolf prey.

Hunters have also been accused of stretching the point of harvesting excess animals to justify hunting animals presently in a natural balance with their surroundings. Anti-hunters cite several species of game birds as examples. They claim that coyotes, foxes, and skunks (game bird egg predators) keep many of these species in check and that hunters are not needed because overpopulation is not a problem. However, hunters contend that they themselves have increased bird populations by stocking, improving the habitat, and providing food and that there are more than enough for hunter and predator alike.

Despite these opinion differences, both groups are more in agreement than they think; they are separated more by time factors in wildlife history than by differences in philosophy. Extremists in both camps give little credit to advocates of differing viewpoints and many times emotionalism stands in the way of problems of animals and much common ground does exist.

State Treasurer Elected To Office In National STC

Frances Jones Mills, Kentucky's state treasurer, has been elected vice president and First Southern Region chairperson at the National State Treasurer's Conference.

Mrs. Mills described the newly organized state treasurer's conference, held last month in San Francisco, as "very worthwhile for learning methods and programs that are being used and considered by other states. It is more relevant now that we state treasurers have an organization of our own." State treasurers had previously been included with the organization of state comptrollers and auditors across the nation.

"We intend to have a model treasury in Kentucky," said Mrs. Mills. "It is most helpful that we exchange ideas with other states. Right now, for example, we are very interested in a system that seems to be working well for Maryland."

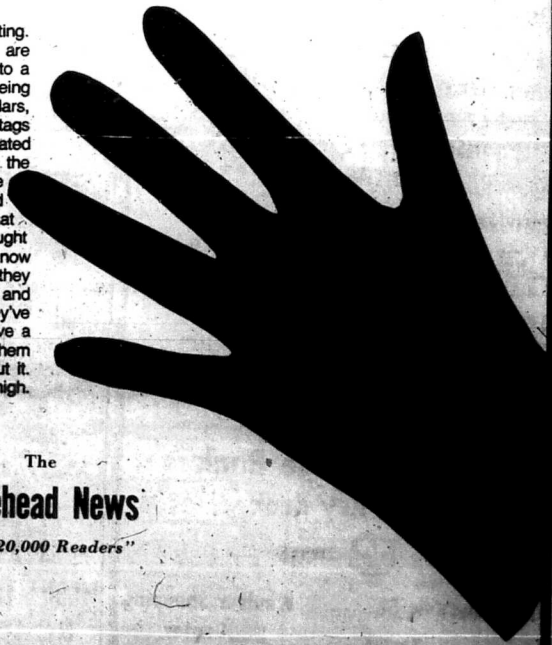

The National State Treasurer's Conference will hold its next meeting in early 1977—a meeting which Mrs. Mills might be in Kentucky. "The state treasurers have heard some very nice things about our state and they are interested in meeting here," she said.

Mrs. Mills is a past president of the National Conference of Appellate Court Clerks. That group held a national meeting in Kentucky while she was Clerk of the Kentucky Court Appeals.

But not when it comes to shoplifting. That's because extensive measures are being used to bring shoplifting to a screeching halt. Shoplifters are being watched with TV monitors, binoculars, and by plain-clothesmen. Electronic tags and other types of sophisticated equipment are being used to watch the merchandise. So, more and more shoplifters are being caught and prosecuted. The worn out excuses that shoplifters use when they're caught won't work any more. Maybe now people will stop and think before they steal. Maybe the fun, excitement, and joke of it all will wear thin once they've been booked, prosecuted, and have a police record that will stick with them for life. Shoplifting... think about it. The price is high.

Social Security

By: David Bryan - Ashland District Mgr. For Social Security Information write: District Social Security Office, 1816 Carter Avenue - Ashland, Ky. Phone 325-7666.

Senior citizens age 65 or over who receive Supplemental Security Income benefits must report certain events to the Social Security Administration. Supplemental Security Income (SSI) is a national program administered by the Social Security Administration. The program's major aim is to supplement the income of senior citizens over 65 who have limited income and resources, as well as helping disabled and or blind children and adults who have limited income and resources.

The reporting events are several in number, but they can be summed up in the following three categories: changes in income, changes in resources, and changes in living arrangements. Changes in any of these categories could affect a beneficiary's eligibility for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments or the amount of such payments. Some typical events that affect payment to senior citizens are the following:

- (1) Marriage
(2) Separation from a husband or wife
(3) The receipt of monthly Veterans payments or a change in the amount of such payments
(4) The receipt of retroactive Social Security payments

(5) A move from a private home to a rest or nursing home or a move from a rest home to another person's household.

The Social Security Administration conducts regular redeterminations of eligibility for Supplemental Security Income. From these redeterminations, it is very often discovered that changes have been made in income, living arrangements, and resources which have not been reported. This very often results in overpayments which, in many situations must be recovered. With the impact of inflation and recurring monthly expenses this inevitably causes hardships. On the other hand, it sometimes is discovered that a change has occurred which will cause an increase in SSI payments in this situation an underpayment exists.

In prevent the occurrence of both overpayments and underpayments, SSI beneficiaries should be sure to report timely changes in income, resources, and living arrangement. For more information, contact your nearest Social Security Office.

The Ashland Social Security office is at 1816 Carter Avenue. The telephone number is 325-7666.

HOME HEALTH STAFF... Pictured are members of the staff of the Home Health Service of St. Claire Medical Center. Home Health Service Operating In Fifth Year

The St. Claire Home Health Service recently marked its fifth anniversary. The service is a component of health care that offers nursing service, physical therapy, social services and homemaker home health aide services on an intermittent basis to patients in their home or residence.

In February 1971 the program was started with Ellie Holloway, Director, and Sister Jean Claire, part-time physical therapist. Since those beginning days in a small office on the second floor, the department grew under the direction of Ms. Holloway. Two aides and a secretary were added to the staff. A contract with Cave Run Comprehensive Care provided the service of a social worker.

In October 1972 two Sisters of Charity of New York, Sisters Eileen Judge and Anne Marie Falloon, joined the department; one on a part time basis until the spring of 1975 when both sisters were full time in home health serving Rowaan, Bath, Menifee, Carter, Elliott and parts of Lewis and Fleming counties.

In July 1974 the department expanded by establishing a subunit in Montgomery County at the Mary Chiles Hospital and introduced a Homemaker Home Health Aide program into a four-county area. The subunit at Mary Chiles staffed by an R.N. and a part-time secretary enables the citizens of that area to receive services which otherwise would be financially unfeasible. This program also demonstrates a cooperation between the two hospitals. The Homemaker Home Health Aide Program provides its own unique level of care in areas where supervision by a professional is needed frequently. It is designed to deliver both social and health services by meeting simple housekeeping needs and simple health tasks as well as personal care. There presently are eight homemaker home health aides serving Rowan, Bath, Menifee and Montgomery counties.

The Home Health Service is a bridge between the hospital and the home, helping patients and families to live with certain conditions and at the same time stressing rehabilitation to the fullest extent.

The present staff includes - Professional: Sister Anna Marie Falloon, R.N., director; Miss Molly Barrett, R.N.; Miss Barbara Bowling, R.N.; Mrs. Jafet Shroat, R.N. Montgomery Clerical: Mrs. Judy Lambert, Mrs. Alberta Greene, Mrs. Rosemary Albright, Mrs. Sharon Turley, Montgomery Homemaker Home Health Aides: Mrs. Joyce Barker, Mrs. Angie Jones and Mrs. Cleo Keeton, Rowan County; Mrs. Bonnie Baker, Mrs. Dorothy Gay and Mrs. Eva Taul, Montgomery County; Mrs. Lodema Bailey and Mrs. Maxine Crase, Menifee County.

Federal Funds Require Government Red Tape

In recent breakfast meeting in Washington, D.C., with Kentucky Congressmen, Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. James Graham raised the twin issues of federal regulations and local control.

"The problem," Graham said, "is that there are too many forms, too much paperwork and too many restrictive guidelines accompanying federal funds. And, in the same vein, I would say that we don't need any more boards or commissions. We already have more boards and commissions than you can shake a stick at. Why don't we let the people at the local levels make the decision?"

There may be a solution to the first problem at least, according to Third District Congressman Romano L. Mazzoli. He said there is now a bill in the rules committee which would require, basically,

There may be a solution to the first problem at least according to Third District Congressman Romano L. Mazzoli. He said there is now a bill in the rules committee which would require, basically, that all regulations be submitted to Congress after they are written, but before they become law. Such a provision for Congressional review would probably serve as a deterrent against excessively complicated regulations and guidelines, Mazzoli said.

Others who attended the breakfast were Senators Wendell H. Ford and Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Representatives Carroll Hubbard, William H. Natcher, John B. Breckinridge and Carl D. Perkins.

Perkins, Seventh District Congressman and chairman of the House Labor and Education Committee, discussed Graham's concern with new boards, specifically the new state board required for vocational education by the Senate version of pending vocational legislation.

"I wanted the boards as presently constituted," Perkins said, adding that he thought a good compromise could be worked out.

Natcher, Second District Congressman and member of the House Committee on Appropriations, turned the discussion to the importance of federal appropriations for education. "A lot of people call us big spenders," he said, "but they need to be told what would be lost if the appropriation didn't pass. There are many Kentucky counties involved that would have to cut back on teachers and everything else without these funds."

Graham said that he, the chief assistants with him — Assistant Superintendent Raymond Barber and Associate Superintendent James Baker and James Melton — and all Kentuckians concerned with education appreciated their efforts.

Support For The Arts Increased By Carroll

Gov. Julian Carroll has increased his $200,000 challenge grant program for Kentucky's fine arts organizations with an additional $30,000. The sum will make 25 per cent matching funds available to 39 participating nonprofit arts organizations in 44 Kentucky counties.

Gov. Carroll introduced the challenge grant program in January, 1975, to provide an incentive for nonprofit arts groups.

That these groups' fundraising efforts would suffer from the recession, the governor challenged program participants to exceed their previous year's fundraising totals.

Groups meeting this challenge would share in the grant program, which would provide a "reward" matching up to 25 per cent of the money raised during 1975.

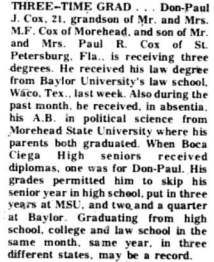

But the response of the 39 groups participating in the program exceeded the goal. To provide a full 25 per cent match, the program needed additional money, and the governor met this need with a supplementary gift of $30,000 of the 1976-77 program.

The Kentucky Arts Commission, assigned by the governor to administer the program, will distribute the $230,000 to the 39 organizations, whose fundraising efforts in 1975 totaled more than $1 million.

The governor showed great insight into our needs when he began the challenge grants," said arts commission chairman E. Hudson Milner. "The challenge grants kept the arts in Kentucky growing and viable."

No other state like it exists at this time in any other state, according to Nash Cox, executive director of the commission. But the governor's idea of challenging groups to turn to the public for increased support is now being considered by other states' arts agencies, she said.

The governor has set aside funds to continue the program for two more years. Nonprofit organizations which support arts activities for the public are eligible to participate. Applications forms and detailed information can be obtained from the commission's office at 100 W. Main Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

THREE-TIME GRAD . . . Don-Paul J. Cox, 21, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. M.F. Cox of Morehead, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Cox of St. Petersburg, Fla., is receiving three degrees. When Boca Ciega High seniors received diplomas, one was for Don-Paul. His grades permitted him to skip his senior year in high school, put in three years at MSU, and two and a quarter at Baylor. Graduating from high school, college and law school in the same month, same year, in three different states, may be a record.

Russians Visit In Kentucky

Eleven representatives of a Russian youth group sampled a few highlights of Kentucky life last week, eating Kentucky Fried Chicken, tasting a bit of Kentucky-made bourbon, observing our first presidential primary election, and departing official Kentucky Colonels (or "Kentucky Polknik" as they said it).

In America on a two-week tour, the majority of their time was spent in Washington, D. C., and on the East Coast. But they came to Kentucky for a three-day visit to observe inland American life.

The group, comprising young Russian politicians, businessmen and teachers, spent a majority of its time in Kentucky on tours, visiting the state Capitol, the Governor's Mansion, the Old Capitol, state Democratic Headquarters, a distillery, and both Ford and Reagan election night headquarters.

While touring the Capitol, old Navy men wandered off doorways to try out a bit of their long-forgotten, fractured Russian on the visitors; Kentucky lapel pins were exchanged for "Soviet Youth" buttons; the voting board in the House of Representatives chambers failed to function properly during an attempted illustration of our lawmaking process, and jokes were exchanged about the future of detente when the cafeteria ran out of hamburgers.

After questioning Gov. Julian Carroll on state and federal government relations, the state budget, the governor's support of Jimmy Carter and the resources of Kentucky, each member of the group was made a Kentucky Colonel. The governor told them their colonelships gave them distinction of out-ranking Kissinger. They all grinned, especially one man who said that through his entire career in the Russian Army he had never reached the rank of colonel.

With less than half the delegation able to speak English, an interpreter translated for the four guides and the governor. But the entire group had worked on reasonable facsimiles of "thank you" and "Mr. Carroll."

"The English speaking members of the group talked with the Kentucky representatives accompanying them on the tour about our political process, the background of Gov. Carroll and their two weeks in America. They all said they enjoyed seeing America through their eyes and hoped that in the near future many more people from Russia would have the opportunity to become Kentucky Colonels.

SHERIFFS PROHIBITED FROM SUCCEEDING SELVES

A state constitution prohibition against county sheriffs succeeding themselves was upheld by a 7-1 vote this week of the Kentucky Supreme Court. In 1956 and again in 1972 Kentucky voters rejected a proposed constitutional amendment that would have permitted sheriffs to "succeed themselves in office."

STATE HAS NEW INFORMATION COMMUNICATIONS DIRECTOR

Gary Auxier, current owner-operator of the Capital News Service, Frankfort, has been named director of the state Department of Public Information's Information and Communications division. James C. Vernon, Commissioner of Department of Public Information, made the announcement today, saying Auxier would assume his duties June 1. Auxier succeeds Gerald Smith, who resigned to become assessment editor for WLKY-TV Louisville.

"We regret to see Gerald Smith leave the department," Commissioner Vernon said, "but we feel Gary Auxier will be a very fine replacement."

Auxier, formerly Frankfort correspondent for the Kentucky Post, is a native of Ashland, where he had worked as reporter for the Ashland Independent.

The 31-year-old Auxier attended Ashland Community College and Morehead University, majoring in English and philosophy. He currently resides in Shelby County.

Men and Women

Some say that when a woman has a roof over her head and a man under her thumb she's happy. Wonder why it's a man's world how come women seem to run it? Then there's the ones who claim that a man who thinks marriage is a 50-50 proposition doesn't understand at least one of two things - fractions or women.

Me First

A small fishing boat capsized. One of the three men aboard swam to shore while the others were splashing around trying to stay afloat. An old lady standing on shore bewated the good swimmer. "Why didn't you try and save the others," she complained. "I had to save myself first," he gasped. "But if you insist, I'll swim back out and see what I can do."

Bicentennial Celebration Set June 5 At Oakwood

Bluegrass music, square dancing, a pie supper and a cakewalk all bring to mind the kind of festive atmosphere anyone could enjoy. Throw in a parade, and it begins to sound more like a real old-time celebration, the kind Oakwood has planned for Saturday, June 5.

The Foster Grandparents of Oakwood, a group of older citizens who work with children at the center, have planned the Bicentennial Celebration to honor senior citizens in the Lake Chamberland area.

The activities, to be held on the Oakwood campus, will start at 10 a.m. with exhibits of mountain arts and crafts, and end at 10 p.m. with a unique Bicentennial dedication.

Some 20 booths will be open all day for the exhibitors to display their wares and demonstrate arts and crafts. Oakwood's cottages will be judged in the morning for their decorations which are to be in keeping with the Bicentennial theme. "200 Years Past"

The Foster Grandparents will prepare pioneer food from authentic old recipes for the day, lunch menu and will serve as judges in various contests.

After lunch a beard contest will determine the best groomed the longest, and the ugliest beards entered.

Awards will also be presented for original and authentic costumes worn by individuals and couples. Senior Citizens are invited to act as contestants and judges in many of these contests.

Oakwood residents, "The Bicentennial Marchers," will lead a one and one-half mile parade at 1:30 on the Oakwood grounds complete with bands, covered wagons, antique cars, and horses.

A "Bluegrass Serenade" the pie supper, the cake walk and square dancing are scheduled after the parade.

A "Bluegrass Serenade" the pie supper, the cake walk and square dancing are scheduled after the parade.

Everyone is encouraged to wear 1776 costumes and participate in this Bicentennial celebration honoring senior citizens in the area.

State Emergency Warning System Now Complete

The Kentucky Emergency Warning System has announced the completion of the eight station National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration Weather Radionetwork in the state.

According to Paul A. Warneke, coordinator of the system, the National Weather Service is now programming weather information around the clock for transmitters at Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Louisville, Mayfield, Hazard and Somerset. Each transmitter carries weather information and forecasts prepared specifically for the area its signal covers. Normally, a good signal can be received within a radius of 40-50 miles around the transmitter.

In addition to normal weather information service, the system is capable of sounding an alarm that will trigger special receivers to warn of predicted severe weather conditions.

Warneke said.

The system went on the air at Lexington on May 1 when the first transmitter was placed in operation.

Fifty-six For Freedom

A series of speeches about the fifty-six signers of the Declaration of Independence.

A leader in North Carolina's freedom movement, William Hooper received many years of education enabling him to enter the ministry. Against his father's wishes, he rejected that field and began to study law under James Otis. The Revolution's "flame and fire"—an act which alienated his Loyalist father. Hooper moved to North Carolina where he rode the circuit to build up a law clientele. In April of 1774, he prophesized the colonies' break with Britain in a letter to a friend—the earliest known prediction of independence, for which he received the title "Prophet of Independence." Hooper did not speak often in Congress, but when he did, he spoke quickly and to the point. His oratorical ability was compared to that of Patrick Henry. Hooper moved his family to a farm outside Wilmington, N.C., his wife's home, during the war. British troops were sent to capture him, but he fled after he sent his family back to Wilmington, feeling it was better for them to live under British occupation than to face the dangers of being a fugitive. Recurring malaria restricted much of his activities following the war. Hooper's popularity diminished because of his aristocratic pretensions and his lack of faith in the common people. He was not returned to Congress—possibly because he favored a federal constitution and wanted understanding treatment for Loyalists.

Publisher's Pen...

Day-by-day jotted-downs, and editorial observations of the publisher of this newspaper.

OLD-TIMER reminiscing: "I was born on Main Street. I lived there before the flood macadamized it, before Henry Ford motorized it, before the unions organized it, before the chain stores standardized it, and before the federal government subsidized it."

MANY MOREHEAD citizens conjecture how in the hell our city was able to make it, without creating an indebtedness, before revenue sharing and the one per cent payroll and no profit tax. "It's progress, man," we told one inquisitive elderly citizen. He replied: "I'd rather go back and be a villager... there's such a thing as getting too big for your britches."

We agreed with him to an extent because the Morehead News editorially opposed the incorporation of six square miles (Divide Hill and north) four years ago. On the other hand one of our favorite expressions is: "When you're jogging these days you're probably falling behind."

THE AUTHOR of this column, by virtue of his position in 1974 as President of the Kentucky Press Association, led the successful fight for passage in the General Assembly of Kentucky's Open Meetings Law. It has since been rated as the second best and fairest open meetings statute in the nation. The law makes open to the press and to the public any meeting of a government agency, or any committee or segment that spends taxpayer dollars. The Kentucky Education Association took the fight for more open legislation at the time, but it is now the number one complainant of alleged violations by Boards of Education.

One thing you depend on in Kentucky — the management of schools and elementary school systems will always be in the news. It's been that way, perhaps to the benefit of the public, ever since we were a boy when the scores of elected school trustees in each county selected the teacher or teachers for their particular school, and most of the trustees were "hounded" by the teacher who got the job. Those were depression days when school teachers made about $80 a month which was $80 more than most anybody else earned.

THE PUBLISHER keeps hearing via Morehead's usually dependable grapevine that the strike against telephone service has started almost seven months ago, is hearing settlement. But, we don't have anything official, semi-official, indicative, semi-official or otherwise from the management or the union (Communication Workers of America) that the issues have been resolved.

It seems that the main difference is who shall decide the matter (union) when the weather is good enough or inclement enough for maintenance men to work outdoors. As previously stressed in this column the strike against the union in Lexington, Hazard, Morehead and Ashland districts is the most unusual in our long and getting longer lifetime, i.e., the public is satisfied because the service continues good, the striking employees and policy officials of the union declare "we're happy and getting along just fine"; and the company and the public are satisfied because since cable cutting and vandalism virtually stopped in December.

You can wager your last dollar that you, the telephone user, will be the one who eventually gets the strike. It will be settled one of these days, maybe soon since it has gone on for seven months; employees will receive raises and benefits, and General will apply for a state grant. The strike of the Kentucky Public Service Commission.

In the long run, everybody should be satisfied... except the consumer who is forever getting kicked in the rear end.

Because of the Memorial Day holiday the Publisher's Pen was written Friday. Since the above was written, the telephone strike has apparently been settled. Details elsewhere in this issue.

A VISIT to Rowan County's cemeteries over Memorial Day would have made you feel happy... and restore a semblance of the sense of "sharing" so evident two generations back. Our reports are that all the cemeteries were clean, grass mowed, debris removed etc.; and outside the larger burial places in Morehead, the work was done by collective volunteer labor from people who had relatives interred in that particular cemetery. The condition of Rowan County's cemeteries sort of made us feel better all day and we're sure many of you shared the same good thought of "looking back" on our relatives who were working together without grumbling and mouthing."

Possibly after we die the volunteers who come to our graves, overgrown with weeds, look at the headstone, and say: "Aw, leave that one alone. The fellow buried there is the one who wrote a mean story about me one time." Of course the "mean" story would be the name included in a drug raid, slipshod, divorce, loss of driver's license or the like.

CARRYING the above thought a little to bite a dog to quiet him. You cannot think from public drinking fountains in Garden City, Kans. In parts of Maine it is illegal to tickle a girl under the chin with a feather duster. Frogs are prohibited by law from crossing the Mississippi after 11 p.m. No one is allowed to plant vegetables in a California cemetery. A woman of Owensboro, Ky., is forbidden to purchase a hat unless her husband tries it on first.

In the same state it is "contributory negligence" for any person to walk behind a mule without speaking to the animal first because that mule is HIS! It's the law.

THE U.S. RANKS 13th world wide in per capita beer consumption, according to Business Week magazine. West Germany is first, but Americans are slowly catching up. Americans drink an average of about 21 gallons of brew each year, and consumption last year was 2 billion cases — up 9 percent from 1973.

FOOL ME ONCE... It is necessary for somebody from this newspaper to make for the past tips south of Lexington via Interstate 75. Over a year ago somebody told us not to take the shortcut from the Winchester to Richmond, via Booneboro, because that road was under construction.

This week we had an appointment in London, Ky., and running late, so we advised our driver to take a chance and go via Booneboro, which saves about 30 minutes time.

We found the road under construction consists of four lanes from Winchester to the Kentucky river. It runs parallel to the old road, connects a Booneboro with the wider and improved highway leading to I-75 near Richmond, and the construction in no instance crosses or interferes with travel on the old Winchester-Booneboro stretch.

In other words, we and employees have been going many miles out of the way for the past year. The same thing you readers have done the same thing. The short-cut from Winchester to Booneboro and Richmond is not under any kind of repair.

From now on we vow to check with the proper highway authorities before taking some uninformed person's word. We hope the foregoing will save you time, miles, and gasoline. We've already lost some of all three.

IF ANYBODY asks the author of this column about picking Kentucky Derby winners, immediately take the 5th amendment.

WE BECAME downright furious the other day. We had written a letter to one of the major printing equipment manufacturers, and received this reply three weeks later. "Thanks for your inquiry. In due time it will receive the attention of the proper department. Signed: Clerk 29612XPA11."

We have determined that from now until we pass into eternity we ain't never gonna buy nothing from that company.

"AN OBVIOUS state of "indecency and unrest" is apparent on the campus of Morehead State University, and to an extent downtown, over the selection of the successor to President Adron Doran who retires Dec. 31.

As this column recently stated, "Deans and Vice-Presidents are easy to come by. But, every institution has problems finding a qualified "smart enough, tough enough, and politically oriented enough" President because the buck stops at his desk, and he makes all major decisions thereby creating critics and enemies."

It is noted that Dr. A.D. Albright has accepted the presidency of Northern Kentucky State College, newest institution in the state-supporting program. NKSC has been having its share scandals.

Dr. Albright has been director of the Kentucky Council on Public Higher Education, and should know his way around among educators and at the state capitol. However, we were a bit surprised at the selection because Dr. Albright is 63 years old, and could retire in two years. Mandatory retirement results, under state law, when he becomes 70.

The strongest inducement for a qualified man to accept a university presidency, such as at Morehead and Eastern Kentucky, are the fringe and retirement benefits, plus prestige.

Summed up, the Board of Regents at Morehead and Eastern, face monumental tasks in choosing successors for Bob Martin and Adron Doran.

The growth and continued progress of the Morehead community (us local citizens) depends in great measure on who is chosen to lead MSU.

Firefighters Will Attend State School

Residents of Lexington might get the impression that a four-alarm fire has been sounded when some 1,500 firefighters from across Kentucky converge on the University of Kentucky campus for a training seminar June 7-9.

Participants will receive 13 hours of instruction during the 7th annual Kentucky Fire School, the first such school in the country. The equipment and training will be much more sophisticated than that used in 1928, because the purpose of the school—to improve firefighting methods remains unchanged.

Firefighters have been instructed to bring work clothes since sessions will focus on such actual emergency fire situations as airplane crashes, aerial ladder operation, hazardous materials and flammable gases, and arson.

Additional courses will be offered in administration and leadership, automatic sprinkler systems, firefighting strategy and tactics, fire prevention, and first-aid techniques.

Red Cross rescue courses will also be conducted.

State Fire Marshal Warren Southworth is chairman of the fire school committee. Gene Glass, deputy chief of the Lexington Fire Department, is co-chairman.

The school has many sponsors: the State Fire Marshal's Office, the University of Kentucky, the Kentucky Firemen's Association, the Kentucky Municipal League, the Lexington Fire Department, the state Bureau of Vocational Education, the Kentucky Industrial Fire Prevention Council, and Insurance Services Offices of Kentucky.

American Freedom Train Will Stop In Lexington

A traditional steam locomotive, a reminder of the glory of American railroading, is one of the major attractions of the American Freedom Train which will arrive for its visit in Lexington on June 12 and 13.

Most of the 4.5 million people who have viewed the Freedom Train during its travels across America have shown great interest in the 400-ton former Reading Railroad T-1 type steam locomotive.

"The sight of a team locomotive pulling the 26 car red, white and blue American Freedom Train excites the imagination of young and old," said Peter Spurney, President of the non-profit American Freedom Train Foundation, Inc. "Crowds of people line the tracks along our route, almost as excited as those who visit the Train."

Locomotive Jim Baltimore says yard," Spurney said. "A hundred or so railroad buffs, from various professions volunteer their time and labor to put the locomotive into running condition. They often worked 12 hours a day."

The T-1 has been renumbered number 1 for its 25,000-mile trip with the American Freedom Train. During its days on the Reading Railroad, it was used to haul both passenger and freight trains. The engine was completely rebuilt in 1945 and retired to occasional excursion runs in 1966.

The Southern Pacific locomotive was loaned by the City of Portland, Oregon where it was on display in a city park. Built in 1941, it was used on the premier passenger run from San Francisco to Los Angeles. Again, a team of volunteers helped refurbish the engine and tender.

"The team locomotives are used as much as possible in moving from city to city," Spurney explained, "but where tight schedules, weather or extreme grades occur, diesel or electric engines might be used for additional power." The American Freedom Train, will be stopping in more than 135 cities over its 21 months. It has already visited over 80 cities in all parts of the country. Its 12 exhibit and showcase cars portray 200 years of America's growth and achievement. There are 300 letters, documents, artifacts and memorabilia board the Train in a series of multimedia displays.

"The goal of the American Freedom Train, a national Bicentennial project," Spurney said, "is to serve as a focal point, and a catalyst, for local bicentennial activities in cities and communities across the Nation." The items on display aboard the Train have been selected from public and private collections in 34 states, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

The Train is open for viewing each day from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Children under 3 will be admitted free. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for children and senior citizens.

The American Freedom Train is a non-profit, tax-exempt and non-political organization.
