Citizens Man The Ramparts!

It may appear to the casual observer that it is a far cry from the peace conferences table to a strong Kentucky National Guard, but there is a direct connection.

When our representatives speak for peace in the world their words must carry weight. There are those who will not sit at the peace table and still dream of conquest. They still seek to control the destiny of other nations and regulate the course of the lives of their citizens by force, if need be.

To those nations and their leaders who recognize only might, we must be prepared to enforce peace if necessary. Talk carries little weight with a power bully unless you are prepared to back up your arguments by forceful action. Here at home we have laws for the protection of life and property, but we still maintain a large, well trained and armed police force to enforce those laws.

Today our Regular Army is below the safety margin in strength, so the nation has engaged in a national effort to build a trained citizen army, the New National Guard, to bolster our national defenses. Kentucky's citizen soldiers have rendered the full measure of service in every war that has threatened our national security. Kentucky's citizen military units have a background of glorious history dating back beyond the founding of the nation when Kentucky was still part of Virginia. Two of Kentucky's active regiments, the 138th Field Artillery and the 149th Infantry, have a record of continuous service dating back before 1780.

The argument that men will not count in future wars has little basis in view of the fact that World War II was termed a "war of machines" and yet required more men than any previous war. War machines require tremendous numbers of highly trained men to keep them operating. The "war of machines" is still on the boards. The realities of today demand that our nation be properly protected at all times. The most obvious action is to build promptly an adequate, trained citizen army to stand shoulder to shoulder with our small Regular Army to enforce peace if that should become necessary.

Our New National Guard today, supplied with modern equipment, has a strength of over 2,500 officers and men. A splendid body of young Americans being taught leadership, citizenship and military drill by experienced Regular Army instructors. The military department of Kentucky is cooperating in a national campaign to bring Kentucky's National Guard to full peace-time strength. By obtaining our quota of 1,965 men, Kentucky will be fulfilling her responsibility for the defense of the nation.

In a republic, such as ours, defense of the nation is the responsibility of every citizen. Every Kentuckian should share the job of building a strong Kentucky National Guard to take its rightful place in our national defense. Units of the Kentucky National Guard are located in 21 communities throughout the Commonwealth. They meet at all times to protect life and property and to assist in the event of a disaster. They are trained and ready to protect the nation in time of war. The men of the Guard are giving much in time and effort to national preparedness which after all is our best peace insurance. Support the Kentucky National Guard and assist in obtaining our quota by November 16th when the campaign ends.

Predicts Recession

The present "serious" inflation will lead to a business slump in the United States "within the next few years," declares Chester Bowles, former vice president of the firm of "W. R. Hambrecht & Co." and author of "The Fair Deal" or "disastrous" but like that of 1920-21 rather than that of 1929.

Mr. Bowles believes that prices in many industries are set upon an unrealistic basis, and that a general depression of the products sold today would make more money for the producer at a lower price. He urges business and the government to get together to arrange for the continued growth of healthy capitalism and declared that such a development would bring a shift in foreign policy that would create a long peace.

Mr. Bowles thinks that full production plus full employment will insure sufficient purchasing power to take care of all the goods that the nation can produce. He thinks that there should be a centrally planned and a timed system of public works to keep the heavy goods industries rolling year in and year out and that the government should take steps to guarantee the construction of 1,300,000 homes each year.

Taking cognizance of the approaching session of Congress, Mr. Bowles says that specific measures can be taken to cushion any recession, but he remains doubtful that anything will be done in view of the forthcoming presidential election year.

Tobacco Market Slumps

The meaning of their export market is clear to all growers of flue-cured tobacco because the price of the crop recently dropped from $1 to $8 a hundred pounds with the announcement that the British government had banned all imports of tobacco from the United States.

Thus, the increasing economic crisis in England, which has caused the British government to take such drastic measures, has a direct effect upon the standard of living of the tobacco growers. While the crop for this year has been largely sold, some areas were in the midst of the selling season and some growers are suffering losses. In addition, tobacco prices, which have been good, may be drastically reduced next year if the British ban remains in effect.

Why is it that we're all pleased as punch when someone says we are level-headed, and then get mad as a hornet when called flat-headed.

To many football fans, the pint after "touch-down" is the most important part of the game.

What the world seems to need today is a back to the soil movement.

In these days of high living costs it takes a lot of living to be happily married.

THE RANGERS COLUMN

By Jack Hicks

Our winning streak has finally left us. Last Sunday our neighbors to the south on the Rock-

Well, folks, all of us Republicans had a grand trip up Salt Creek. Jim Nickols was pilot and our craft was powered with Super-Shell gasoline. We ate breakfast on the way and under the new administration this is what we'll have to live on for the next four years.

Jack West did an excellent job as bell boy on our trip. Clayton Prather and Ernest Brown were his assistants.

Everything went along fine until someone discovered Ralph Miller on board. We knew that all our activities were being spied on during the campaign but we were sure that the Democrats would place such close eyes on us after the votes were counted.

All in all, though, this has been a pretty fair election. I was anxious to see my good friend Dr. Lyon, have the opportunity to represent us in the Senate. I have already advised him that if he doesn't do everything humanly possible for Morehead College, I'm going to find another pupil.

The Democrats have always been a domineering party and I don't think they will be any more so. I have charge of the District Anti-War Patrol but a few days after December 9. Matter of fact, the Democrats have already had some people down in the patrol radio station to see how the thing operates. Callis is one of the capable men I know, but like me it is not the politics are bad for the present.

The election results are upsetting, but so much that it wouldn't surprise me to see Ray West change his lumber company to the Rock Lumber Company. I don't think I will change his name to the Shady Lumber Company.

JACK HICKS it was a little while a forest fire wouldn't, so I headed out to have a look. One look settled that it was a fire all right and going to town with a strong wind fanning it. Jess Williams and his quarry crew were on their way from Rowan quarry when I had a chance to read for a while and they and Road Foreman Harlow hit the fire line about ten minutes after I arrived. Top leaves were dry and dusty, but underneath the litter was surprisingly damp, and the seven of us controlled the blaze in about an hour and a half. Our chief regret, aside from the fact that this fire broke our no-fire record for the fall, is that we didn't have the culprit who started it right out there with his swinging fire rake on those steep slopes with plenty of smoke in his face, or hauling 5-gallon cans of water under the supervision of Jess Williams.

This fire occurred back in the woods away from any road or cleared land. It could have started only from someone's carelessness or maliciousness, probably someone flipping away a cigarette stub or lit match as he walked along in the dry leaves. If only every hunter or other woods traveler would sit down and clear off a little spot when he went through to smoke we would eliminate most of our fall fires.

Qual and rabbit season opens this week and on the 6th, and we can expect plenty of hunters in the woods, particularly on week ends. When you walk through the woods, rabbit, fella, trying to kick up a rabbit or a covey of birds, remember that dry seed grass will kindle at the slightest spark and once a fire gets started good in that stuff it's hard to stop. Never get so all-fired interested in your hunting that you forget to be careful with your smoke.

Speaking of hunting, the coon hunters down Wolfe County way near Pine Ridge have done quite well since the season opened November 1. Game Warden Gargation told of one party that caught four young raccoon alive. They were taking them back to Perry County to be released there. The State Game Commission has a head for each coon released. Incidentally, it is unlawful to hunt coon with a gun before December 1. You can use a dog but no gun.

castle Ranger District had their first fire of the fall season, and on Monday it was our turn. By noon of that day the burning index had risen to 35 and the wind was high, all adding up to the worst fire day so far this fall.

I had divided my time that morning between Morgan Fork depot and the Triangle fire tower where the road crew has been a complete paint job. Just as I sat down to lunch, Dispatcher Joe Mink told me Look-out Fraley had spotted a smoke on Morgan Fork that needed checking. The food smelled good. I figured I'd better get going.

This week all rangers and the supervisor will meet at London, Ky., for a training session on land acquisition work to be conducted by Bill Hedges of the Philadelphia office.

"One of the best pieces you have ever written for our local newspaper," says a reader, "was that one about William Creech, the unlettered Harlan County mountaineer responsible for the founding of Pine Mountain School, a model settlement in a situation. I feel like a ton of brick for both the letter the old man dictated and the two or three sentences describing the school."

If you, dear reader, fell like a ton of bricks, I who know more about the man than I could tell in my limited space, lumber like a Cascade peak topping in like a Yosemite Valley. So, it is only natural that I should want to give you some more of the story.

In 1913 two women, Miss Katherine Pettit and Mrs. Ethel Zande, both college graduates, started a little school in an isolated district in Harlan county, on 235 acres of land donated by the late William Creech and his wife, Aunt Sal, to give industrial, moral and intellectual education and to serve as a social center in an intensely rural neighborhood. The school began with a small number of young children of kindergarten age, many of them from broken homes. It grew rapidly, as fast as buildings and other facilities could be provided. Older children were enrolled and the teaching staff was enlarged.

By 1924, when improved public schools were able to take care of the primary grades, only children ready for the fifth grade were admitted. Beginning with 1930 the school did only junior and senior high school work.

By that time a system of vocational training was well established—courses adapted to the needs of the region. Boys and girls at Pine Mountain now enjoy as good academic instruction as those in modern city schools and vocational training that is a pattern for isolated rural high schools all over the nation.

There is a print shop where youngsters learn typesetting and press work. Every now and then a new building is put up and boys learn stonemasonry, masonry and plumbing. The dairy farm, with a sizable herd of fine cows, enables students to learn all about the production of milk and butter. Feed crops and extensive truck gardening by the most modern methods suited to the region afford more agricultural training. There is a shop for auto mechanics, where boys take cars apart and put them together again. Girls learn to cook and serve food. They run the kitchen and dining room, and wash dishes. There is an infirmary which serves several counties. It has two trained nurses under whom girls students learn Red Cross home nursing. With hand looms girls learn weaving, and there are classes in sewing and dancing.

Students give two and a half hours a day to vocational work which pays for rooms and board. Good manners, most of the social graces, as well as non-sectarian religious instruction are essential parts of the training.

Uncle William Creech's profound statement, "His better for folks characters if they learn to do things with their hands," is never overlooked by the faculty of Pine Mountain School. Nor is the value of academic training, which Uncle William knew less about.

Wouldn't it be fine if there were Pine Mountain schools in two hundred or more isolated Kentucky districts?

We're Still Hoping

During the past election campaign the Democrats in Rowan County accused the Republicans of failure to build or maintain roads. Four years previously the Republicans said the same thing about the Democrats.

And, so far as Rowan County is concerned, the Republicans were right in 1943 and the Democrats were right in 1947. During the Keen Johnson administration Rowan County didn't get any roads; they fared no better under the Wilson regime. The question that Rowan Counties are asking themselves is whether the Clements administration will do any better by us.

It is an unfortunate truth that Rowan County had been neglected in respect probably more than any county in this section. Democrats built roads in Fleming, Bath, Mason and other predominant Democrat counties while they were in power. Governor Willis seems to have taken very good care of Carter, which is a heavy registered Republican county, and it is apparent that the present administration has constructed many feeder roads from this section aimed at bringing Morehead business.

Some time that the men have been aware for Morgan County customers, with Elliott and because better roads have been decreasing in Carter County. The men have been forced away from Rowan County.

When the Democrats were in power, the time of constructing the much needed highway from Morehead to Vanceburg, and the road from Morehead to Wragley which would provide a short and greatly needed route into Morgan and Elliott. The Republicans talked about doing the same thing. Heither did anything.

The time has come when local Democrats and Republican organizations should put aside party differences, and join with the thinking people of Rowan County in rightfully demanding that these two roads be built and that Rowan County be given an equitable amount of highway funds.

For A World Federal Union

Apparently convinced that the United Nations is being hamstrung by the indiscriminate use of the veto by Soviet Russia, many Americans are beginning to give serious thought to the possibility of a federalized world government.

The idea is not new, for many writers have visualized a "federation of the world." However, it occurred to me recently that in the past decade ago when Clarence Strout published his book "Union Now," Mr. Strout advocated a union of the democratic nations of the earth, including those ruled by the people whose population enlargement. He argued convincingly that such a federation would make it virtually impossible for any aggressor to launch an attack against any part of the Union.

During the World War, the idea was necessarily shelved. It has been discussed, debated and elucidated upon numerous occasions since. There have sprung into being several organizations in this country, designed to promote popular acceptance of the idea.

Some of the advocates were ambitious enough to include Russia, Germany, and Japan in the project. They disregarded the essential fact that to work such a union must be composed of people familiar with the workings of democracy. Obviously, the super-federation would be ruled by the people and would not do to permit a dictator-controlled state to participate in deliberations based upon popular will and self-expression.

In Massachusetts, not long ago, at a referendum in the general election, the people adopted, nine to one, a proposal that the state Senate pass a resolution asking the United States Congress to work for a "world federal government to prevent war." Stokes points out that fifteen state legislatures have adopted similar resolutions and there are many petitions, from cities and towns, have poured into the White House.

The people of the United States, it seems, should not shrink from participating in a Federal Union of Democratic States supported by free people. This is what happened in this area when 13 colonies joined together in a Federal Union, with a central government of limited, but essential, powers. Between the colonies, there was established the principle of free trade.

The same factors, if put together in support of a larger Federal Union, would be likely to produce the same general and beneficial results. There would be, of course, a single currency, free trade, a single defense force and recognition of the supremacy of the Federal Government in its delegated field. Other matters would be left to the individual nations just as the American Constitution left many matters to the individual states.

Housing is still a problem. A fellow recently told us that they were so crowded living in one room that the dog had to wag his tail up and down.

Outstanding Yields Predicted In Kentucky's '47 Corn Derby

By Adrian M. Razor, County Agent According to information received, this year's Kentucky Corn Derby is going to reveal outstanding yields for the state of Kentucky. So far, there have been more than 500 entries from 94 counties in the state checked at Lexington. Rowan County had 17 Derby entries this year and most of the yields are unusually high. Almost a third of the 260 one acre yields in the state checked, made 100 bushels and some of them made 150 bushels and more per acre. Many entries in the 5 acre class made a yield over 100 bushels to the acre. Last year's champion for the state of Kentucky grew 164 bushels on the 1.0 acre plot while the five acre plot champion grew 155 bushels to the acre. According to William C. Johnston, who is in charge of the Corn Derby, this year's best yields will probably exceed these figures. Mr. Johnston says that the Derby is rapidly teaching farmers how to produce more corn on less land, which has been the goal of the Agronomy Department at Lexington.

In producing these outstanding yields, farmers select good land, use fertilizer and manure, and plant hybrid seed corn, using the best farm practices. In a few cases this year some farmers even went so far as to irrigate their Derby plots.

State winners in the Corn Derby will be recognized at the Farm and Home Convention at the Experiment Station in Lexington. Winners of the first place in the one acre class will receive $150.00 and top man in the five acre class will receive $200.00. Ten cash prizes will be awarded in each class. Also there will be special prizes given for the yields in the one acre and on land where corn was grown on the contour. Farmers producing 100 to 125 bushels per acre will receive silver buttons, those producing 125 to 150 bushels will receive gold buttons and those producing over 150 bushels will receive specially designed buttons. A number of poultry raisers in the county are keeping poultry calendars on their flocks. Anyone who is interested in keeping records like these can obtain calendars for this purpose at the County Agent's office or they will be sent at no cost if this office is notified. During the period of high feed prices it is good practice to keep a close record so as to be able to know what returns a poultry flock is giving, thereby enabling the flock owner to know when he should cull non-producing

Good Poultry Record

Dean Addresses Vets

Enoch Dean from the Pure Feeds and Fertilizer Department of the University of Kentucky, addressed veterans taking "on-farm training" at the High School gym, Tuesday, November 11. Mr. Dean emphasized the importance of farmers studying the feeds that they buy and said everyone should be sure to study the tags on their feed bags. Approximately 80 veterans attended the meeting and also the local Vocational Agriculture teachers.

In Fashion Now

Clothes have not had such feminine air for the past few years as they have this season. There is something appealing about the yvish of full skirts and the tiny waist lines of the present styles.

Plumes, feathers and ribbon also add charm to milady's bonnet not to mention the very high heels this season.

Life would be a lot simpler if we did not try to make people think we are what we are not.

Social Security Address Should Be Kept Correct

Workers over 65 years old who have been employed during the summer months but are no longer working should write to the Ashland office of the Social Security Administration or see Social Security representative as soon as possible to avoid losing Social Security payments. H. J. Godbey, manager of the Ashland office, stated today.

Payments under the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance provisions of the Social Security Act can be made for those months in which an insured worker earns not more than $14.99 in jobs covered by the act. Mr. Godbey explained.

Back payments are limited to a period of three months before the application is filed. Seasonal workers, frequently lose payments because of delay in filing an application although all other requirements have been met.

The Social Security representative is at the Police Judge's office in Morehead on the 3rd Tuesday of each month, at 1:00 p. m.

REA Solicits Cooperation Of Hunters

Don't Shoot At Wires, Insulators Is Warning

With the coming of the fall and winter hunting days the number of powerline repair calls traceable to shots taken at the glass or porcelain insulators on rural power lines throughout the country usually registers a definite rise.

The Fleming-Mason Rural Electric Co-op is enlisting the cooperation of every person in the area it serves in putting a stop to this thoughtless practice. Not only can damage to an insulator cause immediate danger by causing a live wire to fall to the ground, but also a cracked insulator may create a power leakage that becomes hazardous in wet weather, sometimes long after the thoughtless target-shooting took place.

In addition to the danger, the money loss from the broken insulators represents the least part of the cost. The larger loss comes when service is cut off from rural consumers who depend on electricity to power their production equipment.

Farmers are especially dependent on continuous electrical power during the fall and winter months because of the extensive use of electrical equipment in poultry and dairy equipment. For example, a few hours interruption in power at the wrong time could cost a farmer a brood of fine chicks. And many farmers will testify that it is next to impossible to produce Grade A milk without the aid of electricity.

So that the Co-op can better and cheaper serve the rural consumers, your cooperation on this matter will be greatly appreciated.

Faith and Sight

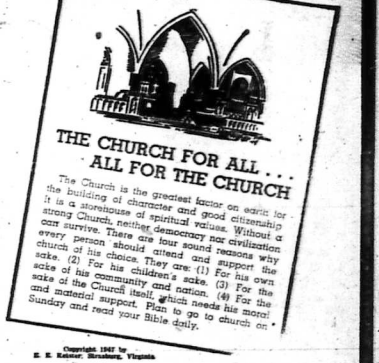

We are awed by science! Our life saving sulfa drugs, penicillin, radar, the cataclysmic atom bomb, even our nylon hose, all are results of scientific research.

In laboratories all over our land scientists gaze through microscopes at tiny organisms too small for human sight and there find the basis for many gifts of health and countless comforts and conveniences for daily living.

But there is a vast area of life above and beyond scientific sight. There are eternal values which cannot be seen with the physical eye—spiritual truths which must be accepted on faith.

Faith and sight are not opposed to each other. Rather does each complement the other and together they make an invaluable contribution to the well-rounded life.

The Church has the faith-finding instruments for our use. You and your children should worship there for greater vision.

Corporation showed an estimated $4,158,000,000 profit in the second quarter of 1947, after taxes, according to the Department of Commerce. This is slightly under the estimated profits for the first quarter of the year and slightly more than in the fourth quarter of 1946.

Clerk Fails To Print Ballots; Grayson Without City Council

The city of Grayson, Ky., emerged from the general election on Tuesday, November 4, in what might be termed the "minus" column.

The city will be "minus" a city council after January 1, 1947. The public is "minus" an authoritative knowledge as to just what can be done about it.

These facts seem evident: first six men filed for the office of Councilmen of the City with County Court Clerk Haskell Jarvis, at the Courthouse in Grayson. The men were Charles Smith, Tom Evans, C. Harris, Cova Baker, Dr. R. A. Wassum, and Ben McGuire. There was no opposition.

Secondly, no ballots were printed in the race for Councilmen, and consequently no vote was taken in the race on election day.

Thirdly, the old council, composed of the six men above, with the exception of Dr. Wassum, who filed in the place of Clyde Johnson, who is now serving, will hold office until Jan. 1st, at which time the city will have no official Council, unless something can be done in the meantime.

The Mayor and the Judge of the city hold office for two more years.

Vets Relatives Should Keep Their Address Current

Next of kin of members of the Armed Forces or of civilians who died overseas while in the service of the United States during World War II were urged today by Col. Don Carleton, Executive of the Kentucky Military District, to report any change of their addresses to the Office of the Quartermaster General.

SERVICE

We serve in accordance with the wishes of the family and have ample facilities for a funeral service in the family home or church — no extra charge for services held in our home.

Col. Carleton pointed out that the listing of correct addresses will facilitate plans of the Department of the Army to carry out the next of kin in connection with the return and reinterment of the valiant dead.

The Second Army has completed plans for carrying out the program for Return of World War II Dead in the Second Army area. It is expected that this program will be well under way by the close of 1947.

It is the desire of the Government that all military personnel who died in the service of their country be given appropriate burial honors. Arrangements for these honors should be made by the next of kin with the local veterans' organizations. Only when it is found that this is not possible, the next of kin should communicate with Col. Don E. Carleton, Executive, Kentucky Military District, 3rd Floor Kentucky Building, 112 South Fifth Street, Louisville 2, Ky., for assistance.

Pertinent information will be furnished next of kin by the Quartermaster General. Where additional information is desired either local veterans' organizations or the District Executive should be contacted.

NEVER AGAIN!

When citizens of so-called "dry" counties realize how unsuccessful prohibition is, they say: "Never again! We'll never vote for local option again!"

They have learned that prohibition has multiplied all the evils of intemperance and immorality, crime and drunkenness.

Citizens who live where legal, controlled sale of alcoholic beverages is permitted have no remorse. They know their system is best!

Lesson

BUILDING CHRISTIAN CHARACTER

International Sunday School Lesson for November 16, 1947

GOLDEN TEXT: "As therefore ye received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him, rooted and built up in him."—Colossians 2: 6-7.

Lesson Text: II Peter 1: 1-11; Jude 17-21; 23-25.

The second letter of Peter, while addressed to the same persons as the first—the Christians scattered throughout various provinces of what is known now as Asia Minor, was written some years later and its purpose was to exhort his reading to true Christian living.

Peter writes "to them that have obtained like precious faith with us in the righteousness of God and our Savior Jesus Christ" the use of this laudatory and courteous phrase signifies that this "like precious faith is equally precious to all and that it gives the same spiritual privileges to the most obscure believers as well as to the most famous of apostles who were eyewitnesses of his majesty."

It is interesting to notice, in reading the epistles of Peter, how many times he uses the word "precious" Peter's list of precious things includes: God's promises, our faith, Christ's blood and the tests to which our faith is subject. These are the things which Peter and every real Christian, has found to be of the most worth.

Of what was Peter thinking when he wrote of God's "precious promises"? It seems likely that he meant foremost of all, the gift of God's own Son and the gift of God's Spirit. Because God gave His own Son for us, we can become "partakers of the divine nature." Peter declared that by faith man may, and do, receive into their spirits, a share in the nature of God.

Surely, those who have, by faith in Jesus Christ, become "partakers of the divine nature." And will want to do all in their power to grow in Christian virtues in order that their knowledge and faith shall not be "idle nor unfruitful." Beginning with the fifth verse, Peter outlines a program for the Christian.

His list of Christian graces, which should be desired by every professing Christian is progressive, and apparently growing out of the preceding one. However, the desire for them is not enough. We cannot attain them, but we must, as Peter suggests, seek to attain them with "all diligence" which suggests hard, earnestness and fervor.

Quite properly Peter begins his list of Christian virtues with faith for "Without faith it is impossible to please him (God)," (Heb. 11: 6). It is not enough, however, just to believe and do nothing about our belief, Peter advises, "Add to your faith virtue. Bengali defines virtue as vigor of soul, or integrity of purpose."

Knowledge carried to the extreme, however, may lead one rather one-sided so Peter wisely advises that we add to knowledge, "temperance" by which means self-control, or regulated conduct. We have seen some Christians who were interperate in the matters of their religious life to the point of fanaticism. We believe that Peter had this in mind as well as temperance in most questions. All of us probably need the injunction to patience. Peter had found that this was a much-needed grace himself. Patients grows out of self-control. Patient endurance is needed by the Christian in living the Christian life.

To patience, must be added Godliness of God-likeness. The godliness of which Peter is talking is that which has its heart a great understanding and sympathy of others. The last two virtues listed will flow naturally if the first ones enumerated are in the Christians character—brotherly kindness and love. The list began with faith and ends with love—the two master words in the Christian religion and, as these abound, Christian character grows.

Which of the Christian virtues do you need to cultivate most in your life? Peter declares that a diligent practice of these virtues will keep the Christian from being idle and unfruitful. "If ye do these things, ye shall never fall." He does not mean by this that the Christian will never sin, but that a sincere effort to cultivate these virtues in one's life will safeguard him against faults and failings. Peter ends his second letter with a final injunction to Christians, which we will do well to try to carry out. "Grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." The Christian should grow spiritually from the time of his acceptance of his Savior until the time he is called to his Eternal Home. Are you growing?

Moore Branch Mine In Carter Gets Inspection

Noteworthy safety progress made recently at the Moore Branch Coal Company's 400' has a day Moore Branch mine near Hittches, Carter County, Ky., is commended in a Federal re-inspection report issued today by the Bureau of Mines which also proposes further improvements in several phases of operation. Sixty-two men were employed at the mine when it was re-examined in August by Inspector Russell Shaw.

Among the nearly two score recent safety advances cited by Inspector Shaw were destruction of deteriorated explosives, special containers for carrying blasting materials, use of permissible explosives in an approved manner, gas tests with permissible flame-safety lamps before and after blasting, fireproof housing and offset installation for the No. 2 surface fan, removal of 2 booster fans from the mine, application of some rock dust in the mine, numerous precautions against electrical and mechanical hazards, a second escapeway from No. 1 section, enforcement of the "no smoking" rule, and 100 per cent wearing of safety-tie shoes.

Veteran's News

Each veteran in training under the GI Bill will receive a notice from VA with future subsistence check advising him not to cash the check if he believes he is not entitled to the full amount of the payment. VA Branch Office officials in Columbus, Ohio, said today.

The notices are designed to help eliminate subsistence allowances overpayments and the necessity for refunds by veterans, VA said.

The notice informs the veteran that, according to VA records, he is still in training. It urges the veteran to contact his nearest VA office before cashing the check if he has stopped training or has any reason to believe the check represents an overpayment of his account.

If the veteran is entitled to a part of the money, VA said, it will make every effort to adjust his records and issue another check without delay.

Four specific benefits are available upon the death of a veteran of any war, VA officials explained today.

VA is authorized by law to pay $150 for funeral and burial expenses of a war veteran, provide an American flag for burial purposes, arrange for interment in a national cemetery and provide a grave marker.

Application for any one of the four benefits may be procured from any VA office, from service organizations and from chapters of the American Red Cross. Benefits are available only when the veteran has been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Questions and Answers

Q. During what period must a World War II veteran have served to become eligible for the educational benefits of the GI Bill? A. From September 16, 1940, through July 25, 1947.

Q. I would like to appear before the VA rating board to explain my application for compensation. Will VA pay my traveling expenses? A. No. All expenses you may incur going to or from a VA rating board must be borne by you.

Q. Can a veteran of the Spanish-American War get government insurance because of his services in the armed forces? A. No.

Over-Payment Made To VA Trainees

Vets Have 60 Days To Make Refunds Or Lose Benefits

Failure to report interruptions in training and ceilings placed on subsistence payments have resulted in overpayments to some 47,000 veterans who must reimburse VA immediately, it was announced recently.

VA has notified these veterans that if they fail to arrange refunds within 60 days, they may not re-enroll for training. Refund arrangements may be made with the nearest VA regional office or that office having jurisdiction over the school in which the veteran is training.

Veterans approved for re-entering training may make restitution in a lump sum; may have future subsistence checks withheld until the obligation is paid, or in hardship cases, may have a small amount deducted from subsistence payments each month. Those not resuming training should make other arrangements to repay. VA is required by law to collect these overpayments. However, it is the policy not to force any undue hardship on a veteran in the collection. At the present time, overpayments are being repaid by veterans at the rate of $5,000,000 a month. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Service men's Board, 1405 West Broadway, Louisville.

Your son, Pfc. James A. Leach, has been mentioned, officially, in a letter of appreciation which I have received from Fort George C. Meade, Maryland.

Pfc. Leach is a benefit and a credit to the Army and this is a message to you to congratulate you for the wonderful work your boy performed. You can be very proud of the fine work Pfc. Leach has done and is a performing.

over and operate the local Recruiting office in the Martindale Building until such time as Sgt. Martin, now confined at Station Hospital, Fort Knox, Ky., returns.

Sgt. Deskins is a native of Russell, Ky., having lived there from 1922 until 1938 when he entered the Army at Fort Knox and served with the 1st Cavalry.

In 1938 Sgt. Deskins went to Panama and served with the 20th MP Company returning at the outbreak of the war to rejoin the Amored Force and serve with the 748th Tank Force organization (SP) General Headquarters Troops for General George S. Patton's famed Third Army.

Sgt. Deskins previously operated the Recruiting office in Greenup, until a shortage of Recruiting Personnel forced the closing of many of the Ashland District Sub-Station including Morehead and Olive Hill.

Former service men interested in recruiting assignments are urged to contact Sgt. Deskins and discuss requirements. Also a great number of vacancies exist in the Second Army Area which includes Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and Kentucky with posts in that area such as Ft. George G. Meade, Fort Knox, Camp Campbell, New Cumberland Depot and many others.

Sgt. Deskins will visit Olive Hill at the Postoffice on Tuesdays and Grayson Postoffice on Thursdays.

What's more, he pays no income tax on his Army pay.

That's why it's estimated that it requires a civilian income of $211.50 per month to equal the private's pay of $75.00.

Further, the soldier gets a 4 per cent increase for each 3 years of service. A 20 per cent increase for service overseas. A 50 per cent increase for member of flying or glider crew. A $50.00 increase if on "jump" status in the Paratroopers.

Do you know that a Master Sergeant in the Army or U. S. Air Force may retire at his own request after 20 years of service for the rest of his life? If he elects to serve thirty or more years his monthly income of $107.25 for the rest of his life!

If he elects to serve thirty or more years his monthly income will be $185.63.

"Green Cross"
A national "Green Cross for Safety" campaign will be launched by the National Safety Council in cooperation with community safety organizations to promote the practice of safety more widely in general daily life. The drive will be especially against home and road accidents and other accidents that have not been adequately attacked by preventive efforts. The need for such a movement is evident from the fact that accidents killed 99,000 Americans last year, seriously injuring 10,400,000 more and cost the nation $8,400,000,000 in cash damages.

The publicity itch gets a lot of people sooner or later, but it usually gets them.

Maintenance of the summer camp which the boys attend and program materials and training materials, go to fund up other important parts of the budget. An accounting system of the funds is maintained through the Bluegrass Council office, which permits a central book-keeping system and one unified audit for the whole Council by a certified public accountant.
